YOUNG MAN (30), just leaving Salvation Army, and with several years' experience in other branches of Christian service, seeks some trustworthy, useful appointment.—Address, KESWICK, Bryngoleu, Thornlaw-road, West Norwood. c6848

APPRENTICE. — Wanted to place youth, 15½, with a godly family to learn the outfitting smartly.—Address c6823, Haddon's Advertising Office, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6823

A LADY WISHES TO RECOMMEND an active energetic man of the very highest principles to fill any post of trust. Understands gardening, hothouses, poultry, etc. Married, children. Held most responsible position for many years, where accounts and correspondence were necessary.—Any person desiring absolute trustworthiness and honesty would do well to write. CHADWICK, care of Mr. Ling, Bookseller, Dorchester. c6861

FARM BAILIFF. — Christian couple wanting situation at Michaelmas. Wife good dairywoman, used to all kinds of land and stock. Leaving present employment because not Church of England. Good references. Religious liberty more valued than salary.—ROBERT NUNN, Hall Farm, Dalham, Newmarket. c6779

COACHMAN, SINGLE-HANDED, thoroughly understands his duties, used to pair and single. Willing to be useful. Quiet place. Married. Age 42. Christian, abstainer. Liberty when suited. Good character.—E. L., Tenby, Muswell-avenue, Muswell-hill, N. c6845

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN seeks situation as coachman. Single, age 28, thoroughly understands his duties, life abstainer, and two years' good character.—W. MARKHAM, Emmott Hall, Colne, Lancashire. c6817

A SITUATION wanted as groom and gardener, or any place of trust. Willing to be useful. Well recommended. Married. Two children. Abstainer.—Address, F. C., York-road, Fisherton, Salisbury. c6811

WORKING GARDENER.—LIFE EXPERIENCE in the cultivation of fruit, plants, and vegetables, and general routine of good establishments. Thoroughly recommended. Age 27. Christian and life abstainer.—EDWARD GRISTWOOD, Stoughton Grange, Leicester. c6797

GARDENER, HEAD WORKING, thoroughly experienced in all branches. Ten years in present situation. Leaving through death of employer. Age 40. Married.—H. FILBEY, The Gardens, Penanroz, Croydon, Surrey. c6814

WANTED, BY CHRISTIAN MAN, total abstainer, for twenty-eight years, place of trust, no children, age 50, naval pensioner, as caretaker, chapel-keeper, manager soldiers' home. Would go abroad anywhere for the Master's sake.—WOODS, Grange, South Godstone, Surrey. c6782

WILL ANY CHRISTIAN kindly give a respectable lad (15), once convicted, a trial? Apprentice to grocery or drapery preferred. All particulars given.—Rev. E. BRUCE PEARSON, Ryde, I.W. c6858

TWO LADIES DESIRE ENGAGEMENTS in Christian work in exchange for board and residence. Experienced. Excellent testimonials.—Address at first to CANADA, 193, Upper-street, Islington, London, N. c6805

A TRAINED NURSE seeks work as mission woman. Would assist in nursing the sick. Can conduct mothers' meetings and Bible classes. Churchwoman. Recommended. Work must be in or near London.—c6846, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6846

A CLERGYMAN recommends a lady, from whom he has been unwillingly obliged to part, as a companion or parish help.—Apply, E. W., Mineral Cottage, Combe Martin, Ilfracombe, Devon. c6860

THE SECRETARY of a Preventive Home wishes to recommend a Christian lady, about 50, for place of trust as head of training or preventive home. High-principled, with an invaluable influence with girls. Would be suitable as a companion to invalid, and most useful in mothers' meetings.—Address, Miss HITCHCOCK, 156, Norwich-road, Ipswich. c

YOUNG LADY WANTS SITUATION as under-secretary. Has three years' experience. Also a competent shorthand (110 words per minute) and typist (Remington).—Apply, Miss COOTE, 3, Urswick-road, Hackney. c6869

SITUATION wanted for trustworthy elderly woman as working housekeeper or charge of offices, etc. Is a good cook. Good references.—Apply, Mrs. WATSON, 2A, Scales-road, Tottenham, London, N. c6761

COMPANION-HOUSEKEEPER.—GENTLEWOMAN seeks engagement, understands management of children and servants. Experienced in sickness and elderly people. Used to mission work. Abstainer, musical. Position of trust. Salary £60.—Address, c6856, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6856

A CHRISTIAN LADY seeks re-engagement as companion to an elderly or invalid lady. Abstainer. Kind and gentle. Excellent references. —T., 33, Keildon-road, Clapham Common, S.W. c6795

A MIDDLE-AGED WIDOW LADY is desirous of meeting with an appointment as companion or nurse-companion to an invalid.—Apply, stating salary, to Mrs. WEBSTER, 20, Sudeley-street, Brighton. c6850

AN ENGAGEMENT wanted by middle-aged lady as companion, or to assist in other light duties in comfortable home. Good references. No salary.—c6880, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6880

AS USEFUL LADY'S MAID, good dressmaker and needlewoman. Tall, healthy, willing and obliging. Christian and abstainer. Country preferred.—F., 1, Gresham-road, South Norwood, S.E. c6859

AS LADIES' MAID.—Wanted engagement. Age 24. Knowledge of dressmaking. Useful and willing. Would travel. Good references. Christian home desired.—J. B., 47, Princes-street, Leamington Spa. c6903

A LADY WISHES TO RECOMMEND a thoroughly respectable efficient laundry-maid. Good shirt and collar dresser. Private family preferred. Churchwoman and abstainer. Good reference.—H. S. P., Wood Lawn, Hanworth, Middlesex. c6819

GOOD PLAIN COOK, middle-aged, active and willing. Late mistress happy to answer all inquiries promptly.—Apply, by letter, A. L. C., 4, Montagu-street, Portman-square, W. c6818

SITUATION WANTED as housemaid where parlourmaid is kept, or second where two or more are kept. Please state wages given.—Address, L. CUMMIN, c.o. Mrs. Tasker, Brookside, Andover, Hants. c6824

WILL ANY LADY kindly take a servant and give her a chance of regaining her character? Would value good home.—W., 123, Brackenbury-road, Hammersmith. c6828

SITUATIONS, ETC., VACANT.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

EVANGELISTIC SECRETARY wanted for Y.M.C.A., South of England. Must have exceptional powers and experience for large Evangelistic services, and very earnest in spiritual and personal work in winning young men. Single, from 25 to 40; to live at Y.M.C.A.—State qualifications, experience, church membership, salary, etc., to CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE, care of J. W. Vickers, 7, Nicholas-lane, London, E.C. c6851

STATIONERY AND ARTIST'S COLOURS.—Young man wanted as assistant. Live in.—Apply, by letter, stating age and salary required, to W. and H. KING, 44, High-street, Hampstead, N.W. c6757

A RELIABLE MAN wanted, who understands farm work, including driving. Wages 13s. a week, with cottage, coals, vegetables, milk. Scotchman preferred, without family.—Angel Down, Wantage, Berks. c6941

GARDENER.—WANTED, FOREMAN, who understands the management of vines, melons, cucumbers, etc., also palms, ferns, and flowers. Single. To live in bothy. Church of England. Abstainer preferred.—Apply, SECRETARY, Gloddaeth, Llandudno. c6795

WANTED, for Mission Work in Wands worth, an active, motherly woman, one who thoroughly understands clothing club and soup kitchen work, also capable of managing small convalescent home during summer months, and a good visitor.—Apply to Miss RAINSFORD, 17, Carlton-road, Putney, S.W. c

A LADY required, a Christian, whose heart is in the work, for a lady's private children's home at Hampstead. Must be able to train and manage children. Needlework and music desired.—Apply, by letter, to Miss M., 3, Cumberland-villas, Woodhurst-road, Acton. c6855

YOUNG CHRISTIAN LADY of means wanted on mutual terms. Total abstainer. Able to drive, paint. State age and qualification, when at liberty. References given and required.—c6840, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6840

CHRISTIAN GENTLEWOMAN wanted, as mother's help. Experienced. Good manager with children. Good needlewoman. Willing to undertake some light household duties. Bright, energetic.—Mrs. MORGAN, Brookside, New Southgate, Middlesex. c6821

SEWING MAID.—Can lady thoroughly recommend French or Swiss Protestant? Good sewer. Willing to wait upon young people. Required September.—Answer, Y.W.C.A. Registry, 80, Bath-street, Glasgow. c6923

DISTRICT OR PRIVATE NURSING. —Vacancies for pupil nurses. Three months' training, fee 13 guineas. Certificate given. Work found, with salary, after training, if wished.—SISTER, Nurses' Home, 196, Romford-road, Forest Gate, E. c6786

CAN A LADY recommend a thoroughly experienced, conscientious, Christian nurse, for a lady's first baby? In the Isle of Wight.—Apply to Mrs. PETERS, The Seven Springs, near Cheltenham. c6772

NURSE ATTENDANT FOR INVALID lady. Good needlewoman. Abstainer. £20 wages. Quiet place. Age 25 to 30.—Apply by letter, W., 16, Effingham-road, Reigate. c6815

WANTED, A CHRISTIAN WOMAN for bath work, good shampooing, and massage.—Apply to C. F. CARPENTER, The Health Resort, Bishop's Teignton, South Devon. c5424

LAUNDRESS wanted, middle of September, at country house. Good unfurnished cottage and all utensils for laundry-work provided. Widow and daughter preferred. Good wages.—Write, A., Willing's Advertisement Office, 162, Piccadilly, W. c6754

PRACTICAL LAUNDRESS wanted, to take charge of laundry and washhouse in an institution (female refuge). Able to teach and help when necessary. Age 36 to 40. Abstainer. Wages £22 yearly, and 10s. monthly for extras. Testimonials.—Address, MATRON, Refuge, Greenock. c6781

WANTED, BY THE 29TH INST., two ladies to do the housework and cooking in a quiet family at the seaside. Write, stating wages, etc.—Address, C., Julians, Buntingford. c6773

WANTED, EARLY IN SEPTEMBER, for a quiet country house in Gloucestershire, good plain cook and a house-parlourmaid. All found but beer.—Particulars to Mrs. ROBERTS, Ivymeath, Snodland, Kent. c6825

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted for small family at St. Leonards-on-Sea. A Church of England Christian desired. Housemaid kept. No beer. Must be willing to assist in housework.—C. A. B., Brunswick House, Buxton. c6813

COOK (good plain) wanted in country, three miles from Southampton. Small family, three other servants. Must be well recommended. A Christian servant valued. — Apply, Mrs. MORRIS ASHBY, Lingwood, Bassett, Southampton. c6842

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, not under 25 years of age. Healthy, reliable, fond of a dog. In a small quiet family.—Address, T. D., care of Mr. LUCAS, Chapel-road, Worthing. c6787

DEVON. — COMFORTABLE for trustworthy countrywoman, good plain cook, middle-aged preferred, as general servant to two ladies in pleasant country town. £16 to £18.—M. L. J., The Acacias, Tooting, S.W. c6910

CAN ANY LADY recommend as kitchen-maid, where no scullery-maid is kept, a strong, willing, steady girl? Age 18 to 20. Some experience. One who has been scullerymaid preferred. Dairy and baking. Church of England. Small family. Quiet place.—Mrs. HEYWOOD, Elleray, Windermere. c6644

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, who understands plain cooking. Housemaid kept. Must be trustworthy, clean, and good-tempered. State wages. One lady only.—Address, K. Z., 9, Buckland-crescent, South Hampstead. c6847

GENERAL SERVANT WANTED, end of August, in small quiet family, age about 20. Must be very clean, quick, willing, quiet, and an early riser. Christian highly valued. Dissenter preferred. Another servant kept. No fringe. Full particulars on application. Wages £15. Good character essential. —Mrs. BULLOCK, 48, Bromley-common, Kent. c6777

The Christian.

☞ To avoid delay it is requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan and Scott, and not to its individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for THE CHRISTIAN should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 1 of cover.)

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

☞ The Publishers request that all orders for THE CHRISTIAN by post, and remittances for same, be addressed to "THE CHRISTIAN" POSTAL DEPARTMENT, BOUVERIE HOUSE, SALISBURY SQUARE, LONDON, E.C.

Cheques and Post Orders to be made payable to Messrs. John Haddon and Co. at that address.

The subscription for one year, including Postage and Coloured Almanack, is as under :—

For Great Britain and Ireland ..	6s. 7d.	per annum
For India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, France, Germany, and other European Countries	8s. 10d.	" "
For United States and Canada ..	2¼ dols.	" "
Or including Monthly Copy of HERALD OF MERCY	2½ dols.	" "

Subscriptions for THE HERALD OF MERCY.

4 Copies monthly	2s.	per annum
8 " "	4s.	" "
12 " "	6s.	" "
24 " "	12s.	" "

Post free to any address at home or abroad.

Remittances to be sent as above. Postcard should be enclosed for receipt or extra stamp to cover postage of same.

Notes and Comments.

THE news from Northern China which we publish to-day will show the perilous times that our missionary brethren and sisters there are at present passing through. Another letter from Mr. Ririe, written a few days later, and giving further details, is deferred till our next issue. The situation in Southern China becomes complicated by the telegraphic intelligence of Tuesday morning, to the effect that the Chinese Government refuse to allow the British and American consuls to take part in the inquiry into the massacre at Ku-Cheng; that the soldiers are plundering the people; and that further incendiary placards have been posted at Canton.

Coming nearer home, to Madagascar, we have the rumour that all English, Americans, and Norwegians, whether missionaries or merchants, have been ordered to leave Imerina, because of suspected sympathy with the French. From Armenia the latest dispatch from Tiflis states that in the country between Sasoun and Mush, the Christian population have been driven from their homes and their houses given to the Kurds. In all these lands the enemy is raging, and the help of man seems totally inadequate. Let us bear up in our daily prayers at the throne of grace, the afflicted and the persecuted, asking that God may be pleased to send relief.

The deeply touching and impressive proceedings at the C.M.S. meeting in Exeter Hall, on Tuesday of last week, afforded a striking example of the real heart unity of the one Church, and how when one member suffers all the others suffer with it. There was not much by way of fresh information to impart to the assembled friends; but the occasion will be invaluable in strengthening the faith of friends of missions everywhere, and in nerving them to still greater endeavours in the evangelisation of all nations.

It is satisfactory to find that the Chinese martyrdoms have not only attracted a good deal of attention, but have called forth much wise defence of missionary work from part of the secular press. If there has been the usual amount of foolish writing by persons who are only superficially informed, there has also been good sensible writing in reply. The Times has done well. In a portion of the provincial press the same characteristics are to be found, so that altogether we believe the missionary cause will henceforth be better understood, and have the stronger and more intelligent confidence of the country. This is a great gain; for though our dependence is upon the Christians, we wish to stand well with all men. We do not wish our good to be evil spoken of, if it can be prevented.

Times of straitness and difficulty in the work of societies which have been really established and used by God are only the passages which lead them into ampler means and larger work. We are looking for that result as the end of the present crisis of several missionary societies. Let there be an open mind, and the door of escape will be seen and passed safely through. There may come to the churches a deeper sense of responsibility, and a larger liberality; or new methods of work may be discovered and adopted; or, better still, it may be found possible and safe to leave many of the mission churches to go alone. There seems to be a desire to do this on the part of some of the churches in India, as well as in Japan, and although they may have somewhat antedated the day of coming of age, their very wish to be free will aid their efforts. The Master seems to be preparing their way. Let Christians at home follow as He leads.

A London physician writes to us commenting on Mr. Egerton Young's letter last week, in reference to the drinking of water on the Continent. The writer fears that the letter may be productive of serious consequences, and says :—

> We medical men meet with many instances where persons have gone in search of health and have instead contracted disease.

Our correspondent's letter, however, seems to argue against the drinking of water everywhere; he cites Worthing, Chicago, and Ramsgate as places where enteric fever has resulted, to his own knowledge, from this cause. That seems to us to reduce the thing to an absurdity. No doubt great care is necessary, especially in all our large cities and towns, in seeing to the purity of the water, but with the advance of scientific methods of purification, such care is surely within the reach of all.

The life of our boys again occupies public attention. To see their bodies poisoned at drinking and gambling clubs, and their minds with pernicious literature, may well give thoughtful people pause. The bad book plays a great part in juvenile crime. Can this not be cast out by good books? Our children all read now, but their taste is often deplorably low, and hence they choose the penny dreadful and pass by healthy books. Their condition points to the necessity for more individual effort, accompanied by more wisdom and Divine power. Books are only dead things, however good they be; and our youths need living care and love. Only thus can they be kept from degrading clubs, and induced to read books which will aid them to higher things. Chiefly do they need to be brought to the feet of their Saviour, who alone can guide them safely.

Our friends may be thankful to be reminded that, except for Surrey and Middlesex, the Brewster Sessions are held between August 20 and September 14. In opposing new licences, a work which is becoming more and more successful every year, it is well to employ a solicitor and sometimes a counsel to plead. Magistrates who will afterwards have to judge an application, ought not to sign any petition against it; even if they are members of a society which appeals against it they cannot act on the bench. A deputation to the bench should be composed of property owners and leading ratepayers, and it should deal with such facts as the needless number of public-houses in the borough or county, the liquor monopoly, the condition of licensed property, and the conduct of licensed business. New licences should be opposed on the ground of not being required, or the unfitness of the applicant, or the character of the premises. For success in the work of opposing, the whole subject should be studied.

The Conference of Bible Christians gave another evidence that union between denominations of the same family is a thing of the near future. The Primitive Methodists having expressed an opinion in favour of the union of the minor Methodist Churches, the Bible Christians have followed in the same strain, and have appointed a committee to deal with the whole question. It is true that now and again efforts at union lead to the accentuation of differences and to a wider estrangement, but with a good ultimate result. And so it may be here, but we hope for better things even at the first. Denominations which have sprung from the same root and stock ought now, after years of change and modification, to find themselves practically the same. May union, peace, and strength come on all.

It is sad, but not surprising, to read in an American paper that the military and some of the Elders of a Presbyterian Church are involved in a contention over a Boys' Brigade. The feeling has been growing more bitter for months. Strife generally seems to break out over some worldly matter; the contention is not over the salvation of souls nor over efforts to glorify our Saviour. The worldly element is always like the clay in the image or the dynamite in the house. In departing from its proper spiritual work to be done in a spiritual way, the Church involves herself in needless struggles, and falls a prey to the craft of Satan.

New York, Arizona, and Idaho have raised the age of "consent" from fourteen to eighteen years of age, and other States are expected to follow. Even should a girl be a consenting party to any attempt on her honour, the man will be held guilty of a breach of the law. The measure may, therefore, be a heavy blow at certain houses of ill-fame which gather in unsuspecting girls and live upon their ruin. All such acts will aid in raising the standard of morals and purifying the air of a great deal of deadly feeling. Men will have a better estimate of women, and will behave more carefully to the defenceless.

Patriotism is one of the worst abused virtues of citizens. It is often only a cloak for selfishness and pride. It is not so much love of country as hatred of foreigners. China is intensely patriotic, and massacres "foreign devils" to gratify her feelings. France is intensely patriotic, and her sensitive jealousy is hard to please. The old Pagan nations cultivated patriotism much as a wild animal cultivates love of its species—at the cost of everyone else. When national sentiment was weak, there was in some respects a greater sense of the brotherhood of man than there is to-day. The only safe guide is Christian love, which teaches us to love our neighbours as ourselves.

The Lord's Care.

"It is better to trust in the Lord."—Ps. cxviii. 8.

Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on the subject, how little is the luxury of giving to God understood, even by Christians. We are so slow to abandon our human reasonings and calculations, and to believe, in a practical way, that the "more blessed" portion is reserved for the giver! Laying up treasure in Heaven is not yet regarded as a good investment.

If we more fully recognised our dependence upon God, we should also more fully recognise the blessedness and high privilege of following the Divine order—not giving merely from impulse, not waiting for the feelings to be powerfully wrought upon, but habitually copying the example of Him who, though He was rich, for our sakes became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich.

The luxury of giving is not the sole prerogative of the rich and great. Generosity is not to be gauged by figures. The very reverse is often true, and literally the cottager's missionary store shames the guinea of the squire, even as, morally, the "two mites" of the widow outweighed the most munificent offerings cast into the treasury of old.

One Saturday evening a mother and daughter pleaded with God, for there was but one sixpence left in their frugal purse, and the Lord's day was close at hand. Sunday morning dawned, and the daughter prepared for the hour of worship, whilst the invalid remained at home, as usual.

"Oh, dear, take the sixpence," she quietly said, as the child was going out. "Mother, it is the last. Do you think the Lord expects it?"

"My child," was the reply, "give it to Him; He will give it back with good interest." Thus urged, the daughter did as she was requested, and the coin was quietly dropped into the offerings of the Lord's poor.

Returning home, my friend met a lady whom she had not seen for several years, but who now greeted her kindly. "Are you free to leave your mother for a little while to come into the house with me?" inquired this lady.

"Oh yes, I can come in for a few minutes." When leaving, a little book was slipped into her hand, with the suggestion that it should be read to the invalid mother. On opening it in the afternoon there fell out, to their great surprise, an envelope containing one pound.

"Did I not tell you that the Lord would return it with good interest?" was the mother's quiet question. And they praised Him together.

The next day the lady who had so unexpectedly befriended them, called, and on hearing how opportunely her gift had come, she said, "That is very striking. Whilst in prayer on Sunday morning, it seemed as if the Lord distinctly told me, 'Give Miss —— a pound.' I hesitated, but the voice seemed still more clear, and, to be quite sure it was of Him, I asked that if it was indeed his will that I should give it, you might come to my lodgings when I asked you. On your accepting my invitation to come in I felt quite sure of his will."

This simple incident was told me by the daughter herself, and is here given as an encouragement to simple trust in God. If the Lord's people would as simply trust Him, would they not as certainly taste and prove that the Lord is good?

Lucy A. Bennett.

(To be continued.)

Are We Ready for Revival?

There has been very much said of late concerning revivals, and the frequent papers that have appeared in The Christian have caused much serious thought, and have awakened an earnest desire that the coming autumn and winter may be times of great ingatherings of souls. There is a danger, however, that a revival may be "worked up" instead of being "brought down"—that it may be merely enthusiasm and excitement instead of the working of the Holy Spirit.

The Day of Pentecost is the best illustration we can possibly have of a true revival. The apostles were endued with the Spirit, the preached word was with power, and conviction, followed by conversion, was the result.

Many of your readers, I doubt not, have also read the account of the revival of 1839 in Scotland, which Dr. Andrew A. Bonar gives in his memoir of R. M. M'Cheyne. Allow me to give an extract:—"On Thursday, at the close of the usual prayer meeting in St. Peter's, and when the minds of many were deeply solemnized by the tidings which had reached them,* he (Mr. W. C. Burns, who was taking the place of R. M. M'Cheyne during his absence) spoke a few words about what had for some days detained him from them, and invited those to remain who felt the need of an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. About a hundred remained; and at the conclusion of a solemn address to those anxious souls, suddenly the power of God seemed to descend, and all were bathed in tears. At a similar meeting next evening there was much melting of heart, and intense desire after the Beloved of the Father; and on adjourning to the vestry the arm of the Lord was revealed. No sooner was the vestry door opened to admit those who might be anxious to converse, than a vast number pressed in with awful eagerness. It was like a pent up flood breaking forth; tears were streaming from the eyes of many, and some fell on the ground groaning, and weeping and crying for mercy. Onward from that evening, meetings were held every day for many weeks, and the extraordinary nature of the work justified and called for extraordinary services. The whole town was moved. Many believers doubted, the ungodly raged, but the Word of God grew mightily and prevailed."

Now, as far as I can judge, that work was in every respect similar to the work on the Day of Pentecost.

(a) There was the waiting before God for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. (b) There was the solemn and earnest preaching of the Word. (c) Practically the people were led to cry as on the Day of Pentecost, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" (d) It caused great consternation among every section of society. (e) Finally, many hundreds were brought to "know Him, whom to know is life eternal." We cannot have any possible doubt as to the supernatural origin of such a revival.

The consideration of the above brings to my mind with great force the question, "Are we prepared for such a manifestation of God's power in our midst?"

Are we as individuals living in touch with Him and are we prepared to do our part should He in infinite mercy "open the windows of Heaven"? Is the Church of Christ ready for it?

"Thus saith the Lord, make this valley full of ditches. For thus saith the Lord, Ye shall not see the wind, neither shall ye see rain; yet that valley shall be filled with water, that ye may drink, both ye and your cattle, and your beasts. And this is but a light thing in the sight of the Lord: He will deliver the Moabites also into your hand" (2 Kings iii. 16-18). Nothing would be more destructive to unbelief in the Church than a revival such as that of which we have been thinking.

And now, to be practical, how are we to "make this valley full of ditches"? How can we prepare for the blessed manifestation of the power of God?

I. We must expect a revival, or we shall never really prepare for it.

II. We must pray, for such blessings always come in connection with prayer.

III. We must preach the Word, for it is through the Word that the Spirit works.

IV. We must "abide in Christ." He is our only source of strength.

If we observe these four conditions a revival will have commenced already, and God, seeing our attitude toward Him, will fulfil his gracious promise, and "pour water upon him that is thirsty and floods upon the dry ground" (Isa. xliv. 3).

The Christian was formerly called The Revival; it was founded in a season of revival, and, if its recent record of the "great things He hath done" has stirred the heart of every reader as it has that of the writer, it may be the instrument through which God will do still "greater things than these." Let every reader pray that it may be so.

Henry R. Cripps.

81, Bellenden-road, Peckham, S.E.

* The revival at Kilsyth.

IRISH RAILWAY TALKS.—3.

By GEORGE WILLIAMS.

The Fenian rising of 1867 so alarmed some of my relatives when residing in the county of Tipperary, that to please them I went down to stay at their house for a little time. We slept each night with loaded guns at our bedsides, but I felt no apprehension whatever, and resolved with myself that I would shoot nobody. A considerable body of the insurgents marched past our house without pausing to visit us; and, beyond tearing up a piece of the railway track, and courteously demanding arms from some of the neighbours, they did nothing very terrible.

Matters having quieted down I started back one day to Dublin by the afternoon train from Thurles. Noticing a gentleman alone in a compartment I got in with him, and very soon we fell atalking about the state of the country. He was very nervous, said he would never visit Ireland again, and observed that but for the Royal Irish Constabulary, life would be impossible in some districts. I ascertained that he was a London merchant returning from a tour to the Lakes of Killarney.

Our conversation was presently interrupted by a loud whistling from the engine. He turned very pale and stood up in great agitation. I tried to calm him, assured him there was no danger, and added that the man who was saved, and who knew it, had a peace that nothing could shake.

He was much surprised at this remark, and sitting down and looking at me with astonishment, said, "And do you know that you are saved?" "Yes." "And how do you know it?" "Because God never punishes sin twice."

"What do you mean by that? Why does that make you know that you are saved?"

"I will try and make that clear to you. In the 53rd of Isaiah we read, 'He was wounded for our transgressions.' My sins have been judged by God, and the judgment being infinite it cannot be repeated; hence I know that I am past the doom of my sins, and therefore saved." I quoted other passages. He was greatly interested, begged me to tell him more, and wanted to know how he could make all this his own. I read to him some of the many verses which showed he had but to surrender himself as a helpless sinner to the Lord Jesus, and all was his.

On reaching Dublin he very warmly invited me to visit him in London. I called at his house, and learned that some time after his return from Ireland he had dropped dead when going into town.

"Father, Keep Them."*

(John xvii. 11).

It is through the great grace and long-suffering of God, his people are left here in the wilderness. Many are the absolutely necessary lessons to be learned here, and not to be learned elsewhere, for practical experience with which the people of God are left in the world.

1. We are left here to learn—what we are. An humbling lesson to be spelt out day by day, and hour by hour. The unworthiness, the weakness, and worse than weakness, of self; the poverty, the worse than poverty, the corruption of self. Where so likely or suitable a place to learn this as in the world?

2. We are left to learn by practical experience the emptiness of the creature. We have our hopes, our affections, our desires, and we try to satify them, and find a resting-place for them in the creature. We make the effort only to be disappointed. It is well to learn that there is not a resting-place in all creation for our poor hopes and hearts. We know of no position so calculated to teach us the lesson as "in the world," and, depend upon it, God knows this, else he would not leave us here, but would take us to the place where we could learn most effectually these two great lessons—the unworthiness of self, and the emptiness of the creature.

3. We are left here to learn the glory of Christ, the abundance of his grace, the constancy of his love, the inexhaustible fulness laid up in Him for our help. When the creature disappoints us, we are taught to look to Christ for rest, and there we shall never be disappointed. The grace that is in Him is manifested and enhanced all the more fully in contrast with the unworthiness of self. Here we are taught the value of the blood that cleanseth from all sin. Here we are taught by practical experience that his strength is made perfect in our weakness. Oh! well for us if, in our earthly training, the flesh goes down, and self is prostrated in the dust, while Christ alone is exalted. Well for us if, when hope fails to find its rest in the creature, we learn to cast our anchor upon Him, where Christ's love, and tenderness, and sympathy are experienced most clearly and distinctly amidst the weariness and disappointments of time.

4. We are left "To be made partakers of Christ," and to have fellowship with Him in his sufferings. The only thing in which He can have fellowship with us here, is in suffering. He can have none with our unbelief, distrust, corruptions, or sin, only with our sufferings, and most of all, our sufferings for his name's sake. The world which hates Him hates us, and the principles of the world which are opposed to Him, oppose themselves to us. He was a stranger here; and just in proportion as his people are like Him they will learn that they too are strangers here. Now, is it not well to be in a position where He can have fellowship with us in our sufferings? It was in this wilderness He sorrowed and suffered, and deeply and tenderly He sympathises with his tempted members; nay, "If ye suffer for Christ's sake, happy are ye; for the Spirit of glory and of God resteth on you" (1 Peter iv. 14.)

5. We are left here to learn the power of God. If it were not for the mighty power of God, the world, the flesh, and the devil would be too much for us; they are all leagued against our souls. It is the power of God alone that keeps us; it is not by might of our own, or power or wisdom of our own, but by the strong arm of our God round about us that we are kept; and we are left in the world to learn the lesson.

6. We are left here to learn the faithfulness of God. There is no more important lesson we can learn in the wilderness than this—the faithfulness of our God; that He is true to his promise, always has been, and always will be; that He does not and will not change, though we do; that He does not vary in his love to us, as we do in our love to Him; that He is "the same yesterday, and to-day, and for ever," our faithful friend, our faithful God.

7. And we are left here to learn to believe his Word. In all the varieties of our frames—and where can there be a position imagined in which a greater variety of frames and feelings is brought out as in this weary world? where so much disappointment, conflict, and temptation? where so many deep, deep deep afflictions?—in all the variety of our frames, and in all the phases of our need, we are here to learn to believe his Word notwithstanding, to hope in his name, to watch, to pray, to wrestle, to fight, and, by his grace, to conquer through Him that loved us.

Oh! God our Father, teach us our wilderness lessons, grant that we may learn them well, grant that we may learn them deeply; let us not lose one stage of our pilgrimage; let us not lose one practical lesson that any of the conflict, difficulties, and trials of our way were intended to impart; only keep us in the hollow of thy hand, keep us from evil! Soon the wilderness will be past for ever, and then the white robe, and then the palm branches of victory, and then the crown of life, and then the throne of glory. Let us try and feed our faith, if we have any; and if we have not, may God Almighty beget faith in us while we ponder over our Lord's Prayer, "Holy Father, keep them."

*Extracted from The Lord's Prayer for Believers: Thoughts on St. John xvii. By Rev. Marcus Rainsford. Fourth edition, carefully revised and remodelled. (5s, Simpkin, Marshall & Co.)

TEMPERANCE REFORM.

After the recent election, we heard an old worker say, "What's the use of working, when after so many years of toil we find ourselves thoroughly defeated?"

This feeling of depression, we are sorry to observe, appears to fill the mind of many an ardent and faithful worker. Yet what a deplorable mistake it would be to abandon our efforts in behalf of the great temperance reformation, because we find the country unprepared as yet to accept a legislative proposal, complicated with many other issues, and placed before the constituencies as a working scheme for the first time.

Those who consider that we have failed in our work because we have not secured the legislation we desire should call to mind the extraordinary results, which altogether apart from legislation, have been brought about since the origin of the temperance movement only sixty years ago. We are too much impressed with the evils which arise from the present state of the law to disregard them, and are of course thoroughly persuaded of the substantial good which would result from wise legislation. Local Control, Sunday Closing, earlier closing on Saturday night, the abolition of grocers' licences, suitable legislation in regard to clubs, a law to prevent the sale of drink to children, and many other necessary and pressing changes, must all be kept well in view, and every opportunity taken to secure their adoption.

But whilst we are doing our best to bring about these changes, let us not for a moment neglect those means which, in so short a period, have produced such remarkable changes, even despite the present unfavourable state of the law. Those who have become abstainers during the present generation have no idea of the enormous alteration which has taken place, for they must find it difficult, if not indeed impossible, to realise what a complete transformation has been produced by quiet but persistent teaching alone respecting the nature and effects of intoxicants—teaching, indeed, which must be very generally accepted by the country before any very effective temperance legislation can be reasonably demanded or properly enforced.—Band of Hope Chronicle.

THE RAGGED SCHOOL UNION.

The fifty-first annual report of this great Home Mission Society covers a wide field and presents a marvellous variety of effort for the well-being of the children of the poor, as well as to a very considerable extent the adults; for the ragged schools generally are now well-organised and energetic centres of evangelistic and benevolent operation. The report shows that "wherever and whatever fresh needs have arisen, the Ragged School workers have been quick to mark the need, and to meet it by some freshly-devised effort. This elasticity is characteristic of the Ragged School movement; but fresh devisings mean fresh necessities. Hence we plead for more love—more sympathetic service. Our greatest need to-day is men and women filled with the brotherliness of Christ. Bodies need feeding and clothing, minds need instructing, souls need saving, children everywhere are waiting for kind words, earnest deeds and holy lives.

But with all this extension of operations, the Council observe that the funds have not kept pace with the needs. It is true that the gross income shows an increase, but it is to be noted that a considerable portion of this increase is, so to speak, ear-marked; that is to say, it is appropriated to specific and important objects, such as holiday homes, cripple work, fresh air fund, the clothing fund, and so on. Each of these must be maintained, but behind and underneath all these is the general ragged school work, the backbone and foundation of the whole enterprise. Unless the regular operations be properly supported the whole must eventually be paralyzed, for on this depends the entire movement.

The R.S.U. is not merely a federal Union, but also a working society on a small scale. It was founded to foster and support the local schools, to collect funds, make grants in aid, and render that assistance to struggling and oft isolated workers which can only be rendered by a strong central union. It is still, as ever, the focus and centre; the fostering friend, so to speak, to which all turn in difficulty or perplexity, to seek the benefit of experienced counsel. The constant correspondence and personal conferences involved in the settlement of such negotiations form no slight part of the work of the R.S.U., demanding, indeed, incessant care and teaching. All manner of complications come before the council. Questions of legal difficulty, structural alterations, condemned buildings, new necessities, changes and developments of every kind, calling for constant watchfulness and consideration. The Council hold in trust, also, a number of local buildings, which must be maintained unless valuable work is to cease.

Interesting details are given, in the report, of these operations, as also of the drift children and home cripples' branches, the holiday homes (eight now open), and the clothing and relief funds, &c. These should be read and pondered by all concerned in the Lord's work among the poorest classes.

Turning to the local schools, aided by the Union, we find these number 212, scattered in the darkest corners of London. The details of their work are varied, and full of interest. Testimony is borne to genuine result among young and old. Reference is already made to the army of teachers, whose self-denying consecration have made the ragged schools of London what they are to-day. They now number 5,287, drawn from all ranks of society, and mingling together in happy unity inspired by the common aim to save the children. Of these 739 were formerly scholars in the ragged school. This may seem a large host, but more are imperatively required. From well nigh every school and mission comes the cry, "We need badly more teachers."

Naturally the report concludes with a strong plea for increased liberality in view of the vast work yet to be done. Copies may be had of Mr. John Kirk, Secretary, Ragged School Union, 37, Norfolk-street, Strand, W.C.

MR. JOHN JONES (64, Godolphin-road, Shepherd's Bush, W.) has had an interesting evangelistic tour, visiting seventeen villages in Shropshire. By personal conversation with individuals and groups, as well as in larger gatherings, he was able to present the way of salvation to a considerable number of persons. No little encouragement came to him on meeting with some persons who remembered a former visit as long as thirteen years ago, when they yielded themselves to Christ.

David's Self-Restraint.

1 Sam. xxiv. and xxvi.; and Psa. xlii. 1.

By REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

As David reviewed his life, and recorded his experiences, he was well aware of the innumerable evils that had encompassed him, of the horrible pit and miry clay out of which he had been brought up, and of the many who had sought in vain to destroy his soul; but from all he had been delivered. He dared not attribute his deliverance to the quickness of his ingenuity, or the agility of his movement, but to God and God only. Mark his record of God's dealings with him, as he stands on the eminence of the years and looks down and back—

"He inclined unto me, and heard my cry,
He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay;
He set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings;
He hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God."

And if we further inquire what his attitude was, during all these long and sad experiences, he answers:—

"I waited patiently for the Lord."

In a recent chapter we saw how David waited on the Lord, but there is a clear distinction between this and waiting for the Lord, though in practice they are generally conjoined. We wait on the Lord by prayer and supplication, looking for the indication of his will; we wait for the Lord by patience and submission, looking for the interposition of his hand. It is very needful to learn this lesson of silence, patience, resignation, and it is interesting to remark in the two incidents before us how perfectly David had acquired it and had learnt to wait for the Lord.

THE BASIS OF WAITING FOR GOD.

There must be a promise to justify us, or some definite committal of God, which we can rest on as the unmistakable revelation of his purpose.

In the case of David this had been given years before in his anointing by Samuel. Could he ever forget that scene in his father's house at Bethlehem, when he was chosen to be God's servant; and taken from the sheepfolds, from following the ewes that give suck, to feed Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritance? Besides this, so many different voices had reiterated the same assurance of the Divine purpose. There was that memorable interview, the first farewell between Jonathan and himself, when his friend had so definitely and strangely spoken of the time when God would cut off all his enemies from the face of the earth, and had so definitely committed his family to his care. What could that mean, except his strong assurance that David would succeed in the throne?

In their last interview, in the wood of Ziph, Jonathan had gone further. He had spoken like a messenger from God. How those words rang in the weary heart that had drunk them in as the parched land drinks water. "Fear not," he had said, "for the hand of Saul my father shall not find thee; and thou shalt be King over Israel, and I shall be next unto thee." He had even said that this was Saul's conviction also: "That also Saul my father knoweth."

Besides this, he was conscious of faculty and God-given power; of ability to grasp the helm of the distracted kingdom, and guide the sorely-tossed bark into calmer waters. As all these corroborations of the original promise came into his heart, he became more and more convinced that God had a great purpose in his life which He would certainly achieve; and he settled it in his own mind that he would wait patiently for the Lord to do as He had said, and that he would not lift his finger to secure the kingdom for himself. Jehovah had promised, then He would perform. Whenever the moment came for him to sit on the throne as the acknowledged king of his people, it should be from first to last the Divine gift, and the Divine performance. There should be nothing to hinder God saying:—

"I have set my king
Upon my holy hill of Sion."

TWO NOTABLE INCIDENTS.

We are eager to see how the man conducts himself who has learnt to wait for God, and we are permitted to study the workings of heart and behaviour on two occasions in this part of David's career.

Engedi.—One afternoon, when Saul, with 3000 men, was in hot pursuit of David, amid the wild and tangled rocks of Engedi, a strange incident put him completely in David's power. It was a time of breathless heat; the sunbeams were striking like swords into the deep wadys and ravines, and every living thing, except perhaps the little lizards, had crept away into shelter. For the same reason, or because they desired to elude pursuit, David and his men were in the inmost recesses of an immense cavern. Into that very cave Saul came. His men had gone forward; the intense solitude and silence within and without threw him off his guard; he lingered a little in the entrance.

These caves, says Dr. Thomson, are dark as midnight, and the keenest eyes cannot see five paces inward, but one who has been long within, and is looking towards the entrance, can observe with perfect distinctness all that takes place in that direction. The blinding glare of the sunshine on the limestone cliffs made Saul more than ever unable to detect the forms that lined the cave, whilst they could perfectly well watch his every movement. How little did the king realise the intense interest with which he was being watched by 600 pairs of eyes, and the peril to which he was exposed. The whole band was thrilling with excitement.

Now was the opportunity for David to end their wanderings and hardships by one thrust of the spear. They whispered, "Seize your opportunity! Could it have fallen out more fortunately? Here is the man who has repeatedly tried to take your life, and is here with that avowed intent. Surely the law of God itself exonerates us in taking the life of those who would take ours. God Himself has undoubtedly brought him here that you should avenge your wrongs, and save further ones."

With great difficulty—and to have been able to do such a thing showed the immense power he exerted over these wild strong men—David restrained them, and curbed his own passion, that tore like fire through every vein, and contented himself with creeping near, and cutting off the skirt of the king's robe, to prove to him afterwards how completely he had been in his power. But even then, after Saul had gone forth, and David's men crowded round, full of sullen remonstrance at his weakness, he was struck with remorse, and he said to them, "The Lord forbid that I should do this thing unto my lord, the Lord's anointed, to put forth mine hand against him, seeing he is the Lord's anointed."

Hachilah.—Previously at this spot David had been nearly trapped. This time, the tables were turned. Once more Saul, probably instigated by a malign influence, that we shall consider in our next chapter, was in pursuit of his rival, "having 3000 chosen men of Israel with him." Having ascertained by means of scouts the exact situation of the royal camp David himself came to inspect it from an overhanging cliff. On the outskirts, the wagons made a rude barricade, within these were the soldiers' quarters, and in the innermost circle Saul and Abner were posted; but the watches were badly kept, and no precaution was taken against a sudden surprise.

A sudden inspiration seized David, and he proposed to Abishai and Ahimelech the Hittite, that they should visit the camp by night. Abishai gladly volunteered to accompany him, and guided by the clear moonlight they crept down the hill, crossed the ravine, picked their way through the wagons and the sleeping ranks of the soldiers, stood for a moment whispering over the prostrate form of the king, bore off his spear and water-bottle from Saul's head, and then "gat them away, and no man saw it, nor knew it, neither did any awake, because a deep sleep from the Lord was fallen upon them."

Thus, again, Saul had been in his power, but he had restrained himself. Abishai could not read him or understand his secret. To him it seemed a most natural and lawful act for David to take the life of the man who was so infatuated for his destruction. Nay, if David were at all squeamish about killing him with his own hand, surely he could have no objection against Abishai doing it, since he was not personally concerned in the feud. In that whispered colloquy over the sleeping monarch, Abishai had suggested that God had delivered his enemy into his chieftain's hand, and had offered to smite him with his own spear with a stroke so deadly, so instant in its effect, that there would be neither sigh nor groan to awake Abner, or his body-guard. But David would not have it. "No," he said, "I will be no party to this deed. None can smite the Lord's anointed and be guiltless. When his appointed death-hour comes, God will take him, either by some natural process in the palace, or amid the going down of the battle. But my hand shall not curtail his days. I will wait God's time."

On each of these occasions David acted with the magnanimity that became a hero and saint. He would take no mean advantage of his adversary. He would not retaliate or avenge his wrong. He refused to admit the specious argument that opportunity meant permission, and that licence meant liberty. He quieted the impetuous fever of his soul, resisted the subtle temptation of the adversary, and elected to await the slow unfolding of the Divine purpose.

THE BEHAVIOUR THAT WAITING FOR GOD INDUCES.

It Restrains from Crime.—Bitter indeed had David's remorse been, if he had listened to his comrades and put forth his hand against Saul's life. It would have robbed his harp of all its music. There would then have been some justification for Shimei's cursing words on a dark after-day in his life; but as it was, though they cut him to the quick, they met with no answering response from his conscience. As he searched his heart in the sight of God, he knew that Absalom's rebellion and seizure of his throne could not be, as Shimei suggested, a requital in kind for his dealings with Saul. True, months were still to pass, full of anxiety and suspense, before the coronation shouts rang through the streets of Hebron; but they were forgotten, as snow dissolves in the river; and then there was nothing to regret, no gnawing conscience, no death's head at the bottom of his cup of joy. Be still, oh heart, wait for God; it will keep thee from acts and words, which, if allowed, would shadow thy whole after life.

It Inspires Courage.—What an intrepid spirit this was that dared to cry after the king and hold up the skirt of his robe; that challenged the two bravest men of his little army to a feat, from which one of them shrank. Ah! the man who is living in the Divine purpose has the secret of quenchless courage. He knows that no weapon formed against him shall prosper, and that every tongue that shall rise against him in judgment shall be condemned. He fears nothing, except to do wrong, and to grieve God. If in following the prepared path he suddenly comes on the brink of a precipice, down which he must cast himself, he does not hesitate to do so, knowing that the angels will swoop beneath, and bear him up, so that he shall not dash his foot against a stone.

It Gives Great Rest.—Surely it was out of such experiences as these that David wrote the 37th Psalm, which, though it belongs to a later period, for ever embalms the conclusions of this. The mellow wisdom of old age gathers up the maxims that were wrought out in the fires of early manhood.

"Fret not thyself because of evil-doers;
Neither be thou envious against them that work unrighteousness,
For they shall soon be cut down like the grass,
And wither as the green herb."

The exhortations of this exquisite psalm, to trust in the Lord, to delight in the Lord, to roll the way of life on the Lord, to rest in the Lord and wait patiently for Him, and especially the repeated injunction not to fret, are all bathed in new meaning when read in the light of these memorable incidents in David's life.

Live on the Divine purpose. Be not eager for thyself, but only that God's work should be done. It is certain that He will take care of thy interests, if thou carest for his. Calm thyself as a weaned child, rest thee, sit thee still and trust; God is working out the plan of thy life; thou canst not hurry Him; it will only expend the energy of thy soul to no purpose, if thou allowest its fever to consume thee; in his own time, the best time, He shall give thee the desires of thine heart.

It Induces Penitence to Others.—When David gave such unmistakable evidences of his self-restraint, continued loyalty, and surviving affection, in spite of all that had been done to quench it; when he so clearly established his innocence, and showed the baselessness of the charges made against him; when he appealed, with such reverence and sincerity from the calumnies and misrepresentations of earth to the decisions of the Divine Judge—the miserable monarch lifted up his voice and wept, and confessed that he had "played the fool, and erred exceedingly." Saul recognised David's nobility; the old chivalrous nature which had so captivated the nation in earlier days flashed out with an expiring flicker; and he went so far as to admit that he would be king. Nothing but such forbearance on David's part could have brought him so near repentance.

It is thus that we may win men still. We gain most when we appear to have yielded most; and gain advantages by refusing to take them wrongfully. The man who can wait for God is a man of power, which other men acknowledge and bend beneath its sceptre. To be under authority to God's lofty principle is to have soldiers under us, who go and come at our will, and do our bidding.

OPENINGS IN CHILI.

Dear Sir,—I have recently returned from a residence of nearly five years in Chili, and can speak from experience of the great dearth of Christian workers there. Chili is a long country, extending in its greatest length some 2800 miles from Tierra del Fuego to the little port of Arica, N., and its greatest average breath is 100 miles. It is bounded on the east by the high walls of the Andes, and on the west by the Pacific Ocean. South of Valparaiso the land is chiefly agricultural, and has rain at some seasons of the year, but shortly after leaving that port for the north one enters on the rainless district, which extends for hundreds of miles, causing it to be perfectly barren and destitute of vegetation. Here and there at long intervals are small oases, the result in some instances of springs, and in others of streamlets of the most meagre description, caused by the melting of the snow in the Andes.

In this rainless district, particularly in the most northerly province, are found the great deposits of nitrate of soda, also rich silver and other mines; these industries, of course, attract large numbers of Europeans, principally English and Scotch. They also form the raison d'être of the many short lines of railway which extend from the various ports inland. The two largest railways are, the one from Valparaiso to Los Andes, and the one from Antofagasta to Bolivia.

It is on behalf of our fellow-countrymen that I venture to write to you; there is so very little done for them. Leaving home and its Christian influences, they drift away, casting off at last all restraint and living utterly godless lives; giving the poor ignorant R.C. natives a very poor opinion of our Christianity. So far as I am aware there are only five Protestant English places of worship on the whole coast, besides two small mission halls, conducted by private people. Two of these churches are at Valparaiso, one at Concepcion, one at Coquimbo, and one at Iquique.

The missionaries most in evidence in Chili are those connected with the American Epis. Methodist Church, and some American Presbyterians in Valparaiso, all of whom are doing excellent work among the natives, but there is plenty of room for more. I would earnestly recommend this field as a most hopeful one to those who have not decided on any particular foreign post. The contrast is great between the welcome given to the Gospel by the natives and that given by the English. There is no difficulty whatever in distributing or selling any number of Scriptures. One man I know sold two and a-quarter tons of Spanish Bibles and Testaments in three months to the passengers on our railroad and at the wayside stations. There is liberty of worship in Chili, and no difficulty whatever in preaching or in colporteur work.

In Iquique, five days by steamer north of Valparaiso, we have the large terminus of the Tarapaca Nitrate Railway, belonging to an English company. The line runs nearly 100 miles N. to Pisagua and seventy miles S. to Lagunas, supplying the needs and carrying the produce of the large nitrate oficinas on the route. In Iquique Station we have over eighty English and Scotch men, many with wives and families, and all along the road there are many others, also at Pisagua. For nearly three years past my husband, who is an engineer-in-chief, has, with my help and the help of a friend, been carrying on a railway mission amongst our own men, and we have a beautiful mission room right in the station grounds.

We have had much encouragement, and as I have had to return home, and our helping friend is much occupied with a Sailors' Rest he has lately started, we are driven to seek further assistance. I have been enabled to secure the services of two lady missionaries of experience, one having worked in India five years, and the other helping in a Y.W.C.A. branch at Wakefield, Yorkshire. I hope to send them out to Iquique in the beginning of October to work, not only amongst our own people, but also to visit the waifs and strays who are always to be found in the native hospital, to help, too, in the Sailors' Rest, and, indeed, generally amongst the many English. £35 is the second-class fare by the P.S.N.C. Co., and £100 at least is needed for the maintenance of each. One of the ladies is provided for the first year, but I require help for the other, and trust that some of your readers may be led to give assistance.

Mr. Nixon, the secretary of the Railway Mission, has kindly consented to receive any moneys contributed for this purpose.—Yours in the Master's service, Elizabeth Ridings.

106, Rosendale-road, W. Dulwich, S.E.

A TROPHY OF GRACE.

William L— was born in Gloucestershire, the youngest of three sons of a gentleman farmer, now living retired in Hampshire. They were brought up religiously; and at twelve years of age, William, with his brothers, entered a Ritualistic church choir. The two elder lads have done well, one being now a large farmer in Canada, the other doing mission work in Africa. At nineteen years of age, William grew restless under the restraint of home, and longed to "see life," and "make his fortune." Being well-educated, he found little difficulty in securing a good post in a cotton-receiving house at Manchester.

Here he soon "saw life" on the shady side; and, mixing with godless companions, fell a victim to drink, and lost his berth. To break away from his associates and try to "start afresh," he removed to Stockport, and commenced business on his own account; but with little capital, and his evil habits getting too strong a hold upon him, at the end of the year he was "sold up."

Penniless and besotted, he tramped to London, and found out a friend of his father's, who gave him £5, and took him into his home while he sought for work. He robbed his benefactor of £10, was found out, and sentenced to six months' hard labour. When his term of imprisonment expired, he found (as many another has done) that with the mark of the "gaol-bird" upon him nobody would employ him. He associated with a desperate gang of thieves and pickpockets.

Last September, this gang came into Kent, ostensibly for hop-picking, but really on a pilfering errand. One Saturday evening a band of missionaries were conducting an open-air service in the centre of a village thronged with "hoppers"; and this gang was present to embrace such an opportunity for their nefarious work. The crowd gathered at the service was their chance to pilfer; and to draw the attention of the people, being gifted with speech and of prepossessing appearance, William was relegated by his associates to create a scene, whilst they moved among the crowd.

Dressed in a shabby velveteen coat, red vest, and "Buffalo Bill" hat, he came forward and attempted to climb into the van occupied by the missionaries, in order to address the crowd and contradict what had been said.

The evangelist in charge promptly, but courteously, ordered him down, with the remark, "This platform is private property, and only for testimony,—not for discussion; the ground beneath your feet is British soil, and there you have as much right to speak as we have."

Thereupon we commenced singing heartily, "Call them in—the poor, the wretched"; and, being fond of singing, he was riveted to the spot. As he listened, early memories came crowding in upon him, and he thought of the words of the song, which seemed to single him out of the throng in its note of invitation. To himself he said, "Poor! Well, I am poor, and there is no mistake about that! Wretched! Yes, God knows I am!" And he just longed once more to break away from his sinful companions.

To the disgust of his confederates he quietly listened to the next speaker; and, after the song, noticing his interest, the missionary threaded his way through the throng during the next address, and "button-holed" him. He admitted his guilty and sunken condition, and confessed that drink was the cause of it. The missionary pointed him to Christ, who could save him from himself and his sin, pardon all the past, black as it might be, and make of him a "new man in Christ." He was evidently in earnest, for he signed the pledge at once (and has kept it), and asked the missionary to pray for him. We took his address (or, rather, an address that would find him on his return); and, discovering it was in the region of one of our city missionaries, this worker gave him his card, and told him to "look him up" on his return to London. He came to all the services there afterwards, and his companions "could not make him out"; but he knew what was the matter with himself, and longed for the pardon and peace which yet seemed so far beyond his reach.

A week or two later the hop-picking was over, and our brethren resumed their home-work. Our city missionary was called to the door one morning, and there stood William, in rags, but with a beaming face. Excitedly he exclaimed, "Bless the Lord, I have found you! you told me to look you up, and I have walked eighteen miles to find you." "Well, well," said the missionary. "Come in; what can I do for you?" "I want work." "Are you willing to work?" "Yes; I am." "Hard work?" "Yes; any work."

"Then, let us pray." As they rose from their knees the missionary had it laid on his heart to try and get a job for William at some neighbouring gasworks. Thither they bent their steps, and on meeting the foreman (a Christian man) our brother said, "Mr. T——, I have brought this man for you to find him work." "I cannot," replied the foreman; "I have turned four men away to-day already." "But you must," said our friend; "for I have been directed here by God, in answer to prayer." He then told William's story, and besought his friend to try and give the man a chance to recover himself.

At once Mr. T—— capitulated, with the remark, "Be here to-morrow morning at six o'clock."

Straightway the missionary sought out a friend, who found a decent suit for William, and he was once more respectably clad. Then our brother procured him lodgings with a Christian woman, by guaranteeing to be responsible for the rent.

To the stroke of the hour the man was at his post next morning; and there he has remained till very recently. His old landlady has grown attached to him, and almost looks upon him as her son. He has attended our friend's mission-hall, and gives every evidence of a thorough change of heart.

As a proof of the marvellous transformation in this man, he has recently been appointed to a very important and responsible position on one of our great railways; and gives every promise of rapidly rising to comparative comfort, if not affluence. To remember what he was when we met him in September last, and see him as he is, makes the heart's joy-bells ring again, as we sing, "What hath God wrought?"

This is but one out of many interesting cases of blessing resulting from work among the hop-pickers. We are about to resume our work in Kent for the season; and this year also in Worcestershire, after many repeated invitations to start a branch there. Men are forthcoming, but means are lacking. Will your readers enable us to place our men in the field without any fear or misgiving as to means?

Fern Bank, Brentford. John Burnham.

MESSRS. WEAVER AT CAMBRIDGE.

The Theatre Royal, Barnwell, has been reopened, after repairs and renovations, by the Weaver Brothers, and a marvellous blessing has been the result of their fortnight's labours. Every night during the mission the Spirit of God was powerfully manifested in reclaiming backsliders, and in striking cases of conversion. Young men, after accepting Christ, brought their unsaved companions, who were also brought to decision.

This theatre was purchased for mission work many years ago, and is situated in a densely populated neighbourhood, where it may be truly said "Satan's seat is." God has signally blessed the mission, which has been carried on by the indefatigable honorary superintendent and treasurer, Mr. W. K. Vawser and a few earnest workers. The cost of the renovation has been £220, and a balance of £50 remains to be paid. The removal of this encumbrance would greatly relieve the workers. Mr. W. K. Vawser's address is 82, Petty Cury, Cambridge.

OUR DAILY HOMILY.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 25.

Ye have troubled me to make me to stink among the inhabitants of the land.—Gen. xxxiv. 30.

The Bible does not hesitate to hold the mirror up to our fallen nature, or show us what we are. Here is Israel, the prince with God, who had power with man, in a very sorry plight. His children had involved him in it; but, first, he had involved them.

Dinah.—Little did she realise all the evil which that visit of hers would bring on her people and on those whose guest she was. What took her there? Had her up-bringing been unnecessarily strict, and did she want a little more freedom? There is an inevitable rebound with young people to the other extreme, if needless severity has been brought to bear on them in their early days.

The probability, however, is, that the laxity of her father's home, and the effect of her mother's gods, had made the line of separation a very faint one, and she felt no difficulty in overstepping it.

Simeon and Levi.—"Ye have made me to stink." On his dying bed Jacob remembered this treacherous cruelty and pronounced their scattering in Israel; but note how Levi undid the effect of that bitter curse, by his obedience and devotion. In after days it was said, "My covenant was with him of life and peace," and though scattered, he was as salt. In Simeon's case the curse was not cancelled by any subsequent manifestation of obedience and devotion, and ran out its course. There is encouragement and warning here.

Jacob.—The real mistake of it all was that Jacob bought that land, and settled too near the city (xxxiii. 18). As a pilgrim he had no right to do this. If Christian parents will settle down in fellowship with the world, they have themselves to thank for all the misery which accrues to themselves and children, and the dishonour to God.

MONDAY, AUGUST 26.

"Arise, go up to Bethel, and dwell there."—Gen. xxxv. 1.

God had set his hand to make Jacob a saint. He had given him a glimpse of his ideal at the Jabbok ford, but his nature was not then capable of taking in the Divine conception; and, as we have seen, both in his subterfuge to Esau and his settling outside Shechem, he had fallen back into the schemer and money-maker. In this chapter God uses several methods of awakening and renewal.

The Divine Summons.—"Arise, go up to Bethel." He had been in the lowlands too long: too long had he "lain among the pots." The voice of the Son of Man spoke words of resurrection life, and each command was an enabling.

The Power of Old Association.—What memories clustered around that name and place of Bethel. It recalled his distress and fear; the angel-ladder, and the comforting assurance which had inspired him with new hope. Directly he heard it he seems to have felt the incongruity of the life that was being lived in his camp, and he said to his people, "Put away the strange gods."

A Fresh Revelation.—God appeared to him again. For long there had been no vision of God, but now that the idols were put away he ran with patience the race set before him.

Death.—Deborah, the beloved Rachel, the old father—one after another were taken from him, and there came the far-away look into his eyes which showed that he had imbibed the pilgrim-spirit and had become Israel the Prince.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 27.

"These are the kings that reigned in the land of Edom, before there reigned any king over the children of Israel."—Gen. xxxvi. 31.

Apparently Esau had the best and happiest lot.

What He Escaped.—For him there were no few and evil days of pilgrimage; nor the pressure of famine; nor the going down into Egypt; nor the forty years of wanderings in the desert; nor the vicissitudes of the Judges. All these he escaped, and must have congratulated himself merrily. But he had no vision of God.

What He Enjoyed.—A line of dukes; a royal dynasty, which was old when Israel's first king ascended the throne; a rich and fertile territory; peace and comfort. He reminds us of the Psalmist's picture of the man of this world, whose portion is in this life, and who is filled with hid treasure. But he never awoke satisfied with God's likeness.

How He Bore Himself.—His heart was generous, full of good nature, jovial, and free-handed. When the land could not bear both Jacob and himself, he went off into another, and settled down in Mount Seir. It was no hardship with him to leave the land of promise. Most would, doubtless, have preferred his society to Jacob's, but God did not (Mal. i. 2, 3).

What Made the Lot of these Brothers so Different?—The one lived for the world; the other was a citizen of the heavenly Jerusalem, a pilgrim to the City of God. The one was an ordinary man of the world; the other had been selected of God as the channel of blessing to mankind. The flower and fruit which is to be propagated requires the special attention of the gardener's knife. What solemn words (Amos iii. 2).

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28.

"They took him and cast him into the pit."—Gen. xxxvii. 24.

It is impossible to read this inimitable story without seeing in the water-mark of the paper on which it is written the name Jesus. Notice some of these precious analogies.

Our Saviour's shepherd-heart (2). The love of the Father before the worlds were made (3).

The dreams of empire, which are so certainly to be realised, when we shall see Him acknowledged as King of kings, and Lord of lords (7).

Envied by his brethren, to whom He came, though they received Him not (11).

His alacrity to do his Father's will, and to finish his work, in which will we too have been sanctified (13).

Cast into the pit of the grave, as a seed-corn into the ground to die, that He might not abide alone, but bear much fruit (24).

The thirty pieces of silver for which He was betrayed (28).

The indifference of the Jewish people to their great Brother's fate (25).

Rejected of the Jew, and turning to the Gentile (28).

The bitter grief which his rejection has brought on the Jewish people (35).

It is as though the Holy Ghost, eager to glorify the Lord, could not wait for the slow unfolding of history, but must anticipate the story of that precious life and death which were to make the world new again.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 29.

"Judah."—Gen. xxxviii. 1.

This was the destined heir of the birthright, of which Reuben had shown himself unworthy, and yet this chapter is a dark story of his unbridled passion. Oh my soul, remember that the possibilities of all these sins are latent in thee! Thou mightest have been as one of these men or women, but for the grace of God.

There is nothing so absolutely priceless as the white flower of a pure and blameless life. The pure in heart are the children of the presence-chamber—entrusted with secrets hidden from the wise and prudent—vessels by which God does not hesitate to quench the thirst of men, because the water of the crystal river will not be diluted or contaminated by contact with their natures. Above all other gifts, covet that of a cleansed heart. You may be very conscious of temptation, and that naturally you are no better than others, and yet if you will constantly live in the Spirit, and walk in the Spirit, you will be kept absolutely pure; and the sea of ink that is sweeping through the world will leave no stain on you.

The blood cleanseth.

The Saviour keepeth.

The Spirit filleth.

God can develop Judahs into the character described in chap. xlix. 8.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 30.

"How can I do this great wickedness and sin against God?"—Gen. xxxix. 9.

What a contrast between this chapter and the former: that, like a Rembrandt background, throws up the bright colours of this. Where the older brother fell, the younger stood victoriously; and the light of God shone on the young heart, so that even the dungeon gloom could not extinguish it.

God Allows Strength to be Tested.—We do not know what we are, or where we stand, till we are compelled to choose. Insensibly character is ever forming, unconsciously we are taking sides; but the testing-hour, that compels us to declare ourselves, causes the solution suddenly to crystallise, and we know ourselves in our choice. The man who has chosen the pure and good once, will choose it easier next time; and at each choice will become stronger.

God Allows Virtue to be Maligned.—In all Egypt there was not a purer soul, and yet Joseph lay under a terrible imputation; but he committed his cause to God, sure that He would not leave him in Hades; and the time came when the King's word cleared him, and he stood forth vindicated.

God Allows Conscientiousness to be Ill-repaid.—Of what avail that he had so well cared for his master's goods? Ah, but that dungeon was the subterranean passage to a throne. Dare to die, it is through the grave thy Saviour reached the throne.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 31.

"Wherefore look ye so sadly to-day?"—Gen. xl. 7.

We may learn from Joseph the true method of bearing grief. Joseph might have become moody and sullen, absorbed in his own griefs, and pessimistic about the course of human life. How far removed from all this was his behaviour!

He Filled His Time with Ministry.—The captain of the guard charged him with two state-prisoners, and he ministered unto them. Do not nurse your grief in lonely brooding, arise and minister to someone, do something in the world, exert yourself to alleviate the sufferings of those close by your side, who have not so clear a conscience, or so bright a trust in God.

He was Quick to Sympathise and Comfort.—Quick to notice traces of sorrow, because he had sorrowed; able to sympathise, because he had wept; adept at comforting, because he had been comforted of God. We gain comfort when we attempt to comfort. Light a fire in another's heart, and your own heart will be warmed.

He Kept His Faith in God.—Depression, captivity, loneliness, separation from those he loved, could not quench his faith in God. Still God was near and precious to him. Oh, blessed faith, that dares to trust in the dark!

THE OUTLOOK IN IRELAND.

Rev. George C. Needham, of Northfield, Mass., is at present engaged in conducting a mission in Dublin. This address to Christian workers on the subject of "Prepared Vessels" (2 Tim. ii. 20-21) was greatly appreciated by a large audience. Rev. T. Connellan took the opening prayer, and the general prayer meeting afterwards evidenced how deeply the pointed, practical address of Mr. Needham had gone home. The meeting for prayer for Ireland was perhaps the most touching as well as the most encouraging of the series. The Christians of Ireland seem to be feeling their responsibilities towards their Roman Catholic fellow-countrymen as they never felt them before. Many of those present bore testimony to the increased facilities for work among Irish Roman Catholics and the increased responsibilities of Irish Christians arising therefrom.

Rev. Thomas Connellan has recently moved into new premises at 51B, Dawson-street, Dublin. This was found necessary in order to meet the growing demands of the mission in which he is engaged. His brother and sister are working with him "shoulder to shoulder," and a goodly number of converted Roman Catholics. The kindliest relations subsist between himself and his Roman Catholic neighbours. Large numbers of them call at the publishing office to purchase his books. Roman Catholics are always present at the Sunday evening meetings in the New Hall, and are invariable attentive and respectful.

The following extract from a letter written by a Protestant young man, will show how zealous a proselytizer the Church of Rome is. The writer says: "I am a Protestant, and about to be married to a Roman Catholic young lady. The young lady's parents will cast her off if one of their priests does not perform the ceremony, and the priest will not do this unless I sign a paper promising to permit perfect freedom of worship to my wife, and allow all children of the marriage to be baptized at the Roman Catholic faith." This is a result of legislation at the Synod of Maynooth, and shows how Rome is ready to compass sea and land to make a proselyte. Protestants should be carefully instructed in this matter.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSONS.

SEPTEMBER 1.

THE FALL OF JERICHO.—Joshua vi. 8-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Heb. xi. 30.

THE river rolled on again in its course after the Israelites had crossed. Retreat had become impossible. They must conquer the land or die.

Their encampment was at Gilgal, only about three miles from Jericho. In preparation for attacking the city two things were commanded. Circumcision (v. 2-9) and the Passover (v. 10, 11). The first rolled away their reproach, and gave them the sign of being the covenant people of God. The second revived the memory of God's former deliverance, and strengthened their confidence in view of present need. A religious character was thus given to their conflicts in Canaan.

Jericho was called "The City of Palm Trees," because it was situated on the west side of an extensive palm forest. "It was the key to Western Palestine, as standing at the entrance of the two main passes into the central mountains." Within "it possessed a rich temple filled with gold, silver, iron, brass, and even Mesopotamian drapery."—Stanley. It was strongly fortified with strong walls and gates. Though not a large city, it might well have appalled the people of Israel as they looked upon its lofty battlements. Our Jericho is any difficulty or temptation that opposes our Christian life, or any stronghold of evil we have yet to win for Christ. This Old Testament story shows how every Jericho is to be taken.

The first essential is the right Captain (v. 13 to vi. 1-5). He appealed to Joshua as a man, who was yet more than a man, for He is called Jehovah (vi. 2). It was He who had appeared to Moses at the bush (Exod. iii.), but who now held a drawn sword in his hand. The battle was to be the Lord's, and the direction of all their movements was to be controlled by Him. Jesus is now our Leader and Commander (Isa. lv. 4), who leads us always in triumph (2 Cor. ii. 14), who puts Himself between us and all our adversaries, and makes us to be "more than conquerors" (Rom. viii. 37). He is the Overcomer. There is no failure in the life in which He is recognised as Captain.

He chooses the method of attack (3-7). Joshua simply passed on to the people the instructions he had received. How strange they were! No mention is made of trenches, or battering rams, or any of the usual military preparations. Just what man would have expected God entirely omits. He who would fight God's battles must surrender his own wisdom. Describe the procession which must march round the city once a day for six days. The armed soldiers lead, then seven priests blowing with ram's horns are followed by the ark of the Covenant, and last of all the people of Israel—and all in perfect silence (10). On the seventh day the circuit was to be made seven times (15).

God chose this method in order that the victory might be distinctly one of faith (Golden Text). If high-walled cities are to be levelled to the ground in connection with such means, it must be because God—though unseen—is fighting for his people. The Israelites could not trust the means; their confidence must be in God, whom they obeyed. These instructions brought into exercise other qualities that result from faith. Obedience.—Could they be content to obey and leave results with God? True faith does God's will and asks no questions. Patience.—To march round Jericho six days, and seven times on the seventh day; and to see each day no sign that the walls of the city were about to fall, demanded considerable patience. "The trial of your faith worketh patience." Courage.—For they were exposed to "two things they did not like, ridicule and danger. God would protect them from the danger, but who would shield them from the ridicule?"—Blaikie. They had to be content to be accounted fools by their adversaries. Diligence.—Every day brought its work, and the seventh day began with "the dawning of the day" (15). Faith is not indolence. It knows nothing of the haste connected with unbelief, but it is the mainspring of all true actions.

The Result was Victory (16-20).—But note that the victory was first embodied in the Divine promise (2); then claimed by the faith shout of the people (16-20); then given (20). The order is instructive. First the word, then the faith, then the experience. Don't change the order. We do not see in order to believe, we believe in order to see (Mark xi. 24). In the matter of salvation at the first, and in every subsequent victory, this is God's order.

THE LIBERATOR FUND now amounts to the sum of £56,400, having been increased by upwards of £6000 by the appeal made in the churches and chapels of the country on Liberator Sunday.

For the Young.

CHILDREN WELCOMED TO JESUS.

Where blooms the rose of Sharon, passing fair,
And lilies shed their fragrance on the breeze,
While songs of countless warblers fill the air,
And mingle with the constant hum of bees.

Where Jordan rushes down the rocky steep,
That cleaves the Land of Promise deep in twain,
Where shepherds still their star-lit vigils keep,
On heights that look o'er fields of golden grain.

Where Jesus trod the Galilean hills,
And in the cities wrought those wondrous deeds,
Whose record yet the thoughtful bosom thrills
With joy that He can satisfy our needs.

How sweet to hear those tender tones of love
That bade the children welcome to his breast!
Our feeble faith his looks might well reprove
For infants in his arms find peaceful rest.

Those kindly words of welcome echo still
Along the highways of our busy life;
"Forbid them not, for 'tis my Father's will
That none should perish in this mortal strife."

O youths and maidens, list his gracious call;
Ye mothers, to his arms your infants bring;
So shall no evil their young lives befal,
As closely to the Saviour's side they cling.

Thrice blest repose, free from the unrest of fear;
From anxious thought and dark forebodings free.
How gladly should we bring our darlings near
To Him who still says, "Let them come to Me!"

Walton Park, Clevedon. WM. KITCHING.

A MESSAGE FROM THE GRAVE.

DEAR SIR,—My little girl, Rachel, received a beautiful letter from Miss Hessie Newcombe, one of the martyred missionaries in China, on Wednesday week, five days after the writer's death. I have been thinking you might like to insert it, and send you a copy.—Faithfully yours, ——

Dublin.

P.S.—The Miss Codrington mentioned in the letter is still alive.

MISS HESSIE NEWCOMBE'S LETTER.

MY DEAR LITTLE FRIEND,—Miss S—— has written to me telling me you are collecting money to support a baby girl in China, and that you wanted me to choose one for you that you might have as your own little baby, to be clothed and fed with the money you send out. Soon after I got this letter I went to a place called Sä-iong, where a young lady called Miss Codrington was working for Jesus. She told me the following story:—

"A few weeks ago one of the little girls came to school crying. I asked her what she was crying for. She said, 'God has given mother a little baby girl, and she says she does not want it and will put it into the river and drown it.' Then the little girl looked up into my face and said, 'Will you take the baby and not let it die?' I told her God had given mother the baby, and she ought to take care of it herself; she must run home and tell her mother this. 'But I know mother will put it in the river,' said the child, as she went sadly home.

"The chapter in the Bible I was reading that day was Isaiah lviii., and it said in verse 7, 'That thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house.' I thought at once of the poor little baby, and I thought I heard God's voice telling me to take the child. I sent a Christian woman to the house where the mother lived. She found the poor baby lying on the ground, crying under the bed, hungry and cold, with no one to love it or care for it. She brought the child back to me. We fed it with some warm milk and put some nice warm clothes on it and got a Christian woman to nurse it for us."

When Miss Codrington told this story, I thought of you at once, and told her I knew of a little girl in Dublin who would like to adopt this baby as her own. Miss Codrington was very glad, and I promised to write and tell you all about her. I hope you will daily pray for your baby that she may grow up God's little child, that God's Holy Spirit may come into her heart, and that she may become like Jesus.

Out here in China sometimes the little children shine very brightly for Jesus. I have been just staying in a house where there are two dear little girls, one about twelve and the other thirteen years of age. They both love Jesus, and want to please Him, and if they see others getting angry or doing something wrong they tell them Jesus would not like them to do that. When they were babies their mothers bound their feet very tight. Now they want to let them out, but the mothers are not willing, because they would be laughed at. Their mothers do not love Jesus as yet, but we hope they will soon. Now I must say, Good-bye.—Your friend, HESSIE NEWCOMBE.

Kuching, June 11, 1895.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.
SEASIDE SERVICES DURING AUGUST.

Messrs. J. H. P. Cutting and M. Goodman, Aldeburgh, to Aug. 26; Mr. A. J. Barff, B.A., Bexhill; Rev. T. Longstaff, Blackpool; Mr. G. Askwith, Boscombe; Mr. H. Hutchinson, Bridlington, to Sept. 6; Mr. T. Graham Bailey, Carnoustie, N.B.; Mr. W. H. Wilson, Colwyn Bay; Mr. H. M. Dale, Cromer; Mr. H. Falkner, Deal; Mr. A. G. Dodderidge, Eastbourne, to Sept. 10; Mr. Middleton, East Preston; Mr. Phillips Welch, Exmouth; Mr. Josiah Spiers, Felixstowe; Mr. A. B. Dixey, Freshwater; Messrs. C. H. Collier and J. S. Withers, Herne Bay; Mr. F. O. Lasbrey, Hoylake and West Kirby, to Aug. 22; Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Hunstanton, to Sept. 15; Mr. W. R. Moore and Mr. Dark, Ilfracombe; Mr. R. H. Keable and Rev. M. C. Brownlow, Kemp Town (Brighton), to Aug. 26; Mr. J. S. Tyler, Littlehampton, Mr. Frank Anderson, Llandudno, to Sept. 7; Mr. Russell J. Hill, Llanfairfechan, to Aug. 22; Rev. W. B. Sealy, Margate; Rev. L. Carr, Overstrand, near Cromer; Mr. L. M. Miller, Paignton; Mr. J. H. Greene, Penmaenmawr; Messrs. E. Collier and F. W. Betteney, Pensarn; Mr. H. B. Claxton, Penzance, Aug. 20-31; Mr. H. Steward, Port Erin; Messrs. Geo. Goodman and S. J. Hewlett, Rhyl; Dr. F. Churchill, Saltburn; Mr. J. R. Naylor, Sandown; Messrs. B. Herklots, T. G. Barber, and T. B. Bishop, Scarborough; Mr. J. M. Wigner, Seaford; Rev. W. S. Standen and Rev. S. R. Morse, M.A., Sea View, I. of W., Sept. 1-14; Mr. J. W. Coldicott, Southend; Mr. S. M. Warner, Southsea and Sea View; Mr. Livesey Carrott, Southwold; Rev. W. W. Martin, St. Leonards, to Sept. 9; Rev. F. S. Laurence, M.A., Swanage, Aug. 21 to Sept. 4; Messrs. E. Hughes and H. T. Sayer, Towyn, to Sept. 4; Rev. Norman Bennet, West Brighton, from Aug. 23; Messrs. W. Stuart Fox and N. Thwaites, Weston-super-Mare; Rev. G. C. Williamson, Westward Ho, to Aug. 23; Mr. E. T. M. Dennes, Whitby; Rev. C. E. Haynes, Worthing. Mr. H. Hankinson, Inverness, Aug. 23-25; Dingwall, Aug. 26-27.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending August 31, 1895.—Sun., 25, Mark vi. 30-44; Mon., 26, vi. 45-56; Tues., 27, vii. 1-13; Wed., 28, vii. 14-23; Thurs., 29, vii. 24-37; Fri., 30, viii. 1-13; Sat., 31, viii. 14-26.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, JERUSALEM.

DEAR SIR,—Everything connected with the Holy Land has an abiding interest for Christians, and among the various forms in which the love which Our Lord bequeathed to us as his legacy bears fruit in the country hallowed by his life, no one seems to me more attractive than the Hospital for Children, maintained, for many years past, in Jerusalem, by my honoured friend Dr. Sandrezcki. It received and tended, in 1894, during, in all, over 5000 days of nursing, between four and five hundred poor little children, brought to it from all parts of Palestine by their peasant mothers. The Bishop of Jerusalem, a witness on the spot, bears testimony to its great usefulness and high claims, which I can personally vouch for. The medical and nursing care is freely lavished, without fee or reward, beyond the delight in showing love to the ailing little ones, who draw out the hearts exceptionally, as descendants of the very children whom Christ, while with us, took up in his arms and blessed.

I propose going shortly to Jerusalem, and shall gratefully take with me any gifts which your kind readers may see fit to devote to so good an object. Charity can hardly be better spent, for Palestine has no medical profession, and but for the help of this Children's Hospital, many a poor brown mite would either die, or pass through life blind, or crippled, or diseased.

CUNNINGHAM GEIKIE, D.D., LL.D.

Old Park, Southcote-road, Bournemouth.

THE CLIFTON CONFERENCE meets for the thirty-third time at the Victoria-rooms, on October 1-3. The subject is "The Love of God."

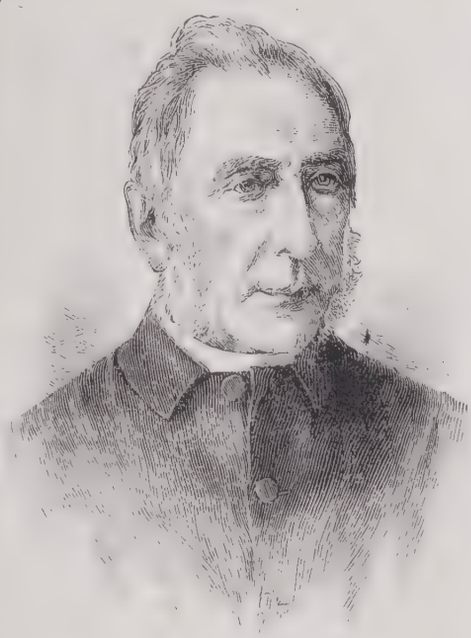
THE LATE

Rev. B. D. Aldwell.

Through the recent sudden death of this servant of God, Portsmouth lost one of its most zealous ministers of the Gospel, and a champion of the Protestant cause in the town.

Basil Duckett Aldwell was born in Clonmel, co. Tipperary, in November, 1817, of Irish parents. His grandfather and uncle were clergymen in the Irish Church, and his two sons are in the ministry of the Church of England. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he took his degrees, B.A. and M.A., and was ordained in 1842 by the Bishop of Ossory and Ferns to the curacy of St. Patrick's, Waterford.

After a few years of happy service he came over to England, where the rest of his ministerial life was spent. At his several curacies in this country he was very fond of open-air work. While at All Saints, Fulbourne, he occasionally joined some University men in open-air preaching on Parker's Piece, Cambridge, one of whom was the Rev. J. C. Martin, of the Circus Church, Portsmouth, then an undergraduate, who was the means of introducing him to St. Luke's, Southsea.



At that time St. Luke's was only in an embryo state. A mission hall had been for some time in existence, but the church was not completed and consecrated until two years later, when the then Bishop of Winchester (Dr. Sumner) gave the living to Mr. Aldwell. The church was situated in one of the poorest parts of the town. Sin, vice, and crime were rampant. In fact, two or three streets were scarcely safe for respectable people to walk down. In one of these, soon after Mr. Aldwell's appointment, one of his Sunday-school teachers was stoned to death by a gang of roughs. Now all is changed. The faithful preaching of the Gospel of God's grace for thirty-four years by this devoted pastor was not in vain. Scores were turned to God and a better life, and saved from sin and degradation.

As an extempore preacher, Mr. Aldwell excelled. Naturally gifted with a powerful resonant voice, his native Irish eloquence never failed to attract large congregations. He used to say that he never read but one sermon. It was his first, and was sewn together by some lady, who unfortunately put the pages in the wrong order. He managed to get through it without referring much to his manuscript, but he never attempted to read another. His sermons were chiefly of an expository character, and the people never tired of them. His great delight was to exalt Christ in the glory of his person and finished work.

Always a strong Evangelical and Protestant, he clung to the Church of England, for he believed her principles, as expressed by the Thirty-nine Articles, to be thoroughly Scriptural. Yet he ever had a large and affectionate heart for all Christians who belonged to the one and only Church of God—the mystical body of Christ. The Evangelical Alliance always found in him a ready supporter. Although holding strong views with regard to Romanism and Ritualism, in his public denunciations of these systems he was never personal or bitter. Opponents found him a vigorous and sturdy debater, never afraid of speaking out when occasion demanded, but he never lost their friendship or esteem. Even those who differed from him most widely on questions of ceremonial, freely admitted and fully appreciated the sterling value of his work.

During the latter part of his life, Mr. Aldwell experienced much of the power of prayer. In his annual address, written only a few days before his death, he sought to encourage his people to be ofttimes alone with God.

Though he had been in failing health for some time, and had throughout the past severe winter been suffering from asthma, the end came very suddenly. He was sitting at the breakfast table, and was just going to begin the meal, on Monday, April 29, when he passed quietly away in his chair before his medical attendant could be summoned. In the presence of fully four thousand people, and amid many expressions of sincere regret, his remains were laid to rest in the Eastney Cemetery, to await the resurrection of the just.

THE LATE REV. B. D. ALDWELL.
(From Photograph by Messrs. Russell & Sons, Chichester).

HOP PICKERS IN HAMPSHIRE.

The season for work has again returned, and thousands of tramps and gipsies will soon be in our midst. We want to erect six tents. Last year my father (Rev. S. Chinn), was only able to pay short visits to them on account of failing health. It was most touching to see and hear the expressions of sympathy of these poor wanderers, whom he had loved and laboured among so faithfully for over thirty-three years. They saw a devoted life drawing to a close, and I am sure deep and lasting spiritual impressions were made. One month afterwards he was called home to receive the "Well done."

In consultation with many who have taken a deep interest in the work so successfully carried on for so many years, the feeling has been given expression to that the work should be continued, and I have come to the determination, by God's help, to carry it on to the best of my ability, with the aid of the earnest workers who so efficiently assisted my dear father for so many years. I hope friends will rally round me. Funds are needed; books and tracts will be gratefully received for distribution.

Leuten House, Alton, Hants. Aurelia Chinn.

THE MISSIONARY PENCE ASSOCIATION has made a step in advance, and will undertake the support of "Our Own Missionary." In a circular letter, Mr. Jackson, the treasurer, says: "The income of about £1000 which the members will result in raising next year would of course suffice for the support of several workers in foreign fields, but it is not our present intention to depart, or only to a slight extent, from our original purpose of helping all Missionary societies. The council propose to adopt as its first missionary Mr. George J. Wilkerson, and to undertake to supply £120 a year for his support. He will go to Matabeleland as one of the staff of the London Missionary Society, who will provide his outfit and passage, and supervise his work."

Judicial v. Experimental.

NOTES OF ADDRESS AT KESWICK,

By PREB. WEBB-PEPLOE.

I turn to a well-known passage, more marked in your Bible, perhaps, than any other in the book, Romans vi. 11: "Reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord." To translate the judicial into the experimental is the acknowledged purpose of such gatherings as these, where the children of God assemble to try and understand the unsearchable riches of Christ. When I say, to translate the judicial into the experimental, I mean, of course, that we desire to understand how the things which God has provided for us in Christ Jesus may be ours for daily use and enjoyment; and how we may fulfil the high purpose for which we were created—to serve God with every faculty of our being through all eternity. How shall this be?

The answer seems to be brought before us by Paul in this, which has been called a classic chapter, concerning the turning-point from justification to sanctification. In this great classic passage the Apostle, as one enlightened by God the Holy Ghost, summarises the process by which the soul must go from the acknowledgment of the judicial into the enjoyment of the experimental. The judicial has taken up the Apostle's attention for the five preceding chapters. He begins by proving sin to be all-prevalent among the heathen, and equally in another form among the Jews; so that "all have sinned and come short"—or are coming short—"of the glory of God." Then he proceeds, from chap. iii. 23, to the end of chapter v., to trace the marvellous provision of God in Christ for man's acceptance—for his salvation, his comfort, and absolute redemption, in the fullest sense of the word, from the old life into the life which God would have him live. When we use the word redemption we mean it merely judicially in the fullest sense—the application of the blood of Christ for the removal of guilt and sin. Paul tells us in chapter v., again and again, that by virtue of the death of Christ we are translated into a new position altogether with regard to God; so that while the blood atones for sin we are placed in a position of salvation, in and by the life of Christ. Then in chap. vi. he proceeds to announce that it was in the purpose of God not only that man should be delivered from the penalty or guilt of sin, but that he should be delivered from the power and experience of sin. In chaps. vii. and viii. we are taught how gradually, but not absolutely in this world: gradually, under the instruction of the Holy Ghost, and in the saving and keeping power of the Holy Ghost, we may be delivered, by virtue of the death of Christ, always, from the very experience of sin; until at the close of the eighth chapter we come to the magnificence of our complete inheritance—no separation whatever from the life of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

AN AWFUL EXISTENT FACT;

But to-day we are concerned, so far as I am privileged to speak to you, with the question—How can I translate all the provision and all the wealth of God, into experimental enjoyment while I am here on the earth? How far can I know of the unsearchable riches of Christ in my daily life in the mortal body? The Apostle, in the tenth and eleventh verses of this sixth chapter, seems to give us and its application to every-day duty, every-day necessity, every-day temptation, and every-day trial. "In that He died He died unto sin once; but in that He liveth He liveth unto God. Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God, through [or in] Jesus Christ our Lord."

THE GREAT SECRET OF PERSONAL HOLINESS

There are three things which the Apostle here states concerning the Lord Jesus Christ our Saviour, and to these we must give most careful heed. First, he tells us something concerning Christ's death; second, what the death was for Him; and, third, what the new or resurrection life of the Lord Jesus means for Him. Immediately, with a thundering application of power such as Paul only possesses, he seems to enforce it by saying: There is power in this blessed provision of God in Christ for you; for you may take all as from God, up to the extent and possibility of what can be known here, while in a position of temptation, and with sin indwelling to the last moment of our lives. Let there be no mistake about that. If any man thinks, because we speak of the blessed possibilities and achievements of faith, that we are here to teach perfection in the flesh, I say he has absolutely mistaken the teaching of the Keswick platform, or any platform where Keswick speakers are to be found in their proper justice and true representation. We know nothing of perfection in the flesh; and when we read such words as those of dear John Wesley: "Every root of the carnal mind is destroyed, and in-bred sin subsists no longer," I can only marvel that any human being, with common understanding of the teaching of the Holy Ghost in the Word of God, can so deceive himself or attempt to deceive others. As we study God's Word, it is to imagine that any man can be utterly free from sin, experimentally, while here in the mortal body.

A MIRACLE OF HUMAN BLINDNESS

There are five great texts in the New Testament, we may say in passing, that in general terms describe sin; these show us what sin really is in the sight of God, as distinguished from sins that we commit. "All have sinned and have come short of the glory of God" (Rom. iii. 23). "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin" (Rom. xiv. 23). "To him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin" (Jas. iv. 17). "Sin is the trangression of the law" (1 John iii. 4). "All unrighteousness"—everything that is short of the absolute and perfect standard of God—"is sin" (1 John v. 17). You will observe with regard to these passages that they look at sin from the lowest or negative point. But suppose we take the positive side of the law instead of the negative, "Thou shalt not," and look at it as Christ did when he said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and thy neighbour as thyself." What shall we say of sin as the transgression of that positive law? Every one of these five great New Testament definitions makes sin to be a shortcoming of the perfect standard, and the standard, as Paul shows in Rom. iii. 23, is "the glory of God." Now, the glory of God is God's perfect character, his perfect exhibition of Himself. Paul says in Heb. i. 3, that Jesus Christ is the brightness of the Father's glory. Then every single deflection and every single shortcoming from the perfect standard of Christ Himself is sin. But it is not so much commission as omission. And you will observe this, too: if holiness is progressive, as it must be even in the most perfect character upon earth, then to come short of the standard which eternity alone can supply, will in that sense be to commit a sin; or rather it will be a sin by omission, because we do not come up to the perfect standard of Christ. Let us realize that it is not a question of whether I have committed known transgressions against the law of my conscience. That is my foot-rule; it is not God's foot-rule.

MY FOOT-RULE IS SHORT of the twelve-inch standard which God has adopted, and which I must stand or fall by. Every single point in which my conscience condemns me means that I have committed an actual sin; but every point in which the standard of Christ could condemn me as wanting, writes me down as a sinner by the foot-rule of God. Therefore when in a modern "summary of Christian truth" as it is called, we read these remarkable words: "Sin is for me to do that which I know to be wrong, or to leave undone that which I know to be right," it is bringing down God's standard to my subjective conscience, instead of lifting me up to the perfect standard of God. Such an idea of sin is to trifle with the laws of God and the perfections of God. We must not attempt it, however good and beautiful the character or the works and words of those who teach it may be.

With this idea of sin in our minds, I face the words which the Apostle uses. I take the highest possible judicial position of the Christian and I ask how far it may be made experimental by faith. He says that Christ died, and "in that He died." This is a remarkable expression and very difficult to translate into English. The Greek means something like this—"as regards the death that He died." What was that death? "He died unto sin once." Again we are face to face with much difficulty, because when we ask what it means, many would say it means "in reference to sin." That is the translation of the original Greek, but it is not sufficient for our purpose. Does it mean He died for sin? Unquestionably. Does it mean that He died through sin? Unquestionably. It was for sin by atonement; it was through sin because sin took Him there. But if we say He died for sin and through sin we have by no means exhausted the deep meaning of the expression. It means that He died for ever, in all its possible results to Himself; He died so as to have done with the penalty, with the guilt which He incurred voluntarily as our Representative. He died so as to have done with the power of sin—so that sin could no longer press upon his soul and make Him feel that the Father had forsaken Him, because He was the Representative of sin on our behalf. He died so as to have done with the contact of sin and its pressure upon his own soul as He experienced it when bearing the contradiction of sinners, and when He felt the agony in the Garden of Gethsemane by reason of the sin that was upon Him, until He sweated drops of blood, and cried, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" He died to sin in all these aspects, and from that moment started forth, perfectly free in every possible sense, from sin in all its bearings, all its action, all its powers. As He emptied his spirit into the hands of his Father He could say, with a meaning we shall never comprehend on earth—though we may be able to apprehend its force in heaven—"It is finished."

SO AS TO HAVE DONE WITH SIN

Take this as a principle therefore that the Lord Jesus Christ has done with all sin for ever and ever. Then the Apostle sharply turns round upon the Christians and says: "Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin"—corpses—the very position from which Christ rose—and to be "alive unto God." We are bidden thus to reckon ourselves—to take the same place of death with regard to sin, that we may know what our privilege is as to oneness of life with Him. "In that He liveth He liveth unto God." Here again we have this remarkable thought about "unto." It means that his very life is in God, and with God, and for God through all eternity. This wonderful life that Christ lives is the life of God Himself, and He lives it as the Perfected Man. Now reckon yourselves to be as He is—corpses indeed unto sin, but alive unto God.

Notice that it is "in Christ Jesus"—not only through but in Him. As we take our place there and have all the benefits of his death judicially secured for us,

EXPERIMENTALLY THEY ARE MADE OURS.

How far? The Apostle says we are to reckon ourselves so. Can any man fully express what this word really means for the Christian soul? It is the same word as we find translated imputed in chap iv. 11, 22, 23, 24, Study these verses so as to discover what they mean. When I am told that righteousness is imputed unto me in Christ Jesus, that my position is that of righteousness before God, what does it mean? Most of us have conceived the idea that that which is not literally, actually, or personally my own, is made mine by virtue of another's act, so that I get the benefit of assuming that act to be mine and take the comfort that springs from it, as if it were absolutely my right.

I imagine that we illustrate this matter of reckoning by the common simple habit of adoption. A man takes one who perhaps is no relation to him, utterly undeserving, it may be, of his kindness and favour. He places him, by declaration, and perhaps by judicial or legal act, in order to confirm the certainty of his purpose, into the position of a child. He is esteemed, and the law declares that he has become, by virtue of this legal act, the son of the man who adopts him. He claims his privilege, and knows it to be experimentally true as far as he assumes the right given to him. From that moment he is to aim at discovering the benefits and blessings accorded to him, and to make use of them. So the apostle says that righteousness is imputed to the believing sinner. You have committed sin, but God does not reckon it against you. Righteousness was never yours, but God reckons it to you. The position of death was never yours—that is, experimentally—but God reckons it as taken for you in Christ Jesus, and it becomes a fact to your soul.

There is a moral power in this word "reckon," which takes and assumes what has been accomplished judicially. Faith takes what God has done in Christ. Facts are never made by feeling; and the man who tries to feel before he takes is putting God's purposes upside down. Faith takes what God has made, and claims it to be true, because God declares it.

THIS IS CALLED "RECKONING."

Would to God we could believe his Word. I was talking to a brother this morning on this subject, and endeavouring to explain it. I said, "Do you ever stop to question your parentage? You take it for granted, though you have nothing to prove it, that your father and mother are your father and mother. You dare not question it? How dare you question what God has said, what Christ has made, and what the Holy Ghost has created in us—the sonship which we have of God the Father in Christ Jesus our Lord." It is a fact, not a feeling. It is a fact which God the Father made, which Christ Jesus purchased, and a blessing which the Holy Ghost makes personally true to each believing soul.

Therefore, I assume that I was placed in the death of Christ, and that death becomes to me what it became to Him. Then I have died for sin, because I died through sin. And I have also died to sin judicially; and through the appropriation of faith, as far as faith could take it, it now becomes experimentally true. I have to have done with sin from the moment that I claim the virtue of Christ's death as my own.

In further expounding this part of the argument, Mr. Webb-Peploe used the apostolic illustration of the marriage bond (chap. vii.), "Ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to Him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God" (v. 4). This idea of the death of the husband (he said) is not so practically grasped by us as that of divorce. A woman finds herself married to a man who is neither more nor less than a fiend in human form. At last she gets legal deliverance from him and she is brought into relationship with one who is the very joy and pride of her heart. She is truly married now, and her whole soul goes out towards her husband. Suddenly there stands before her that poor besotted drunken creature, sinful to the very depths of his being, whom she once had to call her lord, and from whom she rejoices to be free. Appearing suddenly before her, he demands her allegiance to himself as his wife. She draws herself up, and looking round towards her loved one, she says, "Dead to him; alive to thee." It is a fact. Then comes the feeling, the joy, the experience of delight in a fact created by law, appropriated by faith, assumed in action, enjoyed in experience. That is what we have to do with sin in all its forms.

REV W. HAY AITKEN.

Those of our readers who have followed with prayerful sympathy the work of this evangelist will be interested to hear that he has now completed hist wentieth year of work as a Mission Teacher. He purposes to commence six or seven months' work in Canada and the United States in the fall of this year, after completing a fortnight's mission at Christ Church, Hampstead (Rev. A. Head). He purposes sailing in the Teutonic for New York, and commencing his tour with a mission of nineteen days in Montreal on the last Sunday in October, where the clergy offer him their hearty co-operation, and have pledged themselves to do their best to make his visit a success. Similar efforts at St. John, Halifax, Ottawa, Woodstock, Toronto, New York, Philadelphia, and Washington will follow in due course.

He hopes to be accompanied by Mr. Stephens, Mrs. Crouch, and Miss Evelyn Ryder, and solicits earnest prayer that he and his fellow-labourers may be fitted for their work, and that the people may be prepared to receive the message.

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION.—The Inter-Parliamentary Conference of Peace and Arbitration, sitting in Brussels, has unanimously adopted a resolution for the creation of a permanent International Court of Arbitration to consider disputes between nations and adjudicate upon them. The Conference adopted a resolution authorising the President to ascertain whether two or more Governments were prepared to take the initiative in establishing a court for the settlement of international disputes by pacific methods.

NORTHFIELD.

COLLEGE WOMEN IN CONFERENCE.

A correspondent of The Congregationalist, of Boston, U.S., says:—

Northfield has dismissed with her blessing another Conference, the third under the auspices of the International Y.W.C.A. While the best characteristics of other years were emphasised, there was a marked development of power in the work and words of this conference. The mornings were given up to study-classes in Bible and missionary work, and to conferences for discussion of association work in colleges and cities. The two Bible-classes were largely attended. Perhaps the most enthusiastic class was Prof. H. W. White's in the study of the Gospel by St. John. He has charge of the Bible work at Mr. Moody's Institute in Chicago. He is a thoroughly original student, and his methods are both scholarly and devotional.

Missionary work is always face to face with the truest consecration, but even at Northfield there has seldom been so much attention directed to a thorough understanding of the place and field of foreign missions as has been given to it at this conference. It has been a rare opportunity for information on every form of organisation to arouse missionary interest, on missionary literature, and, best of all, on the deep, personal, spiritual communion with the Saviour, which must be the source of any successful work in his name. As a result, twenty have been added to the list of volunteers; the spiritual life of every volunteer has been deepened, and blessing must come to widespread churches and colleges.

From the many words fitly spoken in the evening meetings, it is difficult to single out any as of pre-eminent value. Rev. Floyd Tompkins of Providence, Dr. Dixon of Brooklyn, Mr. Moody, and Miss Price were among those who brought helpful and wholesome messages. The wonderful Sunday when Mr. Robert E. Speer spoke twice was a day blessed to many, and no one address will bear more fruit than the one from the same consecrated man on Power and Peace.

The session was peculiarly fortunate in the glorious weather, which made possible the outdoor meeting on Round Top, a place of many sacred associations. The heart to heart words from Mrs. Waterbury, Mr. Speer, Miss Price, and Mr. Moody on Round Top have a double tenderness, linked with the beauty of the sunset lights in the clouds and on the river.

This Conference has differed from others held this summer, because its herald words are neither numbers nor enthusiasm, in the surface use of that last word. As the date of the meeting was so much later than usual, when the college women were scattered, the increase in number over last year was small. On the other hand, the number of institutions and the extent of territory represented were both larger. Twenty-two States sent delegates from sixty universities, colleges, or seminaries, and from twenty city associations. It was pre-eminently a thoughtful conference, and one of special work along definite lines. Deeply and quietly, by individual study of his Word, by a pressing home of truth gained from others of wider experience in the Master's school, by a new understanding of prayer, the Spirit has richly blessed those who attended this conference.

THE AUGUST CONFERENCE.

This gathering, which virtually extends over the first two weeks of August, has been marked by all the tokens of abounding interest which usually mark it. The proceedings have been reported with some fulness and much vigour in the daily issues of the New York Tribune, from which we cull the following. We omit the glowing descriptions of Northfield scenery and surroundings, as these are well known to our readers:—

The thirteenth annual conference of Christian workers, was opened in the big Auditorium last evening (August 3) with a few informal words of welcome from Mr. Moody. There were present upward of fifteen hundred people, who have come from all parts of the country to attend this conference. Many of them have been here for several years. The hold which this conference has upon its votaries is, indeed, marvellous. A choir of about seventy-five voices took its place on the platform. Mr. Sankey was at the organ, and Rev. F. H. Jacobs acted as precentor. His voice is remarkably clear and musical. Mr. Sankey sang as a solo a new Gospel hymn, entitled "Seeking for the Lost." Time has dealt very gently with Mr. Sankey, and he looks much the same as he did fifteen years ago. His voice has lost none of its sweetness, flexibility, and dramatic power, and the way in which he rendered the solo touched every heart. The late Dr. Gordon's rallying hymn, "He shall Reign from Sea to Sea," was then sung, after which Mr. Moody told the young people that while they would always be welcome at the meetings, they must not feel obliged to come.

After a number of stirring Gospel songs had been sung, the speaker of the evening, Rev. Dr. R. A. Torrey, Superintendent of the Chicago Bible Institute, was introduced. He spoke without notes, taking for his topic the hindrances to the work of God in the soul. There are so many people (he said) who go away without a blessing. The fault is not with God. He is always ready to do more than He has promised. The fault is with us. There is some hindrance in our souls. One hindrance is present sin continued in. Maybe we say our sin is a small one, though there are really no small sins, and we may thus try to hide our fault, even from ourselves. God will continue to hide his face from us until we repent of that sin, whatever it is. A second hindrance is an old sin, unconfessed. Maybe you committed the sin two, ten, fifteen, or twenty years ago. It makes no difference. So long as it is unconfessed it will stand between you and God. A third hindrance is an unforgiving spirit, hatred, suspicion, and bitterness. God cannot work in a bitter heart. A fourth hindrance is the fear to surrender to God's will. A fifth hindrance is spiritual pride, and a sixth is unbelief.

Rev. Prebendary Webb-Peploe arrived on a special train early this morning. Rev. Andrew Murray, of Wellington, South Africa, arrived last evening. The seminary buildings and the hotels are all about full of visitors, and many more are expected to-morrow.

The first meeting this morning (Aug. 4), began at 10 o'clock in the Auditorium, which was well filled with a typical audience. Mr. Moody presided. During the first half hour a prayer and praise service was held. Dr. Dripps and others led in prayer, and the choir sang in a stirring manner several Gospel hymns under the leadership of Messrs. Sankey and Jacobs. Mr. Sankey sang another solo with great restrained power and feeling. There was a slight rustle of expectation as Mr. Moody introduced the speaker of the morning—Prebendary Webb-Peploe, whose discourse was listened to with rapt attention. He is a handsome, stately-looking man of about fifty years, and looks exactly what he is—a typical Anglican clergyman of the Evangelical school. He intends to remain in this country until October, and before he returns will probably preach in New York. The speaker based his remarks on Romans xii. 1 and 2, but in reality his discourse was a closely-reasoned and powerful exposition of St. Paul's theology as laid down in the Epistle to the Romans. It was a doctrinal sermon such as is seldom heard nowadays, but at the same time every sentence of it was charged with ethical impulse.

The feature of the afternoon service was an address by Rev. Andrew Murray, of Wellington, South Africa. After conveying to the Conference the Christian greetings of his church in Wellington, he announced as his text 1 Cor. iii. 1-4. This passage, he said, brings before us in a vivid way the truth that there are two kinds of Christians—spiritual and carnal. Many people do not realize that fact, but you will notice that the apostle brings it out. There were carnal Christians, babes in Christ, in Corinth, to whom Paul could not speak of spiritual things because they were carnal. To which of those two classes do we belong? That is the great question for us to settle at this Conference. Four marks of the carnal state are worthy of our notice. First, it means a state of continual spiritual infancy. Some Christians always want to be helped; they are never able to help others; they are babes in Christ. They are suffering from a spiritual disease that prevents them from growing. Every one ought to contribute some service to the world, but these people must be taken care of by their brethren. The second mark of the carnal state is religious strife. A man may be earnest, but full of strife. "I am of Paul, I am of Apollos," said the Corinthians, and in the same way many of us act. Thirdly, the carnal state may exist alongside with great spiritual gifts. The Corinthians had great spiritual power in certain directions, but they were babes in Christ, nevertheless, because they allowed their carnal nature to govern their spiritual nature. Fourthly, the carnal state makes men unfit to receive spiritual truth. St. Paul had to feed the Corinthians with milk instead of meat, because they were babes. In the Church to-day there are many such babes, and hence the feebleness of the Church.

But there is a passageway from the carnal to the spiritual. How shall we find it? First, through faith. We must believe that there is a spiritual life before we begin to seek it, for unbelief kills the life of the soul. Then we must see the shame of the carnal life. We must have a conviction of sin; but a conviction is not enough. That conviction must make us see that there is only one step from the carnal to the spiritual—only one step. How great a truth and how few remember it. Lastly, we must take that step.

Simple as this address was, it was powerful in its spiritual fervour, and before he ended, tears came to many an eye in the audience. It is evident that Mr. Murray will be one of the favourite speakers of the Conference.

When the 10 o'clock session opened this morning (August 5) the auditorium was about half filled with an attentive audience. After the service of praise, Prebendary Webb-Peploe advanced to the desk to deliver the first address. He took as the subject of his discourse the represented by the men of Sodom and Gomorrah, Abraham and Lot, as given in the second chapter of Genesis. He said in substance:—

THREE TYPES OF CHARACTER

We have one purpose, to bring ourselves face to face with the great realities of the spiritual life. We know and can know nothing on this earth of a sinless life. We can be made perfect only in Christ Jesus. But though on this earth we are bound down by the weight of original sin, we know that God intended us to live a glorious life. Merely to sneak into heaven is dishonourable, but that is what many professing Christians would do. They try to see how much of the world they can enjoy without losing heaven. Bear in mind that I am speaking of Christians. I may give offence—(Mr. Moody: "No, you will not")—but I hope not, for I would speak in love. There is something wrong when we are satisfied even with our evangelical doctrines and fail to live those doctrines in our lives. It is not enough that you should be barely acquitted of your sins by the doctrine of substitution; that you should go to heaven not really cleansed, but only whitewashed. That is what some people think the Atonement means. But they are sadly mistaken. What God wants is that his Church should be beautiful with the beauty of holiness here and now. If the heaven that is to be is to have men from this earth to dwell in it, then those men while on this earth should be heavenly minded. For men to be satisfied with themselves is folly.

So many people try to make the Christian life a compromise, but the thing cannot be done. God will have all or nothing. You cannot play fast and loose with his law. Once the River of Life was choked up by man's sins; it could not reach the life of man. But, thanks be to our Lord, this is so no longer. The River of Life is flowing over all the earth, and whosoever will may drink of it. We hear much talk about the higher life. There is only one true life, and

THAT IS THE HIGHEST POSSIBLE.

Stop talking about the higher life as though it were for the saints only, while a lower life is enough for you. The Old Testament gives us outline pictures of life which are filled in by Jesus Christ in the New Testament. The story we are considering is such an outline picture. In it there are three classes of men portrayed for us. The men of Sodom and Gomorrah represent the natural man. Perhaps you say you are exempt from the unspeakable sin of Sodom. But are you so sure of that?

I turn to Ezekiel xvi. 48, and I find that the sin of Sodom is there described as due to pride, fulness of bread, and idleness. Are these sins so strange to you? While I am glad to believe you are exempt from the infamy of corruption that brought ruin to Sodom and Gomorrah, I press home to you the truth that the roots of those sins may be in you. If pride, ease, and idleness are deadly sins, then we are all guilty. We have not escaped from the peril of God's consuming fire.

THE LESSON OF ABRAHAM'S LIFE.

So much for the type of the natural man. We pass on now to the type of the wholly-redeemed man represented by Abraham. We to-day cannot fully realise how great a thing Abraham did. He was an idolator, brought up in an idolatrous land; but in a moment he left his old home, and at the command of God went to a strange land. It was the most he could do, and he did it. He found himself among strangers, as maybe you will if you follow the will of God. For the Canaanite and the Perizzite were then in the land. How often the devil comes to you and tells you not to obey God for fear of the consequences, and how often you are inclined to listen to him. But, oh, my friends! God is bigger than the devil. He is grander than the devil. The Canaanites won't hurt you if God is with you. Instead of hurting Abraham, they bowed down before him and called him lord, because he was following the will of God.

Notice how he increased in wealth and power, and all because he was righteous. Come wealth, it is God's; or come poverty, it is sent by Him. Oh, you men and women who have quarrelled over wills! Are you not ashamed to call yourselves Christians? What meant that name of God, Jehovah, to Abraham but this: That God will see and help. Your religion is measured by your spiritual capacity. Paul could speak of the unsearchable riches of Christ because he had apprehended Christ's unsearchable riches. He only can do much for God who trusts much in Him.

But we pass on to another type. Besides the natural man, wholly given over to evil, and the redeemed man, there is the man who tries to serve God and the world, represented by Lot. It is a ghastly picture that I hesitate to enlarge upon, lest some of you should take offence, but as God's messenger I must do it, for Lot is a type of a majority of God's Church to-day. Do you doubt it? Is it not true even of your own family, of your friends, of your neighbours? Remember that Lot was not an ungodly or a worldly man. The inspired apostle calls him a righteous man, and I believe he will stand at the last day among those who have been redeemed by the blood of the Lamb. But that makes his case all the more striking and typical of Christians to-day. He vexed his righteous soul with the wickedness of Sodom. He had no sympathy with, or pleasure in it. But yet he chose to live in it. He came out with Abraham from Ur of the Chaldeans. He left all, as Abraham did, at the command of God, and then he ended by dwelling with the ungodly because it was to his advantage.

HALF-WAY CHRISTIANS.

How many of you do the same thing? You join Christ, you obey his call, you are rich in good works. But you are not out-and-out for the Lord. You try to serve God and please yourself at the same time. How many mothers say they must go to balls for the sake of their daughters? How many fathers feel they must take their boys to the theatre? I have had ladies come to me and say, "I know it is wrong to go to a polished floor ball, but may I not go to a little carpet dance?" I am here to say you can make no compromise with God. Such pleasures are nothing but devil's quibbles. If life is one, if it cannot be cut up into various parts, then it must be all for God. Your question should be, How much, not how little, can I give to God? Don't give God the fag-ends of your life. Give them to the world. Lot was a child of God. He was righteous, therefore he was justified. He was set apart, therefore he was sanctified. But he soon found, as so many others have found, that goodness often pays. He got rich, and then came the danger to his soul. He got rich in Sodom, just as many a man to-day gets rich in some modern Sodom; and while still remaining a follower of God strove to make himself popular and respected in the wicked town. I have no doubt that political honours were within his grasp. Perhaps he was a candidate for the Lord Mayoralty of Sodom. He tried, as so many of us to-day try, to influence those around him for good, and then the two angels came and the message of doom for the city, just as they may come some day to London and New York. And Lot, who is hospitable, like so many other time-serving Christians, invites them to his house. Then they tell him their message, just as we who have come over the seas are telling you our message. The whole city was to be destroyed.

People think they can live in Sodom and escape danger. They say they can serve God and go into society. How can they deceive themselves with such lies? Lot thought he had plenty of influence as a leading citizen of the town, but the vicious citizens jeered at him, and when he warned his family he seemed as one that mocked to his sons-in-law. That was all the influence he had, and all anyone will have who imitates him. He had lost all power to help others because he had compromised with God. People will never believe you when you live a compromised life. Such a life is a disgrace to every Christian who lives it, and a cause of ruin to the Church.

Just look at Lot, undoubtedly a man of God, who nearly lost his soul in trying to endow Mrs. Lot and his two daughters with a handsome fortune. It was for his wife and the girls that he toiled all these years, and now he must leave every bit of it behind him. Escape to the mountains, say the angels, but Lot, ever intent on compromise, asks if he may not go to Zoar because it is a little city. So you ask if you may not retain your little sin, or your carpet dance.

Well, God lets him go to Zoar, for when a man wants to compromise, God never hinders him. But Zoar did not satisfy him. He flees to the mountains, and then his two girls, whom he had taught to dance and learn immorality with young men, caused him to commit the horrible sin of incest. Here you have the picture of a godly man who tried to compromise with the hand of God. May it cause you to avoid all compromises and give yourselves wholly to his service.

MR. MURRAY'S DISCOURSE.

The Rev. Andrew Murray, who followed, spoke in part as follows:—

My remarks will be based on Matt. xvi. 24, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me." Why is it that so many thousands of Christians are content with the low compromise life of which we have been hearing so much? There is one answer, and only one to that question. It is because they put self between them and God. And they will never find Him until they put away self, and live the new life from above. There is the fact. We cannot get away from it. The one word self comprehends all that is opposed to God, while self-denial brings us into his very presence. Peter was a believer. His answer pleased the Master. But he was still carnal, and drew back at the shadow of the cross. Hence the rebuke of the Lord, "Get thee behind Me, Satan." And hence, too, the law of self-denial laid down in our text. Not only must Christ take up his cross, but all his followers.

First as to the nature of self. It is the centre of our life and being. God gave it to us that we might bring it back to Him as an empty vessel for Him to fill. When God wanted a vessel into which He might pour the riches of his power and glory, He created the world. Then one of the angels began to think of self more than of God, and soon he ceased to be an angel in heaven, and became a devil in hell. Self turned to God is the most glorious thing in the world, but self turned away from Him is the most hateful. It was through self that Satan tempted Eve. He breathed into her soul the very poison of hell, and that poison is in our blood to-day. Then the works of self are self-will, self-confidence, and self-exaltation. To please ourselves is the great sin of the world. A Christian is a man who never follows his own will, but the will of God. The Master said to Peter: "Deny thyself," but Peter

DENIED HIS MASTER INSTEAD.

Oh, that cursed self! Look at your own lives and see how they are wrecked by it. Next, there is self-confidence, which is so dangerous to many Christians. People ask, Why do I fail in the Christian life? Because they trust in themselves. Lastly, there is self-exaltation. Oh, how much pride and touchiness and jealousy we find among Christians! How much desire there is for the praise of men! This is the self that is killing you. How shall you get rid of it? Only by denying yourselves and taking up the cross and following Christ. Then, and only then, will all be well with you. Jesus led Peter till self was broken down. So it must be with us. We must kill self every day and hour in order that we may find our true selves in Christ Jesus. Say to Him, "Lord, here I am. Take me for thine." It will not be easy, but it is the only way to God. We must learn to hate self, to deny self, in order that Jesus Christ may be all in all.

In the afternoon Dr. Torrey, of the Chicago Bible Institute, gave a capital address on St. Paul as the greatest Christian worker. One of the features of the conference is a brief devotional service held at seven o'clock every evening on Round Top.

(To be continued.)

UNIVERSITIES CAMPS.

It is interesting to observe how popular this movement is becoming among schoolboys. It originated in 1892, when a single camp, consisting of eighty officers and boys, was formed. The next year three camps were formed, and the numbers increased to 180. Last year four camps were formed, and they contained over 300. This year five camps have been erected, with nearly 400 boys and young men. These camps have representatives from Oxford and Cambridge, Woolwich, and Sandhurst, H.M.S. Britannia, Eton, Harrow, Winchester, Westminster, Cheltenham, Rugby, Repton, Clifton, Sherborne, Haileybury, and other important schools, as well as from many smaller ones.

The sites selected are Bamborough (Northumberland), under the command of Lieut.-Colonel Phayre; Abergele (N. Wales), under Colonel Morton; Deal (Kent), under Major Liebenrood; Highcliffe (Hampshire), under Major General McCausland; and a later one at the same place under Major Seton Churchill. The officers are all University men, principally from Oxford and Cambridge. Each tent, consisting of about half-a-dozen boys, is in charge of one of these undergraduates, and, as a rule, only those who are fond of boys, and are able to join in their games and sports, are selected. No servants are allowed in the camps except the soldier cooks, so these public school boys have to manage for themselves entirely. They make their beds, dig their trenches, pitch the tents, clean dishes, etc.

The days are principally spent in bathing, boating, fishing, sailing, cricket, cycling, and other athletic sports. The month of August, during the boys' holidays, is the time selected for these encampments, and the boys, as a rule, stop about ten days each, but so pleasant is the life that a great many apply to be allowed to go to the later camp, so as to get another ten days under canvas. All the camps are at the seaside, and this, in the summer, is a great attraction to boys educated at inland places.

A chaplain is appointed to each camp, and earnest hearty religious services are held every evening before going to bed. The committee, which assembles alternately at Oxford and Cambridge, have elected Major Seton Churchill, Whitehall, Lichfield, to be the Brigade Commandant, as such a movement requires an enormous amount of organisation. He states in a circular that he will be very glad to give information to any parent who may desire it, and that the actual cost price of this seaside holiday to each boy is two guineas.

As the educated classes must have an enormous influence in the future of our country, the committee believe that the cultivation and development of all that is noble and good among the boys of our great public schools should be their aim and object, and so far they have been most wonderfully encouraged.

"HOW MUCH OWEST THOU?"

Thou hast forgiven my life's sinful story,
Flooded my soul with Thine infinite glory,
Whispered of strength that ne'er failed in upholding
Souls that found rest in Thy promised enfolding;
Thou hast been with me through darkness and trial,
Keeping my heart from distrust and denial;
Thine was the Hand that both beckoned and guided;
Thine was the wisdom that planned and provided,
Thine was the love that met longing unspoken,
Hushing each fear with sweet promise or token;
Gemming each moment with mercies God-given,
Gilding each storm-cloud with sunlight from heaven;
Scarce can I tell the sweet story of blessing—
All Thou hast been to me, gladly confessing;
Give Thou me grace by my life's consecration,
Just to show forth my heart's deep adoration,
May my glad praise and my daily devotion
Surge round thy feet like some love-ruffled ocean,
Hourly enable me, Saviour, to show Thee,
How much I love Thee, and how much I owe Thee!

Eva Travers Evered Poole.

EASTERN AFRICA.—Mr. Douglas Hooper, returned from Mombasa, says that two months ago matters became so serious through Arab aggression that the staff of the C.M.S. station at Jilore, seventy miles north of Mombasa, were ordered to leave and seek a place of safety at Mombasa.

CHINA.

China's Crisis.

In May, 1890, the General Conference of Missionaries assembled in Shanghai, and representing the 1296 Protestant missionaries then in China, issued an urgent appeal for 1000 men within five years; and appointed a permanent committee to observe and report the results of the appeal, consisting of Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, of Shanghai; Rev. Wm. Ashmore, D.D., of Swatow; Rev. H. Corbett, D.D., of Chefoo; Rev. C. W. Mateer, D.D., LL.D., of Tungchow; Rev. C. F. Reid, D.D., of Shanghai. At the same time the lady missionaries of the Conference put forth an appeal for additional lady workers.

The five years have now elapsed, and Rev. C. F. Reid has carefully collected and tabulated the returns. From these it appears that forty-five societies have sent new workers to China since May, 1890. Some unconnected missionaries have also come out. Including these, the following numbers are reached:—

Male missionaries		481
Wives of missionaries	167
Single ladies	505
		672
Total in five years		1153

These numbers do not exactly correspond with the appeal, only 481 of them being men; God knew the needs of China, and sent those He saw would be most helpful. The answer, therefore is a gracious response, and shows what may be done by united prayer and effort; and thus adds to our responsibility to use these means still more largely for the advancement of the Redeemer's Kingdom in China. An important crisis in China's history has been reached. The war just terminated does not leave her where she was. It will inevitably lead to a still wider opening of the empire, and to many new developments. If the Church of Christ does not enter into the opening doors others will, and they may become closed against her. We would reiterate some of the earnest words of appeal, written five years ago, which have to-day, on the eve of great changes and of great opportunities, still more urgent weight, and should lead to more vigorous effort. The Conference said in 1890:—

Realising as never before the magnitude of China, and the utter inadequacy of our present numbers for the speedy carrying into execution of our Lord's command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." Therefore,

Resolved that we, the 430 members of the Missionary Conference, now in session in Shanghai, earnestly and unanimously appeal to you to send out speedily as many hundreds as can possibly be secured of well qualified ordained men. . . .

We appeal to young men to give themselves to this work . . . to individual congregations to greatly increase their contributions for the support of one or more of these men; to Christian men of wealth to prayerfully consider the duty and privilege of giving themselves personally to this work, or of supporting their representatives.

This Conference . . . would also present a direct appeal to the home Churches for missionaries. . . . It would point to the many millions of our fellow men who have never heard the Gospel of the grace of God; and to some millions more, who, though they have possessed themselves of some portions of his word, still fail to comprehend its meaning for want of someone to guide them. . . .

We appeal to our brethren . . . to solemnly ask themselves whether for the greater glory of God they are not called to meet this pressing need, and to devote themselves, their service, and their wealth to this missionary enterprise in China.

To the above earnest words we add the following extracts condensed from the appeal of 204 lady members of the Missionary Conference:—

"We...come to you, our sisters in Christ, with an urgent appeal on behalf of the...women and children of China...Beloved sisters, if you could see their sordid misery, their hopeless, loveless lives, their ignorance and sinfulness as we see them, mere human pity would move you to do something for their uplifting. But there is a stronger motive that should impel you to stretch out a helping hand, and that we plead—the constraining love of Christ. We who are in the midst of this darkness that can be felt send our voices across the ocean to you, our sisters, and beseech you by the grace of Christ our Savour that you come at once to our help...That the Holy and loving Spirit of God may incline your hearts to respond to his call is our earnest prayer."

To the above extracts we will only add the last paragraph of the appeal of the Conference for one thousand men:—

"We make this appeal in behalf of three hundred millions of unevangelised heathen; we make it with all the earnestness of our whole hearts, as men overwhelmed with the magnitude and responsibility of the work before us; we make it with unwavering faith in the power of a risen Savour to call men into his vineyard and to open the hearts of those who are his stewards to send out and support them; and we shall not cease to cry mightily to Him that He will do this thing, and that our eyes may see it."

Time is passing. If 1000 men were needed five years ago they are much more needed now. Of the 1296 missionaries in China only 589 were men; and of them not a few have entered into their rest, or have returned home from various causes. In view of the new facilities and enlarged claims of China the next five years should see a larger reinforcement than that called for in 1890. Will not the Church arise and take immediate and adequate action to meet the pressing needs of this vast land?

On behalf of the permanent committee,

J. Hudson Taylor.

Shanghai, May, 1895.

The "Vegetarians" in China.

Some misconception may arise in the minds of our readers respecting the Vegetarian sect in China, which has achieved an unpleasant notoriety by the massacre of the missionaries at Whasang, near Foochow. These people are not vegetarians from dietetic principles. Strictly speaking, they have no claim to the name at all, for the only meat from which they abstain is beef and dog flesh. The moral sentiments which lead to abstention have their root in their religious beliefs, and are shown in a clear but simple way in one of their tracts which has been translated by Dr. Griffith John, of Hankow, entitled, "An Exhortation to Abstain from Beef and Dog Flesh Eating." The following is an extract:—

"At present the ox is used to plough the fields for man, and as such must be considered the most meritorious of animals. The dog watches for his master and is the most faithful of animals. How then can one have the heart to grasp a knife and kill, or even buy and eat the flesh of the ox and the dog?"

Then follow a few examples of the rewards connected with abstinence from beef and dog flesh eating, and of the punishment consequent upon commission of this enormous sin. The Chinese, as a people, believe all this. The tract quoted from is a very popular one. As in Christian countries, the belief is far in advance of the usual customs of some people. The practice varies in different parts of that vast land. In parts of Central China few respectable people ever touch beef or mutton. The pig is all in all there. In the North, however, they eat beef, pork, fowls, and fish. The common people live almost entirely on rice, vegetables, and a certain compound made of beans and plaster of Paris. It is marvellous how they can convert every species of grass into tasty food. Their doctrine of the transmigration of souls makes all taking life, even that of vermin, to be repugnant to them.

The Vegetarian sect, being strong upholders of the ancient religion and practices of China, supplies a force at once conservative and violent. All the people hate foreigners, but these sectaries have a hatred of the most virulent kind to all strangers. Few understand or believe that a man would walk across the street to tell of his religion to a stranger. They are persuaded that the missionaries have some reasons which are not clear to the popular mind for coming to China, and they are classed with every other kind of foreigners as interlopers who ought to be violently expelled. An adroit use of this fanatical feeling is often made by the mandarins, who always prefer others to pull the chestnuts out of the fire. It is unpleasant to burn if another will run the risk for you. It is because they are foreigners, and not because they are Christians, that missionaries are hated and killed.

The Riots in North China.

You will probably hear from others particulars of the terrible riots at Ch'en tu, the capital of this province, but lest you should not, I will let you have the news as far as I know.

On May 25 Dr. and Mrs. Kilborn, of the Canadian Methodist Mission, arrived in Ch'en tu from this station, where they had been for the last year. On May 27 Drs. Hart and Hare, Mr. and Mrs. Endicott left Ch'en tu for Kia-ting; there were therefore in Ch'en tu the following Protestant missionaries:—

China Inland Mission.—Mr. Vale, Mr. and Mrs. Cormack, one child.

Canadian Method. Miss.—Dr. and Mrs. Kilborn, one child; Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson, three children; Mr. and Mrs. Hartwell, two children; Misses Brackbill and Ford.

American Method. Epis.—Dr. and Mrs. Canwright, two children; Mr. and Mrs. Cady; Mr. and Mrs. Peat, 2 children.

Church Missionary Society.—Mr. Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Cady, Mrs. Peat, and Miss Ford had also, like the Kilborns, just arrived in the city.

May 28 was the Chinese Twan-iang festival, and the parade ground in the north-east of the city was crowded with people, but everything was quiet until the time to go home arrived. The Canadian Methodist Mission property, Si Shen Si, is on both sides of the street, and it appears that Mr. Hartwell went over to No. 1 about half-past four to fetch his little girl home, who had been playing with the Stevenson children. Bringing her home, twenty or thirty people who had been trying to look through the door ran after him, some giving forth harsh sounds, others wishing to see the baby. When he got inside, someone kicked the door, and several stones were thrown in. About this time a placard appeared saying that a girl was missing, and blaming the foreigners; some saying that they were cutting up babies, etc. The crowd kept gathering at Si Shen Si. Word was sent to the Yamen, and after a while some runners came, but did nothing. Soon the doors of Si Shen Si No. 1 were all broken down, and the crowd began to enter; but Drs. Kilborn and Stevenson rushed forward and shot their guns in the air, and the crowd rushed pell-mell in both directions. They then stood on the street, and kept things quiet, expecting every moment the officials would arrive with more runners. The darkness was coming on, and the runners persuaded them to go in, and they would disperse the crowd. The crowd returned, and were entering again, but fled when the two doctors appeared.

By this time the stones came thick and fast, and a few men had gathered behind, and were stoning the hospital gate. They found themselves between two fires, and their families unprotected. They now sought for escape. The women had gone to the hospital grounds. After a time of great distraction they—the women—decided to make a bolt through the hospital doors and run with their children. The rioters had broken a hole in the door; the mob were surprised when they came out, and did not injure them, some cried "beat" and "kill." The party then tried to enter several places, but were not allowed. They went to the barracks, and the soldiers kicked some of the ladies and sent them away with curses. Finally, they got on to the city wall, and from there could see the flames of the building. After wandering about until nearly midnight, they got to the C.I.M. house.

In the meantime the mob made quick work of the dwelling and hospital at Si Shen Si No. 1. The Fu and Hsien magistrates came for a little while with about two dozen men. They slowly walked along the street, and entered the place. The two Christians had not yet departed. The din stopped, a few men were seized. Shortly the Fu came out, got into his chair, and departed. He had not gone very far when the rioting began with renewed energy. The buildings were set on fire and completely destroyed.

Mr. Hartwell and family heard all this on their side, No. 2, and they got over the wall, and took refuge in a neighbour's. This was about 10 p.m., and by midnight the crowd began to disperse. At 4 a.m. the Hartwells returned to their house, but soon the rioting began again, and Mrs. Hartwell and children went off to the U hsia Riai, the C.M.M. ladies' house. She had just got away when bang! bang! bang! went the stones at the gate. Mr. Hartwell had time to get some money, and ran into Fau's house without being observed. The mob a minute later entered his house, and before noon everything was levelled, even the wall torn down. Mr. Hartwell remained a prisoner till evening, and then went to the Yamen. About 10 a.m. the mob had gone to U hsia Riai, and gutted the building. Mrs. Hartwell and the two ladies escaped over the wall and got chairs for the C.I.M. They scarcely got there when the mob began to assemble. They then began to think of the Yamen. Mr. Vale went to see if the way was clear, and returned. Mr. and Mrs. Cormack, Mrs. Hartwell and Bertha, Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson got out in chairs, but before the rest could start the mob entered, and Dr. and Mrs. Kilborn, the two ladies, one of Hartwell's children, and Mr. Vale had to climb the back wall. The neighbours refused them a room, but a small official who was with them unhinged a door from the outside and pushed them into a small room. The yelling mob cleared the ground of the C.I.M. house, carrying off everything but the broken tile.

In the evening all arrived at the Yamen, and soon the American Methodist Episcopal missionaries arrived; their large place also completely cleared off, even the back wall, and the leaves stripped from the trees. All the missionaries are safe, but entirely without worldly goods, except the clothes they wear on their backs. Mr. Vale writes: "We are resting sweetly on the Lord, experiencing his blessed presence."

Vile rumours are afloat about human bones being found in the boxes of the missionaries, etc., etc. It has been reported at other places that Kia-ting and Ching-king are looted, but as yet we are in peace here. There is a good deal of excitement, and bands of men are said to be arriving from Chentu. Mr. and Mrs. Squire are at Tsin Shen, and Misses Naess and Wilson at Tan-lin; Miss Hol at Kiong-cheo. I have sent word to all to move quietly, and to be careful in coming back to the city. "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." Mr. and Mrs. Endicott and Mr. and Mrs. Viking have left to-day for down river. Dr. Hart, Dr. Hare, Mr. Bramnan, my wife and baby, and Miss Bridgwater are here.

Ben Ribie.

Kia-ting, Fu Si Chuan, West China,
June 3, 1895.

The Recent Massacre.

A very interesting letter appears in The Newcastle Daily Chronicle of August 13th, from Dr. W. P. Mears, dated Teignmouth Artillery Camp, Redcar. Writing from the experience gained by some years' travel and residence in the disturbed district, he says:—

In regard to the feeling of the mass of the people towards missionaries, I had the evidence of my own eyes and ears during the years I spent among them, as well as similar evidence of the great effect in the opening up of the country to foreign influence and to future foreign trade, which has been the consequence of the missionary work done in the province of Fuh-Kien, to say nothing of the philanthropic results of medical work and education and the direct religious success. I travelled alone, before I could speak the language, for hundreds of miles through the districts concerned in the outrages (the small province of Fuh-Kien is nearly as large as England), and have been separated by distances of several days' journey from other Europeans, but have been invariably met with courtesy, hospitality, and friendliness from the people wherever missionary influence has extended. I felt and knew myself to be safer than I should have felt in many parts of the United Kingdom. Twenty-five years ago, before this influence was at work, no European could safely venture far from the Treaty Port of Foo Chow. The people, that is to say, the three grades of Chinese society below the first, highest class of "literati" (officials and expectant officials), viz.:—the peasants, the artisans, and the lowest grade, the traders, the three classes which together make up 95 per cent. of the population, have nothing to gain and everything to lose by a disturbance. It is upon them that the blame is laid, while the emissaries of the literary guilds and of the secret political societies escape. No magistrate can tell how many or whom of his subordinates or inferiors may belong to these civilian or military associations, to the "Vegetarians" of the civil class, or to the Ko-lai-hwoi of the military. These societies are as powerful as Masonry would be in England were it to become an Anarchist conspiracy, and they are now gaining sufficient strength to become dangerous no less to the reigning foreign Tartar dynasty than to other foreigners.

Now that the societies are throwing off the mask, as they have been preparing to do ever since the outbreak of the China-Japan war, their real object is apparent. The troubles which have culminated in this last great atrocity are political and not religious in their character. The missionaries are the only Europeans who, with very few exceptions, have an object in travelling, or care to travel, in the monotonous up-country outside the limits of the Treaty Ports. Hence they are the first to feel the effects of the incipient rebellion against a foreign dynasty and against the supporters of it, viz.: foreigners generally. Where other Europeans have pressed beyond the area of the Treaty Ports they have encountered precisely the same risks—e.g., Mr. Margary, who was murdered in Yun-Nan, the Russian tea-merchants who were driven out of the tea district of Fuh-Kien, the European Customs officers at I-chang who were attacked two years ago, and the Customs officer at Wie-Hi, who was butchered some three years since. That such is the fact is proved by the action of the great European communities at Shanghai and Hong Kong, who cannot be accused of missionary proclivities. In both of these great settlements mass meetings of the foreigners of all nationalities have just been held—that at Hong Kong being of sufficient importance to warrant the Governor, Sir W. Robinson, in sending home to the Government by telegram the various resolutions passed. At both the meetings, specially called as they were to consider the Ku-Cheng massacre, not only was nothing said in condemnation of missionary work, but resolutions were unanimously passed, sympathising with the survivors and friends of the victims, condemning the dilatoriness of the European Powers which has led to such a culmination, and urging the necessity for prompt and efficient measures of protection for all foreigners in China. If the fault lay with the missionaries, these, the foreign merchants in the great ports, whose commercial interests, aswell as their persons and lives, are threatened, would be the first to point it out. Instead of so doing, they take the unprecedented step of forwarding their request for immediate protection direct to their respective Governments.

Knowing intimately, as I did, the late Rev. R. Stewart, I am fully persuaded that he would be the last man to do anything to excite the animosity of any of the natives. When I reached China he had been for some time invalided at home. Yet everywhere the people—not one or two, but scores—spoke of him with a loving respect, and a most genuine desire for his return. In Ku-Cheng, round him, he had upwards of two thousand native Christians and over 500 regular communicants, all these last being men who had been well tested by at least two years' probation. The "Vegetarians" dared not attack him there. They waited till he had left the city, as he would do at the beginning of August on account of the heat, and had gone with the majority of the Europeans to the little sanitorium of the Ku-Cheng missionaries, four hours' journey off, among the hills. Hardly had he taken possession of one of the two or three small bungalows there, where he and the others were far remote from any assistance except that of a few terrified villagers, when the assassins crept up in the darkness, just before dawn, fired the house, prodded their victims as they rushed out, and promptly scattered, not waiting to complete their devilish work, or to attack the other bungalows a few hundred yards further off, where the few foreigners were already aroused. Mr. Stewart was in every way a thorough man, whom to meet was to respect and love—a man without fear, and without fanaticism. Such men—men like Livingstone, Mackay of Uganda, and others—are the pioneers who clear the way for British influence, civilisation and religion, whose lives are examples to every man, whose deaths are losses to the nation.

THE HARSH TREATMENT OF RUSSIAN STUNDISTS, which recently showed signs of diminishing, has again broken out, and the prisons are again receiving the prominent members of this sorely-tried body of Protestant peasants. The scene of the labours of the Russian Inquisitors seems now to be the central provinces of Kursk and Orel, from the sequestered villages of which it is next to impossible to obtain full details. We learn, however, that already several heads of families have been deported from Kursk to Kharkoff, where they are lingering in jail until an étape is formed to take them to the Transcaucasus. It is stated, on good authority, that Pobiedonostseff, the Russian Minister of Religion, as he may be called, is favourably considering a scheme which will allow Stundists to emigrate from Russia on the condition that they or their children will never return.—N. Y. Independent.

PERSECUTION IN RUSSIA.

A correspondent of a St. Petersburg newspaper writes from Raschin (Gov. Twer) about the verdict against an adherent of Paschkoff's. A peasant, Tworoshnikoff, having returned home after a two years' stay in St. Petersburg, gave up attending church, and refused to receive the Communion from the priest's hands, or to cross himself before the images of the saints. Instead of doing so, he read the New Testament at home, explaining it to his family. His wife and mother were present at these Bible readings. As he did not bring his child to baptism, he was summoned before the court of justice. His mother and wife being called as witnesses, refused to take the oath, as they said, out of religious principles.

Tworoshnikoff showed himself utterly ignorant of the cause of the accusation against him. He declared that he had attained his present religious convictions after long struggles. At first he had been very regular in his attendance at church, and had also sung in the choir; then doubts seized him. Five years ago he met a man in St. Petersburg, who explained the Gospel to him so as to prove that faith alone is necessary for salvation. He did not know the name of the preacher, but he fully accepted his teaching, and had since then found that peace which he had so eagerly sought. Being cross-questioned Tworoshnikoff assured the court that he had never heard of the adherents of Paschkoff, and said that he had attained his views of the Gospel independently of any other person. The question as to whether he felt guilty, he absolutely failed to understand, and he begged that proof might be given him from Scripture of his being mistaken. The teacher of the theological seminary of Shworzoff being present in court, Tworoshnikoff expected an explanation from him, but in vain; he accordingly kept to his assertion that no proofs had been brought up against him, and that he was falsely accused. The theological teacher, however, found Tworoshnikoff's views to agree with the teaching of Paschkoff. Accordingly, the jury declared the accused to be guilty of propagating false doctrines, and the court condemned him to prison.

The Tsamarskij Westnik tells another story which throws a peculiar light on the methods employed against the sects. A so-called "missionary" of the Orthodox Church entered the cottage of a peasant one Saturday afternoon during the owner's absence. He told his dessjatskij to keep watch at the door, and allow no one to enter, and then began to turn everything upside down. All the village was in an uproar at this unceremonious behaviour, but the "missionary" continued his search, in order to obtain proofs of the family belonging to the Chlysty sect. Having found nothing, he arrested the peasant's daughter, a child of thirteen, and carried her off to a neighbouring village, where for twenty-four hours he tried, by questionings and threatenings, to extract from the child all that he wanted to know. She was later submitted to a similar examination by the priest. The terrified child fainted away, and remained unconscious for a long time, and her release did not take place till after several days.

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS.—A Home for young men and young women who have volunteered for the foreign field as medical missionaries is one of the latest developments of the missionary movement in Chicago. It is expected that during the coming autumn and winter twenty-five students will be in the home, which is conveniently located for the students attending the medical schools.

HOP PICKERS IN KENT.—At the end of this month, thousands of men, women, and children from many parts of London and the counties of Middlesex, Surrey, and Sussex, will be scattered over the hop districts in Kent. It has been my privilege for about twenty years to devote attention to some of the pickers in Mid Kent, circulating Gospel literature, holding services at their camps or in the gardens, both on weekdays and Sundays, and when funds have permitted free teas. The last year or two we have also gathered the pickers by means of some magic-lantern services. We have received much encouragement in the past, and trust that we shall have the prayers and help of friends this season. If any could give or lend lanterns or slides, we should be very thankful. Parcels of books, old clothes, etc., should be addressed to me (carriage paid) c.o. Mr. James Baldwin, Ivy Hatch Plain, Kent, via Wrotham Station, L.C.D. Railway. G. Gillingham.

Chalford, Glos.

[337]

Letters to the Editor.

THE JAPANESE CHURCHES.

Dear Sir,—I have been much impressed of late with the insight I have had from most reliable sources as to the heart-searchings of which the missionaries in Japan are the subjects. Truly they need our prayers; and I hope your words in last week's Christian may conduce to this. As to the projected revolution in the Kumi-ai church, I venture to suggest that however qualified Japan may be to the exclusive right of managing her own affairs in the field of material progress, it is quite a different matter to apply the faculty of adaptation to church polity. Until they see that overseers are willing to become the servants of their less enlightened and favoured brethren, no good result can acrue from the proposed surrender of the field by the American missionaries.

The Japanese have the highest claim to our consideration and forbearance; our hearts, indeed, cannot but feel drawn to them. Their "self-reliance" is useful beyond words in building up the national constitution, but may it not be the sinew which God has to touch ere a God-reliance becomes their experience, and without which progress of a right sort is impossible? The Higher Criticism has for some years been the popular creed among the aggressive party, and many estimable Christians have departed from the simplicity of Christ. It seems to me that the more fitted the Church in Japan is for managing her own affairs, the less inclined she will be to part company with her spiritual preceptors. I believe God will hear prayer and strengthen the bonds of love formed between the beloved missionaries and their tenderly cared-for flock, and which, like Jacob's sheep, need to be led forth gently out of the theories and meshes of error, and other drawbacks for which we are largely responsible.—Yours faithfully,

M. McLean.

Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W.

BAPTISM IN THE SPIRIT.

Sir,—In a previous number your correspondent "J." writes: "It does not matter what the title is—baptism of the Holy Spirit, etc. The question is, Is there a special enduement, or baptism, or filling, to be received by waiting?" And again, "Surely in Acts xix. the Holy Ghost must have been in these Ephesians to have drawn them to Christ, but even after they believed, and had been baptized, there was something more for them. They had had the baptism of repentance, but not the baptism of the Holy Ghost. Why is not the term baptism to be applied to both? Not that the terms matter."

So far I have seen no attempt to answer "J." from Scripture, and as his questions formulate the thoughts of many minds at this time, I should be glad if you would give me the opportunity of answering them, as they can only properly be answered, from Scripture alone.

But previous to turning to the Word of God, it might be well to notice "J.'s" words: "It does not matter," he writes, "what the title is" . . "Not that the terms matter." Here I would at once join issue with him. Its terms are all important if we would have a Scriptural knowledge of the subject. "Hold fast the form of sound words," wrote Paul to Timothy, in a time of general decadence: and it will be our wisdom if we obey his injunction now. Scripture, as we shall see, speaks of baptism in the Spirit in a uniform way, and limits it to one distinct operation of the Holy Ghost. Let us proceed to quote the only passages in which it occurs in the Word of God. "He shall baptize you in the Holy Ghost" (Matt. iii. 2; Mark i. 8; Luke iii. 16). "The same is He which baptizeth in the Holy Ghost" (John i. 33); "Ye shall be baptized in the Holy Ghost not many days hence" (Acts i. 5); "In one spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles" (1 Cor. xii. 13). Now a reference to the Greek will show that in every instance the term used is "Baptism in the Holy Ghost: while in the five first passages it is contrasted with baptism in water. If, then, we are to hold fast the form of sound words, we shall, at the outset, discard the term baptism by or with, and adopt the Scriptural one, baptism in the Holy Ghost.

We have seen that Scripture contrasts baptism in the Holy Ghost with baptism in water. Let us proceed to ascertain in what the former consists. Scripture (1 Cor. xii. 13) gives us definite information as to this. "In one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles." Plainly, therefore, it is a distinctive privilege, peculiar to the dispensation of the Church; for, previous to the death of the Lord Jesus there was no one body, but a middle wall of partition raised by God between Jew and Gentile (Eph. ii. 14-16).

Baptism in the Spirit is, moreover, a corporate privilege, not a private blessing or private experience limited to a few, for by baptism in the Spirit every true Christian in the world has admission into the one body, and if he does not belong to this one body he is no true Christian at all. The doctrine, therefore, so often proclaimed at conferences, and formulated by "J.," that baptism in the Holy Ghost is (to quote his words), "a special enduement, or baptism, or filling, to be received by waiting," finds no countenance from the Word of God. If "J." and the writer are Christians at all, they, in common with every true believer in the universe (for Paul writes "are we all baptized") have received the baptism in the Holy Ghost, and hence have nothing to be endued with, or to wait for in that respect.—Yours faithfully,

John Fort.

SCOTTISH NOTES.

Rev. G. H. Knight, F.C. minister, Bearsden, has resigned his pastorate owing to the state of his health.

The Mission to Miners, launched at the last Free Assembly, has a fund of £6,400 (including promises), but further contributions are needed.

Resolutions of sympathy with the friends of the murdered missionaries in China have been passed by the Established, Free, and U.P. presbyteries of Glasgow.

The Inveraray Town Council on Monday presented the freedom of the burgh to Rev. James Chalmers, of New Guinea, a distinguished townsman, in respect of his services in the cause of civilisation and religion.

IRISH NOTES.

During the past week open-air services have been held under Methodist auspices in Armagh, Portadown, and various other centres, and have been largely attended.

A meeting to bid an affectionate farewell to Miss Teasy, of Caledon, who is going out as a Methodist missionary to Ceylon, has been held in the Lynn Memorial Hall, Armagh.

It appears that the riots at Sligo in connection with the open-air services were of a worse character than at first reported. A most determined effort was made to throw the evangelists into the river or to murder them.

The ministerial jubilee of Rev. N. M. Brown, D.D., of Limavady, co. Derry, ex-Moderator of the General Assembly, has been celebrated with great earnestness by his congregation, and Dr. Brown has received many congratulations from his friends.

At a conference held in Cork, under the patronage of the bishop, Dr. Meade, a series of eight addresses on "The Person and Work of the Holy Spirit" was delivered by Rev. W. H. Langhorne, of London. The meetings were well attended, and, it is believed, did much good.

The question of foreign missions is just now evoking great enthusiasm in the Irish Presbyterian Church. Out of the £5000 asked for at the last general assembly to support five student volunteers, about £3300 has been already guaranteed, and as the result three missionary volunteers are to be sent out immediately.

The Working Boys' Home, Dublin, built in 1892 out of a legacy bequeathed by the late Miss Harding, is rendering excellent service to lads earning only small wages and who are without a suitable home in the city, as it takes them out of the wretched surroundings of the common lodging-house and brings them under Christian and friendly influences. There are at present 59 boys resident in the Home, and the cost of maintaining it last year was £1069, towards which, out of their small earnings, the boys themselves contributed over £644.

REQUEST FOR PRAYER.—For much blessing upon efforts by the Soldiers' Christian Association in connection with the summer manœuvres in the New Forest, which commence on August 23.

WOMEN'S PROTESTANT UNION.—An all-day meeting for prayer and conference on the confessional and conventual systems will be held in connection with this Union in London on Thursday, Sept. 26. The morning and afternoon assemblies will be in Exeter Hall, and the evening gathering in the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street

THE Y.M.C.A.

A new Association has been formed at Burnley.

The Derby Association hope to carry on a vigorous campaign in connection with the Derby races, on Sep. 3. Mr. Yapp, the secretary, would be glad of suitable literature for distribution.

The College Y.M.C.A. secretaries of America, Mr. L. D. Wishard and Mr. R. Mott are at present visiting Scandinavia for the purpose of aiding the further organisation of work among young men in the colleges and universities.

Sir George and Lady Williams, who are spending the vacation in the Lake District, welcomed the members and friends of the Keswick Association at a social reception on the 8th instant, when a numerous company assembled.

A report to hand from Rio states that, notwithstanding the political revolution and an epidemic of yellow fever, the Association continues to make progress. Work is maintained in the religious, educational, and social departments, there has been an increase of twenty-two in the membership, and the working expenses have been met.

During the past month the New York City Association received the largest donation yet bestowed for the furtherance of its work in the form of a newly-erected building valued at £40,000. The fee simple of the building has been given for the purpose of creating a permanent endowment for the New York Association by the income derived therefrom in the shape of rents.

A successful camping tour through the English lakes district—arranged by the Derby Y.M.C.A.—has been concluded. The encampment, which consisted of a large van, a small marquee, and four bell tents, was pitched for several days each at Ambleside, Keswick, and Grasmere. During the tour most of the principal lakes were visited, and other places of interest. The opportunity was taken at Keswick of attending some of the convention meetings. Twenty-four young men, representing Derby, Birport, Lincoln, Leicester, Kettering, and Southampton associations were included in the party.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

The report of the Christian Endeavour Convention, held at Birmingham at Whitsuntide, has been edited, in a shilling volume, by Rev. W. Knight Chaplin, and published by the Sunday-school Union.

At a cost of one hundred dollars a Christian Endeavour ward has been furnished in the new hospital at Woodstock, Ontario. Budgets of newspapers are sent regularly to the House of Refuge by the local union.

At a convention held at Winchester recently, it was decided to form three or four unions of Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavour in the county of Hants. On Wednesday last week a largely attended meeting of representatives was held at Albion Congregational Church, Southampton, when it was resolved to form a union for Southampton and the district, and to include within its limits an area which shall comprise Lymington on the west and Winchester on the north. A form of constitution and set of rules were drawn up and officers elected.

At the recent annual conference of the Bible Christian denomination at Barnstaple, a report was presented of the Christian Endeavour Movement, which at the previous Conference was recognised as a distinct department of work. It stated that ninety-six societies and twelve junior societies are now established in the connection, of which number forty societies and eleven junior have been formed since last Conference. The membership includes 2257 active, 580 associate, and 187 honorary members, making a total of 3024. In many places the societies are strong and vigorous, evoking a spirit of zeal and consecration in the young people which finds suitable expression in various forms of Christian service.

DECOYING GIRLS.—The committee of the British Charitable Fund, Paris, are at present investigating the case of a girl, said to be of English birth, although bearing an Italian name, who had been induced to come to Paris from London, ostensibly to to fill an honourable situation. On arrival at the station in Paris she was met by a woman and several low-looking men, whose appearance at once roused her suspicion. She refused to accompany them to her new situation. Her would-be employers, after vainly endeavouring to make her change her mind, left her—not, however, before the woman obtained possession of the girl's purse, containing £20, on an excuse of getting the English money exchanged into French. Neither the woman nor the money have since been seen.

OBITUARY.

DR. GEORGE STEELE, NYASSA.

Another heroic worker has fallen a victim to the climate of Central Africa—George Steele, M.B., C.M., of Glasgow University. Six years ago the Livingstonia Committee of Scotland sent him out to the more healthy uplands of the lately wild Ngoni tribe above Bandawe, on the west shore of Lake Nyassa. After splendid service, done with all modesty and patient toil, Dr. Steele was told to take furlough from May 1 last. He planned a tour in Australia, to interest the colonists in the mission, and was to have reached Scotland before Christmas next. Unfortunately he seems to have delayed his departure, for his death is telegraphed as having taken place, from fever, on June 24. Though a Glasgow man, he was specially connected with the church of Free St. Andrews, Edinburgh. Dr. Steele's loss as a medical man and a missionary is to be deplored.

In a letter to the Glasgow papers, Rev. Wm. Leggatt, of the Buchanan Institute, gives some interesting particulars of Dr. Steele's early life. He says: "In 1865 I got to know him as one of an orphaned family of seven living in Greenvale-street. In July, 1865, Thomas, the fifth in point of age, was received as a pupil into this institution. George was too young to be received with Thomas, and was not admitted till 1868, when he was eight years of age. He remained with us five years, leaving in 1873 from our highest class. Like his brother Thomas, he began to earn his means of living in the same warehouse (I think Pettigrew and Spence's) before he thought of secondary education. About 1890 he turned up here recommending 'destitute boys' from his mission district in the south side. Meantime he was attending the Theological Hall of the Free Church. He was also studying in a medical curriculum. Both courses of professional study were brought to a close in 1890, when he received his degree of C.M., M.B., and the licence of the Free Church as a missionary to their Nyassa stations. This brief sketch shows what can be done by a willing mind in straitened circumstances to elevate oneself and to benefit our brother man."

MR. W. J. ARMITAGE.

A beautiful life has just come to its close, and a figure familiar to many has passed from amongst us. William James Armitage was a man whom to know was indeed to love, and the love increased the better he was known. He has for some time past been in failing health, and removed to Brighton a few weeks ago, in hopes of benefiting by the change. But it was not to be, his course was run, and on Monday, the 12th inst., he passed peacefully away. He was laid in his last resting place in Hove Cemetery on Thursday last.

A man of quiet and even retiring habits, Mr. Armitage was less known to, and appreciated by, the public, than by a somewhat large circle of Christian friends, who valued his unpretentious piety, his absolute self-forgetfulness, and the large-hearted liberality with which he supported religious and philanthropic causes in which he was interested. His use of his means was, however, so quiet and unostentatious that few even of those who knew him well were at all aware of the amount of good that he did therewith.

One of the simplest and least affected of mankind, it was simply impossible for him to assume sanctimonious mannerisms; the charm of his Christian character lay in its being at once so natural, and yet so spiritual. The world is poorer every way for such a departure, but his works will follow him, and he will not soon be forgotten by the many to whom he was "a succourer" and helper, and a kind and faithful friend. W. H. M. H. A.

MR. C. A. EWBANK.

Darkness and Light for August gives details of the last days of Mr. C. A. Ewbank, the late secretary of the Ceylon and Indian General Mission. He died on board the Ruahine, in the Bay of Biscay, on July 1. In company with Mrs. Ewbank, he had started for Australia, hoping to ward off the fatal issue of the disease—consumption—which for some years had been working in him.

PREBENDARY SADLER.

By the death of Rev. M. F. Sadler, an aged clergyman has passed away. After working for a number of years in London, Mr. Sadler held charges at Bridgwater and Bedford, and in 1869 became rector of Honiton. He had previously been installed as prebendary of Wells. Mr. Sadler was more widely known as an author than a preacher. One of his most popular works was "Church Doctrine Bible Truth." He also published volumes of "Notes Critical and Practical," on the books of the New Testament.

MRS. DR. TALMAGE.

The death of Mrs. Talmage (which we noted last week) has been presaged by an illness of some months, and yet is no less a sad surprise to her wide circle of loving and admiring friends in many lands. She has been to her husband a secret strength and a most efficient helper. In Brooklyn it has been true that Mrs. Talmage was nearly as well known as her husband. Her virtues were like her graces, of the sterling sort. Her piety was deep and ardent, her convictions and experience of truth clear and very constant, her life consistent and true, her charity wide and discriminating.—N. Y. Evangelist.

REV. R. TUTIN THOMAS.

This minister of the Gospel passed away to the joy of his Lord on Friday afternoon, August 16, at five o'clock, at the house of his friend, the Rev. T. C. Udall, 69, Greenwood-road, Dalston, after an illness of many months, endured with much patience and triumphant faith. He was first Pastor of the Northern Congregational Church, Toronto, Canada, and afterwards at Buckingham Chapel, Pimlico, Trinity Church, Mile End (with the late Dr. Wm. Tyler), Chishill, Essex, and Therfield, Herts.

M. A. DE ROUGEMONT.

M. Arthur de Rougemont was well known in England and America, as well as on the Continent, as an evangelistic organiser, and the promoter of Protestant journalism in France. He has at length succumbed to a painful illness at Saint Aubin, Neuchatel, at the age of 42. While still young he gave his heart to God; he laboured in connection with the McAll Mission at Bordeaux, Nice, Paris, and Algiers. More recently he devoted his energies and a great part of his fortune to the provision of a daily French newspaper, conducted on Protestant principles. He was cheered by seeing a large measure of success attend his toils. In the warm heart of our lamented friend the cause of the young occupied a large place.

PERSONALIA.

Rev. J. A. Macdonald has been appointed provisional secretary of the Indian Sunday-school Union in the place of the late Dr. J. L. Phillips.

Rev. Nathaniel West, of Syracuse, N.Y. (says The Morning Star, of Boston, U.S.), is more than seventy years old, but the vigour of his preaching is that of a young man.

Professor Fairbairn, of Mansfield College, Oxford, is drawing large audiences at Chicago, where he is delivering a course of University lectures. These are spoken of as marvels of learning, as well as of clear, strong statement.

Rev. J. F. T. Hallowes, of Birmingham, has accepted the post of Principal of Hulme Cliff College, Derbyshire. In conjunction with the sister institution, Harley House, Bow, nearly eight hundred missionaries have been trained and sent forth to many lands. Mr. Hallowes will be glad to conduct Sunday services as in the past. His address on and after October 1, will be Cliff House, Curbar, via Sheffield.

Bishop Potter, the head of the Protestant Episcopalians in New York, has chosen a novel mode of taking his summer holiday. He has gone down into the worst slums of New York City, and is living there for some weeks, working among the people. Dr. Potter has become quite popular with the cosmopolitan slum children. They crowd round him whenever he appears in their courts or alleys, and follow him about everywhere.

Rev. H. E. Fox, vicar of St. Nicholas, Durham, has been appointed honorary secretary of the Church Missionary Society, in succession to the Rev. F. E. Wigram, who lately resigned. The office is one which demands great devotion, thorough practical ability, and unceasing labour, while it has been the custom that it should be held by a man of ample means. In Mr. Fox, it is believed, a worthy successor has been found to the men under whose able guidance the C.M.S. has attained its position of usefulness and power, and one who will maintain the best traditions of the Society.

Mr. Gaebelein, of the Hope of Israel Mission to the Jews, New York, is at present in Europe. He proceeds to St. Petersburg, where he expects to receive a licence to hold public services with the Hebrews in Russia. He expects to preach in Protestant churches, halls, and other places. From St. Peterburg he will proceed to Smolensk, Moscow, Nishny-Novgorod, Kiew, Odessa, and Kishineff. In the last-named place he will stop with Mr. Rabinowitz. From Kishineff a visit to the Crimean Peninsula will be made, mainly to become acquainted with the Karaitic Jews, a sect which rejects the Talmud and believes only in the Old Testament. In all places Mr. Gaebelein will visit Rabbis and try to reach, with the preaching of the Word, as many as possible.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Mr. J. G. Stanger has held tent missions in two Surrey villages, Bramley and Merrow, with much blessing on the Gospel message.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wiggan are conducting tent services in Harvist-road, near to the gate of Queen's Park, W. The Lord is owning the services, and many are being blessed.

Mr. Herbert Hurditch has closed a month's mission at the Fermoy Soldiers' Home. It was a time of real blessing. A report of the Home during the past year will be forwarded to any one interested in the work among soldiers on application to Miss A. P. Williamson, Soldiers' Home, Fermoy.

Bible Carriage Work.—Mr. Northcote Willy's mission services in connection with the Bible carriage are being conducted daily on Cleethorpes sands, near Grimsby. The meetings are largely attended, and hundreds of children are provided with Bibles, Testaments, and other Gospel books. Much practical interest is shown in the services.

A Six Weeks' Mission was recently conducted at Fort Scott, Kansas, by Major Cole under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. The total number of accessions to the local churches during the mission was over 800. Eleven pastors of the place signed a series of resolutions endorsing Major Cole's methods, and expressing their appreciation of his self-sacrificing labours during his stay in Fort Scott. All the pastors also speak in high praise of the work in reviving the membership of the churches.

Mr. Henry Varley has been preaching in many churches on the Pacific coast, and has seen some fruit for the Lord. He has given much fundamental teaching, and has sought to arouse the slumbering believers. During the past four months he has held fourteen preaching services and Bible readings weekly. Thousands have been aroused. He is now resting in the mountain scenes of Cazadéro, about eighty miles from San Francisco. He writes very enthusiastically of the natural beauties of the place, especially of the great forest trees.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

"Visitors not taking wine will be charged two shillings a day extra." This announcement, so common as to be all but universal in Germany, is said to be making its way into England.

Dr. Amory H. Bradford, of New Jersey, speaking recently at the Town Hall, Birmingham, declared that the lynching horrors in the States, of which we read so much, were not due to racial differences, but to the terrible devastation wrought by drink. It was the whisky that was at the root of them all.

In Paris the first French temperance society has just been founded by Dr. Legrain. It will be interesting (the Daily News correspondent says) to see whether the society achieves better success than the society against the abuse of tobacco, whose influence may be asserted to be nil. Certainly all classes in France are fast poisoning themselves, not only with spirits, but what is even worse, with essential oils such as those found in absinthe, Vermoth bitters, and the so-called digestive liqueurs.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson, M.P., has made a statement to the United Kingdom Alliance respecting the liquor question and the General Election. He refers to the general idea that hostility to Sir William Harcourt's Local Veto Bill had a leading influence in the overthrow of the late Government and its supporters. Without admitting that, he maintains in any case there is no reason why they should not fight again. After years of controversy temperance reformers had converted to their views one of the great parties in the State, and this should only be a stimulus to them to go on trying to convert the other one.

FIRES IN RUSSIAN VILLAGES.

By the destruction by fire of five villages in different parts of South Russia, upwards of thirty thousand people have been rendered homeless and penniless. Mr. Levinski, of the Mildmay Mission to the Jews, relates, in Trusting and Toiling, some particulars of these calamitous events. On July 7, the town of Zamrow was destroyed, with the exception of about ten houses, and Mr. Levinski thinks that at least 1000 Jews have lost their all, and amongst them his own relations. At present the sufferers are resident in rough sheds, and there is no news of any attempt on the part of the Government to administer relief. Even where property was saved from the fire and carried into the fields, it was robbed from them by the soldiers who should have been their protectors. Mr. Levinski hopes soon to visit the district, and will be glad to dispense relief among the sufferers. Communications may be addressed to him at the Central Hall, Philpot-street, London, E.

[229]

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Bishop Barry, formerly of Sydney, has been appointed to the rectory of St. James's, Piccadilly, London.

All Hallows, Barking, which has become vacant, has an income of £2,000 a year; the population of the parish is 416.

Rev. H. E. J. Bevan, Gresham Lecturer in Divinity, and vicar of St. Andrew's, Stoke Newington, has accepted the vicarage of Holy Trinity Church, Sloane-square, Chelsea.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The centenary of Zion Chapel, Frampton Cotterell (Rev. P. Grant), has been celebrated.

Rev. Mathias Lansdown, late of East Cliff, Bournemouth, has accepted the pastorate at Tolmer's-square, London, and will enter upon his ministry there on October 6.

Rev. Colmer B. Symes has intimated his intention to the Leytonstone Congregational Church to appoint an assistant at his own expense to help him in the duties of the pastorate.

Mr. J. H. Brown, of New College, London, has accepted an invitation to become assistant for twelve months to the Rev. W. H. Harwood, at the Union Chapel, Islington, London.

The paragraph in our last issue referring to Rev. William Mottram should have stated that Mr. Mottram has been invited to undertake the duties of deputation secretary of the Congregational Total Abstinence Association, but has delayed acceptance until arrangements have been made to fill the pastorate of the Murphy Memorial Church, and to provide for the superintendency of the Lambeth Baths Mission.

Rev. Dr. W. H. Milburn, Chaplain to the Senate of the United States, who has been for more than fifty years in the ministry, is the preacher at Harecourt Church, Canonbury, during the Sundays of August and two in September. He is called "the blind man eloquent," and is a great pulpit orator. A deacon sits with him in the pulpit, but he conducts the service throughout. He announces the numbers of the hymns, and recites from memory the lessons.

Calls.—Rev. J. Collyer, of Cuckfield, to Wycombe Market (accepted); Rev. J. W. Davies, of Mostyn, to Skelmersdale (accepted).

BAPTIST.

A new church has been opened at Glandwr, Pem.

Rev. W. R. Foster has resigned the pastorate at Earl's Colne. His ministry will terminate in October.

Rev. Ivor Harries, Blaenavon, who went to South Africa for the benefit of his health, has been invited to become the pastor of the church at King William's Town.

The English church at Colwyn Bay (Rev. H. T. Cousins) reports that the congregations are steadily increasing. During August the pulpit is being occupied by Professor J. T. Marshall, of Manchester, and Rev. Charles Stirling, late vicar of New Malden.

Call.—Rev. Carey Bonner, of Sale, Manchester, to Portland Chapel, Southampton (accepted).

METHODIST.

In the eighty islands forming the Fiji archipelago, there are to-day nine hundred Wesleyan Methodist churches.

A new Wesleyan mission church is being erected at Hermitage, near Dorchester. A new church is also being erected at Hunley-road, Gornal Wood.

The sixth convention of the German Epworth League was held recently in the First Methodist Church, in Chicago, and was attended by over 600 delegates.

At Walton, a Primitive Methodist Mission, started by Peterborough local preachers a year ago, has proved such a success that a new church is being built. The foundation-stone ceremony realised £38.

Special evangelistic work is to be commenced by the Primitive Methodists among the villages of Cumberland and Westmoreland. A grant has been made from the missionary funds for the purpose.

The Hull District Primitive Methodist Committee is inaugurating an aggressive evangelistic policy among the Yorkshire villages. A number of leading laymen have offered themselves for mission work.

Rev. Henry T. Chapman, who has been elected General Missionary Secretary of the United Methodist Free Churches, is retiring from the superintendency of the Lady Lane Mission, Leeds, which he has held for six years.

The work of the Wesleyan missions in France is being prosecuted with great vigour. At Chantilly, the Newmarket of France, a good cause has been established, but much more good could be done if an institute were erected for social and religious work, particularly among the stable boys.

The foundation-stones of a new Wesleyan school chapel have been laid at Stephen Hill, Sheffield. The Stephen Hill Mission originated about ten years ago, the meetings then being held in a small cottage. An iron chapel was erected three or four years ago. The new premises when finished will accommodate about two hundred persons.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Dr. Ross Taylor, of Glasgow, is visiting the Highlands to plead the cause of the Free Church Sustentation Fund.

Rev. C. C. Lundie, son of the late Dr. Lundie, of Liverpool, has been appointed assistant to Rev. J. J. Muir of Waterloo.

It is proposed to erect a new church at Broadway, Belfast, as a "Watts Memorial Church," in honour of the late Professor Watts. The minister of this new congregation is Dr. Watts's son-in-law.

Rev. Dr. G. C. Lorimer, of Boston, has been having crowded congregations at Dr. Pentecost's Church, Marylebone, on the last two or three Sundays. Dr. Lorimer delivered a sermon on Armenia last Sunday morning, and a collection was taken for the Armenian sufferers.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

A very able article on "Some Present-day Needs of the Society of Friends" appears in The Friends' Quarterly Examiner just out. The author, W. C. Braithwaite, B.A., Barrister-at-Law, is an accredited and able minister, and an earnest supporter of the forward movement.

On the 10th inst., George Cadbury was presented with a life-sized, enlarged photograph of himself, beautifully executed, by between 400 and 500 men and their wives of the Stirchley-street and Selly Oak Adult Schools, Birmingham. It was an exceedingly pleasant surprise, gratefully accepted, and certainly well merited. The reunion was altogether good.

The recent Wesleyan Conference at Plymouth received a deputation of Friends. Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, in replying to the Nonconformist deputation, said "that the Conference had never previously been encouraged by the representatives of the Society of Friends," and the Methodist Recorder says:—"It was very, very sweet, like myrrh, aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces, this visit of the Quakers to the Conference."

Robert Firth Crosland, of Cleckheaton, Yorks, has just paid an exceedingly acceptable visit to Limerick, in the love of the Gospel; while Thomas Chandler, of Ballytore, Ireland, has been paying equally acceptable visits to Lancashire and Cheshire, thus illustrating the oneness in Christ of the two yearly meetings, London and Dublin; and Dr. Richard H. Thomas, of Baltimore, U.S.A., and his wife, have been similarly engaged in Ayrshire, Scotland.

For years past an excellent work has been in hand at Diss and neighbourhood, in Norfolk. On the 5th inst., at a party of Sunday-school children, teachers, and their friends, Mr. Savory, rector of Palgrave, with his family, drove over to Darrow Wood and addressed the children, and was followed by W. G. Hall, of Henley. The rector, having had Quaker parents, never loses an occasion of showing his sympathy with Friends. Wm. Loveless is the Friend whose work is so successful and progressive.

("For Fallen Asleep," see page 22.)

DONATIONS

RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, AUGUST 19, 1895.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or Post Office Orders, not by stamps.

 Will donors oblige by stating explicitly and fully the titles of the institutions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Further correspondence will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders should be made payable to Messrs. Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, London, E.C., and crossed "City Bank"; this will effectually prevent loss.

	£	s.	d.
Thankoffering, Hufod.—Kindly communicate with us. Particulars required.
China Inland Mission—S. N., £10; S. E. L., £2; S. E. C., 5s.; H. W. R., 5s.	12	10	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—K. R.	0	10	0
Church Missionary Society—K. R.	0	10	0
Tibetan Pioneer Mission (Miss Taylor)—W. and A. G.	0	10	0
Society for Suppression of Opium Trade—Ps. li. 14	10	0	0
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—S. E. L., £1; E., £1.	2	0	0
South American Missionary Society—K. R.	0	5	0
Poor Jews, Jerusalem—T. O.	0	2	6
Mrs. Lewis's Homes, Paris—C.'s	1	0	0
North Africa Mission—C.'s	1	0	0
Baptist Missionary Society—"In His Grace"	1	0	0
Mr. H. Warszawiak's Work, New York (Christ's Synagogue)—K. R.	0	5	0
Armenian Sufferers' Relief Fund—E. M.	1	0	0
Pastor Chiniquy—E. M., 10s.; D. K., £2 10s.	3	0	0
Persecuted Stundists—H. M. D., £7; E. E. B., £1; D. K., £2 10s.	10	10	0
Sharland Memorial, Japan—C.'s	1	0	0
London Missionary Society—I. S. J.	0	5	0
Mission to Lepers of India and the East—R. B.	0	10	0
Mrs. Howells' Orphanage, Texas—C.'s	0	10	0
Jewish Mission, Ghetto, Rome—C.'s	0	10	0
Miss Leitch's School, Tillypally, Ceylon (Educating Native Boy)—Rosie	2	0	0
Société d'Evangélisation Nationale (Pastor Bonhomme's Stipend)—W. W. H.	4	0	0
Open-Air Mission—G. F. E., £5; M. S., £2 2s.	7	2	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission—S. E. L.	2	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland—Hughie	0	10	0
Flower Girls' Mission—Hughie	0	7	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—A Friend, 5s.; A Wesleyan, 5s.; H. M. D., £7; M. J. S., 2s. 6d.; A. B., 10s.; Sympathy, 3s.; Elitta, 5s.	8	10	6
George Yard Mission (Day in Country)—M. A. S.	0	2	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—C. L. M. T.	1	0	0
Friedenheim Home for Dying—Mrs. G. P.	1	0	0
National Society for Prevention Cruelty to Children—Mrs. G. P.	0	10	0
London City Mission—Dora, 5s.; A. B., 10s.; I. S. J., 5s.	1	0	0
St. Giles Christian Mission—S. M. and L., 5s.; A. Z., 10s.; E., £1	1	15	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society (Sustenation Fund)—E., £1; (Asylums)—E., £1	2	0	0
Christian Blind Relief Society—S. M. and L.	0	5	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—S. M. and L.	0	5	0
Christian Community—S. M. and L.	0	2	6
Deptford Poor Boys (Mr. Punnett)—S. M. and L.	0	2	6
Field Lane Refuges and Ragged Schools—E.	1	0	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—K. R.	0	10	0
Jewish Work, London City Mission (Children's Holidays)—S. M. and L.	0	2	6
N.E. London Gospel Mission—M. S.	2	0	0
Hop-pickers' Mission (Rev. J. Burnham)—M. S.	1	1	0
Protestant Reformation Society—A Wesleyan, 5s.; Bisley, 15s.	1	0	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—"In His Grace," £1; C.'s, £1; K. R., 5s.	2	5	0
Liberator Sufferers' Relief Fund—E. M.	1	0	0
Day in Country Fund—M. J. S., 2s. 6d.; I. S. J., 5s.; C.'s, £1; Elitta, 5s.	1	12	6
Friendless and Fallen—A. B., 10s.; E. and E. M. P., £1 10s.; Elitta, 5s.	2	5	0
Poor Sick Children's Country Holidays—N. W. M. S., £2; H. W. R., 5s.; M. A. S., 2s.	2	7	0
Dock Labourers' Mission—S. W.	0	5	0
Hospital Sunday Fund—I. S. J.	0	5	0
Miss Macpherson's Home of Industry—K. R., 5s.; (Widows)—R. B., 10s.	0	15	0
Rev. J. W. Atkinson's Work (Country Holidays)—A. B.	0	2	0
Miss Mason's Houses of Rest—C.'s	1	0	0
Mrs. Hilton's Creche—A. B.	0	5	0
Homes for Aged Blind, Crouch Hill—C.'s	1	0	0
Shaftesbury Institute (Miss M. Brown)—C.'s	1	0	0
Clifden Orphanage, Connemara—C.'s	0	10	0
Irish Church Missions—H. W. R.	0	5	0
Railway Mission—H. W. R.	0	5	0
Birds' Nest Mission, Dublin—Elitta	0	5	0
Total	£100	9	0

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

St. Giles' Christian Mission.—M. E. J. 15s.

Mr. Oppenheim, City Mission to Jews, 119, Leman-street, E., acknowledges with thanks parcels from Ramsgate, Lewisham, Brighton; 18 stamps from Deal.

NATIONAL PROVIDENT INSTITUTION.

For Mutual Life Assurance.

Invested Funds, £4,700,000. Paid in Claims, £9,000,000. Estd. 1835.

All the Profits are Divided amongst the Assured; already divided, £4,600,000.

DEATH DUTIES provided for by LIFE ASSURANCE.

48, Gracechurch Street, London, E.C.

ARTHUR SMITHER, Actuary & Secretary

APPLICATIONS FOR AGENCIES INVITED.

PROTESTANT REFORMATION SOCIETY.

The Committee URGENTLY APPEAL FOR FUNDS, required at once, in order to prevent the necessity for discharging several of the Society's Missionaries, who are carrying on an excellent work throughout the country. The work of this Society (now in its 68th year) was never more needed than at the present time.

WILL YOU HELP?

Donations will be thankfully acknowledged by the Secretary, Capt. A. P. Williams, R.N., 20, Berners-street, W.; or the Editor of The Christian.

ST. GILES' CHRISTIAN MISSION.

Fresh Air, Wholesome Food, and Home Comforts

FOR

SICKLY, DESTITUTE, & ORPHAN CHILDREN

Their need is great, and strongly pleads for help.

WILL YOU GIVE IT?

And enable us to benefit a large number by

A Fortnight's Stay in our Holiday Homes,

and to

PROVIDE A PERMANENT HOME

for those

Destitute and Orphan Children needing our aid.

Contributions will be gratefully received by

F. A. BEVAN, Esq., Treasurer,

54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or

WILLIAM WHEATLEY, Superintendent,

4, Ampton-street, Regent-square, W.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

FUNDS NEEDED to extend the work. Irish-speaking Scripture Readers are sent where required, and the work is carried on in a spirit of love and not of controversy. Reports to be had from the Secretary, Capt. J. Kearney White. Offices: 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and No. 9, Paternoster-row, London, where Donations may be sent; or to the Office of The Christian. John xiii. 35.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY

FRESH AIR FOR SLUM CHILDREN.

HELP is urgently solicited to enable us to send into the country for a week's stay, a large number of children gathered rom the SLUMS and LODGING-HOUSE districts who would not otherwise get a change of this kind.

Contributions will be gratefully received by the Secretary, JAMES ATKINSON, Memorial Hall, London-street, Bethnal Green, E.

TO LET, APARTMENTS, ETC.

(Continued from page 3.)

MISS HAYWARD (daughter of late Rev. T. Hayward) offers board and residence. Pleasantly situated house near sea and cliffs. Terms from 21s. per week.—1, St. Vincent's-road, Southend, Essex. c5249

MISS THORNTON RECOMMENDS comfortable, quiet lodgings in country village near Hertford. Bracing air, lovely surroundings. Two bedrooms and sitting-room. Moderate terms.—Apply, Mrs. Ivory, Hertford Heath. c6870

NICE QUIET HOME.—Suitable for elderly lady or gentleman. Permanently or otherwise. With good cooking and attendance. Terms moderate. Ten minutes' walk from station.—Mrs. PERRIN, 8, Highfield Cottages, Chapel Park, Addlestone. c6794

PRIVATE NURSING HOME for aged or chronic invalids; also acute cases. Conducted on the home principle. Matron. Nurse. Doctors in attendance. Every comfort. Terms moderate; reduction for a permanency.—Apply, MATRON, 105, Tufnell Park-road, N. c6756

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—Healthy home for one or two children only in Christian family. —c6778, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6778

TO LET, BRANWOODS, a substantial residence, built of red brick and stone, on a subsoil of gravel, in the picturesque village of Great Baddow, near Chelmsford. Excellent train service to London in forty-five minutes. The house is approached by carriage drive, and contains good entrance hall, dining-room and library, 20ft. by 19ft. each; drawing-room, 34ft. by 20ft.; ten bedrooms and a dressing-room of good dimensions; w.c. on ground and first floor with water laid on; good cellarage, perfectly dry; excellent stables, consisting of two loose boxes and three stalls; a double coach-house with loft. Good-sized pleasure and kitchen gardens, tennis ground, and several glass-houses, and a small pasture and cowshed. Close to the church. Evangelical Ministry. Rent £120 per annum.—Apply to Mr. CRABB, Baddow-place, Chelmsford, for further particulars. c6789

TO LET, FURNISHED HOUSE, consisting of dining and drawing rooms, kitchen and four bedrooms. A healthy and pleasant neighbourhood.—Apply for terms to Mrs. C. INWOOD, Woburn Sands, Bucks. c6759a

MISCELLANEOUS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space. Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—Address EVANGELINE, 25, Rozel-road, Clapham, S.W. John iii, 36.

WILL MISS BEATRICE HILL, of Clifton, kindly send her address to Angel Down, Wantage, Berks, as it is mislaid? c6784

ADOPTION.—Two middle-class working ladies wish to know of a healthy orphan boy, without friends, under five years of age, to bring up and adopt. Would receive Christian, moral, and useful training.—Address, first, to c6783, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C. c6783

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN, experienced hairdresser (lately missionary), desires hairdresser's business, or opening for same (informant rewarded), or a Post Office business, or manager for widow.—Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, London. c6608

SPECIAL OPPORTUNITY for wintering in Egypt on Nile in a comfortable Dahabieh at very moderate charge for any needing rest, quietude, or thorough change, visiting places of interest. Leaving Cairo, November. Party conducted by one of considerable experience in Egypt, and brother of late Bishop Hannington. Two months, £50. Three months, £65.—Further particulars, JOSEPH HANNINGTON, Messrs. Beal, East-street, Brighton. c6499

IRON MISSION ROOMS, Churches, Chapels, Schools, etc.—Designs and all necessary information (free) from R. C. HARRIS, Iron Building Manufacturer, 7, Idol-lane, London, E.C. Thirty years' extensive practical experience. c3231

AMERICAN ORGANS from ..	£5 5 0
HARMONIUMS from	3 17 0
PORTABLES from	3 15 0

All makers at reduced prices. Every instrument warranted five years. The late Mr. Gawin Kirkham wrote: "I can speak from a long experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21 High-street, Kingsland, London. c6679

ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL.

Preserves, Beautifies, Strengthens the Hair. Prevents Baldness, Eradicates Scurf. All Scientists assert that Oil is absolutely necessary to Nourish and Preserve the Hair, and ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL is the best. Also in a Golden Colour for Fair-haired Ladies and Children. Ask Chemists for ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL of 20, Hatton Garden, London

24 PORTRAITS, stamp size, for 1s. 6d.; 100 for 3s. 3d. Twelve carte portraits, 2s. 6d.; six for 1s. 6d. Twelve cabinet portraits, 5s. 6d.; six for 3s.; three for 2s. Enlargements: 8in., 3s.; 12in., 7s. 6d.; 18in., 12s. 6d. Send carte or cabinet and P.O., and you will receive highly-finished copies with original.—FRANCIS AND Co., 29, Ludgate Hill, London. Established 1866. c4162

GIVEN AWAY!
RE-VULCANISED Gold Medal RUBBER STAMPS. Your Name, Monogram, bottle of Endorsing Ink, two Pads, Box, and Brush, 9d, post free; with Marking Ink, 1s. 3d. Nickel Silver Pen and Pencil Case with Name Stamp, 6d. Nickel Silver Name and Address Stamp, 9d.; Watch Case, beautifully chased, with ditto, 1s., and every other description of Rubber Stamp, Endorsing, and Indelible Inks, Stencils, Hand-printing Appliance, etc., at half the usual price. Send for List. 100 Illustrations. Agents wanted.—Address to Crystal Palace (John Bond's Daughter's) Gold Medal Marking Ink Works, 75, Southgate-road, London, N.

TO THE DEAF.—A gentleman who cured himself of deafness and noises in the head after fourteen years' suffering will gladly send full particulars of the remedy post free.—Address, H. CLIFTON, Norfolk House, Norfolk-street, Strand, London, W.C. c5267

CATERERS, INSTITUTIONS SCHOOLS, ETC.—20lb. canisters TIEKNEETED (large granular) nearly twice as strong as ordinary tea, and equal in flavour to "2s. 4d." Wholesale, £1 6s. 8d. per canister, cash on delivery (free) London suburbs. Country, cash with order, half carriage paid.—YE SELECT CEYLON TEA AGENCY, 89, Lime-street, London. c5381

OSTRICH FEATHER BOAS, PLUMES, FANS, cleaned, dyed, recurled, mounted.
SEALSKIN JACKETS and furs remodelled to newest designs.
NICHOLAS'S MOTH-KILLER, 1s. 3d. per tin.—G. A. NICHOLAS, Furrier, 177, Regent-street, London, W. c5389

INDIAN SHAWLS.—Lady received box softest, warmest, real Rampore Chuddahs, washable, 3 yards by 1¼. Indispensable driving, evening, invalids. About half price, 22s. 9d. Approval free.—DOUGLAS, 6, Shandwick-place, Edinburgh. c6715

Umbrellas Re-covered from 2s. each.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RE-COVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies', 2s.; gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to Rev. G. H. Cambern, Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List Free.

IDEAL PURE WOOL SUMMER CLOTHING.—5 per cent. Discount until September 1st, 1895.—The celebrated CASTLE DONINGTON quality. Highly recommended by the Medical Profession. Thoroughly hygienic, exquisitely soft and light. This unique speciality is admirably adapted to Consumptive, Rheumatic, and delicate people. Every description of garment; natural, cream, and pink, in Purest Wools of English manufacture, at reasonable prices. Catalogue and Patterns post free. Carriage paid on all orders throughout the United Kingdom, half on foreign and Colonial parcels.—HYGIENIC HOSIERY MILLS, Castle Donington, via Derby.

PATCHWORK.—50 large lovely silks, satins, brocades, 1s. 9d.; 50 beautiful plushes, velvets, 1s. 9d.; 500 crazy brocades, 1s. 5d.; splendid print parcel, for quilts, 1s. 4d. Post free.—J. DEAN, New Brompton, Kent. c6353

The New Patent
SOUND DISCS
Completely overcome DEAFNESS and HEAD NOISES, no matter of how long standing. Are the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes. Invisible. Comfortable. Worn months without removal. Explanatory Pamphlet Free.
THE H. P. WALES CO.,
62 and 63, New Bond St., London, W

DELICIOUS BREAKFAST DAINTIES.—My celebrated "Real Loch Fyne" Kippered Herrings are now in prime condition. Post free for 2s., 3s., 4s., 5s., weighing 4lb., 6lb., 8lb., 10lb.—A. HARVIE, Watergate, Rothesay, N.B. c5142

A PERFECT FOOD! High-class Irish butter, made on the centrifugal system, posted direct, with or without salt. Reaches the consumer in its prime. Prices: 1½ lb. for 1s. 10d.; 2½ lb. 2s. 9d.; 5 lb. 5s. 6d.; 9 lbs. 9s. 4d., postage paid. Weekly supplies.—ARTHUR JACOB, Lismore Mills Creamery, Lismore, co. Waterford, Ireland. c6854

EGG PLUMS.—30lb. 3s. 6d.; 60lb. 6s., carefully packed in lidded hampers. Jam equal in flavour to apricot. List of plums on application.—Orders, enclosing P.O.O. or cheque and full address, to H. B. POLLARD, Evesham. Kindly mention this paper. c6547

OLD ARTIFICIAL TEETH BOUGHT, Call, or if sent by post, full value by return. No post-cards used, and all communications under cover, —Mr. JOHN LEE, London Dental Institute, 57, Edgware-road, London. Note.—57, to prevent mistakes. No other address. c6545

A LADY WILL HAVE much pleasure (out of gratitude) in recommending her dentist. She can speak well of his abilities and kind treatment, having been previously under the care of three dentists, all of whom made a failure of her teeth. Card sent with pleasure.—Address, T., 3, Radnor-place, Hyde Park, London, W. c6813

HAIR FALLING OFF.—A lady, whose daughter was cured in a fortnight, will send particulars to anyone sending stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. C. FOSTER, Trafalgar-road, South Wimbledon, London. c6849

PUBLICATIONS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space. Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, Manchester, for New List. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. per 100; foreign, 1s. per 100. Missionaries constantly want cards. Gifts of money would greatly help to supply his need. c5380

ASSORTED GOSPEL BOOKLETS, including "A Saviour for You," "Thy Day," etc. Millions sold. Fifteen for 1s., post free; larger quantities at greatly reduced prices. Catalogues free. —S. M. HAUGHTON, 5, Hazelwood-road, Northampton. c5276

HARVEST THANKSGIVING SERVICES Hymn Sheets. New hymns, tastefully printed. Specimens free.—PENMAN AND Co., 33, Furnival-street, London, E.C. c5430

ARTISTIC FRENCH WALL TEXTS, landscape, etc., suitable for framing. Set of eight, post free. 1s., comprising Isaiah lv. 6, liii. 6, and 1 Tim. ii. 3.—EVANGELICAL TRACT SOCIETY, 26, Paternoster-row. c5428

TRACTS

At 4d. per 100 (POST FREE, 5d.) or 2s. 6d. per 1000 (POST FREE, 3s.)

WORDS FOR WAYFARERS.
16 varieties. 8vo size, on tinted paper. By D. L. MOODY, Sir ARTHUR BLACKWOOD, REGINALD RADCLIFFE, and others. Suitable for presentation to the careless and unawakened.

THE SCRIPTURE SAITH.
16 varieties. 8vo size, on tinted paper. Giving the words of Scripture with illustrative incidents.

BUNYAN LEAFLETS.
16 varieties. 8vo size, on tinted paper. A series of stirring appeals selected from the works of JOHN BUNYAN.

PLAIN QUESTIONS.
16 varieties. Attractively printed in colour, on tinted paper. A series of pointed appeals in the very words of Scripture.

100 of any one of the above sent post free for 5d.
1000 „ „ „ „ „ „ „ 3s.
OR
1000 of the above 4 series assorted, 64 varieties in all, sent post free for 3s.

A List of Tracts supplied at greatly reduced prices, with specimens, sent post free.

LONDON: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

A NEW HYMN SHEET FOR SEASIDE SERVICES
Fishermen's, and Sailors' Meetings, etc.
PUBLISHED BY MORGAN AND SCOTT.

Well printed in clear readable type, on good paper.
Two pages each, 9d. per 100; 6s. 6d. per 1000. Post Free.

The first line of the Music (air) is printed at the head of each Hymn.

CONTENTS.

Throw out the Life-line across the dark wave.
Eternal Father! strong to save.
Star of Peace!—to wanderers weary;
"Master, the tempest is raging!"
We are out on the ocean sailing.
Light in the darkness, sailor, day is at hand!
Fierce and wild the storm is raging.
Brightly beams our Father's mercy from His lighthouse evermore.
Tossed upon life's raging billow.

LONDON: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES.
FOR GRATUITOUS DISTRIBUTION.

The Pilgrim's Progress.
MORGAN AND SCOTT'S ILLUSTRATED EDITION.

96 pages. Imperial 8vo size.

In Tinted Covers, PUBLISHED AT 6D. OFFERED FOR 3/- PER DOZEN NET. CARRIAGE PAID.

In Leatherette Binding, with Handsomely Gilt Side, PUBLISHED AT 1/6 OFFERED FOR 7/6 PER DOZEN NET. CARRIAGE PAID.

Not less than One Dozen of either Style supplied at these rates.

100 Copies for 20/- net, Carriage Extra.	Sample Copy, 3d. If sent by post, 4½d.	40 Copies for 20/- net, Carriage Extra.	Sample Copy, 9d. If sent by post, 11½d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-bdgs., E.C. May be ordered of any Bookseller.

TRACTS for CHILDREN.

BY EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE.

LITTLE TRACTS for LITTLE READERS.
A Series of Interesting Narratives.

16 Varieties. 4pp. each, Tastefully printed on Tinted Paper. Each with an Illustration.
Packets of 100 assorted, 6d. post free.
„ 1000 „ 3/6, postage 7½d. extra.

LAMPS for LITTLE FEET.
A Series of Brightly-written Narratives.

16 Varieties. 4pp. each. Tastefully printed on Tinted Paper. Each with an Illustration.
Packets of 100 assorted, 6d. post free.
„ 1000 „ 3/6, postage 7½d. extra.

If desired, a Packet of 1000 Tracts containing 500 "LITTLE TRACTS FOR LITTLE READERS," and
500 "LAMPS FOR LITTLE FEET,"
32 Varieties in all, will be supplied for 3/6 (Postage 7½d. extra).

LONDON: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, London, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any Evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Apply, Hon. Sec., 64, Kennington-oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for temporary or permanent work in our villages and country towns. Apply to Mr. G. H. Mawer, secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, E.C.

Thorne Evangelistic Missions.—Friends desirous to arrange for mission services, to be conducted by Mr. Thorne, should make early application to the secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, to whom subscriptions for the Mission may be forwarded.

The King's Own Mission, St. James's Hall, Royal-road, Kennington, S.E.—Sun., Mr. O. L. Heatley, 7 p.m.; 3.15 p.m., P.S.A., Mr. O. L. Heatley.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions.—Address, Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

Clapton Hall, Upper Clapton, N.E.—Mr. A. Milne Kyd, Sundays at 6.30, and Thursdays at 7.30, during August.

Exeter Hall.—Mr. Henry Thorne, every Sunday in August, at 3.45 and 7 p.m.

West London Mission.—St. James's Hall, W., Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Rev. Egerton R. Young.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sunday next, 11 and 7, Mr. Henry Collins; 3 p.m., P.S.A.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Sunday, August 25, 11 and 7, Lieutenant Mandeville.

Polytechnic, 309, Regent-street.—Mr. Charles Inglis, on Sundays during August, at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, E.—Open every night at 8; Sunday next, at 11 and 6.30, Rev. John T. Vine.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn Gate, N.W., Sunday, at 7, Mr. C. Greeno; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill, N.W., Sunday at 7, Mr. Geo. Hucklesby.

Talbot Tabernacle, Notting Hill, W.—Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Rev. G. Wearham.

Islington and Highbury Y.M.C.A., 198, Upper-street, N.—Thurs., Aug. 29, at 8.30 p.m., young men's missionary meeting, papers by members of the Association Missionary Union.

Conference Hall, Mildmay-park.—Sun., Aug. 25, 3.30, Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7, Mr. Geo. A. Crowe.

Metropolitan Tabernacle.—Sunday, Aug. 25, morning, Rev. J. A. Spurgeon, D.D.; evening, Rev. W. J. Mayers.

Homes for Little Boys, Farningham and Swanley.—Queen's Hall, Langham-place, W., Saturday afternoon, October 26, Earl Compton presiding.

Special Religious Services in Theatres, Halls, etc.—Sunday, August 25.—Agricultural Hall, Islington, at 3.30, Mr. Wm. Carley; at 7, Mr. Wm. Coates; Grand Hall of Varieties, Clapham Junction, at 3.30, Mr. Cromwell; at 7, Mr. Flew; Evangelical Hall, High-street, Homerton, N.E., at 3, Rev. Simpson Johnston; 7, Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelist.

Coming Conferences.

Blaneenburg, Thuringia, Germany.—Sept. 2-6.

Perth.—Sept. 10—12, Rev. Dr. Bannerman, Perth, Hon. Sec.

Evangelical Alliance.—Annual British Conference, Belfast, Sept. 24-26.

St. George's Cross Tabernacle, Glasgow, September 28 and 29.

West Norwood (Lansdowne Hall).—Oct. 15, 16, and 17 (Second Advent).

Deepening of Spiritual Life.—Carlisle, Sept. 2-6; Glasgow, Sept. 26-28; Hastings, Sept. 30 to Oct. 4; Blackheath, Oct. 1-4; Star Hall, Manchester, Oct. 6-13; Wakefield, Oct. 8-10; Ealing, Oct. 15-18; Oxford, Oct. 28-31; Norwich, Oct. 28 to Nov. 1; Belfast, Nov. 4-8; Bradford, Nov. 5-8; Edinburgh, Nov. 11-16.

CONSUMPTION, AND ALL CHEST DISEASES.

NINETY-SIXTH INTERVIEW,

With Mr. WILLIAM WALKER, 74, Sussex-road, Southport.

CASE OF BRONCHO-PHTHISIS,

Which has not been published before.

From the ordinary practitioner's point of view, this was a hopeless case, for there was "Consumption in the family" (the mother having died from that disease); the patient had always been weakly, suffering from frequent colds, and chronic catarrh; once more, when some progress had been made, a relapse had occurred, accompanied by the bringing up of a quantity of fluid blood.

The history of the case, as gleaned from the correspondence, and from information given me by Mr. Walker himself, is this:—When the patient came to Coombe Lodge, in July, 1892 (his mother having died, as stated, in the previous year), he was very ill. There was decided mischief in the lungs:—in the right lung there was a cavity. There was much cough, yellowish expectoration streaked with blood, pain in the region of the lungs, night sweats, and increasing weakness.

For some time gratifying progress was made, until a relapse was brought on by the patient being exposed to much draught in his place of business. This overcome, Mr. Walker gradually regained his health, and to-day is stronger and better than he has ever been.

Having elicited these facts, I asked Mr. Walker if he agreed with the testimony of his father, who had said, in a letter to Mr. Congreve, dated October, 1893: "I am satisfied that to your valuable Elixir he owes his life"?

"Yes," was the reply. "I quite believe the medicine saved my life. Before I commenced Mr. Congreve's treatment I was always weakly; now I can and have walked twenty miles a day without any ill results. A local doctor, who examined me not very long ago, said my lungs were now perfectly sound. Of course, sometimes I get a cold, and then I always take the Elixir, which I keep in the house."

Before publishing this case I had the full permission of both Mr. Walker and his father—the latter of whom is a well-known tradesman in Manchester.

MR. G. T. CONGREVE'S work on CONSUMPTION, &c., in which are detailed THE CAUSES, SYMPTOMS, PROGRESS, AND SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT OF THIS SCOURGE OF ENGLAND.—WITH NEARLY FOUR HUNDRED CASES OF CURE. ALSO ON COUGH, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c., &c. The Book will be sent, post free, for ONE SHILLING by the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.

[ADVERTISEMENT.]

CORPULENCY.

INCREASING POPULARITY OF

AN EFFECTUAL CURE.

Many of our readers are doubtless familiar with the nature of the extraordinary revolution in the cure of obesity which, within recent years, has been wrought by the original researches of that now eminent expert, Mr. F. Cecil Russell, of Woburn House, Store-street, Bedford-square, London, W.C. It is evident that the certainty, the rapidity, and the agreeable surroundings of his curative process have been recognised, in a very large degree, among ladies and gentlemen belonging to the highest social circles. Keen observers who have an opportunity of judging inform us, through the pages of Society papers and otherwise, that, owing to the general employment of Mr. Russell's treatment, extreme obesity is becoming as much a thing of the past at fashionable gatherings as intoxication; and, no doubt, it will soon be regarded as nearly as disgraceful. The issue of an eighteenth edition of the author's singularly convicting little text-book, "Corpulency and the Cure," however, serves to remind us that the popularity of the system has now reached spheres far remote from those of West-End fashion. The book of 256 pages may be had, post free, by sending six penny stamps to Mr. Russell's offices, as above; and it is worth the careful attention of those who wish to free themselves of a burden of fat—not merely because it is unseemly and adds enormously to the apparent age of the sufferer—but because extreme obesity terribly interferes with the energy necessary in these days of competition to make one's way in the world, or even to earn a very modest competency. A large proportion of the letters of Mr. Russell's grateful correspondents refer to their delight at being enabled—within a very brief period and without any irksome conditions implying semi-starvation—to attack their accustomed tasks with pleasure instead of wearied disgust, through being reduced to their normal weight. The popularity of the system is also largely due, doubtless, to the English hatred of mystery, which is utterly swept aside by Mr. Russell. He fully explains his modus operandi, and supplies the recipe for his preparation.

TOWER TEA

"A DAILY TREAT"

SOLD IN PACKETS ONLY 2/4, 2/-, 1/7, 1/4, 1/- PER POUND.

REGISTERED TRADE MARK. THE GREAT TOWER STREET TEA COMPY LIMITED. STRENGTH. LONDON.

NONE GENUINE WITHOUT THE REGd TRADE MARK AND SIGNATURE.

AGENTS Tower Tea EVERYWHERE.

THE GREAT TOWER St TEA Co LTD 5, JEWRY STREET. LONDON. EC.

Will send sample of tea and name of nearest agent on application.

LAZENBY'S HARVEY'S SAUCE

PREPARED FROM THE ORIGINAL RECIPE BEARS THE WELL KNOWN LABEL

Signed Elizabeth Lazenby

LAZENBY'S PICKLES
LAZENBY'S SOUPS
LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES
LAZENBY'S TABLE JELLIES
LAZENBY'S POTTED MEATS
LAZENBY'S BAKING POWDER

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

FOR ALL BILIOUS AND NERVOUS DISORDERS,

SUCH AS

Sick Headache, Constipation, Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver.

Prepared only by the Proprietor—

THOMAS BEECHAM, St. Helens, Lancashire.

Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers everywhere, in Boxes 9½d., 1s. 1½d., and 2s. 9d. each, with Full Directions.

THE 1s. 1½d. BOX CONTAINS 56 PILLS.

THE SALE IS NOW SIX MILLION BOXES PER ANNUM.

No. 1335.] # The Christian. [AUGUST 29, 1895.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

PORTRAIT AND SKETCH OF REV. DR. MUIRHEAD.

Notes and Comments 5
The Lord's Care—2 6
Mr. Müller's New Report 6
Notes from Amoy 6
Letters from the Other Side. Northfield—1... 7
The Prayer-Life. By Mrs. Merrill E. Gates... 7
Cush: A Benjamite. By Rev. F. B. Meyer... 8
The Evangelist—"He Took Me in My Rags" ... 9
A Notable Conversion... 9
Our Daily Homily 10
When the Long Day is Done (poem) 10
International Sunday-school Lesson 11
For the Young.—The Spanish Shoemaker 11
Stories of Red Indians (with portrait). By Rev. Egerton R. Young 12
The Martyrs (poem)... 13
Northfield Conference—2.
Home Missions... 14
Missionary Testimonies 15
The Outrages in China 16
Montorfano, Italy 16
Railways and the Lord's Day... 17
The Book World 17
The Christian Associations 18
Irish and Scottish Notes... 18
Evangelistic Notes 19
Personalia 19
Obituary 19
Wesleyan Mission in France 19
Among the Churches 20

INSTITUTIONS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS AND MISSION,
HIGH STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving a parcel of clothing from "L.H.B."

"T.M."—The Men's Bible Class for the Very Poor is held on Fridays at 8 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

Rations of food to hungry children. Infant Day-Nursery. Day and Sunday Schools. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Evening Classes for Boys and Girls. Classes, Meetings, and Institute for Young Women and Elder Girls. Various Meetings, Classes and Parlour for Young Men and Lads. Bible Classes. Evangelistic Services. Lodging House Meetings. Temperance Work and Meetings. Mothers' Meetings. Clubs for Clothing, Coals, Bibles, &c. Prayer Meetings. Country Homes for Men, Women, and Children. Training Home for Motherless Girls, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 72, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

"A Record of Work" for the Year 1894 will be sent free of cost to any friend requiring them. c6890

THE SOUTHWARK, Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto, BOYS' HOME,
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT,

To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond ABSOLUTE NEED.

Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at the Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays, from 10 till 2.

All communications should be addressed—
J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home.
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

POOR JEWS IN EAST LONDON.

The eight Jewish Missionaries of the London City Mission wish to send away for one or two weeks, many of the sick and ailing whom they visit.

Contributions will be thankfully received by F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard street, E.C., or by Mr. G. R. COLE, 3, Bridewell-place, London, E.C.

LADIES LIVING IN WEST OR NORTH LONDON can have reliable charwomen or occasional helps supplied by the Haggerston Association of Friendly Workers Amongst the Poor. Also boys and handy men for gardening, window cleaning, or distributing circulars, etc.—Apply, after Sept. 1, to Miss BUDD, Secretary, St. Mary's Institute, Haggerston, N.E. c6882

CLAPHAM MATERNITY HOSPITAL (and School of Midwifery), Jeffreys road, S.W. Under fully qualified Medical Women. Ladies trained in Midwifery for L.O.S. Also monthly nurses trained (three months). October vacancies. Good nurses recommended. Small weekly payments from patients. Donations urgently needed. c5438

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, Belgravia, S.W., trains ladies for MEDICAL MISSION WORK in Eastern lands. Vacancies for pupils. Next term October. Partially free studentships granted. Funds needed. c5361

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED FOR MRS. GINEVER'S HOMES, London and Broadstairs. Founded 1874. 172 orphan children, of whom thirty are afflicted, and, therefore, not eligible for other homes. The trustees earnestly appeal to the immediate liberality of the Christian public for the maintenance of this good unsectarian work, which has never been allowed to fall in debt before.—Contributions gratefully received by R. T. SMITH, Sec., 18, Pemberton-road, Upper Holloway, London, N.; or by T. C. USHER, Treasurer, Woodstock, Hendon.

DESPAIRING AND DESTITUTE,—Hundreds of thoroughly reclaimable young men and women might be permanently benefited by the numerous Labour Homes and Emigration Training Farms of the Church Army if funds permitted. Nearly one million meals served yearly, irrespective of creed, with labour test and Christian sympathy. Donors of 5s. and upwards supplied free with tickets for giving to beggars. £4000 pressingly required for food, clothing, and maintenance.—Remit, Rev. W. CARLILE, Hon. Chief Sec., Headquarters, 180, Edgware-road, London, W. c7003

THE PARKHALL CONVENTION for the Deepening of Spiritual Life will be held (D.V.) on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, the 18th, 19th, and 20th September. Conveyances will be provided to meet the trains at Polmont Station, N.B. Ry. c6915

PERTH CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE. THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL MEETING, Sept. 10-12. Subject: "Deliverance, past, present, and to come."—Programmes from Rev. Dr. BANNERMAN, Perth. c5397

EDUCATIONAL.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A clergyman's daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood.—Tredegar House, East Dulwich-road, S.E. 5382

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Wilton House, Tylehurst-road, Reading. Head Mistress, Miss Marion White. Assisted by well qualified resident mistresses and visiting professors. Pupils prepared, if desired, for public examination. Wilton House stands on high ground, gravel soil, outside the town. Large garden, cricket field, tennis courts. Tepid swimming bath. Next term begins Thursday, September 19. c5373

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.
1, CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.
Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P.

Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in daily attendance. Resident certificated governesses. Careful personal supervision, home comforts, and Christian training. Preparation for any examination if desired. Good garden and tennis.
Highly recommended by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. D. MacEwan, D.D. and parents of former and present pupils.

SIX GUINEAS.—Two girls can be received into a good home school to fill vacancies. Certificated governesses. English, French, music, singing, drawing, drill.—Miss WEBB, Prospect House School, Rayleigh, Essex. c5247

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

BURLTON HOUSE, READING.—High-class Ladies' School. Principal, Miss RATCLIFFE. Old established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Well-appointed home. Highest references. c5271

FRANCHE, GREAT MALVERN,—Principal, Miss GRIGG. High-class home school for girls. Special arrangements for Indian and Colonial pupils. c5206

ALLAN BANK, OWLS ROAD, BOSCOMBE.
HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
Thorough education. Success in public examinations. Care of delicate girls. House near sea among pines. Terms moderate. References to Evangelical Clergymen, and to Ministers.—Apply, Miss COCKS, Principal. c5301

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.—Principal, Miss HOLLIS. c2317

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, DUDLEY HOUSE, DORKING. Principal, Miss WATERS. High-class education, based upon Christian principles. Pupils prepared for all public examinations. Autumn term will (D.V.) commence September 17, 1895. c6667

TO PARENTS.—Girls of any age instructed in practical housewifery, superior economical cookery, intelligent catering and marketing. Laws of health and sanitation studied. Business training, book-keeping, etc. Fee from ten guineas, including twelve weeks' board and tuition as above in experienced lady's well-appointed home, S.E. References to parents of pupils.—c6725, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6725

UPPER MOUNT, SOUTHSEA.—High-class Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Autumn term, September 17th.—For Prospectus, etc., address, PRINCIPAL. c5387

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—The Misses BALCH and EDMEADES, Clevedon Lodge, Reading. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge Locals (higher, senior, junior), and Trinity College Exams. Vacancy for student-teacher (premium). c6265

LINDFIELD, MALVERN,
LADIES' SCHOOL.
Principals .. .. The Misses GRAHAM.

THOROUGH AND SUCCESSFUL TEACHING. Christian training. Pupils prepared for Local Exams. Visiting masters. References kindly permitted to parents of pupils in England and abroad. Vacancy for Gov. Pupil. Premium required. c6461

HOME SCHOOL BY THE SEASIDE.—Bracing air. Terms moderate. Successes at Senior and Junior Cambridge, College of Preceptors. Next term, September 11. Governess-student wanted.—Mrs. SKIDMORE, Withnell-road, Blackpool. c6498

STAFFORD HOUSE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, 260, Marylebone-road, London. Principal, Miss SHILLAKER. Healthy locality, near parks. Individual teaching. Special advantages for music and art subjects. Civil Service and all public examinations. Terms moderate. Highest references. Vacancy for articled pupil. c4476

THE MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fulneck, near Leeds.—A thorough, advanced, and Christian education. Boys' School, Rev. W. T. TITTERINGTON. Ladies' School, Rev. M. B. O'CONNOR. c5341

ILFRACOMBE,—WILDERFORD HALL High School for Girls. Thorough education. Preparation for exams. Comfortable home. Christian training. Special attention given to delicate girls. Principal, Miss HEALE. Paying guests received. Moderate charges. c6402

VACANCIES OCCUR in high-class school for girls. Pupils received whose parents are abroad. Christian training. Home comforts. Special attention to backward pupils. Terms 80 guineas.—PRINCIPAL, 10, Clapton Common. c6157

ROSEBERRY, Western-parade, Southsea, facing sea and common. Christian home school for gentlemen's daughters. Thorough and successful teaching, careful godly training, refined happy home. Resident English and foreign governesses. Highly recommended. Principals, the Misses ROBINSON. c5105

SEASIDE EDUCATION.—The principals of high-class, old-established school, having two vacancies, are willing to take two girls of good position on greatly reduced terms.—PRINCIPAL, Blackmore, Bookseller, 33, Great Southsea-street, Southsea. c5406

FOUR GIRLS can be received in good school near Crystal Palace for 35 guineas inclusive. Thorough education. English subjects, music, languages, etc. Motherly care.—PRINCIPAL, 200, Selhurst-road, South Norwood. c6656

EDUCATION.—LONDON.—High-class boarding-school for girls. Refined, cultured training. Excellent advantages for music, painting, languages. English subjects thoroughly taught. Modern system. Highly-qualified staff. Individual care and attention Christian home. Beautiful, healthy suburb.—For prospectus and particulars, address, c6746, Haddon' Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6746

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Lenten House, Alton, Hants. Principal, Miss Chinn, daughter of the late Rev. S. Chinn. Very successful preparations for examinations. References, Dr. Stewart, Alton; Rev. W. Houghton, Guildford; Rev. R. A. Davis, Ventnor. c5426

GIRLS' SCHOOL, SUMMERLAND College, Honiton, Devon.—Preparation for exams. 14 certificates in 1894. Home comforts and unlimited diet. Governess-pupils received. Next term begins September 17.—Principal, Mrs. ROGERS. c6889

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—Wanted, in first-class school, young lady, not under sixteen, daughter of gentleman, to work with two clever intelligent girls in their 17th year. Inclusive terms, with full advantages of good professors, £50 per annum. First-class references given and required.—c6776 Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6776

COMBER HOUSE, CAMBRIDGE. Refined home school for girls, with careful Christian influence, and every educational advantage. Moderate and inclusive fees. Governess-students received. c6862

SEASIDE HOME SCHOOL for girls. Thorough tuition, with kind Christian influence. English, French, German, music, painting. 21 guineas per annum. No extras. Governess-pupil required.—Shaftesbury House, Hunstanton. c6863

REV. D. B. HANKIN, Mildmay, kindly recommends good home school, two hours from London. Spacious detached house. Thorough education. Fees from £25.—Miss LARTER, Nene House School, Thrapstone, Northamptonshire. c5433

LADIES' SCHOOL, High-street, Petersfield. Principal, Miss HENSON. Good education, with home comforts and Christian training, on very moderate terms. Healthy situation. College preceptors' examinations. Ensuing term commences September 16. c6908

ABBOTSFORD LADIES' SCHOOL, Hampton-road, Bristol.—Education, thorough Christian training advantages offered young lady. One hour's assistance daily required. Premium 15 guineas. Pupils prepared for exams. Vacancies for boarders. c6951

MALVERN HOUSE, BLOCKLEY,
WORCESTERSHIRE.

Principals, the Misses JUDSON. Home school for girls in a lovely and bracing village on the Cotswold Hills. Resident foreign and English governesses and visiting masters. Earnest Christian training. Terms moderate and inclusive. References kindly permitted to the Rev. John Wilkinson, Mildmay Mission to the Jews, and to parents of pupils. The Autumn term begins (D.V.), September 18, 1895. c3968

OXFORD COLLEGE (YOUNG LADIES), Clacton-on-Sea, Essex, England, Principals, Misses Beard. Thirty-roomed house, facing sea. South aspect. Happy home. Finishing education. Professors. Excellent musical training. Governess-student required with premium for examinations preferred. Kindergarten. c7009

COMPANION wanted for girl (7), seaside. Terms moderate. Older girl of neglected education, paying small weekly sum, offered kind home and assistance with studies.—"M.," Bellevue, The Green, Llanstephan, Carmarthenshire. c6896

PARIS,—Establishment for young ladies, 16, Rue d'Auteuil (near the Bois de Boulogne). Principals, Mdlles. Bouré. Thorough French and German, music, drawing, painting, etc. Prospectus on application. c6621

NEUCHATEL, SWITZERLAND,—Young ladies received in superior French Evangelical finishing home school. Eminent professors. Languages, music, art. Delightful climate. English home comforts. Highest references.—Apply to Mlle. COULERU, Neuchatel, Switzerland. c6661

SWITZERLAND.—BEX-LES-BAINS, VAUD.—Miss Bauckhage receives limited number of young ladies. Conversational French, German, music, etc. Moderate terms. Highest references. Prospectus from Miss FORSYTH, 18, Lonsdale-terrace, Edinburgh. c6944

CHATEAU DE MARNAND, Switzerland. Select school for young ladies. Terms, 36 guineas per annum. Mme. Trolliet will be in London from Aug. 30 to Sept. 4.—For prospectus and information, apply to Miss LOWE, 32, Gower-street, London. c6893

KAISERSLAUTERN,
RHEINPFALZ, GERMANY.
FINISHING SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES
Special advantages for Languages, Music, Painting. Comfortable home. Large house. Moderate Terms. Vacancy for Articled Pupil.—For full particulars, apply to FRAULEIN L. JACOB. c5442

COMBE DOWN SCHOOL, BATH, for the sons of gentlemen. This school will (D.V.) be removed after the summer term to more convenient and commodious premises, newly built, in Weston-super-Mare. Address, till end of August, Combe Down, Bath; after August, to Clarence School, Weston-super-Mare.—W. FRANKLIN, Head-master. c6319

STANLEY HOUSE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.
Thorough education, with decided Christian training. The premises include workshop, chemical laboratory, covered and open playgrounds, tennis courts and cricket field. Delicate boys receive special care. Fees moderate and inclusive.—For prospectus, apply PRINCIPAL. c2602

Huntingdon House School,
TEDDINGTON, Middlesex.
Christian training. First-class masters. Thorough teaching. Moderate fees. Preparation for professional and business life, and for examinations (over 100 certificates gained). Recommended by Rev. Evan Hopkins, Kensington, and many Christian parents. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.
Principal—Mr. GEO. CUMES, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

ALRESFORD HOUSE SCHOOL, MARGATE.—High-class school for the sons of gentlemen. Boys are prepared for the various competitive examinations. Special care of Indian children. Christian home.—Apply, The PRINCIPALS. c5871

PREPARATORY SCHOOL
To the Public Schools and Royal Navy, for Gentlemen's Sons, aged 8 to 14.
The Old Hall, Wellington, Shropshire.
(Founded 1845.) Very healthily situated, 370 feet above the sea, near the Wrekin. 3¼ hours from London, by L. & N.W. or G.W.R. Beautiful grounds, playing fields, &c. Illustrated Prospectus on application to the Head Master, G. E. W. CRANAGE, M.A. (Shrewsbury School and Trinity College, Oxford); or Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5380

Make your Boys Men of Business.

A sound COMMERCIAL EDUCATION is afforded at WEST CLIFF SCHOOL, RAMSCATE.

(Founded 1864.)

Particular attention given to Book-keeping, Shorthand, Typewriting, Modern Languages, Athletics, &c.

THE HEALTHY SITUATION

of the School is unrivalled. Evangelical Teaching. Special care of delicate and backward boys. Liberal Diet. Prospectus free.—Apply to HEAD MASTER.

Highest references to Ministers, Old Scholars, and present Pupils' Parents. c4895

MANY CHRISTIAN PARENTS who at the present time are seeking a school at which to place their sons, are invited to write to the under-mentioned, who is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, where the constant aim of the principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class education.

The premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA on the south coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for outdoor recreation.

Prospectus and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several wards in Chancery have been appointed as pupils in the school. Terms moderate.—Dr. THORN (not Thorne), Paddington, London c5199

FOLKESTONE.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class school for sons of gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references.—MR. J. W. C. FEGAN, Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-st., S.E. c1574

BEXLEYHEATH, KENT.

OLD-ESTABLISHED SCHOOL for sons of gentlemen. Beautiful situation. Seven acres of land. PREPARATION FOR PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS. —Illustrated prospectus on application to Head Master, G. E. OXLEY, M.A. c5308

MR. W. ERNEST MATTHEWS, B.A. (honours), assisted by efficient masters, prepares for the Army, Navy, Universities, Public Schools, etc. Pupils under Christian influence. Excellent situation.—10, Worcester-terrace, Clifton, Gloucestershire. c5288

NEW COLLEGE,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Head Master: Rev. G. Hugh Jones, F.A.S.

High-class School for sons of Christian gentlemen. Inclusive Fees, £45 per annum; under eleven, £40.

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory school for the sons of gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily. Prospectus on application to LADY PRINCIPALS. c5334

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and education with Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, Gordon School, Kingston-on-Thames. Established eleven years. Beautiful district, near Richmond Park. References. 20 to 25 guineas yearly. c5250

ARNOLD HOUSE, HASTINGS, conducted by Rev. John Stewart, where boys from 7 to 13 receive a thorough education and careful personal attention. Established 1857. c5395

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL for boys. Thorough education. Every home comfort, with unlimited diet. Health resort. Medical reference. Careful Christian training. Terms inclusive and very moderate.—PRINCIPAL, Lucton School, Henfield, Sussex. c5418

A SMALL BOY of good natural ability might prepare as class companion for public school entrance scholarship on exceptional terms. Four scholarships gained last term. State details.—BETA, 295, Strand, W.C. c6873

PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR SONS OF GENTLEMEN.—Frobel, St. Leonards-on-Sea. Principal, Miss S. E. SPARKS. Strongly recommended to Protestant Evangelicals by Mrs. Arbuthnot and Colonel Porcelli. c6876

MORAVIAN SCHOOL, Ockbrook, near Derby. Pupils prepared for the Camb. Local and London Matric. Exams. Third term, September 19.—Apply, Rev. J. M. MALLALIEU. c5440

BRIGHTON.—20 guineas per annum.—Special offer. Seaside Boys' Boarding School. High successes last term. No failures. Highly recommended by ministers and parents.—Letters, CLARK, Chapel-street, Market Harborough. N.B.

VOCALISTS, PIANISTS, VIOLINISTS required. Free tuition and resident Scholarships granted to amateurs for concert, orchestral, or teaching engagements.—Address, SECRETARY, London Conservatoire of Music, Hyde Park. Branches: Manchester, Birmingham, Cornhill. c6949

CERTIFICATED GOVERNESS (Camb. Higher Local). Mathematics. Botany. Conversational French. German. Music. Drawing. Painting (S.K.). Dissenter. Willing to attend church. £30.—FLORENCE, Mrs. Edwin Hooper's Governesses' Home, Compton-terrace, London. c6970

GOVERNESS.—Young lady (certificated) seeks re-engagement in school or family, or as companion. Thorough English, mathematics, French, German, Latin, music, singing, drawing, calisthenics. Moderate salary.—FAITH, 19, Berkeley-square, Clifton. c6921

GOVERNESS-PUPIL.—An engagement is needed for a young lady in her 17th year, in a decided Christian school, on reciprocal or partly reciprocal terms. — c6973, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square. c6973

EARNEST CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS, dissenter preferred, required end of September. Subjects: thorough English, French (conversational), music, drawing, calisthenics, and needl work. Age under 25. Salary £20, laundress included.—Address, HOLYMAN, 8, Woodcote-road, Wallington, Surrey. c6983

WANTED IN SEPTEMBER, in a comfortable home-school, a governess to teach music, French, and German. A foreigner preferred, or a lady who has resided abroad.—Miss CULLINGHAM, London-road, Ipswich. c6952

YOUNG LADY, about 15, required in good boarding school, to assist with juniors while continuing her own education. University examinations. Professors. Christian training. S. coast. Premium.—X.Y.Z., 28, Stockwell-green, London, S.W. c6919

GOVERNESS-PUPIL required in September, in a good-class ladies' school. Excellent opportunities offered to study for matriculation, and other examinations. Premium required. Principals, The Misses DODSON, Endsleigh House, Colchester. c5548

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.

Boys received from six to eighteen years of age. Three separate departments classified according to age. Preparation undertaken for public schools or for commerce, the professions, and universities. Delicate boys or those from colonies receive special care. Autumn term commences September 21. Illustrated prospectus, references, etc., on application to the Principal, J. C. DUFF. c5399

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES

(English and Foreign), recommended GRATIS by Mrs. EDWIN HOOPER, Governesses' Institute and Home, Compton-terrace, London, N. (Established 1879). BOARD AND RESIDENCE from 13s. weekly. No fee to Governesses until placed. Schools recommended and transferred. c5241

SITUATIONS, ETC., WANTED.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each additional 9 Words.

Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

GENTLEMAN, GOOD ORGANISER, speaker, and correspondent, open whole time engagement from October. Philanthropic institution, or religious work, or in spare time would balance merchants' books.—Apply, Secretary, c.o. Advertising and Employment Agency, 83, Paternoster-row. c6881

YOUNG MAN (29) 10 years London and provincial experience in letterpress, litho, bookbinding, stationery, and bookselling, seeks permanency as manager, or charge of department. Good testimonials.—K. ROBSON, Elmhurst, Saffron Walden. c6926

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN, experienced in grocery and general (late missionary), seeks opening in above, or position of trust. Could manage small business, post-office, or do general office work. moderate salary. Highest references.—c6962, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, London. c6962

A YOUNG MAN, age 25, single, seeks employment. Willing to make himself useful in any capacity. Reference.—Address, c6971, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6971

SITUATION wanted by man (33), in any capacity. Total abstainer. Christian worker. Dissenter. Married, one child. First-class references.—c6980, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6980

GENTLEMAN giving up, recommends his coachman for a Christian family. Steady, reliable man, five years' character. Rides, drives, single or pair.—JOSEPH, 6, Doris-road, Upton Lane, Forest Gate, Essex. c6928

GARDENER, HEAD-WORKING. Thorough practical experience and good references. Age 27. Married when suited.—A. HILL, Sherborne Park Gardens, Northleach, Gloucestershire. c6936

GARDENER, HEAD-WORKING, life experience in plant, fruit, and vegetable culture, and general routine work of good establishments. Thoroughly recommended. Age 27. Christian and life abstainer.—EDWARD GUSTWOOD, Stoughton Grange, Leicester. c6924

PAGE BOY.—Aged 14 next month. Tall and active, and has had some training.—Mr. RICHARDSON, Easneye, Ware. c7004

PAGE (NOT HOUSE-BOY), 15.—Lady highly recommends nice-looking, intelligent, steady lad, member of her class, for good situation under butler. 5ft. 4in. First place.—Willowdene, King's-road, Clapham, London. c6963

WANTED, TO PLACE A BOY, over 14, in a home where he could have real firm Christian influence and discipline, his morals attended to, and be taught some useful trade or occupation.—A. JOHNSON, The Limes, West Bergholt, near Colchester. c6963

WIDOW, LIMITED MEANS, desirous of placing son (13) with Christian gentleman, under good discipline, kind influence, receiving tuition. comfortable home. Lad given to convulsions at times. Further particulars, private communication.—D., 20, Newick-road, High-road, Lower Clapton. c6914

COFFEE TAVERN.—Managers want re-engagement. Both well experienced and well recommended. Would rent or manage.—G. J., 72, Crampton-street, Newington Butts, S.E. c6912

MAN AND WIFE (superior) require management of coffee-house, refreshment bar, or sailors' home. Can be highly recommended.—c6901, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, London, E.C. c6901

MAN AND WIFE, or man alone, Christians and abstainers, engaged at present (month's notice required), seek engagement in any position of trust. Highest testimonials or references. —W. E., Holy Trinity Schools, Hartland-road, Kentish Town, N.W. c6977

THOROUGHLY DOMESTICATED, PRACTICAL LADY seeks engagement as matron or assistant in institution, Y.W.C.A., school, or housekeeper to gentleman or invalid lady. Excellent references. Small salary required.—S., St. John's Wood Institute, 40, Wellington-road, N.W. c6978

MIDDLE-AGED Christian desires situation as matron in small home, or assistant-housekeeper in large house of business or institution. Good needlewoman. Methodical. Practical. Good references.—A. D., 198, Brecknock-road, N. c6931

MATRON, having just relinquished position held most successfully for two years, seeks re-engagement. Excellent testimonials. Former experience in rescue and training homes. Salary nominal. —Clovelly, Genesta-road, Plumstead. c6902

ENGAGEMENT AS CARETAKER, HOUSEKEEPER, or position of trust required by middle-aged daughter of minister. Would help in Christian work. Can furnish rooms.—A., 4, Gate-street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London. c6904

RE-ENGAGEMENT AS COMPANION required by lady, (21). Tall. Domesticated. Needlewoman. Abstainer. Comfortable home greater consideration than high salary. Country or suburbs preferred. Highest references.—MONA, 73, Idmiston-road, Forest Gate. c6954

A CHRISTIAN LADY DESIRES re-engagement as companion to an elderly or invalid lady. Abstainer. Kind and gentle. Excellent references. —F., 88, Kelldon-road, Clapham Common, S.W. c6918

WANTED BY LADY, engagement as useful companion to one or more ladies. Hastings or near London preferred. Comfortable home considered equivalent for services.—A. G., Guildown Grange, Guildford. c6930

EARNESTLY DESIRED, SITUATION as companion or help to a lady, by a young widow. Domesticated and musical. Salary £24. Exceptional references. Disengaged early in September.—Address, Mrs. FRANK SLADE, care of W. Mead, Esq., Aston, near Wallingford, Berks. c6978

WANTED, BY A MIDDLE-AGED LADY, a situation. She is well qualified as a companion for an invalid. She is musical, and accustomed to teach and speaks French fluently. Can be highly recommended as most trustworthy and valuable in any family.—For reference and further information, apply to D., 182, Cromwell-road, South Kensington, S.W. c6992

YOUNG LADY DESIRES SITUATION in pastry-cook's, confectioner's, or any light business. Age 24.—Apply, A. M. S., 7, Rainbow-street, Camberwell. c7012

LADY WISHES TO RECOMMEND a member of her Bible class, and to hear of situation for her where she may gain experience as lady's-maid. 18 years. Understands dressmaking.—W., Normanhurst, Basingstoke. c6875

SEWING OR CHILDREN'S MAID.—Highly respectable young woman, age 19, wishes for situation in quiet Christian family. Good dressmaker. Good references given. Chester preferred. E. PARRY, 43, Chester-road, Flint. c6935

HEAD NURSE IN A GENTLEMAN'S FAMILY. Thoroughly experienced in bringing up babies by hand. Good needlewoman. Abstainer, and a Baptist. Disengaged.—H. O., 35, Military-hill, Dover. c6904

SITUATION WANTED.—Attendant on a lady, where nursing not required. Christian family desired. Good dressmaker. Church of England. Evangelical. Good references.—H. H., 27, Timbrell-street, Trowbridge, c6998

MRS. SOMERVILLE RECOMMENDS a kind, gentle young woman as attendant to an elderly lady. Could keep wardrobe in order, read aloud to, and walk out with. Congregationalist.—Glencairn, Dalkeith, Midlothian. c6927

AS USEFUL MAID or to wait on an invalid lady. Knowledge of dressmaking, good needlewoman. Age 27. Christian and abstainer. Highest references.—E. WHITING, Lamer Park, Wheathampstead, Herts. c6933

A WIDOW IN DELICATE HEALTH is anxious to hear of plain needlework or repairs, which she can do in her own home.—Mrs. WOODLEY, 113, Ferndale-road, Clapham. c6898

COOK, RESPECTABLE PERSON (36), wants situation in institution, orphanage preferred. Seven years' experience. Abstainer. Church of England. Christian. Well recommended.—Write, M. B., 60, Langley-road, Small Heath, Birmingham. c6899

SITUATIONS, ETC., VACANT.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

CLERK WANTED in seed merchant's office, accurate, thorough book-keeping. Knowledge of shorthand desirable.—State age and salary to A. C. GILBERT AND SON, Billinghay, near Lincoln. c6988

RETAIL DRAPERY TRADE.—Smart man wanted for superintendent and assistant-manager in large Scotch warehouse. Age 28 to 35. Reliable. Good references. Abstainer preferred.—N.B., Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. N.B.

AN ARCHITECT and Civil Engineer has a vacancy in his office for an articled pupil, who could reside with him. Good opportunity of learning the profession. And comfortable Christian home.—Address, A. B. THORNTON, Sandown, Isle of Wight. c6996

CHRISTIAN MAN AND WIFE wanted as resident secretary and caretaker for provincial Y.M.C.A. Small salary. Gas, fuel, and rent free.—Apply, by letter only, SECRETARY, Y.M.C.A., Bedford. c6910

RELIABLE MARRIED COUPLE required for in and outdoor service. Man must have knowledge of gardening.—Apply, by letter, with references, to Rev. GRAHAM, 7, Trafalgar-square, Chelsea, London. c6905

AN EARNEST CHRISTIAN LADY Wanted as Working Secretary in the Winchester Y.W.C.A. One with private means preferred. Bible classes and visiting.—Address, Mrs. WARNER, 20, Hyde-street, Winchester. c6953

WORKING MATRON wanted, Christian, about 40, for orphanage of about twenty inmates in Leeds District.—Address, by letter, stating full qualifications, salary required, enclosing copies of testimonials, MATRON, Robinson's Advertising Offices, Leeds. c7006

WANTED, IN MARGATE, in return for a comfortable home, an earnest Christian young lady, to take charge of little boy, two years. Needlewoman. Musical.—Address, M., 13, St. Mark's-road, Hanwell. c7000

NURSE OR NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted early in October to look after delicate boy of six and his wardrobe, make herself generally useful. Salary £30.—Apply by letter, giving references and full particulars, No. 270, KEITH AND Co., Advertising Agents, Edinburgh. c6913

USEFUL MAID for elderly invalid lady. Good nurse and needlewoman. Care of room. Not over 40. Wages £20. Healthy. Abstainer. Quiet comfortable place near London.—N. D., 143, Clapham-road, S.W. c5437

UNDERMAID, in the country, for three young ladies. Good hair brusher and dresser. Knowledge of dressmaking. State age, experience, height, and wages.—c6969, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c6969

LADY, RESIDING IN CHELTENHAM, needs a mother's help, between 20 and 30 years of age, able to take night charge of baby, three months old. —Apply by letter, stating salary desired, to WHITTARD, Eversfield, Burnt Ash Hill, S.E. c6989

LEAMINGTON SPA.—Trained medical, surgical, and maternity nurses can be supplied from the Y.W.C.A. Home, York House, Clarendon-place, on the shortest notice. Telegrams, "Nursing," Leamington Spa. Terms upon application. c5120

EDUCATED CHRISTIAN LADY wanted as nurse. Experienced with babies. Good needlewoman. Two children; two years, and three months. Cook and housemaid kept. — State age, salary, experience, Mrs. ANSON, Bowdon, Cheshire. c6987

CAN ANY LADY RECOMMEND A thoroughly trustworthy and experienced nurse for first baby? Good needlewoman. Church of England. Abstainer. Comfortable home, good wages. Age about 25.—RECTOR, Bucknall, Stoke-on-Trent. c6900

A THOROUGHLY EXPERIENCED and dependable Christian nurse wanted, age about 35. Comfortable home. Good salary. Send photo, references, and state salary required. — Particulars on application, Mrs. FURSDON, High-street, Barnstaple. c6945

NURSE WANTED for one child under two years. Must be earnest Christian, abstainer, and have good personal character. Age about twenty-five.—Apply, Broadlands, Streatham High-road, S.W. c7005

CHURCH ARMY LAUNDRY.—First-class ironer required. Excellent character indispensable. Church of England. Teetotaler.—Apply at once by letter, stating wages, to Miss HIRST, 21, Nutford-place, Edgware-road, London. c6959

LAUNDRY-MAID wanted for a small institution, wages £18, all found, age about 28. Also a good general servant as housemaid, wages, all found, £14.—187, High-street, Stoke Newington, N. c6984

COOK WANTED for country house near Hertford. Twenty miles from London. Small dairy. Abstainer. Decided Christian much valued. Five indoor servants kept.—Mrs. BARCLAY, Hertford Heath. c6986

COOK (good plain) wanted in country, three miles from Southampton. Small family, three other servants. Must be well recommended. A Christian servant valued. — Apply, Mrs. MORRIS ASHBY, Lingwood, Bassett, Southampton. c6842

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted for North country vicarage. Small family. Church of England. Abstainer. Age over 30. Must be well recommended. —Mrs. LANCASTER, St. Paul's Vicarage, Halliwell, Bolton, Lancashire. c6929

A GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted above 25, for one lady, at Brighton. Abstainer. Quiet place. Wages £18.—E. F., 28, Montpellier-crescent. c6968

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted for the country, also house-parlourmaid, one that had been under housemaid might suit. Must be very clean and early risers.—Write, stating all particulars, to M., 14, Lower Green-road, Tunbridge Wells. c6969

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted immediately, about 30 years of age. Wages about £20.—Apply by letter to Miss O. WILBRAHAM TAYLOR, Hadley Bourne, Barnet. c6960

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted, about 17, in quiet family. Good home and training to a willing girl.—Mrs. KILVINGTON, Bayfield, Oaklands-road, Bromley, Kent. c6916

WANTED, FOR TRAINING COLLEGE, Stockwell-road, S.W., upper housemaid and fifth, laundry-maid.—Apply, by letter, to the MATRON. c3920

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted for small family. Must be trustworthy, clean, quiet, and an abstainer. Good character required. — Write, stating wages, etc., to Mrs. J. P. GILLETT, Langdale, Banbury. c6956

WANTED, EARLY IN SEPTEMBER, Good house-parlour-maid, in clergyman's family, country, Cheshire. Housemaid kept. Must understand duties.—Apply, stating all particulars, to Mrs. MALLORY, 7, Granville-road, Scarborough. c7007

GENERAL SERVANT OR USEFUL HELP wanted. Steady, clean, active and willing. Christian valued. Comfortable quiet country place. Good temper and good needlework a recommendation.—B., Mrs. Skelton, Grasby, Lincoln. c6897

GENERAL SERVANT wanted for a lady's country house. Age 35 or more.—Apply, by letter, to Mrs. M., care of Mr. Smith, grocer, Perry Hill, S.E. c6938

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted, where others are kept. Christian and abstainer with good reference.—Apply, stating age, previous experience, and wages to Mrs. ANDERSON-BERRY, Ubercliffe, Clevedon, Somersetshire. c7002

CHRISTIAN YOUNG GIRL wanted as general servant where another is kept. Comfortable home.—119, High-street, Camden Town. c6941

WANTED, KIND BRIGHT GIRL to help with two little girls and housework. Good needlewoman. Not from distance.—Address, "X.," 48, Lime-street, London, E.C. c6939

LADIES WANTING SERVANTS and servants seeking situations, should apply to Miss MAULDEN (late missionary), 97, Harrow-road, Paddington Green, whose office is well known and kindly recommended by the Rev. G. F. Pentecost, D.D., and others. Stamps for reply. c6972

7s. 6d. A WEEK SALARY and upward offered to both sexes (for spare moments) everywhere. The work may be done evenings.—Apply, enclosing addressed envelope, to M. TRUSCOTT AND Co, 5, Sherwood-terrace, Chelston (105), Torquay. c5234

TO LET, APARTMENTS, ETC.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

Displayed Advertisements according to space.

Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.— A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

The Christian.

☞ To avoid delay it is requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan and Scott, and not to its individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for THE CHRISTIAN should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 1 of cover.)

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

☞ The Publishers request that all orders for THE CHRISTIAN by post, and remittances for same, be addressed to "THE CHRISTIAN" POSTAL DEPARTMENT, BOUVERIE HOUSE, SALISBURY SQUARE, LONDON, E.C.

Cheques and Post Orders to be made payable to Messrs. John Haddon and Co. at that address.

The subscription for one year, including Postage and Coloured Almanack, is as under :—

For Great Britain and Ireland ..	6s. 7d.	per annum
For India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, France, Germany, and other European Countries	8s. 10d.	„ „
For United States and Canada .. Or including Monthly Copy of HERALD OF MERCY	2¼ dols.	„ „
	2½ dols.	„ „

Subscriptions for THE HERALD OF MERCY.

4 Copies monthly	2s.	per annum
8 „ „	4s.	„ „
12 „ „	6s.	„ „
24 „ „	12s.	„ „

Post free to any address at home or abroad.

Remittances to be sent as above. Postcard should be enclosed for receipt or extra stamp to cover postage of same.

Notes and Comments.

WILL the friends who purpose contributing to our "Day in the Country Fund" kindly do so as early as possible? The fund is exhausted, and there are still a number of missions calling for help in this excellent movement.

Many will read with much thankfulness the letter from Dr. Barnardo (given on page 17), intimating that, after four months' absence through illness, he has been enabled to resume his duties. All will pray that strength may be given for his large and serious responsibilities; while many will doubtless endeavour to do their generous part in assisting him to bear these burdens.

Party differences are happily not allowed to interfere with the noblest of English traditions. A new Government feels itself bound to support the policy of its predecessor in such things as the suppression of slavery, and the discouragement of the drink traffic with native races. In a discussion in the House of Commons on the abolition of slavery in Pemba and the Zanzibar territory, it was said that the late Government pledged itself in these terms, "The thing had got to be done." This pledge was unequivocally adopted by Mr. Balfour, so that we may hope to see one more blot removed in due time.

Sir C. M. Macdonald, Consul-General and Administrator of the Niger Coast Protectorate, who has arrived in England, says that in the territory over which he has jurisdiction he has put a treaty duty on all pernicious imports, especially spirits. He does not expect to do away with the traffic all at once, as it has gained a hold, but he gives the assurance that everyone discourages it. Such measures taken abroad cannot but have a good reflex influence upon legislation at home; if alcohol is bad for a negro, so is it for an Englishman. The same kind of policy was indicated by Mr. Chamberlain as the policy to be pursued in South Africa.

According to almost all disinterested reports of the French expedition to Madagascar, the soldiers are suffering terribly from the climate, and the prospect of early success is very poor. How far missionary work is affected we cannot as yet say. Our brothers and sisters there have displayed the courage and devotion we expected of them; and we confidently believe that both they and the great bulk of the native Christians will act worthy of the Gospel in every way. France may not find it so easy to march over this feeble folk, and to crush Protestantism out, as she had expected; for already there is a complication with the United States, owing to the confiscation of a trading concession held by a United States citizen from the Madagascar Government. His government is claiming at least a million dollars for an indemnity.

The reckless and dangerous writing too often to be found in newspapers is beginning to receive the condemnation it deserves. Many can remember when the French press was under the thumb of a despot, and when its liberation was hailed as an omen for good; yet a friend of France has to admit with shame that "so far from promoting peace and goodwill with other nations, it creates misunderstanding and strife, and sows the seeds of war." The most popular papers wage an unceasing war against England, and no appeal is possible to the French people, because the Press, which monopolises all the channels of information, will allow nothing favourable to pass through them.

No student of Church history can fail to be struck with the way in which the wealth of the Bible, its adaptation to the various needs of individuals and of nations, is revealed by the varying conditions of life and thought. What a power were the Epistles of Paul when the battle of Protestantism had to be fought with Rome. Now there seems to be a deep and widespread craving for the simple but inexhaustible records of the four Gospels, the fight over their genuineness having apparently prepared the way for it. A Frenchman who recently expressed the conviction that his Protestant fellow-countrymen wanted more of Christ as He is presented in the Gospels; Christ with his parables, miracles, sayings, and sufferings, was only a representative of men in many lands. Therefore, let the churches preach Christ as of old, how that He died for our sins, and was raised again for our justification.

In the Wesleyan pastoral this year the members of the Society are warned against the influences of this age, and urged to cultivate "such habits as will compel them to exercise the spirit of private prayer." The secret of all spiritual things is here. If the Wesleyans as a body betake themselves to private prayer they will experience a revival. The right kinds of service which are now exercising their minds will become perfectly clear. Difficulties which obstruct their path will melt away. Money will flow into the funds of every good work. Power from on high will be sent upon all they do. And if the Wesleyans get these blessings they will not be alone in the enjoyment of them; the whole Church of God will be refreshed. God grant that this "pastoral" may be listened to, and acted upon for the sake of all the churches.

When The Church Quarterly makes its attack on Socialism, the Christian Social Union, and the Bishop of Durham, it surely is not happy in using such language as this, "When the pulpit of Christian reformers re-echoes the cry of the man in the streets, 'We want justice, not charity,' the contagion of Socialism has been calamitous." Has the writer forgotten the words of the prophet, "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" A good deal of charity has been corrupting and degrading, but justice is never either one or the other. The pity of it is that those who call for justice so often forget to show it. But we shall do no good by advocating charity for men rather than justice; it seems as if we wished to make and keep them beggars.

In his defence of prayer, in The Nineteenth Century, Dr. Barry takes the position, a thoroughly sound one, that moral rectitude is the essence of civilisation, and that prayer is "the normal method upon which that rectitude has been stayed up since man came to know that he had a conscience." The influence of true prayer—and only of that can we speak—upon the moral side of man has perhaps not had its due place in Christian teaching, but it cannot be too emphatically insisted upon that communion with God imparts a keen sensitiveness to conscience, makes us careful of the rights of others, fortifies us against the scorn of the world in doing right, bends our wills to the will of God, and gives to all rightness of action, the grace of humility and the warmth of brotherly love.

Mr. Frederic Harrison, the apostle of Positivism, can only say that the review of the past and the present encourages the hope that the future "may yet reserve to man a purified civilization and a renovated earth, where he shall find happiness, peace, and true humanity." What a different tone his words have from those of our Lord. "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." What a halting undecided thing Positivism is when it deals with the most interesting of all questions.

Mr. Holman Hunt has entered his protest against the realistic school of art, charging it with choosing subjects of "a kind to convince the spectator that humanity has truly descended from the brutes," and at the same time, as lacking the necessary inventiveness. He denounces the school for proclaiming a complete contempt for beauty of mind and body, and does not believe the world will keep its productions even as examples of debased art. Of French art on the whole he speaks in terms of severe condemnation; it has done great harm to the world, its later productions being not an emanation of love but of hate. This is not, as we see it, a fine art question; it is a moral question. The roots of all good art and literature are in religion, and we believe the world has yet to see what dreams of beauty can be produced in picture, and in song, and in music when the spirit of truth and love has purified the heart and conscience of the nations.

One is often astounded by some strange moral maxim delivered by a man from whom better things might be expected. Here is a policeman charged, among other things, with the offence of embezzling fines; the jury do not find him guilty. The sheriff, in summing up the case, is reported as saying that with regard to the embezzlement he "would not hold a person guilty on this charge, unless at the time he used the money he had no reasonable prospect of being able to pay it back when it was asked." Maxims like this spoken from the bench, and acted upon by magistrates, would soon give us a crop of crimes, and a generation of criminals. Fortunately we often have to rejoice over the sound moral judgment of magistrates and judges.

The Lord's Care.—2.

Another incident in the last days of the same sainted woman may speak to tried hearts, showing how real a thing it is to have to do with God alone. It shows also the secret of her calm trust.

"We will not dishonour Him by going to anyone else," were words often upon her lips; and, even when all was dark around, the pure light of the Lord's presence and sympathy made her not only peaceful, but exceedingly happy. But to the daughter's heart it was anguish to see her loved one lacking the little comforts to which, in bygone days, she had been accustomed, and one wintry morning, when the pressure of care seemed unusually great, she could not restrain the hot tears.

"My darling, do you not think the Lord loves me even better than you do?" asked the mother, with gentle rebuke in her tones. "He knows," she added; "let us go again to Him."

In pouring out their hearts afresh there came relief and comfort, but Miss —— still felt anxious to make some appeal. "Shall I write to R.?" (A sister, whose own resources were small.)

"No," was the emphatic answer; "we have told Him, and we will not dishonour Him by going to anyone else."

Passing through the hall, the daughter's eyes fell on the lines, well known—

> In his great strength arise,
> Cast all thy cares away;
> Leave fears and griefs and sighs
> To such as cannot pray.

Turning back, she repeated the stanza. The invalid smiled, exclaiming triumphantly, "Yes, we can afford it.

> "Leave fears and griefs and sighs
> To such as cannot pray.

And tears, too," she added, glancing at the telltale eyes of her child.

Just then the door opened, and the owner of the house entered, with a letter in her hand.

"Did you not see this letter on the hall table?" she asked.

So occupied had Miss —— been with the message contained in the sweet lines that she had not even seen the letter; but she now opened it, and there, in a sheet of paper, lay a banknote for £5, with the words, "My God shall supply all you need."

The happy tears flowed freely now, as they thanked the Giver of all good for this manifestation of his tender love; and the mother could only say, "Oh, I told you! It is just like the Lord." In vain they looked at the postmark, and tried to find some clue to the sender of the gift. Though many years have passed away there has never been the least clue.

"It is much sweeter not to know," Mrs.—— would say, "and to take it from Him alone." Often she would repeat, "We cannot afford to doubt his love.

> "The hours of pain have yielded good
> Which prosperous days refused."

For her, indeed, all days of pain are at an end; she has gone in to see the King, and is "satisfied."

May we, too, stimulated by her bright example, learn to trust more simply the promise and the Promiser, and find, ever anew fulfilled to our own experience, the unchanging word, "Blessed are all they that put their trust in Him" (Ps. ii. 12).

Lucy A. Bennett.

[836]

MR. MÜLLER'S NEW REPORT.

As the years pass, Mr. George Müller tells the same tale as our fathers heard of God's goodness in hearing and his constancy in answering the prayer of faith. The "Brief Narrative of Facts", relative to the Orphan Houses on Ashley Down Bristol, issued recently, contains a record for the year ending May 26 last, and constitutes the fifty-sixth report of the proceedings of the Scripture Knowledge Institution. It is now sixty-one years since the work began, and praise and prayer combine throughout the story. Mr. Müller opens:—"During the whole of the past year, though greatly advanced in years, I have been enabled, without the least difficulty, both physically and mentally, to attend to the direction of the Institution, and have never been once hindered by sickness even for a day. Mr. Wright, likewise, has been, during the whole year, through the Lord's kindness, in good health. The same may be said of by far the greater part of our helpers and assistants. The orphans, also, with very few exceptions, have been in good health, though in the midst of fevers and influenza."

In reference to spiritual prosperity, Mr. Müller joyfully states that every branch of the institution has been blessed. Since 1834 over a million and a quarter sterling has been received for the various objects of the institution; and the good that has been done by this application of the money cannot be calculated.

THOUSANDS OF ORPHANS

have been brought up in the fear of God; the Scriptures and religious books have been circulated throughout the world; and devoted workers in many spheres have been encouraged by timely help. Mr. Müller urges his readers to believing prayer, saying:—"As long as guilt remains on the conscience, while we are unforgiven, we have no confidence in God regarding prayer; we must, therefore seek first of all to be reconciled to Him, by owning before him that we are sinners, who deserve nothing but punishment, and by trusting in the Lord Jesus for salvation, who fulfilled in our room all the precepts of God, and who in our room bore the punishment due to us. When thus, through believing in Him, depending on Him for salvation, we obtain the forgiveness of our sins, we have confidence in going to God in prayer for our various necessities; and God delights to answer our prayers, for the sake of our Lord Jesus."

For the instruction of those who have not read former reports, Mr. Müller tells how, since 1830, he has had no stated income, but has obtained from God all necessities for himself and family, though these have been often great, particularly in his long missionary tours. "All these nearly sixty-five years God has invariably helped me, simply in answer to prayer. Though sometimes my faith has been greatly tried, still, at last, I have been invariably helped; and I have thus become acquainted with God in a way in which otherwise I should not have been."

The report enables us in a measure to share the joys and sorrows of the venerable evangelist, and a peculiar interest attaches to the references to

THE LATE MRS. MÜLLER.

He writes: "My loneliness, after sixty-two years and five months of a happy married life, has been great, and is great; but I continually praise God for what He gave me, for what He left me for a long time, and for what He has now taken; for it is all good for me. By constantly admiring the Lord's kindness to me in this very thing, and that he has now entirely freed my beloved departed one from all bodily and spiritual infirmities, and made her unspeakably happy in his presence, He overpowers my loneliness, and is doing more than merely supporting me. I praise God every day for what he has done, and I would not have it otherwise, for I really loved my dear departed one, and therefore rejoice in her present unspeakable happiness."

The gifts of money have come from all quarters, and from persons in all ranks of society. One gift was from two former orphans, for the support of an inmate for three months. These two former orphans, who are husband and wife, have for many years supported a third, sending their subscriptions quarterly for this purpose. They have been Christians for more than thirty years. All their children are converted; two of them are engaged in Gospel work, and one is a missionary among the heathen. Another gift is thus acknowledged: "Legacy of the late Mrs. H——, £1000. This lady I never saw; but our Heavenly Father, by his Holy Spirit, influenced her in favour of the orphan work to leave us this legacy." A Dublin donor writes: "I am a very plain ordinary business man, with no qualification to engage in active Christian work as others do, but making a few hundreds a year more than I require to spend on self and family (though I live as well as anyone in my station), and seeing that such work as yours, and mission work in general, cannot be carried on without money, I thank God for entrusting me with the means to help on such work in the world; and I am sure I have much more pleasure than those who are scraping and heaping up money to leave it to their children, which, in nine cases out of ten, proves a curse and not a blessing to them."

In some concluding words, Mr. Müller says:—"When I began the orphan work, I aimed at the salvation of the children. To make them see their lost and ruined condition by nature, through instructing them in the Word of God, and to lead them to put their trust in the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation, was my aim; and God has given us the joy of seeing thousands of them brought to believe in Him. Yet even this was not

THE PRIMARY OBJECT

I had in view, when I began to care for poor destitute children, bereaved of both parents by death; but, in carrying on this work, simply through the instrumentality of prayer and faith, without applying to any human being for help, my great desire was, that it might be seen, that now, in the nineteenth century, God is still the living God, and that now, as well as thousands of years ago, He listens to the prayers of his children, and helps those who trust in Him.

"In all the forty-two countries through which I travelled during the past twenty years of my missionary service, numberless instances came before me of the benefit which our Orphan Institution has been in this respect, not only in making men of the world to see the reality of the things of God and by converting them, but especially by leading the children of God more abundantly to give themselves to prayer, and by strengthening their faith. Far beyond what I at first expected to accomplish, the Lord has been pleased to give to me. But what I have seen, as the fruit of my labour in this way, may not be the thousandth part of what I shall see when the Lord Jesus comes again."

NOTES FROM AMOY.

On July 9 was commenced a new departure in the history of our mission. The pastor of our oldest church resigned his connection with his chief associations in Amoy, in order to devote himself to the charge of a considerable inland district named Tingchin. He is the first man we have had able and willing to take such a charge. The foreign missionaries are all the time co-operating in many ways, but it is a matter of peculiar interest that natives be found capable of being entrusted, not only with a single church, but a wide region of effort. At present this inland movement (which from the outset has been voluntary) means evangelism, school work, and healing. Several natives of the region are to be brought under regular training. Work of different kinds for women is to be started.

It may further interest you to know that the pastor has been original enough to face the question of living by faith. Awhile ago he brought this matter to Mr. Millard, and found that a very full persuasion was needed in order thus to act. Every indication of natives regarding God as a living Friend and Helper and Guide is valued.

I hardly know how to refer to the unusual impressions abroad amongst thoughtful Chinese concerning the future of their country. The sombre spirits depict nothing but woe, and advise "each for himself." Others look up in strong courage and prayer, and feel that history is being made as never before.

> All the promises do travail
> In a glorious day of grace.

In one quarter where we have had serious trouble the chief native official of the prefecture shows sympathy, and seems to wish to act justly. To God be the praise!

J. Sadler.

Amoy.

Letters from the Other Side.

NORTHFIELD.—I.

A lady who is here from London thinks rightly that no one has done justice to the natural beauties of this lovely valley, and Mr. Moody, who is up at five, and enjoys the spring of the day, imagines that the air is manufactured here, where it is enjoyed in its pristine freshness, and then distributed throughout the world.

The Keswick Convention is declared by those who have known it during its twenty-one years of existence, to have been this year more spiritually helpful and instructive than in any previous year. It has attained its majority in influence as well as in age. The meetings at Northfield have been of the same character. They who are wise and observe the Lord's arrangements, and so understand his loving kindness, will surely recognise his hand in this Convention. Every day Prebendary Webb-Peploe and Rev. Andrew Murray have occupied the morning session. Evidently led by the Spirit, Mr. Peploe has poured forth torrents and streams of expository and pungent teaching; and Mr. Murray, who dwells "in the holiest," has carried it into the hearts of the people.

These brethren are well yoked together. They have thoroughly won the American heart, as represented at Northfield. The pastors and teachers present have been profoundly moved, and a most earnest desire has been expressed for the return of these brethren next year. In the case of Mr. Murray this may be impossible, but a more important appeal than that to Prebendary Webb-Peploe can scarcely be conceived. To call back the churches of this great continent from the Laodiceanism which is increasing on both sides of the Atlantic, and to lead their pastors into the good land flowing with the milk and honey of the Word, is a privilege which it would need a direct Divine prohibition to disregard.

Yet it may be that God has, hidden in his quiver, some polished shafts from amongst the men who have been here. In the days when the Word of God was scarce, and there was no open vision because of the weakness of Eli and the wickedness of his sons, it was enough that God found one little child whose heart was opened to say, "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth." "And the Lord appeared again in Shiloh, for the Lord revealed Himself to Samuel in Shiloh by the Word of the Lord."

One of the most effective of Mr. Webb-Peploe's addresses was a charming unfolding of the sweet pastoral story of Ruth, first a forlorn and widowed stranger, then a gleaner, then the wife of her kinsman's redeemer, then the ancestress of the "Light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of his people Israel." But this was only one of many an unveiling of the hidden riches in secret places of the Word, all of which lead on to the manifestation of the death of self and the newness of resurrection life.

Although there was evidently no pre-arrangement between them, Mr. Murray, with Spirit-taught ingenuity and skill, found day by day a connecting link between the forceful words of his comrade and his own thoroughly thought-out, compact, and spiritual addresses.

There is an advantage in the continuity of teaching by the same men day after day. Just as a ten days' evangelistic mission is more effective in the hands of one preacher than of more, so also in these farther reaches of the Gospel. This remark may not apply to the great annual assembly at Keswick; but at smaller gatherings the plan might be conveniently adopted with an economy of labour and expense.

May we not enlarge our view of this testimony, and acknowledge that it is "The Gospel of the glory of the blessed God"? Before the singing of "Simply trusting every day," Mr. Murray remarked, "Yes, that is all: trusting Jesus, that is all." Trusting Jesus as the Lamb of God is the first link of a chain of experience as endless and as infinite as God. For "He died, the just for the unjust, to bring us to God," and the value of this witness is rightly declared to be—to translate standing into walk, and objective truth into subjective experience. The testimony may be summed up in the pregnant words which the Apostle Paul was inspired to write to the Romans; "The righteousness which is of faith speaketh in this wise: Say not in thy heart, Who shall ascend into heaven, to bring Christ down? or, Who shall descend into the abyss to bring up Christ from the dead? The word is nigh thee, in thy mouth and in thy heart; i.e., the word of faith which we preach—that if thou shall confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thy heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved"—to the uttermost extent of that infinite word salvation.

R. C. Morgan.

Northfield, Mass., U.S.A.

The Prayer-Life.

By Mrs. MERRILL E. GATES.

Prayer is an act. It is also a life. Everyone can utter a prayer as an act. Few indeed there are who have not at some time cried to God for help. But not all of those who pray as an act enter into prayer as a life. Very deep teaching by the Spirit of God is implied in leading the prayer-life. Actual belief that we may be the conductors of his grace to men is the result of this teaching. God has wondrous grace to bestow on needy men. He does not bestow it at random, but He gives it in answer to the prayer of faith, which is the outcome of the prayer-life. The only prayer He answers (but all such prayers) is the one in accordance with his will. The two essentials of answered prayer are faith, and the fact that the prayer lies within the will of God. His will for us is expressed in the promises, precepts, and declarations of the Bible.

"There is a secret will of God, with which we often fear that our prayers may be at variance. It is not with this will of God, but his will as revealed in his Word, that we have to do in prayer. As faith becomes strong and bold enough to claim the fulfilment of the general promise in the special case, we may have the assurance that our prayers are heard; they are according to God's will." So writes Andrew Murray in that most spiritual book, "With Christ in the School of Prayer." And he illustrates by this text, "If any man see his brother sinning a sin, not unto death, he shall ask, and God will give him life." What a magnificent general promise is this! and how many cases of intercession will it cover—cases in which we may plead with perfect assurance that, if we believe, God is pledged to answer our prayer. Have we a friend whose feet are slipping, who may have fallen into open sin? Is there among our acquaintances a young man whom the wine-cup has tempted, or some boy falling into insidious vice? Can we not bring those to God who have indeed sinned, but not unto death, as special cases included in this great and glorious promise? Shall we not ask and receive life for them?

The ways of God with souls we cannot know, but we do know that a prayer within God's will, and one which is also a true cry of belief in God's sovereign power and love, must be heard, and life must be the answer. Have we such friends and acquaintances on our prayer-list? If not, why not, with such a promise to back our prayers? No doubt God designs us to be the means of bringing life to many such.

Physical life may be summed up as a series of wants—

WANTS SUPPLIED OR WANTS DENIED.

So also is the prayer-life. In material matters we call that life fullest which has the greatest number of its wants supplied. So that prayer-life is fullest which has many wants, and finds them supplied. Are we ever held back from asking for everything we want because it seems as if the multiplicity of our wants and their minutiæ would embarrass and perplex God? Away with the childish notion, and let us cease to limit God. Each Christian who leads the prayer-life has many people whom he daily presents to God, claiming some blessing for each, which is shown to be in God's will for them, either in promise or precept, and often he must ask very minutely for one or all. Those who would be the visible or the invisible conductors of God's grace to men must carry a multiplicity of interests as well as many persons to Him in unceasing prayer.

As the prayer-life grows and becomes more abundingly vital, our prayer-list will lengthen, that is, we shall have a greater number of wants. As faith sees more clearly how easy it is for God to fulfil every one of these wants, and as we test them by the precepts and promises to know if they fall within the will, and then plead that will as the pledge of fulfilment, the prayer-life will become strengthened.

What names should find a place on our prayer-list? No doubt every praying parent has at the head of his list, written on paper, or tableted on the leaves of his heart, the names of his children. If one person more than another should have faith that God will hear prayer in behalf of others, it is the parent who prays for his child. The whole Bible sometimes seems to be but the explication of the parental and filial relations. If any prayer, anywhere, will be answered it is the parent's prayer. It seems here that faith is no such forced, hard, or far-away thing!

IT IS THE NATURAL WAY OF LIVING.

Taking then the sweetest, surest faith for granted in this case, how may we know what kind of things we can ask, and be perfectly sure we are to have them, since they are according to God's will? Must we not take our Bibles, and search out every promise to us as parents, and to the children themselves, and turn these promises and precepts in regard to them into prayer for them? We shall find a scope granted us far wider than the widest parental heart! He who foretold that John the Forerunner should turn "the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to the fathers," looks for a transcendent faith in us in regard to our own children, and He loves to fulfil his own promises.

"I will pour my Spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thy offspring." "Ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, for the promise is unto you and to your children." "The just man walketh in his integrity; his children are blessed after him." "They are mine." "They are holy." It is God's will that our children should be blessed, receive his Spirit, become holy. The all-inclusive promise of the Spirit justifies us in confidently asking and expecting every spiritual blessing for them.

And as for specific temporal blessings for them, which we may not be sure are included in his will concerning them, how gladly should we ask for such things conditionally—provided they seem best to God, and do not interfere with highest spiritual blessings for them.

Parents cannot be too sure that when they pray that their children may be born again, thoroughly devoted to God's service and made useful in the world, that it is a prayer which is entirely within the will of God. That part is fixed—the question remains how intensely as parents do we want such things for them, and how much vital faith have we that God will hear us when we ask these blessings. And how wisely and how surely will we and can we guide the children toward such things by our example before them, and the control we bring to bear on them as well as by these intense prayers of faith which we offer for them.

Every day brings before us new themes of prayer. Every day we meet someone or hear of someone who, by the fact that knowledge of them and their needs comes to us, are the fit and pressing subjects of our prayer. Now we have a life-work before us to find such promises in the Bible as will cover these cases—whether of physical affliction or need, or spiritual emergency—promises such as will give us boldness to pray for them to some purpose, that is, with the assurance that our prayer will be answered. This effort to get confidence in praying for specific cases, by founding and grounding ourselves on a specific declaration or promise of the Bible, will make our Bible a new book to us. How surely will the Spirit attract us to the right word if we are under his tuition. We shall not be looking long for definite words of promise to plead, before we are convinced that the supply of every need of the human spirit, our own or others, is most surely within the will of God. This conviction acts like mountain air on the soul—it is width and breadth and height. It is expansion in our inner nature. It is the taking in of God.

But if we have no prayer-list, if daily our prayers narrow, instead of widen, become more general, instead of more particular and detailed, the prayer-life will shrink, will be asphyxiated, will die. Let us lengthen, not shorten, our prayer-list. Let us intensify, not superficialise, our petitions. Let us get it very definitely in mind that it is our great work as Christians to discover what is within God's will in order to pray with assured faith, for our children, each husband for his wife, each wife for her husband, for our social circle, for those who come under our roof, for our servants, for our minister, for our scholars, Sunday or secular, for missionaries—for each individual who has a claim on us by reason of relations to us fixed by God—and then ask with utter confidence and rejoicing belief, and receive from Him to whom all power is given. "If ye ask anything in my name I will do it."

Cush ; a Benjamite.

1 Sam. xxvi. 1. Psa. vii.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

It is somewhat surprising to find Saul in search of David, after the first of the incidents described in the previous chapter. At Engedi there seemed so absolute and entire a reconciliation between them. Saul confessed that David was more righteous than himself, acknowledged that he had dealt well with him, asked that God would reward him, and assured him that he would undoubtedly be king. He even went so far as to make him swear that, when he had come to the throne, he would not destroy his name out of his father's house (xxiv. 21). And yet, after so short a space, he is again on the war-path.

These capricious changes may, of course, have been due to the malady from which he was suffering; but another and more satisfactory explanation has been suggested, and one which casts fresh light on the seventh Psalm. Dr. Maclaren, whose work on the Psalter has brought the whole Church into his debt, is specially emphatic in connecting the Psalm with this part of David's history, and indicates its value in helping us to understand the rapid vacillations in Saul's behaviour.

It is headed Shiggaion of David, which he sang unto the Lord. That is, it is an irregular ode, like a stream broken over a bed of rocks and stones, expressing by its uneven measure and sudden changes the emotion of its author. We have often to sing these Shiggaion metres; our songs are sometimes broken with sighs and groans, but we do well still to sing with such tunefulness as we may. Happy are they who can find themes for singing to the Lord in every sad and bitter experience!

The title proceeds, concerning the words of Cush, a Benjamite. Who was this Cush? The word means black. It may possibly refer to the colour of the skin and hair, and been given as a familiar designation to some swarthy Benjamite. Some have supposed that it was David's title for Saul, but the terms of respect in which he ever spoke of the Lord's anointed make that supposition unlikely. Others have referred it to Shimei, the Benjamite, whose furious abuse of the king, in the hour of his calamity, elicited such plaintive resignation from him, such passionate resentment from Abishai. But the style and phraseology belong so evidently to this period of David's life, that this supposition also seems untenable.

If the Psalm be carefully examined, it will be found to bear a close resemblance to the words spoken by David, when Saul and he held the brief colloquy outside the cave at Engedi, and afterwards at the hill Hachilah.

David said to Saul, "Wherefore hearkenest thou unto men's words, saying, Behold David seeketh thy hurt" (1 Sam. xxiv. 9)? And again, "If it be the Lord that hath stirred thee up against me, let him accept an offering, but if it be the children of men, cursed are they before the Lord" (xxvi. 19).

In the Psalm there is this parallel:—

"O Lord, my God, if I have done this,
If there be iniquity in my hands,
If I have rewarded evil unto him that was at peace with me,
Let the enemy pursue my soul and overtake it,
Yea, let him tread my life down to the ground."

Then again, to quote David's words, "Some bade me kill thee, but mine eye spared thee;" to which there is this parallel in the Psalm: "Yea, I delivered him that without cause was mine adversary." Once more, in the outburst of his conscious innocence, the outlawed leader cried, "Know thou and see that there is neither evil nor transgression in mine hand;" a sentiment which bathes the whole Psalm and reveals itself specially in such words as "Judge me, O Lord, according to my righteousness, and according to mine integrity, that is in me." Finally, David turned to appeal to the judgment bar of God, "The Lord, therefore, be judge and give sentence between me and thee, and see, and plead my cause, and deliver me out of thine hand," of which we get this echo in the Psalm:—

"Arise, O Lord, in thine anger,
Lift up thyself against the rage of mine adversaries,
Awake for me: Thou hast commanded judgment."

These correspondences are so many and minute that they establish, almost beyond question, the date of the Psalm as synchronous with the incidents at Engedi and Hachilah; and if so, we can infer the cause of Saul's renewed passion. On comparison of Psalm narrative it seems more than likely that Cush was one of Saul's intimate friends and constant companions, and that he was incessantly at work poisoning the king's mind with malignant and deliberate falsehoods about David. When Saul was away from this man, and under the spell of David's noble and generous nature, he laid aside his vindictiveness, and responded to the appeals of olden friendship and chivalry; but when he returned to his palace, and Cush had fresh opportunities of influencing him, he yielded to the worse side of his character, and resumed his desperate attempt to thwart the Divine purpose. Thus like a shuttlecock he was tossed to and fro between the two men. Now inclined to mercy by David, and then to vengeance by Cush.

It is quite likely that many of those who shall read these lines will be able to understand, by bitter experiences, the anguish of David's soul from this cause. You, too, have a Cush in the circle of your life, who is constantly circulating baseless and calumnious statements concerning you, poisoning the minds of those, who otherwise would be well disposed, and suggesting questions, suspicious misunderstandings of your purest and most untainted actions. Such slanderers are to be found in the salons of modern society, as in the palace of the first king of Israel, and cause as much exquisite torture to sensitive and tender natures today, as to David in the wilds of Engedi.

Let us learn how to deal with such:—I. Search your heart to see

HAVE THESE SLANDERS FOUNDATION IN FACT?

It may be that there is more truth in these hurtful words than you are inclined, at first sight, to admit. Would it not be wise to ask if it be so, before dismissing them, or treating them with disdain? Perhaps those quick, envious eyes have discerned weaknesses in your character, of which your closest friends are aware, but they have shrunk from telling you; for love is quick to notice the weak points in the beloved, though it is not always true to indicate and rebuke. The supreme love alone girds itself to the task of washing the feet of its friends. It is a good rule before you destroy the anonymous letter, or dismiss the unkind statement, which has been going the round of your society, to sit down before the judgment-seat of Christ, and in its white light ask yourself whether you can say with David:

"My shield is with God,
Who saveth the upright in heart."

II.—IF THERE IS NO BASIS FOR THEM, REJOICE.

Always remember, when men revile you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, first, that you are in the succession of the prophets and saints of every age, and may be assured that you are on the right track; and, secondly, that out of this, according to the express words of Christ, you may extract that blessedness which is richer and deeper than the world's joy, that passes like a summer brook.

How thankful we should be that God has kept us from being actually guilty of the things whereof we are accused. We might have done them, and worse. It is only by his grace that we have been withheld. That we have the witness of a good conscience, and of his Spirit in our hearts, should be a perennial source of gladness.

III.—SHELTER IN THE RIGHTEOUS JUDGMENT OF GOD.

We are his servants, and if He is satisfied with us, why should we break our hearts over what our fellow-servants say? He put us into the positions we occupy, and if He please to keep us there, all that men may say or do will be unavailing to dislodge us. It is, after all, but a small matter with us to be judged of man's judgment; yea, we judge not our own selves, but he that judgeth us is the Lord. He only can properly determine the quality of our lives, because to Him alone are the hidden things known which give the real clue to rightness or wrongness.

IV. — ABJURE MORE COMPLETELY THE CARNAL LIFE.

Why do we smart under these unkind and slanderous words, which are as baseless as uncharitable? Is it not because we set too high a value upon the favour and applause of men? Is there not a deadly fear of being despised and condemned? Does not the world still live within us, revealing the tenacity of its hold, in this mortification and shame? Is this being crucified to the world, and the world crucified to us?

If we were really nothing, and God were all in all; if the Spirit and the Lamb of God were dominant in our inner life; if we were dead to the flesh with its affections and lusts, and alive only to God, surely it would be a matter of indifference what became of our good name in the lips of foolish and sinful men. Here then there is a revelation of a deeper death to be realised; let us not flinch from it, but be willing to fall into the ground, and die to our reputation, as Jesus did, who endured the contradiction of sinners against Himself, and of whom they spoke as in league with Beelzebub, the prince of demons.

We must choose death in all those forms in which our Master knew it, that having been planted in the likeness of his death, we may be also in the likeness of his resurrection.

V.—LEAVE GOD TO VINDICATE YOUR GOOD NAME

Any unjust imputation or stigma that rests on us, is part of the evil of the world, is a manifestation of its inveterate badness; it is a grief and care to God; it is part of the burden which He is carrying ever; it is impossible for us to cope with or remove it; it is useless to retaliate or revenge. Like Jesus, we may meekly ask the false accuser to establish his untrue charges, or we may meet them with our stedfast denial, but when we have done this, and we shall find it of little avail, there is no more to do but wait patiently till God arise to avenge our wrong and vindicate our characters.

It was so that David acted, even in those twilight days. He appealed to the righteous God who trieth the hearts and reins; believed that He would gird on his armour, whetting his sword and bending his bow against those who repented not of their hatred against his saints. The Psalmist had a clear apprehension of the immutable law that the wickedness of the wicked would come to an end; that his mischief would return on his own head; that the trapper of the saints would fall into his own snare; whilst they would be established, and their character cleared. It was so that Jesus bore Himself. "When He was reviled, He reviled not again; when He suffered, He threatened not, but committed Himself to Him that judgeth righteously."

Such is the true and wisest policy. Be still; give place unto wrath; concern thyself rather with the misery of that soul from which these rough wild words proceed; think more of this than of thy wrongs; let thy heart be exercised with a great tenderness toward him; if he hunger feed him, if he thirst give him drink; try to overcome the evil of his heart by thy generous good; and leave vindication and vengeance alike to God, whose prerogative it is to plead the cause of the innocent and defenceless, whilst He will repay the wrong-doer in due time.

THE PUNJAUB.—Dr. Neve, of Kashmir, writes:—"We need more workers. There ought to be at least two or three missionaries available for the villages. Here there is a little band: two clergy, two doctors, two lady nurses, and two Zenana ladies, for a city with 120,000 inhabitants; services for the European colony, and the native Christians; schools for hundreds of upper-class lads; more houses to be visited and women wanting teaching than the ladies can go to; an extensive medical mission work, and leper asylum. Who is to attend to the 800,000 people living in the villages within our sight when we climb the Takht-i-Suleiman hill, behind the hospital? Certainly this is a country which needs more workers."

S. C. A. TENT, OCKNELL CAMP.—After a fatiguing march from Aldershot, the troops forming the second division and detached brigade arrived here on Friday evening. Through the kindness of General Bengough we were able to erect a tent within the lines for the use of the men. No sooner had the camp been fixed than the notice at the entrance to the tent, that "writing materials are provided," attracted quite a crowd of men who gladly availed themselves of the offer. As soon as it was known through the camp that we had pitched our headquarters here, members belonging to the different regiments found us out, and with their comrades packed our tent to overflowing for the evening meeting. Testimonies and short addresses by several of the men were listened to with the greatest attention. We are holding meetings every night, and, as one of the Evangelisation Society's agents is here with a large tent, we have joined hands, and shall in future use their tent for the meetings and the smaller one for reading and writing. The prayers of God's people are asked that there may be showers of blessings before the camp closes.

The Evangelist.

"HE TOOK ME IN MY RAGS!"

"I wish you would go and see McA——," said a brother to me one day, during a visit I was paying at home, "he's very ill in consumption, poor fellow, and won't live long I think."

"I will be very glad to go," was my response, "if you think he's not too ill to see a stranger."

"No," he added, "I think he would be glad to see you."

"Very well," I rejoined, "if you give me his address I will go as soon as I can."

"I can take you to-morrow if you like," was the kindly reply, "and then I can introduce you to him, though I should think you know him; he's worked at the warehouse a good many years; he's been a gay sort of fellow, and doubtless has undermined his constitution."

The next evening we started out together, my brother carrying a bottle of beef tea he had asked me to make for him. It was Sunday, and we found the poor fellow sitting up in his front parlour, looking very ill indeed. He was about thirty-seven years of age, extremely thin and very pale, and his hollow cough told unmistakably that the dire disease was rapidly doing its fatal work.

He was glad to see my brother, but did not manifest any pleasure at seeing me, and remained silent when addressed about his soul, except to assure me he knew that was all right.

We left, and I felt sorrowful, for I was sure in my own mind that all was not as right as he tried to make me believe. One course was open to me, however, and that I felt enabled to pursue, viz., to pray for him.

A variety of circumstances combined to prevent my going again to see poor McA—— during the week, but on the Saturday following my first visit, my brother called to see him, and said to me the next morning, "McA—— has been looking so anxiously for you all the week. One day he saw someone pass and repass his window several times, and he wondered if it was you and you had forgotten the number."

"No," I replied, "I am very sorry if he has been expecting me; but I have been so busy, and, thinking he did not care to see me, made no very special effort to go, but I will endeavour to do so to-morrow if I live."

Accordingly I went, and in the course of conversation found he had very little perception of the nature of sin in Jehovah's sight; but he listened attentively while I sought to explain to him man's real condition before God, viz., that he is absolutely lost and under the curse of his broken law, for He hath said, "The soul that sinneth it shall die" (Ezek. xviii. 4). "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them" (Gal. iii. 10). And "Whosoever offendeth in one point is guilty of all" (Jam. ii. 10).

I think the blessed Spirit enabled him to receive these solemn tidings as realities, and to ponder over them, and I was thankful indeed that I need not stop there, but could tell of One who "his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree," and that "By (his) one offering He hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified" (1 Pet. ii. 24; Heb. x. 14). I was glad to be able to publish the tidings, "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them," and "He is able to save them to the utmost that come unto God by Him."

At my next visit I read a few verses from Zech. iii. 1-5, speaking of Joshua's condition, described in the portion as "Clothed in filthy garments," and then the wondrous grace which stripped him of these, cleansed from his filthiness, clothed him with change of raiment, and crowned him with a fair mitre.

I reminded the poor man of the Prophet's statement, "All our righteousness are as filthy rags." (Isa. lxiv. 6.) That teaches us that not only are our evil deeds hateful to Jehovah, but that the very best we can do is of no avail in the matter of salvation. Nay, the Lord has said positively to all who are going about "to establish their own righteousness," "Their webs shall not become garments, neither shall they cover themselves with their works."

This I tried to set before the dying man, and he groaned in spirit and said "I've been a bad one." But oh, how graciously the Lord receives the penitent sinner. How wonderful his tender grace to such is described in the story of the prodigal son. The moment he came to himself sufficiently to say, "I will arise and go unto my father, and will say unto Him, Father, I have sinned," the father was more than ready to welcome him, not only to his home, but right to his heart.

O, yes. The father saw him. The father had compassion on him. The father ran to meet him. He fell upon his neck and kissed him. The son cried, "Father, I have sinned." But the yearning heart of the father could only be satisfied as it met every need of the returning prodigal. He might have reproached him for going away; he might have reminded him of his base behaviour in the far-off country; he might have pointed to his rags; but none of these things occupied his loving heart. His one object was to restore his wandering child as he cried, "Bring forth the best robe and put it on him, put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet, and bring hither the fatted calf and kill it, and let us eat and be merry" (Luke xv. 22, 23).

Just so doth Jehovah receive returning sinners. Just so did He receive poor McA——, who confessed his sin, and received free pardon from the hands of Him who says, "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper, but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy" (Prov. xxviii. 13).

I called one day to see him, and the poor man's thin face beamed with joy as he exclaimed, "He took me in my rags." I need hardly say we rejoiced together.

Has the Lord Jesus thus received thee? Hast thou come to Him? Art thou conscious of thy ragged condition, and canst thou "submit thyself to the righteousness of God," even that which the God-man wrought out for needy sinners while He tabernacled here?

> How glorious was the work He wrought,
> While dwelling on this earthly globe;
> When each good deed and each pure thought,
> Conspir'd to weave our spotless robe.

Wilt thou venture into the King's presence without a wedding garment? Beware I beseech thee of doing this, for only one sentence remains for thee under such circumstances, "Bind him hand and foot, and take him away and cast him into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth" (Matt. xxii. 13).

"He took me in my rags." He always does. He first shows a sinner he is in rags, then draws him to Himself, and then receives him graciously. He knows we could bring nothing to pay, and when we are led to take our right place as sinners He immediately assumes his sweet character of Saviour to us individually, and frankly, fully, freely forgives. Yes, He forgives all who plead his worthiness and merit and renounce everything of self. Then let no thought of thy sad condition keep thee from Jesus, but

> Just as thou art, without one trace,
> Of love, or joy, or inward grace,
> Or meetness for the heavenly place,
> O, guilty sinner, come.

K. B.

[This is one of a new and excellent series of Gospel tracts called "Who-Can-Tell Messengers." Copies can be obtained from "K. B.," Caxton House, Sandgate, Kent. Price 1s. 8d. per 100, or 10d. for 50 (post free), alike or assorted.]

DR. BARNARDO'S RECOVERY.

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me through your columns thankfully to inform those of your readers who are interested in our institutions that, after four months of illness and enforced absence, I am permitted once again to resume my place at their head and in the performance of my usual duties?

Having recovered a very large measure of health, I hope, by God's help, to be enabled to continue, as heretofore, my work for Him on behalf of the homeless waifs and strays of our streets.—Yours very heartily in Christ's service, Thos. J. Barnardo.

18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, E., August 24.

RIOTS IN SLIGO.—On the street preachers making their reappearance on Sunday they were beset by a large and violent crowd. Despite the efforts of a force of a hundred police they were assaulted with stones, rotten eggs, and filth, so that in a short time their clothes were completely spoiled. Several policemen were struck by stones, but not seriously injured. After three-quarters of an hour the missioners were escorted to their lodgings by the police. Despite the issue of a warning notice by the magistrates for the people to adopt a peaceable attitude, the hostility to the evangelists is as great as ever.

A NOTABLE CONVERSION.

In a letter to The New York Independent, Rev. J. J. Taylor, Missionary of the Southern Baptist Convention, says: A conversion of great importance has lately caused a commotion of no little dimensions here in Brazil. Last November a vicar, Dr. Honorio Benedicto Ottoni, asked leave of his bishop to make a trip to the States, ostensibly, and in part really, on account of his health. However, his more immediate object was to discover what were the real reasons for the prosperity of that country, and, if possible, learn how he might better the condition of this, his own native land. Back of all this was his own hungry and thirsty soul, longing for something that he had never found during the twenty years of official life in the Roman Catholic Church.

He embarked in Rio Janeiro, bound for New York. At Bahia he fell in company with a returning Baptist missionary, with whom he soon formed a friendship that but strengthened as they journeyed. The truly devout conduct of the missionary led the priest to the firm conviction that his own heart and life were void of that inward power that moved upon the life of his fellow-traveller.

Reaching New York they separated, the priest going to California by way of the South. As he went his wonder increased. Reaching California, he became enchanted at the view of all he saw, and was delighted at the good order he observed. The Salvation Army touched a tender place in his heart, and charmed him by their enthusiasm. He visited the bishop of his Church, but was received, after the manner that he says most bishops receive priests, very coldly. On his return he stopped over at Los Angeles to see the bishop, who treated him after the same manner as the other. By this time he was sore bruised, and ready to throw off all allegiance to a Church that showed no more respect for the precepts of the Gospel than his Church generally shows. He returned to his room at the hotel, fell on his knees, and implored the pardoning mercy of God, rose from his knees a free man, free from the galling yoke of Rome. He delivered his priest's clothes to the hotel keeper, and asked him to guard them till called for; they are there yet, so far as is known.

Hurrying on to New York he wanted to embark at once for Brazil; but for want of a steamer he had to wait some two weeks, during which time he visited many of the churches and formed the acquaintance of ex-priests Lambert and O'Connor. Returned to Bahia, he was baptized by Rev. Z. C. Taylor, of the Baptist Mission, and began at once to testify in the name of his newly-found Master. This was March 4 of the present year, and since then he has been in great demand by all denominations.

The genuineness of his conversion may be seen in the following: he leaves a permanent life position that rendered him a magnificent livelihood; he leaves the titles of count, vicar, commander, and several others; he leaves the good will of every priest and bishop of his acquaintance—all to become a simple and lowly disciple of Jesus, and to occupy the humble position of pastor of a Baptist church.

POLYTECHNIC SWISS HOLIDAYS.

During July and August services have been held on Sundays in the Chalet grounds at Seebourg, Lucerne, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, of the Polytechnic Institute. In spite of the bands, and free concerts, and pleasure grounds all in full swing, large numbers were induced to visit the Chalet for these services. This year upwards of 300 persons have been brought week by week from England to Switzerland. Of these about 105 each week have been located at the Seebourg Chalet, under the sheltering wings of Mrs. Mitchell, while the Villa Maria, the Hotel Victoria, the Engel, the Geitch, the William Tell, and the Hotel Union have also been overtaxed to find room for the English visitors.

Mr. J. Manton Smith, who during these two months has been the acknowledged "chaplain" at the Chalet, has done much to make the holiday in Lucerne a blessing to the souls of visitors. Gospel songs have been sung in a very attractive way. The addresses have been full of Gospel truth, many friends, clergymen, ministers, and evangelists having taken part in these gatherings.

The family worship each morning at Seebourg, has been a most blessed and enjoyable time.

OUR DAILY HOMILY.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 1.

"It is not in Me, God shall give."—Gen. xli. 16.

These words might have been uttered by the Lord Jesus. They are so perfectly in harmony with the tenor of his life. He loved to say that his words, and works, and plans, were not his own, but the Father's. Once, when a ruler called Him good, He reminded him that only One was good, and that all goodness was derived from God. Men knew little enough of Jesus, because He sought ever to be a reflecting mirror for his Father, and to glorify Him on the earth. But the Spirit reveals Him to those that love.

These words might have been the Apostle Paul's. He delighted to say that he worked, yet not he, but the grace of God in him; that he lived, yet not he, but Christ in him; that he knew and spake the mysteries of God, yet not he, but the Spirit of God.

Thus we should speak. Our light must so shine that men may turn from us to Him from whom we have derived it. Whenever the temptation arises to revert on ourselves, to attract men to ourselves, to lead them to think that we can meet their need, let us count ourselves dead to the suggestion, saying, "It is not in me, God shall give" (Acts iii. 12).

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2.

"The Man Spake Roughly to Us."—Gen. xlii. 30.

He Spake Roughly, But He Did not Feel So.—When he had spoken in these harsh tones, he restored their money; turned aside to weep (24); and did his best to alleviate the toils of travel. So sometimes God seems to deal harshly, and speak roughly; but there is no change in the tender love of his heart. It costs Him immeasurably more than it does us. Often when some unusual severity has been evinced, if we could but see his face, it would be full of pity, pain, and pleading on our behalf.

He Spake Roughly, to Awaken Conscience.—It had slept for twenty years. They had almost forgotten that scene at the pit's mouth, but as he repeated their tones, and words, and treatment, it all came back again, and they cried, "We are verily guilty concerning our brother." There must be repentance and confession before God can take us to his heart. We must confess the wrongs done to our Brother in heaven and our brothers on earth, and many of the roughnesses of God's Providence are intended to awaken us, and bring our sin to remembrance.

He Spake Roughly, to Test Them.—How did they feel toward each other; was there rivalry, or bitterness, or angry feeling? Beneath his biting words, Joseph would mark their behaviour! Would they disown each other, or cling to one another? There was an opportunity of their doing one or the other; and he was glad to notice how their love approved itself. So we are led over stony roads, that God may know what is in our hearts. He gives us opportunities of showing our real feeling towards our brothers, that He may test our love towards Himself.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3.

"Every Man's Money was in the Mouth of his Sack."—Gen. xliii. 21.

Joseph, who gave corn to save his own brethren and the Gentiles from starvation, is a type of Him, who gives the bread of life to Jew and Greek,—to all that hunger and come to Him for supplies. And in this return of the full money in the sack's mouth, we are reminded that salvation and satisfaction are all of grace. They are without money, and without price. Whatever we yield to Him, He returns in full weight.

We bring Him works of merit as a price of our pardon, but they are not noticed.

We bring Him emotion, tears, anguish of soul, but He will have none of them.

We bring Him our faith as a price, instead of as a hand that accepts, and He refuses it.

How many are our mistakes and misunderstandings! Yet He does not for that reason withhold his blessed gift. We get the corn as an act of his free grace, and afterwards He explains why it was that our careful dues were not accepted.

There is bread enough in God to supply every mouth of desire and hunger in your soul. You may have it for the seeking. The law is ask—and have. You may have no money with which to purchase, no earnestness, no merit; nevertheless the best wheat of heaven may be yours.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4.

"And I Said, Surely He is Torn in Pieces."—Gen. xliv. 28.

These are words, caught from his father's mouth, by Judah; and here repeated, in his most pathetic intercession, in the hope of softening the governor's heart, and moving him to spare Benjamin at least. They are very sad, and without doubt justified by the vision of that blood-stained coat; and yet there was another interpretation to those sad and dark suggestions: Joseph was alive, and they were soon to know that it was he with whom they were dealing through these strange experiences.

We are often tempted to judge hastily, and by appearances; by our own despondent, sorrowful hearts; or by the reports of others. We say that certain things are against us, when, if we would only look beyond appearances and circumstances to God, we should find that He had been working, and was working, mightily on our behalf.

Do not say that you have lost your Joseph; he lives, and will yet be a comfort to you. He was taken from you for a little, to bring blessing to your whole family, and to be given back to you, more yours than ever.

Do not look on the sad, but on the bright side of God's Providence. All things are working for the best. Do not judge Him, or try to understand; be still and trust. You will some day be ashamed of your murmuring doubts.

Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan his work in vain.
God is his own Interpreter,
And He will make it plain.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5.

"God did Send Me Before You."—Gen. xlv. 5.

This was not only a kind way of alleviating their remorse and sorrow, but was the standpoint from which Joseph was wont to review his life-course. It was his habit to trace the working-out of God's plan, and the interposition of his Providence amid and through the malevolence and treachery of men. (l. 20.)

This was also David's habit, who, in the cursing of Shimei, and the revolt of Absalom, saw the evolution of God's permissive purposes.

Thus also Jesus spoke, when anticipating the coming of Judas to betray Him. "The Son of Man goeth, as it was written of Him." "The cup that my Father giveth Me to drink."

It is one of the inexplicable mysteries of Providence, that bad men subserve God's purposes, and unwittingly execute his plans. It is not for us to explain it, but to consider the perplexities and disaster which we suffer at the hands of evil men as being permitted by God for the furtherance of some Divine and hidden purpose. Paul's prayer that he might preach the Gospel at Rome, was fulfilled through the hatred of the Jews, and he went to Rome at the Emperor's expense. We may comfort ourselves whenever the storm is high, that God is at the back of it, and is making the wrath of man to praise Him, whilst the remainder of it shall be restrained.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6.

"Fear not to Go Down into Egypt.—Gen. xlvi. 3."

Probably the old man, remembering the experiences of Abraham, was very fearful to adventure himself into Egypt. Besides, was it not as though, in going thither, he renounced the Land of Promise? Therefore this special bidding and assurance were the more necessary.

When our Heart Misgives Us, let Us Look Out for One of God's Fear-nots.—His eye is ever upon the righteous, and his ear open to their cry. One upward glance, or tremulous prayer, will make Him ride on a cherub to our side, and whisper, "Be not afraid; fear not, I am with thee."

God's Promises are Fulfilled in Most Unexpected Ways.—He had always foretold that the seed of Abraham should outnumber stars and sands; but who would have supposed that the promise would be realised amid the pressure and persecution of Egypt? Yet so it happened. "I will there make of thee a great nation." We must not judge after the sight of our eyes, nor act on what is known as our common sense; faith is led by very uncommon paths. Trust and obey.

God's Presence in Egypt will be an Antidote to its Evil, and will Deliver from its Tyrant's Grasp.—Ah, my soul, thou mightest descend without fear into hell itself if God said, "I will go down with thee, and will surely bring thee up again." The Divine Presence is strength to the fearful—security and consolation in life, peace in death. Jacob's fears were dissipated, and old though he was, he girded himself for the long journey. "Go ye into all the world," our Saviour said, "Lo, I am with you all the days, even unto the end."

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 7.

"Thou Hast Saved our Lives:...We Will be Pharaoh's Servants."—Gen. xlvii. 25.

Nothing less would have extorted such an acknowledgment from those proud Philistines. They were willing to serve their saviour. Gratitude brought them into the dust before him who held the keys of the granaries.

The Kingdom of Christ is His Supreme Object for the Individual and the World.—Not that He is ambitious of power for its own sake, but that He may be able to exercise it more fully for ours, and that He may render up the kingdom to God, even his Father, that God may be all in all. He will never, therefore, be perfectly satisfied till He has triumphantly entered the gates, as king.

His Kingdom is Given Him by the Glad Choice of Those whom He had Blessed and Saved.—The homage of heaven reflects this thought: "Thou art worthy...for thou wast slain." Meditate much on the love of Calvary, and you too will be enthusiastic for his empire to begin within your heart, and to hasten over the kingdoms of the world.

When He Becomes King, He Still Further Blesses us.—The horn of Joseph's supreme power was the beginning of Egypt's brightest days. The Egyptians could not do so well for themselves, as he for them. We shall never know what the blessing of Christ's salvation is, its fulness, its deliverance from sin, its peace and bliss, till we have utterly surrendered to his supremacy.

WHEN THE LONG DAY IS DONE.

Upon the old, old stile,
Here will I seek repose;
Here will I rest and muse awhile,
Ere the long day shall close.

How softly down the hills
The twilight wends its way;
To shroud the golden vales and rills,
In folds of purple grey.

The shadows lengthen round,
Blue mists begin to rise;
A silence creeps—sound after sound
Grows distant, still, and dies.

The reapers from the fields
Wend home at set of sun,
How gladly each his labour yields
When the long day is done.

When the long day is done,
How sweet is well-earned rest;
That which by hardest toil is won
We learn to prize the best.

And now a heavenly gleam
Is quivering from afar,
Benignly gracious in its beam—
The tender evening star.

Ten thousand thousand shine
Around the sapphire throne;
That we may crave the home Divine,
This one to us is shown.

And as we see it shine
This prayer shall rise abroad—
"Let there be light at evening time
For all who love our God."

O Peace and Love and Power,
O Star, for ever bright,
Uprise upon our last, lone hour,
That it be calm and light.

When, weary with the heat,
We feel our day is o'er,
And homeward turn our failing feet,
To toil on earth no more.

Rest of the faint and worn,
Thou gracious pitying One,
Uplift us to a fairer morn,
When this long day is done.

Caroline Tickner.

SWITZERLAND.—The international congress against the abuse of alcoholic liquors was held at Basle during last week. There was a large attendance of delegates, of whom thirty-three were British.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSONS.

SEPTEMBER 8.

CALEB'S REWARD.—Joshua xiv. 5-18.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Verse 14.

FOLLOWING upon the victory over Jericho came the sin of Achan, and the consequent defeat at Ai (vii.). When the sin was judged and put away, the defeat was turned into triumph (viii.). The stratagem of the Gibeonites deceived Joshua because he trusted to his own wisdom, and "asked not counsel of the Lord" (ix. 14). The conquest at Beth-horan (x.), and the victory by the waters of Merom (xi.), have secured so much of the land that the division already takes place (xiii.-xiv. 1-5).

These victories had involved considerable destruction upon the inhabitants of the land. It should be remembered that the destruction was in consequence of the gross wickedness of the people. Crimes of the most revolting and cruel character were common (Lev. xviii. 21, 25-30). Their very existence was a curse to others, and demanded severest judgment. The Israelites were God's instruments for executing the needed judgment. Until the iniquity of the people was full God's wrath was stayed. But when their crimes became so loathsome, wrath fell upon them.

Caleb, to whom this lesson introduces us, is worthy of our imitation. Of his family we know nothing beyond what is suggested by his name (6). He was a descendant of Kenaz, the son of Esau. Probably he and his family were proselytes. Their position among the Israelites was the result of conviction. This may in some measure explain the strength and vigour of his character.

The prominent fact of his history comes out in his address to Joshua (vi.). He had remained faithful among the faithless; when the popular voice had been given in one direction he had dared to oppose it, he had preferred to stand alone with God rather than forsake Him for the multitude. The story is connected with the report of the spies (Numb. xiii. and xiv.).

His character is contained in the Golden Text. Note how often this is declared (Numb. xiv. 24; xxxii. 12; Deut. i. 36). "He followed the Lord," never sought to go before Him; never preferred the way of the people; never rested satisfied with good intentions and resolutions. He did it. "Wholly" means with all his heart. He was not double-hearted like Saul; nor half-hearted like the multitudes; nor faint-hearted like Peter; but was whole-hearted. He followed always, and in everything. He was a man of single purpose, like the Psalmist, who said, "My soul followeth hard after thee" (Psa. lxiii. 8), and like Paul, who said, "This one thing I do" (Phil. iii. 13).

His reward was threefold. (1) His life was prolonged (10). Of all the men who were with Caleb forty-five years ago, not one remained except Joshua and himself. They were objects of reverence to all the rest, as the only old men among them. In Caleb was fulfilled the word, "Them that honour Me I will honour." (2) A special inheritance was promised him (9). The promise was given in Numb. xiv. 24, and Deut. i. 36. It was not some particular mountain (12), but the whole of the mountainous region about Hebron. "The city of Hebron is the highest in Southern Palestine, being 600ft. higher than Jerusalem, and 2,600ft. above the Mediterranean." Caleb had waited forty-five years for the fulfilment of that promise. The delay had tested his faith; and his faith has grown stronger by the test. (3) His strength had been maintained (11). Age had not diminished his force. Godliness has brought to him its double blessing. Spiritually and physically his vigour remained.

And he required both. For though the inheritance was given it had yet to be taken. This is true of God's best blessings. We sometimes forget this. If any are poor spiritually, it is not because God has not given, but because they have not taken his gifts. The taking of Hebron was no easy thing. The cities were great and fenced, and the Anakim—famed for strength and stature—were prepared to defend them. Yet the inheritance belongs to Caleb by the gift of God, and he is prepared to take it. The dangers call forth his faith (12), and faith expresses itself in courage and energetic action. If you see the difficulties, do not fail to see God also. Count upon Him, and go forward to possess your inheritance in Him.

The old man Caleb may well be an example to the young. We see how his life appeared when he drew near to its close. What young men need to know is how to live so that the end of life shall be bright. Protestant Christians were seen going to Smithfield to see their pastors burned. When asked why they went to witness such a painful spectacle, they answered, "We go that we may learn the way." So may we turn to the example of an old man who has lived a prosperous and useful life, that we may learn the way. To develope such a character one must begin in early days to "follow the Lord."

For the Young.

THE SPANISH SHOEMAKER.

IN 1870 an English gentleman, stationed at Gibraltar, was preparing to start for a journey into central Spain. "Let me see," said he, "have I put together everything I want? No; I will take a Spanish Bible with me. I daresay I shall meet someone on my travels who will be glad to have the Book."

Had the Roman Catholics in power known of his intention they would at once have put him into prison. But he went on his way fearlessly, carrying the Word of Life. One day he met a very intelligent shoemaker, to whom he confided the fact of his possession of a Spanish Bible.

"Would you like to have and to it read it?" he asked.

The Spaniard looked dismayed and puzzled.

"I should like the Book," said he, "but I shall surely be imprisoned if it be found that I possess and read the Protestant Bible."

Then he went to his window, and looking into the street, first up this way and then down that, to see if anyone were in sight, he at last said in a whisper, "Hush! But I have decided to take the Book."

"Promise me," said the Englishman, before giving it to him, "that you will remain two hours within doors, after my departure, without speaking to anyone, neighbour or priest. This promise is only fair to me."

This was to ensure his own safety, as had the shoemaker informed a stranger of the Englishman's gift, the latter would have been seized and imprisoned forthwith. The Spaniard gave the required promise, took the Bible, and helped the Englishman mount his horse. While the latter was going at full speed towards Gibraltar, the shoemaker read his new possession.

Four months later, as the Englishman sat in his room, his servant announced that a Spanish gentleman wished urgently to see him. He imagined that this meant trouble with the authorities for evangelising; but when the stranger was introduced, his smile, apart from his grand holiday appearance, reassured the Englishman. The stranger was dressed in many gay colours, and with his cloak thrown over his arm, he looked like anything but a shoemaker, whose leathern apron and lapstone at once bespeak his calling.

But it was our shoemaker friend in his festal attire. He reminded the Englishman of the day when he had given him the wonderful proscribed Book:—

"Ah, sir, that was a beautiful Book! Why, after you left me, I read for what I thought was half an hour, but when I looked at the church clock I found I had been two hours reading; and I have read it so often since, that its beauty has entered my life, and I have its truth in here:" striking his breast as he spoke.

You may be sure the Englishman was rejoiced to hear this; and presently the Spaniard continued, as he drew a well-packed parcel from under his cloak:—"My gratitude has taken the form of a little present. This is it, and you may wonder how I have ventured to make them, not having your measure."

It was a handsome pair of boots of finest Cordova leather. The gentleman was pleased with the present, or rather with the Spaniard's grateful attention, but he said, "I am very sorry; all your fine work will have been thrown away. They will not fit me!"

"I think they will, sir," said the Spaniard, smiling. "At any rate, try them on. I have put into them my finest work, in the hope that they will please you."

"No; it is no use," was the answer. "I may as well tell you that my feet are dissimilar. No one has ever fitted me with boots that have not been made to measure."

"I have provided for that, sir," said the shoemaker.

"Well, you are certainly quick of observation," was the Englishman's half-doubting comment; "I did not think you had noticed my feet."

"Nor did I notice them," was the answer; "but you remember dismounting from your horse? As you passed to my door you left the imprint of your feet in the damp earth, and two hours after you left I took tracings of each impression."

The Englishman pulled on the boots, and sure enough they were a perfect fit!

"I have never put on a better or a more comfortable pair of boots in my life!" was his verdict.

What will not gratitude do? It led the Spanish shoemaker, by a most ingenious device, to accomplish a very difficult task, and I think I am right in saying that gratitude first led the Englishman to give the Word of Life to the shoemaker: gratitude to God and to our Lord Jesus Christ for the blessings of salvation and peace he himself enjoyed.

Dr. Franklin said that ingratitude is a crime so truly shameful that no one was ever found who would acknowledge himself to be guilty of it.

Yet all who refuse to give Christ their love are guilty of ingratitude, by withholding their hearts from Him who laid down his life for them.

And if we have the joy and blessing of Christ in our own souls, are we not wilfully ungrateful to Him if we do not seek to give and to hold forth the Word of Life to others?

If we are his disciples let us be like the man who, even at the risk of his life and liberty, gave the message of God to the Spanish shoemaker.

"Hold up our goings in thy paths"—
Thus we would walk and thus we pray;
Putting our hands into God's strong hand,
And letting Him lead us all the way.

M. B. GERDS.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION. SEASIDE SERVICES DURING AUGUST.

Mr. A. J. Barff, B.A., Bexhill; Rev. T. Longstaff, Blackpool; Mr. G. Askwith, Boscombe; Mr. H. Hutchinson, Bridlington, to Sept. 6; Mr. T. Graham Bailey, Carnoustie, N.B.; Mr. W. H. Wilson, Colwyn Bay; Mr. H. M. Dale, Cromer; Mr. H. Falkner, Deal; Mr. A. G. Dodderidge, Eastbourne, to Sept. 10; Mr. Middleton, East Preston. Mr. Phillips Welch, Exmouth; Mr. Josiah Spiers, Felix-stowe; Mr. A. B. Dixey, Freshwater; Rev. H. E. Geary, B.A., Rev. Eric Farrar, M.A., and Mr. H. W. Green, Herne Bay; Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Hunstanton, to Sept. 15; Mr. W. R. Moore and Mr. Dark, Ilfracombe; Mr. J. S. Tyler, Littlehampton, Mr. Frank Anderson, Llandudno, to Sept. 7; Mr. H. Hankinson, Nairn, Aug. 29; Dallas, Aug. 30; Keith, Sept. 2; Lessendrum, Sept. 3; Tayport, Sept. 7-8; Gilmerton, Sept. 11; Edinburgh, Sept. 15; Rev. W. B. Sealy, Margate; Rev. L. Carr, Overstrand, near Cromer; Mr. L. M. Miller, Paignton; Mr. J. H. Greene, Penmaenmawr; Messrs. E. Collier and F. W. Betteney, Pensarn; Mr. H. B. Claxton, Penzance, to Aug. 31; Messrs. George Goodman and S. J. Hewlett, Rhyl; Dr. F. Churchill, Saltburn; Mr. J. R. Naylor, Sandown; Messrs. B. Herklots, T. G. Barber, and T. B. Bishop, Scarborough; Mr. J. M. Wigner, Seaford; Rev. W. S. Standen and Rev. S. R. Morse, M.A., Sea View, I. of W., Sept. 1-14; Mr. J. W. Coldicott, Southend; Mr. S. M. Warner, Southsea and Sea View; Mr. Livesey Carrott, Southwold; Rev. W. W. Martin, St. Leonards, to Sept. 9; Rev. F. S. Laurence, M.A., Swanage, to Sept. 4; Messrs. E. Hughes and H. T. Sayer, Towyn, to Sept. 4; Rev. Norman Bennet, West Brighton; Messrs. W. Stuart Fox and N. Thwaites, Weston-super-Mare; Mr. E. T. M. Denpes, Whitby; Rev. C. E. Haynes, Worthing.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending September 7, 1895.—Sun., 1, Mark viii. 27-38; Mon., 2, ix. 1-13; Tues., 3, ix. 14-32; Wed., 4, ix. 33-50; Thurs., 5, x. 13-27; Fri., 6, x. 28-40; Sat., 7, x. 41-52.

REV. G. C. NEEDHAM IN DUBLIN.

LAST week a reception was given at the Dublin Y.M.C.A. by Mr. William Fry, to Rev. G. C. Needham, who has been conducting a summer evangelistic mission and Bible readings in the Christian Union Buildings. The members and associates turned out in good style, and the chairman said it looked well for the Association to see so many young men present on a summer's evening.

Mr. Needham has addressed several mass meetings for men, and the Lord has been "confirming the word with signs following." Many we trust have found peace in believing. The members of the Association worked with a will upon the City streets, offering invitations to the "Gospel feast" to the many careless, thoughtless prodigals of our city.

One of the interesting features of the mission was Mrs. Needham's addresses at the noon prayer meeting. Her searching and practical expositions were a channel of blessing to many. W. A. BOYD.

[8411]

Stories of the Red Indians.

By Rev. EGERTON R. YOUNG.

I.—AN INDIAN'S HONESTY.

Christianity is the religion of "Go." In this we see one of the great evidences of its superiority over all other systems of religion, which build their temples, erect their altars, and then say to their votaries, "Come here and worship." But in our glorious Christianity we see manifested the infinite tenderness and compassion, as well as the great wisdom of God. Our Lord designed that the Gospel should be so carried to each member of the race, and so urged upon his acceptance that he could not otherwise than hear its glad proclamations.

We, in our insufficiency, at times mourn over the slowness of the advancement of God's cause, and the long delay in his coming. But the work is his, and the times are in his hands. Ours to wait in patient expectation, and to toil on in the place assigned us; for in addition to direct conversions, so blessed and desirable, there are at times incidents in connection with the toiler's work that are full of encouragement and helpfulness, and the recital of which cannot fail to be a blessing, and perhaps a stimulus to others.

One of these stories of missionary life we here record. Years ago the missionaries living in the northern parts of what were then known as the Hudson Bay Territories, were often so remote from civilisation, that they were obliged to depend principally on fish and game for their livelihood. Hence in times of scarcity, they welcomed the arrival of a hunter with plenty of game.

One cold wintry day a man of this description appeared at the mission house—a fine stalwart Indian—and in the quiet way of his people came into our kitchen without knocking, unstrapped from his back a fine haunch of venison, and threw it down upon the table. As our supplies of food were very limited at the time, for we were barely averaging more than two good meals a day, this was a welcome addition; and so after a cordial greeting, I asked the price. "I want nothing for it; it belongs to you," was his answer.

"You must be mistaken," I replied; "I never saw you before, and have had no dealings with you. You must let me pay you for it. We are very glad to get it, as there is but little food in the house, but we have a rule here that we pay for everything. We never take presents from the Indians."

Our reason for this determination was this. We found by rather dear experience (as we presume other missionaries on similar fields have learned) that the natives have an idea that the missionary is rich, or that he is backed up by the wealthy churches; and with unlimited resources at his disposal, is able to give large gifts in return for lesser ones received. A couple of ducks or a few rabbits would be with great politeness given to the missionary or his wife. Then the donor, often accompanied by his wife and several children, would remain to dinner, and in all probability eat up the greater part of the gift. Still would they linger, and as they had brought a gift, of course they must be asked to supper, and

GLORIOUS WERE THEIR APPETITES.

As they still lingered on until time for retiring arrived, the missionary was at length obliged to hint that he thought they had better go and see if their wigwam was where they had left it in the morning. This would generally bring things to a crisis, and the man would say, "Oh, we have only been waiting for the present you are going to give us, in return for the one we gave to you!"

Therefore, we had made a rule that no more presents were to be received, but that for everything bought there was to be a fair tariff price, as mutually agreed upon. Judging from some past experiences, I was fearful that if I accepted this present it would about bankrupt me. So I again said to him, "You must let me pay you for it."

"No, no!" he energetically replied; "I take no pay. It belongs to you."

"How do you make that out?" I inquired, more perplexed than ever. Then he proceeded to give me his explanation, beginning by asking me a few questions.

"Did you not make a trip with your guide and dog drivers to Burntwood River last winter?" "I did." "And were your dog sleds not heavily loaded?" he asked. "Yes," I replied.

"And was there not a heavy fall of snow, and then a blizzard storm, which made it very difficult travelling, as you had no trail or path through the deep snow?" "Quite true," I replied, for all had happened just as he was describing it.

"And did you not at a certain place make a cache of some of your pemmican and other heavy things so as to lighten your loads, that your dogs might make better time?"

"Yes," I answered, for well did I remember that long journey, and the fearful storm which made the travelling through the trackless forest almost impossible.

I had gone on a long journey of some hundreds of miles in that wild north land, to carry the Gospel to some Indians who were still in the darkness of paganism. I was travelling with sixteen dogs and four Indian companions. There was not the least vestige of a road. In summer, owing to the number of swamps and bottomless bogs, known here as muskegs, there is absolutely no travel by land in this country. The Indian tribes of these regions avail themselves of the numerous lakes and rivers, and make all their journeys during the short summer in their birch canoes. In winter, when the iron grip of the frost king hardens everything, the people can go everywhere. The one great drawback is that there are no roads, the result is that any party of hunters or traders or missionaries wishing to travel with any rapidity, must send on one of their number ahead of the dog-trains to mark out the path with his great snowshoes as he strides along.

REV. EGERTON R. YOUNG.

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Elliott & Fry, 55, Baker-street.)

The skill and endurance with which this work is performed is marvellous. Clouds may gather and cover the whole heavens with a sombre grey mantle, so that the white man gets bewildered, yet the Indian guide pushes on without hesitancy, and with unerring accuracy.

So, with our dog sleds well loaded with our supplies for a month's absence from home, we had begun the long journey. Travelling in this way in the wintry forests, where the temperature ranges from thirty to sixty degrees below zero, gives us good appetites, and so we stopped several times each day for necessary food. We halted where dry wood was abundant, and, using our axes to cut down the trees, and our snowshoes as shovels to dig a hole through the deep snow to the ground, we soon had a good fire for cooking; and our kettles, filled with snow, furnished us with boiling water for tea, while the pemmican made of dried buffalo meat, and other food, would be brought from our sleds, and the meal thus prepared would be heartily enjoyed.

At night a hole would be dug large enough for the camp fire, and the spreading out of our fur robes and blankets on the leeward side of it. Here, after supper and prayers we spent the night, with no roof over us but the stars, and slept or shivered through it, as the case might be. Our lullabies were sometimes the howlings of the fierce grey wolves, and at other times the rush and roar of the blizzard storm, as in its fury it swept over us.

While endeavouring to push on as rapidly as possible in this way, day after day, we were assailed by a fierce storm, where the snowfall was so great that steady progress was an utter impossibility with our heavy loads. The result was we had to either lighten our loads or be content to lose much valuable time on the way. After talking it over with my Indians, we decided on the former course, and so a cache was made. A quantity of the heavier articles were tied up in big blankets. Then some small trees, called saplings, were bent down by the stalwart men, and the bundles fastened in their tops. When let go, the young trees sprang up, and thus held the loads so high up from the ground that they were safe from the prowling wolves and wolverines. This plan is very much safer than that of using the large trees, as in these latter many of the wild animals can climb, and short work would they make of a cache.

With lightened sleds, although some of the things left behind were sadly missed, we hurried on, and, after a few days more, reached our destination.

We found the majority of the Indians glad to see us, and anxious for INSTRUCTION IN THE GREAT BOOK.

They had become dissatisfied with the old way of their fathers, and had lost all faith in their conjurers, and so listened with great attention to what we had to tell them of the Gospel of the Son of God.

While we were thus engaged in our missionary duties, fierce blizzard storms were raging through that cold north land, and so, when we began the long home journey, we discovered but few traces of the trail which our snowshoes and dog trains had made not very long before. However, my guide was very clever, and my splendid dogs most sagacious, and so we travelled home most of the way on the same route, even if the original one was deeply buried under us by the light snow.

The place where our cache was made was reached by us in due time, and glad enough were we to obtain the additional supplies it contained, for we had been on short allowance for some days. The strong arms of my Indians soon bent down the saplings, and the bundles were untied and consigned to the different dog-sleds. To my surprise, I observed that at one bundle, the heaviest article of which was a piece of pemmican weighing perhaps fifty or sixty pounds, they were talking and gesticulating most earnestly, declaring that the bundle had been taken down during our absence, and a piece of pemmican had been cut off and taken away by some stranger, and that the blizzard had covered up his tracks.

Months after, along came this strange Indian with the venison, and said: "I was out hunting in those forests through which you passed, for they are my hunting grounds. I found the trail of a moose, and for a long time I followed it up, but I did not succeed in getting a shot.

"I had poor success for some days, and became very hungry. Then I came across your trail, and saw your cache. So when I saw it was the missionary's cache, the friend of the Indian, I was glad, and, said to myself, If he were here, and knew I was hungry, he would say, 'Help yourself!' and that was just what I did. And now I have brought you this venison to pay you for that pemmican which I took."

Honest man; he had carried that haunch of venison on his back a distance of about sixty miles. Of course, I was delighted, and while complimenting him for his honesty, I inquired how it was that he knew it was my party that had there made the cache, rather than a party of Indian hunters.

Without any hesitancy, he replied, "Oh, I saw your snowshoe tracks in the snow."

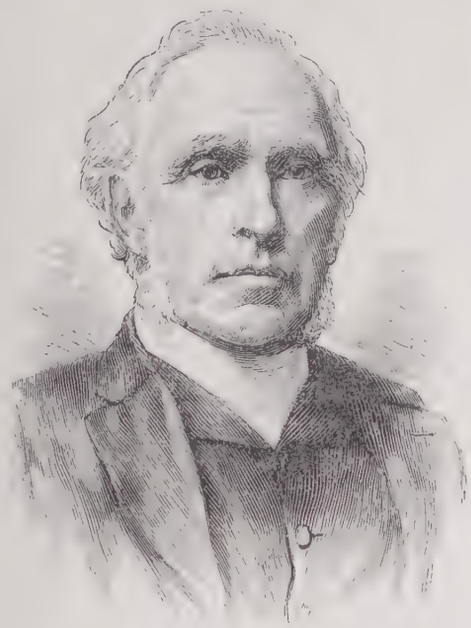
"Impossible," I answered, for all the snowshoes used by my whole party were made by Sandy, my Indian boy, and he made them all of one pattern.

"That no matter," he answered, while his eyes twinkled with amusement. "Snowshoes all right, but I saw your tracks all the time. When Indian walk, he walk with toes in; when white man walk, he walk with toes out, so I saw where the missionary make tracks all the time." So we will all vote him a clever, as well as an honest Indian, and rejoice that under the faithful teaching of another missionary this Red Indian of the forest had been so grounded in the lessons of the Sermon on the Mount, that this delightful outcome was the result.

Rev. William Muirhead, D.D.

One day a parcel of papers was brought into a lawyer's office, which a boy, fourteen years of age, placed in his employer's desk. When alone, his curiosity led him to open the desk and glance at the first paper that appeared. The only thing he remembers having seen were these words :—

Can we whose souls are lighted,
With wisdom from on high,
Can we, to men benighted,
The lamp of light deny?



He had never met these words before, and though far from apprehending their full meaning, they made a deep impression on his mind. They formed the turning point of his thoughts and aspirations for the future. The vague idea was cherished, and two years later a missionary sermon from his pastor went home to his heart. After six years of preparatory study and service, William Muirhead was ordained a missionary in his native town of Leith, and sailed for Shanghai. It was not the handsome city of half a million inhabitants that now adorns the delta of the Yangtze. Then the site of the present foreign settlements was a huge unhealthy mud flat of paddy fields and burying grounds, intersected by creeks and ditches.

The young missionary was eminently fitted for work in this singularly trying and perplexing sphere of labour. Foreigners, sailors from all lands, opium dens (here is to be found the largest and most ornate opium shop in the world), and houses of ill-fame, combine to make Christian work exceedingly difficult. For forty-eight years has that lithe, active figure spent its unwearied energy in rapid and successful work. In season and out of season, with persevering faith he has toiled for souls —and found them. It is impossible to give even a bird's-eye view of the varied activities of Dr. Muirhead, for he cannot be classed as an ordinary worker. There is not a class in that large city which he has not reached.

On arriving at Shanghai, he began the study of the language under the tuition of a pundit in that matter-of-fact way, which is half the battle, when combined with acuteness. He writes "I am not aware that the idea of difficulty ever occurred to me in regard to it." His ardent nature soon led him to use his scanty vocabulary among the people, and great fluency came while talking and distributing tracts among the astonished crowds, who were not then accustomed to being addressed by a European. He continued also very assiduously to study the literature of the country.

The missionaries made journeys into the country districts, always returning within twenty-four hours, as arranged by the consul. At Tsingpu in 1848, Dr. Medhurst, Dr. Lockhart, and Dr. Muirhead, after they had left their boat to go into the city, were attacked by unemployed sailors, armed with clubs, chains, and other weapons, and were savagely beaten and robbed. They were rescued by a large body of Mandarin followers, and kindly treated by the magistrates, but being sorely bruised could scarce walk to the boat. At another time, Dr. Muirhead and another missionary, although dressed as Chinamen, were severely maltreated at Suchow, being taken for rebels. The Mandarins sent them away at dead of night, and to quiet the people, posted up a notice the next morning that "the rebels had been privately beheaded."

Upon numerous occasions has Dr. Muirhead been assailed with the brutal yell, "Beat and kill the barbarian," and bricks, stones, and other missiles, thrown at him, but he has gone on his way, saying with Paul, "None of these things move us, neither count we our lives dear unto us, that we may finish our course with joy, and the ministry we have received of the Lord Jesus." The solace of all this persecution, was however, the exceeding joyful one of baptizing converts. Travelling along the rivers and network of smaller streams they preached from morning to night up and down the streets of the towns and villages of the Yang-tsze-kiang delta. Those who were awakened by the preachers soon found their way to the Scripture depots for the Word of Life, of which a foretaste had been given them by the missionaries. One of the early converts was a remarkable man. After an interview in which the missionary referred to his own convictions of sin, and his fear of the consequences, until he came to the knowledge and acceptance of Christ, he was deeply impressed. Tears flowed, and he exclaimed, "If such be the spirit and power of the Gospel, I desire to believe it, and so become a follower of Jesus Christ." This man had afterwards an eventful career with the chief of the Taiping rebels.

The Duke Kung, one of the few hereditary nobles of China, and the seventy-fifth descendant of the great sage Confucius, on one occasion paid an interesting visit to the missionary, and listened respectfully while his eager host spoke to him of Christ. It would take much space to follow the active figure of Dr. Muirhead through his forty-eight years of ceaseless toil. Conversions and singular episodes crowd his path. All phases of mission work—among natives, Europeans, sailors, and others must be included; also visits to the interior with incessant preaching, building chapels, opening schools, expeditions to Peking. Mongolia, and Japan, and the publication of numerous educational and other works in Chinese, and a book entitled, "China and the Gospel."

The personal events of Dr. Muirhead's life are simple and soon told. In 1848 Miss K. M. Evans went out under the care of Dr. Legge, to be his wife, and together they conducted a large and successful boarding school for Chinese boys. Mrs. Muirhead died at Matlock in 1880. For some years Dr. Muirhead was pastor of Union Chapel, Shanghai. During his three visits to England he has created great interest in the China mission by his clear statements about the work, and the fervour of his soul-stirring appeals. He was again married in Shanghai in 1886, to the widow of the Rev. Andrew Eriksson, of Sweden, and daughter of the late Mr. A. E. Turner, barrister, of London.

It would be unjust to conclude this brief statement of the work of this noble missionary without referring to the love and esteem in which he is held by missionaries of all societies. He had much to do with the inauguration and success of the great jubilee meeting in Shanghai to commemorate the opening of the port to trade and mission work. The foreign constituency chose him as their orator on that occasion, and the just tribute of his fellow workers found expression in lines written by his friend, the Ven. Archdeacon Moule, on the completion of the fortieth year of his mission work in Shanghai. We reproduce two stanzas :—

Proverbs xvi. 31.

We greet thy "crown of glory," friend,
Thy silver hair; the tranquil end
Of forty "righteous" years.
Nay! start not as at flattery's sound;
The Saviour's "righteousness" you found
Sole shield from sinful fears.

The past grows dim, old friends are gone;
But it is night thus passing on;
The morning is at hand.
Thousands who round their Saviour bend
Will welcome you, their God-sent friend,
To that bright better land.

THE MARTYRS.

God of the Martyrs, O our God!
To Thee thy people cry:
That thou may'st through thy martyrs' blood,
Thy kingdom glorify;
That thy pure light from shore to shore
May shine, and darkness reign no more.

We would not ask for respite, Lord,
Other than this, to see
The heathen throng receive that Word
Which sets the captive free.
And first thy mercy to obtain
Be those who have thy people slain.

We have not prayed Thee as we ought
For those dark realms afar;
Nor have we, as we should, besought
Thee for the Gospel war.
And now the martyrs shed their blood,
To call us all in prayer to God.

O hear from heaven, thy dwelling-place,
Our cries from earth below;
Unloose thy floods of saving grace,
And let the torrents flow;
Until through every land and sea
Thy Name, Lord, shall exalted be!

John Wilfrid McClure.

THE ITALIAN CHRISTIAN HOME, 14, Heathcote-street, W.C., was started by Rev. Dr. Stauder in 1890. It aims at benefiting the large colony of Italians in the metropolis and providing Christian education for their children. During the short period of its existence it has been the guide of many poor people who found themselves strangers in a strange land. The work is very limited on account of the scarcity of means; but it is capable of great expansion, and indeed very much needed, as there are several groups of Italians scattered through the metropolis, numbering many thousand souls.

OLD CAIRO, EGYPT.—The Church Missionary Society has issued an urgent appeal for funds to build a new hospital and dispensary here. The committee have given a grant for the site and for houses for the doctor and lady nurses, but a further sum of at least £2700 is needed for the hospital and dispensary. Already a good work is being done in connection with the medical mission, not only among the poorer inhabitants of Old Cairo, but among the fellaheen of a large district around. About 22,097 patients from over 420 districts and villages were treated in the out-patient department in the last year, and have gone away bearing with them not only a practical proof of Christian love, but also some idea of the Gospel of Christ, which is proclaimed to all who come.

Northfield Conference.—2.

It must not be supposed (says the correspondent of the New York Tribune) that the four or five regular services a day represent all the religious activity. After breakfast in the hotel, school buildings, and boarding-houses the guests assemble in the parlours for a short service of prayer and praise. After that they gather in groups and talk about the experiences of the soul until 10 o'clock, when everybody, Bible, note-book, and pencil in hand, hurries to the auditorium. The meeting closes at 12.30, and until 1 o'clock, when dinner is served, the time is spent in talking over the addresses just heard. There is more religious talk after dinner until 3 o'clock, when the afternoon meeting begins. Immediately after tea there is a meeting on Round Top Hill, and by the time that is ended it is time to go to the evening meeting in the auditorium. It will be seen that there is little time for driving, fishing, or other worldly recreations. But everyone has come here to hear the Word of God expounded, and nothing is allowed to stand in the way.

In the course of his address on the morning of August 6, Preb. Webb-Peploe made the following remarks on

THE POWER OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

His theme was the bondage of the Israelites in Egypt. The Israelites thought God was not as strong as outward circumstances. Many of us think the same thing. We say to ourselves that we want to serve God, that we have tried hard to do so, but that if circumstances are too much for us they are too much for God. He cannot do what He wants to do any more than we can. But that is the word of Satan, and we know that Satan is a liar from the beginning. He lies when he says that our Christian life must always be lived in the gloom of disappointment and failure—that we can never have any joy or gladness till we get to heaven. It is not faith simply to hope in a hopeless way for some far-off joy. We must believe that uninterrupted bliss is the privilege of every child of God. We stand here to protest against the Christian life of depression. It is not Christian, and it is not really life. When the worldly man looks at such a Christian he asks: "Why should I give up my pleasant life for that? If that is Christianity I do not want it."

Some years ago a lady came to me and said: "I believe what you preach, but alas! it does not apply to me." "Why not, madam?" I replied. "Because my circumstances are so peculiar." "But I think I said just now that God was stronger than peculiar circumstances." "Yes, I know you did; but my circumstances are very peculiar." "Well, I spoke of very peculiar circumstances." "Yes, you did, but mine are such very, very peculiar circumstances." There it was. She couldn't accept the promises because her case was so very, very peculiar. That is what everybody says, and I suppose it is true. Everybody is very, very peculiar. But, thank God, he soon convinced that woman that the Saviour is able to save the most very, very peculiar people, no matter how very, very peculiar their circumstances may be. Christ died for you, my friends, just as if there was nobody else in all the wide world. A man comes here and sings, "My life flows on in endless song," and then he goes away and growls at everybody and everything, Endless song, indeed! Give me something better and I will take it, says the worldling. Well, I rejoice that we have got the best there is in this world and the next, and we want to show the fact in our lives.

Now the fault often rests with the ministers, because they come between us and God with their lack of faith. They are floored by circumstances. They think too much of the power of material things. Twenty sanctified men are better in the Church than two thousand half-and-half nondescripts. Oh! fellow-ministers, rise now to the dignity of your calling and your responsibility.

HOME MISSIONS.

The same afternoon and evening were devoted to Home Missions, and were occupied by the Christian Workers' Society. Dr. Torrey presided, and two of the addresses especially were notable as affording living illustrations of the life which had been urged in the previous addresses.

Mr. Crook said he was the son of "an all-round sportsman," and lived that kind of life himself till he was twenty-six. Then he was converted; he gave up his gambling, destroyed his bad books and pictures, and served God. Three years later he went to a meeting where he heard of a life lived in the power of God. He joined a band of men who concentrated their effort on prayer and on the conversion of special individuals, for whom they prayed unceasingly, until they were saved. Many thick trees fell beneath the axes which they lifted up against them. They were indeed a band of men whose hearts God had touched. In a neighbouring town a similar band had five prayer meetings in a week. They sought out the worst and hardest cases as subjects for prayer, and when any had backslidden they watched them day and night, and posted pickets to protect them from the drink shops. The women imitated the example of their husbands and brothers and sons, and formed praying bands among themselves.

MRS. E. M. WHITTEMORE

followed with the story of her own awakening, conversion, and consecration. Then she told of her guidance into work for God among her lost sisters, which moved every heart. "I did not love the work at first," she said, "but I did it for Christ's sake. I have gone into the vilest dens and into the furnace, but there has been no smell of fire on my garments. I have been misunderstood and criticised at times, but I thank God for it, for it has made God all in all.* The story of the poor girls who have fallen is a sad and tragic one. We Christian women stand aloof from them. Oh, you women who are here, I ask you in the name of Jesus to be womer indeed; to give a helping hand to your sisters. If you come to this service you will have a warm welcome, but no fallen girls will be pointed out to you. All the work we do is solid, and the proceeds are devoted to foreign missions. We never touch it for the household expenses. Thus far we have sent 3,700 dols. to foreign missions, and next Saturday our first redeemed girl will sail as a missionary to Africa."

We hope to give a sketch of this lady's life-work in a future number.

MR. GIBBUD'S GOSPEL WAGON.

The two addresses by Mr. H. B. Gibbud were notable for their lively human, as well as their religious, earnestness. There is nothing conventional about Mr. Gibbud. He can tell a breezy story and sing a lively song, but both story and song are touched with religious impulse. He lives in Syracuse, where he has a successful work among the lost and depraved. In doing his work in the slums or in the hop-fields he adopts the methods of the "fakir." He has a Gospel wagon covered with Bible texts and lit up at night with a big locomotive headlight. Then he stands in front with his bag of tracts slung on on his shoulder, and by song and story soon draws a crowd. He has been especially successful among the hop-pickers of Central New York, most of whom are vicious and depraved. He told of one hamlet of 360 people in the hop region, in which there were six saloons and one church. The church had only two male members, one of whom was deaf and the other made cheese every Sunday. "In some places," he says, "the people are crowded together like cattle. Even the pigs are sometimes driven from their styes, and straw strewn on which the pickers sleep. Kegs of beer and bottles of whiskey are often brought from town, and the nights are spent in dancing, drinking, etc. Many simply take advantage of the circumstances for unrestrained sin and vice. The devil holds high carnival. Innocent boys and girls are taken along and surrounded by so much that is demoralising that they are ruined for time and eternity. These hop-fields are in many cases recruiting stations for the saloon and disorderly house. Many respectable people engage in hop-raising and picking, who lament the evils consequent on bringing such a promiscuous crowd together, and who gave help and encouragement last year. A party of four left Syracuse in a gospel wagon and travelled 150 miles through the hop country. In the twenty days' excursion 150 yards were visited, and 5075 pickers dealt with.

The meetings on August 7 were remarkably interesting, and were well attended. Mr. Moody, in his usual efficient way, presided at the morning meeting. "I want all who have them," he said, "to hold up their Bibles. That's good," he continued, as about two-thirds of the audience did so. "Our friends from across the water were a little sceptical about our having Bibles, and I wanted to convince them. Always bring the Word with you; it is the only way to tell if the minister is preaching it."

After a touching petition by Mr. Murray, Prebendary Webb-Peploe announced as his topic the words of Psalm cvi. 24, 25. He said in part:—

THE SIN OF UNBELIEF.

The Israelites made God a liar by saying, "The land is desirable, but we cannot enter in because of the Anakim, the hornets, or what-not. It is a good land, but it is too good to be true. It is impossible for men like us to attain such privileges." So they hearkened to the spies and turned back from the very gateway of possibility; back again into the wilderness. And you do exactly the same thing. You may not lose heaven; let us pray God you may not. But you lose the great things before you in the life that now is. It is awful to think of. They believed his word, they sang his praises, and the next moment gave up in despair. They believed what they saw and doubted all else. Israel's God and ours is the great I AM, with whom is no past or future—only an eternal present. He is one everlasting certainty, omnipresent, omnipotent and omniscient. When we doubt the unknown future we say to God, "Thou liest." It is the one unpardonable sin, far worse than murder, incest, or any other crime. It was thus that Israel sinned. We have sinned in the same way, and for that reason we have failed to enter in and possess the good land of God's rest. But they believed his Word, you say? Yes. He overthrew their enemies; they saw the dead Egyptians on the shore. It was very kind, indeed, of them to believe what they saw. Let us believe God as far as we see Him—is that the principle? Why, I would treat a common thief as well as that. Wait on God when you do not see his plans. It was the sin of Israel not to wait. They drew back from the good land, so God fed them with bread and water, prisoners' fare, for forty years in the wilderness, and they died, every man of them, except Joshua and Caleb. They lost Canaan, just as we are losing our Canaan of noble and joyful opportunity.

As to faith, there are two kinds—that in the past and that for the future. For the former there must be evidence. When I am satisfied with the records I accept their story without a doubt, but there is no virtue in the act, for I could not do otherwise. So we accept the fact that Christ lived and died for us on the evidence of the records. But the future has no evidence to go by. It has only the promises. We must believe that the person making the promises is credible, and able and willing to fulfil them all. If the promises were made by a man we would have a right to doubt them, but when God makes them, He is the same yesterday and to-day and for ever, and He will fulfil them to the uttermost. If I am convinced that Christ died for me in the past, I repose in that fact, I rest in it, I have nothing to do, it is finished. But in regard to the future, there is something for me to do. I must go forward in the full assurance of God's promises. I must not be passive like the old mystics; I must step out and act. You believe that Christ died for you? All that is settled. But what about the future? Are you calm? Are you sure you have joy in the Lord? Are you ready to enter in and possess the good land? Come what may, can you say, Bless the Lord? That is what you came here to learn. But you won't learn it if you do not break down self. I learned that twenty-one years ago. I knew my sins were forgiven. I held the Evangelical doctrine of justification, but I had no inward peace. I read the text, "My grace is sufficient for thee," but I could not believe it. But at last, thank God, I did, and I have never known a moment's care since. Go and burn your Bible if you cannot accept it all. I used to find it so hard to prepare two sermons a week; now I find it easy to preach fifteen.

You business men, are you afraid for the future? Why, friends, there is a big Lord even in Wall-street. Don't begin cheeseparing with God, for you will get all the parings. The best fruit is in the centre. Mr. Spurgeon used to tell a story about a gentleman who invited a friend several times to eat some apples from his orchard. The friend always declined. "What is the matter?" said the gentleman at last. "Well," was the reply, "I tried some of your apples along the road and they were very bad." "So you were caught by that little game?" said the gentleman. "Why I planted the very worst apples along the road to deceive everybody. But inside you will find the very best." Come inside, friends, and get the best things of God. Don't stand shivering by the sea of his love. Take a plunge at once. Is the Lord to have your confidence in the future? May it be your privilege to make these words of the Book your own: "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him."

* This is a fitting illustration of Section IV. of Mr. Meyer's exposition on p 8.—[Ed.]

ENTERING INTO REST.

Rev. Andrew Murray spoke in substance as follows:—How shall we enter into the rest? First, we must learn to believe that there is a land of rest. God has brought us out of Egypt. He is also ready to bring us into Canaan. Jesus, our Joshua, can bring us if we will only trust Him. How many of us there are who wander in the wilderness because we will not enter into Canaan. God is ready to lead us, ready to protect us from all foes, ready to crown our life with victory and glory. He will not give us freedom from temptation, but the power to overcome. We can do all things through Christ that strengtheneth us. For with his help we are more than conquerors. Are you ready to say, "I believe"?

Next, you must confess that this rest is not yet yours. Some people want to glide in, but they cannot do it. Always it must be by the gate of conflict. Third, you must say, "Thank God, that life of rest is for me; not for others only, but for me." God is waiting to give you the blessing. It may be yours for the asking. Will you not stretch out your hands and grasp it? Fourth, you must realise that of yourself, you cannot grasp it; it is God alone who can give it to you. Be very bold in saying that the blessing is for you, but humble in saying that it is for you only through God. Cherish this blessed impotence, for it leads to eternal strength. Fifth, you must give up everything; you must sell all that you have to buy the jewel beyond all price—the world, pleasure, the world's opinion—all must be given up. Then you must give up yourself, and lastly you must trust God in everything. This is the way of God for you, and only thus will you reach the blessed Canaan of rest.

At six o'clock every day Rev. Dr. Erdman is at Round Top to answer all questions that may be put to him. The questions are numerous and often difficult, but in answering them Dr. Erdman shows great wisdom and discretion. The quarter to seven meeting of prayer and praise at Round Top is well attended, and the singing of the hymns in the open air at the evening hour when heard at a distance has a fine effect.

STUDENT COOKS AND WAITERS.

Every one knows about the student waiters in the New England Summer hotels, but in Northfield the idea is carried much further. The girls of Northfield Seminary and the students or graduates of the Mount Hermon School are employed here in every capacity. Most of the school buildings used as temporary hotels are managed by seminary girls as housekeepers. The waitresses are seminary girls; the clerks, porters, etc., are Mount Hermon boys. The cooks are seminary girls in one or two cases, but mostly Mount Hermon boys. And good cooks they are, too, as indeed they ought to be, for cooking is in the curriculum of the schools. In the Northfield Hotel, for instance, the steward is a Mount Hermon boy now at Oberlin. The head cook is now at Princeton. The second cook is a Japanese boy, a graduate of Mount Hermon, and now in the Yale Divinity School. The three clerks are Mount Hermon boys, and one of them is now at Yale. The two cooks in Marquand Hall are Mount Hermon boys. It is the universal testimony that the service here is satisfactory in all respects. There is an air of refinement, cleanliness and self-respect about the young men and women holding these places that is most engaging. However humble the work may be which they do, they do it well and with no trace of self-consciousness. They respect themselves too much to ask for any sympathy, and for that reason they have what is better even than sympathy, the respect of all who come in contact with them. Mr. Moody has no better advertisement for his schools than these young men and women.

POWER THROUGH OBEDIENCE.

On the morning of August 8 Prebendary Webb-Peploe announced as his text Matt. viii. 9: "I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me." He said:—

We saw yesterday how circumstances hinder us. But if I am in Christ they are no longer around me, but around Christ, and so they can no longer hinder me. At best life is full of difficulties, and what puzzles one is how to reconcile the spiritual life demanded in the Bible with the ordinary life of the world. Some of us say we cannot live in the world and live the life of God at the same time. We will say we are immersed in business. Is it possible at the same time to enjoy every moment the delights of the spiritual life? And we conclude it is not. But in so doing we contradict God's Divine revelation, which shows that a wondrous unity pervades the whole of life. Through all its various manifestations there is one purpose, one thought, one aspiration. Life is complex in its manifestations and activities, but in essence it is a unit—it cannot be divided. We affirm, and the Holy Ghost will confirm it, that the Divine unity of the creation is a pattern of the unity of each human life.

There ought to be no severance between the secular and the religious, and there would not be were it not for sin, which has so divided man's nature that any union seems at first sight impossible. Along this line we must work. Our secular life must be one with our religious life. Christ came not only to be a splendid pattern, but to produce in us the same kind of life that He manifested. We are to be like Him up to the extent of our capacity. The reconciliation of man's diverse interests is to be found in these words of the centurion. They were temporal and physical, but they can be used to enforce a spiritual lesson. If you sever the natural from the spiritual, you contradict the purpose of life. In Christ our eating, our drinking, and every other physical act is as much spiritual as the Holy Communion of the Lord's Supper. For all is done to the glory of God. Christ's life was one. It was not partly worldly and partly spiritual, but all spiritual, and so must ours be if we would follow Him. For we are all one in Christ Jesus.

Yesterday we came to the door of the land of rest. But, dear friends, you will never enter that land until you have learned the Divine law that life is one. You cannot divide the secular from the spiritual. No one in this life can be absolutely evil, like Satan. Always there is a capacity for salvation. Always there is a possibility of good. Are people, therefore, who do evil happy? No. They are torn by a terrible unrest. "There is no peace," saith my God, "to the wicked." Bring such a man under the power of the Gospel, and he becomes convicted of sin. He tries to please God; he struggles hard to obey God's law. But he has ten times the unrest he had before. But soon he comes to the third stage, and then the Gospel does its work and the Cross brings to him perpetual peace. Was it enough for him merely to accept the doctrines? God forbid! He must needs become a new creation. A new God-life springs up in his soul. How we slander Christ when we say "I am Christ's," only because we believe Christ died for us. There is one life,—whose is it to be? Yours or Christ's? The moment I am Christ's I am a man under authority. Christ pours into me his Divine life. Who is your king, the Cæsar of this world, or Christ? You business men, will your books bear the inspection of the heavenly Auditor? If there were no divided life, how all difficulties would vanish. Lastly, we take note of the prevalent longing for spiritual power to-day. How shall we gain it? The centurion will tell us—through obedience. Because he had learned to obey others he gained a position of authority over others. So it will be with us. We shall gain power through obedience.

MISSIONARY TESTIMONIES.

At 2 p.m. a missionary meeting was held in the village Congregational church, at which Mrs. Andrew Murray and Miss Anna Cummings, of South Africa, spoke. Dr. Pierson laid out for himself a programme for this afternoon that even he found it hard to carry out. His scheme was to have thirty missionaries, men and women, speak, each one taking only five minutes. Doubtless all the missionaries tried faithfully to obey this time limit, cruel though it must have seemed to them after coming so many thousand miles to speak. But few of them succeeded in doing so.

Rev. Benjamin Labaree, labouring in Persia, a man of fine and dignified presence, told how modern missions in Persia are reviving the old churches crushed under Islam. The organiser of the Stundists in Russia was born in Persia, and his son is now one of Mr. Moody's boys at Mount Vernon. Mr. Labaree is engaged in translating Christian literature into Syriac. Mr. Moody's sermons are widely known throughout Persia.

Miss Catharine Barber, who has been working as a missionary in Spain for several years, said that though Spain is nominally Roman Catholic, it is practically pagan. Only one-half of the people are able to read and write. But the light is breaking. The English and Americans have established missionary outposts and schools. Miss Barber is herself connected with a school whose pupils have carried off many honours, in spite of the feeling against them, and now the University of Madrid has opened its door to them.

Rev. Dr. M. B. Kirkpatrick has done a good work for seven years as a medical missionary in Burmah He gave a graphic picture of the trials and triumphs of the field. His headquarters are at Theebaw, in the Shan country, and for many months he and his family never tasted bread or meat. Dr. Kirkpatrick was instrumental in opening a hospital in Burmah, which has done much to alleviate suffering.

Dr. Henry Hartshorn told of the work in Japan, where loyalty is a religion. The hope of the country is Christianity, but there are obstacles which hinder it. One is the warring of the Christian sects. Young Japan is strongly agnostic.

Rev. J. McCarthy spoke in a hopeful strain about the work in China. When he went there there were only 100 workers to 300,000,000 people. Now there are at least 45,000 Chinese converts. Miss Emma Inveen and Miss Mitchell also spoke about China in an interesting way. These three speakers were listened to with especial attention on account of the recent massacre of missionaries in that country.

Miss Anna Cummings told of the influence of the Rev. Andrew Murray in South Africa. Miss Susan Howland told what Eliza Agnew, of New York, did for Christian education in Ceylon. Rev. J. F. Clark gave a talk about Bulgaria, and when his five minutes expired he said he had lots more to tell. Miss Mary H. Haines gave a hopeful view of Christian work in Japan. Rev. James Cantine talked about Arabia, where he is working. Mrs. Parmeley, of Trebizond, told about the work among the Armenians, who are Christians, but not enlightened. They suffer from Turkish suspicion and persecution. The missionaries also suffer in the same way.

Rev. H. M. Hitchcock, of Constantinople, told about the Armenian outrages, and Rev. T. B. Hussey of the Christian medical missionary work in the Holy Land and of the Christian schools in that country.

Miss Ida S. Scudder described the pitiable condition of the women in India. Rev. J. H. Judson, working in China, spoke a few words; and Miss Laura Pierson, of Tuscon, Arizona, a daughter of Dr. Pierson, made a plea for foreign missions at home among the Indians, which elicited applause.

At Round Top, Dr. Dowkontt spoke of medical missions, and at the evening meeting rousing addresses were made by Rev. Frederick J. Stanley and Dr. Pierson.

On Saturday, August 10th, Mr. Moody made two interesting announcements. One was that the lake in which Rev. Dr. Gordon used to baptize is hereafter to be called Gordon Lake, and the other was that a Mount Hermon scholarship of 4,000 dols. is to be established as a memorial to Dr. Gordon. To illustrate the interest in this matter, it may be added that as soon as the announcement was made, Mr. H. M. Moore, the president of the Board of Trustees, received the first contribution to it.

On Saturday morning, after a telling address from Preb. Webb-Peploe, on Acts iv. 13, Rev. Andrew Murray spoke on HUMILITY.

The speaker said in part: Christ humbled Himself, and if we love Him we must love humility. Even on the Throne of God humility reigned, for Jesus left it to come down and die for men. Nor has his humility ceased, for now, as the meek and gentle Lamb of God, He pleads for us before the Throne. We need to be saved from pride, the root of all evil.

Our nature must first be emptied of self before it can be filled with the fulness of God. Oh, to be nothing and to wait simply on God! How blessed the privilege, and how often the Bible dwells on this virtue. God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble. Down, down, to the lowest depths, my soul, that God may raise you up! This is the salvation that the Holy Ghost brings. The chief glory from our Lord was that He humbled Himself. That grace of humility the Holy Spirit can give to us, if we desire it above all else and ask for it in prayer.

At the afternoon meeting Dr. W. J. Erdman, of Germantown, Penn., gave a most instructive address on the Book of Ecclesiastes. It is an inspired record of the best that man can do, to show that his best is not enough.

Sunday, August 11, was a red-letter day. The weather was ideally beautiful, and there was an overflowing attendance at all the meetings. About four hundred were present at a 7 o'clock prayer-meeting conducted by Mr. Moody. At the 10 o'clock service there were at least 3000 people present, many farmers having come thirty miles in their vehicles, 200 of which were counted. There was a choir of 200 voices, which, during the first half hour, sang many old favourites with splendid power and fervour. Mr. Sankey and Mr. Jacobs sang as solos, "Christ Returneth" and "There is Never a Day so Dreary," respectively, and still the people came crowding in.

Prebendary Webb-Peploe preached a powerful sermon on David and Jonathan, from Psalm xviii. 1: "Thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own confusion."

In spite of the heat, the afternoon meeting was well attended. After an inspiring song service, Mr. Murray preached on the story of Joseph and Potiphar as a type of the relation that should exist between God and man. At the close of the meeting there was a large after-meeting of women in the Auditorium, addressed by Mr. Murray, and another meeting of men in the open-air at Round Top, addressed by Mr. Webb-Peploe. At these meetings, both gentlemen spoke with force and fervour, and touched many hearts. In the evening Mr. Moody made one of his happiest addresses to a large audience.

Rev. Andrew Murray (says The Tribune writer) will leave here on the 15th. He will spend a day at Niagara, after which he will go to Chicago. He will lecture in the Chicago Bible Institute for two weeks, preaching on Sundays in the Chicago Avenue Church. Preb. Webb-Peploe's eldest son is a practising lawyer in Richmond, Va., and he has another son, a clergyman, in Calgarry, Alberta Territory, British North America. He will remain at Northfield until August 25th; afterwards he will lecture a week at the Chicago Institute, and will return to England in October.

THE NEW FOREST MANŒUVRES.

Avington Park, near Winchester, was last week the sphere of special work for God done by the friends from the Soldiers' Home. On Tuesday night some 7000 men were camped there, and on Wednesday and Thursday another 7000. Each night tracts were distributed from tent to tent, and thankfully received by the men, who were tired out after their tedious marches, and glad of something to read.

Later in the evening open-air meetings were held, many of the Christian soldiers doing their utmost to attend and bring their comrades, some singing the Gospel before the others, who listened with quiet and respect. More orderly and hearty meetings could not have been desired. The truth was told out by Miss Perks and Mr. C. Edwards, of the "Home," and others who had the joy of taking part. Passing the Soldiers' Home on their way to the New Forest for the manœuvres, not a few looked out for us, some getting a momentary grip, and others having to be content with a waved hand and a "God bless you."

All this work was the result of the arrangement planned by a Christian soldier, who drove over from the camping ground to Miss Perks at the Soldiers' Home, Winchester. The last meeting was disturbed by a heavy thunderstorm, but the men sat on in spite of gathering tempest. Nor would they leave until dismissed by "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," sung at their own request, beneath flashing forks of lightning.

William Luff.

THE OUTRAGES IN CHINA.

Further outrages on foreigners in China (says The Standard) are reported, and it is becoming more certain than ever that the unrestrained, if not stimulated, fury of the populace, unless means can be found for meeting the danger, will spread throughout the Empire. This time it is an American mission-station which has been attacked, a chapel and school near Fu-Chan has been wrecked, and four native scholars wounded, the schoolmaster fortunately making his escape. There is only too much reason for fearing that the anti-foreign movement is raging both in the Fuh-kien province, and in Chekiang, to the north of it, while the reports that come from other parts of China are hardly less disquieting. The situation, indeed, is critical in the extreme, and long before the inquiry into the Wu-Cheng outrage is completed we may hear of even more terrible events elsewhere.

The New York World's correspondent at Foochow telegraphs that the firmness displayed by the British and United States Governments has brought the Chinese to terms, and that the Consuls are now permitted to be present at the trial of the native prisoners charged with the outrages on missionaries. The Chinese officials afford the foreign commissioners every facility for the inquiry, and six natives have already been convicted of murder in connection with the massacre at Hwasang.

"An Hon. Association Secretary" calls attention to the fact that the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society, as well as the C.M.S., is mourning the loss of workers through the Fuh-kien massacre. We have endeavoured to make this plain in our accounts of the lamentable occurrences.

THE CHENG-TU RIOTS.

Rev. Dr. Griffith John, of Hankow, describing the anti-foreign riots in Sze-chwan, writes:—"They broke out at Cheng-tu, the provincial capital, on May 28. They continued for three days, and ended in the complete wreck of all the missions, Roman Catholic and Protestant. The Protestant Missions at Cheng-tu were the Canadian, the American Episcopal, and the China Inland. There were in the city at the time, in connection with the three missions, twenty-nine souls—eighteen adults and eleven children; but not a life was lost. This is to be ascribed to the fact that the uprising had its origin in official influence. The word of command seems to have been—

'DESTROY, BUT DO NOT KILL.'

"Though no lives were lost, the demolition of property was complete. One of the sufferers writes: 'From trustworthy reports, and from what we saw ourselves, there will not be much débris for us to clear away when it comes to rebuilding. Every stick of timber was carried away, not so much as a piece the size of a shingle remaining. Bricks and tiles, even the foundation-stones, were dug up and carried off. Paving stones shared the same fate. Trees and shrubs, bamboos, in fact everything that was enclosed by the four walls of the compound, was considered their lawful booty.' Some ten or twelve other mission stations situated in different parts of the province, have been rioted, but at no place has the work of destruction been carried on so ruthlessly as at Cheng-tu. There have been no lives lost anywhere.

"I am thankful to say that Chungking has escaped, and it looks now as if our fears with regard to our (L.M.S.) missions there were not going to be realised. It seemed as if Mr. and Mrs. Claxton, and Mrs. Owen would have to leave. They had hired a boat, and made their preparations for the start. We received a letter from Mr. Owen to the effect that matters had come to such a crisis that it was deemed advisable for all the ladies and children to take their departure at once. Just as they were about to start matters began to assume a more promising aspect, and they resolved to wait on and see. They did not dismiss the boat, however, and they are still holding themselves ready to start at a moment's notice. On July 9 we received a very satisfactory telegram from Mr. Claxton. The examinations are now going on in Chungking, and they are the one source of anxiety to the missionaries there, and to the friends here. Whilst they last, we shall not be completely free from fear.

"I have seen many of the fugitive missionaries on their way through Hankow to the coast. On the one hand they have brought much sadness to my mind; but they have brought much joy also. Their patience, their courage, their love, their zeal, their determination to return to their work; all these things have impressed my mind deeply. Then the stories they have to tell of their converts are very inspiring. Almost to a man in the midst of all their trials. As the missionaries were leaving, the converts assured them that they would cling to Christ and their profession of his name. 'We will meet as before,' they said, 'and read our Bibles, and pray. We do not promise to sing, for that might involve us in trouble, but we will not forsake the assembling of ourselves together.'

THE CONVERTS BEHAVED SPLENDIDLY

"God will overrule the Sze-chwan troubles for good. The missionaries will soon return to their respective posts, the chapels and hospitals will be rebuilt, and the work of God in that magnificent province will be carried on with more energy and efficiency than ever. We are not going to accept the expulsion of the missionaries from Sze-chwan as the signal of defeat, but take it as a solemn trumpet call to advance."

MONTORFANO, ITALY.

The readers of The Christian will be glad to know that the appeal on behalf of the Alpine Evangelicals has produced enough to warrant our beginning to build. It is true that not all that is needed has as yet come in. The expense of carrying out the entire plan, comprising church or preaching-hall on the ground floor, and schoolrooms, with teachers' residence, on the upper, now that estimates have been carefully prepared, has been found to amount to something more than the figure originally and roughly calculated. Including the ground, which has cost about £14 (we were compelled to buy of a non-resident Roman Catholic proprietor in order to have a site really suitable), the entire cost will amount to £245. But the scheme can be divided into two parts, the first comprising the shell of the entire building, and the church. This we can put up for £200, and here, if our funds fail us, we can stop. Now, as we have received in gifts and promises £192, we feel quite warranted in setting to work. We much hope that the deficit will be made up before the money is needed; and if not, we shall have to do what is most imperatively required—viz., erect a house in which to worship God before the winter sets in, without running into debt.

The following incident illustrates the spirit of the villagers and neighbourhood. On Sunday, the 14th July, the parish priest proposed to celebrate the restitution of the ancient edifice to Roman Catholic worship. He accordingly issued invitations to all good Catholics of the neighbouring hamlets to flock to Montorfano to a solemn religious function. They came in hundreds. Our people received them courteously, opening to the strangers their houses, gardens, and fields. By-and-by our minister, Sig. Cavazzutti, from Omegua, made his appearance, and the bell was rung, calling his congregation together to an open-air service on the hill-side. With our own people came trooping the strangers. In vain the priest had a counter-peal sounded from the edifice whose restitution to the "true worship" was that day to be celebrated. The large majority of the strangers preferred to remain outside and listen to the "heretic" preacher, who joyfully proclaimed to them for upwards of an hour the Gospel of the grace of God. Nor was this all. For an hour afterwards Sig. Cavazzutti, his excellent wife, and the converted villagers themselves, were busy passing from group to group, distributing tracts, selling portions of the Scriptures, and enforcing by personal conversation and appeal the truths that had been that day brought to their ears.

Many thanks to all who through The Christian have kindly sent contributions, several anonymously, so that I cannot otherwise acknowledge their gifts. Any help towards the balance that yet remains to be gathered in, in order that our building scheme may be carried out without suspension, will be gratefully received.

Henry J. Piggott.

Rome, 28, Via delle Coppelle.

MRS. HORLOCK'S HOLIDAY AND CONVALESCENT HOMES, at Southend-on-Sea, exist for the benefit of working men and women and delicate children of the London poor. They are in the Southchurch-road, and stand in their own grounds. During the past ten years 10,414 inmates have been received, and the air of Southend has worked wonders upon the sickly-looking girls and pale-faced children of the Metropolis. The secretary is Mr. F. White, 49, Finsbury Pavement, London, E.C.

RAILWAYS AND THE LORD'S DAY.

At the last meeting of the shareholders of the Midland Railway Company, the momorial of the Shareholders' Union, for the defence of the Sabbath, was presented, signed by 581 proprietors. The object was to effect the discontinuance of the Sunday goods traffic. Mr. J. Fox Wilson, secretary of the Union, writes to us from 22, Western-road, St. Leonards :—

The presentation had a more marked effect than was the case last year, when a stormy episode took place, almost preventing our spokesman from being heard. This year there were interruptions, but the shareholders present and the chairman evidently realised that we were in earnest, and meant business. Mr. Horneck, in his address, said the gains by Sunday labour were nil, and the Company had no more right to run heavy goods trains on Sunday than the manufacturer had to run his mills, or the farmer to work his plough. It was a direct violation of the Fourth Commandment, and they could not expect God to bless them while they continued in such a course. (Interruption.) In reply, the chairman pointed out that other companies must be approached as well as the Midland, an assertion which Mr. Horneck, knowing the programme of the Shareholders' Union, was able to tell him he would be forward to do.

On the whole, we were quite satisfied that the protest, having been entered, had done its work, and these hard-headed business men had been obliged to recognise the presence among them of an attachment to Sabbath-loving principle, of a kind which would not bend to expediency. Our efforts must now be directed towards a renewal of the struggle by increasing, as the necessary funds are raised, the number of signatures. All the subscribers to the memorial shall be communicated with, in order to keep them abreast of the movement. This we shall do, as last year, by circular.

At the same time, "in nothing terrified by our adversaries," we are commencing a canvass of the Great Western shareholders against Sunday excursions, Sunday theatrical, and Sunday League trains, and in opposition to the Sunday goods traffic. The funds for this effort are in our hands. Should our friends support us still further, as we believe they will, we shall hope shortly to begin work among London and North-Western shareholders, with similar objects in view. Our task requires the constant exercise of all our faith and courage.

AMONG BOYS IN CAMP.

Major Liebenrood writes from Whitby:—There has been wonderful blessing in all the University camps. Nearly every boy in my camp at Deal has been blessed, and many decided for Christ. I hear also from one who has just arrived from the second camp at Highcliffe, where there are 120 boys, that the same thing is true.

Many of these boys were quite unconverted on their arrival. There were a good many big fellows, from most of the large public schools; in fact, the very class we are aiming to reach.

The children's services here are well attended. Messrs. Dennis and Furze are the leaders, and report much encouragement among the children. Col. Graves, and myself, and others, have given small help at the morning prayer-meeting.

I think we may thankfully acknowledge that God is wonderfully owning his work among our children and young people, and to Him be all the praise.

THE FREE EVENING CLASSES held at the Pastors' College for the study of theology, Greek, Latin, literature, logic, etc., have resumed. Intending students are requested to apply to the secretary, Mr. G. Hall, Pastors' College, Temple-street, Newington, S.E., enclosing stamped envelope for reply.

MEDICAL MISSIONARY SCHOLARSHIPS.—The need of missionary lady doctors is increasingly felt, but many are unable to study owing to the great expense incurred. To meet this difficulty entrance scholarships (giving free education for one year) are offered at the Edinburgh School of Medicine for Women to those who desire to become medical missionaries and are unable to meet the whole expenses of the course. In case of special desert further aid may be given by the Missionary Committee at the end of the first year. Candidates must have passed the preliminary examination in Arts, or be ready to pass it in October, 1895. Application should be made to the Secretary, School of Medicine for Women, Surgeon-square, Edinburgh, with stamped and addressed envelope for reply.

The Book World.

SEPTEMBER MAGAZINES.

The current issues of The Young Man and The Young Woman are full of excellent reading. In the former there is also a sketch of Mr. Baring Gould at home. The estimate of George Tinworth and his work, given in the latter serial by Rev. R. E. Welsh, is admirable and worthy of its subject. The Home Messenger gives a portrait and short sketch of Rev. J. Ossian Davies.

Mr. Crockett's Covenanting tale, "The Men of the Moss Hags," continues to hold the place of honour in Good Words, and Dr. Stalker's Sunday Readings on St. John are full of practical suggestion. In The Sunday Magazine there is a brief but comprehensive sketch by Rev. A. R. Buckland of the life work of "A.L.O.E.," and an illustrated interview with Rev. S. Baring Gould, the clergyman-novelist of Devonshire. (Isbister & Co.)

The Quiver (6d. Cassell & Co.) for this month has a good and judicious mixture of the solid and the sketchy. Among the former is a most practical paper by Dr. G. F. Pentecost, on the lack of individual consecration in our churches. Something for every Church member to do is Dr. Pentecost's motto. The article by Miss Beale on "Religious Teaching in Girls' Schools," and the illustrated sketch of "Newcastle as a Centre of Church Activity," are outstanding specimens of the latter. Rev. P. B. Power's inimitable tale of "The Haunted Wig" is in a category by itself. Last of all is the editor's practical scheme for providing Quiver playgrounds for slum children.

The accounts of "Sunday in East London," which have been appearing for months past in The Sunday at Home, form an admirable and trustworthy addition to the literature of Christian effort in our great city. This month the work of the East-end Wesleyan Mission, of the Congregational Union at Medland Hall, of Miss Childs and Miss Steer are all set forth succinctly and sympathetically. In his article, "Sunday in the North Sea," Mr. G. A. Hutchison tells over again from ample knowledge the story of the splendid work accomplished by the "Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen." The Leisure Hour, besides many attractive articles of general interest, has a fully illustrated account of the work of the Bermondsey "Settlement," and of Browning Hall, Walworth. (R.T.S.)

MISSIONARY LITERATURE.

A Winter's Mails from Ceylon, India, and Egypt (1s. Church Missionary Society), contains a number of very readable letters written home by Georgina A. Gollock during a tour undertaken by herself and a friend, for the sake of physical refreshment, with a strong under-current of desire to see missionary work. Miss Gollock is an observant traveller, and her pages are bright with animation and full of missionary interest.

Ten Decades: The Australian Centenary Story of the London Missionary Society. By Rev. Joseph King, the Society's organising agent for Australasia. (2s. Snow & Co.) The writer of this illustrated sketch was at one time engaged in mission work in Samoa. He has compressed a large body of facts into his book, which will be specially interesting to Christians in the Southern hemisphere. The toils of other societies are often mentioned in terms of hearty sympathy.

The Dominion of Christ: The Claims of Foreign Missions in the Light of Modern Religious Thought and a Century of Experience. By William Pierce, minister of New Court Chapel, Tollington Park. (3s. 6d. H. R. Allenson.) This is an unofficial contribution to the Centenary Celebration of the London Missionary Society. Its advocacy of world-wide evangelisation is stronger than its theological position is sure on controverted points. The author makes ungenerous reflections upon undenominational effort, and maintains that the L.M.S. should become a branch of organised Congregationalism.

A Hundred Years of Missions; or, The Story of Progress since Carey's Beginning. By Rev. Delavan L. Leonard, D.D. (6s. Funk and Wagnalls.) Dr. A. T. Pierson writes a cordial introduction to this substantial volume, the author of which is widely known as associate editor of the Missionary Review of the World. The object of the book is to describe the important and characteristic facts and features of missionary history and fields. From first to last Dr. Leonard aims at meeting the inquiries of Christian youth, his hope being that many whose ears have been opened to the Macedonian cry may find in his pages somewhat to quicken their prayers and direct their steps. The book is strong in narrative and description; and it should not be overlooked by students of the history of God's kingdom. In outlining the philosophy of missions, Dr. Leonard does not overlook what has been called the "romance"; and he has produced a very useful and readable book.

New Thing: Incidents of Missionary Life in China. By F. M. Williams. (3s. 6d. Partridge.) Dr. J. Elder Cumming writes an introduction to this volume, in which, with many effective illustrations, Miss Williams outlines six years of mission life and labour. The pages present extracts from letters and journals, written in north-east Si-ch'uan, in which district eight years ago there had been no Protestant missionary, whereas at the present time there are five centres of effort and a band of thirty workers. From the beginning it has been the prayer of each worker that God would fulfil his promise in Isa. xliii. 19, and do "a new thing" in the region; and this book recounts, to the glory of God, how the promise has begun to be fulfilled. Miss Williams went out in 1887 in connection with the China Inland Mission, and in the spring of the following year left for her distant sphere, three months' journey up the Yang-tse River. The inwardness of mission work is well reflected in these pages; and in an appendix a short sketch is given of the inception, development, and present position of the C.I.M., the stations of which are marked on a special map.

Old Groans and New Songs. By F. C. Jennings. (New York: Loizeaux Brothers, Bible Truth Depôt, 63, Fourth Avenue.) This is a series of meditations on the Book of Ecclesiastes. The pages evince expository insight, and are rich in spiritual lessons.

Messrs. Cassell & Co. have issued abridged and popular editions of the illustrated official guides to the London and North-Western, London and South-Western, and Great Eastern Railways (3d. each). They give much useful and interesting information to travellers and tourists in a condensed form.

The papers by some leading lady writers on The Ideal Husband which have appeared in The Young Woman are published in neat book form by Messrs. H. Marshall and Son, 125, Fleet-street (1s.) The views expressed are in every way worthy the attention both of prospective husbands and wives, and their dissemination cannot fail to do good.

The Golden Circle, and Links in the Golden Chain, Proceeding from the Cross of Christ. By James Mountford, Evangelist, of Alton, Staffordshire. (2s. E. Knight, 18, Middle-street, Aldersgate, E.C.) Old-fashioned discourses, characterised by Methodist fervour, and rousing appeal. Mr. Mountford knows his Bible, and is familiar with hymns of the most spiritual type.

The Children's League of Pity Paper tells of what well-to-do children are doing to help those who are the special care of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The second volume of the "Paper," beautifully illustrated, and in every way tastefully produced, will be a welcome present to boys and girls, and it may do good to them and others if it excites pity for the neglected and distressed. (1s. 6d., bound. Offices of the N.S.P.C.C., Harpur-street, Bloomsbury, W.C.)

Lights and Shadows of Church Life. By John Stoughton, D.D. (6s. Hodder & Stoughton.) The veteran author has been well advised to publish these deeply interesting researches into the growth and development of the visible Church during the first six centuries of the Christian era. He has brought to the task a mind singularly free from preconceptions or sectarian bias, and the result is a vivid, if condensed, sketch of the struggles of the early Church before it became a vassal of the State. Much labour has been expended on the work, and it will be valued by all earnest students of the past.

How Christ Came to Church.—Years ago, the lamented Dr. Gordon, of Boston, in a dream saw Christ enter his church among the worshippers. The emotions and heart-searchings suggested by the vision marked an epoch in the pastor's career. Ever afterwards the endeavour was to order the service and preach the Gospel with a sense of Christ's realised presence. Doctrine and practice were reviewed; Holy Scripture was henceforth accorded its supreme authority; and the Holy Spirit's place and influence duly and constantly recognised. In this book Dr. Gordon relates the dream, and tells the story of what came of it. Dr. A. T. Pierson supplements the spiritual autobiography of his friend with his life-story, and adds chapters on the dream as interpreting the man. The book is calculated to prove a blessing to prayerful readers, and a prefixed photograph makes it an interesting memorial of the Christian teacher whose complete biography many will hail with satisfaction. (3s. 6d. Baptist Tract and Book Society, 16, Gray's Inn-road, W.C.)

TINNEVELLY.—Evangelistic work among the children of Tinnevelly is energetically carried on by the C.M.S. in that district. Its report says that "Direct spiritual work is done by two missionaries who regularly go about the district holding special services for the young in their own villages. During the year they have gone round the whole district, and have been enabled by God's grace to do good and lasting work."

THE Y.M.C.A.

A new Association has been formed at Worksop, Notts. Eighty young men attended the opening meeting.

The Exmouth Association, which continues to do an excellent work, was visited last week by Mr. G. H. Lee and Mr. Hind Smith, of the National Council. Addresses were given at an evening meeting, at which there was an encouraging attendance.

A Keswick re-union meeting, in connection with the York Association, was held in the Soldiers' Institute. The object was to bring together the many friends who had attended the Keswick Conference this year, that non-attenders might share some of the blessing. Canon Fausset and other friends spoke.

Sir George Williams took part in three meetings of the Belfast Association on the 17th inst. His presence was hailed with delight by the members and friends of the Association, and at each meeting the largest hall of the Association was filled to overflowing, and many had to be content with standing room.

The Dowager Lady Haldon lent her beautiful grounds, the Manor House, Torquay, for a large influential garden party for the furtherance of the work of the local Association on the 21st inst. Bishop Hellmuth, who presided, dwelt at length upon the excellent work done by the Association in his diocese in Canada.

A report just to hand shows that an earnest effort is being made by the Calcutta Association to secure suitable premises as a permanent home for its work. It is intended to provide also a large central hall which shall be available for united meetings of the churches. The movement was commenced at the close of Rev. John McNeill's mission, when 1350 Rs. were contributed as a thank-offering. This sum has since been added to, and the total amount now given and promised is 17,200 Rs. The Calcutta Association has done excellent work throughout the past year.

Four Y.M.C.A. presidents have found seats for the first time in the new House of Commons, viz., Mr. Emerson Bainbridge, president of the Sheffield Association, for Gainsborough; Mr. Bemrose, president of the Derby Association, for Derby; Mr. J. Compton Rickett, president of the Croydon Association, for Scarborough; and Mr. Robinson Souttar, president of the Oxford Association, for Dumfriesshire. Among Y.M.C.A. leaders who retain seats in the House are Sir H. H. Houldsworth, East Manchester; Sir John Kennaway, East Devon; and Mr. Samuel Smith, the old and well-known member for Flintshire.

Y.W.C.A. IN INDIA.

The Keswick Convention and Quiet Days which opened the Y.W.C.A. winter work last year resulted in the sending forth of several to Y.W.C.A. work in India, and as these feel that their work is "pioneer" they call for "volunteers" to come to their help this winter. Several hill station branches have been closed this hot weather for want of workers, others could be open but for the same want. The cold weather is before us, during which it is possible to itinerate and visit the small branches and organise fresh work and railway centres.

From Darjeeling we hear of such blessing on the branch there that a small institute has been opened. One writes:—"How I wish you could have a peep at our bright little institute. The book-room is, I feel sure, a real blessing in the place, and our stock, though not large, is well chosen and attractive. A good many Bibles have been sold; of these we always keep a very good selection. Texts of all kinds for the walls disappear very quickly. Until this institute was opened English Bibles could not be got in Darjeeling." Hon. Mrs. Waller, 17, Old Cavendish-street, London, W., will be glad to receive parcels to forward to India.

Another writes:—"God has been very gracious to give me the strength to keep up; but it has been too much for me. Our institute is being greatly blest; it is not so small as you think, we could receive three or four boarders provided our rooms were furnished. Everything looks attractive."

Turning from this fashionable hill station, we have received an earnest appeal for volunteers from a secretary of one of the Bombay Y.W.C.A. branches, who writes: "This year we have been led to Keswick to wait upon the Lord that we may know his will and hear his voice; and we are very glad that the needs of the Bombay Y.W.C.A. have been made known, and we believe that God will choose a worker for that valuable Association. How? Stay, listen! Does his voice speak to you?

"The work in Bombay among English-speaking people (numbering 3000) which was started some twenty years ago, grows and develops; time after time earnest Christian women have worked nobly as hon. general secretaries, amid their other duties as heads of families, etc. But the work has now grown so large, and new branches are springing up which need guidance and direction, so that the time has come for some sister to obey the Master's call and consecrate her heart's interests, her whole time, her talents, her means, to this work. There are many helpers ready to strengthen her hands, an increasing membership (already about 400), steady prayerful interest, an active committee, but no general secretary. May no reader of these lines lay them aside unless she can faithfully answer 'I am not called to this work,' and then may she from her heart add, 'O Lord, send forth thy chosen servant speedily.'"

G. K.

IRISH NOTES.

The Gospel tents of the Irish Baptist Home Mission are now in full working order. Pastor Jardine reports successful times at Banbridge, and Mr. Harry L. Dixon, who nightly sings in the tent at Cullenswood, reports most favourably of the meetings.

At a meeting of the Irish Presbyterian Assembly's Board of Missions, at Portrush, Rev. William Park reported that there had been guaranteed for the support of the student volunteers up to date the sum of about £3,300, spread over five years. This would enable them to send out three men, as the resolution of the Assembly requires £200 for five years to be guaranteed for each man before he be sent out. A gentleman in county Derry has offered £500, and his sister £125, spread over five years, and the Londonderry Foreign Missionary Society has resolved to undertake the support of a volunteer itself. So great is the enthusiasm with which the matter has been taken up that there is good hope that there may be sufficient guarantee forthcoming to send out also the other two men next year, and any others who may offer.

SCOTTISH NOTES.

Rev. Dr. Black, of the Free High Church, Inverness, met with an accident recently, breaking three of his ribs. He has been forbidden by his medical adviser to engage in pulpit work for some time.

The memorial stone has been laid of a new Free Church at Inveraray. Rev. James Chalmers, of New Guinea, who was present at the ceremony, said that he delivered his first public address in the old Free Church.

Rev. W. J. Macdonald, of St. Brycedale Free Church, Kirkcaldy, who has lately been laid aside from active work, through weakness in his eyesight, will spend the winter in Nice, with a view to his restoration.

On Sunday week Rev. P. Anton conducted a memorial service on the Battlefield of Kilsyth to commemorate the 250th anniversary of the engagement in which 6000 Covenanters were slain by the clansmen of the Marquis of Montrose.

Rev. Allen D. Jeffery, of Bath-lane Congregational Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne, occupied the pulpit at the evening service in the Established Church, New Rothesay, on Sunday week. This is the first occasion on which a Congregational minister has officiated in the church. Mr. Jeffery, who has been staying at Rothesay, preached at the invitation of the minister of the parish, Rev. J. Meek.

On Sunday week a special afternoon religious service for the aged and infirm was held in a granary at Kincaple. It was conducted by Rev. J. R. M'Nab, Strathkinness, and there was a large attendance. Later in the afternoon an open-air evangelistic meeting was held at the west end of the village. This meeting was also largely attended, and was addressed by a party of evangelists from St. Andrews.

Owing to some misunderstanding through the minister's absence on a holiday, Buckie congregation were nearly pastorless on Sunday week. At midnight on Saturday, however, intimation of the unprovided pulpit reached Rev. J. W. Duncan, a probationer in Aberdeen, and at 1 a.m. he mounted his bicycle and started to cover the intervening seventy miles. He reached Buckie in good time, but too exhausted to conduct the morning service. In the evening he was sufficiently rested to occupy the pulpit.

The new missionary ship Dayspring, intended for work in the New Hebrides, in connection with Dr. J. G. Paton's work, was launched last week in the Clyde. There was a large gathering of friends of the mission. Lord Overtoun delivered a short address, remarking that the new vessel would go to the South Seas with the best wishes of everyone for her welfare, and for the success of the mission work there. Lady Overtoun performed the ceremony of naming the new vessel, and the Dayspring moved into the water amid the cheers of the assembled company. The new steamer will visit several ports before setting out for her station.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

A Chinese catechist has been engaged by the local Christian Endeavour Union of Wellington, New Zealand, to labour among the Chinese residents of the city.

A branch of the Y.P.S.C.E. has recently been started in the new Baptist chapel at Lerwick, Shetland. It is the first in the county, it consists of twenty-five members, and has already been a blessing.

A visitor at an Australian Christian Endeavour society was somewhat startled to see a big constable enter the room. She felt more at ease, however, when the constable took off his official cap and took a seat at the table in front of the society and led the meeting. He was the vice-president of that society.

At Latimer Chapel, Stepney, on Sunday week, the whole of the evening service, except the sermon, which was preached by Rev. J. W. Atkinson, was conducted by members of the Christian Endeavour Society. A large congregation seemed deeply impressed by the prayers and ministrations of the members.

"There is no limit to the blessing the Endeavour Society may bring," says Rev. Andrew Murray, "under the guidance of a wise, humble, truthful dependence on God's spirit in training young Christians to lives of devotion to the interests of God's kingdom and their fellow creatures. There is a wonderful future before the Endeavour movement, on one condition: that its leaders and members persistently offer it to God for the filling and renewing and thanksgiving of the Holy Ghost."

PROTECTION OF CHILDREN IN FRANCE.

Since the Loi Beranger was voted in 1889, to give full liberty to institutions, societies, and even private individuals to withhold children from parents and others whose conduct is proved to be injurious, two ladies, Mme. de Barran and her friend, Mme. Kergomard, started l'Union Française du Sauvetage de l'Enfance, which spread all over the country.

I recently paid a visit to Die, Drôme. Here Mme. Marzials, widow of the late Pastor Marzials, resides. She has there her orphanage (formerly at Barnave), and opened, a few months ago, an industrial school, where young girls may learn needlework or be trained as servants. I was asked to give a lecture on "Le Sauvetage Moral de l'Enfance Abandonnée." The town hall was lent free for Mme. Marzials' work.

I was privileged a few years ago to found the Union des Amis des Enfants, which has now about 600 members, not only in France, but in England, Switzerland, and other countries. Our aim is not only to care for the bodies of the little ones, but, above all, to bring them to Christ. We have our publication, Le Bienfaiteur, which gives a monthly record of the Union's work.

I am glad to say that the result of my visit to Mme. Marzials' work is to extend it more widely. Mme. Marzials is most grateful to all who have helped her during the five years of her widowhood—a time of hard struggles—but she has learned to lean on God, who is her strength and stay, and has been blessed in every way.

A. A. Boisson, Pasteur.

Thiers, Puy de Dôme.

TRAINING MISSIONARIES IN SPAIN.

Readers of The Christian know well enough that many English-speaking missionaries are at work in different parts of Spain, but it may not be so generally known that there is a Missionary Training College in Puerto Santa Maria, for training native preachers and teachers. If the country is to be evangelised it must be from within. The foreigner, even though he acquire the best Spanish, is apt to introduce "outlandish" ideas.

Hence the raison d'être of the institution at Puerto, an institution which has already sent out eleven well-equipped labourers into the field. It has nine students at present in residence; but, as they come in general from the poorer classes, they are not able to pay the £30 required to maintain them in the house during the nine months' session. The churches at home provide for the teachers in the college, and the native church helps to provide a house for college purposes; but there is just this little gap which, if unfilled, may spoil all—money is required to provide for the lads whilst they are inmates of the institution. About £150 will be required for next session.

Rev. W. B. Douglas, B.A., B.D., one of the tutors of the College, is at present in Britain, and would be happy to send reports or other literature bearing on the subject to any who are minded to help. Letters addressed to 10, Old Jewry Chambers, E.C., will find him till the middle of September; after that his address will be Palacios 62, Puerto Santa Maria, Spain.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Mr. Henry Thorne has conducted the Sunday afternoon and evening services at Exeter Hall during August. The Word was preached with power, many conversions taking place, and slumbering believers were aroused.

Messrs. Robert P. Wilder and Max Moorhead have held a successful series of mission services in Poona. The meetings were at first conducted and the addresses given in Marathi; the later gatherings were conducted in English.

Milford, Surrey.—A very successful twenty-two days' tent mission, conducted by Mr. Geo. London, of the Evangelisation Society, has been held here. The meetings were well attended, and the earnest preaching of the evangelist was greatly blessed.

Mr. R. Lapsley, of the Evangelisation Society (Scottish Branch), concluded a successful mission in a tent at Juniper Green, Edinburgh, on Tuesday, August 20, with blessed results. Deep interest was taken in all the meetings throughout the mission. D. P.

Mr. Charles Taylor, with the Midland Bible Carriage, has been working for the last fortnight at Skegness, and hopes to continue there until the end of September. Thousands of books have been scattered, and much interest is felt at the meetings held every night.

Mr. Clement Palser has concluded an eight days' mission at Corydon, Wayne co., Iowa. Meetings were held in the Baptist and Methodist Churches and public park. The Gospel has been earnestly and faithfully preached; souls have been awakened and found their way to Jesus.

Lord Polwarth and Mr. Charles Inglis have been addressing large audiences in the grounds of Chillingham Castle, Northumberland. Meetings have been held two and three times daily, and all classes have been brought together from long distances to listen to the "Old, Old Story,"

Old Ford, E.—Messrs. Shields and Brown, of Harley College, have finished an eighteen days' tent mission, under the auspices of the Old Ford "Out and Out" Band. Quite a number have professed conversion. Children's meetings were held nearly every afternoon, and many were led to trust the Lord Jesus. We have seldom known a work of grace like it amongst the children of Old Ford. R. J. S.

Mitcheldean, Glos.—Mr. John Coates, and his friends of the "Ross Tent Mission," have recently held a ten days' mission here, which has been attended by considerable success. Night after night the people were gathered from far and near, to listen to the "Old Story," told in simple language, but with great earnestness. At the last meeting, the large tent was crowded to overflowing. The tent is now removed to Bishop's Frome in Herefordshire, where the evangelist is holding a mission among the hop-pickers. Thos. Hireson, Congregational Minister.

Mr. Henry Collins, Evangelisation Society, has been the preacher at Dr. Barnardo's Edinburgh Castle during August. From the first he found favour with the people, and increasing congregations testified to the deepening interest in the mission. His addresses have been most helpful and stimulating, and not without "signs following." Mr. Collins is peculiarly happy in his sermons to children, and during the month has addressed large gatherings of the boys and girls resident in Dr. Barnardo's Homes. The young people seemed deeply interested and impressed. W. R. N.

Irish Evangelisation Society.—Messrs. Carleton and Miskimmin have concluded a series of Evangelistic meetings at Adare, co. Limerick, in a moveable wooden hall. At the beginning they met with much opposition, and for a time were practically boycotted. After a few nights their hearts were cheered by seeing the people beginning to come, and for seven weeks the meetings were continued nightly with increasing power and blessing. Many testified to the power of the precious blood. Prayer is asked that the Protestants in these southern and western towns may awaken to a sense of their responsibility toward those who are without.

PRAISE.—For good done at London-road Hall, Kettering, since opening four years ago. Also pray for richer and fuller blessing during this year's efforts.

A FLOURISHING MISSION.—The annual report of the American Reformed Presbyterian Mission in India, which includes details of the work done in seven mission centres, twelve sub-stations and neighbouring villages, states that, "Notwithstanding that the year 1894 was a year of trial, it has been a year of great blessing to us. Two new districts have been added, our congregations have grown, and our Christian community has been more than doubled. There has been much to encourage and stimulate the workers, and the work has been generally prosperous."

PERSONALIA.

Mr. Eugene Stock, editorial secretary of the Church Missionary Society, is going to Canada in the autumn, to remain till Christmas.

Rev. H. C. G. Moule and his wife are staying at North Malvern. Their many friends will rejoice to hear that Mrs. Moule's health is much improved.

Rev. George C. Grubb, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Campbell, and Mr. E. C. Millard expect to leave England on September 14, for a sixth months' mission tour in Canada.

Bishop Taylor, who is now 74 years of age, is at present in New York superintending the publication of his autobiography, telling the story of fifty-three years' incessant missionary journeyings and labours.

Dr. Arthur T. Pierson has presented to each student of the Pastors' College, London, a copy of his last volume of lectures, "The New Acts of the Apostles." Dr. Pierson has arranged to visit England in the spring of next year.

Mr. Henry Toye, of the Home for the Fatherless, Lewisham-road, S.E., writes to us: "Allow me to thank the kind friends who responded to my dear children's request for prayer on my behalf. God has answered their request, and although I am very low and weak, yet He has raised me up from the very gates of death. May I now ask for united thanksgiving for sparing my life, and also, if it be his will, for a speedy recovery."

Madame D'Aubigne.—A correspondent of the Dundee Advertiser, describing a visit while at Grindelwald to Madame D'Aubigné, widow of the renowned historian of the Reformation, writes:—"A most pleasant-faced old lady is Madame D'Aubigné, vivacious, interesting, most kindly, beloved by all who are privileged with her friendship. She is Irish by birth, and is wealthy in a family of earnest sons and daughters, who are after her own and their father's heart. One son is a pastor in Paris, working in connection with the McAll Mission there; another is a minister in Belgium. She has entertaining missionary experiences and stories to relate, and she tells them in a fluent and graphic style."

Khama, chief of Bamangwato, North Bechuanaland, has started for England. This well-known Christian chief, who has played a great part in the extension of British influence in South Africa, is making the journey to England to acquaint himself with the country and people, to obtain an interview with the Queen, and to confer with the Colonial Office. He wishes to remain directly under the Government of the Queen. Rumours have reached him that Bamangwato and the rest of the Bechuanaland Protectorate are to be handed over to the Chartered Company, but for the present Khama is hardly prepared to accept the protection of that Corporation in lieu of the protection of the Queen of England.

Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh.—For more than twenty years this well-known evangelist has been battling against the darker forms of infidelity, but is now in embarrassed circumstances, consequent upon having admitted into the columns of his paper, The Anti-Infidel, a report of a public debate, containing a misstatement by one of the speakers. Forthwith a prominent member of the National Secular Hall Society entered an action for libel, and obtained £30 damages, which together with the costs on both sides amounted to £306 19s. 6d. Of this sum Mr. Bradlaugh has paid £230 19s. 6d., but there is still left a balance of £76 due to his solicitors. Mr. Bradlaugh attains his jubilee on September 21, and it is proposed to celebrate the event by clearing off the outstanding debt, and furnishing him with at least £100, so that he may scatter broadcast his anti-infidel literature. Mr. Bradlaugh's address is 70, King's Cross-road, W.C.

MISSION WORK AT HOME.—There is plenty of mission work to be done in "Christian" England. A correspondent, writing to The Record, urges "Open-air Services." If the Bishop of Sodor and Man can gather ten or twelve thousand hearers on Douglas Head, why should not Evangelical bishops and deans do the same in the metropolis? "I read recently in a London daily paper the estimate that, in the metropolis alone, three and a-half millions of the inhabitants never enter any place of worship. And how about the other great centres? Are things better there? Can we say that they are? Alas! no. And yet open-air services will draw them. Can it be doubted when we read that 'the stream of pedestrians from Douglas was about equal numerically to one which may be seen on Saturday afternoons in Yorkshire flowing in the direction of an anticipated football match'; and further, that 'no jarring elements were observable, that simplicity, heartiness, reverence, and worship prevailed throughout'?"

OBITUARY.

MRS. BUCKLEY, ORISSA.

The Society for Promoting Female Education in the East has lost one of its earliest and most active missionaries by the death of Mrs. Buckley, of Cuttack, Orissa. Mrs. Buckley—or Miss Derry, as she was then—was appointed by the committee to take charge of an Orphan School in Berhampore, Orissa, in 1841, and she reached her destination in December of that year, so that at the time of her death she had completed over fifty-three years of active service in missionary work. Among her pupils were girls rescued from the Khonds, who stole or purchased female children, whom they fattened, to sacrifice alive to the goddess of the Haldi fields. She was permitted to see much fruit from her labours amongst them, and to train many of them to be teachers to their country people. Miss Derry subsequently became the wife of Rev. J. Buckley, of Cuttack, also in Orissa, and there she lived and worked until the Lord called her to cease from her labours.

MR. GEORGE STURT, BOURNEMOUTH.

This Christian brother has just passed away at the age of sixty-five. Brought to a knowledge of the Saviour at a comparatively early age, Mr. Sturt took a keen and lively interest in every effort that concerned the advancement of his Saviour's kingdom. Besides being a strong believer in the principles of total abstinence, the work of the London City Mission, the Religious Tract Society, and foreign missionary agencies lay close to his heart. Though not himself a public speaker, his spirit was strongly Evangelical, and, his sympathies being broad, his ready help was always forthcoming where he believed men to be doing real work on the lines of his Master's will.

In business he achieved considerable success, building up a large and flourishing establishment, from an active participation in which he retired about five years since. He was known in the commercial world as a man of strict integrity and uprightness, and this quality, combined with a sincere regard for the welfare of all those who were under him, produced a feeling of genuine affection amongst his employees. Mr. Sturt left two sons and one daughter to mourn his loss. The elder son (Mr. Rowland Sturt) has been for several years one of the honorary staff of the Evangelisation Society, and the second son (Mr. Charles Sturt) was the first honorary secretary of the Bournemouth Y.M.C.A. Miss Sturt is connected with the Y.W.C.A. in the same town.

WESLEYAN MISSION IN FRANCE.

The evangelistic work, founded and carried on for sixteen years by the late Rev. William Gibson in various parts of France, is now ably conducted by Rev. G. Whelpton. He and his Anglo-French committee are striving hard to preserve it from retrenchment. For many years my husband held Sunday evening services in the Boulevard des Capucines No. 39, the public lecture hall. But two or three years ago, to his great grief, we were driven out to make room for performing gorillas or something equally edifying and lucrative in the line of spiritualism. Mr. Whelpton is now very anxious to re-open the religious lectures in some public thoroughfare. Only lately I craved your sympathy for the Bonne Nouvelle, which used to be distributed by hundreds to the loungers on the Boulevards every Sunday evening. This week I would fain interest you in the re-establishment of these services, which aim specially at the lower classes.

France is worth saving, from many points of view. We have all been touched to the quick by the recent harrowing news from China. Think, then, of the hundreds of thousands of French martyrs! Surely the race that could bear what France once bore for love of Christ would make as good missionaries as martyrs, and would thus join in preparing the way for the coming of the Lord. But so far France woefully needs the Gospel for herself, and to England is being granted the privilege of taking it to her. Many Christians are now awaking and trimming their lamps; but what of the millions who have neither lamps nor oil? Are we "wise to understand," and shall we not use our wisdom to instruct the ignorant? And "so much the more" as we "see the day approaching."

Mr. Whelpton's address is 4, Rue Roquepine, Paris, but as I am in England till October I shall be glad to receive and acknowledge any help that may be sent. (Mrs.) Helen W. Gibson.

Burlington House, Buxton.

DUBLIN.—The annual Christian Convention will be held in Dublin, in the Christian Union Buildings, from Sept. 30 to Oct. 3. Amongst those who have promised to attend are Archdeacon Sinclair, Rev. E. N. Thwaites, and Rev. Andrew Murray.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Eighty-one young men from Prcb. Webb-Peploe's church at Onslow-square have been trained for the ministry, of whom fifteen are in foreign lands.

Rev. E. Brooke Bradley, Rev. Eustace Jervis, and Rev. A. W. Story have been appointed members of the Gloucester College of Diocesan Missioners, and will commence work on September 29. The regular staff of the college now numbers seven clergy, who devote themselves to diocesan work.

Rev. F. V. Dodgson, vicar of Tysoe, on Sunday week had an evening Communion service in his church for the first time. The service took the form of a thanksgiving service, and there was a large congregation. A fortnight's Tent Mission has been held in the parish by an evangelist of the Church Army. The services had been well attended, the tent, which holds 200 people, being frequently too small to accommodate those who came. Lord and Lady Compton, of Compton-Wynyates, attended the services, and on the opening evening Lord Compton gave an earnest address.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The foundation stones of a new chapel have been laid at Bagillt. It is to accommodate 300 persons.

Miss Florence Horsfall, a member of Lee Church, Bolton, has been accepted for missionary work in Mexico.

The Welsh Independents have decided to raise a fund of £20,000, "to assist the weaker churches, and to move forward to reclaim the unattached in Wales, and the Welsh in English towns."

Prof. George Adam Smith, of the Free Church College, Glasgow, has consented to preach the sermon in connection with the autumnal assembly of the Congregational Union in the Dome at Brighton, on Monday, September 30. The Mayor of Brighton is inviting the delegates to a reception.

A deputation from the American Congregational churches is about to visit Japan, with a view to the consideration of certain problems which have arisen as to the future conduct of Christian missions in that country. Missionary effort in Japan has been largely in the hands of Americans, chief among whom have been the Congregationalists.

Calls.—Rev. J. W. Edwards, Niwbwlch, Anglesey, to Penrhyndendraeth (accepted); Rev. A. Bond, Narborough, Leicester, to Prestwich, near Manchester (accepted); Rev. J. Mydyr Evans, Brynmawr, to English Congregational Church, Barry Dock (accepted); Rev. R. Fotheringham, Haverhill, to Blackheath; Rev. W. A. Guttridge, to assume chief pastorate at Zion Church, Attercliffe, Sheffield, in succession to Rev. J. Calvert; Rev. David Jones, of Zion's Hill, Pembrokeshire, to English Congregational Church, Cardigan (accepted); Rev. T. J. Delling, of Twyford, Berks, to Stokenchurch, South Oxon (accepted).

BAPTIST.

Memorial stones have been laid of a new Baptist Chapel in Walton-street, Aylesbury.

Memorial stones have been laid of a mission church to seat 500 persons at Brierley Hill, the church having worshipped in a wooden building for the past forty years.

The Old Meeting, Biggleswade (Rev. H. G. Stembridge), has a membership of 120; in the Sunday-school are 300 scholars and 26 teachers. A Christian Endeavour Society has been commenced with 46 members.

Rev. George Freeman, pastor of Grove-road Church, New Southgate, N., has met with a serious accident through a fall in his garden. The doctor has ordered a complete rest and Mr. Freeman has had in consequence to cancel all engagements.

Mr. J. Meredith Jones, of the Baptist College, Cardiff, has commenced a holiday pastorate at the English Baptist Church, Porthcawl. Mr. Jones has been conducting open-air Gospel services every evening in a field adjoining the military camp. The services were well appreciated by soldiers and visitors.

At the annual meeting of the Bahamas Baptist Union, presided over by Rev. D. Wilshire, reports were read of the various churches belonging to the Union, in which there are 2800 Church members, 2500 children in average attendance at the Sunday-schools, and nearly 400 members in the Young People's Christian Union.

The first anniversary of the settlement of Rev. Hugh Singleton at Smethwick has been celebrated. The reports presented indicated great progress, especially amongst the young people and Sunday-schools. A senior and junior society of the Y.P.S.C.E. have been started during the year, each having now a membership of over 100.

Rev. J. H. Weeks has arrived from the Congo on furlough. He has been stationed at Monsembi, on the upper river. Mr. Weeks is in good health, and has been in Africa for eight years without any change. Before leaving his station he baptized four converts, the first fruits of the Bangala. The Gospels of Matthew and Mark are translated into the language of this tribe; the first of these is being printed. Mrs. Weeks, who accompanies her husband, has been on the Congo for the continuous period of five years.

Calls.—Mr. H. C. Waller, Evangelist in connection with Princes-street Church, Gravesend, to Perry-street Church, near Gravesend.

Resignations.—Rev. T. S. Ross, Charlotte-street Church, Carlisle; Rev. A. Bond, Narborough.

METHODIST.

A new Wesleyan chapel has been opened at Stocksfield.

New Primitive Methodist chapels have been opened at Denaby Main, near Doncaster, and at New Basford.

The Shrewsbury District Primitive Methodist Committee have engaged a lady evangelist to conduct six months' aggressive work in the agricultural and mining villages of the district.

Rev. W. Vivian, who has recently returned from West Africa, has taken up his residence in Harrogate. During next year he will be engaged in missionary deputation work through the United Methodist Free Churches.

Rev. James Wallis, the oldest Wesleyan minister in the colonies, has died at Auckland. He had been in New Zealand since 1835, and did valuable pioneering work in the early days of the mission. He had great influence with the Maoris. A grandson of his is engaged in missionary work in Fiji.

A fact that marks an epoch in the annals of the Italian churches is the founding of an Italian Methodist Missionary Society. The first station to be occupied is Alexandria, Egypt, in which city, as also at Cairo, there are tens of thousands of Italians, and not a few members of the Methodist Church.

It is proposed to transfer the Dennington Primitive Methodist Chapel and Society in the Stowmarket Circuit to the Framlington Methodist Free Church Circuit, to secure its more efficient working. Some time ago the church at Brightlingsea was transferred from the United Methodist Free Church to the Primitive Methodists with the best results.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Andrew Murray, of South Africa, will take part in a Christian convention to be held in Regent-square Church, London, commencing November 20.

Rev. Marshall B. Lang, B.D., assistant, St. Bernard's, Edinburgh, has been appointed minister of the Established Church, Oldmeldrum, in succession to the late Rev. John Watson Leith. Mr. Lang is a son of the Rev. John Marshall Lang, D.D., minister of the Barony Church, Glasgow.

Preparations are being made for the forthcoming visit of Rev. John McNeill to Newcastle-on-Tyne. Mr. McNeill is to conduct a series of services in Newcastle from Sunday, October 6, to Monday, the 18th, and the Olympia has been secured for that time, except on Monday, 7th, and Monday, 14th. The meetings on these two evenings are to be held in Ginnett's Circus and the Town Hall respectively.

The Mildmay Jewish Mission Band, composed of three Jews (Messrs. Redwood, Samuel, and Reitman) and two Gentiles (Messrs. Clancy and Day), conducted evangelistic services in the Holderness-road Church, Hull, from August 6 to 13. The band comprised different nationalities, but each spoke the same truth with much power and earnestness, and to great profit to those that heard them.

(For "Fallen Asleep," see page 22.)

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, AUGUST 26, 1895.

* Donations should be sent by Cheque or Post Office Orders, not by stamps.

* Will donors oblige by stating explicitly and fully the titles of the institutions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Further correspondence will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

* Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders should be made payable to Messrs. Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, London, E.C., and crossed "City Bank"; this will effectually prevent loss.

	£	s.	d.
Thankoffering, Hafod.—Kindly communicate with us. Particulars required.
Aintab Orphanage—Alpha	0	10	0
Church Missionary Society—M. P. A.*, 11s. 11d.; G. M., 10s.; (Rev. E. F. Robins, Punjaub) M. P. A.*, 13s. 8d.; (Rev. D. M. Brown, Santal Catechist) M. P. A.*, 3s.; (Rev. A. Price, Metlakahtla) M. P. A.*, 5s.; (Rev. E. Alvarez, Sierra Leone) M. P. A.*, 5s. 3d.; (Rev. J. H. Horsburgh, Szchuen) M. P. A.*, 14s. 6d.; (Uganda Mission) M.P.A.*, 5s. 5d.	3	8	9
China Inland Mission—(Mr. King, Shanghai) M. P. A.*, 7s. 8s.; (Deaf and Dumb, Chefoo) M. P. A.*, 5s.; (Rev. A. Langman, Chu-Chao) M. P. A.*, £1	1	12	8
North Africa Mission—M. P. A.*	0	12	7
Baptist Missionary Society—M. P. A.*, 8s. 8d.; (Rev. R. H. C. Graham, Congo) M. P. A.*, £1 2s. 6d.	1	11	2
Qua Iboe Mission—M. P. A.*	0	4	4
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission—M. P. A.*	0	15	10
Central African Mission—M. P. A.*	0	5	8
Mrs. Reinmuth's Work, Austria—M. P. A.*	0	5	0
Mr. Gordon (Demerara)—M. P. A.*	0	12	6
Livingstonia Mission—M. P. A.*	0	6	1
Help for Brazil—M. P. A.*	0	5	0
South Africa General Mission—Ignotus, £3; E. M., £2.	5	0	0
Moravian Missionary Society—Ignotus	3	0	0
Société d'Evangelization Nationale (Pastor Bonhomme's Stipend)—A Fellow Protestant, 10s.; M. S. F., £1	1	10	0
London Missionary Society—M. E. B., £3; (Zenana)—M. E. B., 10s.; (Almora Leper Asylum)—C. T. E., 10s.	4	0	0
Church of England Zenana Mission—R. J.	0	10	0
Children's Hospital, Jerusalem—M. A. T.	0	10	0
Armenian Relief Fund—A Few Friends per R. K.	0	15	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—E. G. S.	0	5	0
Hyde Park Mission (Mr. Chas. Cook)—Lady J. E.	4	0	0
Day in Country Fund—Senex, 5s.; Bishopstow Y.M. Class, 10s.; R. U. P., 2s. 6d.; Sheffield, 5s.	1	2	6
Mr. Wintle's Work, Pontymoile—S. A.	0	7	6
Children's Country Holiday Fund—S. L. R.	0	10	6
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—J. W., 10s.; Ignotus, £2; E. M., 10s.	3	0	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—E. T.	0	5	0
Homes Aged Blind, Crouch Hill—E. T., 5s.; L. G., £2	2	5	0
Friendless and Fallen—R. B., 10s.; C. T. E., 5s.	0	15	0
London City Mission—L. G.	5	0	0
Strangers' Friend Society—L. G.	2	0	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—Eggs sold, £1; (Prison) L. G., £2	3	0	0
George Yard Mission—L. G., £2; (Day in Country) E. M., 10s.	2	10	0
Mission Deep Sea Fishermen—L. G., £2; C. T. E., 5s.	2	5	0
Society Prevention Cruelty to Children—L. G.	2	0	0
Mr. Boyer's Cripple Children—L. G.	2	0	0
National Vigilance Association—L. G.	2	0	0
Bridge of Hope (Miss Steer)—L. G.	2	0	0
Miss Macpherson's Home of Industry—L. G., £2; M. A. S. L., 10s.	2	10	0
Doncaster Do Without Society—Ignotus	2	0	0
Protestant Reformation Society—E. G.	0	5	0
Church Pastoral Aid Society—R. W. G.	5	0	0
Early Closing Association—M. S.	1	1	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—Mrs. J. M.	0	10	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—Mrs. J. M.	0	10	0
Gratuitous Circulation of The Christian—C. T. E.	0	5	0
Ragged School Union—C. T. E., 5s.; (Fortnight's Holiday) M. E. B., 10s.	0	15	0
Liberator Sufferers' Relief Fund—Mede	20	0	0
Religious Tract Society—M. E. B.	1	0	0
Evangelistic Mission (Mr. Hurditch)—M. A. S. L.	0	10	0
Friedenheim Home for Dying—A. R. D.	1	0	0
Hop-Pickers' Mission (Rev. J. Burnham) M. A. T.	0	10	0
Assoc. Free Distribution Scriptures—A. E. R. £1 4s.; A. E. R., 10s.	1	14	0
Total	£98	10	1

*Missionary Pence Association.

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Bridge of Hope Mission.—E. M. B., £1.

Dock Labourers' Mission.—One parcel of clothing from Miss S.

LONDON - STREET MISSION,
DOCKHEAD, S.E.
(Established 1864.)
Hon. Secretary and Manager—Mr. W. BUSTIN.

Supported by a band of voluntary workers and a responsible committee, including Mr. Percy Brown, Mr. W. Olney, Mr. J. Kitchin, Mr. John Kirk.

The existing Premises are quite inadequate.

A TENT was therefore erected as an experiment on a piece of vacant land.

The result has been most gratifying.

It is now proposed to erect on this spot

AN IRON MISSION HALL.

Towards this about £150 is forthcoming, leaving

£250 STILL REQUIRED. HELP IS GREATLY NEEDED.

The Mission is independent and inter-denominational.

Treasurer—Percy Brown, Esq., Davis' Wharf, Horselydown, S.E.

Hon. Secretary—Mr. W. Bustin, 13, Priter-road, Bermondsey, S.E.

THE CHRISTIAN BLIND RELIEF SOCIETY.
Under the Patronage of H.M. the QUEEN.

President . . Lord Egerton of Tatton.

W. Wainwright, Esq., Hon. Treasurer.

No paid officials. No voting. No office expenses. No weary waiting for years. Aids 524 Pensioners in the United Kingdom. 51 Candidates waiting for Relief, six of whom are over 60, six over 70, and one over 83 years of age. Do HELP these poor afflicted ones!

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED.

Hon. Sec., Rev. J. Pullein Thompson, The Vicarage, Tite-street, Chelsea, S.W.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

OPERATIVE JEWISH CONVERTS' INSTITUTION.

ESTABLISHED 1831.

NEW BUILDING FUND.

The purchasers of Palestine-place have given the Operative Jewish Converts' Institution notice to quit their present premises next Christmas. The Committee therefore appeal for help to obtain another home. It is estimated that the site, the dwelling, and the workshops required will cost £5000, towards which only £1000 has been assigned as compensation by the London Society for Promoting Christianity amongst the Jews. In order that the number of converts received may not be reduced, the Committee ask the friends of Israel generally to provide the balance so urgently needed.

Donations may be sent to A. R. Pite, Esq., Treasurer, Effingham House, Ramsgate; or to the Rev. H. Oliver Allbrook, Principal, 12, Palestine-place, London, E.; or to the Editor of The Christian.

UNFERMENTED WINES,
FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

As used for COMMUNION purposes by upwards of 5,000 Congregations. Reputed quarts, 24s. to 36s. per doz. Reputed pints, 14s. to 20s. per doz. Small samples of 4 varieties, free by parcel post, for 2s. 6d. Price List, 250 Testimonials, &c., post free on application to—

F. WRIGHT, MUNDY & Co.,
MERTON ROAD, KENSINGTON COURT, LONDON, W.

NATIONAL PROVIDENT INSTITUTION.
For Mutual Life Assurance.
Invested Funds, £4,700,000.
Paid in Claims, £9,000,000.
Estd. 1835.

All the Profits are Divided amongst the Assured; already divided, £4,600,000.

DEATH DUTIES provided for by LIFE ASSURANCE.

48, Gracechurch Street, London, E.C.
ARTHUR SMITHER, Actuary & Secretary

APPLICATIONS FOR AGENCIES INVITED.

TO LET, APARTMENTS, ETC.

(Continued from page 3.)

HOME SETTLEMENT FOR YOUNG MEN.

1, Wyndham-place, Bryanston-square, W. With Drawing, Dining, and Writing rooms, and all the conveniences of a large and commodious house. Conducted on the basis of refinement, fellowship, and freedom. The Home is unsectarian.—All communications to be addressed Rev. W. Darlow Sargeant, 38, Oseney-crescent, Camden-road, London, N.W.

HOME OF REST, The Hollies, Kingswood, Warwickshire, for Christian workers and ladies. Warwick. Stratford. Kenilworth easily reached. Terms from 17s. to 25s. Open throughout the year.—Address, Miss Winterbottom. c6375

HOME OFFERED to lady in good school near Crystal Palace. Home comforts. Moderate terms. Lady whose husband is abroad, having children to educate, could be received.—200, Selhurst-road, South Norwood. c6057

LADY BOARDER wanted in country rectory. Evangelical church. Comfortable home, large and pretty garden. Healthy neighbourhood. Splendid water. Terms moderate. London, forty-five miles.—Rector, Wendy, Royston. c6067

MARRIED COUPLE will be glad to receive one paying guest into their cheerful Christian home. Cottage. Best part St. John's Wood. Park, bus, rail.—O., 12, Melina-place, N.W. c6057

MISS HAYWARD (daughter of late Rev. T. Hayward) offers board and residence. Pleasantly situated house near sea and cliffs. Terms from 21s. per week.—1, St. Vincent's-road, Southend, Essex. c5249

SUPERIOR FURNISHED APARTMENTS to Let.—Drawing, dining room, and three bedrooms. With cooking and attendance. Together or separate.—Apply, 24, Camden Hill-road, Upper Norwood, S.E. c6964

TWO SISTERS, HAVING FURNITURE, desire three rooms, kitchen, in nice house, with kind, homely people, or would join family, if terms agreed.—All particulars, C., 51, Upper Baker-street, Regent's Park. c6909

WANTED, IN NOTTING HILL or South-west district, a comfortable bedroom and sitting-room, with attendance, for two young ladies. Good references.—"Notting Hill," C. P. Watson, 209, St. Vincent-street, Glasgow. N.B. 2

WOULD A LADY give another (widow, delicate, nearly ruined by Liberator frauds) home, in return for companionship and such light services as able to render ?—Faith, 4, Avenue-cottages Torquay. c6946

MISCELLANEOUS.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—Address Evangeline, 25, Rozel-road, Clapham, S.W. John iii, 36.

MENTAL derangement of a mild form in a young man whom it is desired to transfer to a certified establishment, where there is a small number of inmates, and under decided Christian influences. Seaside or country preferred, but not at a great distance from London. Terms strictly moderate. — Apply with full particulars, S., 49, Scrutton-street, London, E.C. c6917

THE EDINBURGH SCHOOL OF COOKERY AND DOMESTIC ECONOMY, Ltd. 21st Session opens September 4. Cookery, laundry work, needlework, dressmaking, millinery, &c. Special curriculum for young ladies for housewife's diploma. Teachers trained. Boarders received. See prospectus, 3, Atholl-crescent. c6911

WINTERING ON NILE, in Dahabieh, two months, £50; three, £65. Leaving Cairo November. Brother of Bishop Hannington conducting party. Room for four ladies or gentlemen. Apply immediately.—Joseph Hannington, Brighton. c6894

IRON MISSION ROOMS, Churches, Chapels, Schools, etc.—Designs and all necessary information (free) from R. C. Harris, Iron Building Manufacturer, 7, Idol-lane, London, E.C. Thirty years' extensive practical experience. c5231

AMERICAN ORGAN WANTED, with stops, and not many years old.—Will a lady or gentleman having one to offer send particulars to William Loveridge, Llaby-road, South Wigston? c6932

AMERICAN ORGANS from .. £5 5 0
HARMONIUMS from 3 17 0
PORTABLES from 3 15 0
All makers at reduced prices. Every instrument warranted five years. The late Mr. Gawin Kirkham wrote: "I can speak from a long experience of the excellency of your instruments."
Charles L. Young, 21 High-street, Kingsland, London. c1679

THE
SWAN FOUNTAIN PEN.

Manufactured in three sizes,
at 10/6, 16/6, & 25/- each.

Actual Facsimile.

HOW MR. HALL CAINE WROTE "THE MANXMAN."

"Yes, if the fact is of any "consequence, you are very "welcome to say that I wrote "'The MANXMAN' with the "Swan Fountain Pen. It has "become quite indispensable to "me. I can use it with ease, "and certainly anywhere and at "any time, even in the dark, "in bed, and on horseback.
"Hall Caine."

We only require your steel pen and handwriting to select a suitable pen. Complete Illustrated Catalogue sent post free on application.

MABIE, TODD, & BARD,
93, Cheapside, London, E.C.;
95a, Regent Street, London, W.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH
LAZIEST, QUICKEST, CHEAPEST & BEST BLACKLEAD IN THE WORLD

In Half the Time, with Half the Labour, you can produce More Polish with Two Penny Packets of Rising Sun than with Half-Dozen of ordinary Blacklead.

Sample Post Free for 2 Stamps.

C. CHANCELLOR & CO., LONDON, E.C.

STYLISH DRESS.—Six yards wide width, superior quality, all wool, black cheviot coating. Will make fashionable and serviceable dress. Price 15s. Approval, free.—H. Laurance, 48, Sunbridge-road, Bradford, Yorks. c6950

OSTRICH FEATHER BOAS, PLUMES, FANS, cleaned, dyed, recurled, mounted.
SEALSKIN JACKETS and furs remodelled to newest designs.
NICHOLAS'S MOTH-KILLER, 1s. 3d. per tin.—G. A. Nicholas, Furrier, 177, Regent-street, London, W. c5389

INDIAN SHAWLS. — Lady received box softest, warmest, real Rampore Chuddahs, washable, 3 yards by 1¼. Indispensable driving, evening, invalids. About half price, 22s. 9d. Approval free.—Douglas, 6, Shandwick-place, Edinburgh. c6715

CROCHET SHAWL PATTERNS.—"Cobweb," like fine lace, 1s.; "Moss," handsome, feathery pattern, 3d.; "Criss-Cross," 8d.; "Spider," 4d.; "Scarf," 4d.; or the five patterns for 2s. 6d., and three other pretty ones included. Instructions: wool to use. Lady F. writes:—"I think your patterns lovely."—Violet, 22, Bouverie-road, W., Folkestone. c6892

Umbrellas Re-covered from 2s. each.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RECOVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to Strong Bros., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies', 2s.; gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to Rev. G. H. Cambern, Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List Free.

IDEAL PURE WOOL SUMMER CLOTHING.—5 per cent. Discount until September 1st, 1895.—The celebrated Castle Donington quality. Highly recommended by the Medical Profession. Thoroughly hygienic, exquisitely soft and light. This unique speciality is admirably adapted to Consumptive, Rheumatic, and delicate people. Every description of garment, natural, cream, and pink, in Purest Wools of English manufacture, at reasonable prices. Catalogue and Patterns post free. Carriage paid on all orders throughout the United Kingdom, half on foreign and Colonial parcels.—Hygienic Hosiery Mills, Castle Donington, via Derby.

PERSONS OF LIMITED INCOMES may successfully augment the same by becoming agents for the Packet Teas of the Select Ceylon Tea Agency, retailed from 1s. upwards. Reference (on fair conditions) to successful agents. Cash terms.—The Select Ceylon Tea Agency, 39, Lime-street, London. c5381

John Heath's Pens Birmingham

PATCHWORK FOR THE MILLION.—50 large lovely silks, satins, brocades, 1s. 9d.; 50 beautiful plushes, velvets, 1s. 9d.; 200 crazy brocades, 1s. 6d.: splendid print parcel, 1s. 4d., for quilts.—J. Dean, New Brompton, Kent. c6988

DELICIOUS BREAKFAST DAINTIES.—My celebrated "Real Loch Fyne" Kippered Herrings are now in prime condition. Post free for 2s., 3s., 4s., 5s., weighing 4lb., 6lb., 8lb., 10lb.—A. Harvie, Watergate, Rothesay, N.B. c5142

A PERFECT FOOD! High-class Irish butter, made on the centrifugal system, posted direct, with or without salt. Reaches the consumer in its prime. Prices: 1½ lb. for 1s. 10d.; 2½ lb. 2s. 9d.; 5 lb. 5s. 6d.; 9 lbs. 9s. 4d., postage paid. Weekly supplies.—Arthur Jacob, Lismore Mills Creamery, Lismore, co. Waterford, Ireland. c6354

OLD ARTIFICIAL TEETH BOUGHT, Call, or if sent by post, full value by return. No post-cards used, and all communications under cover, —Mr. John Lee, London Dental Institute, 57, Edgware-road, London. Note.—57, to prevent mistakes. No other address: c6545

HAIR FALLING OFF.—A lady, whose daughter was cured in a fortnight, will send particulars to anyone sending stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. C. Foster, Trafalgar-road, South Wimbledon London. c6985

ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL.

Preserves, Beautifies, Strengthens the Hair. Prevents Baldness, Eradicates Scurf. All Scientists assert that Oil is absolutely necessary to Nourish and Preserve the Hair, and ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL is the best. Also in a Golden Colour for Fair-haired Ladies and Children. Ask Chemists for ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL of 20, Hatton Garden, London

RUPTURE. — COLWELL'S TRUSSES are the most effectual. Prices, 2s. 6d. to 21s. Air or water pad trusses. Perfect comfort in wearing.—Colwell, 116, Newington-causeway, S.E. c6891

PUBLICATIONS.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
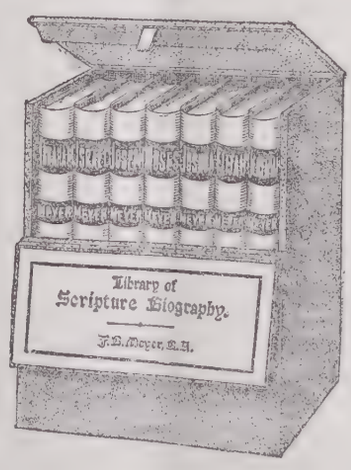
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, Manchester, for New List. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. per 100; foreign, 1s. per 100. Missionaries constantly want cards. Gifts of money would greatly help to supply his need. c5360

ASSORTED GOSPEL BOOKLETS, including "A Saviour for You," "Thy Day," etc. Millions sold. Fifteen for 1s., post free; larger quantities at greatly reduced prices. Catalogues free. —S. M. Haughton, 5, Hazelwood-road, Northampton. c5276

HARVEST THANKSGIVING SERVICES Hymn Sheets. New hymns, tastefully printed. Specimens free.—Penman and Co., 33, Furnival-street, London, E.C. c5430

AT HALF PRICE.—Genuine offer of our well-known Tracts, Leaflets, Cards, etc. Immense variety. Published price from 1s. per 1000. Specimens and particulars post free.—Penman and Co., 33, Furnival-street London, E.C.



SHAKSPEARE.—A selection (44) of his sonnets, inestimable exegetically unfolded, with appropriate explications from Old and New Testaments. Aidingly advise for publication as a handbook.—Address "Author," Colway Cottage, Lyme Regis, Dorset. c7010

THE "F. B. Meyer" LIBRARY OF SCRIPTURE BIOGRAPHIES.

SEVEN VOLUMES
ENCLOSED IN A HANDSOME CASE.

Price 14/6 Net.
(Post free, 15/7½).

Each Volume contains Nine Original Engravings, and is neatly bound in Cloth Bds. with Gilt Lettering.

Contents:—

Abraham: or, The Obedience of Faith.
Israel, A Prince with God.
Joseph: Beloved—Hated—Exalted.
Moses: The Servant of God.
Elijah, and the Secret of his Power.
Joshua: And the Land of Promise.
Jeremiah: Priest and Prophet.

 Any of the above-mentioned Works may be had separately, in Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

London: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

By Rev. JAMES CULROSS, M.A., D.D.

JOHN WHOM JESUS LOVED.

A Sketch of the Character, Writings, Theology, and Influence of the Beloved Disciple.

WITH EIGHT CHROMO-LITHOGRAPHIC VIEWS.
Tinted Covers, 2s.;
Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"It is altogether without reserve that we commend the work before us: it is not a bottle of milk for babes, but a portion of meat for men. A half-dozen readings will only make it more interesting to those who meditate on what they read."—Sword and Trowel.

"BEHOLD I STAND AT THE DOOR AND KNOCK":

Christ's Message to the Church at Laodicea.

WITH CHROMO-LITHOGRAPHIC FRONTISPIECE.
Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth Boards, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 2s. 6d.

"All who admire the author's insight, his delicacy of perception, his felicity of language, his broad and tender sympathies, his grasp of great truths, will welcome this volume."—The Freeman.

"THY FIRST LOVE":

Christ's Message to the Church at Ephesus.

WITH FRONTISPIECE.
Tinted Covers, 1s. 6d.; Cloth Bevelled Boards, 2s. 6d.

"Another of these small but precious volumes of our devout author which have made his name fragrant throughout the Churches. The book is scholarly, eloquent, and Scriptural, which none can read without profit."—The Christian Age.

By Lucy J. Rider and Nellie M. Carman.

CHILDREN'S MEETINGS,

AND HOW TO CONDUCT THEM.

A useful volume for Teachers, Parents, and Preachers to the Young.

The contents embrace over Sixty Outline Lessons, over Forty Diagrams for the Blackboard, and Twenty-five Children's Hymns, with Music.
Tinted Covers, 2s.; Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
The Sunday School Chronicle says:—"The question is often asked, 'How can we make our week-evening meetings varied and interesting?' The answer is found in a work like this, which we heartily recommend."

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, London, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any Evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Apply, Hon. Sec., 64, Kennington-oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for temporary or permanent work in our villages and country towns. Apply to Mr. G. H. Mawer, secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, E.C.

Thorne Evangelistic Missions.—Friends desirous to arrange for mission services, to be conducted by Mr. Thorne, should make early application to the secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, to whom subscriptions for the Mission may be forwarded.

The King's Own Mission, St. James's Hall, Royal-road, Kennington, S.E.—Sun., Mr. O. L. Heatley, 7 p.m.; 3.15 p.m., P.S.A., Mr. O. L. Heatley.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions.—Address, Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

Pulpits Supplied, meetings for men, Evangelistic and Gospel Temperance Missions conducted.—Address for dates, Mr. William Forbes, 71, Tollington-road, Holloway, London, N.

Friends' Foreign Mission Association.—Meeting for united prayer for native Christians and missionaries in China, Madagascar, and India, Devonshire House, 12, Bishopsgate Without, London, E.C., Wednesday, Sept. 4, 7 p.m. All interested are cordially invited to attend.

Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff Highway, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Friday, Sept. 6, at 7. Addresses by Dr. Thos. Neatby, Pastor Jas. L. Stanley, and Mrs. Agnew.

The Tuesday Meeting at Mrs. Boardman's, 3, Highbury-place, and the Thursday morning Bible class at 11, will be resumed the first Tuesday in September (3rd) and Thursday, the 5th, Bible class, for ladies.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Sunday, 11 and 7, Mr. Benjamin, Glasgow.

Homes for Little Boys, Farningham and Swanley.—Queen's Hall, Langham-place, W., Saturday afternoon, October 26, Earl Compton presiding.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn Gate, N.W., Sunday, at 7 p.m., Messrs. P. R. Hurditch and F. Hutchins; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill, N.W., Mr. P. Garrioch.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, E.—Every night at 8; Sunday at 11 and 6.30, Mr. George Nokes.

Conference Hall, Mildmay-park.—Preacher for Sept. 1, 3.30 and 7, Mr. Wm. Packer.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sunday next, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. Henry Collins; 3 p.m., P.S.A.

Special Religious Services in Theatres, Halls, etc.—Sunday, September 1.—Agricultural Hall, Upper-street, Islington, N., at 3.30, Rev. H. Epworth-Thompson; 7 Mr. Job Williams. Grand Hall of Varieties, Clapham Junction, at 3.30, John Jones; 7, Mr. Cromwell. Evangelical Hall, High-street, Homerton, at 3 and 7, Mr. Charles Button; Morley Hall, Hackney, at 7, Mr. William Coates.

Polytechnic, 309, Regent-street.—Mr. Charles Inglis, each Sunday in Sept., at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

Talbot Tabernacle, Notting Hill, W.—Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Dr. Anderson.

Metropolitan Tabernacle, Newington Butts, S.E.—Sun., Sept. 1., at 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m., Pastor Chas. Spurgeon.

Coming Conferences.

Blankenburg, Thuringia, Germany.—Sept. 2-6.
Perth.—Sept. 10—12, Rev. Dr. Bannerman, Perth, Hon. Sec.
Evangelical Alliance.—Annual British Conference, Belfast, Sept. 24-26.
St. George's Cross Tabernacle, Glasgow, Sept. 28-29.
Dublin.—Sept. 30 to Oct. 3.
West Norwood (Lansdowne Hall).—Oct. 15, 16, and 17 (Second Advent).
Deepening of Spiritual Life.—Carlisle, Sept. 2-6; Preston, Sept. 9-12; Rothesay, Sept. 19-23; Glasgow, Sept. 24-26; Hastings, Sept. 30 to Oct. 4; Aldershot, Oct. 1—3.

South Africa.—The lady who has for some time sent The Christian weekly to Mr. Samuel Holt, of the South African General Mission, is kindly asked to note that his present address is—care of Rev. W. Searle, S.A.G. Mission, 130, Long Market-street, Capetown.

A Worker Wanted.—Dear Sir,—May I ask if any of your readers would take charge of a mission in a colliery village on the N.E. coast of Northumberland, and set a worker free to go abroad? It is at present carried on by two ladies in connection with the Church of England. There is great need of earnest work to be done. I will gladly reply to any who would like further particulars.—Yours truly, (Miss) H. M. Thompson.

Crag Cottage, Whitby, R.S.O., Northumberland.

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE ROSSENDALE LICENSING SESSIONS, referring to an increase in drunkenness on Sundays, said he did not know how much of it was due to the clubs, but the magistrates were of one mind, namely, that there ought to be better supervision of these clubs, and that the hours of opening should be limited.

THE SHROPSHIRE CHRISTIAN UNITY ASSOCIATION has held its annual meeting at Stoke-on-Tern, Market Drayton. Crowded meetings were held in the parish church, afternoon and evening, under the presidency of Rev. R. W. Corbett, rector. A number of Nonconformist ministers were present, besides ministers of the Established Church. Addresses on Christian unity were given by the Dean of Ripon, Revs. Dr. Mackennal, and J. B. Walton, Congregationalists; J. H. Smith, Baptist; and Mr. George Owen, Primitive Methodist. The Bishops of Worcester and Ripon and Dr. C. A. Berry sent letters of regret at being unable to attend.

[854]

CONSUMPTION.

THE GRAND OLD MEDICINE OF NEARLY 70 YEARS

has maintained its position as the first medicine in all Chest Complaints.*

As a preventative of mischief, it should be taken at the first appearance of Cough or Cold. As a safeguard against Influenza, and in subsequent weakness of the lungs, it has been used with wonderful results.

But the renown of this celebrated medicine in all these cases has been eclipsed by its success in cases of

PHTHISIS, PULMONALIS, or CONSUMPTION, Aptly called the Scourge of England.

Interviews with patients, new and old, by Mr. Congreve's Commissioner, are published every alternate week in most of the weekly journals.

Mr. Congreve's book on Consumption and Chest Diseases may be had post free for one shilling, from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.

 Congreve's Balsamic Elixir may be had of all Medicine Vendors in Bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and large bottles at 11s. and 22s. The smaller sizes are of little use except in slight cases of Cough or Cold.*

EPILEPTIC FITS.

TRENCH'S REMEDY.

Write for particulars to

J. TOWNSEND TRENCH,
The Remedy Depot,
33, SOUTH FREDERICK STREET, DUBLIN.

One little bottle of Norton's Pills
Is not guaranteed to cure all ills,
But one little bottle, beyond all question,
Will thoroughly conquer Indigestion!

They have 100 YEARS' REPUTATION of being an UNEQUALLED REMEDY for INDIGESTION, HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, DEBILITY, STOMACH and LIVER COMPLAINTS. A SPLENDID TONIC AND GENTLE APERIENT.

NORTON'S CAMOMILE PILLS

Mild in Operation, Perfectly Safe, and Free from Injurious Drugs.

In Bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 11s., of all Medicine Vendors. Ask for "Norton's Camomile Pills," and do not be persuaded to take a substitute.

Prepared by Norton's Ltd., 21 Spital Square, London, E.

ONE LITTLE BOTTLE. NORTON'S TRADE MARK.

BUMSTED'S TABLE SALT.

ABSTAINERS, before Insuring, send for Prospectus of Scottish Temperance Life and Accident Insurance Company (Ltd.), 81, Renfield-street, Glasgow; London Office, 96, Queen-street, Cheapside.

INTERNATIONAL S.S. LESSONS

ON THE BOOK OF JOSHUA.

Sunday-school and Bible-class teachers adopting the International Lessons will find the following work from the pen of Mr. Meyer helpful in their study of the subjects in the Book of Joshua.

JOSHUA: AND THE LAND OF PROMISE

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A.

WITH NINE ORIGINAL ENGRAVINGS.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.; Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"The author can scarcely be surpassed in power of exposition, in graphic delineation of the sacred historic incidents in Joshua's life and character, and in the way he brings home the teachings of God's Word to spiritual experience."—The Rock.

"Bible-class leaders will find this just the book they want on this portion of the Scriptures. It is full of deeply spiritual teaching, and of suggestive thought, throwing much fresh light on well-known history."—Christian Progress.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Biographies.

PUBLISHED BY MORGAN & SCOTT.

New Edition of Mr. SPURGEON'S Life, One Shilling.

THE PRINCE OF PREACHERS:

A Sketch, a Portraiture and a Tribute. By Rev. J. Douglas, M.A. With life-like Portrait. Presentation Editions: Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"The best book about Mr. Spurgeon that has yet appeared."—Divine Life.

DUNCAN MATHESON:

The Scottish Evangelist. His Life and Labours. By Rev. John Macpherson. With life-like Portrait. Cloth boards, 1s. 6d. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

"The life of a real man, consecrated in life and full of zeal for the Lord. This biography will not only interest, but benefit a wide circle of readers. We are right glad to see so worthy a memorial of so worthy a man."—Sword and Trowel.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

A Devoted Life. By Rev. John Macpherson. With life-like Portrait. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"This volume, which is both written and printed in good style, and well bound, will be a charm to many Christian familes. It is worthy of a large circulation."—Primitive Methodist.

GAWIN KIRKHAM:

The Open-Air Evangelist. A Record and a Tribute. By Frank Cockrem (Secretary, Open-Air Mission). With Portraits and other Illustrations. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"It is a Record and a Tribute that will be eagerly welcomed by the multitudes who knew and loved Mr. Kirkham for his own, and his splendid work's sake."—Word and Work.

HENRY MOORHOUSE:

The English Evangelist. By Rev. John Macpherson. With life-like Portrait. Cloth gilt, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.; Cheap Edition: Tinted covers, 1s. 6d.

"Full of interesting incidents from which counsel and encouragement may be gathered."—The Rock.

WESLEY & WHITEFIELD:

The Two Great Evangelists of the Last Century; their Lives, their Work, and their Times. 256 pages. Crown 8vo. With Portraits.

Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

The above SIX Volumes form

THE LIBRARY OF CHRISTIAN BIOGRAPHY.

Each Volume with Portrait, and attractively got up and the whole enclosed in a NEAT BOX,

Price, 12/6 Net. (Post free, 13s. 6d.)

MARY LYON:

Recollections of a Noble Woman. By Fidelia Fiske. Tinted Covers, 1s.; Cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

"It is a book well fitted to stir up to greater zeal and activity in the Christian cause in whatever sphere God enables us to work."—Christian Work.

OLD MARGARET:

Or, A Saint at Last. By Rev. J. Elder Cumming, D.D. Tinted covers, 6d.; Cloth boards, 1s. With Striking Portrait.

"Our readers will have the advantage of learning, from one who is well known as a spiritual teacher, what this 'higher life' teaching, of which we hear much nowadays, really is."—Perthshire Advertiser.

DOROTHEA TRUDEL:

Or, the Prayer of Faith. With Engraved Portrait. Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth boards, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

"Dorothea Trudel became deeply penetrated with the striking passage of St. James, 'The prayer of faith shall save the sick.' Led by circumstances to minister to the afflicted, she carried into practical action the settled conviction of her heart, and in hundreds of cases soul and body were alike healed without other visible means."—Record.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

No. 1336.] # The Christian. [SEPTEMBER 5, 1895.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

PORTRAIT AND SKETCH OF THE LATE PHILIP PHILLIPS.

A Model Minister. By Dr. Cuyler 8
World-wide Evangelisation 9
Roots of Bitterness 9
A Cool Hand on a Hot Head. By F. B. Meyer 10
A Religion Worth Having. By Rev. E. R. Young 11
Ecclesiastes Explained. By Dr. Erdman ... 12
Saved through a Letter. By Mrs. Harvey-Jellie. 13
Our Daily Homily 14
For the Young.—Danger and the Way of Escape 15
A Little Word with a Large Meaning 15
"Wrecked in Port" 16
Salvation Army in Madrid 16
"O, Lord, Remember Me" (Hymn, with music) 16
Through South-Indian Villages 17
Northfield Conference—3. 18
A Roman Jubilee 19
Visiting Irish Romanists 20
The Spezia Mission... 20
Harvest Hymn 20
The Pakefield Conference 21
The American North-West 21
Missionary Pennies 21
"Wherefore didst Thou Doubt?"... 22
The Home Beyond (poem) 22
The Evangelist: Indecision 23
Two Grades of Individual Growth 23
Irish Railway Talks—IV. 24
Persecution in Persia 24
David's Lamentation (poem) 25
Corrupt Literature 25

INSTITUTIONS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS AND MISSION,
HIGH STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.
Received with much thankfulness from "L.E.P.," £1. Boy's suit from "Z.," so acceptable.
Rations of food to hungry children. Infant Day-Nursery. Day and Sunday Schools. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Evening Classes for Boys and Girls. Classes, Meetings, and Institute for Young Women and Elder Girls. Various Meetings, Classes and Parlour for Young Men and Lads. Bible Classes. Evangelistic Services. Lodging House Meetings. Temperance Work and Meetings. Mothers' Meetings. Clubs for Clothing, Coals, Bibles, &c. Prayer Meetings. Country Homes for Men, Women, and Children. Training Home for Motherless Girls, &c.
Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.
Post-office Orders should be made payable at 72, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.
"A Record of Work" for the Year 1894 will be sent free of cost to any friend requiring them. c7025

THE SOUTHWARK. BOYS' HOME,
Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT,
To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond ABSOLUTE NEED.
Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at the Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays, from 10 till 2.
All communications should be addressed—
J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home.
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

POOR JEWS IN EAST LONDON.

The eight Jewish Missionaries of the London City Mission wish to send away for one or two weeks, many of the sick and ailing whom they visit.

Contributions will be thankfully received by F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard street, E.C., or by Mr. G. R. COLE, 3, Bridewell-place, London, E.C.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, Belgravia, S.W., trains ladies for MEDICAL MISSION WORK in Eastern lands. Vacancies for pupils. Next term October. Partially free studentships granted. Funds needed. c5361

PERTH CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE, THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL MEETING, Sept. 10-12. Subject: "Deliverance, past, present, and to come."—Programmes from Rev. Dr. BANNERMAN, Perth. c5897

THE BENEVOLENT OR
Strangers' Friend Society.
Treasurer, Alderman Sir JOSEPH C. DIMSDALE.
Chairman, J. H. ANDERSON, Esq.
Founded a hundred and nine years ago. GREATLY STRAITENED FROM WANT OF FUNDS. There are 188 Christian men and women unpaid visitors engaged in the Society's work of BEFRIENDING THE SICK POOR of London. Kindly remember it in testamentary arrangements.
Office, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. c5340

DESPAIRING AND DESTITUTE.—Hundreds of thoroughly reclaimable young men and women might be permanently benefited by the numerous Labour Homes and Emigration Training Farms of the Church Army if funds permitted. Nearly one million meals served yearly, irrespective of creed, with labour test and Christian sympathy. Donors of 5s. and upwards supplied free with tickets for giving to beggars. £4000 pressingly required for food, clothing, and maintenance.—Remit, Rev. W. CARLILE, Hon. Chief Sec., Headquarters, 130, Edgware-road, London, W. c7126

THE LONDON BIBLE WAREHOUSE,
53, PATERNOSTER ROW.
OXFORD FACSIMILE WIDE-MARGIN BIBLES
With References, Scripture Atlas, and Wide Margins for MS. Notes.

BINDINGS.	Ruby type, 8vo. Size 7⅝ × 5¼ × 1¼ in. £ s. d.	Minion type, 4to. Size 9¼ × 7 × 1¾ in. £ s. d.
Palestine Levant yapp, leather lined, silk sewn, red under gold edges, round corners	cash 0 13 10	cash 1 3 3
Levant morocco, yapp, lined calf, round corners, red under gold edges	„ 0 19 1	„ 1 7 0
Ditto, best, lined calf all over, silk-sewn, edges red under gold in round, round corners ..	„ 1 3 8	„ 1 13 9
	post free.	post free.

Also all Bagster's Wide-margin Editions. Lists sent post free.

THE PARKHALL CONVENTION for the Deepening of Spiritual Life will be held (D.V.) on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, the 18th, 19th, and 20th September. Conveyances will be provided to meet the trains at Polmont Station, N.B. Ry. c6915

EDUCATIONAL.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A clergyman's daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood.—Tredegar House, East Dulwich-road, S.E. 5332

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Wilton House, Tylehurst-road, Reading. Head Mistress, Miss Marion White. Assisted by well qualified resident mistresses and visiting professors. Pupils prepared, if desired, for public examination. Wilton House stands on high ground, gravel soil, outside the town. Large garden, cricket field, tennis courts. Tepid swimming bath. Next term begins Thursday, September 19. c5373

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.
1, CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.
Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P.
Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in daily attendance. Resident certificated governesses. Careful personal supervision, home comforts, and Christian training. Preparation for any examination if desired. Good garden and tennis.
Highly recommended by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. D. MacEwan, D.D. and parents of former and present pupils.

SIX GUINEAS.—Two girls can be received into a good home school to fill vacancies. Certificated governesses. English, French, music, singing, drawing; drill.—Miss WEBB, Prospect House School, Rayleigh, Essex. c5247

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

BURLTON HOUSE, READING.—High-class Ladies' School. Principal, Miss RATCLIFFE. Old established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Well-appointed home. Highest references. c5271

FRANCHE, GREAT MALVERN.—Principal, Miss GRIGG. High-class home school for girls. Special arrangements for Indian and Colonial pupils. c5206

ALLAN BANK, OWLS ROAD, BOSCOMBE.
HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
Thorough education. Success in public examinations. Care of delicate girls. House near sea among pines. Terms moderate. References to Evangelical Clergymen, and to Ministers.—Apply, Miss COCKS, Principal. c5301

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.—Principal, Miss HOLLIS. c2317

UPPER MOUNT, SOUTHSEA.—High-class Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Autumn term, September 17th.—For Prospectus, etc., address, PRINCIPAL. c5387

HOME SCHOOL BY THE SEASIDE.—Bracing air. Terms moderate. Successes at Senior and Junior Cambridge, College of Preceptors. Next term, September 11. Governess-student wanted.—Mrs. SKIDMORE, Withnell-road, Blackpool. c6498

STAFFORD HOUSE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, 260, Marylebone-road, London. Principal, Miss SHILLAKER. Healthy locality, near parks. Individual teaching. Special advantages for music and art subjects. Civil Service and all public examinations. Terms moderate. Highest references. Vacancy for articled pupil. c4476

ILFRACOMBE.—WILDERFORD HALL High School for Girls. Thorough education. Preparation for exams. Comfortable home. Christian training. Special attention given to delicate girls. Principal, Miss HEALE. Paying guests received. Moderate charges. c6402

VACANCIES OCCUR in high-class school for girls. Pupils received whose parents are abroad. Christian training. Home comforts. Special attention to backward pupils. Terms 30 guineas.—PRINCIPAL, 10, Clapton Common. c6157

ROSEBERRY, Western-parade, Southsea, facing sea and common. Christian home school for gentlemen's daughters. Thorough and successful teaching, careful godly training, refined happy home. Resident English and foreign governesses. Highly recommended. Principals, the Misses ROBINSON. c5405

MALVERN HOUSE, BLOCKLEY,
WORCESTERSHIRE.
Principals, the Misses JUDSON. Home school for girls in a lovely and bracing village on the Cotswold Hills. Resident foreign and English governesses and visiting masters. Earnest Christian training. Terms moderate and inclusive. References kindly permitted to the Rev. John Wilkinson, Mildmay Mission to the Jews, and to parents of pupils. The Autumn term begins (D.V.), September 18, 1895. c3968

SEASIDE EDUCATION.—The principals of high-class, old-established school, having two vacancies, are willing to take two girls of good position on greatly reduced terms.—PRINCIPAL, Blackmore, Bookseller, 38, Great Southsea-street, Southsea. c5406

FOUR GIRLS can be received in good school near Crystal Palace for 35 guineas inclusive. Thorough education. English subjects, music, languages, etc. Motherly care.—PRINCIPAL, 200, Selhurst-road, South Norwood. c6656

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Lenten House, Alton, Hants. Principal, Miss Chinn, daughter of the late Rev. S. Chinn. Very successful preparations for examinations. References, Dr. Stewart, Alton; Rev. W. Houghton, Guildford; Rev. R. A. Davis, Ventnor. c5426

GIRLS' SCHOOL, SUMMERLAND College, Honiton, Devon.—Preparation for exams. 14 certificates in 1894. Home comforts and unlimited diet. Governess-pupils received. Next term begins September 17.—Principal, Mrs. ROGERS. c6839

OXFORD COLLEGE (YOUNG LADIES), Clacton-on-Sea, Essex, England. Principals, Misses Beard. Thirty-roomed house, facing sea. South aspect. Happy home. Finishing education. Professors. Excellent musical training. Governess-student required with premium for examinations preferred. Kindergarten. c7009

ABBOTSFORD Ladies' School, Hampton-road, Bristol. High-class modern education. Home comforts. Christian training. Advantages offered young lady for one hour's daily assistance. Premium 15 guineas. Vacancies for boarders. Highest references. c7083

DUDLEY HOUSE, DORKING.—Home school for the daughters of gentlemen. Principal, Miss WATERS. High class education, based upon Christian principles. Pupils prepared for all public examinations. Fees very moderate. Autumn term will (D.V.) commence September 17, 1895. c7120

REV. D. B. HANKIN, Mildmay, kindly recommends good home school, two hours from London. Spacious detached house. Thorough education. Fees from £25.—Miss LARTER, Nene House School, Thrapstone, Northamptonshire. c5433

THE MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fulneck, near Leeds.—A thorough, advanced, and Christian education. Boys' School, Rev. W. T. TITTERINGTON. Ladies' School, Rev. M. B. O'CONNOR. c5341

ABERGELDIE, ALMA-ROAD, CLIFTON.—Vacancy for two pupils in high-class ladies' school. Thorough English, music, French, drawing, singing (inclusive). Fees 40 to 50 guineas per annum.—Holiday address, Miss MORRIS, 21, Underhill-road, Lordship-lane, Dulwich. c7072

BRIGHT, HAPPY HOME, with every comfort and good educational advantages, offered to delicate or backward child. German, music, singing. No other pupil. Moderate inclusive terms. Medical reference.—Address, in first instance, TRUTH, Post Office, Stoke Bishop, Clifton, Bristol. c7045

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Rugby House, Leamington.—Principal, Miss ARNOLD. Highest educational advantages. Preparation for exams. Vacancy for governess-student. Premium. c7030

PARIS.—Establishment for young ladies, 16, Rue d'Auteuil (near the Bois de Boulogne). Principals, Mdlles. Bouré. Thorough French and German, music, drawing, painting, etc. Prospectus on application. c6621

NEUCHATEL, SWITZERLAND.—Young ladies received in superior French Evangelical finishing home school. Eminent professors. Languages, music, art. Delightful climate. English home comforts. Highest references.—Apply to Mlle. COULERU, Neuchatel, Switzerland. c6661

CHATEAU DE MARNAND, Switzerland. Select school for young ladies. Terms, 36 guineas per annum. Vacancy for a pupil teacher. Premium, £24. Mme. Trolliet will be again in London on the 9th and 10th Sept.—For prospectus and information, apply to Miss LOWE, 32, Gower-street, London. c7089

KAISERSLAUTERN,
RHEINPFALZ, GERMANY.
FINISHING SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES. Special advantages for Languages, Music, Painting. Comfortable home. Large house. Moderate Terms. Vacancy for Articled Pupil.—For full particulars, apply to FRAULEIN L. JACOB. c5413

STANLEY HOUSE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.
Thorough education, with decided Christian training. The premises include workshop, chemical laboratory, covered and open playgrounds, tennis courts and cricket field. Delicate boys receive special care. Fees moderate and inclusive.—For prospectus, apply PRINCIPAL. c2602

Huntingdon House School,
TEDDINGTON, Middlesex.
Christian training. First-class masters. Thorough teaching. Moderate fees. Preparation for professional and business life, and for examinations (over 100 certificates gained). Recommended by Rev. Evan Hopkins, Kensington, and many Christian parents. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.
Principal—Mr. GEO. CUBITT, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

ALRESFORD HOUSE SCHOOL, MARGATE.—High-class school for the sons of gentlemen. Boys are prepared for the various competitive examinations. Special care of Indian children. Christian home.—Apply, The PRINCIPALS. c5371

PREPARATORY SCHOOL
To the Public Schools and Royal Navy, for Gentlemen's Sons, aged 8 to 14.
The Old Hall, Wellington, Shropshire.
(Founded 1845.) Very healthily situated, 370 feet above the sea, near the Wrekin. 3½ hours from London, by L. & N.W. or G.W.R. Beautiful grounds, playing fields, &c. Illustrated Prospectus on application to the Head Master G. E. W. CRADOCK, M.A. (Salisbury School and Trinity College, Oxford); or Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5403

NEW COLLEGE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.
Head Master: Rev. G. Hugh Jones, F.A.S.
High-class School for sons of Christian gentlemen. Inclusive Fees, £45 per annum; under eleven, £40.

FOLKESTONE.
MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class school for sons of gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-st., S.E. c1574

PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR SONS OF GENTLEMEN.—Frobel, St. Leonards-on-Sea. Principal, Miss S. E. SPARKS. Strongly recommended to Protestant Evangelicals by Mrs. Arbuthnot and Colonel Porcell. c6576

TO GODLY PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the school) is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL where the constant aim of the principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class education.
The premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA on the south coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for outdoor recreation.
Prospectuses and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several wards in Chancery have been appointed as pupils in the school. Terms moderate.—Dr. THORN (not Thorne), Paddington, London. c4668

MR. W. ERNEST MATTHEWS, B.A. (Honours), assisted by efficient masters, prepares for the Army, Navy, Universities, Public Schools, etc. Pupils under Christian influence. Excellent situation.—10, Worcester-terrace, Clifton, Gloucestershire. c5388

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory school for the sons of gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily. Prospectus on application to LADY PRINCIPALS. c5334

ARNOLD HOUSE, HASTINGS, conducted by Rev. John Stewart, where boys from 7 to 18 receive a thorough education and careful personal attention. Established 1857. c5395

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL for boys. Thorough education. Every home comfort, with unlimited diet. Health resort. Medical reference. Careful Christian training. Terms inclusive and very moderate.—PRINCIPAL, Lucton School, Henfield, Sussex. c5418

MORAVIAN SCHOOL, Ockbrook, near Derby. Pupils prepared for the Camb. Local and London Matric. Exams. Third term, September 19.—Apply, Rev. J. M. MALLALIEU. c5440

BEXLEYHEATH, KENT.

OLD-ESTABLISHED SCHOOL for sons of gentlemen. Beautiful situation. Seven acres of land. PREPARATION FOR PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.—Illustrated prospectus on application to Head Master, G. E. OXLEY, M.A., Oak House School. c5308

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and education with Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, Gordon School, Kingston-on-Thames. Established twelve years. Beautiful district, near Richmond Park. London exams. Liberal diet. References to parents. Inclusive terms, 18 to 25 guineas yearly. Entrance, any time. c5320

BRIGHTON.—20 guineas per annum.—Special offer. Seaside Boys' Boarding School. High successes last term. No failures. Highly recommended by ministers and parents.—Letters, CLARK, Chapel-street, Market Harborough. c7111

BLACKHEATH.—Belmont House School. Established 38 years. Education on sound Evangelical lines. Preparation for Public Schools, Naval Cadetships, or London Matriculation. Scholarships have been gained at leading schools. Very healthy locality. Most careful supervision.—For prospectus, references, etc., apply to PRINCIPAL, B.A. London, 5, Blessington-road, Blackheath, S.E. c7148

PENFILLAN HOUSE, FOLKESTONE.—Mr. N. E. Toke, B.A. (Mathematics), and Mr. L. C. Vaughan Wilkes, M.A. (Classics), assisted by special tutors for German and for scientific and military subjects, receive a limited number of pupils for the University, Army, and other exams. Careful supervision. Individual attention. Four successes in 1894.

DAUGHTER OF A RETIRED INDIAN civilian desires engagement as governess in Christian family. Subjects:—English, French (acquired abroad), German, and Latin, drawing, music. Some experience.—A., Woodlawn, Blackheath. c7093

GOVERNESS (DAILY) WANTS re-engagement to two or three young children (five to nine years), neighbourhood of Highbury preferred.—Apply, OLNEY, 84, Highbury New-park, N. c7106

YOUNG LADY DESIRES COMFORTABLE HOME in return for some hours' teaching daily. Bright. Fond of children. Successful teacher. English, French, music. Might assist housekeeping.—DELTA, 2, Seldown-terrace, Poole, Dorset. c7090

TO PRINCIPALS.—A lady wishes to place daughter, 16, tall, in high-class school, thoroughly Christian, as student-teacher in Kindergarten. Seaside or country. Small premium.—B., 82, Sutherland-avenue, W. c7101

GOVERNESS-STUDENT.—An engagement required for a young lady in her 17th year, in a Christian school, on reciprocal terms, either in England or Germany. Has just passed Senior Oxford and Lower Division of R.A.M. and R.C.M.—Mrs. N., 51, Sackville-road, West Brighton, Sussex. c7049

WANTED, BY A YOUNG LADY, a re-engagement as companion or governess. Can teach conversational German, French, music, painting, English.—BECKINGHAM, Stoke House, St. Mary Bourne, Andover, Hants. c7052

YOUNG LADY SEEKS re-engagement as junior governess in a school or family. English, French, music, arithmetic, drawing and painting. Good references.—Apply to No. 172, Stradbally, Queen's co., Ireland. c7054

LADY RECOMMENDS GERMAN governess (certificated), perfect French, good music, thorough English, Latin, Italian, drawing, shorthand, and other usual branches. Nine years' English references. £30.—FRAULEIN, Eske House, Sholebroke-avenue, Leeds. c7075

A YOUNG FRENCH PROTESTANT requires a situation as Nursery Governess, or young Ladies Maid, to teach French, drawing. Good needlewoman. Can take charge of children over five years. Good references.—Apply to Mademoiselle BARBAU, c.o. Mrs. Fry, The Grove, Grays, Essex. c7123

FRENCH GOVERNESS (18½), daughter of Methodist evangelist, seeks engagement in Christian family or school.—M. DEVENOGE, 16, Route de Pont de l'Arche, Caudebec-les-Elbeuf. c7017

EXPERIENCED DAILY GOVERNESS wanted near Leamington for two girls, 11 and 7. Decided Christian, and sound in Scripture truth. State qualifications and salary.—c7041, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7041

CAN A LADY RECOMMEND a bright young Christian as governess to two little girls, ages 10 and 7½ years? Thorough English, French, music, drawing. Salary to begin, £20, and laundress. Church of England.—Address, c7139, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7139

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.

Boys received from six to eighteen years of age. Three separate departments classified according to age. Preparation undertaken for public schools or for commerce, the professions, and universities. Delicate boys or those from colonies receive special care. Autumn term commences September 21. Illustrated prospectus, references, etc., on application to the Principal, J. C. DUFF. c5399

YOUNG LADY, about 15, required in good boarding school to assist a little while continuing her own education. Christian training. Exams. Good home. Premium.—X. Y. Z., 28, Stockwell Green, London, S.W. c7089

A KINDERGARTEN STUDENT required in a high-class Ladies' School at Reading. Refined home, with superior educational advantages. Premium.—c5457, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5457

STUDENT TEACHER (16) wanted, to help in kindergarten two hours daily. Can join some classes in upper school. Small premium to cover board. Congregationalist preferred.—HEAD MISTRESS, High School for Girls, Portland-road, Bishop's Stortford. c7138

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted in a Christian family in Surrey. Four children. Should be experienced in Kindergarten.—Apply, W., Mint House, Banstead, Surrey. c7091

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted for a little boy of four, and to help with older boys during holidays. Needlework and other light duties.—State age and salary, Mrs. AUSTIN, Lyonsdown, New Barnet. c7134

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES

(English and Foreign), recommended GRATIS by Mrs. EDWIN HOOPER, Governesses' Institute and Home, Compton-terrace, London, N. (Established 1879). BOARD AND RESIDENCE from 18s. weekly. No fee to Governesses until placed. Schools recommended and transferred. c5241

SITUATIONS, ETC., WANTED.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

EXPERIENCED EVANGELIST, age 39, well educated, active and painstaking, seeks an opening where hard work and devotion to duty would be valued. Would work with any Evangelical believers or take entire charge of mission. Highest references as to preaching ability and character.—Mr. ERNEST RICKMAN, 28, Croham-road, South Croydon. c33

CHRISTIAN WORKER requires re-engagement. Five years' experience. Knowledge of practical nursing among the sick poor. Good references.—Address, c7029, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7029

GENTLEMAN, OF MUCH EXPERIENCE, good organiser and correspondent, open engagement, October. Philanthropic institution or Christian work. Unexceptionable references.—Address, SECRETARY, care of Advertising Agency, 33, Paternoster-row, E.C. c7064

GENTLEMAN, engaged in London as accountant to charitable (religious) institution, is desirous of undertaking book-keeping, auditing, or confidential business. Highest reference. Moderate terms.—ACCOUNTANT, 86, Leander-road, Brixton Hill, S.W. c7048

COMPOSITOR, Christian man (books, pamphlets), excellent testimonials, open engagement in September.—Address, OSBORNE, c.o. Advertising Agency, 33, Paternoster Row, E.C. c7065

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY is anxious to find some employment for an intelligent and active deaf-and-dumb man. Has worked for several well-known firms in copying documents. Is a widower of middle age and has a young son dependent upon him. Any suggestion as to finding a means of livelihood would greatly oblige the Committee, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. c26

AS BUTLER, thoroughly understands his work. Excellent testimonials.—Apply to P.D., care of Miss Perks, Soldiers' Home, Winchester. c7008

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN, age 23, seeks situation as footman, single or otherwise, or any place of trust.—Address, W. BUDGEN, Finches, Lindfield, Hayward's Heath. c7142

COACHMAN, SINGLE-HANDED, thoroughly understands his duties, used to pair and single. Willing to be useful. Quiet place. Married. Age 43. Christian, abstainer. Liberty when suited. Good character.—E. L., Tenby, Muswell-avenue, Muswell hill, N. c7081

AS FARM BAILIFF. Understands all kinds of farming. Twenty years experience. Leaving through gentleman leaving farm. Good character. — Apply, W. GOODWIN, P.M. Local Preacher, Blythburgh, near Halesworth. c7147

ADVERTISER WISHES EMPLOYMENT, either in farming or gardening. Has had no previous experience. Very willing and ambitious. Age 21. Good references.—Address, E. S. Z., 3, Churchill-road, Dartmouth Park Hill, London, N.W. c7109

YOUNG MAN, 21, seeks situation as under-gardener or coachman, five years' excellent character. Highest references. Life abstainer.—H. CASELTON, Holly House Nursery, Colyer's-lane, Erith, Kent. c7099

GARDENER, SINGLE-HANDED, Married, family grown up. Decided Christian. Total abstainer. Willing to make himself useful.—W. SPILLER, Lodge, Redlands, Branksome, Bournemouth. c7096

GARDENER, HEAD-WORKING. Thorough practical experience and good references. Age 27. Married when suited.—A. HILL, Sherborne Park Gardens, Northleach, Gloucestershire. c7110

CARETAKERS OR CHAPEL-KEEPERS, or any place of trust. Husband and wife. Highly recommended by Rev. E. H. Brown, Baptist minister, Twickenham, Middlesex, to whom please address letters marked "Y." c7122

GENTLEMAN RECOMMENDS MAN AND WIFE, who have lost all for the Gospel, as caretakers, offices, hall, or post of confidence, thoroughly reliable, good testimonials.—Apply, JOHNSTON, 149, Cleveland-street, W. c7062

A YOUNG MAN, age 25, single, seeks employment. Willing to make himself useful in any capacity. Reference.—Address, c7119, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7119

A YOUNG MAN, age 30, married, willing to make himself useful in any capacity. Good character.—W. T., St. Paul's-road School, Bow Common, E. c7026

A LADY WILL be glad to give her services as church-worker or companion to invalid lady in exchange for board, lodging, and laundress.—M.S., Cuxwold Hall, Caistor, Lincolnshire. c7040

WILL CLERGYMAN RECOMMEND trustworthy, active, converted woman, abstainer, for care of mission church with school under? Salary £15 a year. Widow without young children preferred.—Apply, Rev. R. C. OAKE, 25, Vale-road, Silverhill, St. Leonards-on-Sea. c7115

MATRON ORPHANAGE, INSTITUTE, or any position of trust, wanted by a qualified teacher of cookery and domestic economy. Thorough housekeeper, economical manager. Needlework. Abstainer.—M., 91, Great Portland-street, W. c7091

AS MATRON IN INSTITUTION, housekeeper, or any position of trust. Situation required by widow, with little girl of eight. Excellent references.—F., 17, Titchborne-street, Edgware-road, W. c7086

HONOURABLE MRS. BEVAN wishes to recommend lady, age fifty-two, as matron or superintendent of small home. Country or seaside. Many years' experience in home for business girls.—Apply, V. R., 53, Canterbury-road, Brixton. c7137

DR. BARNARDO is anxious to find good women with wise supervision and small salary, for two girls, about 17. Both have fair education, one some months of postal and telegraphic experience. The other business training.—For particulars, apply with reference, to Miss WESTGARTH, Oxford Lodge, Ilford, Essex.

HOUSEKEEPER.—LADY SEEKS post as above to a gentleman. Practical experience in household duties, careful manager. Middle-age. Highly recommended.—A. B., Brockhill's Library, King's-road, St. Leonards-on-Sea. c7144

WIDOW, age 30, with little girl, three, seeks situation as housekeeper or place of trust. Good cook and dressmaker. Highest references.—Address, A., 2, Mayfair Villas, Mancell-road, Acton, London. c7136

HOUSEKEEPER.—RE-ENGAGEMENT required by respectable Christian woman, where a servant is kept. Three years' good reference. Age forty. Abstainer. Good needlewoman.—E. G., care of Mrs. Day, The Green, Tetbury, Glos. c7067

HOUSEKEEPER.—A CLERGYMAN, discontinuing house-keeping, wishes to highly recommend his lady housekeeper (37), especially to widower with children. She is educated, kind, refined, and most excellent manager. Christian home desired. Church or Nonconformist.—Thurton Vicarage, near Norwich. c7120

CHRISTIAN LADY HOUSEKEEPER.—Believing Jewish family preferred. Middle-aged. Experienced. Could manage large staff of servants. Kind, cheerful, economical, reliable. Excellent references.—L., Oak Cottage, Princes-road, Buckhurst Hill. c7088

REQUIRED BY A LADY of long experience, a position of trust as housekeeper, companion, or the head of an institution. Most reliable references.—Mrs. TAYLOR, The Cedars, Horsham, Sussex. c7066

AS USEFUL COMPANION or housekeeper.—Lady, highly recommended, seeks re-engagement. Conscientious, bright, domesticated, good reader and needleworker, musical. Excellent references. Disengaged at present.—F., 22, Archway-road, N. c7079

AS WORKING HOUSEKEEPER to a very respectable man by middle-aged person. Would not object to one or two young children.—Apply to Miss FORD, Goodworth Clatford, Andover. c7130

ENGLISH LADY (21½), certificated, seeks engagement as governess in high-class school or family on Continent (Germany preferred). Trained teacher. Two years' experience. Salary £40 to £50.—KIDD, Christchurch-road, Winchester. c7085

IRISH GIRL, 18, seeks position as mother's-help, or useful companion to a lady. Cheerful, domesticated, fond of children. Christian home would be valued.—B., Delgany, Kingston Hill, Surrey. c7074

AS COMPANION, desired by young lady, bright, musical, good reader, and amanuensis, to elderly or delicate lady, in return for comfortable, refined home. Not object to travel.—c7116, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7116

LADY IS ANXIOUS to find a home for bright, companionable young lady, not very strong. Earnest Christian. Accustomed to Y.W.C.A. work and boys' classes. Good amanuensis. Salary necessary.—HOPE, 16a, Old Cavendish-street, W. c7097

YOUNG LADY (Nonconformist), desiring refined Christian home, three months or more, bracing neighbourhood (hilly country preferred), seeks engagement. Companion or nurse-companion to one child; or might give mornings as equivalent. Musical.—c7117, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7117

A LADY HIGHLY RECOMMENDS an earnest Christian girl, comfortable home desired. 23. Would render faithful service as nurse, or in any position of trust.—Apply, Miss DAVIES, Glenmohr, Wallington, Surrey. c7094

RESPECTABLE TRUSTWORTHY PERSON (age 33) seeks situation as attendant to elderly lady and assist in housework, or would do entire work of small quiet home.—B., Burghley House, Burghley-road, Bristol. c7129

AS UNDERMAID or young ladies' maid. Plain dressmaker and hairdresser. Age 22. Tall. First place. Recommended by Rev. Pargiter, vicar of St. Paul's.—L., 4, Leicester-street, Leamington. c7133

LADY, GREATLY ATTACHED to children, wishes to have charge of same, where under-nurse is kept. Has had experience. Highest reference. Church of England. Evangelical.—FAITH, "Bladud" Office, Bath. c7132

AS UNDER NURSE in small family (15). First place. Christian and abstainer. Also UNDER-HOUSEMAID (16) under superior upper servants. Country girls. Full particulars requested.—Miss GREENE, Midgham, Reading. c7127

SITUATION wanted as under-nurse, where another is kept. Has not been out before. Age 16. Can be well recommended.—Address, E. K. SMITH, 5, Waterloo-terrace, Anna Valley, Andover, Hants. c7039

AS GOOD PLAIN COOK or housekeeper.—Situation wanted in Christian family. Understands dairy and baking. Age 34. Three years' reference. Near London preferred.—H. F., Acacia Cottage, Lancaster-road, Enfield, N. c7152

A LADY WISHES to recommend a housemaid, strong and willing, age 23, Christian home wanted, early in September.—Apply to Mrs. E. S. CARR, East Lodge, Overstrand, Cromer. c7035

SITUATIONS, ETC., VACANT.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

YOUNG MAN (single), Evangelical, energetic colporteur, wanted to help work mission van.—Write, stating salary, experience, copy of references, age, VICAR, Reighton Vicarage, Bempton, R.S.O., Yorks. c7077

GENTLEMAN'S SON required, of musical ability, as articled pupil, to assist as secretaire, manager, etc., to a professor holding high appointments. Board, progressive salary.—REX, 33, Alexander-street, London, W. c7044

RETAIL DRAPERY TRADE.—Smart man wanted for superintendent and assistant-manager in large Scotch warehouse. Age 28 to 35. Reliable. Good references. Abstainer preferred.—c7020, Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7020

CLONMEL SOLDIERS' HOME.—Wanted a lady of some experience in the work, to reside in the Home at her own charges, conduct Bible classes, visit, etc.—Apply to SECRETARY. c7028

WANTED, FOR A KENSINGTON PARISH, under clergyman, a Bible or Mission woman for house-to-house visiting. State age, experience, salary.—Mrs. THORNTON, 2, St. Margaret-terrace, Cromer, Norfolk. c7128

RESIDENT LADY SECRETARY wanted in the country. Shorthand writer and typist, with some experience of editorial and office routine.—Address, by letter, stating age, experience, salary, and denomination to UNITY, care of J. W. Vickers, 7, Nicholas-lane, E.C. c7013

MATRON.—For Preventive Laundry Home. Abstainer. Strong religious influence indispensable. Good disciplinarian. Must have had experience in similar kind of work. Age not over 45.—C., 267, Strand, W.C. c7121

WORKING MATRON wanted, Christian, about 40, for orphanage of about twenty inmates in Leeds District.—Address, by letter, stating full qualifications, salary required, enclosing copies of testimonials, MATRON, Robinson's Advertising Offices, Leeds. c7006

CAPABLE PERSON WANTED as kitchen-matron in an Industrial Home. Must be a good plain cook. Earnest Christian desired.—c7131, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7131

KITCHEN-MATRON wanted, to train girls in housework and teach needlework. One whose heart is in mission work especially desired. Abstainer. Wages £15.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, House of Help, Rotherham. c7031

A WORKING HOUSEKEEPER, middle-aged. Christian and abstainer. Dissenter preferred. Good Christian home. Moderate salary.—Address, W.T.B., Kingsdown, Sevenoaks, Kent. N.R.

A FULLY-TRAINED MEDICAL AND SURGICAL NURSE wanted to nurse out-patients for a private institution. Good salary. Permanent appointment. Send full particulars.—HACKING, 24, York-place, Oxford-road, Manchester. c7013

A STEADY CHRISTIAN GIRL wanted as nurse to a baby of fifteen months. Good tempered, clean, good needlewoman. Can any lady recommend one?—Apply to Mrs. NIXON, 22, Springfield-road, Wimbledon, S.W. c7070

MOTHER'S HELP.—Wanted, a lady, fond of children, to take entire charge of a baby from the month. Two children. Comfortable home. Salary, £13 and laundress.—Address, "O. H." 8, Marius-road, Upper Tooting, S.W. c5460

WANTED, IN OCTOBER, Protestant maid for little girl aged five. Must have good English accent, be good needlewoman, useful, and well recommended.—Mrs. CLIBBORN, Silverspring, Clonmel, Ireland. c7124

TO GUARDIANS.—Girl wanted to train in any of the following, with view to being taken in as partner, by lady in business, dressmaking, millinery, Post Office, good home, general business. Premium.—Miss HOLMES, Post Office, Tunstall-road, Sunderland. c7118

WANTED FOR RESCUE HOME LAUNDRY on the South Coast, working wash house matron and experienced shirt and collar ironer. Able to undertake first-class work.—Miss O'MALLEY, 8, Promenade, Great Malvern. c7102

HEAD-LAUNDRESS wanted in a Rescue Home. Experienced. Able to teach.—Apply, LADY SUFFE, 300, Gt. Cheetham-street, Higher Broughton, Manchester. c7023

WILL ANY LADY recommend a Christian person to undertake the laundry work in a farmhouse? Good shirt and collar ironer.—BECKINGHAM, Stoke House, St. Mary Bourne, Andover, Hants. c7053

LAUNDRY-MAID wanted for a small institution, wages £18, all found, age about 28. Also a good general servant as housemaid, wages, all found, £14.—Write or apply to MATRON, 187, High-street Stoke Newington, N. c7027

The Christian.

☞ To avoid delay it is requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan and Scott, and not to its individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for THE CHRISTIAN should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 1 of cover.)

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

☞ The Publishers request that all orders for THE CHRISTIAN by post, and remittances for same, be addressed to "THE CHRISTIAN" POSTAL DEPARTMENT, BOUVERIE HOUSE, SALISBURY SQUARE, LONDON, E.C.

Cheques and Post Orders to be made payable to Messrs. John Haddon and Co. at that address.

The subscription for one year, including Postage and Coloured Almanack, is as under :—

For Great Britain and Ireland ..	6s. 7d.	per annum
For India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, France, Germany, and other European Countries	8s. 10d.	„ „
For United States and Canada ..	2½ dols.	„ „
Or including Monthly Copy of HERALD OF MERCY	2½ dols.	„ „

Subscriptions for THE HERALD OF MERCY.

4 Copies monthly	2s.	per annum
8 „ „	4s.	„ „
12 „ „	6s.	„ „
24 „ „	12s.	„ „

Post free to any address at home or abroad.

Remittances to be sent as above. Postcard should be enclosed for receipt or extra stamp to cover postage of same.

Notes and Comments.

THE soreness of feeling in France against England at the present time is a reason why every Englishman who has any connections with France, or who even has cause to speak of France, should use his best endeavours to promote kindliness and confidence. Let us lay hold upon the good, and be thankful for it. Let us treat the evil as those who are themselves by no means free from fault.

It seems probable that there will be a plebiscite in Victoria on the question of re-introducing Bible teaching in the State schools; of course the friends of this movement believe that the vote will be in favour of a return to the former method. Even so, the churches cannot transfer their responsibility for teaching the young to day teachers paid by the State, neither can parents shirk their responsibility. Should the Bible in the day-schools relieve either of these of a sense of duty and privilege in relation to the young, neither State nor Church will be the gainer.

The Brewster Sessions have brought to light a very different state of things in different places. In one place there is no attempt to do anything to reduce the number of public-houses, because, when the cases go to Quarter Sessions, the decisions of the borough magistrates are overruled. This is a real grievance, and calls loudly for reform. In another case the chief constable reports a steady decrease in drunkenness, the convictions during a period of five years having declined 35 per cent. In a third the licensing magistrates refuse to grant the renewal of eight licences, including those of three of the best houses in the town. These gentlemen seem determined to make themselves felt as a power.

The education struggle will soon be upon us, for the various hosts are mustering. The Roman Catholics are specially hopeful of the result, Cardinal Vaughan having expressed the opinion that the Government will render them "justice," and that the Bill for this will be presented and passed shortly after the re-opening of Parliament. The "justice" he means is the privilege to use public money for teaching Romanist dogmas; and the same is desired by the Sacerdotalists of the Church of England. Would this be just to Protestants? If the principle be conceded we shall indeed have a dark day in England. All the talk about the democracy saving us from this doom is proving to be mere wind; if we are saved at all it will have to be by men of Christian conviction and faith banding together.

The Times correspondent has sent two long and interesting letters from Madagascar, which, if they may be relied upon for accuracy of information, show a sad state of helplessness, confusion, and self-deception among the invaded people. According to him there is an amount of corruption which makes honest and efficient action impossible. In judging of this people, it should not be forgotten that only for half a century have they been under Christian influences, and that that space of time did not suffice to uplift even the ancient Britons and save them from their invaders over the sea. Indeed, so far as corruption goes, we have heard of it in modern English and French armies, and we know that we have Englishmen who would not be unwilling to make a fortune out of their country's troubles in time of war. Whilst we fear that a good deal of the worst that is reported is too true, we are not disposed to accept it all; the Hovas have a way of colouring things which has probably misled to some extent a very able and trustworthy man.

Up to July 14, The Times correspondent keeps reporting French victories and advances towards Antananarivo, but later reports from France speak of the prevailing sickness in the French army and of the army's unfitness to proceed. We must wait for further information. Meanwhile one thing seems to be certain, that the method of warfare adopted by the French is as barbarous as possible. Black soldiers from Africa have been introduced, and an alliance has been made with the Sakalavas, who do not refuse to attack and slay women and children. In one case "there can be no doubt that the Sakalavas, who are well armed, murdered 400 women and children who fell into their hands." That all this lawless savagery will do untold harm cannot be doubted, and when it has wreaked its vengeance on the Hovas, the French will find it a difficult force to control. The heart sickens at the thought of this uprising of brutality evoked by a so-called Christian country. No difference can be seen between Kurds killing Armenians, and Sakalavas killing Hovas.

The state of things in Madagascar makes the position of the missionaries anxious and difficult; and The Times correspondent censures them severely for not all withdrawing with their wives and families. Some have done so, but others, representatives of all the missionary societies on the ground, decline to move. This action strikes the correspondent as "pig-headed fatalism and ignorant conceit that poses as a highest sense of Christian duty and inspired wisdom." Better not judge. These are men of prayer, and they have work to do which even a newspaper correspondent who has only recently come upon the scene cannot be expected to understand. The most devoted of men and women have always appeared conceited and obstinate when judged by a worldly standard. The correspondent has nowhere taken God into account, and thus he is mistaken in his conclusions. It may be right for some of our brethren to withdraw, and quite as right for some of them to remain.

The desecration of the Sabbath by imitators of rich families is again attracting notice. Golf has become a fashionable Sunday game in metropolitan suburbs, and it is said that cricket and football are played on some of the London open spaces. Lawn-tennis follows the church parade among the rich. What rich families have done in their homes and on their own grounds is affecting the habits of humbler people. The Rock asks whether none of the bishops have the moral courage "to warn the upper classes of their folly in thus paving the way for the introduction into this country of the Continental Sunday"? Is "folly" the right thing to warn them of? Ought they not to be warned of their wickedness? Are we not too gentle in dealing with sins of every kind? Sin is foolish, no doubt, but it is sinful.

America is not served by its Press as it ought to be, if we are to accept the testimony of Mr. E. L. Godkin, editor of The New York Nation, who says in The North American Review that newspapers are rude, noisy, and provocative. To the American editor war means money, and therefore he works for war. The Civil War made the fortunes of numbers of papers, but since then the decline has been steady and continuous. Few papers in New York pay. War would cause a demand for "extras," and would at once increase the value of every paper. And next to war is the promise of war; therefore every appearance of misunderstanding which might lead to war is magnified. Mr. Godkin addresses some serious counsels to his countrymen on this danger which is always among them. The mischief of a newspaper discussion of foreign subjects is when "they begin to hurl defiance, heap abuse, and impute motives." The wreckers of old were condemned for misleading vessels with a few score or a few hundred souls on board. What condemnation is severe enough for the men who will mislead and wreck whole nations for the sake of a larger circulation of their paper?

Rev. Freeman Wills, Major-Commanding the 1st Cadet Battalion, King's Royal Rifle Corps, which has been a fortnight in camp at Broadstairs, has a strange account to give of his boys, who greatly delighted some Broadstairs children by "repulsing an attack of savages." Some of the children, who had heard of soldiers being sent to fight the Matabele savages, asked if the battalion had come to Broadstairs to shoot the niggers; one little girl of dark complexion was greatly frightened at this rumour, and it was hard to dry her tears. These boys will certainly not be slow to join a raid for clearing any country of such "savages" as its aborigines. The most sensible boy was one who, when asked if he would like to be a soldier, said he would rather be a pink rose-tree.

A contemporary suggests that Methodist preachers should use the short time between leaving their old circuits and going to new ones to get some quietness, and to overlook their lives and ministry. The suggestion is good, and might be applied in every life at certain times. What if a day or two of the holiday were devoted to self-examination and prayer and reviewing work and methods? If we are on the right lines, we shall obtain an assurance that will double our strength and efficiency; if on the wrong lines, we shall be all the better for knowing our mistake and sin.

The Independent and Nonconformist has recently published a long article, in two parts, signed by Principal Simon, of the Yorkshire Independent College, on a sermon entitled the "Larger Orthodoxy," by Dr. Anderson, of Dundee. Dr. Simon subjects the crude statements and misleading teaching of this "larger orthodoxy" to a severe test, and shows that it is neither historical nor traditional Christianity. On the doctrine of the Trinity Dr. Anderson makes the astounding remark that it "sprang from the effort of the human mind to set forth the unity of the universe in God." Dr. Simon may well say that it passes comprehension how anyone who is familiar with the New Testament, and with Christian writings down to Athanasius, can maintain that the doctrine or idea of the Trinity "arose out of cosmological inquiries." As Dr. Anderson professes a larger orthodoxy in regard to the incarnation, the atonement, the fall, and regeneration, his critic follows him into each subject, and has the pain of finding him wrong in all.

This faithful and able examination will almost certainly lead on to other exposures of false teaching; the matter can hardly rest where it is. And the more likely is something else to follow because Dr. Simon has treated Dr. Anderson's sermon as a type of teaching. To a certain extent, he says, so far as the views it expounds are getting a footing among Congregationalists, it is representative and his "profound conviction" is that in proportion as they are accepted, in that measure will Congregationalists be unfaithful to their own history, "and forfeit the right to be regarded as a branch of the one Holy Catholic Church." Without indulging in alarmist views we cannot help believing that there is too much cause for Dr. Simon's fears. One wonders sometimes whether words have lost their meaning, or whether we ourselves have been living in a kind of dream, so strange does much that we hear seem to us. One characteristic, we observe, runs through the whole of this order of teaching—a determination to eliminate the supernatural.

In the current issue of The Thinker, Professor G. S. Patton subjects Mr. Kidd's "Social Evolution" to a very severe scrutiny. This book, the praises of which were in all the reviews a year ago, applies the Darwinian method to man in society, and of this Dr. Patton shows the weakness and worthlessness. Pointing out the vagueness and uncertainty attaching to the study of social phenomena, he writes:—

> In social science we have not only the variant systems arising from the various standpoints of their authors, but we have in addition to this the manifold differences arising from disagreement as to the facts themselves. What are we to think when Mr. Kidd attributes progress to the influence of religion, and Mr. Charles H. Pearson regards it as one evidence of progress that religion is dying out; when Mr. Kidd holds that progress is inevitable, and has been due to altruism, which has brought about increased rivalry and competition, and Mr. Pearson asserts that State socialism is unavoidable, and with it the cessation of competition?

Speculation has its fascination, but it is often as mischievous as it is illusory. As we pursue philosophic principles to their essence and origin, we are brought face to face with eternal verities. Christian doctrine as to God's love and saving provision on the one hand, and as to man's capacity and need on the other, yields a definition of individualism and altruism, along the lines of which the problems of social evolution may be satisfactorily solved. And that is more than can be said of any system proceeding on assumptions which deny to God a place in the universe, and only find man as the outcome of a thousand accidents, in an ascent from ancestors who whatever they might be were not intelligent, or made in the image of God.

A Model Minister.

By Rev. T. L. CUYLER, D.D.

During all the earlier years of my ministry the two best thumbed books in my library were Bunyan's "Pilgrim," and the life of Robert Murray McCheyne, the youthful pastor of St. Peter's Church in Dundee. The life of McCheyne—which was Dr. Andrew A. Bonar's masterpiece—was published during my theological seminary days fifty-one years ago, and from that hour to this it has been a perpetual inspiration. Dr. Chalmers' biography was a gold mine; Dr. Norman Macleod's is brilliant with poetry and power, but rather surcharged with hilarity. To spend an hour with Dr. Edward Payson, of Portland, is almost like sitting with Paul in his "hired house" at Rome; but his seraphic piety was mournfully tinged by morbid temperament. McCheyne's piety was eminently healthy, cheerful, and saintly without being sanctimonious. He dwelt during the nine years of his fruitful ministry far away from the damps that arise about Doubting Castle, and hard by the Beulah-land where the sunlight ever falls.

To the younger ministers who are coming on the stage it may be necessary to say, in brief, that Robert Murray McCheyne was the pastor of the Church of St. Peter's in Dundee, and was called away to his crown a few weeks before the Disruption in 1843. He entered the vineyard at twenty-one, hungry for the salvation of souls. After nine years of intense, earnest and untiring labor, he was laid—amid the tears of thousands—in that tomb at the corner of his little church which has been visited by weeping thousands during the last half century. His parish was composed of plain people; and the wife of a poor weaver told me that it did her "more good just to see Mr. McCheyne walk up the aisle to his pulpit than to hear a sermon from another man." His personality was a power; his life more eloquent than any discourse he ever delivered. To pray and to search the Word of God, to carry the hidden fire from house to house, to prepare the beaten oil for the sanctuary, to plead with dying men, and to allure to brighter worlds by the joyous uptread of his own heavenward march—these formed the varied yet unchanging employment of his fervid spirit. With what eager joy he leaped into the bosom of the Scriptures! No cavils of the critics ever disturbed his impregnable faith in the adamantine Word. "When you write to me," said he to a friend, "tell me all you can about the meaning of Scripture. One gem from that ocean is worth all the pebbles of earthly streams."

Love of Jesus Christ was his master passion. His Saviour's work was his work; he never wearied, and he never rested. Every hour he gave to his Master. The celebrated Dr. James Hamilton, of London, who was his intimate friend, once told me that McCheyne used to seal his letters with the device of a sun going down behind the mountains, and the motto over it, "The night cometh." For souls he watched as the fisherman's wife trims her lamp in the window, and watches for the storm-tossed and belated husband in the offing. He hoisted the light of Calvary; and, like Spurgeon, it was his life's joy to welcome the returning wanderers into the "covert from the tempest." In prayer he was a mighty and prevailing wrestler. He prayed before he sat down to his studies; before he went out to visit the sick. Before he entered his pulpit, he had what he called a "scheme of prayer," and marked the names of missionaries on his map that he might pray for them in course and by name. Literally he "walked with God." In writing to a friend he said: "Now remember that Moses, when he came down from the mount, wist not that the skin of his face shone. Looking at our own shining face is the bane of the spiritual life and of the ministry. Oh, for closest communion with God, till soul and body—head, face and heart—shine with divine brilliancy: but oh, for a holy ignorance of our own shining!"

Six years ago I visited Dundee, and preached in the pulpit of St. Peter's Church. After the service, the Provost of the city introduced me to one of the very few survivors of McCheyne's ministry. He was a grey-headed man of threescore and ten, and spoke of the pastor of his youth with the most reverent love. The chief thing that he remembered — after forty-six years — was that McCheyne, a few days before his death, met him in the street, and laying his hand on his shoulder, said to him kindly, "Jamie, I hope that all is well with your soul. How is your sick sister? I am coming to see her again shortly." That sentence or two had stuck to the old Christian for nearly half a century! McCheyne's hand was on the old man's shoulder yet. This little incident gave me a fresh insight into the secret of McCheyne's pastoral fidelity and personal power. I commend that incident to young ministers who underrate the work of a faithful pastor who keeps in touch with every member of his flock.

It is fifty-two years since McCheyne was borne to his grave in Dundee. His fatal sickness was brought on by visiting the victims of an epidemic. During the wanderings of his mind, in the delirium of the fever, he kept repeating, "O God! my people! my dear people! this whole place!" It was the ruling passion for souls—still strong in death. I am one of many hundreds of ministers who owe a debt of immeasurable gratitude to Robert Murray McCheyne, and I hope to thank him in heaven for many things. Among other things I thank him for once exclaiming, "Go on, dear brother; only an inch of time remains, and then eternal ages roll on for ever—only an inch on which we can stand and preach the way of salvation to perishing souls!" That is his message to every minister who reads this article.

"FAINT, YET PURSUING."

We are walking on the waters
Of a dark and troubled sea,
And our hearts, O Lord, are fainting
That we cannot come to Thee:
Fainting at the storms that gather,
Though above thy Voice be heard—
Fainting in thy very presence
Though we venture at thy Word.

Yet we know, since Thou hast bidden
Us to walk, Thou wilt sustain,
Through a way as rough and pathless
As the storm-tossed watry main.
And if dangers so encompass
That thy form we scarcely see,
We may still press surely onward,
For Thou bid'st us come to Thee.

Lydia Banks.

LIFE A WALK.—It is something to apprehend and feel that life is a walk; not a game, a pastime, or outburst of passion; not a random flight, or a groping, creeping, grovelling crawl, or a mazy, labyrinthian puzzle; but a walk, a steady walk, an onward march and movement, a business-like, purpose-like, step-by-step advance in front—such a walk as a man girds himself for, and shoes himself for, and sets out upon with staff in hand, and firm-set face, and cap well fixed on the head; and holds on in, amidst stormy wind and drifting snow, resolute to have it finished and to reach the goal. Such a walk is real life—life in earnest.—Dr. Candlish.

World-Wide Evangelisation.

WHEN an infant, over seventy years ago, I was named by my parents "Reginald," after Reginald Heber, foreign missionary Bishop of Calcutta. At a very early period of my childhood, I remember well persevering in reading through the ponderous volumes of this Bishop's missionary journals. Thus, probably, at a very early period of my life, I fell into the error of supposing that the evangelization of the heathen was to be accomplished chiefly by pecuniarily-supported official missionaries, and that our prayers were to be specially or chiefly for the sending out of those official missionaries. During my early life I was a persistent reader of the Bible. But I think it was very long before my eyes were opened to see that the Bible told a very different story and taught a very different prayer, vastly wider, and one which the Almighty had deigned immediately to answer at Pentecost WHOLESALE and on the spot by filling the whole assembled company of women as well as men with the Holy Spirit and so energizing and emboldening them that EVERYONE FORTHWITH went spreading the glad news. Thus, by every female and male acting as salt that had not lost its savour, multitudes of many tongues in many lands were speedily converted.

One night about two years ago on the very spot where I am now writing this paper, I looked out and saw at about two miles distance a timber yard being devoured in mighty flaming fire. But why was it? What caused the fire to be so unusually rapid and brilliant? Because each dry burning timber was inflaming its neighbour, and the latter quickly passed on the flame as if each flame cried, "Pass it on," "No time to be lost." "Pass it on," "Pass it on quickly," and when we turned our eyes upward the vault of the very heavens appeared to be illuminated.

Was there not a vast spiritual illumination in Jerusalem that, like this fire, rapidly spread in Asia, in Europe, and in Africa, whilst it refused to wait for printing, even of the Gospels, or for railways, or for steamboats, and there was a mighty advance during the first centuries. Our advance in this nineteenth century, if we estimate the numbers of the unevangelised, is not an advance, but, alas, if not an actual defeat, our progress is not to be compared to the progress of the early centuries.

What is the greatest want now? More money to send out more missionaries? No! What then? That every separate particle all over the world should be real salt actually salting. Is it not awful to think that in spite of all our cheap Bibles and tracts, and railways, and steamboats, and telegraphs we are not now gaining upon the heathen and Mahomedan world, but that they are gaining numerically upon us.

I would appeal for prayer to the old and bodily enfeebled Christians, and especially to the Lord's poor, to pray in the Saviour's own words—"Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven;" and then to obey Christ's own injunction—

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that He thrust forth labourers into his harvest."

We, and especially we aged ones, need to cry to God solitarily, in secret, and also with one accord, in twos or threes, or in larger companies:—

"And now, Lord, behold the martyrdoms and persecutions in China, and grant not to missionaries merely, but to all thy servants and handmaids everywhere engaged in secular pursuits, whether literate or illiterate, that with all boldness that they may spread thy Gospel as did the early Christians, and not in China merely, but all over the whole world, and to hang on God for an answer at least as great as he granted to the like prayer as detailed in the Book of Acts."

REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

ROOTS OF BITTERNESS.

I WAS seated in a railway carriage, all alone. Just as the train was about to start, a Christian merchant entered, and, unheeding my presence, dropped into a corner seat with a sigh that told me the worries of the day had left him more than ever dissatisfied with things "under the sun."

"Don't you wish HE would come?" I asked.

"I cannot say I do," was his answer, "for I am not sure about my children."

In that honest confession was expressed a feeling that might to-day be found in thousands of Christian hearts. "Yea, come, Lord," is the cry, "but save our dear ones first."

Answered to the many who use it, this prayer would mean such a revival as the Church has never known. Why is it not answered? Why does He who giveth the early and latter rains allow this spiritual drought to be prolonged? We have his answer to a like question from Israel of old. "Wherefore have we fasted, and Thou seest not?" asked they.

"Show my people their transgression, and the house of Jacob their sin," said He to the prophet.

Sin would block the flow of Divine blessing to the Church at large; to any one of its many branches; or to the individual soul.

What a refreshing change in the use of the now fashionable "convention," it might be if the believers assembling would freely and honestly compare the present-day practices and opinions, of professing Christians generally, with the never-changing doctrines of the Holy Ghost, as given in the Word of God. I believe the contrasts thus brought out would be most startling to those who had never drawn such comparisons for themselves. And if that be sin which opposeth itself to the mind of God, which leaves undone what He commands, and does that which He forbids, would not the abounding sin discovered in the Church leave us to wonder no longer why the heavens are as brass to her cry for the Lord to revive his work in her?

It was with a full heart that I wrote my recent article on "Irreverence"; and it is with a firm conviction that I am acting in accordance with the will of God, that I now ask the readers of THE CHRISTIAN to consider the numbers of those who are harboured, without even rebuke, in the bosom of the Church to her own hurt, and her Lord's dishonour, in spite of their openly sinful lives. In nothing has God revealed his mind more clearly than on this matter. He has spoken to us, through type; by Israel's history; and in express command; but He has spoken in vain. We plead expediency, charity, necessity, and love for the erring, the result being the world's gratification, as it sees on Christ wounds received in the house of his friends, more cruel and more deep than ever He obtained from his open enemies.

Possibly, the Corinthians would argue, in the case of the man whom Paul excommunicated, "If we dismiss him from the church, he will be utterly lost to all good influence," or, maybe, he was a moneyed man, and some would be led to tolerate him because of the supplies received from his purse. Paul regarded his Master's will alone. He saw a leper in the camp, and determined that he should be ejected, and remain outside till he could return as a pardoned and cleansed penitent.

"I have written unto you not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such an one no not to eat." It is scarcely possible to realise that these words have any application for us; but, if they were not written for all time, how shall we know what to receive, and what to reject of other Scriptures?

We can never mend God's arrangements. Supposed charity to the one, becomes actual cruelty to the many; and, therefore, it is that we are bidden not only to look, but to look "diligently" "lest any root of bitterness springing up...thereby many be defiled." During one of my missions I found a semi-sceptic in an Evangelical church, and the vicar making a great fuss with him, in the hope of ultimately seeing him saved. "By all means keep him under the sound of the Word, if you can," said I; "but don't let him continue to take such an active part in that young men's meeting." My friend asked my reasons. I begged him to secretly inquire into the influence his favourite was exerting on the other members of the class. It was enough. He found, to his horror, that others, of whom he had cherished great hopes, had also begun to imbibe sceptical opinions. The root of bitterness had already defiled many.

In connection with such a question as this, we must also consider the undue haste with which many churches receive back again, with but few, or without any, marks of penitence, those who have crucified Christ afresh, and put Him to an open shame. It is the privilege and duty of all believers to restore the erring, in the two-fold spirit of meekness and humiliation; and "let him know that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins." Yet, there must be restoration to God, before restoration to the Church. All was settled between the father and the prodigal, before the latter re-took his place in his old home. When the Lord addresses backsliding Israel, his word is ever "Return unto Me." He stands first—privileges are behind Him.

We, none of us, want to indulge the spirit of "the elder brother," nor to forget, as did the Pharisees who led the adulteress to the presence of the Lord Jesus, that we ourselves are not faultless; but let the Lord's will be done.

On the roadside, as one journeys from Pavenham to Bedford, is a hedgerow that some years ago seemed utterly worthless because of the small amount of living wood in it. Then there came a young forester from the north who cut out of it all the dead wood, with the belief that this would give the living more room for growth. His work was ridiculed by all the old wiseacres of the neighbourhood; and as the removal of the dead wood had left gaps innumerable in the fence, even those who had faith in his skill were led to ask if he had not done more harm than good. When the next summer came, however, most of the gaps had disappeared; by and bye they had all gone. He had been right; and life asserted its presence and power directly the removal of death had given it room for action. I was once connected with a church, the members of which met for a week's prayer to ask a special outpouring of the Holy Ghost. No special blessing appeared to follow the meetings. Nearly a year passed away, and four or five unsatisfactory persons were compelled by circumstances to separate themselves from us. As soon as they were gone we received such an outpouring of blessing from above, that we were enabled to continue a mission that was to have lasted a week or so, for a hundred and forty-five successive nights.

We like full churches—their fulness is our glory. In our foolish pride we like to present a fair show to the world. But our glory is often the Lord's shame, and (did we know it) our own shame too. One inconsistent professor of religion does any church more harm than the combined efforts of a hundred infidels from the outside. And the inconsistent are always the most forward. Theirs are the voices we hear soonest at the prayer-meetings. They are the first on their legs when opportunity offers itself for anything like an address. The world regards the church to which such belong; and, as it sees and hears, it says, "Fie upon thee; fie upon thee." The devil replies, "So would I have it." Judgment will reach "the house of God" before it touches the world; but how much lighter would it be if "the house of God" would first judge itself.

J. E. LINNELL.

Pavenham Vicarage, Bedford.

LIVERPOOL POLICE-COURT AND PRISON GATE MISSION.—Amongst the agencies of the diocesan Church of England Temperance Society is the firewood factory in Cedar-street, Bootle, which gives temporary employment to men met at the gate of Walton Gaol, and in the police-courts, who have mostly been discharged under the beneficient First Offenders' Act. Last year 152 men were employed, or an average of twenty per day, at wood-chopping, and most of them obtained permanent employment after working at the factory for a short time. The secretary is Rev. J. Hirst, 11, Lord-street, Liverpool.

A Cool Hand on a Hot Head.

1 Sam. xxv.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

The tidings passed throughout the land, like fire in prairie-grass, that Samuel was dead; and Israel, recognising its unity in the common loss, gathered to lament the prophet and saint, and perform the last honouring rites. To his worth and service was accorded the unusual tribute of interment within the precincts of his own house at Ramah, on the heights of Benjamin.

In all likelihood an amnesty was proclaimed, and David came to take part in the obsequies of his master and friend. It must have afforded unspeakable comfort to his harassed soul to be counted again amongst his people, and to share in the national tribute to one who had awoke within his breast the loftiest conceptions of the meaning and possibilities of his life. What memories were stirred around that bier! Some would feel that the chariots and horses of Israel had departed. Some dreaded the excess to which Saul's passionate temperament might carry him, now that the restraint of the aged statesman was removed. What unutterable thoughts rushed in wild turbulence through the heart of Saul himself may be inferred from his appeal to Samuel on the eve of Gilboa to return from the grave to help him. David perhaps most deeply felt his loneliness, as a sapling exposed to the full blast of the storm, when its sheltering oak is felled.

David dared not trust himself in such near proximity to Saul a moment longer than was absolutely essential, and as soon as all was over he started again for the sparsely-populated region of Paran, at the extreme south of Judah. To those borderlands, so long desolated by border warfare through the incursions of the Philistines and Amalekites, his advent brought tranquillity and safety. The sheep-masters had every reason to be grateful for his protection, and, as one well put it, "The men were very good to us, and we were not hurt, neither missed we anything, as long as we were conversant with them; they were a wall unto us both by night and by day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep."

Unlike the Arabs of the present day, who inspire as much fear in those whom they profess to defend as in those with whom they are at open feud, these men, whom Saul desired to extirpate from his kingdom, took no advantage of the defencelessness of their wards, shielded them from hostile incursions; and so far from levying blackmail, were content with such moderate remuneration as might be freely tendered in days of ingathering, sheep-shearing, and festival. Where such services had been accepted and counted upon, it was obviously fair, and indeed according to the custom of the time, that some recompense in kind should be made. It was a tacit understanding, an unwritten law, and David was perfectly justified in sending ten young men to greet the opulent sheepmaster, Nabal, in the day of prosperity, to which the exertions of himself and his men had so largely contributed, to remind him of his obligations, and ask whatsoever might come readily to his hand to give.

Nabal's churlish treatment of this request touched David to the quick, and led up to an incident which, as recorded by the sacred historian, is one of the most charming idylls of Scripture, fragrant as the flowers of Alpine pastures, and fresh as a summer morn.

The story centres in Nabal, David, and Abigail.

I.—NABAL THE CHURL.

His character is drawn, after the manner of Scripture, in three or four bold outline strokes, and need not detain us. In every society men of this type are to be encountered, overbearing to their inferiors, intolerable in prosperity, drunken in carouse, abject in misfortune; who fly out with flout and sneer when they think themselves secure, but whose heart cringes before reverse. What an apt thumb-nail sketch is given of the whole race of Nabals in the confidential remark passed between his servant and his wife, "He is such a son of Belial that one cannot speak to him"!

He was very great, the historian says. But it was the meanest kind of greatness, consisting not in what he was in character, or had achieved in valiant deed, but in the number of sheep and goats that bore his brand over the pasture lands of the south. There are four kinds of greatness; young men, choose the best for your life aim! It is little to be great in possessing, better to be great in doing, better still to conceive and promulgate great thoughts, but best to be great in character. Aim at the greatness of which Heaven takes account. It was where Self-mastery, Holy Ghost Fulness, and Service to mankind met, that the angel said, "He shall be great in the sight of the Lord."

He was a fool, his wife said. "As his name is so is he; Nabal is his name and folly is with him." Poor woman! She had had every reason for speaking thus bitterly of him, and she was a sweet woman too, not likely to speak in these terms of her husband unless his rude, cruel hands had wantonly broken down the last remnant of wifely respect and love. He surely must have sat for the full-length portrait of the fool in our Lord's parable, who thought his soul could take its ease and be merry because a few big barns were full. There are appetites and longings in the soul which good dinners cannot satisfy; there are cravings which will not be appeased merely because we can see our way to three meals a day as long as we live.

He was a man of Belial, his servants said; and indeed his treatment of David's modest request well bore out the character. It was rude, uncourteous, uncivil. He could not have been ignorant of the causes which had forced David into his wandering, arduous life, but he ignored them, and chose to put forward the most cruel and harsh construction. He as good as said that David was raising a revolt against his master Saul; virtuously covered his refusal beneath a show of loyal devotion to law and government, which was intended to suggest an extremely unpleasant alternative for David; and finally asserted his preference to give his bread and flesh to those who, like his shearers, had worked for them, rather than to a lot of vain fellows, who were hanging idly about to live on the ripe fruit that might fall into their mouths.

He seems to have no compunction for his churlish speeches: no idea of the consequences they might involve. As soon as the words were spoken they were forgotten; and in the evening of the day on which they were spoken we find him in his house, holding a feast, like the feast of a king, his heart merry with wine, for he was very drunk, and altogether so stupid that his wife told him nothing less or more till the morning light.

II.—DAVID, PRECIPITATE AND PASSIONATE.

One of the most characteristic features in David's temper and behaviour through all these weary years was his self-control. He waited patiently for the Lord. Year after year he stayed himself on God's promise, and left Him to realise the word on which He had caused him to hope. When summoned to relieve Ziklag, or warned to leave it, as well as on other occasions, he showed the utmost deliberation, calling for prophet or priest, and seeking to ascertain the Divine will before stirring a step. On two occasions he had controlled himself, when Saul lay in his power, and refused to take his life. But the rampart of self-restraint built by long habit went down, like a neglected sea-wall, before the sudden paroxysm of passion which Nabal's insulting words aroused. In hot fury he said to his men, "Gird ye on every man his sword." And they girded on every man his sword, and David also girded on his sword, and there went up after David about 400 men. He doubtless argued with himself as they marched rapidly through the silent wolds, "I am justified in this act; there is no reason why this man should treat me thus; he has returned evil for good, and added reviling and reproach; it is intolerable; I must assert my self-respect, and let this neighbourhood see that I am not going to be trifled with. I will bear from the king what I will suffer from no living man else."

At this hour David was on the brink of committing a crime, which would have cast a dark shadow on all his after years. In calmer, quieter, holier hours it would have been a grief to him, and an offence of heart, to have shed blood causelessly, and avenged himself, instead of leaving it to the Lord to sling out the souls of his enemies, as from the hollow of a sling. From this shame, sorrow, and disgrace he was saved by that sweet and noble woman, Abigail.

III.—ABIGAIL, THE BEAUTIFUL INTERCESSOR.

She was a woman of good understanding and of a beautiful countenance. A fit combination. Her character had written its legend on her face. The two things do not always go together. There are many beautiful women, wholly destitute of good understanding; just as birds of rarest plumage are commonly deficient in the power of song. But a good understanding, which is moral rather than intellectual, casts a glow of beauty over the plainest features.

It is remarkable how many Abigails get married to Nabals. God-fearing women, tender and gentle in their sensibilities, high-minded and noble in their ideals, become tied in an indissoluble union with men for whom they can have no true affinity, even if they have not an unconquerable repugnance. In Abigail's case, this relationship was in all probability not of her choosing, but the product of the Oriental custom, which compelled a girl to take her father's choice in the matter of marriage. As a mere child, she may have come into Nabal's home, and become bound to him by an apparently inevitable fate. In other ways, which involve equally little personal choice, compelled by the pressure of inexorable circumstances, misled by the deceitful tongue of flattery, her instinctive hesitancy overcome by the urgency of friends, a woman may still find herself in Abigail's pitiful plight. To such an one there is but one advice—You must stay where you are. The dissimilarity in taste and temperament does not constitute a sufficient reason for leaving your husband to drift—You must believe that God has permitted you to enter on this awful heritage, partly because this fiery ordeal was required by your character, and partly that you might act as a counteractive influence. You must stay as you are. It may be that some day your opportunity will come, as it came to Abigail. In the meantime do not allow your purer nature to be bespotted or besmeared. You can always keep the soul clean and pure. Bide your time, and amid the weltering waste of inky water be like a pure fountain, rising from the ocean depths.

But if any young girl who reads these lines, of good sense and earnest aspirations, secretly knows that, if she had the chance, she would wed a carriage and pair, a good position, or broad acres, irrespective of character, let her know that to enter the marriage bond with a man, deliberately and advisedly, for such a purpose, is a profanation of the Divine ideal, and can end only in one way. She will not raise him to her level, but sink to his; her marble will not change his clay, but coarsen to it.

Nabal's servants knew the quality of their mistress, and could trust her to act wisely in the emergency which was upon them, so they told her all. She immediately grasped the situation, despatched a small procession of provision-bearers along the way that David must come, and followed them immediately on her ass. She met the avenging warriors by the covert of the mountain, and the interview was as creditable to her woman's wit as to her grace of heart. The lowly obeisance of the beautiful woman at the young soldier's feet, the frank confession of the wrong that had been done, the expression of thankfulness that so far he had been kept from blood-guiltiness and from avenging his own wrongs, the depreciation of the generous present she brought as only fit for his servants, the chivalrous appreciation of his desire to fight only the battles of the Lord and to keep an unblemished name, the sure anticipation of the time when his fortunes would be secured and his enemies silenced, the suggestion that in those coming days he would be glad to have no shadow on the sunlit hills of his life, no haunting memory—all this was as beautiful, and wise, and womanly as it could be, and brought David back to his better self. Frank and noble as he always was, he did not hesitate to acknowledge his deep indebtedness to this lovely woman, and to see in her intercession the gracious arrest of God. "And David said to Abigail, Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, which sent thee this day to meet me, and blessed be thy wisdom, and blessed be thou, which hast kept me this day from blood-guiltiness, and from avenging myself with my own hand."

What a revelation this is of the ministries with which God seeks to avert us from our evil ways. They are sometimes very subtle and slender, very small and still. Sometimes a gentle woman's hand laid on our wrist, the mother reminding us of her maternity, the wife of early vows, the child with its pitiful beseeching look; sometimes a thought, holy, pleading, remonstrating. Ah! many a time, we had been saved actions which have caused lasting regret, had we only heeded. And above all these voices and influences, there has been the gracious arresting influences of the Holy Spirit, striving with passion and selfishness, calling us to a nobler better life. Blessed Spirit, come down more often, stay us in our mad career, and let us not press past thee to take our own wild way.

Stories of the Red Indians.

By Rev. EGERTON R. YOUNG.

II.—A RELIGION WORTH HAVING.

"Missionary, I have made up my mind to be a Christian."

Thus was a missionary addressed by an old Indian, as for the first time for long weeks he had been able to leave the Mission-house, and come out into the pleasant sunshine. With malarial fever he had been stricken down, when, weeks before, he had gone from a distant northern mission port to what was then known as Fort Garry, for his yearly supplies. The fever developed into typhoid, and for weeks he had hovered between life and death.

His field of toil was away up north beyond the great Lake Winnipeg, among the wandering Indians who there live by hunting and fishing. So ignorant, and destitute of bread were they in those days that, in order to make the petition in the Lord's Prayer, "Give us this day our daily bread," intelligible, it had to be translated, "Give us this day something to keep us in life." They lived entirely on fish and game. Money was a thing unknown among them.

The business of the country was fur-trading, carried on altogether by barter. The desolate country, void of grain or vegetables, abounded in the finest fur-bearing animals. In these northern retreats, where the winters lasted more than half of the year, where blizzards raged and tempests howled, were to be found numbers of black bears, prized by the Indian for their valuable skins and savoury flesh; also the valuable silver and black foxes, as well as four other varieties of the same cunning creature. Here the otters, minks, martens, and other similar animals abound as in no other part of the world, while the industrious beavers build their dams with a skill and cleverness in overcoming some of nature's obstacles from which we may well learn a lesson.

In exchange for the skins the Indians obtained from the traders what they deemed the necessities of life, such as guns, ammunition, tobacco, blankets, clothing, kettles, knives, etc.—sometimes a little tea and sugar, but these were ever considered great luxuries, and were only to be obtained by the fortunate hunter who brought in large packs of furs, and then only in limited quantities.

Among them still survive some of the once populous and warlike tribes who held possession of the whole American continent, but who now are only the wreck of former days. Many years ago missionaries had gone with the Word of God, and had been a great blessing and joy to large numbers of them. Among some tribes great opposition was at first offered by those proud and sensitive people, who imputed to the "pale faces" all the disasters that had come upon them. The missionaries being of the same colour, shared in their suspicions. In some instances it took long years to overcome these prejudices. But eventually, by kindness and practical sympathy, it was accomplished, and now in many places the missionary is not only the personal trusted friend, but the one to whom the tribe goes for counsel and advice when any emergency in its affairs arises.

When once the friendship of the Indian is secured it is sure and abiding. They are

A PEOPLE WHO KEEP THEIR WORD.

An Indian, unless he has been spoiled by unprincipled whites, can be depended upon to carry out his promise. The Friends of Pennyslvania tested them for seventy-five years and were not disappointed. The whole record of the dealings of the Friends with the Indians in other parts of North America, as well as in Pennyslvania, has been most admirable and praiseworthy. They were misunderstood by the Indians on account of their peaceful ideas, so contrary to what the natives had been accustomed to in their contact with the rest of the adventurous whites, who were always armed, and generally treated the Indian as an enemy.

At first the Indians were inclined to treat these peaceful methods of the Friends as evidences of cowardice, but a few practical lessons taught them their mistake, and from that time on the relationship between them has ever been most cordial. It was to the Friends that many of the tribes, longing for peace and quietness, and especially for the deliverance from the unprincipled whisky traders, who were ruining them by wholesale, sent their deputations urging them to plead with the "Great Father," the President, to save them ere it was too late. How different might have been the record if others had imitated the methods of this most worthy society.

At those northern mission stations there was no attempt made to put things under lock and key, or to fasten up windows or doors. Poor as the people were, they would scorn to steal.

The missionary and teachers found them to be bright and clever, and as capable of receiving the truth and acquiring the art of reading as any other people. However, there was one drawback in the successful efforts to teach to read those northern tribes, who live altogether by hunting and fishing.

Their mode of living required them to be ever on the move. They had no settled habitation. When the spring came they left their hunting lodges or wigwams in the forests, where they had been trapping the fur-bearing animals, and for a time camped on the shores of lakes, or near the great swamps, where the flocks of wild geese had their breeding grounds, or were passing over still further north, and where also the ducks, returning from the south, rested in great numbers. Then they scattered to distant parts of the lakes and islands where the various spring fowl were to be captured, and, later on, off again to the favourite hunting-grounds where the bears and other animals were to be obtained in their season.

In the early autumn they gathered to the lakes to make what was known as the Falls Fishing. Tens of thousands of the splendid whitefish were captured in the full nets, and hung up on stagings, beyond the reach of fierce wolves and Esquimaux dogs; and there, frozen hard as marble, they remained fresh and good for months, and would be taken away by dog trains, and used as required from November to May. Then, with the return of the bitter winter, when the cold had made prime the furs, they were off again to their hunting lodges.

To keep schools in successful operation year after year among such a migratory people was not to be thought of in those early days. All that a missionary or a teacher could do was to follow up the people, and do the best he could whenever at the camp fire, or in the wigwams, little companies could be mustered. But at best the efforts were not very encouraging.

To one of the early missionaries came the happy thought like as an inspiration—Cannot a simpler method be invented by which these Indians can be taught to read the Word of God? This thought took such possession of him, and it so fired and enthused him, that he worked and toiled and experimented, until he invented what is known as the Syllabic Characters, as each letter or character represents a syllable. This devoted missionary, the Rev. James Evans, had to work for years amidst many discouragements ere he succeeded, but success came at last, and great indeed was his joy and that of the wandering Indians at the discovery of a plan by which an intelligent person can in a very few weeks

EASILY LEARN TO READ THE WORD OF GOD.

Some missionaries, with no other appliances than a burnt stick and the side of a granite rock, have taught the syllabic characters of Mr. Evans to the people so successfully, that without the aid of school-house, spelling book, slate, or pencil, they have opened to the first chapter of Genesis, and with nothing else to aid than the characters on the rock, and the explanations of the missionary, have so succeeded that now in the lonely wigwams, or at their distant camp fires, on western prairies, or in northern forests, they are reading fluently the blessed Book.

All of the Churches that have missions in that great land have adopted this syllabic system in teaching the natives how to read; and at this we rejoice. The British and Foreign Bible Society have for years been printing the Bible in these characters, and all the missions desiring them are most generously supplied.

Years ago, the missionary referred to in the beginning of this chapter went to live among some of those far-off tribes. In various places he saw blessed results of the self-denying efforts of those who before him had toiled. In other places it was his joy to be the first to tell the story of redeeming love. Some at once received the Word gladly, others delayed for a season, and some openly opposed, declaring that, as their fathers lived and died, so would they.

One old Indian, while very anxious to hear all he could of the stories and incidents of the good Book, was stubborn in his resolve not to become a Christian. Still he listened attentively to all that was said about the Christian religion, and the blessings it brought to its possessor in this life and the life beyond. He attended the religious services when in from hunting, unmoved and unimpressed.

When health came back to the missionary who had been so long on his sick bed, utterly unable to attend to any of his duties, and he was able to enter again upon the work he so much loved, one of the first to greet him was this old Indian with the words with which we have begun this chapter, "Missionary, I have made up my mind to be a Christian."

Great indeed was the joy of the missionary at hearing these words, as his prayers and yearnings had so often gone out for this man's conversion, as he observed how intently he seemed to listen to all that was said. As it was but natural that he should desire to know what had induced this man, who had been so stubborn in his resolve not to be a Christian, now to make such a full and complete surrender, after expressing his joy at hearing of his resolve, he questioned him as to the cause of this change in his mind towards Christianity.

His answer is worth remembering, and of being well pondered over.

"You know," he said, "I often listened to you as you talked to us about the stories and lessons in the great Book. Among other things you told us was that the Great Spirit who gave the Book, was able to give us comfort for every kind of trouble, and could sustain us in sickness as well as in health, and keep us from fear and alarm, even in the presence of death itself.

"This was great news to me, and I could hardly believe it. And so when you were brought home sick and became so bad and seemed likely to die, I thought, 'Now I will see if what the missionary has told us is true in his own case.' So I used to go and sit in the room where you were and watch you and listen to your words, and although when the fever was on you, you said many queer things, yet, whenever your mind was right, you were kept without any fear or alarm, and were so happy and joyous all the time. The prospect of death had no dread for you, so I said to myself, This is a religion worth having; and now I want to be a Christian, and have this same love in my heart which in the time of need will take all fear away."

IDOLATRY IN MEXICO CITY.

Readers of The Christian will be interested in learning of the proposed movement on the part of Mexican Romanists to place a magnificent crown over the picture of the Virgin Mary, which was supposed to have been miraculously impressed upon an Indian's blanket two hundred years ago. The ceremony takes place during the first twelve days of the coming October. The picture hangs in a church in the suburbs of this city, and is annually visited by thousands of pilgrims. The "coronation" has been talked of for a century, but is only being realised at this late date, probably for the purpose of counteracting the effects of Protestantism, which seems to be making rapid progress in every direction.

From the 1st of October to the 12th a steady stream of pilgrims will pour into the city, and a conservative estimate puts the aggregate of all comers at a million people. What a magnificent opportunity to give the Gospel to Mexico! The missionaries have decided to publish a daily religious paper during those twelve days, in which the baseless assumption of the miraculous appearance of the Virgin will be constantly brought before the people; it is also desired to publish from £100 to £200 worth of Spanish tracts, leaflets, cards, placards, &c., giving the teachings of God's Word on the subject of idolatry and kindred topics. These tracts must be prepared here, as the superstition is a national one, and the ordinary tract does not meet the case.

The missionaries representing the different Protestant organisations labouring in this city earnestly desire the help of their English brethren in this matter. The opportunity is one that may never again occur. At a comparatively small expenditure of money and effort we can send the Gospel all over Mexico.

Wm. H. Sloan.
3d Humboldt Ave., No. 515, City of Mexico, Mexico.

DEAN FARRAR has promised to address a meeting in the Temperance Hall, Newport, on Thursday, September 26, under the auspices of the Newport and County Total Abstinence Society and Gospel Temperance Union.

ECCLESIASTES EXPLAINED.

NOTES ON AN ADDRESS AT NORTHFIELD, MASS.
By W. J. ERDMAN, D.D., Germantown, Pa.

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.—Eccles. xii. 13, 14.

The Book of Ecclesiastes is read by Christians with doubt and perplexity. They find it hard to extract from it anything spiritual and heavenly, and so try to read into it what is consciously contrary to its spirit and letter. To others its sayings and conclusions are most agreeable; and, being a book of the Bible, it seems to sanction a conduct of life at variance with the holiness and grace of Christianity.

It is in the Bible; it was given by inspiration of God; it is there for the purpose common to all the books of Scripture, and like all the books of the Old Testament can be fully understood only in the light of the New. It belongs to the organism of Scripture, and with all the books of the Old Testament faces the future: it faces Jesus Christ; it leads to Him; it is answered in Him.

In brief, Ecclesiastes is the book of the natural man; it is the mirror of man under the sun, held up by Solomon; and its last and best conclusion is still that of the natural man.

1. The text in its more literal reading gives us the proof: "The end of the matter, the whole let us hear; fear God, and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man"; or with the LXX., "this is the whole man"; and the word for man is "the Adam," the name of the race, of humanity. This whole duty is truly the ideal man, but the expectation of judgment of things evil as well as of good implies the failure and imperfection of this very Adam; and so for him law and duty can be no ground of acceptance before God.

Likewise, in vi. 10 we are told the book is all about Adam, not of Adam wise and unfallen, at home with God, but as one who "knoweth not what is good for man in this life, all the days of his vain life, which he spendeth as a shadow."

2. Another proof that this book and its noblest saying is of man not born again, lies in the fact that the only divine name in it except Creator—(and that is also a proof)—is what may be called his natural name, Elohim (God). Not once is spoken the name Jehovah, the name of the everlasting covenant of redemption; "I am the LORD." God seems distant, far away, up in heaven, a Judge; and sinful man on earth, whose words should be few. And so man, from the first sigh over all vanities, to the last conclusion, is seen and heard as unredeemed, unrenewed, out of covenant relations, seeking what is the best under the sun, but

NOT SEEKING GOD HIMSELF;

and at the end of all his weary searchings, speaking not in believing Hebrew phrase of the fear of the Lord, but of the fear of God, and not even then of "thy God." In the book of Proverbs Wisdom is speaking to those who fear Jehovah; in Ecclesiastes it is not so.

3. The oft-repeated "under the sun" also is proof that the Preacher has man, as man, in his eye:—This man who looks up indeed but knows not what is beyond except judgment; this Adam under the heavens with his weary, profitless labour, and his sorrowful wisdom; with his mad mirth and blank despair; with his royal possessions and delights, and his hate of life; with his lofty speculations and his utter ignorance; with his worldly-wise maxims and his awe-struck religiousness; with his love of worldly vanities, and his deep disgust at man's portion of endless toil; with his "sad sincerity" and his paralysing scepticism; with his thankful enjoyment of earthly goods, and his anxious looking for of judgment; with his fear of God and his rash vows, wordy prayers, heedless worship and vain superstitions—all this and much more, man is, under the sun. What he is and what he ought to be are far apart. Through the whole book, nowhere under the sun is he seen to meet God; even at the close, standing on the topmost height of human thought, a vast expanse of separation and silence still cleaves between him and God the Judge of all.

4. The theme of the book proves the text to be the best and final word of the natural man. All its experiences, confessions, observations, and exhortations, are bound together by the one great question of wise men of olden time among other nations and peoples: What is the chief good? What should man labour for as the true gain? What is the noblest thing under the sun? Is life worth living? Is there any profit; any surplus, substantial, enduring? That all is vanity of vanities, and vexation of spirit; Vapour of Vapours, all vapour, a feeding on the wind, is not the thing to be proved, but the thing that was found.

"Wherein is the good?" asks the Preacher—it is the wise king who is asking, and he has all the world to bring him answer. He is to speak for the world, for the race, for man, high and low, wise and foolish, rich and poor, in hut and hall, living and dying. It is a speculative question to be settled not by a process of reasoning but by experience. It is asked and answered not in classic form, but with Hebrew cast and colouring, uttering the heart of man, and in such manner that the book becomes a universal book, true for men in all nations and times. It never forgets man is a sinner and God the Righteous One.

The answer to the great question is sought in thoughtful earnestness amidst pathetic failures and melancholy conclusions; for this is man out of Christ, face to face with nature and her riddle, with man and his enigma, with God and his mystery; and the answers are full of temporary contradictions and half-truths, for so is man without God. He asserts, and recants to assert again; he renews the quest from various points; he sees the far-off truth at long intervals from height to height, while the valleys of man's vain life and depths of dark despair lie between.

The seeker begins his quest where life begins, in pleasure and mirth, and ends with old age and its burdens and ills. He seeks the answer "with wisdom," never letting any experiences so overcome him as to blind him to its "vain" significance (i. 13, 17). He reins in his flesh with wine; he does not throw the bridle on the neck of appetite when he would find what "good" there is in the intoxicating cup; he "keeps his head level" (ii. 1-2).

There are

THREE CONCLUSIONS IN THE BOOK:

(1) Life is hateful because one event of death and darkness comes to all, to man and beast; but (2) one need not brood over that, but rather enjoy life (see life ix. 9) and thank God for it; and yet (3) since judgment is coming, it is noblest to fear God and keep his commandments.

On the second conclusion the preacher dwells repeatedly: "Enjoy thy good things with all thine heart, and thank God for the power of enjoyment; it is his best gift" (v. 18; ix. 7-9).

At first he resorts to this with restful confidence, but at last he speaks of it in serious irony, and a tremor of fear is felt through its utterance; for death is the end of all, and judgment is coming. Or the very good things themselves are seen to become a source of sore evil and vexation of spirit. The rich man may be without the power of enjoyment; days of darkness will be many; and to the poor man and the oppressed who have no comfort or good, such conclusion but vexes, making life more hateful, and its mystery more unintelligible. "This also is vanity."

Make what we will of the book, it goes hard to extract anything "evangelical" or "spiritual" out of it; it remains still the book of "men" (1 Cor. iii. 3); and yet it is religious, for the natural man is religious, feeling after God, confessing him in conscience, dreading death for fear of what shall be after death.

It is man who, having boxed the compass of all human speculations and vanities, and not knowing God as a Saviour, that exclaims, "All is vanity." It is man, to whom life becomes at last a weary treadmill, and the world ceaselessly spinning in its round, its new things but old things, an out-lived, worn out thing. It is man who, having found out the emptiness of mirth and the vanity of all enjoyments, gross and sensual, refined and artistic, and feeling the sore vexation of all earthly possessions, declares at last wisdom to be the most vexatious and sorrowful possession of all, because it can only discover the worthlessness of all the rest. It is man who, reflecting on the piecemeal "times" into which human life is broken, and unable to find the one eternal purpose of God shaping, controlling, and uniting all, concludes that the best thing he can do is to let God see to all, and contentedly resign himself to eating and drinking, and the enjoyment of the good of all his labour under the sun. It is a man who, in the midst of his good time feels foreboding of a long (iii. 17), solemn day of judgment for every purpose and work, that God may show men what beasts they are, even though one event happens to all, and man in death has no pre-eminence above a beast. And it is man who, roused from full dull contentment or stupid indifference, conscious that he is more than the beast he drives or the clod he treads upon, seeks in religious observances and mournful funerals and charitable deeds and self-restraint, the unknown good his soul craves, only to fall again into despair over his futile endeavour to find the far-off, the soundless deep of "the work God worketh from the beginning to the end."

To-day the preacher is perplexed by the often contrary experience in this world of the righteous and the wicked. The righteous fares ill and dies early; the sinner fares well and lives long. And then, thinking if one fear God it will be just the other way, and finding out to-morrow it is, after all, not the other way, he sighs, "This also is vanity," "and again commends mirth, and the having a good and thankful time anyhow" (vii. 15, viii. 12-15).

Again, trying to dissuade men from puzzling themselves too much with such hard questions, and from thinking they could be more righteous than God, and manage the world better if they had a chance, he says, "Be not righteous overmuch, neither make thyself over-wise; why shouldst destroy (confound) thyself?" And this is human; but still more human, still more like the natural man trying to strike a religious average, a snug medium, do men to-day, and even professed Christians, make these words mean, "Be not self-righteous, so fanatical; avoid excitement; worry not over 'the doctrines'; take religion calmly."

The preacher has also another word addressed to sinners running to excess of riot and in danger of speedy judgment. "Be not overmuch wicked, neither be thou foolish; why shouldst thou die before thy time?" This word, sounding and seemingly such a maxim of that prudence the world admires so much and practises so little, becomes very human. "Sin a little; sow a few wild oats; know the world! see life; but stop in time!"

SO PLAUSIBLE TO YOUNG MEN,

And so in abrupt endings and sudden returns to the one great question of the book, the preacher keeps showing man to himself; so debating between the contentment of ignorance and the worth of wisdom; between the vexations of riches and the miseries of poverty; between the wrongs which are not righted and the dead that can no longer be oppressed; between the wonder that women worth the name are so scarce and the reasons that things are as they are; between the pride and fragrant joys of family life and the event of death that comes to all; between the life-long possession of all manner of earthly good and the final lack of a pompous funeral and monumental marble; between such and manifold more earthly things like these and things too high for mortal men, the preacher keeps moving on to the high conclusion, ever revealing man as the creature of fitful moods, all things by turns, out of centre, setting sail around his strange world, and coming back at last, no wiser and no better, to the place from which he started.

5. The different literatures of the world bring proof that Ecclesiastes is the book of the natural man.—It finds its echoes everywhere, from the poetry and philosophies of Greece and Germany, India and France, Burmah and England, China, and America. The book of the preacher and the books of sages, moralists, poets, match each other. The wise questions and doubtful answers put forth by the soul in its needs are common to both, likewise the fitful experience and the monotonous verdict, "All is vanity," vapour, mist, "the dream of a shadow."

This wise Preacher, King of Israel, finds his counterparts in a Marcus Aurelius and in a Socrates. His ancient sermon discloses the seeds and germs of many modern reasonings. His despair, his vacillations, his brief soliloquies, are but enlarged in a Hamlet or a Faust. And a poet that feared not God, even denying his existence, must yet in fuller phrase repeat the first word of Solomon concerning mirth and vanity, and reiterate the seeming pre-eminence of the creature, be it but a skylark which feels "no languor" or "sad satiety";

We look before and after,
And pine for what is not
Our sincerest laughter
With some pain is fraught;
Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought.

6. The most positive proof, that to fear God and keep his commandments, in view of a judgment to come, is the conclusion of the natural man, is found in the New Testament.—It is charged upon the Gentiles by Paul, in Romans, that they knew God's eternal power and Godhead, that they did not like to retain God in knowledge, that they suppressed the truth, that they knew of the judgment of God and despised his goodness, and so were without excuse. His conclusion is, "For when the Gentiles which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these having not the law are a law unto themselves, which shew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts the meanwhile accusing or else excusing one another" (ii. 14-15).

The same apostle, whether preaching to the philosophers of Athens or to the rustics of Lycaonia, reiterates the same charge of inexcusable ignorance of God, and warns them of future judgment. To fear God is then not heard for the first time among men in this old Hebrew sermon, but is there with the seal of inspiration, that the book may become the book for the race, its mirror and its spokesman; and its final sentence

THE LINK TO THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST.

That sentence, that concise "conclusion," is the truth underlying all natural religions; the utterance of the universal conscience; the highest teaching of Greek wisdom; the grand motive of heroic deeds; the central principle and illuminating idea of the histories of a Carlyle, a Froude, who with an enlarged application of its truth, call to an unrighteous nation, "Fear God; do right; thy judgment day is coming." It is verily nobler to do right, than to mope in melancholy, or to eat and to drink; it is some relief amidst the wrongs and perplexities of the world to look for a day of Divine judgment to righten and clear up all; but there is no personal salvation in it.

And should one believe that there are men in every nation who fear God, it will still remain a question whether such fear and commandments lead them to look in confessed failure, like a Cornelius, beyond themselves for salvation; or whether, like the unbelieving proselytes who despised the Gospel, they rest in Pharisaic obedience to justify them before God. Over such men of his own nation, boasting in this very conclusion of Ecclesiastes, and going about to establish their own righteousness, the apostle's heart yearned, and for such he prayed as for men unsaved, natural men, needing forgiveness and the righteousness of God. "By the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified."

7. And a final proof that even this highest and best conclusion is still of the natural man lies in the fact that no preacher of the Gospel would select this text as one containing the Gospel. Could we fill this auditorium with impenitent, unsaved people, old and young, with the understanding that the preacher should read the Book of Ecclesiastes instead of preaching a sermon, and that whenever he had finished a section with the verdict, "All is vanity," old and young would in all sincerity respond an Amen: suppose ye, the minister, if he knew the Gospel of the grace of God, would on reaching the conclusion of the whole matter, "Fear God and keep his commandments," dismiss the congregation with the benediction as if their assent to that final word had now set them right with God, and "its practice would issue in their salvation"! Would he not at that very point begin to preach to them justification by faith in Christ alone, and testify that whosoever believed in the Son of God received eternal life and would never as a sinner come into judgment?

When man ends, then God begins. When all the world had become guilty before God; when Hebrew righteousness had utterly failed to fear God and keep his commandments; when the Greek by his wisdom knew not God; when the Roman had stupefied his conscience and liked not to retain God in his knowledge; even though there was still taught by Hebrew and by Pagan creed, by seer and sybil, the coming of a day of wrath, and the impending judgment of Gehenna; then God, in his love, wisdom, and power made Himself manifest, a just God and a Saviour.

Where man ends, there God begins. The book of the natural man comes to its close, so that the Gospel of the Son of God may open; the all of man, under the sun, of the first and fallen Adam, but convicts him of failure and guilt, to lead him to the all of the last Adam, the Lord of Heaven. Where man ends, there God begins. To man's highest thought of God under the sun, God's heaven of gracious thought towards man bends down out of infinite depths.

SAVED THROUGH A LETTER.

By MRS. HARVEY-JELLIE.

"And so they tell me you are going to London, Mr. Wilfred."

"Yes, Fergerson, I think it is time for me to see the larger world, and if there are fortunes to be made, why shouldn't I have a turn?"

The old gardener slowly raked the earth round the flowers he prized. He was getting past his work, but Mr. Ormond so valued him as a servant, and as a Christian, that he allowed him to continue to hold the place and live in the gardener's cottage, for none could tell how much he owed of spiritual blessing to that faithful old man, whose whole life had been a witness for Christ.

"You don't say what you think about it; surely you've raked long enough."

"I'm thinking we'll miss our young gentleman, and if you should make a fortune, you'll forget the poor old gardener—but hark ye, Mr. Wilfred, and 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.'

"Go on with you! Why, Fergerson, do you think I'm going wrong just because I'm off to London? There is the best of everything there, grand preachers, fine services for young men, and all up to date. No fear, but I shall learn the right way!"

The change was startling—from the glorious country, where all was elevating to thought and feeling, to the noisy, grimy city, with so much that was down-drawing and confusing; yet, with his inquiring and observant mind, there was much that pleased and fascinated him, and soon led him on in quest of knowledge and pleasure. The business prospects were good, and there was no lack of amusement for free hours; avenues of all sorts opened to him, and unheard-of entertainments came suddenly upon his way. Meantime, letters were eagerly looked for away in the peaceful land of his home.

"A grand world this," he said in one written to his sister—"a whirlpool of delight. I've been seeing fresh things every night. Tell old Fergerson I'm in for the best of all things up here."

But as Mr. and Mrs. Ormond sat in their pretty room overlooking the sea, a slight shade of anxiety might be traced on their countenances. "He will feel his feet soon; young fellows will have their fling," said the father.

"I know," said the mother, "but the forces for evil are strong; when you write, urge him to hear some of the earnest preachers; advise him to seek good companionships; he must be all right if he listens to such persuasive voices. We have no one here who can deal with the youthful mind, and Wilfred is at the age that needs intelligent force; besides, he has been well brought up, and he will steer right—don't fear."

Yet they did fear, for all they spoke so cheerfully, for they read between the lines of his letters; and the unwritten words told more than the legible characters.

Unstable, indeed, he went from one place to another; one Sunday he admired the pomp of a Roman Catholic service; the next, the emotional meeting of the Hall. One evening, a play at the theatre; the next, a thrilling lecture, till he seemed to have exhausted the supply of variety. Still another opening, and temptation put out a hand with inviting subtlety. "Fine chance," said a companion, "Sunday afternoon, a picnic down the river. A blow is what you want, Ormond; come along." "Don't know why I shouldn't," he replied, "one preaches strait-laced propriety, another broad freedom; it seems we must be a law to ourselves, and where is the harm in enjoying the breeze on Sunday?"

"Where, indeed? Glad you've got so much common sense."

It was Saturday night, and the postman came up as the young men talked outside the door. "Good-night," said Wilfred, taking the letter and going to his room. "Poor old Fergerson; think of him writing to me! What queer writing!" and he sat down to read it.

That evening they called him "absent." Perhaps he was, for his thoughts were of his younger days; and he wondered how his present life would appear in the old gardener's eyes. He thought of all this, and much besides, till he could have felt "weak" about it, but eyes were soon on him, and he must keep his stand. Consequently Sunday afternoon found him fulfilling his promise to go down the river, and a merry company they made, but over Wilfred's heart a wave of uncomfortable feelings continually passed.

Sermons, eloquent and powerful; lectures, thrilling and instructive; plays, pathetic and exciting, had influenced him, but none had impressed him so deeply as the letter, written by a trembling hand, prompted by a Christlike heart. Late that night he took it from his pocket and read again:—

"I'm fast going home, and it's glory all the way and glory by-and-bye; but, dear Mr. Wilfred, how is it with you? Don't lose your soul, even if you gain the whole world. If I had your chances how I would work and pray for those young men of London. I read the verse yesterday, 'Run, speak to that young man,' and I said, 'I'll speak by a letter, and God's Spirit will carry the message straight, and Mr. Wilfred will be saved for eternity and save hundreds; so please...etc."

The loving words that followed he knew, and his hand shook, and he lay down, but he could not sleep.

"HOW IS IT WITH YOU?"

A plain question, but with all his advantages he could not answer it.

"He's run down a bit," said one. "He wants bracing up." "Get a day or two off; go home, Wilfred," said his comrade in the office.

"It's quite true, Fergerson," said Katie Ormond, as she called to see how the old man was, "Wilfred is coming to-morrow."

It was a "red-letter" day when the front door opened, and Wilfred was received home by his father and mother.

They listened as he told of men he had seen and heard, and of places he had visited, but he said nothing of any good influences they had had on him.

"I want to go first to see Fergerson," he said, in the evening.

"Ah, do Wilfred, he is not able to go out now, and he thinks much of you," said Mr. Ormond.

"Thank you, Fergerson, for your letter," said he, grasping the feeble hand outstretched to greet him.

"I knew you'd forgive the old man daring to write about things the great people of London know how to talk about better by far; and now I see you once more before I die, tell me the answer to my bold question, Mr. Wilfred."

"No one had troubled to ask me such a question as that—'How is it with you?'—I couldn't answer it; you puzzled me, Fergerson. But I had to look into the matter, and you were right, God's Spirit did carry the message straight, and I saw how it was. I was risking my soul. It was a hard and sharp turn, but God helped me to take it, and thanks to you, it is all right with me now. What can I say to you or do for you in return?"

The old face beamed with joy. The dim eyes flashed through tears. "Thank God. What can you do? What every really saved young man should do, live a shining life, and work to save others. Mr. Wilfred, when I'm up yonder I'll know you are bringing the young men of London to Jesus. What a blessed work for anyone to do."

Wilfred Ormond, in his business, and in social life witnessing for his Master, living a joyful Christian life, became a "living epistle"—a power for good, and many of the young men of London will thank God for him, and for his noble testimony.

AN APPEAL FOR YOUNG MEN.

The writer of this incident ventures to ask the Christian young men of the homes where this paper is read, to think of the hundreds of young men who are being wrecked and ruined. At this hour, Satan is planning their downfall, and the voice of thy brother's blood shall cry to God. Oh, you who know the love of God in Jesus, and the happiness of a life of fellowship with Him, will you not help these tempted and deluded ones, who rush into the dangerous paths, and are breaking the hearts of those who love them, and will lose their souls? Pray for them, band yourselves in Christian union to go out and rescue them. Above all, live Christ so truly, that the light of your pure and pious life shall attract them to leave the ways of sin and seek the Saviour who has redeemed you, and given you eternal life.

PERTH CONFERENCE.—This Conference, to be held September 10 to 12, in the City Hall, Perth, has for its general subject, "Deliverance: past, present, and to come." The speakers include Prof. Laidlaw, Dr. Stalker, Dr. Ross, of Manchuria, Dr. Vartan, of Nazareth, and other well-known missionaries and ministers. The secretary of the Conference is Rev. D. D. Bannerman, Free St. Leonards, Perth.

OUR DAILY HOMILY.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 8.

"Behold thy son Joseph cometh."—Gen. xlviii. 2.

How needful Joseph was to Jacob! The aged patriarch could not die without seeing him. His presence lit the dark valley. His hands closed the tired eyes of the aged pilgrim. And Joseph was as quick to come at the first intimation of his father's desire to see him. There was a perfect sympathy and reciprocity between these elect souls, just as there may be between Christ and those who owe all to Him.

Jesus is ever Leading us on to New and Deeper Experiences.—In no true life is stagnation admissible. To rest and be thankful is possible, but to rest and stagnate is forbidden by the sternest prohibitions that God can speak. So the nest is constantly being stirred up, and the trumpets sounded for the striking of the tents. But there is a Divine motive in it all. It is Jesus who cannot rest satisfied with less than the best for those He loves, as Joseph could not permit Jacob to remain in Canaan whilst Goshen with its plenty awaited him.

In all the New Experiences Jesus Meets us.—When his father entered Egypt Joseph was waiting for him. When he was summoned to stand before Pharaoh, Joseph brought him. When he lay a-dying Joseph was at his side to receive his last commissions. So, trembling soul, if Jesus presses you into the unknown He does not leave you there, but keeps coming again, meeting you at every point of anxiety and distress. Yea, He does what Joseph could not do. He stands, not on this side only, but on the other side, of death. Here to calm with his benediction, there to receive into his glory.

Jesus is Careful for Body as Well as Soul.—The dying man was anxious about the disposal of his body, and Joseph readily undertook to see it buried in Machpelah's cave. A promise which he magnificently redeemed! So Jesus cares for us. He is the Saviour of the body in this life, and in the resurrection.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 9.

"Until Shiloh come, and unto him shall the obedience of the peoples be."—Gen. xlix. 10.

Old experience is said to attain to something of prophetic strain, but there is more than old experience here. From these aged lips the Holy Ghost is speaking.

The Mission and Work of Jesus are Designated.—He is Shiloh, the Maker, Giver, and Bringer of Peace. The troubled conscience, smitten with conviction, finds peace when He reveals his all-sufficient sacrifice and atonement. The discordant elements within us settle into a great calm when He enters to reign, bringing every thought into captivity to his rule. Nor is his work for individuals only; it is for man, for the world, the universe. Peace was made at his cross, it is proclaimed by his Spirit, and it will be consummated when God is All in all.

The Time of His Advent Predicted.—Not till the Romans came and annexed Palestine as one of the provinces of the empire, did the semblance of the Hebrew monarchy expire. And it was then that the Shiloh came. Surely these words must often have been quoted by the pious Jews, with whom Simeon and Anna consorted, as pointing to the near advent of the Messiah. Let us be wise to discern the symptoms of his second advent.

The Inevitableness of His Dominion. — Ah, Saviour, it is predicted that all peoples shall obey Thee, and we know well that it is only through obedience that we can enter into thy peace. Teach us to obey, to do all thy commands, to bear all thy burdens, to wait before Thee, that thus we may know the peace that passeth all understanding.

Ponder this well, O my soul; the Peace-giver must be obeyed. Only so can He give thee peace.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10.

"God meant it for good."—Gen. l. 20.

God's deeper meanings! We are apt to see the malicious meaning; are we equally apt to detect the Divine and benevolent one? Our enemies are many, and they hate us with perfect hatred; they are ever laying their plots, and working their unholy purposes. But there is a greater and wiser than they, who, through all these plottings, is prosecuting his Divine purpose. There is another and deeper meaning than appears to the short sight of sense.

Let us Believe that there is a Divine and Deeper Meaning in the Adversities of our Lives.—Joseph might be forgiven for not doing so, but with his history and that of many others before us, we have no excuse for despair in the face of crushing sorrow. Whether it comes from man or devil, they are under the Divine control, holding to our lips cups which the Father's hand has mixed. He has no complicity with their evil, but they unconsciously perform his will. Even if you cannot see the Divine meaning dare to believe in it.

Await the Disclosures of Time.—Even here we sometimes reach an eminence from which we detect the meaning in the path by which we have been conducted. It was rough and circuitous, but there was a reason in it all. Often God rewards patient trust by allowing us to see and know. Perhaps to aged or dying eyes these revelations are oftenest made, as to Joseph's.

And for the Full Revelation of Eternity.—One day God will call us to his side in the clear light of eternity, and will explain his meanings in life's most sorrowful experiences; and we shall learn that we suffered, not for ourselves only, but for others, and as part of his great remedial scheme, "to save much people alive."

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11.

"The more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied."—Gen. l. 1-12.

It was a very unequal struggle on which Pharaoh had entered, for he opposed not the Hebrews, but Jehovah. It is thus that the great ones of this world have ever spoken and acted. "Let us build a tower," "Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us." "Against thy holy child Jesus, both Herod and Pontius Pilate were gathered together." In every case, He that sits in the heavens has laughed at the boast of human pride. His cause and his people's are one. To touch them is to touch the apple of his eye. Yet times of affliction have always been times of multiplication.

In the History of the Church.—When has she made her greatest number of adherents? When her pulpits have been filled with eloquent preachers, and her aisles crowded with fashion and wealth? No; but when she has been driven to the dens and caves of the earth, and her sons have been proscribed outcasts. The real triumphs of the early Church were in the first centuries of opprobrium and persecution; her decline began when Constantine made Christianity the religion of the State.

In the History of each Earnest Soul.—It is rarely the case that we make much spiritual headway, when winds and currents favour us. We do best when all is against us. We grow quickest in the dark. As God goes the round of the world, it is in chambers of pain, sickness, and bereavement, that He beholds the multiplication of the choice graces of holy character and temper. The affliction, which is for the moment, is working out an exceeding weight of glory.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12

"He smote the Egyptian."—Ex. ii. 12.

This was creature-strength, wrought on by creature-passion, and ending in creature-failure. Moses stood on an eminence and reached down to these poor brethren of his, with a passing spasm of pity. He was very careful to look this way and that, so as not to invalidate his own position at court. And fear for himself carried him swiftly from the scene of his people's woes. It was a brief effort to do the Divine work of redemption in his own energy. Long years must pass, during which God would drain away drop by drop his strength, his resolution, and his very desire to be an emancipator; that when he had became nothing, God through him might effect his almighty will.

We sometimes Smite the Egyptian within.—We rise up against some tyrant passion, and strike two or three vigorous blows. Our efforts to rid ourselves of its thrall originate and are prosecuted in our own resolve. At first the conflict seems easily our own, finally the dead weight of all the Egyptians within us is more than a match for us.

We often Smite the Egyptian without.—We make an assault on some giant evil—drink, gambling, impurity. It seems at first as though we should carry the position by our sudden and impetuous rush. But Egypt conquers in the end, and we flee.

No: we need to learn for the inward and outward conflict, the lesson that forty years in Midian taught Moses, that only the Spirit of God in man can overcome the spirit of the world.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 13.

"I am come down."—Ex. iii. 8.

This is a marvellous chapter, because it is so full of God. If the previous one, in its story of human striving, reminds us of Rom. vii.; this as surely recalls Rom. viii. There is little mention of the part that Moses was to play, but much is said of what God was about to do. "I am come down." "I will bring you up." "I will put forth mine hand." Oh weary soul, bitter with weary bondage, groaning beneath cruel taskmasters, afflicted and tossed with tempest, the I AM has come down.

God Comes Down to our Lowest to Lift us to His Highest.—This is the theme of the magnificat, and of Hannah's song. God comes down to the dust for the poor, and to the dunghill for the needy. You cannot be too lonely or broken in spirit for Him to notice and help. In proportion to your humiliation will be your exaltation.

He Comes Down to our Saddest to Lift us to His Joyfullest.—How great the contrast between the cry of the Hebrews, because of their taskmasters, and the exultant note that smote on the rocks of the Red Sea. Such shall be your experience also. If you suffer in the line of God's will and providence, you are sowing the seeds of light and gladness. Oh, anticipate the harvest!

He Comes Down to our Helplessness to Succour with his Great Might.—Israel could not help herself; but the resources of I AM were sufficient for every need, and they will be for yours and mine. This is God's blank cheque; fill it in.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 14.

"I am not eloquent."—Ex. iv. 10.

This is what we all say. We think more of the words than of the message, more of our eloquence or slowness of speech than of the King's seal and signature. Moses had learnt many wholesome lessons through his long sojourn in Midian, but he had to learn this last one, that God does not want excellency of speech or of language in his messengers, but the unction and power which come on those who speak after direct audience with the Eternal. Aaron, who came to meet Moses, could speak well, but he was a weak man, whose alliance with Moses caused his nobler younger brother much anxiety and pain.

Be Sure to Get your Message from the King.—Wait before Him in the inner shrine, till He says the word which thou shalt speak. This will give thee the real eloquence of the heart.

Look Up for the Right Words.—The Apostle said that the Corinthians were enriched in all utterance, and he said that he spoke the Divine mysteries in words which the Holy Spirit taught. Ask for these!

Rely on the Divine Co-operation—.There is another force at work, more subtle and penetrating than the most eloquent words of man, the power of the Holy Ghost. Seek for his Divine demonstration and co-witness.

CONVERTED ROMAN CATHOLIC PRIESTS.—In the September issue of The Catholic (1d., 51B, Dawson-street, Dublin), Rev. Thomas Connellan gives a list of over fifty converts from Rome during recent years. Though it is far from perfect, it contains some interesting names. Mr. Connellan says: "We might add, of our own knowledge, half-a-dozen names, but the gentlemen concerned do not wish to have their names publicly mentioned. The bulk of the names given come from the United Kingdom. America, of course, can show more ex-priests than the whole world beside, but we have information concerning only a few. As to the lay people, they, thank God, are coming out of Rome too in large numbers. It is difficult for some of them to have their eyes opened owing to their early training; but surely the enlightened among them must see how much the dogmas of Rome vary from the truths of the Bible."

THE MORAVIAN BRETHREN began their Mission among the Dchuka negroes of Guiana in 1847. These negroes are the descendants of escaped African slaves. But the first missionaries met with an unfavourable reception, and the negro chief declared that Christianity was only for the whites; for the blacks witchcraft was best, and neither he nor his people would ever give it up; a decision which met with loud applause from his assembled subjects. But the Brethren did not desist from their efforts to convert the bush-negroes; a remarkable native missionary was raised up in the person of John King, whose history forms a chapter in the romance of missions. In 1889 the successor of the former chief issued orders to his followers that all idols and witchcraft were to be cast away, the true God alone was to be worshipped; marriage must be kept inviolable; and men must no longer beat their wives. The first Dchuka negro was baptized in 1894; he was a former sorcerer. At present the Mission is being carried on actively, and with the most favourable prospects.—Der Missionsfreund.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSONS.

SEPTEMBER 15.

THE CITIES OF REFUGE.—Joshua xx. 1-9.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Heb. vi. 18.

FURTHER particulars concerning this subject are given in Numb. xxxv. 11-34; and Deut. xix. 2-13.

All the cities of Refuge belonged to the tribe of Levi, to which were allotted forty-eight cities distributed among the other tribes. By examining the names of the six cities (7, 8), and looking upon the map, it will be seen that they were divided equally between the east and west of Jordan, and that they were so situated as to be easy of access from all parts of the land.

The first object of this provision was to protect life. This was equally secured by the arrangement to exclude the wilful murderer (Numb. xxxv.), and to shelter from judgment the man who had unwittingly slain another. The first must not be sheltered, because the enmity within his heart made him regardless of the life of his fellow. The second must be protected because he was not, in heart, a murderer. Intention determines the character of an act in God's judgment. See Matt. v. 21, 22; 1 Jno. iii. 15.

The avenger of blood was the nearest of kin to the slain man. He had to undertake this, not as an act of vengeance merely, but as an act of justice. No nation can thrive which does not seek to prevent the crime of murder by the punishment of the murderer. The duty now falls upon the government (Rom. xiii. 4).

Present the lesson in a few graphic pictures, and then apply the whole to Jesus as our City of Refuge.

The first picture represents danger (3). Scripture provides us the scene: Two neighbours at work in a wood, felling trees. The axe-head flies from the handle, hits one, so that he falls and dies (Deut. xix. 4-6). The nearest relative of the slain man has become the avenger. The man-slayer's life is in peril. Justice demands his punishment.

The second picture represents the race for life. The manslayer knows his danger and flees (3). How speedily he sets out on his journey, lest he should be overtaken! How carefully he observes his way! and how constantly he keeps in view the strong city in which alone he can be secure! While the avenger as eagerly pursues him. No race could be more exciting to watch. According to the Rabbins the roads were kept in good repair, every obstacle that could hinder the running was removed, and at every turn of the road posts were erected bearing the word refuge.

The third picture represents the manslayer saved. Arrived at the city he is admitted to the gate, i.e. the forum or public place of judgment (4). It is supposed that the gateway was attended night and day by men ready to receive and take charge of fugitives. Here the man-slayer declares his cause (4), and if found guilty of wilful murder, is delivered up to the executioner. But if not, he is received into the city, and the avenger has no power to hurt him as long as he is there.

The application is easy. (1) Note for whom these cities are provided. Just for one class of persons—those who are in danger of judgment. For whom is Jesus sent? The righteous? Not so. To talk of being good enough to come to Christ is therefore vain. No one wants a Saviour who is not in danger. But whatever kind of sinner you are, this refuge is for you.

(2) The manslayer's only business was to enter. Without this, the provision would not benefit him. He may persuade himself that he is not a murderer at heart, may argue with the avenger, may seek another place of refuge, but he is not safe except as he enters the city. All the preparation of the roads and the provision of the city will not avail him if he remain outside. How simple this seems! Yet how many, knowing their danger, believing God's message concerning Jesus, yet remain unsaved.

(3) Once in, the manslayer is safe. The avenger may lurk outside the city, but he cannot do him hurt. The manslayer ought to be confident, but if he is full of fear he cannot be destroyed. He is never cast out who has sought shelter in Jesus (see Jno. vi. 37). When the Senate sat outside the city of Athens, a little bird, pursued by a hawk, flew into the bosom of one of the Senators for refuge. He took hold of the bird and dashed it to the ground. Do you wonder that his fellow senators punished him? No such rejection can ever be yours if you flee to Jesus.

(4) To enter in is the manslayer's first business. To delay is to suffer death. "Time enough yet!" when judgment is in hot pursuit. Yet that is our condition too. "Now is the accepted time." Silently, but swiftly, death pursues us. Is it not folly to defer? A young man when urged to flee to Christ was warned of the danger of delay. "I'll chance it," he said, and pursued his way into the wood. There, while engaged in wood chopping, a tree fell upon him, and his opportunity was gone for ever

For the Young.

DANGER, AND THE WAY OF ESCAPE.

HOLIDAYS by the seaside! How delightful in hot summer weather—bathing, boating, hunting among the rocks. How the children enjoy it, and the elder ones too!

It was a lovely day, and I was returning from a ramble over the hills at one of our favourite sea-side resorts. Above, the sky was blue and the sun shining in its strength; below, the waves and the sea danced in the sunlight. Surely when all around was so bright and beautiful, there could be no trouble anywhere. Wait and see.

A coastguardsman is walking hurriedly to the edge of the cliff; after a quick glance, he hastens away, saying, "There is a boy in danger half-way up the cliff."

How did the boy get there? The question is soon answered. Two little boys had started for a walk along the beach, and they had just one more corner to turn before they reached their destination, but the tide had overtaken them, and apparently they could not go forward, nor could they possibly return.

What were they to do? One attempted to go on, and successfully waded through the water. The other, a little fellow, eight or ten years old, tried to scale the cliff. Up he toiled step by step; half of the way was accomplished, and then he could climb no further.

He could not take another step, either backward or forward. Must he perish? No; the coastguardsman has returned with a strong rope. He advances to the edge of the cliff, and, aided by another coastguardsman and some young men who have come to the rescue, he throws the rope over in order that the boy may catch it.

For a time the rope is thrown in vain, and the onlookers become anxious. One little slip and the boy would be dashed to pieces.

Once more the coastguardsman tries. He winds the rope round his own body, and willing hands sustain him while, bending over the cliff, he ascertains more correctly the exact situation of the boy. Again the rope is thrown. The boy catches hold, and, following the directions that are shouted to him from above, he ties it round his waist, and is lowered to the bottom, where kind hands are out-stretched to receive him.

"He did just what he was told," said the man afterwards.

Saved?—Yes, we can now breathe freely again. But what a dreadful position to be in! Would anyone reading these lines have liked to change places with that boy? Yet how many boys and girls around us are in a worse position—in danger of eternal death?

Let them awake to the fact, and see that salvation is offered them; let them "do as they are told," and trust themselves to the Saviour.

Oh how foolish to refuse; to delay may mean to perish. What was it that made the bystanders so anxious about that boy? Was he a child of theirs? No, only a little stranger from London; but he was somebody's boy, and he was in danger.

When we see such anxiety shown for one in bodily danger, can we wonder at the anxiety and exertion put forth for the salvation of the young around us, whose souls are in danger, out of Christ?

Or, are we astonished at the joy that ascends when one more has passed from death unto life. Dear young reader, have you taken hold? Boys and girls, are you safe on the rock—Christ Jesus?

N. T.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

SEASIDE SERVICES.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Bridlington, to Sept. 6; Mr. T. Graham Bailey, Carnoustie, N.B.; Mr. A. G. Dodderidge, Eastbourne, to Sept. 10; Mr. Phillips Welch, Exmouth; Mr. Josiah Spiers, Felixstowe; Dr. C. F. Harford Battersby (Sundays), Freshwater; Rev. H. E. Geary, B.A., Rev. Eric Farrar, M.A., and Mr. H. W. Green, Herne Bay; Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Hunstanton, to Sept. 15; Mr. W. R. Moore and Mr. Dark, Ilfracombe; Mr. Frank Anderson, Llandudno, to Sept. 7; Mr. H. Hankinson, Tayport, Sept. 7-8; Gilmerton, Sept. 11; Edinburgh, Sept. 15; Messrs. E. Collier and F. W. Betteney, Pensarn; Dr. F. Churchill, Saltburn; Mr. J. R. Naylor, Sandown; Messrs. B. Herklots, T. G. Barber, and T. B. Bishop, Scarborough; Rev. W. S. Standen and Rev. S. R. Morse, M.A., Sea View, I. of W., Sept. 1-14; Rev. W. W. Martin, St. Leonards, to Sept. 9; Rev. Norman Bennet, West Brighton; Messrs. W. Stuart Fox and N. Thwaites, Weston-super-Mare; Mr. E. T. M. Dennes, Whitby.

Meeting for reports of Seaside Services.—Sept. 30, Queen's Hall, 3.30 p.m.; St. Martin's Town Hall, 6.30 p.m.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending September 14, 1895.—Sun., 8, Mark xi. 1-17; Mon., 9, xi. 18-33; Tues., 10, xii. 1-12; Wed., 11, xii. 13-27; Thurs., 12, xii. 28-44; Fri., 13, xiii. 1-10; Sat., 14, xiii. 11-23.

A LITTLE WORD WITH A LARGE MEANING.

THERE is a very important word which often occurs in the Bible, a word known to every reader of this paper, a little word of three letters which even the youngest can spell; yet, though it is so short and simple, there are a great many people, some of them very clever ones, too, who do not at all understand what it means. This word is SIN.

Have you ever thought about sin? Can you tell me what sin is? I am sure you will all give an answer to that question. One will say, "It is sin to tell a lie"; another, "It is sin to be cruel, selfish, unkind"; someone else, "It is sinful to disobey father and mother"; one more, "It is sin to do anything we ought not"; while yet another, who has thought more about the subject, says, "It is sin to leave undone what we ought to do." Yes, all of these are quite true, but none of them answers the question fully. It is difficult to do so, but I think I should reply that sin may be described as "all that is contrary to the will of God."

In order that we may learn what God Himself has to say about it, let us take our Bibles and look at a few texts. That is always the best way to find out the meaning of anything we do not understand. We do not need to be very wicked in order to be sinners; if we simply do nothing at all, either good or bad, that is sufficient to make us so. We find this thought in Deut. xv. 7 to 9, where we are told that to refrain from showing kindness to our brethren in time of need is sin; "Thou givest him nought ...it be sin unto thee." Also in Deut. xxiii. 21, neglecting to perform our vows to God is declared to be sin: "When thou shalt vow a vow unto the Lord thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it: for the Lord thy God will surely require it of thee; and it would be sin in thee."

Some of us may recently have taken, or be about to take upon ourselves that solemn vow to "renounce the devil and all his works, the pomps and vanity of this wicked world, and all the sinful lusts of the flesh," and to "keep God's holy will and commandments and walk in the same." Oh, as we read this text, let us pause and consider what such a vow means! Finally, the Apostle James sums up the sin of "not doing" in the words, "to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin."

This kind of sin of which we have been speaking is called the sin of omission. Now let us see what the Scripture says about sins of commission, which are just the opposite. In Prov. xxi. 4, we read, "An high look and a proud heart . . . is sin"; and in ch. xxiv. 9, "The thought of foolishness is sin." What, such little things as these? Yes, a holy God declares these to be as much sin as lying, swearing, murder, and theft. Then, in the New Testament we find, "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin"; so that this declaration goes still further, and shows us that everything that may be right in themselves if they are not done in faith towards God are regarded by Him as sin.

Now, what I want you especially to notice about these definitions, given us by the Lord Himself, is that they none of them refer to very great crimes; we might be guilty of them all, and yet appear to be very good people. All these transgressions seem so trifling that many excellent persons think nothing at all of them; yet the apostle tells us that though we keep the whole law, if we offend in only one point we are guilty of all (James ii. 10). Does not this show you that God's view of sin is vastly different from ours? You remember that even Job, whom God had pronounced to be "a perfect and an upright man," said, "How many are mine iniquities and sins? Make me to know my transgression and my sin" (Job xiii. 23). Shall we not pray the same prayer, for it is only when we have learned this first lesson that God will teach us the second, that "the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin."

NORA C. USHER.

NORTH-EASTERN HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN, Hackney-road, Shoreditch, N.E.—The twenty-seventh annual report of this institution for the sick children of the poor, states that during last year 701 in-patients were treated, and 13,124 new out-patients (47,313 attendances) received. Some sixty sufferers were sent to Convalescent Homes, and the Samaritan Fund helped in many cases to provide surgical appliances and other needful instruments. The total income was £5730, but an adverse balance of £362 was carried forward. It is interesting to note that a saving of £200 was effected in the expenditure by the decision to hold no festival dinner. The secretary of the Hospital is Mr. T. Glenton-Kerr, 27, Clement's-lane, E.C.

"WRECKED IN PORT."

A short time ago a fine ship, "all sail set," arrived in the roadstead outside the harbour, carrying a valuable cargo of nitrate. She formed a pretty picture as, with tall masts hidden by white sails puffed out by the breeze, and flags flying gaily from each masthead, she glided into smooth water, her voyage of many hundreds of miles safely accomplished. The next high tide saw her floating proudly up the Channel until she arrived opposite the dock gates, when suddenly she came to a standstill, and began rapidly to settle down, having struck her anchor which had been let down to check her speed; one of her iron plates was pierced, the water rushed in, and before help could be given she was fast on the mud. Every possible effort was made to stop the leak, but in vain. For several hours she stood erect whilst some of the cargo was taken out, but the rising tide finished the ruin. As the rushing water surrounded her she lifted her bows for a moment, and we hoped she would get afloat, but suddenly she heeled broadside over, her masts striking the opposite shore as they fell with a crash, the white sails I had so lately admired sinking into the dark waters of the Channel.

There lies the Strasbourg to-day, a total wreck, her position in mid-channel blocking the ingress and egress of all other craft —a sad spectacle to look upon. What a picture is that stranded vessel as she lies there, the sport of wind and wave, of many of our seamen, who, after escaping the perils of a long voyage, are too often "wrecked in port!" Only recently an English sailor landed here, bearing an excellent character from both captain and shipmates. Within three days of setting foot ashore he was in prison on a charge of murder. I visited him while there, and found him utterly broken down, filled with remorse and astonishment to find himself in such a position. He had escaped the perils of the deep only to be "wrecked in port" through strong drink! His name stands in my pledge-book with a solemn promise never again to touch the deadly glass, but the awful deed he has committed, in taking the life of a fellow creature, can never be wiped out by repentance or tears.

This is one instance of many such wrecks constantly occurring. Drink rules! What can be done to combat the power of this deadly foe? Thank God there is a life-line to throw out to these drink-wrecked and despairing souls. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is still "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." We record with thankfulness that during the past few months more than one weary heart has grasped this life-line thrown out from the Sailors' Rest upon the surging waters of drunkenness and vice in this port of Dunkerque.

In a letter dated July 18, the chief officer of a vessel writes: "I am thankful I ever came to Dunkerque, for it was the means of me receiving a great blessing." He is now witnessing for Jesus on board his ship, and has already brought one of his crew over to the side of temperance. Will those of the Lord's children who read these lines pray for this young disciple, that he may be stedfast, and have the joy of leading others to the Saviour?

With your prayers and with your bounties,
You can do what heaven demands,
You can be like faithful Aaron,
Holding up the prophet's hands.

(Mrs.) A. Stewart Mackenzie.

Sailors' Rest, Dunkerque, France.

[864]

SALVATION ARMY IN MADRID.

During a preliminary visit to Spain last November I had been assured that we must expect all the obstructive and other opposition possible from the authorities, and that we should probably be permitted to do little or nothing. To our surprise, the police and others declared themselves friends, and gave us addresses of needy people to visit.

Instead of finding a bigoted Roman Catholic population, we found that scarcely any of the people ever went to church, and had come to look upon all religion as useless or hateful, but for some weeks we could get scarcely any of them to come into our prayer-meeting. We had no room to attempt large meetings, and the corporation refused permission to make our little home a shelter. But God helped us to gain some of our neighbours one by one, and when it got wind that people who had at first laughed with the rest at the idea of our praying with them, were themselves praying and testifying, our meetings increased in size till our rooms were more than crowded night after night.

In the providence of God, our first converts, though found in the extreme destitution which was abounding around us at the time, were of such a character as to be able to influence a wide circle. One had only two years before been riding in his carriage, another is a sister of a lieut.-colonel, and a third is her prodigal son, notorious in the whole district as an abandoned idel loafer, having previously been a clerk in the offices of one of the railways. We contrived for the two men some mat-making, which enabled them to manifest the change wrought in their proud natures even more strikingly than by their nightly testimonies, and steadily the number of converts grew.

Our rooms were crowded to excess generally twice each night, for a second audience came about 10 o'clock, and was in no hurry to leave even at midnight. As the hot weather came, the heat of the rooms became more and more intolerable, and it was evident that larger premises must be secured. This we were able to do, and now our headquarters are established in one of the main thoroughfares of the city, Atocha 115. We have secured for £160 a year a series of halls formerly used for a municipal school, and although the street is one of the main arteries of the city's life, No. 115 is near enough to our first slum home to ensure continued touch with all our first hearers. Best of all, we have entered the building with a body of Madrid witnesses who can tell from their own experiences what a Saviour Jesus is.

The poverty and misery of masses of the people during the winter months baffle all description. That so many feel themselves utterly abandoned by God and man opens the way to their hearts, though not promising well for the self-support of the work from their offerings, as we should have preferred. Mr. and Mrs. Wirtz, late of Vigo, having given themselves to the work, propose, as they know Catalan, to commence operations in Barcelona. The Government having acceded without objection to our statutes, providing for the establishment of the Army all over the country, we see no reason at present to expect difficulty; and as means are provided, we fully expect to be able to go forward gathering congregations of the multitudes who seem so ready to hear the testimony of a living Saviour, who saves. The work in Madrid continues under the leadership of my faithful companion, Capt. Venegas, a saved Chilian infidel. The extent and vigour with which we are able to push forward must materially depend upon the encouragement in financial assistance, coming, necessarily to a large extent, from outside sources —that we receive.

G. S. Railton.

O Lord, Remember me!

"Lord, remember me!"—Luke xxiii. 42.

Rev. Richard Burnham. Philip Phillips, Mus. Doc.

[All rights reserved.]

ST. GILES' CHRISTIAN MISSION.

It is admitted by those fully qualified to judge, that we are engaged in a work of altogether national importance, and it has been authoritatively stated that therefore our work is worthy of national support.

For many years past we have had the privilege of extending help to the better class of discharged prisoners (we have assisted 66,000 such). We are constantly receiving friendless juvenile offenders into the shelter of our Boy's Homes (500 annually). The helpless and wretched wives and children of prisoners seek our aid inlarge numbers; the inmates of orphanage need feeding, clothing, and caring for, and we cannot send them away unaided.

Our resources are at present quite exhausted. We hope and believe we have only to make known the needs of these poor creatures who seek our help and the needful funds for their assistance will be forthcoming. Our treasurer is Mr. F. A. Bevan, 54, Lombard-street, E.C. Wm. Wheatley, Supt.

4, Ampton-street, Regent-square, W.C.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY'S Commission on the religious condition of the people, held last week conferences in Caithness and other northern towns.

THE LATE

MR. PHILIP PHILLIPS, THE "SINGING PILGRIM."

In all ages the saints of God have expressed their gladness before Him in songs of praise, but it is only in recent years that the service of song has been recognised as an evangelistic agency. Singers there have been in all times, but not singers of the Gospel—such as Sankey, Bliss, and a host of others. Yet all will admit that God has been pleased marvellously to use the singing of the "Old, old story," in winning a hearing for his Gospel; and many have to confess that it was the tender invitation as told forth in melodious strain that first found its way to their heedless hearts. Thus the attractiveness of sweet song, as a vehicle of Gospel entreaty, may be regarded as a new discovery, and the subject of our present sketch as one of the earliest pioneers in this field of service.

Philip Phillips was born in Stockton, N.Y., in 1834. His parents were earnest Christians, and although his mother died when he was but ten years old, she left her impress on his life. We well remember hearing him tell how she used to take him by himself into her room and wrestle in prayer over him. Though he was not converted for some years after, the memory of her teaching and prayers lingered with the boy. While yet a mere child he gave evidence of a rare talent for music, and of the possession of a voice of remarkable range and sweetness. His singing even at that early age was a surprise and a delight to the friends of the family. But although he seized every opportunity to advance his musical studies it seemed as though the motherless boy would have to forego his ambition to become a singer, and face the battle of life in a more prosaic fashion, for shortly after his mother's death he was apprenticed to a farmer.

A year or two after came the great change in his life, in his conversion during special services at Delanti, N.Y. The Good Templar movement was about this time attracting public attention, and the young lad entered with energy into the work. His fine voice was in request. In 1851 he opened his first singing school at Allegheny, N.Y. During the next few years his time was given exclusively to his profession, for he had now fairly embarked on a musical career. He spent some time studying under Dr. Lowell Mason and others, and taught church and school music, and sold musical instruments in New York and Pennsylvania. But above all he preferred work that brought him into contact with evangelistic services. His heart was already reaching out with longing to the field that was to be peculiarly his in later years. The first revival work in which he engaged was at the Delanti church, of which he was a member. The services lasted many weeks, and during that time he presided at the organ and was busy among the awakened souls. An urgent invitation was sent to him, at the conclusion of these engagements, to sing in Ohio. He accepted, and his first service in that state was held in the Baptist church at Marion. Here he met with Miss Olive M. Clark, who afterward became his wife.

His first published works, "Early Blossoms" and "Musical Leaves," had a large circulation, and he started a music-publishing business in Cincinnati. In 1866 appeared the "Singing Pilgrim," founded on John Bunyan's allegory. The book was enthusiastically received, and thus Mr. Phillips acquired the name of "the Singing Pilgrim," by which he became known the world over. Besides his ordinary engagements and literary labours, he sang in Sunday-schools, in soldiers' hospitals, and in connection with the United States Christian Commission. On a notable occasion, when he sang before the Christian Commission in Washington, there were present most of the chief officers of the National Government, including the President, Abraham Lincoln. After Mr. Phillips had sung "Your Mission," the following written request was handed to the chairman, William H. Seward:—

Near the close let us have "Your Mission" repeated by Mr. Phillips. Don't say I called for it.—LINCOLN.

This incident was, to a large extent, the turning point in Mr. Phillips' public career. He awoke next morning to find himself famous, for the incident was published in the daily newspapers of all the great cities throughout the Union. In 1865 all Mr. Phillips' property was destroyed by fire. Yet even this misfortune, like many other events in his life, seemed to be turned to blessing, as from that time he gave himself unreservedly to the Lord's work, holding himself ready to go wherever he might be called.

In 1868 he first visited this country, singing in Mr. Spurgeon's Tabernacle and in many other churches and halls. Four years later he was here again on a song mission. Returning to America he settled for a time in San Francisco, engaging in evangelistic work, and labouring with Mr. Moody, then on the Pacific coast. In 1875 he started on a three years' tour round the world, singing the Gospel in the Sandwich Isles, the Antipodes, Ceylon, India, the Holy Land, Egypt, and many parts of the Continent, ending by re-visiting England. From that time, until seized by his last illness, his life was one of constant Gospel activity, in Chautauqua gatherings and revival services, and he sang the Gospel into many hearts. His incessant activity is shown by the fact that from 1862 to 1393 he issued twenty-seven distinct hymn and tune-books.

Last year he became seriously ill, and on June 25 of this year he passed away at Delaware, Ohio, and was buried at Fredonia, N.Y. We give on the opposite page Mr. Phillips' last song.

Mr. Sankey, who attended the funeral, confesses that in hearing Mr. Phillips he received his first impulse to devote his life to singing the Gospel. "Phillips' voice," says Mr. Sankey, "possesses that rare quality of earnest pathos and deep feeling that goes to the heart of his hearers. It inspired me, and I said, 'Oh, if I could only sing like that!'"

Commenting on this an American writer says:—"Such a voice as Mr. Phillips possessed in his palmy days was indeed one to render effective the Gospel of song. He sang straight to the souls of themultitudes, and his pure and clarion-like notes, now loud and strong like a martial call, anon soft and tender as a mother's lullaby, produced an effect such as had rarely been witnessed in any religious services within the memory of a generation. That his consecrated genius set Sankey's heart aflame, and unlocked those vocal treasures that have since then delighted multitudes in many lands, is not the least of the fruits of Philip Phillips' life, for which the Christian world owes him a debt of gratitude. Philip Phillips was the pioneer in the work of attaching the graceful courser of music to the Gospel chariot, and has enjoyed an abundant measure of God's favour and blessing."

DUNDEE.—The new Baptist Chapel in Ward-road, Dundee, which has been built by Long Wynd Baptist Church congregation, was oponed for public worship on Sunday. At the forenoon service Rev. Hugh D. Brown, Dublin, occupied the pulpit.

THROUGH SOUTH INDIAN VILLAGES.

Mr. Davidson, of the Ceylon and India General Mission, describes in the September issue of Darkness and Light a tour through South Indian villages, accompanied by Mr. Mallis. He writes: "As we entered Gobiebetty-Palliam the first sight we saw was a little enclosure with idols in it, and some stone and slates close by the roadside, with most obscene and disgusting pictures painted life size. This public scene shows something of the degradation of the people and the rottenness of their religion, coupled with their idol gods. What streams of pollution these pictures must always pour forth! A number of men were gathered in an open space close by playing at some game, but when we came near we saw that they were nearly all drunk. Drunkenness is far more prevalent in India than the people of Britain are aware.

"We went afterwards to another part of the village and preached to a number of Pariahs. All they would say was that or that occupied their minds, was how they could get some work to do and some food to eat. Thoughts about sin, or how to lead a good life, never entered their heads, and they did not care for them. None but the Holy Ghost can awaken them to a sense of their need of a Saviour. We spoke to an old beggar man, who said that when he got up in the morning he worshipped the sun, and asked it to give him good luck that day. What we told him about Jesus seemed as an idle tale.

THE ONLY THING THEY CARED FOR,

"On Saturday morning we took the bullock cart to a town about eleven miles distant, and passed many villages on the way. At Seruvalur we stopped, and learned that within a radius of two miles from this village there were thirty other villages. The land all around is beautifully fertile and well cultivated. We went on to Vellacovil, a place with 2000 people, but upon inquiry we found that we could not get a house there. We preached to the people, and then returned to Seruvalur. There was no chattram, or house for travellers to rest in here, so we went to a shed erected in the place, where they buy and sell once a week. We had a roof but no front wall. We stayed here for two days, visiting and preaching to the surrounding villages. We inquired if a house could be had for us. Houses could be had, but the people were not willing to let Christians live among them. The villages were so near each other that we visited a good many of them both morning and evening, but none of them were willing to rent a house to us.

"At one village we went to on Saturday night, we were told that the people were going to hold a drama there that night; this would go on through Sunday morning. We preached to them about Jesus and the woman at the well. Many of them gathered to listen; at the end an old man asked, 'But who can do all these things.'

TO LEAVE THEIR SINS

and come to Jesus, and serve Him as the woman at the well did, sounded to him an impossibility. At first they do not see the beauty of holiness, nor why they should suffer for the sake of living a good life, when it is so easy to live like all the others and sin. In another village, there was a religious devotee, beating a drum. He had a box which he carried in this box was an image of Mariamman, the goddess of small-pox. He told the people that the god wanted food, etc., so they gave it to the god, and this is the way he made his living. We spoke to the people and to this devotee about the true God. The devotee and the others around admitted that the idol did not see, nor hear, and could do them no good, and that he only went round with this idol for the sake of 'his stomach,' as he put it. We visited a number of other villages in equal darkness, living, working, and dying without the knowledge of Jesus, but led captive by the devil at his will. We are praying that God may thrust forth labourers into this dying field."

CEYLON.—The Methodist Church Recorder issues a call to prayer to the Wesleyan Churches on the island, that blessing may attend the forthcoming mission of Rev. Thos. and Mrs. Cook. They hope to reach Ceylon from Australia in September, and will stay on the island three months. Mr. Cook's plan is not to hold single services in a large number of places, but to hold an eight or ten days' mission in convenient centres. Experience has taught him the wisdom of continuous work.

Northfield Conference.—3.

A correspondent of The New York Observer, describing the Conference, says that the gospel of justification and sanctification, the gospel of a full surrender to God and a full life in Christ, was perhaps never preached with more fervour in the land. We have had our own Moody, Pierson, Chapman, Torrey, and others on the platform, and noble service they rendered. But every day we have had two men, each of marked individuality, differing greatly in manner and method, but alike in their mastery of the Scriptures, their spiritual experience, their power of exposition, and their passionate longing to do good. They are Rev. Andrew Murray, of South Africa, and Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe, of London. The effect of their discourses can hardly be called less than tremendous, in opening understandings to understand the Scriptures, in unfolding the glory of Christ, in convicting Christians of the privilege of a holy life, and of their need of power for winning souls to Christ. It is a great thing to be the instrument of leading Christians to a more blessed experience of God's love in Christ in the Holy Spirit, and no doubt many responded to the teaching, and were taught of God. But the

SPECIAL BLESSING OF THIS CONFERENCE

has been in the power of these leaders, under God, to lead many ministers of the Gospel to the experience of the broken spirit and the contrite heart, which God will not despise, to glorious views of Divine truth, to fresh consecration of themselves to the Master's service, and to methods of preaching more honouring to the inspired Word and to the Holy Spirit. The ministers present can never fail to love and honour these beloved brethren for a teaching that will make a crisis in their careers, and move them to a larger life and a more careful ministry. An able and devoted man, fifty-three years in the ministry, said to me: 'I would like to begin all over again.' A young minister said: 'Those men have broken me all to pieces.' It is a common remark: 'Would that all our preachers were here.' These were often addressed directly, sometimes in the severest terms, yet always with wise and loving severity, stirring the heart to repentance, and filling the eyes with tears. Only eternity can tell what power will be carried from this conference to the pulpits and churches of our land."

We may go back a little in our account of the proceedings to mention that on Thursday, August 8, several missionary addresses were delivered. Dr. Pierson described the Student Volunteer Movement, which had its origin in the Mount Hermon School in 1886. Mr. R. C. Morgan spoke briefly on the Tibetan Pioneer Mission, conducted by Miss Annie R. Taylor; and Rev. F. J. Stanley eloquently narrated the triumphs of Christianity in Japan. An interesting visitor is Miss Ida S. Scudder, who, after graduating from the Northfield Seminary in 1889, went to India and laboured at the Arcot Mission. She is now spending a year in the States to obtain a medical training.

On the following day, when the Conference was at the height of its interest, and the gatherings were larger than before or after, a service was held in memory of of Boston. Afterwards, in referring to the death of this valued friend of his work, Mr. Moody said that Mrs. Gordon had expressed a desire, in response to a request from him, to have a scholarship at Mount Hermon endowed, to be known as the Gordon Scholarship, as a memorial. Before the Conference closed a gentleman handed Mr. Moody his cheque for 12,000 dollars, which will provide three scholarships.

THE LATE DR. GORDON,

On Sunday evening Aug. 11, says the New York Daily Tribune, Mr. Moody was in his characteristic vein. He began by taking up a collection for putting Christian literature in the jails of the country, in which there are about 750,000 prisoners. He began this work a few months ago, and by means of his colportage association, he is putting Testaments and other good books into the jails at a cost of seven cents each. Mr. Moody's talk on love was homely, pithy, and direct. He said:—

GOD IS LOVE.

Do you know there's not a sentence in the Bible that Satan is so anxious to blot out, not one. You ask me 'Why does God love us?' Well, I suppose because He can't help it. He just can't help it, friends, and oh! I am so happy because He can't. And then, if you ask me why He can't help it, I answer because He is love. You may be a backslider, He loves you still. Our mistake is we are all the time measuring God's love by our own, for our love may grow cold or cease. I remember a story Mr. Spurgeon told about a farmer who had put on a weather vane the words, 'God is Love,' and Spurgeon saw it and said: 'What is that? Do you mean that God's love changes like the wind?' 'No,' said the man, 'but that He loves no matter which way the wind blows.' I thank God that for thirty years my feet have been on that rock, and the devil hasn't got me off yet. It is love, and love alone, that's going to save this old world.

But they say God is angry with the sinner. Of course He is. Why, if my two boys fell into bad ways I'd be angry with them, because I love them. If I didn't love them, I wouldn't care what they did. I used to think more of Jesus Christ than of God the Father. But as I get older, and am a father myself, I feel the love of the Father more and more. It would be much easier for me to die than to see my children die. There is nothing like the Cross to show the love of God. In 1849 a man left his wife and child to go to California, and after awhile they sailed on a vessel to join him. In mid-ocean the ship caught fire. The lifeboats were filled, and there was no room for the mother and child. But at last they were told there was room for one. Did the mother save herself and leave her child? You know she didn't. Lowering the child to the lifeboat, she kissed it a last goodbye, and said, 'If you live to see your father, tell him I died for you.' That's a mother's love, and God has done far more for you than that mother did for her child.

On the following morning Mr. Webb-Peploe told the story of RUTH AND BOAZ.

He said: All Scripture is given by inspiration, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for instruction in righteousness. Do not, therefore, think it a weariness to stand before these old pictures of the Old Testament. For they point to the doctrines of the Gospel. First, glance at the outlines of that picture: Elimelech, meaning "God is my King," leaves Bethlehem, meaning the "house of bread," and was with his wife Naomi, meaning "pleasant," and his two sons Mahlon, meaning "weakness," and Chilion, meaning "perfect and beautiful," and go to live in Moab, meaning "place of wilderness." I spoke of a picture. Are not these names pictures in themselves, when you come to know their meaning?

As Elimelech leaves the house of bread to live in a wilderness, so do we leave the plenty of God's house to sojourn in the wilderness of this world. God was his King, but he forgot all that. In process of time the two sons marry two Moabitish women, named Orpah, meaning "nakedness," and Ruth, meaning "satisfied." The father and sons then die, leaving the three women widows, and Naomi, who here typifies the Church, decides to go back to her own country again. The Moabitish connections that we are constantly forming are never good for the Church. We may try to live the life of faith and the life of the world at the same time, but we will never succeed. You may think to render the cause of God some service by casting your lot with Moab, but you will find yourselves utterly mistaken. And so Naomi decides to go back from the place of a wilderness to the Bethlehem, the house of bread, and she tells her two daughters-in-law what she has decided to do; she just tells them her own decision, but you will take notice that she makes no appeal to them to go with her. In like manner, neither can you force your daughters to go with you when you decide to return to God. If they are to go with you, it must be because they themselves decide to do so.

But at all events, it is your duty, come what may, to come out from the world, to be separate from it. Note here, and it is very important, the call is to separate yourselves from the world, but not from the Church. Many seem to think there is something superior in the act of separating from the rest of the Church. But it is only the old spirit of the Pharisee, who exclaimed, "Stand by. I am holier than thou." Out from Moab, out from the world, out from everything that keeps us from the house of God, that is the message of God to every soul.

And so Naomi stands on a hilltop and she looks at the wild waste, 100 miles maybe, between Moab and Bethlehem, and she says to the two girls: "I must leave you, my daughters, I can stay no longer in Moab, for the Lord hath bidden me go back to Bethlehem. But go you back to your homes again." So it is at this and all similar conventions that we attend. There is a sifting between those who would serve God and those who would serve the world. How terrible is the trial for some of us. There is poor Orpah, for instance, whose name means nakedness. See what the sifting means to her. She hears what Naomi, typifying the Church, says. She wept and kissed Naomi, but she looked back on Moab, the wilderness, and decided not to go to the house of bread. She went back to her nation and to her gods, and we hear no more about her. In Moab she was rich in all material things, but poor, indeed, in her soul.

Be not like Orpah, who despised and rejected the blessing of God. Be rather like Ruth, who said to Naomi, "Entreat me not to leave thee, for whither thou goest, I will go." Never a word we hear of the peril of their journey, only we are told: "So they came to Bethlehem in the beginning of the wheat harvest." And so she went and gleaned the fields of Boaz, meaning "In him is strength." It is hard and thankless work, gleaning, yet many Christians are satisfied to be gleaners all their lives. But Naomi and Ruth know there is something higher than gleaning. Ruth puts on her beautiful garments and lies at the feet of her master. Grand moment when the child of God is brought to the feet of Jesus. And when we can look up in his face and say, "My Redeemer," and be satisfied in God.

MR. ANDREW MURRAY

followed with an uplifting address on the words: "I have been crucified with Christ." He began with his favourite thought—the life of self kills the life of the Spirit, and proceeded to show that only by the cross of Calvary can men get rid of the self-life and receive the new life of the Spirit. He then proceeded to draw a vivid word picture of the penitent thief, his sin, his punishment, and the glorious award of his unique faith, ending by showing that only as we are crucified with Christ, as this malefactor was, can we learn to live in his Spirit. "Thank God," he exclaimed, "the Jesus of the penitent thief is my Jesus."

Everyone was pleased with the trip to Mount Hermon. The two distinguished visitors from over the sea, Messrs. Webb-Peploe and Murray, were especially impressed, and, at Mr. Moody's desire, gave the school their benediction. The school buildings, which are on the side of Mount Hermon, are handsome and commodious, though inadequate to the needs of the school. A combined gymnasium, auditorium, and Young Men's Christian Association building is badly needed. So, Mr. Moody says, if any rich man wants to give some money to a good object, and does not happen to know of one, here is his chance. The school, which numbers about three hundred and fifty, is unique among the boys' schools of the country in many respects. As it is to meet the needs of ambitious lads without much money, the expenses are put at the low figure of 100dols. a year, while the training given, manual this fact, it always has a waiting list of 100 or more, so that absolutely none are admitted who are not more than usually bright, industrious, and spiritually disposed.

During the last three or four days the attendance at the conference was a decreasing quantity. Nevertheless, there was much animation in the meetings. On Monday evening (August 12), Booker T. Washington, the well-known superintendent of the Tuskegee (Ala.) Institute for coloured people, and himself a coloured man, described the work he is doing. The school at Tuskegee has 759 students and sixty-six instructors. Manual as well as book knowledge is taught. It has been singularly successful in uplifting the negro, largely because of the ability and wisdom of Mr. Washington, who is withal a good speaker. At the close of his address, Mr. Moody said "You go down there on the steps, and let the people pass out this way and hand Mr. Washington their 50 dol. bills. Never mind about the change." In a few minutes 318 dols. was contributed. Rev. John McCarthy spoke on Chinese missions.

MR. WEBB-PEPLOE

delivered a stirring address on "The Rest that Remaineth for the People of God." Towards the close he urged his hearers to observe the Sabbath in anticipation of the perfect rest, and said rather playfully, "You cannot all work as Mr. Moody is working Mr. Murray and myself." Mr. Moody entered a jovial protest against this impeachment, saying, "I am trying all the time to keep Brother Murray and Brother Webb-Peploe away from the meeting, but I cannot do it. They're here every time the doors are opened. Am I to blame? It was the same way with Brother Meyer. He would come every time. Besides, these two brothers have had a nice rest on the ocean. Now, you'll see they'll be here every time after all I've said."

Mr. Murray spoke from Romans xiv. 17 on "The Joy of the Holy Ghost," dividing his subject into four heads, namely: The joy of Christ is a personal possession; it means deliverance from sin; it implies a love of the brethren, and it is the result of work for God.

Rev. R. A. Torrey spoke on "How to Pray with Power." The men and women, he said, who have had much power in prayer are those who have spent much time in prayer. The time element is important. We consider ourselves too busy to spend much time in prayer. We are about as sensible as would be the engineer who thought he was too busy to put in wood and water. One reason why the old-time conviction of sinners is not seen, is because there is not the old-time fasting and praying of saints. If we would pray so as to be heard, we must sacrifice ourselves. To pray with power we must pray in the Holy Spirit. We must cast ourselves as weak, ignorant beings upon the Holy Spirit to be taught of Him how to pray. It is the prayer that the Holy Spirit prompts that God the Father answers. And if we wish new blessings from God we should return thanks for blessings already received. Prayer is a privilege greater than any the world can give. He who can claim it is mightier than the mightiest monarch, for he is in league with the King of kings and Lord of lords.

OPPORTUNITIES IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Miss Anna M. Cummings and Rev. Andrew Murray spoke of the great need and the great opportunity of the Huguenot Seminary for Young Ladies in Wellington, South Africa, which Mr. Murray founded about twenty-five years ago. He was inspired to do so by reading the life of Mary Lyon, the founder of Mount Holyoak Seminary. It opened with forty pupils, and two Mount Holyoak graduates as teachers. It has 300 students now, but if its facilities were enlarged it could have many more. A great empire is in process of formation in South Africa, and by means of the Seminary Mr. Murray desires to lay the foundations of a great Christian civilisation. Half of the seminary girls are members of the Student Volunteer Movement that was started in Mount Hermon nine years ago. A new building to cost 50,000 dols. and containing fifty rooms is needed, and of that sum 40,000dols. and the furnishing of twelve rooms are secured. It costs 50dols. to furnish a room. "Since Mr. Moody has forced me to speak," said Mr. Murray, "I will say that as America, through Miss Lyon, forced this work on me, there is a fitness in your helping me."

Mr. Moody responded by saying that Northfield Seminary and Mount Hermon would furnish one room each. In less than ten minutes the furnishing of fifty-three rooms, or 2560 dols., had been subscribed, and 300 dols. put in a hat for a missionary. In course of the proceedings, Mr. Moody said, "Where's Sankey?" Someone said he was not present, whereupon Mr. Moody remarked: "Put Sankey down for 50 dols." The handsome sum raised was a striking testimony to the interest which Mr. Murray has aroused at Northfield.

On Wednesday evening Dr. A. T. Pierson delivered a powerful address on "The Holy Spirit in the Acts of the Apostles." The following morning Mr. Webb-Peploe expounded Col. iii. 15, "Let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to which also ye are called in one body, and be ye thankful." He preferred the reading of the Revised Version, "the peace of Christ." Mr. Murray followed with an earnest address on "The Nobleman at Cana of Galilee," to illustrate faith struggling, resting, and conquering. The story of Onesimus was afterwards told by Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, who was first led to take up the work of evangelism by reading the reports of the Northfield Conference. He spoke of the Epistle to Philemon, as a picture for sinners and an inspiration for saints.

One of the interesting developments of the Northfield is Camp Northfield, a vacation encampment for young men, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. It is the latest of Mr. Moody's schemes, and it promises to be popular, "What I want to do," he says, "is to welcome young men from the towns and cities who wish to have an enjoyable vacation without spending much money. The college boys have come here for years and have enjoyed themselves, and others may do so, too. We have tried to plan for the camp so that its expenses will be within the reach of all." His efforts in this direction are appreciated by a goodly number of young men. The camp is in a grove of pines and birches on the lower slope of Notch Mountain, near everything, yet perfectly secluded. Tents accommodating four, fully furnished, can be had for 2 dols. a week. Those bringing their own tent receive a location free of expense.

A ROMAN JUBILEE.

It was through Porta Pia that the Italian troops entered Rome twenty-five years ago, and Rome is preparing great rejoicings to celebrate its silver jubilee.

I do not think a fitter place could have been chosen for a mission house than the neighbourhood of those walls through which the Bible first entered Rome, for, previously to the entrance of the Italian troops into Rome, no Bible had been allowed to enter the city of the Popes. Its truths were feared, as they still are, by the Romish Church, and the word of God was forbidden to be read under pain of excommunication. The Book is still forbidden, as it is also forbidden to enter a Protestant place of worship; but who heeds the Vatican's anathema now?

Who is that man who leads a heavily-laden waggon, and who follows the troops as they enter Rome? It is a Colporteur of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and the waggon he leads is laden with Bibles. Truth has entered Rome at last.

Previously to 1870, no Bible was allowed in Rome. If a Bible were found amongst a traveller's belongings, it was taken, and generally burnt on the spot. I could quote several instances of this, among my own personal friends, but I will mention only one name, no doubt known to many of you.

I allude to Dr. Lewis, the district secretary of the Bible Society, who was sent to Rome last April twelvemonth. When Dr. Lewis visited Rome for the first time, his Bible was taken from him by the authorities at the railway station. The second time he came to Rome, however, he was enabled to hold a Bible meeting (the first ever held in Rome); and this last time he was allowed to speak the truth freely, no one forbidding him, and in three different places of worship, English and Italian.

What must not have been his delight, when he heard Mr. Thomas tell him that over 27,000 Bibles had been sold at the Roman depôt within one year alone, for the use of the city and the provinces of Rome.

MR. JOHN E. THOMAS,

the Bible Society's agent, the founder of the Porta Pia Mission, was born in Towyn, North Wales, and was educated for the ministry at Carmarthen College He was ordained at Glanhafren, Llanidloes, in 1871, and was minister in his native place during a period of four years.

The missionary spirit, however, was within him, and he left his beloved flock and the comforts of his English house, to go as missionary and colporteur to that most priest-ridden of all islands—Sardinia. There he worked with zeal and success for over ten years.

In 1881 he married Miss Margheretta Griffiths, of Swansea, a very suitable helpmeet. In 1888 Mr. and Mrs. Thomas came to Rome, and there it was that I had the great privilege of meeting them, and eventually to form a close friendship with them. Alas, after a short illness, the lady was "called home" in 1892.

During her stay in Sardinia Mrs. Thomas founded a circulating library of evangelical books and tracts, "in order," as she said, "that the truth may reach those who will not listen to the voice of an evangelist."

Before leaving Sardinia for Rome Mr. Thomas experienced something of the bigotry of the island. He was cast into prison for selling the Bible, and there he was kept for a whole week. The mayor who ordered his arrest, and the sergeant of police who arrested him, were publicly tried and sentenced to six months' imprisonment, and deprived of their functions.

THE PORTA PIA MISSION

was founded in 1890, by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, who hoped thereby to extend their influence beyond the field of the Bible depôt. Mr. Thomas began by taking premises in the Via 20 Settembre, and commenced a Sunday School and Evening Meetings on Sundays for Evangelisation. He also instituted evening classes for French and English, and a preparatory school for young men who desire to dedicate themselves to colportage work.

The Lord blessed these early efforts, and in the course of another year larger premises were taken. The mission now counts thirty communicants, and a large number of adherents. From his mission-house Mr. Thomas can see the gate through which the first Bible openly entered Rome, and no doubt he often utters a silent prayer of thanksgiving to the memory of those who opened the gate for the precious Book to enter. Not without resistance, however, did the Italian troops effect their entrance into Rome! All the power of Rome was employed against them, while the Pope, surrounded by his court, lifted his hands and voice to the Virgin, to save them from those whom he called his enemies?

But the Lord was with Victor Emanuel, and victory crowned his troops! Their entrance was a triumph never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it. Then it was, in the sight of the victorious troops and the jubilant people, that the King exclaimed: "We are here, and here we will remain." I take my leave of Mr. Thomas by repeating a Roman pastor's words: "Whatever Mr. Thomas does, he does well!" He also may say: "We are here, and here we will remain." E. D. B.

NAVVIES AT ACTON VALE.—Rev. Charles Fisher has been working during the last three weeks among the men constructing the tram-car line between Uxbridge-road Station and Acton-hill, distributing more than 1000 tracts, supplied by the Religious Tract Society, the United Kingdom Alliance, and the National Temperance Depot. While the men were getting their dinners in the open air Mr. Fisher showed them his large diagrams exhibiting the effects of alcohol on the stomach, brain, liver, and the heart's action under its influence. A tea was given in St. Barnabas Parish Hall on Friday, August 23. About 100 of the men attended, and it is hoped that good will result from this Gospel and temperance effort.

HOP-PICKERS IN HAMPSHIRE.—Five tents are now erected, and the missionaries are at work. We would like to add the sixth if possible. A very interesting conversation took place in the railway train last week between a gentleman and a hop-picker, coming into this neighbourhood for work. He said, "I wonder if there will be any tents this year! It seems like going home to go to them," and with much feeling added, "I have been a very different man the last six years, all through Mr. Chinn's life. My family and home are different. I am sixty years of age." This has given me greater zeal to go forward. May very many be able to say the same of all the missionaries now in charge of the tents when they too are called home. Funds are still much needed, also books and tracts. Aurelia Chinn.

Lenten House, Alton, Hants.

VISITING IRISH ROMANISTS.

I always find a difficulty in leaving the village of N—— when once I have contrived to take the long walk there—so many persons expect a visit, so many ears are opened to the Word of Life.

After calling at the homes of two Protestants I found my way on a recent Tuesday to the two-roomed hovel of Sally G——. A neighbour reminded me which door in the dismal row afforded entrance to her house, "delighted to do the poor body a good turn."

Sally was lying on her bed, feeling very poorly, but rose quickly to welcome me. She is almost totally blind, and has no means of support beyond an allowance of 1s. 6d. a week from the Poor Law Guardians, out of which 10d. is paid for rent.

"I am sorry I was not able to pay you a visit lately, Sally, but I was too busy."

"Shure, I missed you. You couldn't be expected to think about us all."

"Indeed, Sally, I remembered you quite well, but is it not grand to think that there is One who never forgets, our Lord Jesus Himself?"

"Ah, He's a good Master! and we must be content with his holy will."

"Do you get to chapel? Does the priest ever come to see you?"

"I go to prayers when I'm able, but his Riverence doesn't visit except one sends for him. And I wasn't that bad as to want the Sacraments."

Another figure darkened the doorway, and Mrs. W—— came in and sat down.

"I heard you was here, Miss, and came to ask your advice about a pain I have. The doctor didn't do me a ha'porth of good, and hurt me terrible."

Poor creature! she was suffering from a hopeless malady for which one could only suggest alleviation.

"I know quite well what you must suffer, Mrs. W——, you want a great deal of patience."

"The Lord knows I do, Miss! It's like a knife stabbing me all night long."

"Well, Jesus Christ understands that even better than I can, and He does not send one pain without a good reason; can you feel that He loves you, and cares for you?"

"Ah, if it wasn't for that what would we do at all at all? We must have patience."

"Shall I read to you how Jesus helped a blind man, and those who were sick and poor?"

"Aye, do, Miss." And the two afflicted women leaned towards me on their little stools, while I sat between them among a chaos of odds and ends, looking out over the "half-door" at the peaceful summer evening, and calm blue sky, "where beyond these voices there is peace."

It was a strange scene, and children gathered round the threshold peeping in. I read the story of blind Bartimæus, and of the sufferers who were healed in Galilee. They listened intently, nodding to one another as some similarity to their own cases struck them.

"We can't get to Jesus here," I said, "but He has made a home for all of us where no 'inhabitant shall say, I am sick.' Listen!"

From passage to passage in the last chapters of the Revelation we went, finding comfort and hope. The joy of the women over such glorious pictures of the world to come was inexpressibly touching, and, when I rose to leave, their heartfelt thanks made me feel ashamed. I could do so little for them, and they thought it much.

"Oh, do come again soon, Miss! God bless you."

"I will, indeed; and do you be thinking of those beautiful words, and praying for patience."

They promised with one voice, and I could only pray also that the Great Healer would visit them with his balm and blessing.

At another house the reception was different:—"You needn't be laving them little books, Miss; the priest wasn't pleased that we had them."

This man is dying, never goes to a place of worship, and has not found the kingdom of God. Yet he is forbidden to read a text, or even a tract pointing to salvation through Christ without touching on any controverted doctrine! Surely his life will be required at the hands of the unfaithful shepherd.

"I don't know who could have told the priest," he went on, wistfully; "but he heard that you gave them pictures to the childer', an' forbid us to take any more. I thought it right to tell you honest how it was."

"You were quite right, Tom. Try to remember that God knows all about you, and pray to Christ Jesus. He can save you and comfort you."

The poor fellow was afraid even to talk to me lest some one should be "spying on him," and I had to turn away heavy hearted. It was no wonder that he dreaded the weight of the priest's denunciations from the altar, especially when so weak and weary; we can only "bring him to Jesus."

Jack L—— is a poor orphan lad, who never knew a parent's care, but was left to shift for himself when a mere child. He took to reading, contrived to educate himself, and soon began to rebel against the Romanist doctrines which had no grounds in God's Word. Jack was a good worker, but shy, retiring, and gruff in manner. The other youths pronounced him a regular oddity, but came to him all the same when needing letters written or accounts made up.

I liked the lad, and sometimes prevailed on him to come "by night" to talk over the Bible and pray. He asked me "not to pass remarks" if we met in public, lest the "boys" should think there was anything going on. Jack is most fully persuaded as to what is right and wrong in our differing creeds; he is too honest to attend chapel or confession, but he dares not come out boldly on the Lord's side.

Persecuted, avoided, mocked at, and alas! led into sin, he is leading a miserable life, halting between two courses. I proposed that he should go to America, and there begin a new life, but indecision in one case leads to indecision in another. He fears the climate, he clings to his native land; and so matters go on from year to year.

Will my readers pray that this strange genius may be led to devote himself to the Saviour? His talents and education would make him a splendid teacher or reader, and his wayward character is one of great power, could its energies be directed into the right channel.

"Lord, what wouldst thou have us to do?"

C. M. B.

GOSPEL TRAINING COLLEGE, DUNOON.

During the summer the students have done much mission work. Children's services have been held on the shore daily, open-air meetings nightly at the pier, and various mission stations have been kept going. A number of the students have recently entered on mission fields, and are doing good work. As the object of the College is to send forth hard workers into the service of Christ, the students are expected to have been preaching in some way before entering, and to continue doing so during the curriculum. It is expected that some of the students will enter Glasgow University during next session. Owing to the illness and resignation of the chief tutor, the principal, Rev. Duncan Macgregor, is now in need of help.

The annual report, recently issued, shows that the object aimed at is to give a thorough education for Gospel work to capable and consecrated young men who are not seeking a full University course. There is no entrance examination. The teaching centres around the Bible, which is read constantly in Greek and Hebrew. The theology is Biblical, evangelical, and spiritual. No sectarian test is applied. All students who can do so, are expected to pay their own board. Teaching is free. The principal gives his services freely, and the lecturers have done the same. There were twenty-eight students during the year. In addition to a large sum spent by individual students on their own board, the income was £530, and there was a balance on the right side.

The College is supported by voluntary contributions; the property is vested in trustees, who have full power over the work in the event of the principal's resignation or death. As the winter arrangements are now being made, it is requested that applicants write at once to the principal.

THE HOME FOR MOTHERLESS, ORPHAN, AND DESTITUTE LITTLE GIRLS, at Hurst-road, Eastbourne, is still conducted by Miss Lee. The twenty-fourth report states that the work of the Home has been well maintained, although the income has gone down. The distinctive object of the Home is to give shelter and careful Christian training to needy little girls, and thus prepare them for a useful life. During 1894 six motherless children were received, and two others who were greatly in need of help.

THE SPEZIA MISSION.

In a pamphlet entitled "The Whitening Harvest in Italy," issued by Rev. H. H. Pullen, co-director of the Spezia Mission, the testimonies are given of travellers and others who have recently inspected the work of Rev. E. Clarke and his devoted helpers. In a brief historical statement we read:—"Mr. Clarke went to Italy thirty years ago. Not only had he to lay the foundation, but to dig the earth out that it might be laid. It was some time before he saw any fruit of his labour, but at length one little child was won for Christ; and to-day we have a great line of Gospel lights, stretching for three hundred miles! We have twenty-four Mission stations, which are systematically and regularly worked; we have eight Bible day-schools, with over eight hundred scholars. Fifteen Sunday-schools, too, are connected with the Mission; thirty-five paid missionaries, evangelists, teachers, and helpers are in our ranks. We have also a Girls' Orphanage at Marola, and a work of considerable extent among the Italian soldiers and sailors of all nations. Our stations stretch from Liguria, with La Spezia as one of its greater centres, to Tuscany, thence to most important cities in Venezia, until within a short distance of the Austrian frontiers."

Mr. Eliot Howard thus concludes an account of his visit to the institutions: "I am assured that there is a real and visible improvement in the general behaviour of the city attributable to the gradual influence of the schools, and of Mr. and Miss Clarke's personal character, especially since the cholera time. Open blasphemy and bad language are less often heard, and there is a very marked change in the matter of cruelty to animals. Thirty years ago any interference was angrily resisted, but now drivers are not only themselves more thoughtful, but if it is pointed out to them that a load is too heavy, they will cheerfully set about to reduce it.

"I found Mr. and Miss Clarke as active as ever, but evidently much overworked. Miss Clarke's faithful companion, Miss Smith, who has stood by her for nearly thirty years, has been obliged to return to England, and it is feared that she will never be fit for the hard work of Spezia again. I fear that both Mr. and Miss Clarke may similarly break down unless they can get periods of complete rest, but this can only be attained by some removal of the constant pressure of anxiety about funds; for when Mr. Clarke is in England he is working even harder than in Spezia, where his Italian assistants say that he does the work of ten. Many friends of the Mission are acquainted with Mr. Clarke, but probably none, except those who have been at Spezia, know how much the Mission owes to Miss Clarke's continuous patient work and admirable power of administration."

Statements by Mr. F. A. Bevan, Sir George Williams, and Mr. J. B. Meredith are also given. Copies of the pamphlet and other particulars may be had from Rev. H. H. Pullen, "Marola," East Finchley, London, N.

HARVEST HYMN.

All nature owns her Lord,
Creation tells his praise,
Omnipotent his word,
Gracious and blest his ways.
He ever, from his throne on high,
Remembers earth with full supply.

God, only wise and good,
How blest his creatures are!
He gives the daily food,
And guards with daily care;
To Him a gladsome song we raise,
Whose boundless love makes glad our days.

No brightness his exceeds,
No power but his supreme,
No lightning swifter speeds
Than his all-searching beam;
Glorious in all his acts and ways,
All nature sounds aloud his praise.

More than the food of earth,
The "bread of heaven" He gives,
And all who know its worth,
Partaking of it—lives;
Father of all, the wise and good,
O, evermore give us this food.

Albert Midlane.

THE PAKEFIELD CONFERENCE.

FOR seventeen years Rev. L. Price, the venerable rector of this quiet suburb of Lowestoft, has been in the habit of calling annually a Conference for the promotion of growth in grace and the instruction of believers in the things of God. This convention has just been held, with an encouraging attendance. The opening sermon by Rev. H. G. THWAITES on the visit of the Queen of Sheba to Solomon, dealt with the typical character of Solomon as a striking picture of the Lord Jesus Christ.

At the opening meeting of the Conference on Wednesday week, the Rector of Pakefield presided, and gave an address based on 1 John i.

Rev. R. CONWAY, Vicar of Alconbury, followed with an address from Matt. x. 34. He alluded to the recent massacre of missionaries in China, and touchingly spoke of his own personal knowledge of two of them, Miss Flora Stewart and Miss Hessie Newcombe.

At the afternoon meeting, the first speaker was Rev. G. W. TUCKER, Rector of Ashmanhaugh, who delivered an interesting address on "The Christian life: What it is."

The Bishop of LIVERPOOL, who came next, was listened to most attentively as he spoke from 2 Cor. v., gleaning from the chapter ten points, five being points of experience, and five great aspects of truth.

1. A very strong assurance (v. 1). "We know." A great many Christians cannot get so far as to say "We know." 2. The inward struggle (vv. 2-4). Groaning is the expression of pain, suffering. How much reason Paul had to groan—how hard seemed the Master's service looked at from an earthly point of view. 3. God has made us what we are (v. 5). Our present position as believers is not a matter of self-effort, it is all of God's grace. To assure us of his work He has given us the earnest of the Spirit. What is the earnest? It is a part of the whole, a proof that the rest will follow by-and-by. 4. His confidence (v. 8). When absent from the body—at home with the Lord. Here is no intermediate state of purgatorial cleansing for the believer. As soon as I leave the tabernacle I am at home with Jesus. 5. His exertion (v. 9). His one aim to be well pleasing unto Christ.

The five great aspects of truth in this chapter on which these points of experience rest are:—1. The judgment seat of Christ (v. 10). 2. The love of Christ (v. 14). This the great constraining power for all life and service. Not my love to Him, but his love to me. This must be the foundation stone, as well as the corner stone of all our hopes of salvation. "Who loved me, and gave Himself for me." 3. The consequence. I must live not for self, but for Christ (v. 15). This will necessarily end all selfishness in the believer. 4. In Christ (v. 17). A believer is one who is in Christ. This is vastly more than being in the Church, than being baptised with water. The mark of such is that he is a new creature. The special evidence of such is that "old things are passed away, all things have become new." The new nature has new habits, new desires, new tastes. It shows itself by loving those things which before were not delighted in—prayer, Bible-reading, God's house, and worship. 5. The Ministry of Reconciliation (vv. 18-20). The minister is not a priest, but an ambassador, sent to beseech the world to be reconciled, and offering terms of peace from a God of love.

At the evening meeting Rev. C. LEATHES, rector of Reedham, gave an address on Oil for the Light, based on Exodus xxv. 6, xxxv. 8, xxvii. 20, while Rev. T. GRAHAM, vicar of Southborough, gave an exposition of Rev. ii. 26-29, the message to the church of Thyatira.

On the second day of the Conference the first speaker at the morning meeting was Rev. G. W. TUCKER, who dwelt on one aspect of the Christian life, viz., the duty of restitution to those whom we may have wronged, as based on the story of Philemon and his slave Onesimus. This address was followed by a suggestive exposition by Rev. H. G. THWAITES, on the Christian's position and power.

The afternoon meeting was devoted to addresses on the various aspects of mission work at home and abroad, among the speakers being Rev. J. HINES (from Saskatchewan), Rev. J. S. BELL (who spoke on Jewish work), Mr. J. ABBEY, a temperance worker, Revs. R. CONWAY and T. GRAHAM.

The Conference closed on Thursday evening, when Rev. T. GRAHAM gave an address on "The Atonement Money" (Exod. xxx. 11-15), and Rev. H. G. THWAITES took for his theme the story of Gideon as an illustration of how God calls, prepares, and uses his instruments.

THE AMERICAN NORTH-WEST.

THE September issue of Missionary Leaves contains several communications from North-West America. The Bishop of Mackenzie River (Dr. Reeve) relates a visit to Herschel Island by Rev. I. O. Stringer. "This island is now a whaling station. No fewer than fifteen vessels have wintered there this year, so that there is quite a little colony of white people; and the presence of these ships and their crews attracts the Eskimos from all parts of the Arctic Coast. Mr. Stringer says:—'If a mission-house could be built there, it would be a good place for a man to be stationed. There would be constant work so long as the ships winter there. At all times of the year there are Eskimos in the neighbourhood. There are some there now from almost every mission and trading post and tribe on the coast of Alaska.' He makes a significant allusion to those families that have 'young women among their number,' and adds, 'Many of those young people, however, are anxious to read and write, and by this means might be influenced for good, and taught more important things.' There is also great danger of their being demoralised by 'drink,' for which some of the poor creatures are acquiring a taste."

Rev. J. W. Tims, of the Blackfoot Mission, Calgary, writes:—"We have now two large boarding-schools to keep going, and the annual cost of each is about £600. All the money we have to rely on is £800, which is derived from Government grants in aid, and subscriptions from the Women's Auxiliary to Missions in Canada. We have, therefore, to make up £400 a year. For the past two years all our money has had to go to meet debts, and I am almost without clothes, and have no money to buy any with. We have three lads and one girl communicants. Another lad, aged sixteen, died in our Home a few weeks ago, happy in the thought of meeting the Saviour. Nits-e-ne-tuk-ki noks in-no-os-si Jesus (I am in haste to see Jesus), was the remark he made to me the day before he died. In camp our teaching seems to have no effect, and this year there seems to be more excitement over the Sun Dances than there has been for years. The Government not only sanctions but aids the Indians in this dance, by giving them presents of beef and flour to supplement their feast."

The Bishop of Moosonee (Dr. Newnham) reports:—"All my co-workers have been preserved in health, and enabled to accomplish their long and arduous journeys safely, and none have spared themselves. By their diligence and loving zeal every part of the diocese which we have yet reached has heard the Gospel message: but there are parts yet to be reached. We need more men, if we are to reap the fields white for harvest. But the reports sent in by all are encouraging—more so than either we deserve or dare to hope for, whether you consider the mere numbers of baptized and communicants, or whether you look for the fruits of godliness in the lives of the Indians. I have heard a cry from a band of Eskimos, five hundred strong, in the north-west of the diocese, and I cannot yet find a man for them. He must be young, strong, single, able to shift for himself and to endure utter isolation for many months, perhaps for a year or two. The Roman Catholics are working towards these Eskimos, and if we do not soon reach them, they will. Which is it to be? In fact, the Eskimos generally demand our best additional efforts."

Particulars as to the British correspondents of the C.M.S. missions in the American North-West may be had from Mr. H. G. Malaher, 20, Compton-terrace, Upper-street, Islington, N.

IKWEZI LAMACI MISSION.—Mr. B. J. Morcom, of Pietermaritzburg, was present at the Birmingham Y.M.C.A. Missionary Parliament on Friday evening last, and gave an exceedingly interesting account of the work carried on by Mr. and Mrs. Aitchison in Natal. He spoke in the highest terms of their management of the Mission, and urged the great importance of training and teaching the young girls, for whose special needs Mrs. Aitchison is organising a home and school. Communications in reference to this Mission may be made through Mr. Edwin A. Page, Y.M.C.A., Birmingham.

MISSIONARY PENNIES.

IT may seem a startling statement to say, that the great question of missions is, after all, on the human side at least, a question of pennies. But it is true, however strange it may sound. Most missionary societies are restricted in their much-needed operations by scarcity of funds, and to effect any increase in their incomes seems a task beyond their powers. Qualified candidates, fitted to carry the Word of Life to the perishing masses of heathendom, have to be rejected by societies scarcely able to maintain their present staff in the field. And this, because Christian people will not give their pennies! It is estimated that if the eight million, or thereabouts, of Church members and adherents in the United Kingdom could be induced to give each an extra penny per week, the number of missionaries now at work could be doubled.

Does not this fact alone demonstrate the low level to which Christian liberality has sunk in the richest, and presumably the most Christian, country in the world? What must be the thought of the Lord of the Church as He sits "over against the treasury," and marks the sums expended by his professed disciples on the unnecessary, and frequently the injurious, luxuries of life? The wines, the tobacco, the literature, the costly dress, the expensive pleasures—and less than one penny per week towards fulfilling his last great command! Is it not lamentable that thousands upon thousands of those who profess and call themselves Christians should imagine they have discharged the claim of Christ's heathen upon them when they have dropped their annual contribution into the offertory-box on Missionary Sunday?

Considerations such as these led to the formation some three years ago of the Missionary Pence Association, an aid to missions which has passed beyond the experimental stage, and has proved that it is capable of materially helping forward the great work, both financially and educationally. With but little expended in advertising, and left to grow mainly by its inherent power, it has, by the Divine blessing, distributed in three years some £1500 among about one hundred missions and societies. Moreover, it has been the pioneer, if not the parent, of similar movements which are also prospering. Its simple basis is one penny per week to any foreign mission the contributor may select. Its members are furnished with cards for collecting, and their interest is sustained by a monthly copy of The Illustrated Missionary News, containing notes of the progress of the Association. There is also a section for subscribers of a penny a day. Do not these lines furnish a solution of the financial problem of foreign missions?

And this very respectable total has been almost entirely contributed by the pence of the poorer classes of Christians, and is undoubtedly "new money." Working men and women, miners, servants, soldiers, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. members, and other everyday folk have mainly given it. That in collecting and contributing it they have been blessed, and had their missionary interest awakened, there is abundant evidence to show. Several from amongst the membership have already entered the foreign field, others are in training, and still others are waiting on God for guidance. One who is just entering a training institute writes: "I have been much blessed since I started to collect, getting many opportunities to say a word for Jesus," and her testimony is that of many.

The Pence Association has been formally adopted by the Missionary Bureau as a part of its work. The office is at 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C., and inquiries will be gladly answered, or the new report sent (as soon as ready) by the secretary.

ROSEMARY MISSION.—The new report of this vigorous little Mission states that "the various operations in connection with the Mission have been carried on with success and are in a flourishing conditon. The two most important branches, viz., the Sunday-school and the adult services, may serve as an index of the successful condition of all the work. In the Sunday-school the number on the books and the average attendance is maintained. And the average attendance at the adult services has been slowly but surely increasing during the year, while every other branch of the work at Rosemary has been carried on with unremitting energy and zeal, and with a large measure of success in each case." The finances are, however, unsatisfactory, there being a deficit of £60. The superintendent is Mr. F. Warman, 1, Alwyne-road, N.

"WHEREFORE DIDST THOU DOUBT?"

Somebody has touched me! What intense satisfaction God's servants feel when they are permitted in any measure to share this joy of their Lord—that amid the many careless hearers of the living Word which the Master has given them to speak, some earnest, trembling soul has been brought into vital contact with Jesus Christ Himself, and has been made whole. Those who live in closest touch with the Eternal Fountain of virtue most truly know this experience. We find this in reading the lives of the grand old saints of other days; but, thank God, we find it also in the testimony of his chosen vessels to-day. There is one community who seem specially to have kept this secret of the Lord. The members of the Society of Friends, for instance, when they speak for God, expect the guidance of the Spirit, not merely in a general way, but that really and definitely the right word will be given. They wait for this, and according to their faith it is done unto them. There have been well authenticated instances of a strong impression having been made on the minds of some Friend while sitting before the Lord that someone in the company has committed some terrible crime, and the trembling sinner, convicted by his own conscience, has confessed it. A less sensational, but as we think, truly remarkable instance of the direct Word having been given in answer to prayers, occurred in recent years at a Friends' meeting in London, the narration of which may help the faith of some hearers and speakers.

N. had been carefully brought up in a Christian home, and when a little child she had entered the kingdom. Though naturally thoughtful and speculative, the first decade of her spiritual life had been singularly free from intellectual doubt or questioning about the things she most certainly believed. Strange to say, the first to inject the minute grains of poison was an upright Christian man, an earnest believer and Bible student. Why did he do it? Not with the least thought of doing harm, or undermining faith, but simply for amusement, and the interest of the subject. "I like to mystify N.," he said. He was well versed in modern science, and told his young friend how every aspiration of the spiritual life could be shown to be physical sensation; how prayer, the idea of God, etc., could be reduced to motives of the brain, without supposing a soul. Yet to the question of his bewildered listener, "But you know you have a soul," he would always respond, "Yes; but it's a matter of faith," which, of course, was quite true.

This introduction to materialism, however, did not produce any immediate effect on her faith beyond a momentary perplexity in earnest work for God, and realised communion with Him. Eternal verities seemed as real as ever. But a time of temptation came. N. happened to meet with a case, common enough in this brain-wearing age, of a once bright, buoyant Christian plunged in despair, not through backsliding, but as the result of excessive nervous pressure. The girl could not see, what was plain enough afterwards, that these distressing mental states did not really affect the soul life, which was still safe in God's keeping. She was overwhelmed with distress, and the question of unbelief, "Why does God permit this?" grew into "Is there a God at all?" And then the suggestions of her scientific friend awoke from the corner of her mind where they had been slumbering, and she said, "What if the spiritual emotions are all subjective, and faith has no real object, no God, no soul?" But these doubts were not uttered, not tampered with. She tried to "consume her own smoke," and not to trouble others with it, so outwardly she was the same simple believer.

Near to N.'s home was a Friends' meeting, which numbered some very energetic members. These earnest souls, in addition to the regular meetings for their own community, had started an informal meeting for the deepening of the spiritual life, to which Christians of all denominations were invited. N. had attended several of these meetings, and always with profit. She had felt specially drawn to one gentle, earnest lady, who sometimes spoke on these occasions. They had some little interviews on the subject of the over-coming life, which the young inquirer had found very helpful, but she had never thought of mentioning her gloomy doubts to the Quaker lady. One Sunday morning, however, a relative suggested that they should go to the Friends' meeting for once. This was not a welcome suggestion, for N. was longing to be in her accustomed seat in her own place of worship; but to please her relative she consented, and soon they were sitting in silence. During what she mentally designated one of those horrible pauses—horrible, indeed, it was to her, for Satan found some mischief for her idle mind—the enemy came in like a flood with all the terrible questions she had been struggling to resist. "What are these people doing?" he asked. "They reckon they are waiting upon God, but it is all nonsense, all subjective. There is no voice to answer, no God." But these silent suggestions were pain and grief to her, and her heart cried out to God to show her some token of his real presence. "I would believe there is a God," she thought, "if the silence should be broken by Miss B——. I don't care what she may say, but the voice would be a token." She fixed her eyes on the sweet placid face, and prayed that the voice which had so often brought help and cheer might be God's Word to still the tempest. But the silence seemed interminable, and then the thought came, "This is foolish and wrong. I have no right to ask for such a sign. I will, I do believe without it, and by a strong effort she turned not only her eyes from the face but her thoughts from the subject. Then suddenly the long silence was broken by wise words uttered in the familiar voice which she had been praying might be heard: "The fool has said in his heart, There is no God." Then the speaker went on to tell how a venerable minister, when dying, had had repeated to him the words, "I know in Whom I have believed," and had cried, "No, that's not it; I will not even have an in between me and my God. I know Whom I have believed." She finished with the triumphant words, "I know there is a God, because I know Him and I live in his presence."

The snare was broken, and there was a great calm as agonising doubt gave place to peaceful trust. And not for that time only, for though the enemy came again in times of weakness and sorrow, he generally retired in confusion when reminded of that singular manifestation of the Father's power and tenderness in granting what even to the supplicant seemed an unreasonable request. This was by no means the only occasion on which this devoted Friend appeared quite unexpectedly as a ministering angel in seasons in sorrow and darkness. Subsequently N. told Miss B—— how the words had come home on that summer Sunday morning as a token and message direct from heaven. It was interesting to find that though her words had indeed come to the speaker as a burden of the Lord to be delivered then, it was not revealed for whom they were intended. "I think I had some young man in my mind," she said, adding with almost an amused smile, "I certainly did not think that you would need them." Is not the lesson of this, as of many other instances of "somebody touching," that his chosen vessels are those who keep close to the Master, receiving their words at his mouth, and then letting out, trusting the Spirit to apply as He listens? N.

WOMEN IN KOREA.

The women of Korea are without mental culture or a knowledge of the outside world, but they pass their time in daily drudgery. A man seldom holds conversation with his wife. It is not considered proper for a widow to remarry.

A missionary writes: "When a woman of the higher class goes from one house to another, a large box-like conveyance, with a lid, is brought by coolies to her house and left. It is then carried by servants into her room. She gets into it, the lid is shut, and by servants she is carried to the street. Coolies carry her to the house she is to visit. Servants carry her into the houses, and she is then permitted to come forth from her closed conveyance. The same ceremony is observed on her return journey. Sadness and weariness mark the countenances of even the youngest women.

"In some of the cities a glimmer of western civilisation shines out upon woman's dreary condition. It is a legal enactment that women are not allowed on the streets before nine o'clock p.m., and men are not allowed on the streets after that hour. At the hour named a huge bell is rung as a signal that the time has come that the women may go out and the men must go in. If any man is so unfortunate as to find himself at a distance from home when he hears the bell, he hastens home with all possible speed in order to escape the severe punishment that would be meted out to him if he were detected."

—The Gospel in all Lands.

AWAKENING AT BALLYMENA.

As very many of your readers are deeply interested in the work of God in Ireland, I feel led to send you a short account of what is now going on at Ballymena. The remarkable awakening and interest which commenced there three years ago, under the preaching of Mr. David Rea, has been going on and spreading ever since. It is cause for deep thanksgiving to see the numbers, especially of young people, who have been led to the Saviour, and are now very zealous in trying to lead others to Him also, which is one of the best evidences of true conversion to God.

Over seven weeks ago, Mr. Rea was again led to pitch a large new tent, capable of holding upwards of fourteen or fifteen hundred people, there. Many at the time thought it was much too large, and would scarcely be filled. But the numbers and interest have far exceeded expectations. Additional accommodation had to be provided, and another tent, seating three hundred, put up beside it, opening into the large one, for Sundays. Both tents have been filled, and the numbers are still increasing.

Friday night week was a special meeting for testimony and praise, and seldom have I seen anything like it, the presence of God was so distinctly manifest. The testimonies were most touching and the tone of them so real and scriptural, well calculated to awaken the most careless, and lead into the light those who were troubled and in darkness. A marked feature of the work is that in many instances conviction of sin has been so deep, and the sense of danger so real, that persons have not been able to attend to their work or business. Whole families have been known to remain up nearly all night, some of them in such distress of soul, and others so happy in their new-found joy, that sleep had become impossible. John B. Kingston.

THE HOME BEYOND.

The conflict now is ended,
The strife for ever past,
With angels' songs are blended,
Their song of praise at last.

The sorrow and the sighing,
The weariness and pain,
The mystery of dying
Shall ne'er be known again.

All earthly tribulation,
All anxious care hath ceased,
From toil and from privation
Their spirits are released.

Gone is the time for weeping,
When praise succeeds to prayer,
The sowing and the reaping
Are left to others' care.

The light of glory streaming
O'er hosts of the redeemed,
The smiles of rapture beaming
Have ne'er so welcome seemed.

No clouds above are rolling,
No thunder peal is heard,
No funeral bell is tolling,
No hearts with grief are stirred.

No fears of dark temptation
The faithful mind oppress,
For hearts that know salvation
No meaner thoughts possess,

One constant blaze of glory
The walls of heaven doth gild,
For now the old, old story
For these hath been fulfilled.

The gracious soul-refiner
Will here his work achieve,
And render yet diviner
All who his grace receive.

And some perchance He sendeth
On missions from on high,
And some bright talent lendeth
That shall not useless lie.

And home ere long returning,
Their work for Jesus done,
Their hearts, with love yet burning,
Shall other hearts have won.

White robes shall grow yet whiter,
More pure each soul shall be,
And heaven become yet brighter
Throughout eternity.

Walton Park, Clevedon. W. Kitching.

The Evangelist.

DECISION.

By CHEYNE BRADY.

Why did the young man mentioned in Matt. xix. 22 go away sorrowful? Why did the eunuch spoken of in Acts viii. go on his way rejoicing? Because the one had rejected Christ, and the other had accepted Him. Each was an inquirer, each asked the way of salvation. To each Christ was offered; but one turned away from Him, the other accepted Him.

Jesus was going on the way when a young man, a ruler, came running, and kneeling down in the road, asked Him, "Good Master, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?" The very attitude of the young man showed that he was sincere in his inquiry, zealous and anxious to ascertain the Master's opinion.

At first sight his appears a proper question; but on examination it betrays great ignorance. He was evidently on the wrong tack; he thought he could be saved by doing something. The Lord knew his weak point, and to show him his error He replied, "If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." In complete ignorance of the spirituality of the law, of his own inability to keep it, and of his own worldly heart, he answered, "All these things have I kept from my youth up: what lack I yet?" Then the Lord looked on him with love and compassion, and taught him graciously, "One thing thou lackest: go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, take up the cross, and follow Me" (Mark x. 21).

Gloom, dejection and deep sorrow took possession of the young man. He turned his back on Jesus, for he was not willing to part with his riches, and

"HE WENT AWAY SORROWFUL."

Let us turn from this sad scene to look at another.

In Ethiopia, far south of Jerusalem, there dwelt a man who held a position of great trust and importance under his queen, Candace, and was the great man of the Court.

To him, it may be, had come tidings of the things that had happened at Jerusalem, that Jesus of Nazareth had been crucified, and that the course of nature had been disturbed by darkness at midday. He had heard that Jerusalem was considered by many the place where men ought to worship, so, with his chariot and cavalcade, he undertook the long and tedious pilgrimage to the land of Judea.

There in the Holy City he beheld strange things; he saw the slaughter of the sacrifices, and the sprinkling of blood. He heard also the confessions of sin by the priests, and the reading of the law, which terrified him. But neither sacrifices nor law could give peace to his soul. To his great disappointment all was inexplicable. He resolved to return to his own country.

Cast your eye now across the desert leading to Gaza. See the long cavalcade of an eastern magnate; camels led by slaves, runners clearing the way, last of all the principal chariot, driven by a slave, and occupied by this great man of Ethiopia. One thing of priceless value he is carrying with him to his distant home. He has been able to procure a parchment roll of the prophet Isaiah, which he now holds in his hand, and earnestly reads as he goes on his way, though evidently much perplexed as to its meaning.

Here, then, we find an anxious soul—a man troubled in mind respecting his state, and diligently seeking after God.

God, who heard the feeble inquiry of the anxious, lonely stranger in the wilderness, sent to him one who would instruct him in his perplexity.

The Spirit said unto Philip, "Go near, and join thyself to this chariot." So Philip ran to stop the chariot. As he approached, he heard the stranger reading aloud the prophet Isaiah, and asked, "Understandest thou what thou readest? And he said, How can I, except some man should guide me? And he desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him" (Acts viii. 29—31).

The place where he was reading was Isaiah liii.: 'He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon Him, and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all" (Isa. iii. 5, 6). "He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened He not his mouth: in his humiliation his judgment was taken away: and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth."

The eunuch had seen the lambs slaughtered, but they had not shown him Christ. He had read the Scriptures, but his eyes were not yet enlightened. "I pray thee," he said to Philip, "of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?"

"Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same Scripture, and preached unto him Jesus." Light dawned upon the dark mind of the Ethiopian; the Spirit of God breathed upon him. In the animals offered he saw the substitution of the victim for the sinner; in Jesus slain he saw his substitute. He saw his sins laid upon Him, and his blood covering them all.

"And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water; and the eunuch said, See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?

"And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more: and

HE WENT ON HIS WAY REJOICING."

Why did he rejoice? Because he had found the Saviour; because his sins were forgiven; because he had accepted Christ.

Now, reader, which will you do? Will you reject the message of mercy? Will you turn your back on Christ? If so, you will go away sorrowful, burdened with sin, without God, and without hope.

Will you accept Him? Is it a difficult thing to close your hand upon a gift? Is it so hard to believe God?

Close with God's offer of Christ; accept Him; renounce self in all its phases; and take Christ to be your Saviour from the penalty and from the power of sin, and then you also will go on your way rejoicing.

PROGRESS IN CHINA.

Dr. Griffith John writes from Hankow:—

Last year I described a remarkable work that had sprung up in the district of King-shan, where I had baptized on one Sunday forty-one converts. Mr. Hiung, one of our native assistants at Hankow, has just returned from a visit to King-shan, and he tells us that all these converts remain firm in the faith. There are more than 190 waiting now for baptism, of whom about 100 are deemed quite satisfactory. The Christians have bought a large house for chapel purposes, and paid for it themselves. About forty villages have become more or less Christian, and the work looks as if it might spread all over that part of the country.

In the district of Tien-men there is a most interesting work springing up in the immediate vicinity of our station at Pah-tsze-nau. The place is called Peh-ho-Kou, and I am told that from twenty to thirty people are seeking baptism there. What they told Mr. Hiung was this: "We have given up idolatry; we do not believe in Roman Catholicism; we wish to be Christians, and desire to join the Gospel Church." The Gospel Church is our specific designation.

Join with me in blessing God for this good news! I am sorry to have to add that many parts of Hupeh are suffering from disastrous floods. Nearly the whole of the Tien-men district is now under water, and, among thousands of others, our converts at Pah-tsze-nau are greatly tried.

PREACHERS AT THE BRITISH MUSEUM.—Professor Castell-Evans lectured before the Preachers' Association of North London on Friday last at the British Museum. The audience could not but feel the weight of accumulated evidence supplied by these historical monuments which so forcibly illustrated the accuracy and authenticity of Holy Scripture. As Babylon and Assyria gave their witness, note-books were in full use, several ladies being among the most enthusiastic scribes. The note-book brigade halted every dozen yards to allow the professor to increase the store of good things which are to bless future congregations and Bible-classes.

TWO GRADES OF INDIVIDUAL GROWTH.

Rev. Prebendary Reynolds, in his weekly Higher Science Lecture at SS. Anne and Agnes, Gresham-street, E.C., at 1.15 p.m., on Wednesday last, said: All earthly objects and creatures are in a flux of continual change, of which two features are chiefly manifested—an advance in good and usefulness, or progress in evil and unworthiness. That may be called the realm of light; this the rule of darkness. Light is not made to be at home in a limited circle, but for a common heritage, and light-receivers are to be light-bearers. He who has the mind of Moses will be a great deliverer; and the man with genius like that of Plato is pretty sure to produce mental masterpieces. Dr. Robert South said truly: "It is idleness that creates impossibilities; and where men care not to do a thing, they shelter themselves under a persuasion that it cannot be done."

Our first growth is to know realities. Appearances are suggestive of realities, and shaping our body of thought gives it life and power to inquire what the realities mean. The inquiry soon proves that science is not a counterfeit, starting from nothing and leading to nothing, and that right and wrong are not imaginary. We find that the working forces of the world are representative of the Eternal energy. Life, mind, the sense of truth and falsity, are proofs of Divine life, mind, holiness. Much has been said, with very little useful thought, about the unknowable. The talkers imagine that they lecture under the Tree of Knowledge; that God is a fabulous ancient existence, now extinct; that Creation is a mythical entity, only mythical. Despite such talk, every sane man has in himself germs of all those convictions as to wisdom, authority, holiness, love, which are a prophetic power of Divine truth and beauty, not cunning devices and desperate make-believes, nor the reflection of our sublimated selves, but those realities which are the essence of all that is good and true.

Whatever thought and imagination are exercised upon, is so far knowable. Not only so; every instructed physical and mental faculty becomes more capable and of truer use; and day by day, that which is at present not knowable becomes more and better known. If we mature on the side of light, we become truer, nobler. If we incline, by perverse twist, to the dark side, we put prison bars around us. Think as Anselm did. God is the Reality of truth, of power, of wisdom, of life. He transcends all our thought in betterness, by being beyond all, not as a non-existence, but in supremest truth. All things pass through many stages in heaven and earth. Heaven is wider than the earth, and realities are grander than the objects we see. These realities are more splendid than our conception of them. As we enlarge conception, we enter and possess more of the reality. As we narrow our conception, the inner man is dwarfed, the outer man is lowered, and we become incapable of that life and fellowship with God, through his manifestations, especially that by the Lord Jesus, of which the Eternal Spirit would make us capable. Cultivate the larger growth.

MR. MEYER'S WELCOME HOME.

On Sunday afternoon a special praise meeting of the P.S.A., at which fully 1200 were present, was held in Christ Church, Westminster Bridge-road, to welcome home the president, Rev. F. B. Meyer. A four-leaf programme had been prepared; hymns specially written for the occasion being sung. The general secretary presided, and during the afternoon read an address of welcome, which was presented to Mr. Meyer in an album, in which had been arranged a number of testimonies, which the secretary had received from time to time, telling how men had been saved, and of the wonders God had wrought in their homes and in their lives through the P.S.A. meeting. From the reports which Mr. Meyer elicited impromptu from the heads of the various departments of the work, it was shown how great and glorious a work was being carried on. Mr. Meyer was deeply touched, and said that album would be one of his choicest possessions. He told how the growth of the brotherhood had been a source of inspiration and help to him. Miss Luke sang two solos. The meeting was one of the best ever held in the Christ Church P.S.A.

IRISH RAILWAY TALKS.—4.

By GEORGE WILLIAMS.

"Monasterevan! Monasterevan!" shouted the porters, and the train pulled up at that picturesque station on the Dublin and Cork line. It was a dark October night, and weary with the long run from Limerick, which city I had left in the afternoon, I was vainly trying to get some sleep in the most comfortable corner of the carriage.

Just as the train was about to resume its journey, and I was making myself more cosy, the door quickly opened, and a soldierly-looking man said to me: "The smoking carriage is full. Would you allow my friends and me to smoke in this compartment?" I at once said "Yes," and he called his friends, saying, "Here is a jolly fellow who says we may smoke." They jumped aboard, a porter banged the door, the guard whistled, and away we raced to Kildare.

The new-comers were five in number, and had that frank, easy manner which is so attractive in the best types of the British officer. From my corner I watched them with increasing interest and sympathy, and wondered how such manly fellows could descend to the mournful slavery of the tobacco plant.

After we had run a little way, the man who sat next to me, and who had so courteously addressed me at Monasterevan, asked me if the train would stop at Newbridge. I replied that it would; and knowing that the large barracks at that town were occupied by the cavalry and artillery, I assumed that my companions belonged to these branches of the army.

Having conjectured this, I was beginning to drop asleep when suddenly my neighbour turned to me and, with strange abruptness, said: "Every year a percentage of trains is wrecked and the passengers killed. Perhaps we will be in the percentage to-night. Perhaps this train will be wrecked, and we shall be killed. Is it not odd that we never think of that?"

This unexpected remark roused me up, and I replied that it was most true that people don't think of such possibilities. "And the worse of it all is," he added, "if this train is smashed and we are killed, we don't know where we are going to."

The bold frankness of this avowal thoroughly waked me up, and, eagerly catching at such an opportunity of speaking of the Life that is life indeed, I quietly said, "There are many people who do know where they are going to."

"Oh, I don't believe that for a moment. No one knows where he is going to!"

"I assure you there are many who do."

"You will never persuade me of that."

"But I have met many of these persons."

"I don't believe there are such persons in the world—I have never met one."

"Well, you meet one now." He turned instantly toward me, threw his cigar under the opposite seat, and with intense interest said, "And you know where you are going to!"

"Yes."

"Do you mean to say that if this train were smashed up, and you killed, you know where you would go to?"

"Yes—certainly."

"And where would you go to?"

"To be with Christ, which is very far better."

"And how do you know that?"

"God told me."

"God told you! How did God tell you that?"

"In a book called the Bible."

"The Bible! I know the Bible, I have read the Bible. Where did God tell you in the Bible that you would go to be with Christ?"

"In very many places. For instance, in 1 Peter iii. 18, I read, 'Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the Just One for the unjust, that He might bring us to God.' There I learn that He was judged for sins, and therefore for my sins. And his needing only to suffer 'once' assures me that all my sins have been judged infinitely, and so effectually removed that no further sacrifice is needed. Then, in John v. 24, the Lord Jesus says to me, 'Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that heareth my word, and believeth on Him that sent Me, hath eternal life, and cometh not into judgment, but hath passed out of death into life.' Yet again, in 2 Cor. v., St. Paul says, 'We know that if the earthly house of our bodily frame be dissolved, we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. Therefore we are always confident, knowing that to be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord.'"

As I repeated these verses, and several others, he leaned his elbows upon his knees, and putting his head into his hands listened intently. Fearing to say too much, I quickly stopped. But without raising his head he said, "Go on, tell me more."

Wondering at the grace of God in giving me such a joy, I continued, and as plainly as I could, showed him from the Scriptures his position as a sinner, the hopelessness of self-salvation by merit, works, or sacraments, the fulness and value of the atoning death of the Lord Jesus Christ for him; and, lastly, God's pledged word to surely pardon and save any sinner who accepted his testimony concerning the person and work of that Saviour.

So soon as I stopped, he raised his head, and with considerable emotion said: "I see it all clearly. I am just to accept what God says about me as being guilty and lost, and about Christ as having died for me. I am just to believe God?"

"Yes," I replied, "nothing more."

"But may I not deceive myself here? May I not think I trust Him and yet really not do so?"

To this I answered that he must be as a little child, and trust with the honest, simple, directness of a child, and that it was not his trusting that saved him but the person whom he trusted.

The train had now reached Newbridge. My friend and his companions alighted, warmly thanking me for having spoken to them, and I was left alone with a conviction in my heart that I will meet some, if not all, of those men in the Kingdom of God.

FRIENDS' MISSIONS IN SYRIA.

The work in the village of Brumana, which was recently entered upon by M. E. Stevens, is proving useful and interesting; she is gladly welcomed by the villagers. Emma M. Bishop has lately paid a long visit for the benefit of her health to the village of Shimlan, about six hours' journey from Beyrout, where she has been the guest of Miss Addie, the superintendent of the important Girls' School there. Those who have read Sir William Muir's translation of "Sweet First Fruits" will hear with interest that its author lives in this neighbourhood, and gives a weekly address to the children in the school. E. M. Bishop says:—"I went to hear him last week, and was very pleased. It was an earnest simple Gospel address on Phil. ii. 12-13, just suited to the girls. He is a very good man, gentle and humble-minded, his whole face and manner testifying of the peace and love of God within him."

E. M. Bishop's health is still poor, and she is about to return to England for more prolonged rest and change. Meanwhile the work at Ras goes forward; Margaret Trusted is there, and one of the workers from Brumana pays an occasional visit. The extension of the Girls' Training Home is being carried forward energetically.

FILIAL PIETY IN CHINA.—Rev. J. Steele, of Swatow, writes:—"While we were visiting a family in this village, the preacher, speaking to an old woman, happened to refer to "filial piety," the virtue on the possession of which, above all others, the Chinese pride themselves. "Don't speak of it!" she cried; "from my eldest son to my youngest grandchild not one of them is filial!" It is a common complaint. The exhibition of piety is deferred until the parents are dead, and then children atone for former neglect by sacrifice and worship. Many of their own proverbs are aimed at this hollowness. "It is better," says one, "to give a fowl or a pig to your people when alive than to slaughter an ox in sacrifice at their tombs." And again: "If you do not reverence your parents during their lifetime, why go and weep for them after death?"

THE GRINDELWALD CONFERENCE. — The reunion session of this Conference was opened on Sunday (Sept. 1), in the parish church of Grindelwald. The Archdeacon of Manchester preached in the morning, and the president, Rev. Dr. Lunn, delivered his inaugural address in the evening. Amongst those expected to speak during the week are the Dean of Ripon, Canon McCormick, Principal Gent, of the Church of England Training College, Chelsea, Professors Story and Lindsay, Revs. Dr. Barrows, President of the World's Parliament of Religions, H. J. Pope, Hugh Price Hughes, and Dr. C. A. Berry. The president (Dr. Lunn) opened his inaugural address with a retrospect of the work done, and the results achieved by the three reunion Conferences which have already been held, rejoicing in the results achieved, looking hopefully to the future, and dealing with some of the perils of any scheme of uniformity.

PERSECUTION IN PERSIA.

Bishop Stuart, writing from Julfa, Ispahan, Persia on July 5, gives an account of the sufferings of a young Persian convert. The position is one of some difficulty, and his appeal for prayer will, we feel sure, meet with a hearty response:—

Sheckinah and her infant boy were baptized on Good Friday last, April 12. She had long been under instruction, and had given proof of her sincerity by enduring persecution and opposition from her own family. Her husband had divorced her, on the ground of her being subject to (epileptic?) fits. She had been under treatment in the missionary dispensary for a considerable time, and her health had much improved before she became an inquirer and applied for baptism.

Since her baptism she has continued to live in her own home at a village, Hasseinabad, near this, but has come regularly to Miss Bird for further instruction, and been learning to read in the (Armenian) girls' school. Her bodily health has improved, and her mental development been quite remarkable. She has been zealous in her efforts to bring her mother and sister under religious impressions, and to some extent succeeded in this, and in disarming their opposition.

But there were Moollahs in the village violently opposed to all this. They stirred up her relatives to put a stop to her visits to Julfa. Her uncle savagely beat her with a muleteer's chain, wounding her badly in the face, endangering her eyesight, and in other ways maltreating her. She had to be brought in to the hospital to have her wounds dressed. But even after this rough usage she was so brave as to return to her family, and her patient endurance, if wrong, so far mollified the uncle that at her next visit to my daughter she reported that he was sorry for having hurt her, and excused himself as having acted under the threats of the Moollahs, who held him responsible for Sheckinah as her father is a deaf mute.

This is the great week of the Mohurrum, when fanatical excitement is at its height, hence her brother-in-law brought her to the mission for safety. On Wednesday the Khatkhuda, or local official at Hasseinabad, came, demanding that Sheckinah should be sent back.

A later letter says: We were compelled, on the requisition of the Prince-Governor to the acting British Consul, to give up the Sheckinah, who had taken refuge with Miss Bird.

I am thankful to report that the Prince has withstood the demand of the influential Moollah, Agha Najifi, to deliver her up to him, and that up to this time she is in safety in the Palace Anderoon where for the present she is retained as a servant to one of the Prince's family. It was also a matter for much thankfulness to learn by a statement made by H.R.H. to Mr. Aganoor, that in an interview with the Prince she had avowed herself a Christian. "With uplifted eyes towards heaven she seemed to be praying," the Prince added.

I regret to say that Agha Najifi now threatens a more sweeping measure. On Wednesday last (July 10th) he sent us a message by our Mirzah (the Persian translator for so many years employed by Dr. Bruce) to the effect that all our Mohammedan scribes and teachers, whether engaged in our private work or in the school, were forthwith to be dismissed; also that no Mohammedan boys were to be admitted by us to our school.

As information from several quarters lead us to believe that Agha Najifi is not using an empty threat to terrify our Mirzahs, but is bent on some mischief, we have thought it well to report the matter officially to the Acting-Consul and to request that he will bring it to the notice of the Prince Governor. Agha Najifi has only recently returned from a lengthened absence at Meshed, and the report has been diligently circulated that he had declared that on his return to Ispahan he would put a stop to our work.

PASTOR FRANK H. WHITE, writing from a remote spot in the Adironachs, New York State, speaks of his progress in the way of recovery as slow, but encouraging. He has refrained from any public service, but has had the joy of some quiet effort in the boarding-house. He expects to be away until after December, and probably the spring. Meanwhile the elders at the Talbot Tabernacle have arranged with Rev. Lancelot Holland to take the ministry for the last three months of the year.

JEREMIAH AND THE MONUMENTS.

In the September issue of The Monthly Messenger of the Presbyterian Church of England, Rev. Hugh M. Mackenzie writes on Jeremiah and the Monuments. We reproduce the closing paragraphs on the overthrow of Elam and the fall of Babylon:—

"The royal city of Cyrus, the best authorities consider, must be looked for in the region of Mal-Amir. The rise of this sub-Persian kingdom (founded by Tiespes the Akhœmœnian) seems to have been almost synchronous with the fall of the Assyrian Empire, although it is possible that Nineveh itself may not have actually fallen when Jeremiah began to prophesy. The new monarchy was able to establish itself because of the weak state of the Elamite Empire after its overthrow by Assurbanipal. (A recent inscription of Assurbanipal says: 'In fifth expedition overwhelmed Elam... Cut off head of its wicked king.') Jeremiah says (xlix. 35): 'The word...against Elam (in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, B.C. 598): Behold, I will break the bow of Elam.'

"In reference to the fall of Babylon itself (B.C. 538), it seems that the sacred vessels of Jehovah's sanctuary would be stored in the Temple of Bit-Saggal, the Temple of Bel-Merodach, and must have been brought thence to gratify the impious wish of the man who is regarded as the last of Nimrod's line. On the fifteenth day of Tammuz the great marriage feast of Ishtar and Tammuz was celebrated. (First, grief for the death of Tammuz, then joy at his resurrection and marriage.) Jeremiah seems to have known the custom of carrying the statue of Tammuz (the Babylonian Adonis) on a bier, followed by bands of mourners, chanting a funeral dirge; for he says, in bitter sarcasm against Jehoiakim, 'They shall not lament for him, saying, Ah, me, my brother; ah, me, my sister; ah, me, Adonai; ah, me, his lady!' The splendour of the marriage feast, the wine, the flowers, the music, the myriad lamps, the blazing tripods scenting the air with sweet perfume, forms a picture awfully unlike the closing scene of an empire once so powerful and so vast. Yet, as Jeremiah had declared, so it came to pass. The tramp of armed men, an almost bloodless struggle, and Babylon is in the possession of Cyrus, 'the little servant'—called in Isaiah's prophecy, 'My shepherd, prince, anointed, whose might I have upheld to subdue the nations.' The exiled Jews had been taught by Jeremiah and others to look for this deliverance. When the great day of revenge at length arrived, the once discredited oracles of Jehovah were confirmed by the cry of the people of God: 'Babylon is fallen—is fallen!'"

DAVID'S LAMENTATION

OVER THE DEATH OF SAUL AND JONATHAN.

2 Samuel i. 17-27.

RENDERED INTO ENGLISH VERSE.

Those heroes of thine on the high places slain,
O Israël! ne'er shalt thou see them again!
My sovereign king, and my much-beloved friend,
Alas! how the mighty have come to their end!
To Gath let the tidings by none be conveyed,
In Ashkelon's streets let there nothing be said!
Lest the Philistines should at the tidings rejoice,
The uncircumcised lift up in triumph their voice!
Let no rain or dew fall on Gilboa's top,
No field yield for off'rings a plentiful crop!
For there was the mighty one's shield cast aside,
The shield of great Saul, once the Israelite's pride,
The arrows dispatched from dear Jonathan's bow
The objects he aimed at ne'er failed to bring low.
And Saul's mighty sword was ne'er wielded in vain,
But constantly drenched in the blood of the slain,
In life, by the cords of love mutually tied,
Together, at last, Saul and Jonathan died.
In swiftness they might be with eagles compared,
The strength and the prowess of lions they shared.
Ye daughters of Israël! weep over Saul,
With scarlet and gold who adornèd you all.
Oh, how are the mighty in battle brought low!
Thy death, brother Jonathan, fills me with woe.
How sweet was the friendship that bound us so long!
The love e'en of women could not be more strong!
Fit subject to moot in this sorrowful song.
Alas! those great men are now living no more,
And perished for aye are the weapons they bore!

Leytonstone. G. Small.

Letter to the Editor.

CORRUPT LITERATURE.

Dear Sir,—Last week you drew attention to the wretched literature, the penny dreadfuls, etc., which are doing so much harm. There have been several sad results brought before the public lately; we are much indebted to those who have spoken out. Oh that the pulpit, the press, the platform would speak out lovingly, earnestly, helpfully on this.

Thousands of godly persons have no idea of the spread of this evil. It is much under the surface, and harm is done where and when it is little suspected. Thank God, the drink is no temptation to many of our boys and girls; but here is a danger that is not so much seen or guarded against, yet doing as much harm, because more insidious and made more attractive to the youth of our day. If parents, masters and mistresses, heads of our schools, heads of business houses, etc., etc., were fully alive to this, really interested, roused to counteract the poison, to warn with kind words, to win to that which is better, then much good may be done. Personal and practical effort, prayer and pains, will win the battle. Give them something better, and before long they will thank you. It may be slow work, but it will be sure.

The head-master of one of our great public schools said to me, "Our greatest difficulty is the wretched cheap novelettes; we do not know how to deal with this evil." The head of another school said, "Terrible harm has been done in my school lately." I could fill pages with instances. I have tried to do a little by speaking and writing, and long that more powerful voices, more able pens than mine, would, under God's guidance and blessing, help in this important matter with wisdom, sincerity, and sympathy. My heart is burdened with this, which must be my apology for writing.—Your obedient servant,

W. H. Dawson,
President Y.M.C.A., Bournemouth.

Crieff, N.B., Aug. 30.

ITINERATION IN SIALKOT.

Dr. Youngson, writing from Sialkot, gives an interesting glimpse of the great and successful work in the Panjab:—

Owing to Mr. Waugh's taking charge of the college, I was free, as I have never been before, to give myself to itineration. I had a tent for the brethren that went with me. Ganhar Shah plays the dotara, a two-stringed instrument; Mandu plays or beats the rabbana, a sort of drum. We found music to be a very powerful aid in preaching to the villages. At the village of Kular we were joined by Wadhava, who proved to be a skilful performer on the chikara, or violin. All the converts from among the Chuhras sing. Music is God's gift to them. Others—Hindus, Sikhs, and Mohammedans—know little of music; but the low-caste people are splendid singers. We hail this as a sign of the favour of God, because hymns are being written to all the native airs, and are sung everywhere by the Christians. I believe that more Christian teaching is conveyed by means of hymns than by all the other means put together.

The magic lantern, too, is invaluable. During the day we visit a few villages, and it is made known that there will be a meeting in some village in the evening, as soon as it is dark. The pictures are thrown on a large screen. It is delightful to see how animated they all become, and how interested they are in the pictures. Ganhar Shah explains some, Mandu some, the native pastor others, while I take the opportunity occasionally to lay stress on some special doctrine, generally that of the sacrifice of Jesus. It does one's heart good to hear Mandu explaining the parable of the prodigal son. He does not describe the words of the father receiving the son as if they were triumphant, but somewhat in this way:—"Here's my boy coming—what a state he is in! I can't let the servants see him like this—we shall all be put to shame. Put clothes, shoes, a ring on as speedily as possible, that I may present him to the whole house. I cannot have him appear in that state. It would break his heart altogether." This is all said in an undertone. I love to hear the brethren interpreting for themselves.

We have had a large number of baptisms. In the year just ended we had throughout the Panjab Mission no fewer than 607. This year, in the first three months, we have well on to 300. And there are others ready. A great work is going on. The sea is flowing—may it never ebb.—The Mission Record.

SCOTTISH NOTES.

Professor Salmond, of Aberdeen, has been preaching during July and August in Strathpeffer.

So far as the year has gone the Free Church Sustenation Fund reports an increase on a similar period for last year.

The monument in the Greyfriars, Edinburgh, to Rev. Alexander Henderson, a famous Scottish divine, which was overthrown at the Restoration, and set up again at the Revolution, is being restored.

A number of students resident in Carnoustie during the summer months have conducted an open-air mission to children, holding daily meetings on the sands and in the Panbride and Carnoustie F.C. Halls.

The Scottish National Union of Young Men's Christian Associations and Fellowship Unions hold their twenty-fifth annual conference at Saltcoats, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday next, September 10, 11, and 12.

Rev. P. T. Thomson, of Lochee Baptist Church, who has accepted a call to Blenheim Church, Leeds, has laboured in Lochee with much success for two years. During his ministry the Church has prospered, and is now in a very flourishing condition.

IRISH NOTES.

Dr. Walsham How, Bishop of Wakefield, has just been preaching to a large congregation in Roundstone Church, Connemara.

Duncairn Gardens Methodist Church, Belfast, is in a hopeful condition. Souls are being born again continually, the congregations are very large, and several new society classes have been formed.

Mr. Norton V. Dawson, who was for some time assistant in a parish in Belfast, has been baptized in Harcourt-street Chapel, Dublin, by Pastor H. D. Brown. Rev. R. H. Cotter, rector of Ardcanny, Kildimo, co. Limerick, was recently baptized in the Baptist chapel, Limerick.

Much regret is felt by many in the North of Ireland at the deaths of Mr. James Mitchell, of Comber, aged sixty-three years, and of Mr. Robert Morrow, of Rathfriland, aged seventy-three years, who have just passed away, and who were both earnest Christian workers in connection with the Presbyterian Church.

A united prayer meeting, which was largely attended by members of various denominations, and in which the rector and the local Presbyterian and Methodist ministers took part, has been held in the Town Hall, Athy, to offer sympathy to the relatives of the missionaries who recently lost their lives in China, and to pray for those who are still in danger.

THE BRITISH CHAUTAUQUA.

The British Chautauqua, held at Pwllheli, from August 10-24, proved an undoubted success, and will evidently become as popular and useful as its American original. Between 100 and 200 Sunday-school workers joined it, and were instructed by Drs. Lorimer, Cave, Newman Hall, Revs. F. B. Meyer, Chas. Brown, W. J. Avery, Miss Marianne Farningham, and other prominent leaders of thought. Excursions were undertaken nearly every day, by coach, rail, or steamer, to such noted places as Bardsey Island, Carnarvon, Snowdon, etc., and in the mornings and evenings services, classes and lectures were arranged which proved in the highest degree helpful.

Miss Marianne Farningham's tender and sympathetic addresses, and the deep interest she took in all the proceedings, were a source of strength to all present at the gatherings. Mrs. Benham and Miss M. Jennie Street contributed greatly to the higher success of the meetings by their earnest spirituality and their beautiful prayers. The genial presence of Alderman Belsey, the Chairman of the Sunday School Union, was an inspiration, and the blackboard lesson which he gave to the large class of adult "scholars," on the sands at Nevin, was one of the most practical and most appreciated of all the helps which Sunday-school teachers received during the Convention.

A marked feature of the gathering has been its deep religious tone, and the manifest spirituality of every meeting. The last meeting of the series, the united communion service held on Friday evening, August 23, was a time of great refreshing. The occasion was a most solemn one—a fitting close to a gathering at which some lasting and beautiful friendships have been made. After taking the bread and wine the whole assembly rose, and sang with deep feeling the parting hymn, "God be with you till we meet again."

It is believed that the good influence of this profitable holiday will long be felt in the lives of the Chautauquans and among the people of Pwllheli. The gathering was organised by Mr. Percy C. Webb, managing director of the Association for the Promotion of Home and Foreign Travel, 41, Grace-church-street, E.C.

THE Y.M.C.A.

The New York Association has obtained the 200,000 dollars requisite to secure a gift offered by Mr. Samuel Inslee, of a building on the West Side.

The Rio Janeiro Association has at present 108 members, an increase of twenty-two over the report of last year; of these forty-five are associates, twelve honorary, and fifty-one active.

A branch of the Edinburgh Fellowship Union (Free St. Stephen's) has recently been holding Sabbath morning meetings, half an hour previous to the ordinary meeting, for the study of the Greek Testament.

Mr. Henderson Smith, who has been visiting in the Edinburgh district, reports good meetings in a number of places. He refers to a work of grace at Markinch, about a dozen recently-converted young men having been present at his meeting. Conferences at Bathgate and Broxburn have proved practical and useful.

While the number of Scotch Associations has during the past year decreased from 240 to 221, the membership has increased from 25,401 to 25,540. In some of the smaller towns, owing to the institution of denominational guilds and other causes, it is being found increasingly difficult to keep up the work. It is, therefore, gratifying that there should be over all an increase of 139 members.

To those already named of the Y.M.C.A. presidents who have obtained seats in the House of Commons should be added the name of Mr. Arthur Pease, president of the Darlington Y.M.C.A., who represents that town in Parliament, and among other new members is Mr. W. D. Cruddas, of Newcastle, a vice-president of the Newcastle Y.M.C.A. and the North-Eastern District Union.

A meeting has been held to consider the advisability of forming a branch of the Association in Burnley. The secretary of the Bury branch, Mr. G. Durrans, explained the basis and objects of the Association, after which a lively discussion took place. A resolution to form an Association was then submitted, and was carried unanimously, after which a strong representative committee was formed.

A Book Society in connection with the Bible Class of the Dundee Association has proved very successful, over two hundred having joined it. The young men pay in one penny per week, and at the end of a quarter or half-year they get a book generally at half price. The same Association carries on a good many open-air meetings all the year round. It has four open-air meetings on the streets every week. "Large crowds gather to hear the singing, and stay to the short pointed addresses. Many cases of conversion have been reported through these services."

The fourth of a series of holiday excursions, organised by the Hackney Y.M.C.A. this summer, has just come to an end. Two parties spent a fortnight each in North Wales, another went into camp on Leigh Hill, Essex, whilst a fourth greatly enjoyed a fortnight's cruise in wherries on the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads. Mission services were conducted by the members of each party on Sundays, and also on week evenings when possible. Meetings were held at Leigh, Bettws-y-Coed, Llanberis, Blacenau Festiniog, Stalham, Reedham, Hasbro', and Palling.

The Nottingham Y.M.C.A., which was established twenty-five years ago, has now a membership of 230. The premises in Shakespeare-street, where the work has been carried on for the past five years, are held on a lease which shortly expires. They are ill adapted to the requirements of the Association, and the members and friends are desirous of securing larger and more suitable premises, in a central position, under conditions which will give them fixity of tenure and (if possible) freedom from rent. In order to provide suitable accommodation, it is proposed to procure on lease (with the option of purchase) a piece of land at the corner of King-street and Parliament-street, and to erect thereon six shops or offices, with ample and suitable premises above for the use of the Association. To carry out this scheme, it is proposed to form a limited liability company, with a capital of £6000, in shares of £1 each. The secretary of the Association is Mr. R. C. Thurley, 40, Shakespeare-street, Nottingham.

Tuesday was a red-letter day in the history of the city of Belfast Y.M.C.A. For a considerable length of time, high anticipations have been formed of the extent and character of the new buildings which are to be erected for the accommodation of the Association, and it is now universally admitted that when erected they will be among the best equipped in the United Kingdom. The total cost will be about £15,000. No organisation that has taken root in Belfast has progressed with such strides as the Y.M.C.A. From its inception it met with support from Christians of all Protestant denominations and never was its Evangelical character more marked than on Tuesday, when Churchman and Presbyterian, Quaker and Methodist joined together in the happy consummation of laying the foundation stones. Sir George Williams and Lord Kinnaird laid the first two; others were laid by Mr. Forster Green and the Rev. J. A. Stewart (contributors each of £1000), Mr. Thos. Greer, D.L., and Mr. Robert Anderson (contributor of £500).

OBITUARY.

MR. E. E. WATERFIELD.

On August 28, Ernest E. Waterfield, in the prime of life, passed away peacefully to be "with Christ." He was for some years the faithful and valued secretary of Mrs. Meredith's institutions, and his loss will be much felt and is deeply regretted.

MR. JAMES NEIL PYE.

This earnest worker in connection with the All-night Gospel Mission in the streets of London passed away, aged 71, on Monday morning (August 26). He was one who peculiarly knew how to tell the Gospel to those that came in contact with him with effect. He laboured until the end. Only the Tuesday night before he passed away he gave an address in the Battersea Park Road. The next night he was at an open-air Gospel service. He was always abounding in the work of the Lord, although he had been suffering painfully for many years.

PERSONALIA.

The Weaver Brothers have now moved to Alfieri House, Northwood, Hanley, Staffs, to which address all communications should be directed.

Mr. Clement F. Palser, after preaching for eight months in Canada and the United States, is returning to England. He will be glad to hear of openings for future work.

Mr. Wilson McCree, of the Midnight Meeting movement, has been elected secretary of the "Secretaries' Prayer Union," which holds monthly devotional meetings in Exeter Hall.

Mr. J. J. Meek, writing from Othello, Rorke's Drift, Natal, on July 6, says:—"My wife is much better, and is able to enjoy life again. On June 30 the church was crammed, over five hundred Zulus being present. From 240 to 250 sat down to the Lord's Supper. I have had some of the Royal family here, and expect they will call again on their return, as one of the princesses before leaving said, 'I must reach my heart's desire.' I am in great hopes that the Lord will bring her to Himself."

MISSION TO LEPERS.

An important development of the work among lepers is the recent opening of a ward for European sufferers attached to the Asylum at Sabathu. The first inmate was the poor lad Willie Russell, who will before now have been joined by others. A small cottage has been secured for the same purpose at Almora. The need for some provision for Europeans has been long felt by the committee, and they are grateful that at last a start has been made. The Government of India is considering the establishment of asylums in each division for vagrant lepers, and are also willing to make grants in aid for every such leper sent to an asylum managed by private agency. This opens a wide door for increase of the work of the Mission to Lepers, and one of which they hope to take advantage. This decision seems to be the outcome of the National Leprosy Commission.

This year has seen the first two Protestant leper asylums opened in Japan. In Tokio the friends are obliged to refuse inmates owing to the impossibility of raising any funds locally—everything being swallowed up by the war. They are entirely dependent on remittances from the home committee. In a letter written this month, Mr. C. D. Terrell, of Sehore, says: "Three more lepers broke caste and made public confession of Christ last week—one a fine respectable-looking Brahmin, who is very little disfigured by the disease. After they had answered the questions, we snipped off the sacred tufts of hair from the men, and wound up with prayer and the hymn, 'Victory to the Lord Jesus.'"

I shall be glad to arrange for a lantern lecture on "Life and Work among the Lepers," if communications are addressed to me at 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

John Jackson,
Hon. Sec. London and District.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.—Mrs. G. Spooner writes from Rosario, that she is carrying on a Christian literature depôt in that needy city. She says: "I have the privilege of exposing the Holy Scriptures for sale, which is, so far as I know, the first time such a thing has been done in this place. This is truly a work for God, which I do in faith, believing that He will bless it, and help me to continue it." The address of the depôt is Catamarca y Entre Rios, Rosario, Argentine Republic.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Mr. H. Gordner has held revival services at Arlington, Iowa, which have resulted in great awakening.

Mr. William Forbes has, since closing his meetings at Hastings, been giving addresses in different parts of the metropolis.

Mr. F. T. Pierson, assisted by Mr. F. T. Johnson recently closed one of the most successful series of union evangelistic meetings ever held in Alpena Mich. Each church received blessings, not only by securing new members but by a general awakening

Pastor G. W. Greenwood, of Brooklyn, U.S.A. has been holding Bible readings and Gospel services daily in the Gospel Hall, Coomassie-street, Pendleton, for the last fortnight. Saints and sinners have been blessed, and have confessed it, and there are more to follow.

Ireland.—Successful Gospel meetings have been held in the Methodist Church, Strabane, by Mr. Jas. Dixon, of the Belfast Central Mission, and similar services have been held in the Methodist churches Magherafelt and Knockloughrim, co. Derry, by Miss Wakefield, of Portadown.

Leytonstone.—We are having grand meetings here in Mr. John Wooldridge's Gospel Tent. Many gather to hear the Word, and great good is being done. Streams of persons, passing to and from the Forest close by, are attracted to the tent, and thus very many hear the Word. Mr. Wooldridge has been here twelve weeks, and will, it is hoped, remain for some weeks longer. G.

Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh, of the Evangelisation Society, has for the past two Sundays conducted the services at Little Wild-street Chapel, and on the week nights has been preaching in a large tent at Stokenchurch, Oxfordshire. Last Thursday a number who had received blessing sixteen years ago made up a party and drove over from Turville Heath to bear testimony to the grace of God.

Messrs. H. W. Rankin and C. S. Colburn, of the Moody Institute, Chicago, have been conducting evangelistic meetings in the mountain towns of Colorado and Wyoming during the summer months. Crowds are attending these meetings; in many instances people come from ten to twenty-five miles, and the attractive manner in which the Gospel is presented in speech and song, draw and hold the people night after night.

Callander, Scotland.—A season of rich ingathering of souls has been experienced at the Mission Hall in Callander, where work was founded fifteen years ago, and continues to be carried on by Mrs. Colonel Robertson. Mr. Philip R. Hurditch has been conducting services during August, and much saving grace and power have followed the faithful and fervent testimony delivered. Some remarkable instances of conversion have been witnessed among the visitors and residents. R.

Mr. W. R. Lane has been, while at Ilfracombe, co-operating in the children's services on the sea shore, and taking afternoon Bible readings and evening evangelistic meetings in the Oxford Hall. On September 21 he begins a fortnight's special mission to men at Exeter Hall. Much effort is being put forth for this effort, and it is hoped young men will be brought from all parts of the metropolis. We ask earnest prayer on behalf of this important mission to men.

Mr. W. P. Fife has held successful meetings at Somerville, Tenn. There were many conversions and hundreds of reconsecrations. A local paper says:—"The court-house has been filled to its utmost capacity nearly every night, and nearly filled at every day service. For once in the history of Somerville, religion seems to be the one and only topic of conversation. 'Free coinage' or 'sound money' is no longer the topic of talk on the street and the tariff—well the people have forgotten about it, and even the sisters have almost forgotten about the fashions."

Mr. F. C. Spurr will hold Missions as follows:—Sept. 1-9 Redhill; Sept. 15-22, Walsall; Sept. 28-Oct. 6, Huntingdon Oct. 13-27, Richmond Chapel, Liverpool; Nov. 3-11, Luton Nov. 17-26, Portsmouth.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER:—For special work in Blackpool, and that additional workers may be raised.—That God may revive his cause in a very poor district in England, and send forth a soul winner to succeed the retiring minister.—For special services in connection with the Ipswich Young People's Service Mission, September 8 to 15.—For much blessing on a visit to the Channel Islands during September, by B. H. Angel.—On behalf of a fourteen days' mission to be conducted by Dr. Harry Guinness and a band of students from Harley College, at the Hackney Y.M.C.A., September 15 to 29.

THE LONDON CITY MISSION

Employs 480 MISSIONARIES who visit systematically all the year round in the Family, Factory and Workshop, Public House, Hospital, Workhouse, Open Air, among the Homeless Poor, Foreigners of all Nationalities, &c., &c. More than 500,000 MEN regularly visited by the Missionaries.

FUNDS to carry on this most necessary work are urgently needed, and will be gratefully received by the Treasurer—F. A. BEVAN, Esq.; or by the Secretaries, Rev. T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A., and Rev. ROBERT DAWSON, B.A.

Offices—3, Bridewell-place, E.C.

Bankers—Messrs. Barclay, Bevan & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

CENTENARY

OF THE

LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

(ESTABLISHED SEPTEMBER, 1795.)

FOUNDERS WEEK CONVENTION,

SEPTEMBER 21st to 27th, 1895,

IN THE

CITY TEMPLE,

HOLBORN VIADUCT, E.C.

DAILY MORNING PRAYER MEETINGS.

Delegates' Meetings Morning & Afternoon.

(GALLERIES OPEN TO GENERAL PUBLIC).

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MEETING

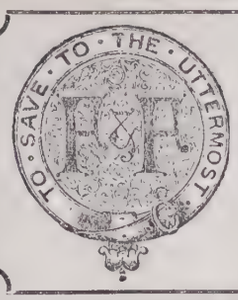
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st.

Evening Public Meetings Monday to Thursday.

Sermon by Dr. Stalker and Communion Service FRIDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 27th.

Detailed programmes on application to the Mission House, 14, Blomfield-street, London, E.C.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY



FRESH AIR FOR SLUM CHILDREN.

HELP is urgently solicited to enable us to send into the country for a week's stay, a large number of children gathered from the SLUMS and LODGING-HOUSE districts who would not otherwise get a change of this kind.

Contributions will be gratefully received by the Secretary, JAMES ATKINSON, Memorial Hall, London-street, Bethnal Green, E.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

FUNDS NEEDED to extend the work. Irish-speaking Scripture Readers are sent where required, and the work is carried on in a spirit of love and not of controversy. Reports to be had from the Secretary, Capt. J. KEARNEY WHITE. Offices: 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and No. 9, Paternoster-row, London, where Donations may be sent; or to the Office of THE CHRISTIAN. John xiii. 35.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.

Seven Homes and an Open-all-Night Refuge, for 240 Inmates, are dependent for support upon voluntary Contributions.

Nearly £500 is required for the Autumn work, when so many supporters are away, and daily expenses exceed daily income.

Contributions may be sent to Messrs. MORGAN AND SCOTT, or—

WILLIAM J. TAYLOR, Office—200, EUSTON ROAD, LONDON, N.W.

TWO DAYS' CONVENTION

IN EAST LONDON.

MEETINGS

FOR

Humiliation and Waiting upon God

Will (D.V.) be held at

THE GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL,

MILE END ROAD, E.,

On Tuesday, October 8, at 7.30 p.m.
„ Wednesday, „ 9
„ Thursday, „ 10 } at 11 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m.

To be addressed by

REV. ANDREW MURRAY

(Of Wellington, South Africa),

AND OTHERS.

Any communications may be addressed to ALBERT A. HEAD, Corrie Lodge, Wimbledon, S.W.

THE LONDON ASSOCIATION

IN AID of MORAVIAN MISSIONS

EARNESTLY APPEALS FOR FUNDS.

The two New Missions (E.C. Africa and N. Queensland)—the fresh openings in Central America, Surinam, Alaska, and South Africa—are only SOME of many PRESSING NEEDS.

For the New Work among Lepers in Dutch Guiana (involving Church, House, Missionary, and Staff of Nurses), and for the New Medical Missionary Training Fund, prompt and generous help is required.

Rev. W. WETTON COX, Clerical Sec.,
Office, 2, Furnival's Inn, London, E.C.

N.B.—ONE IN SIXTY Members of this devoted little Church is a Missionary; and so richly is their work blessed, that the converts number over 92,000, or more than Three Times as many as the Parent Church!

There are no fewer than 400 Missionaries in the field, and the whole expenditure, of which more than half is contributed by the Native Churches, is only £72,000.

SCRIPTURE TEXTS.

For Mission Rooms, Hospitals, &c. A List of these Large Type Texts, printed in blue ink, size 31in. by 20in. (seventy different Texts, 3d. each), will be sent on application to the Publishers.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The "Christian Life" Series.

Five Devotional Works by Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A.

TITLES:—

Christian Living.
The Future Tenses of the Blessed Life.
The Psalms: Notes and Readings.
The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.
The Shepherd Psalm.

The Five Volumes, well bound in Cloth Boards, and enclosed in Neat Case, 5s. net. Or, Volumes bound in Cloth, with gilt lettering and edges, and enclosed in Neat Case, 7s. 6d. net. (If sent by Post 6d. extra.)

These volumes can be had separately in Cloth, 1s.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d. Except "The Psalms," which is, Cloth, 1s. 6d.; Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s.

LONDON: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

DRINK DELICIOUS

MAZAWATTEE TEA

1s. 6d. to 4s. per lb.

IN SEALED PACKETS AND TINS ONLY.

OF LEADING FAMILY GROCERS EVERYWHERE.

DELICIOUS MAZAWATTEE RECALLS THE CHOICE TEAS OF THIRTY YEARS AGO.

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, London, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any Evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Apply, Hon. Sec., 64, Kennington-oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for temporary or permanent work in our villages and country towns. Apply to Mr. G. H. Mawer, secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, E.C.

Thorne Evangelistic Missions.—Friends desirous to arrange for mission services, to be conducted by Mr. Thorne, should make early application to the secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, to whom subscriptions for the Mission may be forwarded.

The King's Own Mission, St. James's Hall, Royal-road, Kennington, S.E.—Sun., Mr. O. L. Heatley, 7 p.m.; 3.15 p.m., P.S.A., Mr. O. L. Heatley.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions. —Address, Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

Regent's Park Chapel.—A week's Conference for Christian workers is to be held in the Schoolroom, Regent's Park Chapel, September 16 to 21, at 8 p.m. each evening. The speakers will be Revs. J. Gregory Mantle, W. Williams, E. G. Gange, and Thos. Waugh, and Mr. T. Hutton, and it is hoped, Lord Radstock.

London Missionary Society.—Founders' Week missionary Convention in the Mission House, E.C., September 21 to 27. Full programme from the Secretaries and L.M.S. Mission House, 14, Blomfield-street, London, E.C.

Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff Highway, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Friday, Sept. 6, at 7. Addresses by Dr. Thos. Neatby, Pastor Jas. L. Stanley, and Mrs. Agnew.

Homes for Little Boys, Farningham and Swanley.—Queen's Hall, Langham-place, W., Saturday afternoon, October 26, Earl Compton presiding.

Children's Special Service Mission.—Two meetings to receive reports of the Seaside Services, Monday, September 30: afternoon, in Queen's Hall, Langham-place, Rev. E. A. Stuart, will preside at 3 o'clock; evening in St. Martin's Town-hall, Charing Cross, Rev. G. H. C. Macgregor will take the chair at half-past six o'clock.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn Gate, N.W., Sunday, at 7 p.m., Messrs. P. R. Hurditch and F. Hutchins; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill, N.W. Mr. P. Garrioch; the Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W., Sunday, at 3.30 and 7, Mr. H. E. L. Purcell.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Sunday, 11 and 7, Mr. Benjamin Glasgow.

Conference Hall, Mildmay-park.—Preacher for Sept. 8, 3.30 and 7, Mr. H. Forbes Witherby.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, E.—Open every night at 8; Sunday at 11 and 6.30, Mr. George Nokes.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sunday next, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. Henry Collins; 3 p.m., P.S.A.

Clapton Hall, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sundays 6.30, Thursdays 7.30.

Special Religious Services in Theatres, Halls, etc.—Sunday, September 8.—Agricultural Hall, Islington, 3.30, Rev. S. Gregory; 7 Mr. Job Williams. Evangelical Hall, Homerton, 3, Rev. Wm. Moxham; 7, Mr. Lane. Hall of Varieties, Clapham Junction, 3, Mr. J Jones; 7, Mr. Cromwell. Morley Hall, Hackney, at 7, Mr. William Coates.

Polytechnic, 309, Regent-street.—Mr. Charles Inglis, each Sunday in Sept., at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

Talbot Tabernacle, Notting Hill, W.—Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Rev. G. Wearham.

Coming Conferences.

Perth.—Sept. 10—12, Rev. Dr, Bannerman, Perth, Hon. Sec.
Dundee.—September 17, 18, and 19.
Salisbury.—September 23—28.
Evangelical Alliance.—Annual British Conference, Belfast, Sept. 24-25.
St. George's Cross Tabernacle, Glasgow, Sept. 28-29.
Dublin.—Sept. 30 to Oct. 3.
West Norwood (Lansdowne Hall).—Oct. 15, 16, and 17 (Second Advent).
Deepening of Spiritual Life.—Preston, Sept. 9-12; Rothesay, Sept. 19-23; Glasgow, Sept. 24-26; Hastings, Sept. 30 to Oct. 4; Aldershot, Oct. 1—3; Blackheath, Oct. 1-4; Star Hall, Manchester, Oct. 6-13; Wakefield, Oct. 8-10; Ealing, Oct. 15-18; Oxford, Oct. 28-31; Norwich, Oct. 28 to Nov. 1; Belfast, Nov. 4-8; Bradford, Nov. 5-8; Edinburgh, Nov. 11-16.

CARDIFF FORWARD MOVEMENT.—For over two years a special evangelistic work, or "Forward Movement," has been going on at Grangetown, a growing suburb of Cardiff, densely populated by the working classes. Open-air and tent work being much blessed, a large hall, to seat 1000, is being erected in the heart of a labyrinth of streets. A report has just been issued by the superintendent, Rev. John Pugh, Penarth-road, Cardiff, who makes a strong appeal for help.

GOSPEL BOOKLETS.—M. (22, Highland-road, Upper Norwood, S.E.) writes on the difficulty she has experienced in finding good Gospel booklets, attractive alike in appearance and contents, really suitable to give to educated girls. She writes:—"There are so many charmingly got-up books for Christians. Many tracts speak of conversion with death in prospect, and do not commend themselves to those who are in the midst of health and pleasure." Perhaps some of our correspondents can tell the writer of any booklets such as she is seeking.

[880]

CONSUMPTION, AND
ALL CHEST DISEASES.
INTERVIEWS WITH OLD PATIENTS, AND NEW CASES.

By MR. CONGREVE'S COMMISSIONER.

NINETY-SEVENTH INTERVIEW,
With Mrs. WARRINGTON, 7, Victoria-road, Leamington Spa, relative to the case of her husband.
"CONGESTION OF THE LUNGS—FOLLOWED BY CHRONIC PHTHISIS."

This case appeared in the weekly journals, Oct. 20, 1892.

Mr. Warrington is another instance of what is being done for sufferers whom ordinary medical skill has failed to relieve. Ill for four years—out of that time unable to work for nearly twelve months—making no progress towards recovery under the advice of local physicians—cured in a few months by Mr. Congreve's treatment—such in a few lines is the history of this patient.

As Mr. Warrington was absent at business when I called at his house recently, his wife was good enough to give me the particulars I needed.

"My husband was first taken ill about the year 1887" (she said). "The illness commenced with blood-poisoning caused through inhaling sewer gas. Up to that time he had been a man of very strong constitution. A few months after a bad cough developed; congestion of the right lung followed, with much expectoration mixed with blood, a great deal of pain, great loss of flesh, and consequent diminution of strength. The breathing, too, was very bad."

"Of course he had medical advice?" I asked.

"Yes, from three doctors. He also attended a local hospital. One of the doctors told him that the right lung was diseased. He had to give up work for nearly a year. Then we saw a reference to Mr. Congreve's treatment in one of the religious journals, wrote for one of the books, and then for medicine and advice. For about seven months Mr. Warrington continued to take the medicine. He gradually got better, and in November, the worst time of the year, he commenced to work again."

"And what do you say of the intervening time, Mrs. Warrington?"

"He has remained at work ever since; he keeps well, though his occupation necessitates a good deal of exposure to the weather."

Besides giving permission to publish this, Mrs. Warrington informed me of another case near where similar benefit had resulted from Mr. Congreve's treatment. The patient, I ascertained, is a prominent tradesman in the town, and his recovery from chest disease dates back nearly twenty years.

MR. G. T. CONGREVE'S work on CONSUMPTION, &c., in which are detailed THE CAUSES, SYMPTOMS, PROGRESS, AND SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT OF THIS SCOURGE OF ENGLAND.—WITH NEARLY FOUR HUNDRED CASES OF CURE. ALSO ON COUGH, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c., &c. The Book will be sent, post free, for ONE SHILLING by the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.

TOWER TEA
"A DAILY TREAT"
SOLD IN PACKETS ONLY 2/4, 2/-, 1/7, 1/4, 1/- PER POUND.
REGISTERED TRADE MARK. THE GREAT TOWER STREET TEA COMPY LIMITED. STRENGTH. LONDON.
NONE GENUINE WITHOUT THE REG^D TRADE MARK AND SIGNATURE.
AGENTS Tower Tea EVERYWHERE.
THE GREAT TOWER ST^T TEA C^O LTD
5, JEWRY STREET, LONDON, E.C.
Will send sample of tea and name of nearest agent on application.

ABSTAINERS, before Insuring, send for Prospectus of Scottish Temperance Life and Accident Insurance Company (Ltd.), 81, Renfield-street, Glasgow London Office, 96, Queen-street, Cheapside.

CURE HEADACHE. BISHOPS CRYSTALS OF CAFFEINE
Removes fatigue. Highly commended by the Lancet and British Medical Journal. Highest award Paris, 1889. Of all chemists at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 6d.

HELPFUL BOOKS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.
NETTIE'S MISSION LIBRARY.
A Series of Six small Books Illustrating the Lord's Prayer.

NETTIE'S MISSION; or, "Hallowed be Thy Name."
LITTLE MARGERY; or, "Thy Kingdom Come."
MARGERY'S HOME; or, "Thy Will be Done."
MAGGIE RILEY; or, "Give us this Day our Daily Bread."
ROSY CONROY; or, "Forgive us our Debts."
NED DOLAN; or, "Lead us not into Temptation."

Each Volume may be had separately in Cloth Boards, 6d.; or the Six Books may be had enclosed in a Neat Box, price 3s. complete.

London: Morgan and Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Morgan and Scott's
PENNY SERIES.
16 Pages, Large Octavo (10 inches by 7 ins.), With Illustrated Coloured Wrapper.

JOHN B. GOUGH, THE GREAT TEMPERANCE ORATOR. (Illustrated.)
Tell Jesus: Recollections of Emily Gosse.
ROBERT ANNAN. The Christian Hero. By REV. JOHN MACPHERSON.

These Books are well suited for General Distribution or for Lending.

1s. per dozen; 7s. per 100. Either separately or assorted.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT.

The Total Circulation of the above Books amounts to over a QUARTER OF A MILLION copies.

Other Penny Books (Smaller Size).

ORATIONS. By JOHN B. GOUGH (11 varieties).
LIFE SCENES AND LIFE STORIES. By Mrs. G. S. REANEY (3 varieties).
TRACTS. By D. L. MOODY (18 varieties).

Over 50 Varieties of PENNY BOOKS by various authors, suitable for enclosing in Letters or for Distribution.

A List sent post free on application.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

LAZENBY'S
PREPARED FROM THE ORIGINAL RECIPE BEARS THE WELL KNOWN LABEL
Signed Elizabeth Lazenby
HARVEY'S SAUCE

LAZENBY'S PICKLES
LAZENBY'S SOUPS
LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES
LAZENBY'S TABLE JELLIES
LAZENBY'S POTTED MEATS
LAZENBY'S BAKING POWDER

No. 1337.] # The Christian. [SEPTEMBER 12, 1895.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

PORTRAIT AND SKETCH OF THE LATE DR. J. L. PHILLIPS.

Notes and Comments 5
Forward to the Soudan! 6
"The Floods Lift up Their Waves" (Poem) ... 6
The Gospel for Mexico 6
Soldiers' Home, Winchester 6
Letters From the Other Side—2 7
"He Shall Reign" (Hymn with Music) 8
Letter from Rev. Dr. Paton 8
A Fit of Mistrust. By Rev. F. B. Meyer 9
Our Daily Homily 10
International Sunday-school Lesson 11
For the Young.—Gather out the Stones 11
Griffith's Wish... 11
Schwifat Mission Schools 11
Extracts from New Books.—Religion in the Home... 12
Chief Khama (with portrait)... 12
Strangers' Rest, Ratcliff Highway 14
Bible Training College, Glasgow 14
Answered Prayer. By Dr. Barnardo 15
Among the Red Indians.—A Vindication of the Sabbath... 16
South Africa General Mission 16
The Evangelist: A Harvest Thanksgiving... ... 17
The National Vigilance Association 17
The Christian Associations 18
Irish and Scottish Notes... 18
Evangelistic Notes 19
Among the Churches 19
Obituary 20

INSTITUTIONS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS AND MISSION,
HIGH STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

Received, with many thanks, a suit of boy's clothing from "G. W.," so acceptable.
Rations of food to hungry children. Infant Day-Nursery. Day and Sunday Schools. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Evening Classes for Boys and Girls. Classes, Meetings, and Institute for Young Women and Elder Girls. Various Meetings, Classes and Parlour for Young Men and Lads. Bible Classes. Evangelistic Services. Lodging House Meetings. Temperance Work and Meetings. Mothers' Meetings. Clubs for Clothing, Coals, Bibles, &c. Prayer Meetings. Country Homes for Men, Women, and Children. Training Home for Motherless Girls, &c.
Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.
Post-office Orders should be made payable at 72, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.
"A Record of Work" for the Year 1894 will be sent free of cost to any friend requiring them. c7172

THE SOUTHWARK BOYS' HOME,
Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT,

To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond ABSOLUTE NEED.
Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at the Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays, from 10 till 2.
All communications should be addressed—
J. W. O. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home.
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED FOR MRS. GINEVER'S HOMES, London and Broadstairs. Founded 1874. 172 orphan children, of whom thirty are afflicted, and, therefore, not eligible for other homes. The trustees earnestly appeal to the immediate liberality of the Christian public for the maintenance of this good unsectarian work, which has never been allowed to fall in debt before. — Contributions gratefully received by R. T. SMITH, Sec., 18, Pemberton-road, Upper Holloway, London, N.; or by T.C. USHER, Treasurer, Woodstock, Hendon.

THE STAINER HOMES FOR DEAF AND DUMB CHILDREN.—The secretary, Miss Helen Ball, is desirous of establishing a Sea-side Branch of the above Homes at Brighton or Southsea, which is much needed for delicate children. To carry out this project, a sum of about five hundred pounds will be required. Steps will be taken as soon as half that amount is promised. Benevolent persons interested in this afflicted class are earnestly solicited to send their names and addresses to Miss Ball, Treasurers' Office, Stainer House, Paddington Green, W.
The Home will be established on the latest improved principles, and managed by a local committee under the direction of the Rev. Dr. William Stainer, who has had over fifty years' experience in dealing with deaf mutes, and is anxious to do all he can to benefit this much neglected class, and believes that this scheme will be the best means of accomplishing that object. Further particulars may be obtained on application at the office. c5467

THE ITALIAN CHRISTIAN HOME, 14, Heathcote-street, W.C., under the direction of Rev. Dr. Stauder, aims at benefiting the large colony of Italians in England, and providing grace and education for their children. It is the guide of many poor people who find themselves strangers in a strange land. The work is very limited on account of the scarcity of means; but it is capable of great expansion, and indeed very much needed, as there are several groups of Italians scattered through the metropolis, numbering many thousand souls. Those of our readers who have enjoyed the balmy atmosphere of Italy with her natural beauties, and have gained from her æsthetics a higher sense of art and music, and have sorrowed on the condition of her religious education, may wish to contribute toward the support of this home-mission, and thus encourage the Christian efforts of those who endeavour, through patience and perseverance, to direct these poor refugees from Italy to seek in the Gospel of Jesus a higher spiritual life, and more hopeful comforts. Contributions will be thankfully acknowledged. c7241

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, Belgravia, S.W., trains ladies for MEDICAL MISSION WORK in Eastern lands. Vacancies for pupils. Next term October. Partially free studentships granted. Funds needed. c5361

CAMBRIDGE TEACHER'S BIBLES.
Prices from 2s. 6d.

Guardian:—"Of the general excellence of the work it is impossible to speak too highly. We have seldom seen so much good material compressed into so small a space, and the volume is worthy of the distinguished band of Cambridge scholars who have produced it."

Of all Booksellers. Lists on application.

London: C. J. CLAY & SONS, Cambridge University Press Warehouse, Ave Maria Lane.

HOW READEST THOU?

(2nd Edition) Enlarged.
By JAMES VAN SOMMER.
In this book, Divine doctrines and ordinances are studied direct from the Holy Scriptures.
PRICE 3s., SENT POST FREE.
THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTFUL: TRUTHS FOR THE TRUTHFUL.
THOUGHTS FOR THE THOUGHTLESS: TRUTHS FOR THE ERRING.

Subjects:—The Apostolic Speeches viewed as model Evangelistic Addresses.—"The Kingdom of God" to be proclaimed.—The truths concerning the Lord Jesus Christ to be taught.—A Lasting Revival.—The True Church.—Baptism.—The Lord's Supper.—Spiritual Gifts.—The first convention.—"Perfected."—Revealed Mysteries.—The Coming of Christ, and the Coming of Antichrist.—Our Account.—Salvation applied by degrees.—"Ever."—"And if any."—Redemption, two-fold.—Sanctification, two-fold.—Imputed Righteousness.—Sunday, its chief ideas: rest, blessing, and holiness; and the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. With miscellaneous exhortative papers.

To be ordered (by letter only, with Postal Order), of JAMES VAN SOMMER, Esq., Cuffnells, Wimbledon Common.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.
FROM 3s. 6d.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS (LIMITED), 15, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

BELFAST CONFERENCE OF THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.—The meetings in connection with the Forty-ninth Annual Conference of the Evangelical Alliance commence on September 24th and continue till the evening of the 26th. Among the speakers and others who are to take part are the following: Viscount Bangor, the Lord Mayor of Belfast, Thomas Sinclair, Esq., D.L., the Very Rev. the Dean of Connor, the Rev. Madhava Rao Nikambe of Bombay, Rev. Dr. John Ross of Manchuria, the Revs. Principal Douglas, Dr. Marshall Lang, W. Crosbie, Peter Thompson, G. H. C. Macgregor, E. A. Stuart, Canon Bell, G. D. Hooper, William Park and Dr. Nicholas; Messrs. G. W. Jackson, W. E. Malcolm, R. L. Hamilton, and M. H. Hodder. The programme and full particulars will be sent on application to the SECRETARY of the Alliance, 7, Adam-street, Strand, London. c7180

EDINBURGH CONVENTION FOR THE
Deepening of the Spiritual Life.

The Committee have made arrangements for a CONVENTION to be held as formerly
In the Free Assembly Hall, Edinburgh,
From November 11th-16th inclusive, 1895.
WELLESLEY C. BAILEY, Convenor of the Committee.

THE PARKHALL CONVENTION for the Deepening of Spiritual Life will be held (D.V.) on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, the 18th, 19th, and 20th September. Conveyances will be provided to meet the trains at Polmont Station, N.B. Ry. c6915

CLAPHAM MATERNITY HOSPITAL (and School of Midwifery), Jeffreys road, S.W. Under fully qualified Medical Women. Ladies trained in Midwifery for L.O.S. Also monthly nurses trained (three months). October vacancies. Good nurses recommended. Small weekly payments from patients. Donations urgently needed. c5488

EDUCATIONAL.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A clergyman's daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood.—Tredegar House, East Dulwich-road, S.E. 5332

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Wilton House, Tylehurst-road, Reading. Head Mistress, Miss Marion White. Assisted by well qualified resident mistresses and visiting professors. Pupils prepared, if desired, for public examination. Wilton House stands on high ground, gravel soil, outside the town. Large garden, cricket field, tennis courts. Tepid swimming bath. Next term begins Thursday, September 19. c5373

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.
1, CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.
Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P.
Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in daily attendance. Resident certificated governesses. Careful personal supervision, home comforts, and Christian training. Preparation for any examination if desired. Good garden and tennis.
Highly recommended by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. D. MacEwan, D.D. and parents of former and present pupils.

SIX GUINEAS.—Two girls can be received into a good home school to fill vacancies. Certificated governesses. English, French, music, singing, drawing, drill.—Miss WEBB, Prospect House School, Rayleigh, Essex. c5247

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

BURLTON HOUSE, READING.—High-class Ladies' School. Principal, Miss RATCLIFFE. Old established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Well-appointed home. Highest references. c5271

ALLAN BANK, OWLS ROAD, BOSCOMBE.
HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS. Thorough education. Success in public examinations. Care of delicate girls. House near sea among pines. Terms moderate. References to Evangelical Clergymen, and to Ministers.—Apply, Miss COCKS, Principal. c5301

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.—Principal, Miss HOLLIS. c2317

UPPER MOUNT, SOUTHSEA.—High-class Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Autumn term, September 17th.—For Prospectus, etc., address, PRINCIPAL. c5337

STAFFORD HOUSE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, 260, Marylebone-road, London. Principal, Miss SHILLAKER. Healthy locality, near parks. Individual teaching. Special advantages for music and art subjects. Civil Service and all public examinations. Terms moderate. Highest references. Vacancy for articled pupil. c4476

VACANCIES OCCUR in high-class school for girls. Pupils received whose parents are abroad. Christian training. Home comforts. Special attention to backward pupils. Terms 30 guineas.—PRINCIPAL, 10, Clapton Common. c6157

ROSEBERRY, Western-parade, Southsea, facing sea and common. Christian home school for gentlemen's daughters. Thorough and successful teaching, careful godly training, refined happy home. Resident English and foreign governesses. Highly recommended. Principals, the Misses ROBINSON. c5405

MALVERN HOUSE, BLOCKLEY,
WORCESTERSHIRE.
Principals, the Misses JUDSON. Home school for girls in a lovely and bracing village on the Cotswold Hills. Resident foreign and English governesses and visiting masters. Earnest Christian training. Terms moderate and inclusive. References kindly permitted to the Rev. John Wilkinson, Mildmay Mission to the Jews, and to parents of pupils. The Autumn term begins (D.V.), September 18, 1895. c3968

FOUR GIRLS can be received in good school near Crystal Palace for 85 guineas inclusive. Thorough education. English subjects, music, languages, etc. Motherly care.—PRINCIPAL, 200, Selhurst-road, South Norwood. c6656

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Lenten House, Alton, Hants. Principal, Miss Chinn, daughter of the late Rev. S. Chinn. Very successful preparations for examinations. References, Dr. Stewart, Alton; Rev. W. Houghton, Guildford; Rev. R. A. Davis, Ventnor. c5426

GIRLS' SCHOOL, SUMMERLAND College, Honiton, Devon.—Preparation for exams. 14 certificates in 1894. Home comforts and unlimited diet. Governess-pupils received. Next term begins September 17.—Principal, Mrs. ROGERS. c6889

OXFORD COLLEGE (YOUNG LADIES), Clacton-on-Sea, Essex, England, Principals, Misses Beard. Thirty-roomed house, facing sea. South aspect. Happy home. Finishing education. Professors. Excellent musical training. Governess-student required with premium for examinations preferred. Kindergarten. c7009

DUDLEY HOUSE, DORKING.—Home school for the daughters of gentlemen. Principal, Miss WATERS. High-class education, based upon Christian principles. Pupils prepared for all public examinations. Fees very moderate. Autumn term will (D.V.) commence September 17, 1895. c7120

REV. D. B. HANKIN, Mildmay, kindly recommends good home school, two hours from London. Spacious detached house. Thorough education. Fees from £25.—Miss LARTER, Nene House School, Thrapstone, Northamptonshire. c5433

THE MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fulneck, near Leeds.—A thorough, advanced, and Christian education. Boys' School, Rev. W. T. TITTERINGTON. Ladies' School, Rev. M. B. O'CONNOR. c5341

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Rugby House, Leamington.—Principal, Miss ARNOLD. Highest educational advantages. Preparation for exams. Vacancy for governess-student. Premium. c7030

ABBOTSFORD Ladies' School, Hampton-road, Bristol. High-class modern education. Home comforts. Christian training. Advantages offered young lady for one hour's daily assistance. Premium 15 guineas. Vacancies for boarders. Highest references. c7234

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—The Misses BALCH and EDMEADES, Clevedon Lodge, Reading. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge Locals (higher, senior, junior), and Trinity College Exams. Vacancy for student teacher (premium). c5488

EASTBOURNE.—A CLERGYMAN'S daughter has vacancies for two children in her happy home school. 20 guineas yearly. Large house on sea-front.—Muncaster House, Royal-parade. c7232

ABERGELDIE, ALMA-ROAD, CLIFTON.—Vacancy for two pupils in high-class ladies' school. Thorough English, music, French, drawing C, singing (inclusive). Fees 40 to 50 guineas per annum. Preparation for exams. Highest references. Articled pupil required. c7305

TO PARENTS.—Girls of any age instructed in practical housewifery, superior economical cookery, intelligent-catering, marketing, and book-keeping.—For full prospectus, apply, PRINCIPAL, 64, East Dulwich-road, S.E. c7316

EDUCATION NEAR LONDON.—Good professors. Christian training. Highly recommended by Miss Leicester, Head Mistress Wyggiston Girls' High School, Leicester, and parents of pupils. Governess-student wanted. Fee, 8 guineas per term.—c7315, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7315

A GERMAN LADY (governess) wishes to take charge of a young lady, ordered to Mentone, for the winter. Highest references.—E. O. L., Lennox Castle, Campsie Glen, Stirlingshire. c7277

PARIS.—Establishment for young ladies, 16, Rue d'Auteuil (near the Bois de Boulogne). Principals, Mdlles. Bouré. Thorough French and German, music, drawing, painting, etc. Prospectus on application. c6621

NEUCHATEL, SWITZERLAND.—Young ladies received in superior French Evangelical finishing home school. Eminent professors. Languages, music, art. Delightful climate. English home comforts. Highest references.—Apply to Mlle. Coulery, Neuchatel, Switzerland. c6661

STANLEY HOUSE, CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough education, with decided Christian training. The premises include workshop, chemical laboratory, covered and open playgrounds, tennis courts and cricket field. Delicate boys receive special care. Fees moderate and inclusive.—For prospectus, apply Principal. c2602

Huntingdon House School, TEDDINGTON, Middlesex.

Christian training. First-class masters: Thorough teaching. Moderate fees. Preparation for professional and business life, and for examinations (over 100 certificates gained). Recommended by Rev. Evan Hopkins, Kensington, and many Christian parents. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.
Principal—Mr. Geo. Cumes, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

ALRESFORD HOUSE SCHOOL, MARGATE.—High-class school for the sons of gentlemen. Boys are prepared for the various competitive examinations. Special care of Indian children. Christian home.—Apply, The Principals. c5371

PREPARATORY SCHOOL

To the Public Schools and Royal Navy, for Gentlemen's Sons, aged 8 to 14.

The Old Hall, Wellington, Shropshire.
(Founded 1845.) Very healthily situated, 870 feet above the sea, near the Wrekin. 3¼ hours from London, by L. & N.W. or G.W.R. Beautiful grounds, playing fields, &c. Illustrated Prospectus on application to the Head Master, G. E. W. CRANAGE, M.A. (Shrewsbury School and Trinity College, Oxford); or Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5388

NEW COLLEGE, CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Head Master: Rev. G. Hugh Jones, F.A.S.
High-class School for sons of Christian gentlemen. Inclusive Fees, £45 per annum; under eleven, £40.

FOLKESTONE.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class school for sons of gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references.—Mr. J. W. C. Fegan, Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-st., S.E. c1574

MR. W. ERNEST MATTHEWS, B.A. (honours), assisted by efficient masters, prepares for the Army, Navy, Universities, Public Schools, etc. Pupils under Christian influence. Excellent situation.—10, Worcester-terrace, Clifton, Gloucestershire. c5388

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory school for the sons of gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily. Prospectus on application to Lady Principals. c5384

ARNOLD HOUSE, HASTINGS, conducted by Rev. John Stewart, where boys from 7 to 13 receive a thorough education and careful personal attention. Established 1857. c5395

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL for boys. Thorough education. Every home comfort, with unlimited diet. Health resort. Medical reference. Careful Christian training. Terms inclusive and very moderate.—Principal, Lucton School, Henfield, Sussex. c5418

MANY CHRISTIAN PARENTS who at the present time are seeking a school at which to place their sons, are invited to write to the under-mentioned, who is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, where the constant aim of the principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class education.
The premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA on the south coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for outdoor recreation.
Prospectus and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several wards in Chancery have been appointed as pupils in the school. Terms moderate.—Dr. Thorn not Thorne), Paddington, London c5109

MORAVIAN SCHOOL, Ockbrook, near Derby. Pupils prepared for the Camb. Local and London Matric. Exams. Third term, September 19.—Apply, Rev. J. M. Mallalieu, c5440

BEXLEYHEATH, KENT.

OLD-ESTABLISHED SCHOOL for sons of gentlemen. Beautiful situation. Seven acres of land. PREPARATION FOR PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.—Illustrated prospectus on application to Head Master, G. E. Oxley, M.A., Oak House School. c5398

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and education with Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, Gordon School, Kingston-on-Thames. Established twelve years. Beautiful district, near Richmond Park. London exams. Liberal diet. References to parents. Inclusive terms, 18 to 25 guineas yearly. Entrance, any time. c5230

MUSIC AND SINGING.—A Christian lady, of long experience in teaching, gives lessons in music and singing to those who wish their gifts cultivated for the Master's use.—For particulars, apply by letter to c7258, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7258

SKETCHING in Colours direct from Nature. Correspondence lessons. Experienced teacher. The Blackstairs Sketching Club. Beginners sketch club, drawing class. Circulating portfolios. Art magazine club.—Miss Hill, Urrins Fort, Enniscorthy, Ireland. c7280

YOUNG LADY DESIRES APPOINTMENT as English governess. School or English Christian family on Continent (Switzerland preferred). Lond. Matric., English, advd. Math., Latin, Greek, French, music. £35.—C. F., Lawn Villa, Bridgwater. c7188

YOUNG LADY, CERTIFICATED, College of Preceptors, seeks engagement as resident governess, in a school by seaside preferred. Subjects: English, French, Latin, book-keeping, needlework, drill, elementary music.—Apply, C., Ashburton, Devon. c7226

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.

Boys received from six to eighteen years of age. Three separate departments classified according to age. Preparation undertaken for public schools or for commerce, the professions, and universities. Delicate boys or those from colonies receive special care. Autumn term commences September 21. Illustrated prospectus, references, etc., on application to the Principal, J. C. Duff. c5399

YOUNG LADY, VERY HIGHLY RECOMMENDED, wishes re-engagement, governess, governess-housekeeper, or companion. Particularly suitable for motherless or delicate children requiring special care. Several years' experience with latter. Excellent testimonials. Christian (Evangelical). English, French, Latin, fluent German (Berlin), music. £50-£70.—M., Mrs. Bilson, 109, Hainault-road, Leytonstone. c7256

BRIGHT YOUNG GOVERNESS, (Dissenter), 2 years' freference. Thorough English, good arithmetic, French, good music, drawing, drill, good needlework, £30.—Jessie, Mrs. Edwin Hooper's Governesses' Home, Compton-terrace, London. Free to employers. c7284

YOUNG LADY (21) desires re-engagement in good school. Drawing. Junior music. Has passed Higher Oxford and Cambridge Public Schools Exam. and London Matriculation, First Division. Some teaching experience. Good references.—c7297, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7297

EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS, engaged mornings, desires afternoon appointment in similar capacity, or as reader, companion, etc. English, French (France), German (Germany), Latin, music, drill. Any locality.—B., 871, New Cross-road, S.E. c7296

GOVERNESS-PUPIL.—An engagement is needed for young lady in good school where she could assist with juniors while completing her education. Premium.—G., 4, Baskerville-road, Wandsworth Common, S.W. c7179

SCHOOLMASTER AND MATRON wanted for orphanage (120 boys and girls, all ages). Undenominational. Two assistants. Send photos. Mention if musical.—Address, stating experience and salaries expected, David Henderson, Elim, Belfast. c7208

EASTBOURNE.—WANTED, A TRUSTWORTHY LADY (not young) in a home school, capable of teaching good English (not arithmetic), and helping in light household duties. Nominal remuneration only could be given.—82, Royal-parade. c7251

A KINDERGARTEN STUDENT required in a high-class Ladies' School at Reading. Refined home, with superior educational advantages. Premium.—c5457, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5457

YOUNG LADY (14) required to assist two hours daily with little ones. Would receive board and tuition in English, French, music, drawing. Christian home. Terms, 16 guineas per annum. Vacancy for one boarder.—Principal, Lynn House, Longley-road, Tooting. c7275

ARTICLED PUPIL (about 17), wanted in good girls' school. Special advantages. Modern languages, music. Preparation for University Local and other examinations.—Address, Principal, o.o. Angener, Old Christchurch-road, Bournemouth. c7283

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES

(English and Foreign), recommended GRATIS by Mrs. Edwin Hooper, Governesses' Institute and Home, Compton-terrace, London, N. (Established 1870). BOARD AND RESIDENCE from 13s. weekly. No fee to Governesses until placed. Schools recommended and transferred. c5241

SITUATIONS, ETC., WANTED.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

WANTED, BY CHRISTIAN MAN (married), re-engagement as Scripture reader, charge of hall, or manage coffee house, etc. Three years reader. Excellent testimonials.—Write, Herridge, 98, Droop-street, Queen's Park, Harrow-road, London. c7289

MANAGER.—COUNTING-HOUSE OR BUSINESS.—Advertiser, accustomed to take entire charge of large business in absence of principals, seeks engagement. Highest references.—c7207, Messrs. Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7207

GENTLEMAN, OF MUCH EXPERIENCE, good organiser and correspondent, open engagement, October. Philanthropic institution or Christian work. Unexceptionable references.—Address, Secretary, care of Advertising Agency, 33, Paternoster-row, E.C. c7240

TRAVELLING COMPANIONSHIP wanted by a young man, aged 28. Christian, educated, can speak French, German, Italian, and Spanish. Would be willing to travel, either as companion or tutor, with respectable young gentlemen or boys. Can be highly recommended. Only small salary expected.—Bedford, 2, Lubeck Villas, Barnet, N. c5474

WANTED, BY CHRISTIAN MAN, abstainer and non-smoker, a situation as salesman or traveller, or could manage a business. Practical. Exceptional references.—Address, L. J., care of Mr. Roberts, 26, Paternoster-row, E.C. c5498

LADIES RECOMMEND earnest Christian man as Butler, Messenger, or Porter. Has been engaged in Christian work. Married. Age 30. Height, 5 ft. 10 in. Abstainer. Highest references.—Alpha, 9, Sotheron-road, King's-road, Fulham. c7261

GARDENER, GOOD SINGLE-HANDED, or where help is given, thorough all-round man. Excellent references. Christian, married, age 37.—Carter, 3, Totnes-terrace, Wembley, N.W. c7259

GARDENER, HEAD-WORKING. Thorough practical experience and good references. Age 37. Married when suited.—A. Hill, Sherborne Park Gardens, Northleach, Gloucestershire. c7110

SITUATION wanted by a Christian young man. Age 18. Height, 5ft. 9in. Has experience in gardening, care of pony and poultry. Willing and obliging. Good reference.—Apply, John Green, Swallowcliffe, Salisbury. c7216

COACHMAN, THOROUGHLY UNDERSTANDS HIS DUTIES, used to pair and single, willing to be useful, quiet place. Married, no children. Age 48. Christian, abstainer. Nineteen years last place.—W. S., 16, Queen's Mews, Queen's-road, Bayswater W. c7308

GENTLEMAN strongly recommends his Coachman. Capable, honest, steady. Rides. Drives, single or pair. Married, four children. Age 40. Leaving through giving up.—"J. U.," Hambledon, Ham Park-road, Forest Gate, Essex. c7262

THE HON. LADY BEAUCHAMP can highly recommend a man and wife, who have been 2½ years in her employ, as manager of a coffee tavern. They have each severally had twelve and twenty years' experience in similar work. The only reason for their leaving is the need of remodelling the whole of the work for the benefit of British sailors at Havre.—Sailors' Rest, Havre. N.B.

LADY SEEKS EMPLOYMENT either in private or mission work. Has learnt dispensing. Accustomed to work among men. Musical, active, good housekeeper. Evangelical churchwoman. Abstainer. Moderate salary required, with board and lodging. Good references.—Delta, Stacey's Library, Guildhall-street, Folkestone. c 7250

BIBLEWOMAN.—A lady wishes to recommend a Bible woman for similar work. Zealous in her work, strong, and capable.—Apply, A. C., Singleton, Torquay. c7191

DEACONESS DESIRES ENGAGEMENT in clergyman's family to teach little child and help with parish work. Has had experience in East London. Moderate salary.—c7248, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7248

WANTED, BY DEACONESS-NURSE, who has had much experience among sick poor, Bible-classes, organising, etc., an engagement in the same. Could take entire working of mission hall at home or abroad. Highest references.—Address, Smith, 31, Loraine-place, Newcastle-on-Tyne. c7255

ENGAGEMENTS WANTED TOGETHER by two ladies (sisters) in Christian work. Could take entire management of small home for children or invalids. Salary required.—c7249, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7249

A LADY OF HIGH TESTIMONIALS seeks a re-engagement as superintendent of a children's home, many years' experience. Could furnish for new home starting.—Letters, Y., 12, Clarendon-terrace, Maida Hill, W. c7286

SITUATION wanted as assistant matron. Thoroughly domesticated. Good needlewoman. Used to institution. Now disengaged.—M., 209, Hoe-street, Walthamstow. c7311

MATRON, RE-ENGAGEMENT. Educated and musical. Can teach dressmaking thoroughly, cutting and fitting. Good references.—M., 19, Ashness-road, New Wandsworth. c7220

WANTED, BY UNDER-MATRON (25), re-engagement in small permanent home, where only one other is kept. Thoroughly domesticated, and understands plain cooking. Eighteen months' experience.—H. S., care of Y.W.C.A., Holloway-road, N. c7159

AN EARNEST CHRISTIAN, experienced in rescue work (S.A. and elsewhere), seeks re-engagement. Competent as secretary or head of home. Returning to London shortly.—c7171, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7171

ENGAGEMENT wanted in girls' home as assistant or sewing matron. Christian and abstainer. Good dressmaker and needlewoman. Domesticated. Good references.—E. R., 278, Kennington-road, London, S.E. c7285

HOUSEKEEPER.—A CLERGYMAN, discontinuing house-keeping, wishes to highly recommend his lady housekeeper (37), especially to widower with children. She is educated, kind, refined, and most excellent manager. Christian home desired. Church or Nonconformist.—Thurton Vicarage, near Norwich. c7120

CLERGYMAN RECOMMENDS experienced lady as companion, housekeeper to lady or gentleman, where servant is kept, or any position of trust.—J., Rev. H Hickin, 61, Tytherton-road, Tufnell Park, N. c7309

YOUNG LADY DESIRES engagement as useful companion or housekeeper (domesticated). Age 24. Highest references.—Address, E. T. S., St. Alban's, Abbots-hill, Ramsgate, Kent. c7211

LADY WANTS ENGAGEMENT as useful companion.—M. R., York House, Clarendon-place, Leamington. c7221

YOUNG LADY, EXPERIENCED in nursing, housekeeping, care of children and their wardrobes, desires post as lady nurse, companion to invalid, child or adult, housekeeper, or matron in a school. Salary £30. Very good recommendations.—E., Ernecliffe, Newquay, Cornwall. c7251

A LADY DESIRES to recommend a farmer's daughter as housekeeper where a servant is kept, or attendant to a delicate lady, where high principles are valued. Christian privileges and a comfortable home before a high salary.—Address, Miss J. Gaudebton, Perry Fields, Inkberrow, Worcester. c7267

A YOUNG LADY (24) seeks situation as companion, lady help, or nursery governess. Comfortable home highly valued. Good needlewoman.—B., 80, Palmerston-road, Southsea. c7205

USEFUL HELP MAID ATTENDANT in Christian family. Good needlewoman. Dressmaker. Middle-aged. Willing to be useful in any way. Light situation desired. Wages £12.—Miss Fidler, Hope Mount, Devizes, Wilts. c7189

SCHOOLROOM MAID.—Lady recommends steady, superior girl of 17 as schoolroom maid. Has been with her as under-nurse for nine months. Good needlewoman. Leaving through changes in household.—Apply to Mrs. Brown Douglas, 41, Worple-road, Wimbledon. c7271

A CHRISTIAN WOULD BE GLAD to hear of daily employment as sewing-maid, good dressmaker, in or near Norwood preferred.—S., 84, Woodland-hill, Upper Norwood, S.E. c7285

USEFUL COMPANION.—Middle-aged lady desires situation as above, or would take charge of backward girl. Domesticated, and very trustworthy. Remuneration necessary.—Address, 641, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, London, E.C. 641

WANTED, BY A DUTCH YOUNG LADY, daughter of a clergyman, a situation in a Christian family, either as mother's help or companion. Highly educated. Good needlewoman. Well conversant with the English language.—Address Miss Jaarsma, care of the Rev. H. J. James, Vlaardingen, Holland. c7302

ADVERTISER, MIDDLE-AGED, seeks situation as attendant to invalid (not nursing), or plain needlework and light housework. Reliable, highly recommended.—B., 25, Halford-road, North End-road, Walham Green. c7237

SITUATION wanted as mother's help by clergyman's daughter. Domesticated and good needlewoman. Church of England. North or Midlands preferred. Kind, Christian home desired.—c7238, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7238

LADY'S HELP.—Strong, healthy young girl, 18, abstainer, lately from school, desires situation as lady's help in minister's family. Is willing, good-tempered, fond of needlework. Would not expect wages first year.—Address, B., Alma House, Albacore-crescent, Lewisham. c7253

MATERNITY NURSES (Diploma L.O.S.).—The honorary secretary can with every confidence recommend two nurses, both Christians and abstainers. Other nurses provided.—Further particulars on application, York House, Leamington Telegrams, "Nursing." c5120

AS LADY NURSE OR NURSERY GOVERNESS required by young gentlewoman in good family. Domesticated and good needlewoman; salary about £18; good references; in or near London preferred.—K. G., 20, Downs-road, Clapton. c7213

AS LADY NURSE OR NURSE-GOVERNESS.—Re-engagement required by young lady. Thoroughly experienced with children. Excellent needlewoman. Good references. Church of England. Salary £28.—Alpha, 15, Park-street, Cirencester. c7239

AS NURSE, to young children, baby from month. Experienced with, and fond of children. Age 25. In or near Ealing preferred.—Address, Alpha, 9, Ridgway-place, Wimbledon. c7222

AS UPPER NURSE for lady's first baby. Experienced, to take baby from the month. Good needlewoman. Wages £28 to £30. Good references.—Nurse, Folley House, Margate. c7278

A SITUATION wanted as good plain cook, where not less than three servants are kept, in a quiet family. Christian and abstainer. Middle-aged.—E. S., 21, Fitzroy-road, Primrose-hill, N.W. c7193

SITUATION WANTED as housemaid, in small quiet family, or wait on elderly lady, and do needlework. Aged 48. Wesleyan.—Address, E., 86, Ruthin-road, Westcombe Hill, Blackheath. c7208

A LADY RECOMMENDS an earnest Christian young woman, in fellowship with Brethren, as housemaid. Thoroughly trustworthy, willing, obliging. Good character from last situation. Age 21.—Miss Swinton, Binfield, Warnash, Fareham. c7174

SISTER RUTH would be glad to hear of a suitable situation as kitchen maid for a young girl (17) who has fallen.—Address, The Refuge, Oxford. c7185

HOUSEMAIDS OR GENERAL SERVANTS. Country or seaside situations wanted for two respectable girls, aged 18.—For characters and particulars, please address, Hon. Secretary, Charity Organisation Society, Brixton Hill, London, S.W. c7295

HOME wanted for girl, nearly 16, where she could be taken charge of, taught and trained for useful employment by wise, sincere Christian.—B. A., Mrs. Corder, Bookseller, Culver-street, Colchester. c7288

SITUATIONS, ETC., VACANT.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

SUPERINTENDENTS (lady and gentleman) wanted at once for mission in Africa. Earnest, consecrated, soul-winners. Experienced, fairly strong, and able to stand a hot climate.—c7309, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7309

WANTED AT SUTTON, SURREY by October 1, single handed gardener, married, to live in small lodge. No children. Abstainer and non-smoker.—Address, c7289, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7289

COACHMAN wanted, to take abroad. One year's engagement, with a view to permanency. Must be thoroughly competent, trustworthy, and obliging. Married man preferred. Wife to undertake laundry work of the family. Ages about 30. Christian couple from country preferred. References required.—Address, c7182, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square. c7182

MAN AND WIFE wanted, as caretakers, in East London. Both must be Evangelical, abstainers, and communicants, and give their whole time. Good health, active, intelligence, and willing disposition indispensable.—Address, with full particulars, to Vicar, care of Messrs. W. Dawson and Sons, 161, Cannon-street, London, E.C. c7272

CHRISTIAN MAN AND WIFE (no children) to manage a small Y.M.C.A. boarding home, and competent to assist in clerical work. Age 35 to 45.—Apply for full particulars, by letter only, stating qualifications, to G., 92, Chelverton-road, Putney, S.W. c7267

AN EARNEST CHRISTIAN LADY wanted to live and work in a small soldiers' institute at Ipswich at her own charges. One who has had some experience of similar work, or work amongst men preferred. Musical. Able to take Bible classes. Visit wives.—Write to Miss Wiseman, Soldiers' Institute, Bernards-street, Ipswich. c7319

EARNEST CHRISTIAN LADY wanted, as secretary in interesting branch of rescue work. Must have had experience with infants.—Apply, W., Vine House, Walthamstow. c7303

WANTED BY A WIDOWER, housekeeper, superior, good plain cook. Nonconformist and total abstainer. Housemaid and governess kept.—Apply, stating wages required, to Rev. A. Graham, Fairfield, Pembury, Tunbridge Wells. c7163

WORKING-HOUSEKEEPER wanted for one gentleman in London. Active, trustworthy, and willing to work. Girl kept. Age, 30-40. Abstainer. Wages, £18. Interview required. No country letters.—c7260 Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7260.

The Christian.

☞ To avoid delay it is requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan and Scott, and not to its individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for The Christian should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 1 of cover.)

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

☞ The Publishers request that all orders for The Christian by post, and remittances for same, be addressed to "The Christian" Postal Department, Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, London, E.C.

Cheques and Post Orders to be made payable to Messrs. John Haddon and Co. at that address.

The subscription for one year, including Postage and Coloured Almanack, is as under :—

For Great Britain and Ireland ..	6s. 7d.	per annum
For India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, France, Germany, and other European Countries	8s. 10d.	„ „
For United States and Canada ..	2¼ dols.	„ „
Or including Monthly Copy of Herald of Mercy	2½ dols.	„ „

Subscriptions for The Herald of Mercy.

4	Copies monthly	2s.	per annum
8	„ „	4s.	„ „
12	„ „	6s.	„ „
24	„ „	12s.	„ „

Post free to any address at home or abroad.

Remittances to be sent as above. Postcard should be enclosed for receipt or extra stamp to cover postage of same.

Notes and Comments.

Rev. C. Silvester Horne asks whether it is too much to hope that Congregational members of Parliament will soon fall into line with the Quakers "in protesting against the unchristian practice of taking the oath"? He thinks, and so do we, that it is much more manly and sensible in every way to make a simple affirmation. A great many conventional and customary things require looking at and overhauling.

Let us bespeak for the chief Khama and his fellow-chieftains from Bechuanaland the hearty sympathy and prayers of all truly Christian people. He has governed his people well and is a true friend of our country; he has come to ask that he may live under the protection of our Crown, and not be handed over to the British South African Company. He has had a natural unwillingness to make concessions to foreigners, Englishmen included, and is anxious that his countrymen should develop themselves and their country in their own way. Some are his enemies because he has resolutely excluded drink from his country, but that should commend him to all his fellow Christians in England. Both the Daily News and the Standard are favourable to his plea, and we trust they represent an influential body of opinion in the country, which will see that this brave and exemplary man has accorded to him the same rights as we give to the rulers of protected states in India. The only persons who could feel aggrieved at our doing so are speculators and land-grabbers.

Captain the Hon. A. C. Littleton has given utterance, as chairman of the Lichfield Board of Guardians, to some facts which deserve the serious attention of all true Christian patriots. He has said that the short term system in the army is by degrees creating an army of paupers who have to be maintained out of the rates. He believes that it has a demoralising effect on the sturdy youth of the country, "which is fast becoming an army of sturdy beggars such as has not existed since the days of Queen Elizabeth." The Board unanimously decided to ask for a Government inquiry to consider the whole question of vagrancy, and particularly as it is affected by the short service system in the army.

But there are moral aspects of the question more grave than appears in this deliverance, for besides vagrancy, there is the peculiar immoral influence which environs every recruit, and to which so many succumb. The deadly teaching that vice is a necessity, and that the soldier must have safety provided for him when he sins, is bearing its deadly fruit in our young manhood. We are neither saying nor implying that every soldier is immoral; we know to the contrary; but we know, also, how fierce and dangerous are the temptations through which soldiers have to pass. So far as these are owing to our system, the system must be altered.

As the result of inquiries made by the Education Department as to religious teaching and observances in Board schools, we learn that only nine School Boards in England have no provision for religious teaching, and in Wales, forty-eight; but in Wales the work seems to be done by the churches themselves. Apart from these, the reading of the Bible is universal, and it is also more often read with comment and explanations than without; the schools are opened with hymns and prayers, and a certain period of time is set apart for systematic religious teaching. Large numbers of the Boards have prepared schemes of instruction, apparently for the purpose of familiarising the children with the Bible. Evidence like this ought to silence the remark too often made, that the education is godless, and that the Bible is an expelled book. If it ever is expelled, it will be by the Romanists insisting on having public money for denominational purposes, and the country saying in self-defence that not a penny shall go for religion in any form.

The Church Times eagerly joins hands with Roman Catholics in the demand for public money for denominational purposes. It quotes with great satisfaction Mr. T. P. O'Connor's words, that "the Irish members are bound to fight for additional grants to the schools of the Catholics in England." It thinks that if only the Irish members act up to their predilections, and support proposals which will beneficially affect Roman Catholic schools in England, the opposition to them will be hopeless. It is in a nervous hurry that within the next three months the "voluntary forces" should be consolidated, and they should agree upon the settlement of "the form of relief to be asked for." Everything, in its judgment, depends upon unanimity between the English and Romish episcopate, "the representatives of the orthodox wing of the Wesleyans," and the Jews, and others who desire denominational teaching, as to "the form the help shall take." It is hard, however, to believe that such heterogeneous elements can be brought into unanimity; we hope not.

It is said of a famous preacher that whenever he was troubled with sceptical doubts and questions, he used to go down into the slums of the city to preach to the poorest and to the worst, with the invariable result that his faith was strengthened. A Bible Zenana worker, whose eldest child, sweet and beloved, had been taken away by death, was greatly tried in her faith, but she stood the strain by trying to explain to her surviving heathen sisters that God is love, and that He can do nothing but what is right. The self-love that works for self ends in destruction, but the Christ-love that goes out after others find salvation. Pessimism grows rankest where men are idlest and most self-indulgent; hope is the most radiant among toilers for God and men. "If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know of the teaching whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself" (John vii. 17, R.V.).

Mr. F. Harrison is struck with the way in which individualism is now under eclipse, and "the gospel of evolution is honeycombed by internal differences." He cannot deny that in the Roman Catholic Church and in the Anglican, as well as in others, there has been a spiritual renascence of theological devotion and spiritual feeling. He seems to think that the change of belief and tendency is due to a "new intellectual current." No doubt the signs of the times must be very disappointing and puzzling to those who have dreamt that the forms of unbelief which have been popular would continue to prevail. This is only a change of fashion. We are not so forgetful as to suppose that although they have been shattered and will probably soon fall to pieces, the permanent heart of unbelief which is in man will cease to throw out other forms for its attempted satisfaction. There are fashions in infidelity, but the root never changes.

Dr. Berle notes in his article on "The Passing of Agnosticism," the curious tendency of our times to move along the lines of non-rational religious activity, and that apparently in utter abandonment of the first precepts of a scientific age. He deems this "a reaction from extreme unbelief, or rather from the extreme scientific temper, to the utter antipodes of mental habit and procedure." It is the acceptance of a new form of supernaturalism; by the side of it "the mildest of Christian creeds is the rankest of rationalism." When, however, Dr. Berle says that the real thing at the bottom of it all is "the ineradicable belief of men in revelation," we think he ought to say the ineradicable sense of need of spiritual food. The same heart of unbelief is in every age, but it is accompanied by a restless discontent which tries everything but God for rest. Agnostic cisterns are "broken," and incapable of holding the living water; and the soul that feeds on philosophic husks must inevitably starve,

The Indian Chaplain-General of the Wesleyans in the Army states that the Government allows a fixed salary to Roman Catholic chaplains, sufficient to support them, but irrespective of the number of troops in the station. Pew rent is paid for the men, and not only are sites given to the Romanists for their chapels, but the chapels also are built for them. Yet in Poona and elsewhere the Wesleyans have been begging for sites for years, and in vain. Without saying anything on the policy of these grants, the favouritism is suggestive.

The Wesleyan Chaplain-General states another fact which should never be lost sight of, that every trooping season 11,000 men, in addition to women and children, are homeward bound—about a tenth of our Indian army. What they have been in India they will be in England. If we have neglected them in India, or, worse, taught them immorality by means of our army regulations, they will be a flood of impurity turned into every corner of the land.

FORWARD TO THE SOUDAN!

You have, I think, more than once allowed me to appeal in your columns to the Church of Christ in our land on behalf of the neglected tribes of the North-eastern, or Egyptian, Soudan. But as some years have passed since I had this privilege, you will, I hope, allow me once more to draw the attention of Christian people to the subject. It is not right, it is a grievous reproach to English Christianity, that these tribes should have been left to this day unevangelised, who, ten or twelve years ago, met our troops in battle many times around Suakin, and there made such splendid proof of their prowess, exciting again and again the admiration of our soldiers by the devotion and reckless daring with which they sacrificed their lives, by thousands, in behalf of what in their ignorant fanaticism they believed to be the cause of right,

I myself saw in one of the battles how gallantly they came on, and rushed, with only spear and shield in hand, upon disciplined troops, and were mowed down by hundreds by the deadly rifle fire; and as I rode over the battlefield afterwards amid the dead and the dying, I could not help bitterly asking myself, that Christian England can do for these poor people? Can they not be led to the feet of the Saviour, the true Mahdi, the Lord Jesus Christ, and their gallant courage be utilised in his service, for the extension of his Kingdom? The plains around Suakin have again and again been soaked with their blood, but never, excepting the very little that could be done by Dr. Harpur, of the C.M.S., and myself, during the few months that we were permitted to minister food to the starving thousands in the famine of 1890-91, have they heard the glad tidings of peace from any single representative of the whole Church of Christ. They are just as neglected, as dark, as ignorant to-day, as ready to throw themselves at the feet of the first Mohammedan impostor that may arise to claim their service unto death in his cause, as they were when first they flung themselves with reckless bravery against the iron ranks of our British infantry.

"IS THIS ALL

Is it possible that this heartless neglect is still to continue? I verily believe that if only a wise and effective scheme for their evangelization were set on foot, there are who make no pretence to any religious motive, who would, just from simple admiration for their gallantry, come forward and support the effort. But it is a far cry to Suakin, and difficult to stir interest or enthusiasm on behalf of an almost unknown race in that out-of-the-way part of the world. The climate of the Red Sea is not inviting, the heat at times during three or four months of the year being terrible. Nevertheless, English officers in command of the troops there bear it from year to year without any such refuges from it as missionary societies wisely provide for their men.

NUMBERS OF OFFICERS AND MEN,

But it is not necessary to say anything upon this point. There are Christian men quite prepared to face sickness and suffering, and death itself, if need be, for the Gospel's sake, if only their sympathies could be enlisted on behalf of these Soudanese, and their services utilised in some well-considered missionary scheme. As yet though application was made in what seemed to be the most likely quarter. Dr. Harpur and myself applied together to the C.M.S., but that noble Society, after a careful consideration of the case, did not feel at liberty to add this new mission to its already world-wide responsibilities. I tried the North Africa Mission with no better success, and finally appealed to the American Mission in Egypt, which I should have been particularly glad to see enter upon this new field, but in vain. A few months ago Mr. Hermann Harris, of the Central Soudan Mission, told me that he intended to send two men to Suakin this autumn, but not to found a mission there, or to stay there any longer than might be necessary in order to move on to that part of Central Africa which he regards as his special sphere of labour. Thus there is at present no prospect, humanly speaking, of anything being done for the tribes between the Red Sea and the Nile.

NOTHING HAS BEEN ATTEMPTED,

It may be objected that the country is not yet open, that Anglo-Egyptian authority only extends some fifty or a hundred miles inland from the coast, and that the rule of the Mahdist Khalifa beyond that would render all missionary work impossible. But the door is open at Suakin.

A MEDICAL MISSION

there would attract the tribesmen from great distances; Hadendoas, Halengas, Amarars, Bisharen, etc., would all flock to such a centre of healing. I do not say this without full inquiry made upon the spot, and experience gained during the famine. Two Roman Catholic missionaries have been in Suakin for years. Nothing large could be attempted at first; no great expenditure is called for. Probably a few hundred pounds a year would suffice for a properly-manned medical mission, and this is all that could be attempted for some years.

Cannot such a mission be started? Is it possible that English Christians can have so completely forgotten the events of 1880-85, that they can suppose that they may wash their hands of all responsibility for these Soudanese people, after we have slain some thousands of them, and by the destruction of the bread-winners caused unspeakable misery and suffering to thousands more during the famine years that followed? I do not know what more I can do than thus re-state the case. If these facts do not sufficiently appeal to Christian sympathies, no arguments that I could add would avail. I do not urge haste; I do not like to see things done in a hurry. I do not much fancy one-man missions. I like to see a mission started with careful deliberation, and a good broad basis of sympathy and prayer here at home. I do not now call for volunteers. The object of this letter is to arouse attention, and to impose upon the Christian Church a portion at least of the responsibility for the salvation of the Soudanese tribes which rests upon myself.

F. T. Haig, Major-General.

Redhill, Sept. 7.

"THE FLOODS LIFT UP THEIR WAVES."

Above the voices of many waters,
The mighty breakers of the sea,
The Lord on high is mighty.
—(Ps. xcii. 3, 4, R.V.).

What wilt thou say to me, O Sea,
What wilt thou say to me?
How oft from thy stormy, surging home,
Hast thou dashed me thoughts in words of foam,
Brought me a message on hurricane blast,
Into my soul has it beat and lashed.
Now, as I stand on thy dark, dark wave,
How like dost thou seem to a heaving grave!
O troubled, treacherous, beautiful Sea,
What wilt thou bring from thee to me?

What wilt thou say to me, O Sea?
What wilt thou say to me?
Shall I have a word of grief again?
Shall my heart be torn with bitter pain?
Oh, what will thy mighty surges bring,
That heave and breathe like a living thing?
Will the waves that over thy bosom race
Bring the wealth of health to a pallid face?
Oh, moaning, mournful, beautiful Sea,
What wilt thou give from thee to me?

What wilt thou say to me, O Sea,
What wilt thou say to me?
Will thy solemn billows surge and roll?
Will they lave and lash my troubled soul?
Doing their restless, wrecking will,
Never a voice to hush them still,
Till wan and worn by the fearful blast,
On some lone shore like a wreck I am cast.
Say, doubtful, darksome, beautiful Sea,
Will it be thus, from thee to me?

I know not the message from thee, O Sea,
But here is my message to thee:
Thou art strong, O Sea, but a stronger will
Can chain thy waves and make thee still.
Thine arm is strong, but a stronger arm
Can smooth thy waves to a restful calm.
So my heart is at peace, O surging Sea,
For Jehovah-Jesus holdeth thee.
In his mighty hand art thou, O Sea,
'Tis the precious hand that holdeth me.

S. Trevor Francis.

"CHINA'S MILLIONS" for the current month is largely occupied with the recent riots in Sze-chuen. Rev. J. J. Coulthard, Mr. C. T. Fishe, and Mr. W. B. Sloan deal with various aspects of these disturbances, and their effects on the Mission's operations. The number is one of great and varied interest.

THE GOSPEL FOR MEXICO.

We have already called attention to the Roman Catholic festival shortly to take place in Mexico City. At the beginning of October an idol-picture is to be "crowned" as "The Virgin of Guadalupe," and hundreds of thousands of pilgrims will attend the dedication. Workers in various parts of the City are preparing to do what may be possible to open the eyes of the idolaters, and one of them writes to Mr. W. Walters, of the Scripture Gift Mission: "The festival will last twelve days, and probably a million Roman Catholics will attend. Can you not send us an immense number of Illustrated Gospels to distribute among them? By this means, with God's help, we may undeceive some, and bring them to know Christ the Saviour."

Another missionary writes:—"This is an opportunity altogether unexceptional. Eight years have been occupied in preparation for this blasphemous ceremony, and I am told that it has already cost an expenditure of one and a-half million dollars. All this for soul-destroying! What can we do? We cannot be unmoved. Considerable effort has been made, and thousands of tracts have been prepared. But we feel we should be much more satisfied in giving the people the pure and simple Word of Life. If funds allow, I am sure you will help us with some of your beautiful Illustrated Gospels."

Mr. Walters, hon. sec. of the Scripture Gift Mission, informs us that at present he has no funds available for grants of Spanish Gospels; but, anticipating the help of some who are sure to sympathise with the missionaries in their anxiety to embrace the impending opportunity, he has sent to various workers several thousands of copies of St. John's Gospel in Spanish. He has, however, the names of others who are pleading for grants. It may interest some friends to know that a thousand copies may be sent (carriage and duty paid) for £5 5s. Communications to Mr. Walters should be addressed, 84, St. Paul's-churchyard, E.C.

SOLDIERS' HOME, WINCHESTER.

The return of the troops engaged in the manœuvres in the New Forest began in the early morning of Monday, September 2, when the first detachment left, the second commencing their march the following day. They passed through Winchester on Tuesday and Wednesday.

As they passed the end of Hyde Close, and caught sight of the bit of bunting with the words, "The Soldiers' Home; God bless our soldiers," the ringing cheers which burst from the men bore unmistakeable testimony to their appreciation of the untiring efforts for their good of the Misses Perks; whilst now and again a soldier would stop for a second to give a grasp of the hand and report that so-and-so had received Christ as his Saviour. Each night the troops halted at the rest camp, Avington Park, the beautiful seat of Sir E. Shelley, about five miles beyond Winchester. Thither the Misses Perks, with several workers, followed in the afternoon, during which they distributed some thousands of Gospels sent for the purpose from the Crystal Palace Bible stand.

Each evening a Gospel meeting was held under a couple of fine old elms, when earnest addresses were given by Messrs. C. Evans and G. Pullinger (late Guards) and others. Several were deeply impressed, others readily told how they had accepted God's gift of eternal life. No one who was present could doubt that real work for eternity was there accomplished. It was a delight and privilege to be present, and share in such a simple real, soul-winning effort. J. McC.

VICHY, in the centre of France, has had over 63,000 visitors this year, and comparatively nothing is done to reach the souls of these thousands. Pastor Boissou, of Thiers, has undertaken to have a shop converted into a mission hall in the centre of the town, and close to the gayest places of amusement. This has involved an expense of 1000 francs, and there is a deficit of 400 francs (£16), and for this the pastor is responsible. He is a faithful Gospel teacher, and is anxious to continue the work, and, if possible, to have the mission hall opened every evening. This could be done at a cost of £100; with this he would be able to secure the help of an evangelist for the work. Communications to M. Boisson may be addressed—Thiers, Puy de Dôme, France.

Letters from the Other Side.

NORTHFIELD.—II.

There have been many features of interest, besides the direct teaching of the higher ranges of the truth of the Gospel, by Prebendary Webb-Peploe and the Rev. Andrew Murray.

Mr. Moody, whose love for young people seems to increase as he grows older, and whose health and vigour continue unabated, met three or four hundred Bible learners, from 6.30 to 7.30 a.m., to give them some of the winnowed grain he had garnered in his Bible. Many of our readers will remember such truths as these:—

"Faith gets the most. Humility keeps the most. Love works the most." "Grace provides. Faith receives. Love obeys."

"Faith. Its source, Eph. ii. 8; its object, Heb. xii. 2; its ground, Rom. x. 17; its righteousness, Rom. iv. 13: its unity, Eph. iv. 13; its trial, 1 Peter i. 7; its end, 1 Peter i. 9."

Time is given for listeners to make notes of such simple thoughts, and besides storing up the truths themselves, they are acquiring methods of Bible-study.

The informal meetings on the hillock called Round Top, are always a feature of interest. From five to six, Dr. Erdman answers questions on all imaginable subjects, so long as they relate to Christian experience and Scripture doctrine. And from seven to eight, Mr. Moore, of Boston, a bright and helpful Christian man of business, conducted a meeting for short addresses and testimonies. Dr. Erdman is a good and genial man, an efficient scholar, and of generally sound judgment. One might not agree with every exposition given, but no one ever does agree exactly with everything any one else says. It will be one of the joys of heaven for all to see eye to eye, when, in the fullest sense, God brings again Zion.

One of the features of the memorable Oxford Convention, in 1874, was the answering of questions which had been suggested by the preceding addresses. This might well be added to the programme of other gatherings.

At one of the smaller meetings questions such as the following were answered by Rev. Andrew Murray: "How long do you pray over each sermon?"—I generally get my subject on Sunday night for the next Lord's Day, and meditate and pray over it during the week.

"How long have you lived above being annoyed at disagreeable incidents?"—It is a great help when one has a clear-cut testimony, like that of Mr. Webb-Peploe (which had been given on a previous day).

My conversion was indeed of that clear-cut character. For the first twelve years I had great dissatisfaction with my condition. About thirty years ago I wrote 'Abide in me.' A few years later I met with some writings which spoke of an experience I did not understand. Then I got a report of the Oxford and Brighton Conventions. I made more than one solemn act of consecration. In that way I have gone on, and have made more than one advance, and have been led into deeper trusting; when I failed not worrying about it, but confessing at once, and at once receiving the promised pardon. For the past twelve years God has given me a wonderful peace and joy almost unbroken. He has taught me to be careful for nothing; but in everything that happens, to recognise that this is the will of God concerning me.

Let us every one take up the position of absolute trust in God under every possible circumstance. A lady once said to me, "I consecrate myself, but do not know whether I am accepted." We are often more occupied with ourselves in our giving up ourselves than with God who takes. When we present ourselves to God a living sacrifice, He says the sacrifice is holy, acceptable to God, our reasonable service. When I come the Lord has undertaken to receive me, and I get to live in God, who is there keeping me. We live in the sunshine of his love, not of ourselves. Take up the rule, "I deny myself," as Peter denied his Lord—"I know not the Man"; as Levi at Sinai, "who said unto his father and to his mother, I have not seen him; neither did he acknowledge his brethren, nor know his own children" (Deut. xxxiii. 9). Live away from yourself in Jesus; and as you abide in Him it will not be your holding fast, but his keeping you. Get out of yourself into Him, and Christ will abide in your heart by faith. God the Almighty takes care of me. Some little Swiss girls in a school were asked, "If you give your doll to your mother to keep, how does she keep it?" One of them answered, 'Carefully." Exactly; and when we give ourselves to God He keeps us carefully.

"How can we keep continuously abiding in Him?"—It has been a great help to me to know that believing is moment by moment—now, now, now. If it is all right this moment, so the next moment, and the next. I don't keep actively engaged in thinking about it every moment. I am trusting this chair to support me, but I don't think about it. If I start right in the morning I am busy about various things, but I am trusting all the time. How do I get the sunshine? Moment by moment, moment by moment. And God is the living sun, who hath shined in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

> Moment by moment I'm kept in his love;
> Moment by moment I've light from above;
> Looking to Jesus till glory doth shine;
> Moment by moment, O Lord, I am thine.

The moment by moment is on God's side as well as on ours.

"Must we have a little leakage of the spiritual life occasionally?"—A mother said to her little child, 'If you pray at night for bread God will send it.' The child went next morning to look, and found no bread, and said, 'Ma, it's just as I expected.' Be careful not to have more faith in leaking than in being kept. Let us be occupied with God in Christ by the Holy Ghost; the triune God will do the work as we trust Him. 'According to your faith be it unto you.'

"Suppose we take any step into this life, how much is confession of it needful?"—It is possible that confession, or profession, may do more harm than good. 'Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven.' The life will manifest itself. It is his life lived through you; let Him have all the glory of it.

"May we expect to reach a place where the devil will not tell us after preaching how nicely we've done it?"—The temptation may come, but Christ is able to keep.

"You prepare and preach under the guidance of the Spirit: have you any anxiety as to results?"—Many speak more than I do about the direct guiding of the Spirit. I put myself into the hands of God and get my subject; then I abide in quiet confidence. If I make a failure I am humbled, but He may have some purpose; my failure may accomplish his will.

"Can we expect to get this life without the daily counsel of God's Word?"—One most instructive teaching is that of the manna. It could not be kept twenty-four hours without getting bad. We must have the manna and the sunshine fresh every day. I cannot sufficiently press daily fellowship with God in his Word. Yet we may read the Word daily and not have fellowship with God.

"Does God's spirit communicate with us except through the Word?"—He communicates with us by whatever truth has been in the mind since childhood. I cannot live a minute without the Holy Spirit. He is to our spirit as the air is to the body. You have some business to transact; you can't think without the Holy Ghost. We need the Holy Spirit that we may eat and drink aright.

"Suppose you feel led to do something, and other Christians do not approve, are you to go forward?"—Dr. Rylands was a good and faithful man; when Carey gave an address urging the necessity of missions to the heathen, Dr. Rylands laid his hand on his shoulder and said, 'Young man, if God wants the heathen converted, he'll do it without you or me.' The service of Christ needs deep humility. We shall be willing to listen to the brethren, but we must test their counsel by the Word of God and prayer.

"Have you stated seasons for prayer?"—Oh, yes; we cannot have unbroken communion without it. But we need not be always talking to God. We may break our prayer into small pieces, and wait for Him to speak to us in the silence of our spirit. It is a great privilege to sit with an open Bible and turn the promises into prayer.

"How can I learn the art of fellowship with God?"—The whole is in loving. There is something very wrong in the spiritual life if you are not conscious of loving God. A lady told Mr. Boardman that she had had much joy in secret prayer; then she began to work among the men employed on her husband's estate, and became indisposed for the secret fellowship in which she once delighted. Mr. Boardman advised her to go and sit in his presence and tell Him, assured that He would put her right. When the Lord Jesus meets you, you'll forget your burden. If I've nothing to pray for I will wait on Him; He wants to speak to me. Don't let your prayer-hour become a burden. Sit down in the presence of God. 'There will I commune with thee from above the mercy-seat.'

These answers are much condensed, and may not quite do justice to Mr. Murray, but they contain the gist of his replies.

Mr. Moody arranged for a large number of visitors to go over one afternoon to Mount Hermon where the two chief speakers of the Convention made excellent addresses, the Prebendary, who said he had an English reputation as a good begger, amply sustained his character, by presenting the many valuable and interesting features of the institutions. Indeed it would be difficult to exaggerate them. The schools are under the general management of Mr. William Moody (Mr. D. L. Moody's eldest son), whose wife, it will be remembered, is the daughter of our old friend Major Whittle, both highly esteemed and loved on each side of the ocean. Since leaving Northfield, I hear with much pleasure, that she has presented her husband with a daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Moody with their first grandchild.

Another and very touching incident was an open-air gathering outside the house of Mrs. Betsy Moody (Mr. Moody's mother) who is over ninety, and who sat in her chair in the bow window, hearing and seeing all.

After prayer by Mr. Webb-Peploe, Mr. Murray read selected verses from Psa. lxxi., noting how much she who was now old and grey-headed, had to praise God for, and we to help her to praise, for having been the mother of such a son; and for all that God had done by him in his own town and country, and in other lands. Mr. Murray then referred to his own "sunshine mother," as she had been called. She was married at sixteen, and became the mother of twelve children, five of whom were ministers and four ministers' wives. Some one asked, "Won't you tell us how she trained them?" Without much art or study, but with a soul given up to God, she trained them unconsciously for Him. Mr. Murray added that when women aim to be equal with men, they are taking a step downward, for while men are the head and brain, women are the heart and love. God bless the mothers.

Mr. Webb-Peploe spoke of Timothy, whom Paul sought to brace up with some good advice, reminding him of the early teachings in Scripture truth of his mother Eunice and his grandmother Lois. This led to personal recollections of his own mother and grandmother, and to fatherly counsel to young men and women to marry only in the Lord. His mother had died in his house a few years ago, seeing visions of glory before she passed away. "Oh, you women," he said, "give yourselves to God that your children may be won to God in their childhood." A few tender words to the dear aged lady concluded the addresses. Then we sang, "God be with you till we meet again," whether it be here or in the better land.

Another afternoon was devoted to a service in memory of the late beloved and venerated Dr. A. J. Gordon, of Boston, whose address on the Resurrection at last year's convention was read by Major Whittle during the sympathetic stillness of the large congregation. The presence of Mrs. Gordon, patient and cheerful in her sorrow, deepened the feeling with which the words of him, who, being dead, was yet speaking, were listened to.

The following extract from this address is well worth quoting, because the similitudes in which the prophets spoke, and the types which are divine object-lessons, are neglected in the modern schools of the prophets:—

"In 1 Corinthians xv. 3-4, we read: 'I delivered unto you that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures; and that He was buried, and that He rose again the third day according to the Scriptures—i.e., according to the Old Testament Scriptures. But can you tell me any place in the Old Testament where it is predicted that Jesus should rise the third day? You may cite the words of Hosea: 'After two days He will revive us: in the third day He will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight.' But this seems to have special reference to the Jewish nation. To answer my question you need to be reminded that with the Jew a type or a ceremony is as distinct in its teaching as are the words of literal Scripture. Admitting this, I think I can show you where it is plainly taught that Jesus was to rise from the dead the third day.

"In Leviticus xxiii. you have the time of the Passover fixed; on the fourteenth day at the evening the paschal lamb was to be offered. What did the paschal lamb represent, as it was repeatedly offered throughout the centuries? In the New Testament you have the plain interpretation: 'Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us.' In this same chapter it is said that 'on the morrow after the Sabbath' they were to offer 'a sheaf of the first-fruits' of the harvest. What is 'the morrow after the Sabbath'? The first day of the week, of course. And what were the first-fruits? 'Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept? 'Thus, in type, Jesus Christ was predicted, for centuries before He was born, to rise again the third day. And Jesus was always appealing to Scripture on this point. He said, 'Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day.' Where was it so written except in these types?

"Be careful, critics, not to destroy the types. You say the shadows have passed away and have ceased to have any use since the substance has come. As well go to the mint and demand that the dies be discarded, since it is money that we want and not moulds. But it is the die that determines the image and superscription of the coin; and it was the types that determined the shape of all Christian doctrine. The ceremonial of the old dispensation was simply the stereotyped plates from which the whole Gospel is printed. Let us keep them, then, if we would preserve doctrine and reproduce it when it has been destroyed."

I may add here that Miss Ada Habershon, of London, has been here for some weeks, giving Bible-readings on the Types of Scripture, to the delight and edification of her hearers.

R. C. Morgan.

SALISBURY CONFERENCE.

Many persons have borne testimony to very definite and clear blessing received from God at our previous gatherings; and a friend, in a letter received yesterday asking for the dates fixed for our approaching Conference, says: "I received definite blessing to my own soul, and, thank God, hundreds around here have also received blessing through what I received at Salisbury. One text was specially blessed to me:—'My God shall supply all your need.' The sweet communion with so many of God's own dear people was so refreshing that I am looking forward to again spending a week with you." The Conference meetings will be held in the Maundrell Hall on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 24, 25, 26 and 27. There will be no selected subjects, but each speaker will choose his subject as the Spirit guides him. The Conference meetings will commence at eleven o'clock each morning and at 7.30 each evening. The afternoons will be spent in hearing accounts of God's work in different parts of the world, and the claims of China will be brought before us at least twice during the week. It will be a pleasure, as far as lies in my power, to provide hospitality for brethren and sisters who come from a distance.

E. N. Thwaites.

Fisherton Rectory, Salisbury.

THE BELIEVER'S SAFE ATTITUDE.—"Looking" singly "unto Jesus," as our peace and our life, is at once our duty, our safety, and the secret principle of our daily progress heavenward.—Bridges.

[884]

FROM REV. DR. PATON.

In a letter to a friend in England, the venerable Dr. J. G. Paton, of New Hebrides fame, writes:—

"After my return from Britain I had to visit Tasmania. On returning to Victoria, our church there, which supports me as a missionary, and has done so for some twenty-eight years, insisted on my taking a long rest; but having an intense desire to revisit all our mission stations on the New Hebrides, and spend as long as possible among my dear Aniwa people, I requested permission to do so, for I am yet a missionary of Aniwa. They gave me seven months' leave of absence, and though it is only fifteen hundred miles from Sydney, in the trading company's vessel now doing the sailing work of our mission it took us nearly six weeks to get there, longer than it took us from England to Australia. We were landed on a dark, wet night, and none of our people, except one woman who keeps the key of the mission, knew that we were on the island till next day.

"We found very many of the inhabitants suffering from fever and colds, but by medical treatment, with God's blessing, all except three have recovered. Tea and biscuit, or bread, or rice, had also a good deal to do with their recovery. To those near we carried or sent tea three times a day; to those farther away we sent parcels of sugar, tea, and biscuit or rice. They think tea a cure for every pain, but if they did not take the medicine first they did not get the tea. A man will often come and say he has a pain in his shoulder, or leg, and ask for a cup of tea to cure it. They don't care what the tea is if it is only sweet enough!

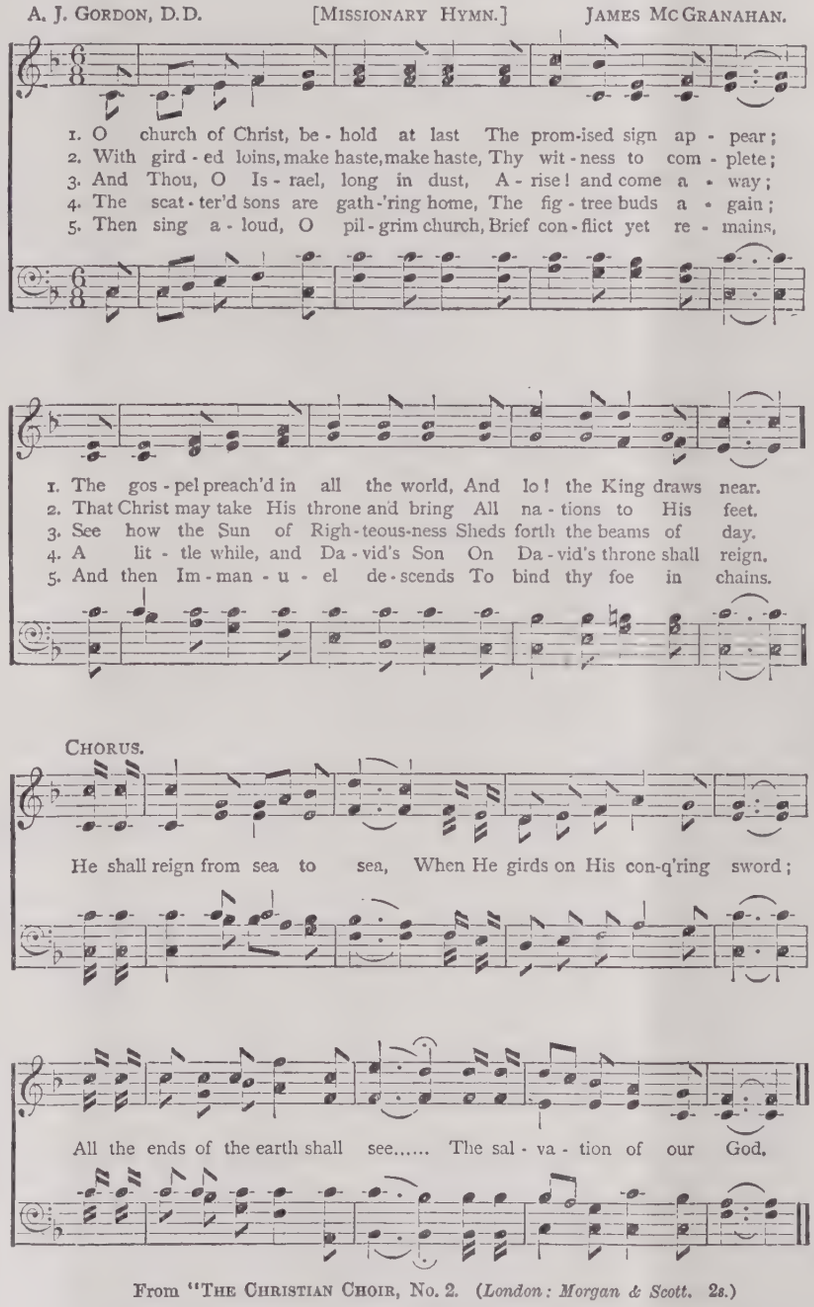
"Though I have been away so frequently and so long on my British and American tour, by God's blessing they have kept the schools and Sabbath services all going on regularly, and I have just examined some young persons who desire to be members of the church, as prepared by the elders, who are two excellent old men, and in their work assisted by a body of able, devoted, pious young men who would be a power in God's hand for good, and an honour in any church. Mrs. Paton and I brought them up as orphans and children entrusted to us to educate for Jesus and his service.

"At our Mission Synod the reports given in by the missionaries from all the stations indicate more real fruit and progress than in any past twelve months in our mission. Our staff now consists of twenty ordained European missionaries, and two lay helpers and their wives, and of considerably over 200 native teachers and assistants, all educated for their work from the cannibals among whom we began on the group. Apart from our mission ship, it now takes over £6000 per annum to keep our mission going, and we expect the vessel will take at least £2500 per annum. We hope to place three more missionaries this year, or in the beginning of next, in new heathen stations on the group, which will add another £600 yearly.

"We are now beginning an institution for educating teachers, as our mission stations cannot now supply all needed for the blessed work. It will cost about £300 per annum, and we are organising an hospital and medical mission on Ambrim, under Dr. Lamb and his assistant. To build it and the mission premises required there, and get the furnishing and medical outfit, it is proposed to expend about £1000, chiefly subscribed for by friends. Its expense is expected to be from £200 to £300 per annum.

"Though in my seventy-second year, I hope to be spared to see every island occupied for Jesus and his work, and if not, the work will, I believe, go on, till every island is vocal with his praise. We change and pass away, but the Lord lives and carries on his own work, and will do till the last soul for which He died is brought to the full and lasting enjoyment of his salvation. What a loving gracious Master and Friend we have in Jesus here, and what will it be when, made like Him, we shall see Him as He is!

"At present my time is occupied teaching, preaching, visiting the sick, dispensing medicine, translating, and getting translations corrected by reading them with expert pundits, writing letters, and repairing mission house and fence at odd times, with all other duties required at a mission station. My daughter is with me, and teaches a school in the morning for children, helps me in my afternoon class for the native teachers and more advanced young men, and for about two hours every night, Saturday excepted, teaches all who can come to sing hymns. All the young people are now eager to read and speak English. Even the French traders have to speak to all our islanders in broken English, so as to be understood by them, and yet you would scarcely understand their English.



"My future address will be—Princess-street, Kew, Victoria, Australia."

[COPYRIGHT. ENTERED AT STATIONERS' HALL.]

"He shall Reign from Sea to Sea."

(Psa. lxxii. 8.)

A. J. Gordon, D.D. [Missionary Hymn.] James McGranahan.

From "The Christian Choir, No. 2. (London: Morgan & Scott. 2s.)

A Fit of Mistrust.

1 Sam. xxvii.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER.

The Psalms, which, with more or less probability, may be assigned to this period of David's life, are marked with growing sadness and depression. Amongst them may be reckoned the xi., xiii., xvii., xxii., xxv., lxiv., and perhaps xl. and lxix. Those of the first group have many features in common. The scenery of the wilderness, the psalmist like a hunted wild thing, the perpetual insistance on his innocence and invocation of Jehovah's interference, the bitter description of his sorrows, and assurance that the evils which his foes sought to perpetrate on him would return on their own heads, such are the characteristic features of these Psalms. But besides, there is a tone of despair:—

"Why standest Thou afar off, O Lord?
Why hidest Thou Thyself in times of trouble."
(xi. 1.)

"How long, O Lord! Wilt Thou forget me for ever?
How long wilt Thou hide thy face from me?"
(xiii. 1.)

"My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?
Why art Thou so far from helping me, and from the words of my roaring?" (xxii. 1).

"Save me, O God:
For the waters are come in unto my soul.
I sink in deep mire, where there is no standing.
I am come into deep waters, where the floods overflow me." (lxix. 1.)

These notes are sad, plaintive, and despairful; it is as though the sufferer were near the limits of his endurance. It seemed so hopeless to effect any permanent alteration in Saul's feelings towards him, so long as Cush, and Doeg, and Abner, and others who had proved themselves his inveterate foes, were able so readily to instil their poison into the royal ear. It had become so increasingly difficult to elude the hot pursuit of the royal troops, whom long practice had familiarised with his hiding-places and haunts. And it became increasingly perplexing to find sustenance for the large body of followers now attached to him. Every day he had to provide for 600 men, besides women and children; and the presence of these tenderer souls made it increasingly difficult to maintain a perpetual condition of migration or flight. He had now two wives, and from what is said of the sack of Ziklag, shortly afterwards, we should judge that the larger proportion of the outlawed band consisted of those who had wives, and sons, and daughters, and property (xxx. 3, 6, 19, 22).

In other days of healthier faith, these considerations would not have availed to shake the constancy of his much-tried soul. He would have stayed himself upon his God, and been strengthened with all power, unto all patience and long suffering with joy. But of late his faith had become impaired and the coins of his godly courage slackened, so that he said in his heart, "I shall now perish one day by the hand of Saul; there is nothing better for me than that I should escape into the land of the Philistines; and Saul shall despair of me, to seek me any more in all the borders of Israel; so shall I escape out of his hand."

I. Let us examine this sudden resolution.

It was the suggestion of worldly policy.—"David said in his heart." On other occasions, as we have observed more than once, it had been his wont to summon the priest with the sacred ephod, or to inquire of God through Gad; but in this resolution he had recourse to neither the one nor the other. In the matter of Nabal he had acted under the sudden impulse of passion, here under that of panic. He looked at circumstances, perhaps listened to the counsels of men who were attracted to him by the qualities of daring, bravery, and frank generosity, which made him the popular hero of his time, but had no sympathy with the deeper springs of his life in God, and faith and prayer. Never act in a panic; nor allow man to dictate to thee; calm thyself and be still; force thyself into the quiet of thy closet until the pulse beats normally and the scare has ceased to perturb. When thou art most eager to act is the time when thou wilt make the most pitiable mistakes; do not say in thine heart what thou wilt or wilt not do, but wait upon God until He makes known his way. So long as that way is hidden, it is clear that there is no need of action, and that He accounts Himself responsible for all the results of keeping thee where thou art.

It was very dishonouring to God.—Had He not sworn to make him king, to cast forth his enemies as out of a sling, and to give him a sure house? Had not these promises been confirmed by Samuel, Jonathan, Abigail, and Saul himself? Had not the golden oil designated him as God's anointed? How impossible it was that God should lie or forget his covenant! By immutable pledges his Almighty Friend had bound Himself, seeking to give his much-tried child strong consolation, if only he would remain within the sheltering walls of the refuge-harbour which these assurances constituted, and it was easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for one jot or tittle of the Divine engagements to become invalid.

Surely, then, it was unworthy of David to say, in effect: "I am beginning to fear that God has undertaken more than He can carry through. True, He has kept me hitherto, but I question if He can make me surmount the growing difficulties of my situation. Saul will, sooner or later, accomplish his designs against me; it is a mistake to attempt the impossible; I have waited till I am tired, it is time to use my own wits and extricate myself while I can from the nets that are being drawn over my path."

The resolution must have given great rejoicing to many of his followers, but all devout souls must have felt that the leader's despairing confession was in sad contrast to his exhortation, so repeatedly insisted upon, to wait on God.

"None that wait on Thee shall be ashamed; they shall be ashamed that transgress without cause."

How much easier it is to indicate a true course to others in hours of comparative security than to stand to it under a squall of wind. Dr. Tauler, the great preacher of Strasburg, before his second and deeper conversion, could be excelled by none in his delineation of the virtues of humility and self-denial; yet, when the humble traveller from the Oberland remonstrated with him for loving one creature, himself, more than God, he was offended and his proud heart arose within him. It is an experience through which most of us have to pass, the contrast between speech and possession, between thinking we have and having, between our directions to others and our own behaviour, when the dark waters are sweeping over our soul.

It was highly injurious.—Philistia was full of idol temples and idolatrous priests (2 Sam. v. 21). It lay outside the inheritance of the Lord, the sacred land of Palestine, deemed by the pious Israelites of those days to be the special location and abiding-place of the Most High, and to be banished from whose sacred borders seemed like going into a wild and desolate land of estrangement and God-abandonment. What fellowship could David look for with the Divine Spirit who had chosen Israel for his people and Jacob for the lot of his inheritance? How could he sing the Lord's songs in a strange land? What share could he claim in the sacrifices which sent up the thin spiral of smoke on the sites of Nob or Kirjath-Jearim? Besides, their perpetual familiarity with the rites and iniquities of idolatry could not but exert an unwholesome and altogether disastrous effect on the minds of the unstable in his band. Poison must have been injected into many hearts, that wrought disastrously in after years. What was harmless enough in the case of David, who knew that an idol was nothing in the world, was perilous in the extreme to the weak consciences in his train which were defiled by what they saw and heard.

It was the entrance on a course that demanded the perpetual practice of deceit. He was received at Gath with open arms. Before, when he had sought the shelter of the court of Achish, he had but a handful of companions, now he was the leader of a formidable band of warriors, who might easily turn the scale of strength in the long struggle between Israel and Philistia. "And David dwelt with Achish, he and his men, every man with his household."

This proximity to the royal palace and the court became, however, extremely irksome to the Hebrews. Their movements were always under inspection, and it was difficult to preserve their autonomy and independence. Finally, therefore, David asked that one of the smaller towns might be assigned to him, and to his great comfort received permission to settle at Ziklag, a town in the south country, originally allotted to Judah, then transferred to Simeon, and latterly captured by the Philistines, but not occupied by them (Josh. xv. 31, xix. 5, 1 Chron. iv. 30).

The sense of security and relief to these hunted men must have been very great, as they found themselves within the slender fortifications of the little town. For long they had known no settled home, their life full of alarm and flight, the weapon always at their side or in their hand, the senses alert to the rustle of a leaf, or the slightest movement in the covert; from all these there was now a grateful pause. For sixteen months they had a measure of repose and safety. The old men and women sat in the streets, and the shouts of merry children in their play were no longer instantly and jealously hushed lest they should attract the scouts of the royal army. "It was told Saul that David was fled to Gath, and he sought no more again for him."

David's mind was, however, kept on the stretch, constantly at work, weaving a tissue of duplicity and cruelty. He had really no love for Achish, no zeal for the maintenance of his rule; he had not deserted the chosen people, though he had fled before Saul; in his deepest soul he was still an Hebrew of the Hebrews. Maintenance for himself and his followers must, of course, be provided, and in those days of wild border war, nothing was more obvious, to the Philistines at least, than to raid the land on which he had turned his back. This, of course, he would not do, and so he turned his sword on the petty tribes of the south country, who were in alliance with Philistines, but the hereditary foes of his own people. Amongst these were the Geshurites, the Girzites, and the Amalekites, all nomad tribes, living by plunder. To obviate any report of his proceedings reaching the ears of Achish, David was compelled to adopt the cruel and sanguinary policy of saving neither man nor woman alive: and when Achish, by virtue of his feudal lordship, required of him an account of his expedition, he said evasively that he had been raiding against the south of Judah, and instanced tribes, which were known to be under the direct protection of Israel. The fact of his having brought back no captives, the most valuable part of booty, was reckoned by the Philistines a proof of the passionate hate with which he regarded his countrymen, making him forego the pecuniary advantage accruing from the sale of slaves, rather than the satisfaction of beholding their dying anguish. "And Achish believed David, saying, He hath made his people Israel utterly to abhor him; therefore he shall be my servant for ever."

The whole behaviour of David at this time was utterly unworthy of his high character as God's anointed servant. It was also, a barren time in his religious experience. No Psalms are credited to this period. The sweet singer was mute. He probably acquired a few new strains of music, or even mastered some fresh instruments, whilst sojourning at Gath, the memory of which is perpetuated in the term, Gittith, a term which frequently occurs in the inscriptions of the Psalms, composed afterwards. But who would barter a song for a melody, a psalm for a guitar? It was a poor exchange. There was something in the air of those lowland plains that closed the utterances of the sweet voice that had sung to God amid the hills of Judah, and the caves of Ain-jedi.

How precisely do these symptoms of old-time declension and relapse correspond with those which we have observed in ourselves and others! The way of faith may be irksome to the flesh, but it is free and glad to the spirit. It may have to trace its steps with difficulty among the hills, but a new song is in its mouth, of praise and thanksgiving. But when we descend to the lowlands of expediency and worldly policy, a blight comes on the landscape of the soul, a silence on the song of the heart.

From that moment we are left to maintain our position by our own scheming and planning; we ask God to help us, but dare not count on Him absolutely to provide for us; we are driven into tight corners, from which we escape by subterfuge and duplicity, such as we in our souls despise; we realise that we have purchased our deliverance from the pressure of adverse circumstances at too great a cost, and have bartered the smile of God for that of Achish, so soon to be turned from us, the munitions of Divine protection for the walls of Ziklag, over the ruins of which we shall soon be weeping scalding tears.

OUR DAILY HOMILY.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 15.

"Why is it that thou hast sent me?"—Ex. v. 22.

Before God can use us He must bring us to an end of ourselves. When Jesus was about to use the Apostles to feed the mighty concourse of people, He sent them to examine their meagre resources, that they might be reduced to despair. And when Paul was summoned to the greatest epistles and labours of his life, his strength was drained to utter weakness, and he despaired even of life. So in the case of Moses and Israel.

Moses, for forty years, had been undergoing the emptying process, but perhaps when God called him to this great enterprise, there may have been a slight revival of confidence in himself, in his mission, his miracles, the eloquence of Aaron's speech. So in the rebuff he received from Pharaoh, in the bitter remonstrances of the elders of his people, in the sad consciousness that his efforts had aggravated their condition, the lesson was still further taught him that of himself he could do absolutely nothing.

Israel also had begun to hope something from his mission. Through the brickfields the story ran of his early years, his uncompromising speech to Pharaoh, of his miracles, and the wretched slaves cherished faith in him and Aaron as their heaven-sent deliverers. They had, however, to learn that all such hopes were vain, and to see that the brothers, at the best, were as weak as themselves. Then the way was prepared to lean only on God. "Thou shalt see what I will do."

Ourselves.—By repeated failures all along our life-course God is teaching us the same lesson. We fail to justify and then to sanctify ourselves. Our efforts to serve and please Him only end in increasing perplexity. The tale of bricks is doubled; the burdens augment; the strength of our purpose is broken; we are utterly discouraged, and then, when the soul is utterly desolate, the heavenly Bridegroom draws near and says, "I will do all; I am Alpha and Omega; I am thy salvation."

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 16.

"I am Jehovah and I will."—vi. 6.

When all human help has failed, and the soul, exhausted and despairing, has given up hope from man, God draws near and says, I AM. It is as though he said, "All that can really help you resides in my nature as in its native home. I have weaned you from all beside that you might seek in Me what you had been wont to seek in men and things and self-help."

Thus God with Israel. The people had come to like many of the dainties of Egypt, the leeks, and onions, the fleshpots and sensual delights; therefore the need for this cruel bondage to wear them away, and prepare them for marriage union with Himself. Then, there was a strong reliance on Moses and such appeals as might be made to move Pharaoh's pity, and from these too it was necessary to withdraw the people's heart, that they might look for all to their heavenly Lover and Bridegroom, and find in Jehovah their infinite supply.

Affliction is always needful in the first stage of the Christian's deepening experience. The world, with its vainglory, pride, and envy; the delights of the flesh; the praise and good opinion of our fellows—these take the place of Christ in those who are called by his name. We must be taught to despise these things, and feel their vanity and insufficiency to satisfy.

Failure is often necessary to reach humility and patience, so that we may have no confidence in the flesh, or in anything we can call our own, and be prepared to find all our satisfaction and delight in Jesus only.

Revelation is then possible, of all that God can be and do. He draws near with his sevenfold "I will." He looks on us with infinite pure delight, and weds us in our low estate, and commences to bring us up to such blessedness that we forget all else, and behold the Bridegroom only.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17.

"The Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord."—Ex. vii. 5.

In God's dealings with his people He purposed to reveal Himself to Egypt: so that when He led forth Israel's hosts, in redemption power, from the brickfields of slavery on to resurrection ground, there might be afforded a display of his love, and pity, and power such as the world had never before witnessed. Egypt and all surrounding nations should know the character of God in the Exodus, as the Lover and Redeemer of his own.

So with the Church.—The Apostle tells us that redeemed men are to be the subjects of angelic contemplation and wonder. In the Church, principalities and powers shall discern the manifold wisdom and grace of God. When God has brought all the ransomed hosts up from the Egyptian bondage of the world to stand in the radiance of the eternal morning, then the universe shall ring with the ascription, "Great and marvellous are thy works. Righteous and true are thy ways."

So with each Individual Believer.—Each one of us has been formed for Jesus Himself, that we might show forth his praise. In growing purity and sweetness, in our deliverance from the clinging corruptions of the world and flesh, in our patience under tribulation, our submission and our steadfast hope, in our willingness to sacrifice ourselves for others, let us be revelations of what Christ is, and of what He can make men become.

Believers are the world's Bibles, by studying which men may come to know the Lord Himself. Let us see to it that we be clear in type, unmistakable in our testimony, pleasant to behold, commending the blessed Bridegroom whom the world sees not.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18.

I will put a division between my people and thy people.—viii. 83.

This Division is as old as Eternity.—In the council chamber of the Godhead the Father chose Jesus and all who should believe in Him unto eternal life, Whom He foreknew, He also did predestinate. We cannot understand the reason of that Divine choice, we can only affirm it, that in those ages of the unfathomed past, Christ and his seed stood out from the rest of mankind as set apart and sealed, the people of God's own possession and inheritance—"Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father."

It was effected by the Cross of Jesus.—By it we are crucified to the world, and the world to us. The cross, with its outstretched arms, stands sentinel between the Church and the world which cast out her Lord. The grave, like a great gulf, yawns between those who gather round the risen Master on resurrection ground, and all men else. From the moment that Jesus ascended, the rallying centre of the Church was removed from earth to heaven, from the cross to the throne; and the thread of scarlet divided her from Egypt. In the world, she became no longer of it.

It is wrought out by the Daily Grace of the Holy Ghost. It is right, of course, to come out and be separate in our outward walk and behaviour. What fellowship hath the temple of God with idols? But, deeper than this, if only we will let the Spirit of God work unhindered, He will effect an inward division. Our tastes, and desires, our hopes and aims will become different, and we shall be aware of a growing dissimilarity between ourselves and those with whom we formerly associated.

Then to the separate soul, the Bridegroom comes. He says tender and loving words. In one hour He teaches more than all human teachers could; and sheds forth by the Holy Ghost the torrent of Divine Love. There may be darkness without, but there is light in the dwellings of Goshen: there may be plague and pestilence in the world, but there is peace, joy, and bliss in the separated soul, separated to its divine Lover.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19.

"Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was there no hail."—ix. 26.

Those who are included in the provisions of the covenant are sealed. The storm may sweep around them, but the great angel, who ascends from the east, cries with a great voice to the angels, to whom it is given to hurt the earth, and the sea, and the trees, saying, Hurt them not till we have sealed the servants of God on their foreheads (Rev. vii. 3).

The only spot in which the soul is safe is within the encircling provisions of the covenant. Israel stood there, and was safe, not only from the hail, but from the destroying sword. It was as safe a spot as the centre of a cyclone is said to be. The invulnerable walls of that sacred enclosure were the oath and promise of God to Abraham. God had bound Himself by the most solemn sanctions to be a God to this people, and deliver them; it was necessary, therefore, that He should be their pavilion and canopy, catching the hailstones on his outstretched wings and securing them from hurt.

The covenant is entered, not by merit nor by works. There was neither the one nor the other in that race of slaves, but they stood there simply because of their relationship to the Friend of God. So we enter the blessed safety of the better covenant, through our relationship with the Lord Jesus, who is the Beloved of the Father, the one glorious and blessed Man. Without beauty or merit, the soul attaches itself by faith to Him, and discovers that it was loved before the worlds were made, and that it is for ever safe.

Ah, blessed Lover of souls, we see how the storm swept thy heart, that it might never touch us. We hear Thee saying to the storm, "If ye seek Me, let these go their way." Thou art our hiding-place, our shield, our deliverer, our strong tower. Without dismay we can look out on the storms of death, judgment, and eternity, sure that wherever Thou art there can be no hail.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 20.

"All the children of Israel had light in their dwellings."—Ex. x. 23.

Without, darkness that might be felt; within, light. This should be the condition of each believing heart. The sun may have gone down, and the moon withdrawn herself in the firmament of the world; the darkness of perplexity and trouble may envelope Pharaoh and all his chosen counsellors; all things may wear the aspect of approaching dissolution; but with the Lord as our everlasting Light, we walk in the light of life.

Light is Purity.—The soul which is exposed to the indwelling of God, purifies itself even as He is pure; and walks as Jesus did, with white and stainless robes. He that says he has fellowship with the Holy God, and walks in the darkness of his own lusts, lies. Where God is really hidden in the heart, the beams of his lovely purity must irradiate the life.

Light is Knowledge.—There is a wisdom, an insight, an understanding of the Divine mysteries, which the mere intellect could never give; but are the product of the Divine indwelling in the holy soul. All around men may be groping aimlessly after truth, trying to find the secret of the Universe, whilst to the loving childlike soul, in which God has taken up his abode, these things, which are hidden from the wise and prudent, are unveiled.

Light is Love.—It steals so gently over the world, blessing flowers and birds, little children and invalids. Everywhere it is the symbol of the beneficent work of its Creator. His eldest daughter! Thus amid the selfishness of the world, let Jesus dwell deep in thee, that thou mayest be rooted and grounded in the love of God, that passeth all understanding.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21.

"Jewels of silver and jewels of gold."—Ex. xi. 2.

The Egyptians knew very well that they would never see their jewels again, and the people of Israel were thus, to some extent, compensated for their unpaid toils. The Lord gave them such favour with the Egyptians that they gave them whatever they asked, so that it is said "they spoiled the Egyptians."

These jewels were employed afterwards in the adornment and enrichment of the Sanctuary. They flashed in the breastplate of the High Priest, and shone in the sacred vessels. In this they remind us of the treasures which David gathered by his conquests from neighbouring nations, and which were afterwards incorporated in the Temple of Solomon. They recall also the glowing predictions of the prophet, that the kings of the earth shall bring their treasures into the New Jerusalem.

The jewels of the Church, whether they stand for her graces or her choice children, have often been obtained from the midst of Egypt. Was not Saul of Tarsus just such a jewel? The world counted him one of her rarest sons, but God set him as a jewel in the breastplate of Immanuel, in the place from which Judas fell.

Let us ever seek jewels from the land of our captivity and suffering. It will not do to come away empty. It is not enough merely to bear what God permits to fall on us, for our chastisement; but to go further, and extract from all trials, jewels. This is being more than conquerors, because we not only overcome by suffering, but we carry off spoils. This is what the Apostle means when he says, Patience worketh, etc. Let every trial and temptation enrich you with the opposite grace. There are Egyptians in your life, which have grievously tormented you with their heavy whips, yet even these shall yield wealth—"jewels of silver and jewels of gold;" which you shall consecrate to holy service, and which shall shine in the fabric and worship of the New Jerusalem.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSONS.

SEPTEMBER 22.

JOSHUA RENEWING THE COVENANT.—Joshua xxiv. 14-25.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Verse 24.

SHECHEM (1) was an appropriate place for the renewing of the Covenant. Ebal, the mount of cursing on the one hand, and Gerizim, the mount of blessing on the other, gave the most solemn emphasis to the call to obedience. Here they had made a covenant with God twenty-five years before (viii. 30-35).

There was a very large assembly (1). All the tribes were represented, for while each tribe had its own inheritance the whole twelve formed one people, and the covenant was binding upon all. The multitude was so great that they probably lined the lower slopes of Ebal and Gerizim. And in this region the air is so pure that even so great a multitude would hear the voice of the speaker.

Joshua was now 110 years old, and this was his farewell message. For twenty-five years he had led the people. He had shared their perils, and had witnessed with them the fulfilment of the promises of God. The dying appeal of such a man must have fallen impressively on the minds of the people who had followed him to many a victory.

I. THE MOTIVE to the service of God. The word „ therefore " (14) recalls the facts Joshua has just re counted (2-13). His story includes all the work of God for them, beginning with the choice of their father Abraham from his idolatrous surroundings, and their settlement in the land of promise. It is a record of God's faithfulness to his covenant engagements, and of his power in overcoming the most formidable adversaries of his people. A still more marvellous story is that of his dealings in grace with us. To these the Apostle alludes in the "therefore" of Rom. xii. 1.

Service should follow such deliverance because it was what God intended. The message of Moses to Pharaoh was, "Let my people go that they may serve me." Set free to serve is true of all God's people (Comp. Luke i. 74, 75; Rom. vi. 18, 22), and it is expected that gratitude will prompt them to serve. They owe it to God in return for such favours.

II. THE ALTERNATIVE PRESENTED (14, 15).—Two things are before them, whole-hearted and true service of God and the worship of idols. It is assumed that they do accept one position or the other. Man cannot choose whether he will have a master. He has one already. No one is, or can be, free in the absolute sense. God on the one hand and the world on the other are presented to all men. One of the two must receive our allegiance. We cannot serve both. This is what they were seeking to do. Strange gods were found amongst them (14, 23), even though they were gathered "before God" (1). There are still men who would divide their allegiance, who would get all the blessings of godliness, while retaining all the pleasures of sin. They are of the mind of him who said he would prefer to live with the profligate, but to die with the puritan. A divided heart renders the service of God impossible (Matt. vi. 24).

And the choice is left to them (15). God does very much for men and with men, but He never forces their will. He presents motives, appeals to their interest, gives them helpful examples, warns them of the consequences of sin;—but He leaves them to make the choice. "Choose ye." Joshua makes his choice again (15). Though he has grown grey in the service of God he is not weary of it yet. They may imitate him, or choose an opposite course for themselves. Do our young people recognise that they are now making a decision that will influence them for ever?

III. THE CHOICE MADE (16-25).—It was solemnly repeated four times (16, 18, 21, 24). The mere utterance of the words would not satisfy Joshua. He wanted them to be committed to God by a real and actual transaction; so that their solemn promise should be a constant witness against every tendency to forsake Him (22).

Their choice was wisely made. They considered who God was, what He had done for them (17), and how powerless had been the gods of the Amorites against Him (18). To forsake Him for these deities would be to turn from "the Fountain of living waters" to broken and empty cisterns. Make as wise a choice. On one side are God, and holiness, and heaven, on the other are Satan, and sin, and hell—choose between these.

Their choice was deliberate. They knew that it involved the surrender of every idol, yet they said, "We will serve God" (20, 23). They were warned that of themselves they could not do it (19), that their hearts were prone to wander, and God was holy and jealous, yet they chose the service of God. There was a promise (Deut. xxx. 6), which made such service possible even to them. On the strength of the new covenant promises be ready to make similar surrender to God (Ezek. xxxvi. 25-27).

For the Young.

GATHER OUT THE STONES.

"It is such a stony little path between here and Mrs. Harvey's that I can't bear to go over it," said Jim.

"And Dick Harvey doesn't like it any better when he comes over here," said Frank. "I heard him say he had got ever so many stone bruises in that path. He was grumbling about it yesterday."

"Why don't you clear the way between here and your neighbour's?" asked Mr. Morris. "You would much better do that than to take time in grumbling about it."

"Why, we should never get all the stones out of that path," cried Jim.

"Not all in one day, nor by taking all the stones at once," said the father. "But if each of the boys who cross there would take a stone out of the way every time he goes, the work would be done. Try it."

The boys did try it. There were a half dozen young lads who used the path, and each one helped to clear it by doing a little every time he went that way. By this means the stones were cast out and the path was cleared.

This is exactly the way to make it easier and pleasanter for others in this world. Let each one make it his business, as he goes through life, to take some little hindrance out of the way whenever he can. Little faults should be cured, and little temptations that cause unwary feet to stumble should be removed. Small unkindnesses should be confessed, and careless ways amended. Trifling slights should be smoothed over, and sharp words, dropped in fits of ill humour, should be taken back, as far as possible. All these things will make the path of life smoother. It is well worth while to clear the way. "Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way of the people; cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up a standard for the people."—Selected.

GRIFFITH'S WISH.

GRIFFITH is a very interesting little boy. His home is in an American city, but he has been spending the summer at the seaside.

One day he went with his mother into a large meeting of Christian people. She did not know whether he would be quiet and listen, but she thought she would try. When one of the speakers had concluded his address, Griffith motioned for his mother to bend her head so that he could whisper in her ear. On his mother doing so, he said:—

"I want to see God, and I don't see Him."

"But," the astonished mother replied, "my dear, you cannot see God now; you must wait until you go to heaven."

Griffith, nothing daunted, however, shook his long curls, and emphatically exclaimed:

"Why, you're mistaken, mamma, for that man," pointing to the one who had but just addressed the meeting, "said, God is in this place," and then casting his inquiring blue eyes all around, he continued: "I do so want to see Him."

And the disappointed child had to leave the big building with an unsatisfied pain in his heart.

I wonder how many of my boy readers have the same wish as little Griffith, the desire to look into the face of the Father. I think all good children would; it is only when you are disobedient, or untruthful, or have done some great wrong, that you want to hide from your earthly father, and you have much the same feeling towards our Father in heaven.

God loves little children, we know, and though hidden from our earthly vision, He sees you every day. No act, however secret, escapes his all-seeing eyes. The words are, "Thou God seest me." Try and keep them in remembrance from to-day.

They are precious words, for God sees you just as surely when you are in pain, temptation, sorrow, want of any kind, as when you are doing wrong, and, seeing you, He will help you if you but ask. "Ask and ye shall receive."

I hope, with little Griffith, you will all want to see God, for then you will live every day as He would have you. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God." "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God."

"Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when He shall appear, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." EMMA J. GRAY.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

SEASIDE SERVICES.

Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Hunstanton, to Sept. 15; Rev. W. S. Standen and Rev. S. R. Morse, M.A., Sea View, I. of W., to Sept. 14; Rev. Norman Bennet, West Brighton; Rev. W. B. Sealey, Margate, to Sept. 13; Mr. J. H. P. Cutting, C.S.S.M. van at Watlington or Downham Market, to Sept. 14; Wretton, Sept. 14-19; Wereham Sept. 20-27. Mr. S. J. Hewlett, C.S.S.M. van at Wendlebury, near Bicester, to Sept. 14. Mr. H. Hankinson, Edinburgh, Sept. 15; Mr. Josiah Spiers, Newark-on-Trent, Sept. 27 to Oct. 11; Mr. G. Goodman, Campsbourne Mission School, Hornsey, Sept. 15-22.

Meeting for reports of Seaside Services.—Sept. 30, Queen's Hall, 3.30 p.m.; St. Martin's Town Hall, 6.30 p.m.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending September 21, 1895.—Sun., 15, Mark xiii. 24-37; Mon., 16, xiv. 1-16; Tues., 17, xiv. 17-31; Wed., 18, xiv. 32-45; Thurs., 19, xiv. 46-59; Fri., 20, xiv. 60-72; Sat., 21, xv. 1-15.

SCHWIFAT MISSION SCHOOLS.

MISS PROCTER is at home holding meetings on behalf of her work in Mount Lebanon. At one of her recent meetings in Dublin, the Archbishop of Dublin presided, and spoke in the warmest terms of the mission, in connection with which nearly 250 children are receiving a Christian education. The success of the work compels extension; more especially in the provision of a school for the boys.

In giving some account of the present operations at Schwifat, Miss Procter states that they have a branch of the Young Women's Christian Association with twenty-one Prayer Union members and eleven associates. The girls who had left school could not hold meetings, as they had to live secluded lives, but still they could do, and were doing good work. She began the school about ten years ago with twelve girls. The number had gradually increased, and now there were forty-four boarders and twenty day pupils. They could not train the Druse girls as teachers, because when grown up they were secluded like Mohammedan women, and this was another reason why they were glad to have the Christian girls. They had now twenty Christian girls teaching in different parts of the country, one in Cairo, another at Jaffa, another at Nazareth, and so on. The village of Schwifat, where the Mission has its headquarters, has from 6000 to 7000 inhabitants. Surrounding it are several villages where formerly no work was going on, but now a young Scotchman is going from one village to another. His meetings are well attended by young men, who read their Bibles regularly and ask very important questions.

In these villages they had been asking Why can they not have teaching for their children? Four of the villages had now schools, but it was necessary to maintain them. Fifteen pounds a year enables her to plant a little centre of light in a dark village. With regard to the boys, they are at present, owing to the tender age at which they have to leave the school, exposed to many pernicious influences, and it is highly desirable that they should be educated for some years longer in a separate school, so that they might be able to resist these influences. Miss Procter is pleading for £500 to £600 to put up a school for these little fellows. She wishes to give not only ordinary teaching, but to make it an industrial school, because all the children cannot be educated to be teachers. Hence she intends having an industrial department, where the boys can learn trades that would enable them to support themselves respectably afterwards.

Miss Procter intends leaving for Syria on October 26, and would be glad to address meetings before that date. Already she has fixtures in Cheltenham, Bath, and Clifton. She may be addressed, 12, Gloucester Walk, Kensington, W.

Extracts from New Books.

RELIGION IN THE HOME.*

BY REV. J. R. MILLER, D.D.

What is it that makes a home complete after all that the architect, the builder, the painter, the upholsterer, the furniture-maker, and the decorator can do? What is it that comes into the furnished house and makes it a home? Suppose the several members of the household all do their part with the highest fidelity possible in this world, what more is needed to complete the ideal Christian home? Is not the answer found in one word—God? If we leave Him out, our most perfect home will be but like a marble statue, with all the grace and beauty of life, but having neither breath nor heart-throb.

There are many reasons why religion is needed to complete the happiness and blessedness of a home. One is, that nothing in this world is full and complete without the benediction of Heaven. "The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich." All that labour and skill and soil and seeds can do for field or garden will not avail unless heaven give rain and sunshine. Our very breath is God's gift, moment by moment; our daily bread must come day by day from his hand. All our plans are dependent upon his prospering favour. Nothing can succeed without his approval and help. We are taught in the Scriptures to look to God for his blessing on every undertaking. The people were to bring the first sheaf of their harvest, and the first ripe clusters from their vineyard to God's altar, before they had reaped a handful or gathered a grape for themselves, that his blessing might rest upon the whole harvest and vintage. They were to bring their children to God in the very opening of their life for consecration to Him, that his blessing might rest upon all their years. In the old patriarchal days, when the tent was set up, if only for a night, an altar also was erected, and sacrifices of prayer and praise were offered to God.

We need the Divine blessing on everything we have and everything we do. Surely there is no work, no plan, no undertaking in all the range of the possible things we may do in the longest and busiest lifetime, in which we so much need God's benediction as upon our home. In nothing else are so many sacred interests and such momentous responsibilities involved. Nowhere else in life do we meet such difficult and delicate duties. In nothing else is failure so disastrous. A business venture may miscarry, and the consequences will be much chagrin and disappointment, some pecuniary loss, some hardship and suffering; but if one's home is a failure who can tell what wreck and sorrow may result? If we need the Divine blessing on some little work of an hour, how much more do we need it in the setting up of our home, which carries in itself our own happiness and the happiness of the hearts that are dearest to us, and the eternal destinies of souls that shall creep into our bosom, and find shelter beneath our roof!

There is no inheritance which the richest parent can bequeath to a child that can compare for one moment with the influence and blessing of a truly godly home. It gives to the whole trend of the life, away into the eternal years, such a direction and such an impulse that no after-influences, no false teachings, no terrific temptation, no darkening calamity, can ever altogether turn it away from its course. For a time it may be drawn aside by some mighty power of evil, but if the work in the home has been true and deep, permeating the whole nature, the deviation from rectitude will be but temporary. If parents give money to their children, they may lose it in some of life's vicissitudes. If they bequeath to them a home of splendour, they may be driven out of it. If they pass down to them as an heritage only an honoured name, they may sully it. But if they fill their hearts with the holy influences and memories of a happy Christian home, no calamity, no great sorrow, no power of evil, no earthly loss, can ever rob them of their sacred possessions.

The home songs will sing themselves out again in the years of toilsome duty. The home teachings will knit themselves into a fibre of character, rich in its manly or womanly beauty, and invulnerable as a coat of mail. The home prayers will bind the soul with gold chains fast round the feet of God. Then, as the years go on, and the old home on earth is broken up, it only moves from behind as it were, and goes on before, where it draws the soul toward the better life.

* From Home-Making: or, The Ideal Family Life. By Rev. J. R. Miller, D.D. (3s. 6d. Sunday School Union.)

CHIEF KHAMA.

CHIEF KHAMA, CHRISTIAN RULER.*

BY THE LATE REV. J. D. HEPBURN.

Khama himself neither drinks, smokes, nor uses snuff; nor has he ever consented to become the possessor of a plurality of wives, although that is the great Bechuana idea of "Big-chiefism," as it is of all the South-African races. Khama has never had anything to do with native charms and medicines, customs such as witchcraft, etc....Khama would have no drink sold in his town. He had seen the evils of that, and he wanted to rule over "a nice town," as he said.

He called the white men together and told them his desire. They pleaded to be allowed to bring in the cases of brandy (for it was medicine), and the large casks they promised to leave untouched. Khama consented, but he must see no drunkenness; most certainly not. The cases came, and drunkenness was the result. While at the river Khama had refused to send the boats for one man's goods because he had brought a cask of brandy. When Khama came back from the river, he called the white men together again, and declared his determination to have no drink brought into the town. "But you will allow us to bring in a case for private use at our own table?" "Bring none," said Khama, "I will allow none. You made me a promise, and broke it, that if I allowed the cases only, you would bring no casks, and that there should be no drunkenness." One man ventured to press his point, and got effectually put down. He was an old hotel-keeper, and he liked the trade. "What!" said Khama, "will you venture to speak? You made me such and such a promise, and then brought in a huge cask to the river? No! I refuse even the cases, and there's an end of it."

Khama had his own way, and kept to it. He tried fines and threats, and finally the Bechuana chief's last resort—banishment from the country. It appears a summary process; but it is really less hurtful to the European than our own mode of confiscation, fine, or imprisonment, for smuggling the drink through the country without a licence....At last the drink question came to a crisis. In the sternest mood he ever assumed the chief stated what he had seen: how he had warned the offenders, who had despised his laws "because he was a black man and for nothing else." He mentioned them one by one by name. "Take everything you have; strip the iron roofs from the houses; the wood of the country and the clay of which you made the bricks you can leave to be thrown down. Take all that is yours, and go! More than that, if there is any other white man here who does not like my laws, let him go too! I want no one but friends in my land. If you are not my friends, go back to your own friends, and leave me and my people to ourselves. You ought to be ashamed of yourselves!

"I am trying to lead my people to act according to that Word of God which we have received from you white people, and you show them an example of wickedness such as we never knew. You, the peoples of the Word of God! You know that some of my own brothers have learned to like the drink, and you know that I do not want them to see it even, that they may forget the habit; and yet you not only bring it in and offer it to them, but you try to tempt me with it. I make an end of it to day. Go! take your cattle, and leave my town, and never come back again!"

The chief purified his town of the white man's drink that day. The next step he took was to forbid the sale of their own native beer. He called out his young men and forbade them drinking it. He followed this up by calling a great meeting of the whole town, and forbade its being made at all. He had a hard struggle, but he succeeded.

* From Twenty Years in Khama's Country, and Pioneering among the Batauana of Lake Ngami, told in the letters of Rev. J. D. Hepburn. Edited by C. H. Lyall. (6s. Hodder & Stoughton.)

KERAK, MOAB.—Those who gave money for the erection of more suitable mission premises, will be glad to know that the block is now quite finished, comprising six living houses, a large mission room, consulting room and dispensary. We are only waiting now for the C.M.S. to send a doctor and workers. The Turkish Government are doing all they can to make us uncomfortable, and they stopped me eight times at my buildings.—A. Forder.

THE LATE

Dr. James Liddell Phillips.

Looking back to 1840, what a field for Christian work India presented! Human sacrifice, suttee, and idolatry were dominant all over the fair land. Disease and the climate swept their foreign victims into untimely graves, and the lonely missionary, cheered by letters from the homeland only once in six months, was not infrequently left to the tender mercies of the untutored and superstitious natives. At this time, in the Hindu city of Balasore, on the south coast of Orissa, twin baby boys, James and John Phillips, came to the home of Rev. Jeremiah Phillips, an American missionary: the one to give his life for his "dear India's" little ones, the other to be an elder brother and father to younger members of the family in the homeland. For six brief months the sad heart of Mr. Phillips, which had been torn by sore bereavements, was gladdened by all that makes home a "heaven on earth," when again the silent messenger came, this time for his second loved wife. As her hand grew cold in death, she laid it upon James, and asked for God's special blessing upon him. The assurance that his mother's last prayer would be answered was a continual joy to the lad, and, although he could not remember her, he frequently thought on what he had heard of her, and regarded her lonely grave at Midnapur as the most sacred spot on earth.

When the twins were one year old Miss Cummings came to the mission field, and soon took the place of the sainted mother. To her more than to any one person was due the noble life which blessed so many. She saw the possibilities before the bright boy, and wisely led him to see them, too. For twelve years the lives of the boys were interwoven with those of the natives; hence they knew the East Indian character as no foreign-born person ever does—an inestimable knowledge to every missionary.

At this age they were sent home to pursue their studies. James Phillips always represented himself as a "perfect little rebel." When he was introduced to seminary life in Whitestown, New York, he determined to resist every thought of being a missionary. "I've had enough of India," he said. The great Western world spurred the ambitious boy on toward anything but a heavenly goal. However, the prayers of the mother in glory and the parents on earth followed him. A great revival began among the students. James resisted, saying, "If I become a Christian I must go to India, and I won't do that"; but the Holy Spirit pressed his mighty claims until the stubborn heart cried out, "Yes, to India, or anywhere, anywhere, only be merciful to me a sinner." Submission to God's will was followed by "the peace that passeth all understanding," and from that hour till the last night of his life, when in his sleep he planned Sunday-school conventions, India, his "dear India," towered above everything, and was hidden in his very heart of hearts. When he left home his mother drew from him the promise that he would read ten verses daily in his Oriya Testament. During his twelve years of hard study, the sacred book in his native tongue was never forgotten. All through his college course in Bowdoin, Maine, he proudly acknowleged his "own" beloved land, and every student and professor honoured him as a missionary "elected" to the heathen of India. So nobly did he fill those swift years with earnest preparation for his life work, that after he had fully entered upon it, Bowdoin conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity. Although he was deeply grateful to the alma mater, who had led him up the "steep hill," and then crowned him with her brightest gem, he severely refused to allow "D.D." to follow his name. "You may use M.D. with my name if you choose; I have earned that by hard study," he would say in his own sure way. During his college days another mother in Israel, the gifted wife of Professor T. C. Upham (author of many works concerning the "Inner Life"), led him into a deeper and holier Christian experience than he had ever known before. With her he held religious meetings among all classes, from the poor house in the country to palatial drawing-rooms in large cities. After his university course he became pastor of a Free Baptist church in the city of New York. There his heart friends were the great pioneer Sunday-school workers of that large city. His rare gift for addressing children was soon discovered, and he was overwhelmed with work.

In 1864, a few months after his marriage, he sailed from Boston, in a vessel laden with ice, bound for India. Dr. Kellogg, now of N.W.P. of India, his father, mother, and two sisters were among his travelling-companions during that never-to-be-forgotten voyage, with the captain sleeping at the bottom of the sea (lost the third day out), and taking six months from Boston to Calcutta. On July 1, 1865, he reached his station Midnapur, and met the native Christians, and playfellows of his boyhood. What a welcome awaited him. The dear old native preacher caught him in his arms, and ran round the room shouting, "Beloved Jimmy baba; beloved Jimmy baba." Young and old vied with one another in saying kind things to him, and when he responded to them in Oriya, their joy was complete. The very first Sunday he preached to them in their native tongue—the fruit of keeping a promise made to his mother long before.

(From Photograph by Bradshaw, Newgate-street, London.)

Ten years of intense labour followed, unbroken, save by severe malarial fever, among the people of all conditions, from the wild Santals in their beautiful jungles to the polished native gentlemen, for whom he held service in English, in his own house weekly. Neither were his labours confined to his own field. Every now and then he "flew away" to help a brother missionary in some special mission, until he became so well known, that men of highest culture welcomed him.

His crowning work, however, was Sunday-schools. Under a huge banyan at Jellason in 1879, the first S.S. convention in India was held. In 1875, weary and worn, he took his passage home (going as surgeon on the steamer between Calcutta and London) for a well-earned rest.

Three years of pleading followed with the churches for money to endow a Bible school, to educate native preachers in India. In 1878 he was again sailing India-ward with the desired fund at his disposal. In 1879, the Bible-school was opened; his father and Dr. Bacheler assisting in the services. For seven years he was Principal of the school, and father and brother to the bright young men who are now faithful ministers in his first field. In 1885 he joined his family in America, and for one year he was pastor of a church in Auburn, Rhode Island. There his best work was with the children.

He was appointed chaplain for the penal and charitable institutions of R.I., seven in number. He was servant of the very lowest, with no reward but a Father's smile, and the gratitude that beamed in faces so sad they had forgotten to smile. Murderers in prison for life, madmen in chains, poor old men and women on the verge of the grave, with no hope beyond, bright but vagrant boys and girls in the Reform Schools, semi-idiots who asked pathetically, "By and bye shall I know things in heaven?" all looked for his coming, hung on his words and trusted him as one who cared for them. Memory will be very dim ere the writer forgets the clanking of the prison chains as, two and two, hundreds of men marched into the great prison hall for service and sat with eyes riveted upon the speaker, while with intense fervor he dwelt upon the Christian hope purchased equally for the bond and free, irrespective of their past. From the scum of American life he was called to work among the stately churches of conservative Philadelphia.

In 1890 a call came to him from "All India" to take up the Sunday-school work there. His whole life had been such a preparation for this work, though he had never had it in view, that even his wife, summoning all the courage she could, said, as he laid down the letter from the Sunday School Union, London, "You must simply go, there is nothing else to be done." He did go, and God only knows what the leaving of wife and children cost him, and He only knows how rich has been the reward. On reaching Bombay, he wrote, "How blessed it is to be in dear old India again. What amazing opportunities for work."

The five following years were filled with almost overwhelming labour for India's children, from Peshawar away up in the N.W. corner to Java in S.E., and all through the length and breadth of the land, until nearly the whole of India was well organised for Sunday-school work. But he did not confine himself to schools; it would be very difficult to mention any line of Christian service which he has not helped, nor were his labours in vain. He was able ere he passed away to look on India organised into Sunday-school Unions containing 5000 Sunday-schools, 10,000 teachers, and 200,000 pupils, largely natives, and then to hear the blessed call to come up higher still.

Dr. Phillips's final service in India was as General Secretary of the India Sunday-school Union, but he was supported by the contributions of members of the International Bible Reading Association, among whom he was familiarly known as "Our Own Missionary." During his visits to this country he had endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact, and among the half-million members of the Association there are very many who mourn his loss as that of a personal friend.

He died at Mussoorie, after one brief week of terrible physical suffering. He cast, on June 25 at 10 a.m., one triumphant look upward, and seemed to say, "I'm coming, Lord," and he was for ever with his Saviour. One moment in the valley and the shadow of death, the next in the heavenly home. His oft-repeated request that there should be no mourning, no fashionable funeral flowers when he was called hence, was held in mind, and the funeral was very simple. A few bright flowers lay on his coffin, and the church was draped in white, with green wreaths.

The congregation sang his favourite hymn, "Precious Jewels," and Rev. Thomas Evans conducted the service. His old friends, Dr. Kellogg and Mr. Jenson, spoke of the labourer at rest, and the harvest ready for new reapers. In the silence of the mountains there is a new grave. In the choir of heaven there is a new voice, and the "children's friend," as he was known throughout India, is waiting for his loved little ones on the other side.

Rev. Thomas Evans writes:—Dr. Phillips was one of India's chief lights, and his intense devotion to the cause of Christ, and his special capabilities for all manner of Christian work were such that one can hardly see another like him. Perhaps he was above all distinguished by an overflow of Divine love and a full tide of tender human sympathies, while he had a voracious craving for work—work—work. For the last four years he has travelled thousands of miles over sea and land all through India, Burma, Ceylon, and Dutch India to organise and consolidate Sabbath-schools. He was subjected to all sorts of climates and changes of atmospheric influences, as well as irregularities of diet and rest; so that he was literally worn out physically as well as impregnated with malaria when he arrived here "to rest" in a cool climate. But his rest was short, as soon as he had felt "a little better" he was again at work. First of all he presided over a convention we had here in the first week in June; then he would have a variety of meetings, both inside and outside, for "the dear children"; till at last he literally broke down, and died truly "in harness." He has left a wife quite worthy of such a husband. The holy resignation and the godly joy manifested by her in this affliction has been the wonder and the admiration of all who have seen her, and the example of such wondrous grace is very inspiring. Like a true-hearted servant of the Master, instead of retiring from the field in sorrow, she says, "No, now that he has gone up I am all the more needed, and I will give my life to the 'dear India' which he loved so well."

THE DUBLIN CONVENTION.

The twenty-second annual Christian Convention will be held in the Christian Union Buildings, September 30 to October 3. These conventions have, under God's blessing, been sustained from the first with unabated interest, and it is hoped the coming meetings will be accompanied by many tokens of the Divine presence. Among other subjects, the Archdeacon of London, Rev. F. B. Meyer, and the Rev. Edgar Thwaites will speak upon the "Person and work of the Holy Spirit in their various aspects." Professor Lindsay, D.D., will speak upon "Foreign Missions," and Mr. Thwaites will give an account at one of the evening meetings of his recent experiences in India and China.

Rev. J. Surman Cooke will speak upon the subjects of "Peace" and "Holiness." As Rev. Andrew Murray is expected to be present throughout the Convention, those attending will have the opportunity of hearing some of those weighty appeals on behalf of God and righteousness, which have produced such a deep impression elsewhere. Earnest prayer is requested that this Convention may be fruitful in blessing to the whole country.

WEST NORWOOD.—The annual conference on "The Coming of the Lord," held at Lansdowne Hall, West Norwood, is to take place on October 15, 16, and 17. Among others, the following brethren will speak at either the afternoon or evening gatherings:—Revs. Edward Brewer, James Douglas, J. M. Eppstein, J. Gelson Gregson, G. D. Hooper, R. Middleton, J. G. Train; and John Wilkinson; General Sir Robert Phayre, G.C.B., Dr. R. McKilliam, Messrs. R. C. Morgan, G. H. Pember, Walter B. Sloan, and Pastor W. Fuller Gooch.

1892

STRANGERS' REST, RATCLIFF, E.

Having often read of the workers' monthly meetings at this well-kown institution, on Thursday last I paid a visit I had long promised myself. The homelike character of the place, and the Christian cheerfulness of its whole-hearted workers must prove invaluable in winning to Christ the heart and soul of many a far-travelled and sin-burdened son of our Father in heaven.

Over these workers' monthly meetings might be written, "Come ye yourselves apart and rest awhile," for there the workers hold sweet intercourse with the Master, and the work itself is renewed in strength by this "waiting upon God." After the singing of a hymn, and prayer led by one of the audience, Dr. Thomas Neatby took for his subject, "'Changed into the same Image.' How?" (2 Cor. iii. 18), and emphasised the glorious fact, dear to every follower of Christ, that God, in glorifying his Son, did but put the seal of his infinite satisfaction on all that Christ was and wrought.

The speaker pointed out the one way by which we can be changed into the likeness of our Head, by beholding Him as portrayed in the Word of God, especially in the four Gospels, until we see Him face to face, and the likeness is completed.

The chairman, Mr. John McCall, said that sailors and soldiers, when converted, are bound to be out-and-out witnesses for Christ, and he rejoiced that it had been his happy experience to see both of these classes of men engaged in active Christian work.

Pastor James L. Stanley, commenting upon "Paul's estimate of his ministry," as shown in 2 Cor. ii. 14-16 (Revised Version), showed how Paul puts God in the first place. God leading in triumph, God manifesting his knowledge, God's work—therefore we are not to be discouraged. Paul terms himself a captive in the train of the Great Conqueror, and spreads the fragrance of Jesus wherever he goes.

Mr. Isaac and Mrs. Agnew (recently returned from Zanzibar Strangers' Rest) gave most interesting accounts of the work both here and there, citing numerous instances of the power of the simple Gospel to reclaim men's lives for God. For the past nineteen years the Ratcliff Rest has been open every day, and the glad tidings proclaimed to ever-varying audiences of sailors. On August Bank-holiday ten meetings were held inside and outside of the building, addresses being given in the English, German, Swedish, and Italian languages.

Of the work at Zanzibar Mrs. Agnew spoke with the humility and joy that follow in the track of God's workings, and urged the duty of giving God the glory, after He has bestowed the blessing.

To passing seamen from many nations, to shipwrecked sailors, to drifting Christians, to natives, and to Christian visitors, the Zanzibar Strangers' Rest has held out a helping hand, and many thank God for such an oasis in a weary land.

These busy workers ask the readers of The Christian to pray for the work of both these Rests, and that the right workers may be sent out to this latter difficult and trying part of the field.

A Visitor.

THE HERALD OF MERCY.—This Gospel monthly, which has met with such wide acceptance during nearly forty years, has just made a new departure. For the convenience of the numerous churches and missions desirous of localising a decidedly evangelistic periodical, a special title can now be printed, together with a line at foot of the front page, announcing meetings, without extra charge. Full particulars will be sent on application to Morgan and Scott.

BIBLE TRAINING INSTITUTE, GLASGOW.

The fourth session of the Bible Training Institute, Glasgow, commenced on Sept. 2. As usual, the men's department, at 1, Blythswood-square, is full, the numbers being restricted only by lack of accommodation. In order to gain some experience with the women's department prior to the opening of the new Institute Buildings, it was resolved to rent temporary premises. Very suitable and convenient quarters, capable of accommodating twelve young women, were secured at 93, Douglas street, and the first session of this branch has just opened with ten students on the roll.

The inaugural meeting was held in the Christian Institute on Tuesday forenoon, Sept. 3. Lord Overtoun presided, and there was a large attendance of directors, students, and friends. The proceedings were marked by great heartiness, and a lively interest was evinced in the work of the Institute and its future development.

Lord Overtoun in his inaugural address spoke of the deep thankfulness to God cherished by the directors, at the measure of success which thus far had attended the Institute. He said that happily the day had gone by when those who had failed in other callings were deemed competent to become teachers and instructors of others. Now, those who would teach others must first be taught themselves. While the aims and desires that had led to the beginning of the Institute were what they were, he need not say that they did not seek in any way to minimise the deep conviction they all had that in these days of philosophy, sometimes falsely so called, they needed more than ever a carefully trained and capable ministry of the Word. In Scotland they were very well off in this respect. For a long time, however, it had been felt that there was no place in which those who wished to lay themselves out for Christian work, either in the foreign or home field, could receive instruction to enable them to teach others; but this lack had been supplied since the Training Institute started. During the three years it had existed much valuable work had been done by sending out a band of men and women to various parts of England and Scotland and to the foreign field. Besides those resident in the Institute, about forty outside students joined the classes; and the evening lectures given twice a week, were attended by somewhere about 250 persons. The Institute for young women had just been opened to meet an urgent need, and they hoped to have a record of equally valuable work there. So great had the cry become for more room that it had been resolved to build a new Institute. Estimates had recently been accepted and the building would begin in a few days. They secured a site in Bothwell-street, and something like £25,000 or £27,000 was required. They had already very nearly half of that, sum and an appeal was to be made for the remainder. The Institute would be provided to hold ninety young men and forty young women, and was not intended for Glasgow and the West of Scotland only, but for the whole of Scotland.

Mr. J. S. Napier spoke of the need of the Institute and of the growing sympathy with its aims and objects.

Rev. J. E. Somerville, of Montrose (who had a very deep and personal interest in the Institute, as it was his deceased wife, Lord Overtoun's sister, who gave the initial impulse to the movement) next spoke. He highly commended the arrangement by which so much time was given to direct study of the Bible and its use in practical Christian work. He had the graduation cap put on his head three times, but if he graduated at the University he qualified in the Calton (a needy district in Glasgow).

Various speakers followed, commending the work of the Institute and the lecturers and students to the prayers and sympathy of the Lord's people.

AN UNEVANGELISED STATE.—Rev. D. D. Moore gives, in the Malaysia Message, an account of a visit to Redah, a large native State in the North-west of the Malay Peninsula, which he describes as unevangelised and sorely in need of missionaries.

THE STEAMBOAT MISSION on the Murray river, in Australia, is an interesting and successful innovation. The missioner, Rev. W. C. Butler, who has named his steam launch The Glad Tidings, devotes his energies to the settlers up the river courses, administers medicines, circulates literature, and holds services among those who would otherwise be untouched by any Christian agency.

ANSWERED PRAYER.

A REMINISCENCE BY DR. BARNARDO.

"Before they call, I will answer."

Soon after my marriage we took up our abode at Mossford Lodge, near Barkingside, Ilford, in a beautiful old house, standing in its own grounds of some twenty-four acres, generously presented to us as suitable for our own dwelling, and as a place where a home for Girl Waifs might be established. Here we began by sheltering some sixty little orphan girls in one large group. It was while engaged in labours on their behalf that I first became aware of the evils of what is known as the "barrack" system, and formed the deep and unalterable conviction that as a method of rearing young girls it is altogether wrong. Reflection convinced me that if I wished to bring up young girls in such a manner as would ensure the highest results in life, and above all, God's blessing, I must follow the Divine order, and let them live in small family groups, not so large as to render it impossible for the head, or "mother," to become personally acquainted with, and to study carefully, the individual character of each girl under her care. Little girls who are by-and-by to fill a useful place in the world around us must have opportunities of becoming acquainted with the commonplace duties of everyday life. The artificial must give place to the natural. The Family order, the highest institution the world has ever seen, has its roots right down in human nature, as well as its illustration and sanction in God's Word; and family order, family life, and family religion should, I felt convinced, be the of these dear little orphan girls committed to my care.

PRIME FACTORS IN THE TRAINING

When the shock of this discovery first came upon me the effect was like the falling to pieces of a beautiful castle built in the air; for, judged by this principle, the massing together of so large a number of little girls as I had gathered under my roof at Mossford Lodge was all wrong. But if God is really guiding us to do his own work, and we find any course we have already adopted is wrong, we must be prepared at all costs to give it up; and if He shows us a more excellent way, we must be prepared to follow his guidance, however humbling it may be to have to confess to one's self that the first steps taken were unwise.

I was very strongly impelled at this juncture to acquire some nine acres of freehold land adjoining Mossford Lodge, but having no money could only daily beseech the Lord to make his way plain. Moreover, even if the money came there were other really serious obstacles to the acquisition of this property. One by one, however, in answer to prayer these were providentially removed, and I had soon the joy of possessing a considerable site upon which to develop the more excellent plan which was slowly but surely taking shape in my mind and thoughts. That plan was, in short, the each to accommodate some sixteen or twenty girls (to form eventually a village), instead of the barrack life which had grown up at Mossford Lodge. This all seems very simple and ordinary now, but to me and to my friends it appeared at the time to be daring even to audacity. It was not so much the formation of a new Institution, as the deliberate condemnation in the year 1873 of the "barrack" system of training pauper or waif children. Letters from angry correspondents reached me daily from all over the kingdom in response to the articles, unfolding my new scheme and the reasons for it, which I caused to be inserted in various organs of the Christian Press. In fact, I cannot recollect that at that time there were any considerable number of good people who approved of my proceedings. There was, of course, the faithful little band of true and loyal sympathisers and colleagues, who met me at noon each day for conference and prayer, and by whom the whole scheme and all our needs for its accomplishment were laid before the Lord.

SUBSTITUTION OF VERY SMALL COTTAGES,

Prominent among the religious Press favourable to my work was (as it is still) THE CHRISTIAN. Its editor early became a kind personal friend, and he at my earnest request joined the trust created for the preservation of the property of the Homes under my care. In the pages of that journal I wrote once and again of my hopes and wishes. When the land had been acquired, I set forth my desire to erect upon it cottages to cost from £520 to £700 each. A few readers, indeed, noticed my two articles, but only to disparage the endeavour. Even from some of my oldest friends I received letters of rebuke.

The need for saving the girl waifs to be sheltered subsequently in the cottages became more pressing day by day. Yet I dared not go on with "barrack" Homes, and how to procure the others I knew not. I had appealed to God and to man, apparently without response from either.

The venerable George Müller uses a characteristic word in his "Narratives." Writing of this or that difficulty to be overcome, he says, "I laboured in prayer." When six months passed by and no answer came, my own petitions became less earnest—in fact, almost mechanical.

MISTRUST GREW UP IN MY HEART.

Was I mistaken after all? Was my scheme too ambitious? or could it possibly be, as some unfriendly critic suggested, in a long anonymous letter, that I "had written glibly of Divine guidance, while really only concerned to accomplish your own wishes"? It might be so! A horror of great darkness fell upon me. I found no relief in prayer which lacked the element of patience waiting upon God, and of complete submission to whatever might seem to be his will concerning me.

Just then some remarkable conferences of devout and experienced Christians were being held at Oxford, and I felt strongly disposed to venture thither in search of rest and cheer. At Paddington station, while waiting for the train, I met a Christian brother in a humble sphere of life, whom I knew as one of the godliest men it was ever my privilege to meet, a man of prayer, a man of faith, a man whose very face told you something of the peace of God which reigned within. He told me he was going to Oxford too. We talked together, and in a tone of very sincere sympathy, when we were in the carriage alone, he asked, "How is your work going on?"

Upon this I opened my heart to him, and beginning at the beginning told him of my experiences and resolves, of the scheme for cottage building, of the articles in the Press, the letters of discouragement, the lack of help, and then, with some shamefacedness, of the doubts which had grown up in my mind, and of the anxiety and darkness which had fallen upon me. This man of God thought for a moment, and then looking in my face tenderly, he said: "My dear brother, if God were to show you that your proposed scheme is too large or too ambitious, or that, although good, you are not the person to carry it out, or that this is not his time for doing it, are you prepared at once to give it up, or to await his time, and if need be to announce this change of plans as publicly as at first you set forth your scheme?"

The very question was a revelation to me. It was a revelation of myself! I saw as in a moment my folly and my impatience. It took me but a moment to feel convinced that if God's approval and blessing were not with me, it were better I did not succeed from an earthly point of view. So I said slowly and solemnly: "Yes; I am quite prepared." He replied, after a moment's pause: "We are going down to Oxford for a special purpose, for rest and spiritual refreshment. Let us here, in this carriage alone, kneel down and commit your case to God, and let us ask Him, if it be his will, to show you clearly, before you leave Oxford, whether you should go on or turn back, and to give you grace to be

CONTENT TO FOLLOW HIS GUIDANCE UTTERLY."

We knelt down together and committed the cause of the children to God. We rose up after prayer, lightened and refreshed. Already my mind was at peace. The following morning, while I was dressing, a knock came to my door. I said, "Come in." The door was opened just wide enough for a man to thrust his head in. "Is your name Barnardo?" he asked abruptly. Somewhat surprised, I answered "Yes." "You are thinking of building a village for little girls at Ilford, are you not? You want some cottages?" I said, "Yes, yes." He asked, "Have you got any?"—never coming in beyond putting his head through the door. I replied, "No—not yet." "Well," he cried, "put me down for the first cottage! Good morning!" And away he went, closing the door behind him!

I was literally staggered. As to putting an unknown man's name down as a contributor of the first cottage, it was almost ridiculous. In an instant I had opened the door, rushed down the corridor after his retreating form, caught him as he reached his room, and compelled him to return at once to mine. There with the door shut on us both, I begged him for an explanation of his wonderful announcement, and received the following brief but deeply instructive narrative.

My unexpected visitor's name was Æ—— D——. He had for some years been an occasional contributor to my work, although we had never met before, and there had grown up in his heart a strong desire to assist that work in some permanent fashion, but the way to do so was not for a while made clear. This desire was strengthened by the lingering illness and death of his only daughter, which had taken place some months before, and his intention was to link on the name and memory of his dear child with the gift he purposed to bestow.

While these thoughts were in his mind, my articles in THE CHRISTIAN describing my new scheme came before him and his wife, and they resolved to build one of the cottages. He being, however, much occupied and perplexed with business anxieties just then, had postponed his announcement to me. May it not have been that I was designedly suffered to remain so long in ignorance that I might learn to submit myself more completely to God's will, and to wait patiently for his time?

That very morning, while engaged in dressing, my friend had inquired of the "boots" as to who had lately arrived. The man got him the book of arrivals. Among these was my name and the number of my room. Suddenly recalling his intention, and fearing he might again postpone his act, in his impulsive manner he dashed away, and, without finishing his dressing, reached my room, just opened the door, and made his announcement in the fashion I have related. I told him at once of my anxieties and of the previous day's resolve, and how I regarded his unexpected announcement as

A SPECIAL ANSWER TO PRAYER.

I went presently down to the breakfast-room. My poor-rich friend of the previous night was awaiting me there by appointment. When I came up to him, I suppose he saw in my face an expression very different from that of the previous evening, for he just looked at me, and then quietly said, "It shall come to pass that, before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear." And we together there and then gave God thanks for that wonderful answer to prayer, an answer which had been on the way for many months, but which for some wise purpose had been prevented for a time from reaching me, so that I might lean not on my own understanding.

FRIENDLESS AND FALLEN.

THIS interesting Mission to friendless and outcast young women and girls has been actively engaged in "seeking and saving" all through the year. Not a day passes without applications for the benefits of the Homes being sought, and prompt succour is always afforded to every suitable case. The Open-all-Night Refuge has already received several hundreds of weary and penitent young creatures, who through its means have been assisted to more permanent benefits, and all have been instructed in the way of salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ. Letters expressive of grateful thanks for what has been done are constantly received from those who have been helped. During the autumn months the Homes and Night Refuge are carried on in full operation, the applications for assistance being as great and as urgent as at any other time. The daily income is, however, very far short of daily expenses, during the period when so many of the Lord's stewards are away for rest and recreation, and means to carry on this important mission are greatly needed. The annual report will be forwarded post free to any address on application, together with "A Morning at the Open-all-Night Refuge," "The Open Door," "London: Its Sins and Sorrows." WILLIAM J. TAYLOR.

200, Euston-road, London, N.W.

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME.—The "Christian Life Boat Crew" held its usual monthly muster on Tuesday week, when a goodly company assembled at its headquarters, Miss Child's Welcome Home, Ratcliff-highway. To these meetings seamen from various nationalities working in the docks are invited, and many avail themselves of the opportunity given, and much blessing has often been the result. The text for the evening and the ensuing month was, "Every day will I bless Thee" (Psa. cxlv. 2). Addresses were given by Mr. Toner, Captain Blackburne, and others.

Among the Red Indians.

By Rev. EGERTON R. YOUNG.

III.—THE VINDICATION OF THE SABBATH.

When missionaries go among the heathen preaching the blessed Gospel of the great Book, they necessarily have to begin with first principles. When good impressions are made and hearts are being touched, then follows religious instruction in matters of which they have been perfectly ignorant, and much that is false, and often very childish, has to be unlearned.

To such a people, before the arrival of the missionary, the Sabbath was utterly unknown. The preaching of it at first filled them with perplexity and trouble. They thought it would interfere with their plans, and so break up their hunting arrangements as to bring them to absolute want. Why, they were poor as it was by working and fishing now every day, and to give up one out of every seven, and not fire a gun or set a net—what would become of them!

Thus argued some of the Indians while faithfully and lovingly the missionaries set before them the commands of God on the subject, and added the promises of blessings to the obedient. The Book itself was diligently searched, and there was a great desire to know if such passages as the one we here quote referred to white people and Indians now: "If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day, and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honourable; and shalt honour Him, not doing thine ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words—then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord, and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

At last, under faithful teaching, aided by the blessed Spirit, the Christian Indians resolved to take the Book for their guidance and keep the Sabbath day. At once the guns and bows and arrows were put aside, and the fish nets were left hanging in the breeze for that day. No traps were visited, and neither were the axes lifted up against the trees. Their simple meals were cooked and eaten, and all who could attend were found three times each Sabbath in the house of God. But now arose fierce opposition from a quarter not expected. The great fur-trading company that had for so long a time held despotic power in the land, in their short-sightedness, fearing a diminution in the returns of fur by the hunters if one-seventh of the time was to be, as they put it, spent in laziness, sneered at the actions of the missionaries, and by bribes and threats endeavoured to induce the Indians to ignore their teachings on the subject.

When the summer tripping began, and the Indians refused to travel or work in the boats on the Sabbath, the action of the company

DEVELOPED INTO DOWNRIGHT PERSECUTION.

Some description of this tripping in that great wild north land is necessary in order that our readers may understand the position taken by the Sabbath-keeping Indians, and its most satisfactory results. So remote from the seaboard are some of the interior posts of the Hudson Bay Company, that seven years, and sometimes more, elapsed ere the furs obtained for the goods sent were able to reach the London market. These bales of goods were shipped first by the company's vessels to York Factory on the Hudson Bay. Then they were taken in hand by the Indian trippers, in strong boats that would hold from five tons of cargo. A number of these boats constituted a "brigade." A captain of the whole was appointed, and a good state of discipline was maintained.

The first brigade would take the bales of goods up the rivers, often having to pass many dangerous places and encounter many risks. Great care and watchfulness were necessary, and yet, in spite of all this, boats were sometimes wrecked and lives lost. The hardest part of the work was in what was called making the portages. Some of the rivers are full of falls and rapids that are impassable for the boats. Here the portages have to be made. The hardy boatmen row up as close to the rapids as is safe, and there the cargoes are landed, and carried on the men's backs to the selected spot below the obstruction in the river. Here the boats themselves have to be hauled ashore and dragged overland by the united strength of several crews combined to the same place, where they are again launched; then, with the cargoes aboard, the journey is resumed. On some of these trips the number of portages runs up into the scores. On some of the routes great lakes have to be crossed where fierce storms at times rage, and where head-winds blow with such fury that for many days the brigades are sometimes delayed.

At Norway House, which for many years was the great northern depot for the company's goods, and the great distributing centre for interior parts, this first brigade would exchange its cargo of goods to another brigade that had come from the further interior, perhaps from Athabasca or the Saskatchewan country, for the bales of rich furs which it had brought down thus far on their way to the ships for the London market. Here this second brigade would return several hundreds of miles further into the interior, and meeting another brigade for regions still more remote, would exchange its cargo of goods with this third brigade for regions still more distant. Thus it would go on until some of the bales of goods were more than three thousand miles from the seaboard where they were landed, and the different posts had their supply of goods for the fur trade with the Indians. Thus it was that in some of the places years elapsed ere the goods reached them, and the furs also were years on the way ere they reached the ship for England.

All this heavy work was carried on by the Indian boatmen or trippers, as they were called. They were the fur hunters during the cold winter months, but as long as there was open water, that is, no ice, they were employed in hundreds by the company to take in the goods and bring out the furs.

The building of railroads and steamboats has in a great measure revolutionised these trippings, which had continued for many years, and which had been most thoroughly organised by the rich and powerful fur company. Such a thing as

SABBATH OBSERVANCE WAS UNKNOWN.

The one despotic command delivered to their brigades was to push on. They argued, "The summer in these high latitudes is short; we must make the most of it. Every day tells, and there must be no lagging by the way." The result was the men were worked to the last degree of endurance. Many failed at the oar, others dropped under the heavy loads on the difficult portages. Fill up the ranks quickly and push on. It was all excitement, and rush, and high pressure from the beginning of the tripping season until the close. There was no relaxation, no Sabbath, no rest.

It seemed utter folly for the missionary to come in where such a condition of things existed, and say to the best men of the best brigade: "We know the summer is short, and it is essential for the welfare of the company and your own wages, that the goods should be taken in and the furs brought out. But a Higher Power has said, 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy,' and so we wish you when Saturday night overtakes you to tie up your boats and lay aside your oars, and rest in quietness and devotion until God's day is over."

The company in their blindness were at first astounded and then enraged. To lose one-seventh of the short summer when now as it was the brigades were sometimes caught by the ice, will never do. This fanaticism must be stopped. With the missionary and with the Indians they argued, they threatened, they persecuted. Their monopoly in the country gave them great power, and they wielded it unmercifully. Unable to induce the missionary by bribes or threats to take another stand on the question, they resorted to persecution, and by calumnies most foul strove to destroy his good name and to drive him out of the country.

He was a wise and judicious as well as a brave man, and standing at his post endeavoured to show his rich and powerful detractors that no harm would come to them by their employees resting one day in seven. He bravely declared that man, as a physical toiler working continuously, could do more work in six days by resting the seventh than he who took no Sabbath, and he CHALLENGED THEM TO THE TEST.

At first this statement, which has been so conclusively proved to be true, was laughed to scorn. However, as the missionary and his Christian Indians remained true, the company were so far obliged to yield as to send off a Sabbath-keeping brigade, which they did with many fears and misgivings. To their surprise they did their work just as well, and returned in less time and with the men in better health than those who knew no Sabbath.

THE LOGIC OF ACTUAL SUCCESS

eventually triumphed. All opposition has long ceased, and up to the time when the old order of things ceased and oars gave way to steam power, no one was found rash enough to question the ability of the Sabbath-keeping Indians to excel in work those who kept not the day of rest.

Often did I travel with those Christian Indians, and the Sabbaths spent on those long trips are sweet and happy memories. Up to the last hour when it was safe to travel would the journey be pursued on Saturday, until in some quiet harbour or a cosy bend in the river, safe from sudden storms or tornadoes, the boats were securely fastened and the cargoes carefully covered with the oilcloths, secure against the storm which might suddenly come up. After a supper cooked on the rocks, all gathered around the bright camp fire for the evening devotions. A hymn would be sung; a chapter of the Good Book read, and then prayer would be offered by one or two of the company. The next day the Sabbath would be spent quietly and restfully, with at least two impressive and simple services during the day. Thus in quiet restfulness the day would be spent. On the Monday, at first blush of morn, we were up, and, after a hasty meal and prayers, the journey was resumed with renewed vigour. Thus was the Sabbath introduced among the Northern Indians.

SOUTH AFRICA GENERAL MISSION.

After an absence of over two months, I have just returned from Swaziland, where I have been visiting our beloved missionaries. I feel sure it will interest your readers to hear of God's work in that heathen country. After fourteen days' hard travelling, half of that time in an ox-waggon, our mission station, "Bethany," was a welcome sight, and the bright, happy faces of our brethren still more so. During my visit, we had the great joy of baptizing our first converts, and also of opening and dedicating to God our mission church. This has been built by our missionaries, of burnt bricks, and will hold about 250 people.

The opening ceremony was attended by many raw heathen. Early in the morning they began to arrive, greeting us with the usual "Sa ku bona"—"We see you"—and pointing the finger up. We had a solemn service as we gave the building over to the Lord for his use, and prayed that thousands might be born again within its walls. Our hearts were touched to see some present who had never before heard the Gospel of Jesus Christ. What a contrast one saw between these fierce wild heathen and our newly-baptized converts, in whose beaming faces one could not fail to see the blessed work which the Holy Spirit had wrought in their hearts.

As is the custom upon all special occasions, we had killed an ox, and, after the service, fires were lighted in the open air, and circles of Swazis round them were soon cooking and eating and shouting in true native fashion. We are praising God for a real spirit of inquiry amongst some of these people, but we need the prayers of God's children that the terrible superstition and indifference which surrounds this nation may be broken down.

When I last visited Swaziland, three and a-half years ago, our devoted brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Baillie, were "holding the fort" alone in a wee mud-and-wattle hut. Now we have eight missionaries in the country, and another mission station started at Darkton, about thirty miles from Bethany, and here, too, God is working blessedly through the instrumentality of our sisters, Miss Harris and Miss Gabb. Pray for us. Feeling the importance of being nearer the increasing work in the South-eastern portion of Africa, it has been arranged for my wife and me to remove our home (D.V.) to Durban, Natal, early in September. Mr. Arthur Mercer, secretary of the Mission, 14A, Lingfield-road, Wimbledon, will be glad to give any further information. W. Spencer Walton

Cape Town, July, 1895.

The Evangelist.

A HARVEST THANKSGIVING.

In a corner of one of the Western States of America there lived, some ten years ago, a man and his wife, named Luke and Honora Simmons. Twenty-two years before they had left the Old Country in a pet, because Luke's father marrying a second time, had thereby deprived his son of what he had always been led to believe would one day be his own—a very fine Nottinghamshire farm.

"We'll try our luck in the New World," Luke had said to his young bride, and she, happy anywhere with her beloved, gladly acquiesced in the new plan.

Twenty-two years of hopes and fears, ups and downs, and, at last, of hard-earned prosperity and riches, had not rooted out of their hearts that love of country which is the deepest, and often the strongest, passion in the hearts of men.

"Would ye like to go home and see how father is?" Luke asked his wife, looking round upon their family of six well-grown sons and daughters. "'Tis time we took a holiday, and though all my people are dead and gone, you will be glad to see yours, Nory."

So they got ready for the trip, which loomed forth as the great event of their later lives. The years, hard work, and climate had sorely changed the outer personalities; Luke was gaunt, hollow-eyed, and bent with the stress of years; Honora, though only forty-nine, was wrinkled, bowed in the back, and wore her full set of artificial teeth very badly.

They were not prepossessing as to looks, but they carried stout hearts under their quaintly-cut clothes, and a goodly sum of money for the needs of the trip. They wanted to see New York, so they spent a few days in that noisy, unhomely city, and on their second evening there they were attracted into a mission hall by the sound of singing. It was long since they had heard anything like this—the rise and fall of many voices in joyous unison. "Let us go in," said Luke, "'twill cheer us up."

They sat down just inside the door, and after the hymn a man who had given them books on entering, said: "Come this way, I've found you seats close by the preacher." They wanted to stay where they were, but the man continued to call them, so, to avoid attracting notice, they followed him.

When the speaker gave out his text, and was fairly on in his address, Luke and Honora wished themselves well away.

There was no church nearer than thirty miles to their western home, and as the years had sped, they found them filled with work and care, and they gave no thought to their souls in their zeal for the body and its needs. There are still others like them, who have the means of grace unnoticed at their very doors. When the meeting was over they hurried out, though they were pressed to stay. Luke became indignant: "I was never so miserable in my life," said he, "and if I stay I shall be greatly worse. So will she."

"That I will," chimed in Honora. "Come outside, Luke." That night they did not sleep—they could not.

"I've had all the fiends of hell at me!" Luke told his wife as he struggled into his clothes an hour after dawn. "A'nt you bin to sleep?"

"Not a wink," said Honora. "Can't we leave this city to-day?"

"That's my idea," Luke replied. "A place that makes one feel as I do since I bin here, is only fit for angels."

They were miserable—a power of which they knew nothing was working within them, filling them with self-dissatisfaction. Then they found they could not get a steamer for Liverpool until the Saturday—two days hence; they were desperate, and in their despair they sought out the fatal mission-room.

"They say as how a man is cured by a hair of the dog that bit him," said Luke. "Maybe, we'll feel good if we go again to the place where we first felt bad."

But the place was shut, and a dirty, battered door sullenly withstood their efforts to open it. They turned away.

"I believe I should feel better if I could pray a bit," said Honora. "It might ease the terrible ache in here."

She placed her hand over her heart, and Luke nodded. "That's the very spot where I'm so sorely pestered," said he.

Saturday came at last, and there were not two more wretched persons on board the steamer than Luke and Honora. They spoke to no one, but, silent and apart, nursed their deepening sorrow.

"Is you sick?" a child asked them on the third day.

"Very sick," said Honora; "sick enough to want to die."

"Well, I'm going to pray you well," the child said. "When my mamma's sick, we just pray about it to home."

The simple words touched Honora's homesick heart.

"I'd thought of praying about it myself," she said, "but he don't set no store by that kind o' thing. There won't be no harm in you praying for us, though, and I'll thank ye for 't."

That night the vessel tossed and rocked—Honora lay in her berth—praying! Presently Luke's voice called from his berth:—"Nory, I'm tryin' to pray. Could ye help me out a bit? I seem 'most sick of myself—is that how you feel?"

"I'm prayin', too, Luke—I've found out the way, and it do seem to ease me, perhaps we could pray together."

Only God knows what they asked, how they prayed, how they rolled all their burden of felt sin upon him—how they puzzled and wondered, and how at last, with a new peace in their hearts, they fell quietly and happily to sleep.

At breakfast next morning a man spoke to them:—"You look better! Been having a bad time?"

"Yes, pretty bad," answered Luke. "'Twas heart-trouble."

The stranger looked at both keenly, then he said:—"I believe I've seen you before, somewhere. But I see so many, perhaps I'm mistaken. Was ye ever in New York?" "To our sorrow, yes. Ah, wasn't you the preacher?" Luke asked, as he seized the man by the arm, "See, Nory, he's the man!"

Then it all came out. The man who had preached that night in the New York mission hall, was one of a missionary band from Liverpool; he was now returning home to work as usual, a little discouraged, and lo! here was a harvest of cheer.

That evening there was a praise-meeting in the saloon, for the Liverpool man had found other kindred spirits on board, and Luke and Honora, at peace with God in Jesus Christ, comprehending his love for them, yielded to his will, and having done with their old, dull past, wanted to begin the new life in sight of all, and with a service of thanksgiving.

"That child must come in," said Honora, "she'll understand." They had a glorious time, and many in the little gathering confessed to a much-needed quickening in their souls, while three came out boldly, confessing their need of salvation, and finding guidance and help through the missionary, and other Christians in the meeting.

When it was asked: "Have you any friends needing our prayers?" Honora timidly desired them to remember her father. "He's an old man, and I don't know as he's ready for heaven." Many asked that he might know the blessing of pardon and peace, and Luke and Honora felt they should see the answer. They dreaded leaving the ship—the birthplace of their new-found joy—but set out bravely for a suburb of Liverpool, where Honora's father was living with a married daughter.

"You are only just in time to see him alive," were the words they heard. "He's been ailing for weeks, but three days ago he felt a great change come over him—'I've got my orders,' he said, 'Two years ago I begun to get ready for heaven, and what was begun in a mission-hall has ended in Jesus—I'm ready now.'"

"And so he is," sobbed his daughter. "But you'll hardly understand, maybe."

She soon found that Luke and Honora not only understood, but that when the mission preacher called the next day to see his friends of the ship, they all rejoiced together in the knowledge that he had also been the means used of God to open the heart of Honora's father two years before.

"Why, the kingdom of God is full of grand surprises!" said Luke.

"That you'll find more and more as you go on," said the missioner.

In the room of the dying parent they all drew together as one, and the man who had shown them the way to God, and they who had found the way, held their glad and grateful harvest thanksgiving.

G.

THE NATIONAL VIGILANCE ASSOCIATION.

Throughout the summer the work of this Association, as also of the Medical and Preventive Homes, has been carried on without relaxation. At the Medical Home the beds are constantly full of young sufferers, and yet through all the winter and summer months not more than three or four visitors have been to the Home. Most of the patients are absolutely friendless, and if ladies would take an interest in the girls individually, much good might be done. Great influence is obtained over them during their time of sickness, and our chief aim is to lead them to Christ. When they leave we seek to place them in Christian households. Perhaps if we could tell their pathetic stories women's souls would be stirred to help those whose youth and ignorance, rather than determined wrong-doing, has made the special treatment of our Home necessary. We can only trust that the love of Christ will constrain friends to help this work more liberally. Since it was opened by Mrs. Josephine Butler in 1891, the results have been more than sufficient to prove the need for such a place of shelter and healing, and many of the former inmates are doing exceedingly well. But funds are now urgently required, and unless they are soon forthcoming we shall be compelled to close the Home to avoid debt, which we believe nothing justifies. The address is 179, King's-road, Camden-road, N.W.

We are also put to very considerable expense just now on behalf of the Training Homes at 1 and 3 Urswick-road, Hackney, N.E., for thorough sanitary repairs. We shall be glad if this very practical matter, so essential to the health of our large family of growing girls, is met by some of our friends, so that the weight of this unlooked-for expense may not cripple the funds for the general work. Reports can be had on application to the Secretary, 267, Strand, W.C., to whom all communications should be addressed.

NEW HOSPITAL IN JERUSALEM.

Steady progress is being made with the erection of the new Mission Hospital at Jerusalem. The hospital will have beds for forty patients, and will also have an out-patients' department. It is being erected outside the city, on the freehold property of the London Jews' Society—known as the "Sanatorium"—about three-quarters of a mile from Jaffa Gate.

The Medical Mission at Damascus will shortly be opened. Dr. Masterman, who has been absent from the Holy Land for a few months, owing to the illness of his wife, is returning next month to Jerusalem, whence he will proceed to Damascus with the least possible delay. He is taking temporary charge of the work for a year, at the expiration of which time it is hoped a permanent medical missionary may be appointed. Rev. J. F. and Mrs. Segall will thus see the realisation of their hopes, to bring about which they were so zealously active during their stay in England last year.

ZENANA BIBLE AND MEDICAL MISSION.—An interesting meeting in aid of this mission was held a few days ago at Mrs. Lewis's Homes, 77, Avenue Wagram, Paris. Dr. Riviere, one of the members of the Paris Council, took the chair. Miss Hamilton, the London secretary of the Mission, gave an earnest address on the work and needs of the Society, which was listened to throughout with marked interest and appreciation.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For a men's mission, being conducted this week by Mr. W. A. Boyd, of Dublin, in the Carlisle Y.M.C.A.—For great blessing on the Convention to be held in Kingstown, co. Dublin, September 16-21; and for the mission to men, to be conducted by the Rev. J. H. Thorpe, vicar of St. Saviour's, Nottingham, October 2 to 13, in the Men's Christian Institute.—For blessing on the services in the Hurstpierpoint Mission Gospel Tent at West Chillington, Sussex.

DR. BARNARDO'S HOMES.—On Thursday morning there was an animated scene at Euston, consequent on the departure for Liverpool, en route for Canada, of 308 emigrants (145 boys and 156 girls) from Dr. Barnardo's Homes. Attired in their seagoing dress, the young people attracted much attention. These constituted the third party for the current year from the institutions, and bring up the total number of emigrants sent out by the Homes to 7959 of whom less than 2 per cent. have failed to give satisfaction in the land of their adoption. The older lads will be settled down on the industrial farm of 10,000 acres in Manitoba, belonging to the Homes, and the remainder of the party will be placed in selected situations throughout Ontario. The whole group will be retained under careful supervision by agents of the Homes until they are able to act for themselves.

THE Y.M.C.A.

In Bury a new Association is being formed under hopeful auspices.

The new rooms lately opened at Aldershot are attracting fresh interest and extending the work.

The North of Ireland Union of Associations holds its annual conference at Omagh, Sept. 17 and 18.

The Leeds Sunday afternoon Bible-class has been held without intermission since 1893, and the attendance has been steadily increasing until there is an average attendance for the past eight months of 120. Several of the young men attending this class testify to the blessing they have received there. Similar encouragement attends the workers' training class, and lodging-house and open-air work.

Two drawing-room meetings, held on Wednesday and Thursday, in connection with the Newport (Mon.) Association, were addressed by Mr. W. Hind Smith. Mr. W. Pratt, solicitor, who has for a number of years acted as hon. sec. of the South Wales District Union, is retiring through pressure of business. It is hoped he will be succeeded by Mr. J. Edgar Baker, another earnest worker identified with the Newport Association.

The prospects of the work of the united London Association, at its three centres, in the coming season is very encouraging. At all three earnest efforts will continue to be made by means of young men's Gospel meetings to reach the careless and indifferent, as well as to help the anxious and the tempted. Bible-classes suitable for young converts, and also for the more advanced, will also be maintained at each centre. Mr. W. R. Lane opens the season with a special mission at Exeter Hall, Sept. 22 to Oct. 4.

The new Association at Gloucester, which has rented eligible premises known as Greyfriars House, was most successfully inaugurated on Thursday. The branch is largely the outcome of a mission by Mr. Geo. Clarke, and has been developed by Mr. W. Hind Smith and Mr. Geo. Holmes, of the National Council. A previously existing Young Men's Society has been amalgamated, and the membership stands already at considerably over 200. Sir George Williams, Mr. Robinson Souttar, M.P., Mr. E. E. Evans (Stroud), and other leading representatives of Association work took part in the opening proceedings. There was a very large gathering at the Guildhall in the evening, when Mr. Nelson Foster, president of the Association, occupied the chair, and was influentially supported by local friends. A collection in aid of the work amounted to £37. Mr. E. P. Garrett, assistant secretary of the Bristol Association, has been appointed general secretary by the Gloucester committee.

THE Y.W.C.A.

The "cold weather" is the time for work in India, and as it is approaching the call from the secretaries in various parts comes with a fresh emphasis, and the Master's "Who will go for us? Whom shall we send?" seems to sound in our ears.

What is the call to? To the English-speaking community in India. In the large centres of Government, in the growing railway centres, there is an increasing population of young women. Branches of the Y.W.C.A. are established in some of these cities, but secretaries are needed in many places—ladies who have means of their own, who could make India their home, at any rate for a few years.

As the result of a summer's work done by two ladies who went out less than a year ago, in co-operation with the Y.W.C.A. missioner in India and an Indian fellow-member, we have this report from a hill station:—

"We have been much lately in prayer about funds. God faileth never. I know you will rejoice to hear that our institute is quite a centre of blessing. Our sale increases every week. We are starting a little Sunday-school for native children. Miss Massey knows Hindi pretty well and Miss Lambert is learning it, so they will be able to make themselves understood. Such a multitude of children are growing up unable to read and with no knowledge of God, we long to do what little we can do to tell them of Jesus. Last week we collected quite a number of them round us on the hillside, it is so easy to draw them to us, a few kind looks and smiles and some singing, and in a quarter of an hour you have quite a little company. The children are bright and intelligent. Our Bible class for nurses is growing very slowly, but those who come are bringing others, so we trust that they are getting blessed. Our Bible reading for ladies is now being attended by several. Many missionaries before returning to their work come to our institute to buy books for themselves and others, and as we keep nothing but the most spiritual and helpful books, we feel that it must do good to spread these books in the different mission stations."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

A call has been issued for the first national convention of young Lutherans, to be held in Pittsburg, October 30 and 31.

The Brooklyn C.E. Union has held a conference of missionary committees. There was a large attendance of those interested in missions.

A novel method of awakening zeal and prayer in behalf of missionary work has been adopted by one Endeavour Society in America, which has undertaken the support of a native preacher in the Madura Mission, costing, above what the people themselves raise, £10 a year. This makes 11 cents a day. A card is prepared for each day of the year, and the member of the society taking that card pays the 11 cents, and promises to pray especially for that helper on that particular day. Thus alms and prayers go together.

Christian Endeavour, in its onward march in China, has reached its second milestone. The unanimous testimony from all over China is that the Christian Endeavour Society is an extremely efficient agency in the strengthening of the church by quickening its spiritual life. At the meetings in connection with the second annual convention of the United Society of Christian Endeavour for China, recently held in Shanghai, it was reported that during the past year great progress had been made. The number of societies had increased over 50 per cent., and the membership over 33 per cent. Fresh territory has been occupied, new societies having been formed in Peking, Nanking, Canton, Foochow, Ningpo, Shanghai, and several in the province of Shantung. One or two societies have been organised on men-of-war here in the East. The total number of societies now in China is seventy-four, with a membership of 1,536.

HOPE LODGE, LANCING-ON-SEA.

Mr. William Chorley, director of the North-East London Gospel Missions, writes from 6, Clephane-road, Canonbury, N.:—

"We have felt very much the need of more suitable accommodation for the many enfeebled mothers with weakly infants and young children, seeking rest and health at our Home at Lancing-on-Sea, Sussex. Our present premises afford but limited provision for these, while the quiet so necessary for the more aged and infirm is sadly interfered with under the present arrangements. We have now been offered (for the low sum of £425) a roomy detached house exactly opposite our present premises, and close to the sea, which would provide ample accommodation for twenty mothers and young children, with every convenience. The days are few that remain before the offer will be withdrawn. Those who know the peculiar fitness and eligible position of these premises for our work sincerely join with us in hoping we may be successful in acquiring them."

WEST MARYLEBONE MISSION, Lisson-grove, N.W. — The annual report of this Missionary tells of spiritual and temporal efforts made to reach the ungodly by Gospel meetings, children's meetings, Bible lectures, Bible-classes, prayer meetings, and conferences. Free meals for poor, dinners for invalids, general and medical relief, also house-to-house visitation, tract distribution, etc. The superintendent, Mr. James Sprunt, will be pleased to send a copy of the report to any who are interested.

SOLDIERS' CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—Many will be glad to know that their prayers were abundantly answered with regard to our mission amongst the soldiers at Ocknell camp. From the first a deepening interest was evinced amongst the men, and at the last meeting the large bell tent of the Evangelisation Society was crowded by soldiers to listen to the preaching of the Gospel, and the testimonies of their comrades as to God's power to save and keep. Many also confessed Christ for the first time at the meeting. Arthur H. Wheeler.

CONTINENTAL GAMBLING.—The London correspondent of the Birmingham Post says:—"Only four years have elapsed since the French authorities, after much hesitation, peremptorily cleared Calais and Boulogne of the presence of certain English betting firms, and, as the Belgian police have since followed the example in regard to Ostend, Holland is now the principal refuge, and will remain so until the Dutch administrative conscience is as smartly aroused as were the French and the Belgian. It is said that, in answer to hints which have been thrown out on the subject, the Dutch will plead a possible loss of postal revenue; but this is so trivial that it can scarcely be long entertained as an excuse. How long Holland will be allowed by its authorities to be made the dumping ground of those whom France and Belgium have excluded, is a question that at an early date, may become a practical one."

IRISH NOTES.

The Methodists of the Clones district have resolved to employ a colporteur to work in their district and neighbourhood.

The Irish auxiliary of the Church Missionary Society raised last year £14,358, an increase of £2700 on the previous year, which was also marked by an increase of £1627 on the year before that. This is a proof that a revived interest in foreign missions is springing up in Ireland.

Much regret is felt in the north of Ireland at the death of Rev. John Kinghan, for many years principal of the Institution for the Training of the Deaf, Dumb, and Blind, Belfast. Deceased, who was in his seventy-third year, was the author of several books for the use of the pupils under his care.

A new departure took place in connection with the autumnal district meetings of the Methodists, which were held last week throughout Ireland. Formerly these gatherings were always held in the third week of August. This year they were held in the first week in September. Formerly they were almost purely business meetings, but on this occasion a conference on the deepening of the spiritual life was held in connection with each of the ten districts into which Ireland is divided, and it is hoped as the result that much good will be accomplished.

SCOTTISH NOTES.

Rev. Dr. Mitford Mitchell, of the West Church, Aberdeen, has resigned his charge, owing to advancing years.

The Dundee U.P. Presbytery has had an earnest discussion on missions, and has resolved to hold a special conference on the subject in October.

Rev. John M. Macfie has been ordained by the United Presbyterian Presbytery of Glasgow as a missionary to be stationed in Manchuria, North China.

Rev. William Stewart died at his residence, Victoria-terrace, Burntisland, on Thursday afternoon, after a very short illness, at the advanced age of 84. He had recently recovered from a severe attack of influenza, and only a few weeks ago had resumed his duties.

The University of St. Andrews is building a Hall of Residence for its women students, on the lines of the Girton and Newnham Colleges at Cambridge, and the Oxford Halls for women. Miss Louisa Innes Lumsden, mistress of St. Leonards School, St. Andrews, has been appointed Warden of the Hall.

An Edinburgh correspondent writes: "I have often wondered why the 'Humanitarian League' has not extended its labours to Scotland. In Manchester I was, recently, much struck by the placards on all the cars, 'requesting passengers to stop the cars as seldom as possible (especially in going up hill), as the re-starting was a great strain on the horses.' Surely Edinburgh, with its numerous hills, might advantageously follow the example of Manchester, where the roads are fairly level."

Services for children have been held at Carnoustie, N.B., August 13-31. From the beginning God showed his power to save. The feature of the mission was the evidence of the permanence of last year's work. This enabled us to hold children's meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life. This year many children professed to give themselves to Jesus. The object service and Chinese lantern services were a great attraction. The interest of the children in the meetings was remarkable.

T. Grahame Bailey.

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the West of Scotland Convalescent Homes, Dunoon, was held last week in the Religious Institution Rooms, Glasgow. Sir James King presided. The secretary (Mr. William Maclean) read the annual report, which showed that 3749 patients had been accommodated during the year. Of these 3,537 were restored to health, 144 were relieved, 67 were not improved, and 1 died, while 208 remained in the institution. The total number admitted to the Homes now stood at 62,845. The income had been £7,203 4s. 6d., being 6s. 8d. more than the expenditure.

THE COUNTESS OF HUNTINGDON'S CONNEXION.—The annual gathering was held last week in the Spa Fields Chapel, King's Cross-road, and well attended by the ministers and delegates. Amongst other papers read was one by Rev. J. Mountain, of Tunbridge Wells, on the "Future obligations of the Connexion." Although the Connexion is a small one, it is not necessarily a feeble one, and the chief work of the future lay not only in preaching the Gospel free from sacerdotalism, but in planting liturgical churches in ritualistic neighbourhoods, where God's children are longing for a simple form of Divine worship. All present felt that there was a future of much usefulness for the Connexion working on these lines, and a hopeful spirit of earnest desire pervaded the meetings.

PERSONALIA.

Rev. G. D. Macgregor, formerly of 113, Clifton-hill, St. John's Wood, now resides at Blenheim Lodge, Marlborough Hill, Harrow.

Rev. John McNeill is expected to hold next month a special mission in Newcastle. He begins with meetings in the Olympia on October 6. Prayer is desired for much blessing.

Mr. James B. Wookey has received an invitation from the committee of the Imperial Mission, Hanley, to undertake the superintendence of the work there. He has not yet given his decision.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie, G.C.S.I., just appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, is the son of a Presbyterian minister, formerly of Birmingham, and has, both in the Central Provinces of India and in Burmah, shown great interest in missions. His brother is Mr. J. R. Mackenzie, secretary of the Monthly Tract Society.

Rev. C. P. Nash, formerly for several years a missionary of the Church Missionary Society among the Indians of North-west America, and subsequently curate to Canon Garratt at Ipswich, has been appointed deputation and organising secretary of the Evangelical Alliance. Mr. Nash will be glad of opportunities of addressing drawing-room and other meetings on behalf of the work of the Alliance.

Mr. J. Bennett Anderson, who left Liverpool five years ago for New South Wales, is returning to England. Mrs. Anderson writes: "Owing to the climate not agreeing with myself and daughter, we returned to England twelve months ago. The cause of my husband resigning is his desire also to return. Mr. Anderson will come by way of the Cape; he hopes, after spending a few weeks in South Africa, to arrive in England in November, and to find openings for evangelistic work.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Mr. R. Jones has been having good Gospel open-air services in some of the villages around Shrewsbury, including Anscroft, Longden, and Longden's Common, where most of the men are colliers.

Netherton, Worcestershire.—Mr. Sydney Vivian, of the Evangelisation Society, has held a successful five weeks' mission at Primrose Hill. The tent was crowded at every service, and often large numbers could not get in, but stood outside. The Gospel was preached with great power amid many signs of blessing. During a brief holiday of Mr. Vivian, Mr. Bradlaugh well sustained the work. H. L.

Rev. George C. Needham has been conducting special services under the auspices of the Belfast Y.M.C.A. during the past week. The meetings were largely attended, a prominent feature being the large number of young men present. The addresses were exceedingly impressive, and tokens of abundant blessing were evident throughout the Mission. Bible readings were given in the afternoons by Mrs. Needham in the Y.W.C.A.; while similar meetings were also held in the Y.M.C.A. D. A. BLACK.

Mr. John Greenwood, of the Evangelisation Society, concluded on Sunday a successful nineteen days' tent mission in Bell Common and Ivy Chimneys, Theydon Bois, Essex. His earnest and loving appeals have been, it is hoped, blessed to many who listened to God's plan of salvation so clearly set forth. Mr. Greenwood is peculiarly happy in his sermons to children, and his address to them on the words, "My son, give Me thine heart," has been responded to by little ones. Souls were saved, slumbering believers aroused, prayer answered, and many Christians sent on their way rejoicing.

Stoke Ash (Suffolk).—In the grounds of the Rectory of the above parish a successful mission was brought to a close on Sunday, September 1. In the year 1887, in commemoration of Her Majesty Queen Victoria's jubilee, the rector, Rev. C. Cary Bull, erected at his own expense a tent, capable of holding 200 to 250 persons. Here since then services have been held every year during the summer on Sunday evenings. At first the addresses were given by the rector, but afterwards, when his strength somewhat failed, these were delivered by laymen, including Mr. J. Wheatley, of Ipswich, who has assisted at the services for three years, and always spoken with much power. The great number of people who have attended these outdoor meetings from year to year is in itself an evidence that the working classes in our country parishes appreciate what is done for them in this way, and, irrespective of denominational distinctions, love to hear in a plain and simple way the blessed and soul-saving story of God's love to sinners.

Church Parochial Mission Society.—The following Missions have been arranged for the month of September, and it is hoped they will be made a subject of prayer by our readers:—Revs. W. Hay Aitken and James Stephens, Sept. 28—Oct. 14, Christ Church, Hampstead, N.W. Rev. J. P. Cushing, Sept. 21—27, Ardmore, co. Down; Sept. 28—Oct. 7, Muckamore, co. Antrim. Rev. T. J. Madden, Sept. 22—30, Bhirehampton, Bristol. Rev. J. M. Spicer, Sept. 28—Oct. 9, Killy, Bushmills, Ireland.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

THE Dean of Durham has returned to the Deanery greatly restored in health.

Canon Fleming has arrived in York for a three months' residence at the Minster.

The York Diocesan Conference will be held in the Victoria Hall, Goodramgate, October 23 and 24.

Rev. Dr. E. S. Talbot is to be consecrated Bishop of Rochester in Westminster Abbey on October 18.

St. Martin's Church, Ludgate-hill, which has been closed for six years, has been again opened for religious services.

A series of lectures on English Church history is to be delivered in St. Paul's Cathedral during November and December.

Much sympathy will be felt with Rev. T. Aston-Binns, hon. sec. of the British and Foreign Bible Society, whose wife has just died at Chamonix.

Rev. J. Thornberry, formerly of Fishergate, Brighton, has been appointed to the Protestant Reformed Episcopal Church, Barnstaple, North Devon.

Rev. W. J. Stobart, finding it necessary to take a holiday of some months' duration, is taking the opportunity for a long-desired visit to some of the great mission fields of the Church.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has issued a pastoral, in which he urges Churchmen: "1. To preserve in purity and in loyalty the faith and practice which characterised our primitive Catholic and Scriptural reformation—a renewal in which Church, and family, and individual claim their part—a renewal which courts above everything the examination of its principles. 2. To avoid all that can cause confusion or weakness by either excess or defect. 3. To grow stronger in prayer that the Lord of the Church would interpret to us his own prayer, that we all may be one in the oneness of Father and Son, and the Father Himself answer and fulfil it."

The increase of paupers in Poplar from 514 in August, 1894, to 604 in August, 1895, and the City indoor and outdoor pauperism having risen from ninety-three in August, 1894, to 254 in 1895, has led to extensive preparations being made for the coming winter in the Church Army Labour Homes. The pressure is very great upon the central staff, most of whom are not only unpaid, but the profits on the publications cover the cost of the necessarily salaried officials. The authorities are anxious to welcome more voluntary helpers, who feel that to permanently benefit selected individuals by hard labour and real religion is far better than any attempt to treat the outcast en masse. Rev. W. Carlile, hon. chief sec., 130, Edgware-road, is instructed to furnish fullest particulars to ladies and gentlemen who could afford to give either the whole or only a part of their time in visiting the homes or in correspondence.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. W. A. Legg has commenced his labours at the Town Hall, Streatham.

Rev. R. Harley has concluded his ministry at Heath Church, Halifax.

Rev. M. Davies, late of Bolton, has commenced his ministry at Laister Dyke.

Services have been commenced at the village of Staple Street, by friends from Faversham.

Dr. Alexander Mackenzie, of Cambridge, U.S.A., occupied the pulpit at East Hill, Wandsworth, on Sunday.

The weekly prayer-meeting at the London Mission House, will, in future, be held on Thursdays from 4 to 5 p.m., instead of Mondays at noon.

The annual meetings of Lady Huntingdon's Connexion were held last week in Spa Fields Chapel. The President (Rev. Wm. J. Bull) delivered the annual address on "Present Day Duty." Among the matters dealt with was a scheme for unifying the Connexional Trusts. The place of meeting for the year 1896 will be Bath.

Four years ago when Rev. G. Ernest Thorn was called to labour in Lower Edmonton district, the outlook was dark in the extreme. On his first morning only eighteen were present, while a heavy debt of £6,500 burdened the work. A Christian band for young people was formed to awaken a spirit of consecration amongst the members. Every Saturday morning during the winter of 1891—1892, invitations were distributed to between three and four thousand working men travelling by the early trains. The result was soon apparent in a crowded church. The ensuing winter a series of undenominational evangelistic meetings were held, after Sunday evening service, in the Town Hall. For three seasons these have been carried on without intermission. In one season alone there were upwards of 100 conversions and three or four hundred pledges, while men and women once atheists, indifferents, or scoffers, were gathered in. When the work started there were forty children in the Sunday-school, to-day there are over 800. Hence enlargement has become necessary. It has been determined to erect an iron hall, but £500 is needed. Two friends have given a site, and one has promised £100 when the first £250 is raised, while another has promised £25 if someone else gives a like amount. The pastor is Rev. G. E. Thorn, Beulah, Lower Edmonton, N.

Calls.—Rev. H. E. Arkell, of Dewsbury, to Catford Bridge; Mr. W. Baker, of Bilston, to Wethinfield, Connecticut.

Resignations.—Rev. C. Clay, of Lymm; Rev. W. Crick, of Burgess Hill; Rev. A. Kluht, of Billericay.

BAPTIST.

The address of Rev. W. H. King, of Highbury, will from this date be 3, Cromwell-avenue, Highgate.

Rev. T. Barrass, the oldest Nonconformist minister in Peterborough, has entered upon the forty-third year of his pastorate.

Miss de Halles, who left Liverpool last week for the Congo, will be stationed with Mr. and Mrs. Grenfell, at Bopoto.

Rev. D. J. Hiley, who has been touring in the United States and Canada, preached to large congregations at Broadmead Chapel, Bristol, on Sunday.

Much sympathy will be felt with Rev. W. and Mrs. Williams, of Upton Chapel, who lament the death of their son George Herbert, aged twelve, who died on Friday, through an accident.

Rev. Frank Russell, of Westminster-road Baptist Chapel, Liverpool, baptized six candidates on Wednesday week, and received ten into church fellowship at the ordinance of the Lord's Supper on Sunday, September 1.

A meeting to take leave of Mr. J. Bell, who is leaving for the Congo, was held at Kennington-lane Chapel, Vauxhall. A large number of friends, including several students from Regent's Park College, were present. Mr. Bell sails from Antwerp by the s.s. Edward Bohlen, and is designated for Wathen Station. Mrs. Phillips will also voyage by the same vessel to rejoin her husband, Rev. H. Ross Phillips, who is located at San Salvador.

It is stated that twelve of the late Mr. Spurgeon's sermons have been translated into Bengali and published under the title, "The Heaven-gone Mahatma, C. H. Spurgeon." Mr. Robert Spurgeon writes: "The word 'Mahatma' is a current word in Bengali, and has around it or within it no mystic idea such as Mrs. Besant gives it. It is made up of two words, 'Maha,' meaning 'great,' and 'Atma,' meaning 'spirit.' Thus the dictionary renders it, 'magnanimous, great-minded, generous, noble-spirited.' The common acceptation of the word is 'great-souled,' or "the great and famous one.'"

Calls.—Rev. J. H. Jackman, of Pastor's College, to Peterborough (assistant) Rev. J. Jones, of Llandysil, to Cefn Mawr; Mr. J. D. Thomas, of Aberystwith, to Talgarth Brecon.

Resignations.—Rev. G. Dunnett, of Darkhouse, Coseley. Rev. R. Baily, of Park Chapel, Brentford; Rev. C. B. Williams, of Beverley.

METHODIST.

Mr. Isaac Hoyle has given £1,000 towards the extinction of the Missionary Society's debt, in memory of his wife.

New chapels are being erected in Ilford; Alphington, near Exeter; Shiloh, Tregarth; Cawthorne; and Felixstowe.

Rev. T. W. S. Jones, who has been in charge of the Wesleyan church at Naples since 1862, is now on a visit to England.

Of the 651 new Wesleyan ministerial appointments, 408 are the result of provisional engagements entered into previously between ministers and circuits; 615 were actually settled in the Stationing Committee, and only 36 in the discussion which took place in open cases.

Rev. Dr. Stephenson has added to his colony at Edgworth, a house known as the Watson Home, the house having been paid for out of a legacy from Mr. Chas. Watson, of Halifax. It is expected that children from the surrounding towns will be sent there for a brief holiday in the summer, the cost to be borne by their parents.

The Army and Navy Rooms at Portsmouth itself have, by Mr. Sharpley's and Mr. Punter's labours, been turned to good account. Among other good works of which they are the centre, there is a Sunday afternoon Bible-class, in which some eighty soldiers and sailors meet, and the chaplain has a promising weekly temperance meeting.

The forty-seventh annual conference of the Wesleyan Reform Union has been held at Wellingborough under the presidency of Mr. T. Johnson. Mr. J. T. Beale was elected president for the ensuing year. The committee's report stated that the statistics showed an increase of 67 members, 14 preachers, 247 Sunday scholars, and 1240 adult scholars.

Mr. Thomas Champness announced his intention of using the house at Rochdale, the lease of which the Joyful News Mission holds for five years longer, as a home for the training of local preachers who may desire to be evangelists, or who may prefer to go back to the circuits from which they came. Mr. Champness and Rev. Joseph Todhunter offer their best services to young men during the coming winter.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Principal Edwards, who is at present at Carlsbad, is fast improving in health.

Mr. James Pringle has been appointed student missionary in connection with St. George's Church, Brondesbury.

Mr. B. P. Wright, ex-Mayor of Stafford and an elder of Stafford Church, has compiled a history of the church, which was established in 1689. The original building still stands.

When the call from Walker to Rev. John McCracken, of St. Kilda, Jarrow, came before the Presbytery of Newcastle, Mr. McCracken stated that he felt constrained by the claims of Jarrow to decline the call.

A strong feeling prevails among Welsh Calvinists in favour of amalgamating Bala and Trevecca Colleges and establishing one strong theological college for the denomination in some central town such as Aberystwyth.

Calls.—Rev. John M'Cracken, of Jarrow, to Walker; Rev. K. D. M'Laren, to Ruthrieston; Rev. Donald Campbell, of Rothes, to Free St. Paul's, Glasgow; Rev. John Brenan, of Carrigaller, to Kilkenny.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

Operations will be commenced in the Bermuda Islands during the autumn.

Mr. Ballington Booth is about to open the third corps in the Hawaiian Islands.

A farm colony at Bartelaar has been purchased for the social work in Holland.

A shop for the manufacture of wicker-work has been started in connection with the Christiania Shelter.

Brigadier Tait, the leader of the Army work in Belgium, is opening a women's shelter in Molenbeck. A captain, who was formerly a Dutch nurse, will take charge.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

At Forest Gate, on 3rd inst., Rev. GEORGE WYARD, aged sixty-three, for years an earnest and faithful Baptist minister at Stevenage and elsewhere.—At Liskeard, Mr. GEORGE ROGERS, aged eighty-seven, a leading spirit among the Methodists.—At Kidsgrove, Mr. WILLIAM PHILLIPS, for forty years a useful preacher and Bible-class leader.—At Whitehills, Mr. H. WATSON, aged ninety, for many years a useful worker.—At Rhyl, Rev. R. WILLIAMS, a faithful and useful minister of Christ.—At Bishop Auckland, Mr. ROBERT HEDLEY, a large and liberal giver.—At Ashfield, Sydney, Rev. DANIEL JONES, formerly well known as a Congregational minister in Liverpool.—At Torquay, Mr. MORTON SPARKE, an active helper.—At Watton, Mr. E. R. GRIGSON, aged eighty-one, a quiet, faithful Christian.—At Sheffield, on 2nd inst., Mr. J. W. PYE SMITH, town clerk, an earnest Christian and leader in many evangelistic and philanthropic works.—At Montreal, Rev. GEORGE CORNISH, professor at McGill University, and the honoured pastor of Emmanuel Church.

Notices.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—J. Williams, Seamen's Mission, Guernsey; C. J. Hudson, 9, Clive-road, Rochester, Kent; Miss Amy Medhurst, 1, Western-villas, Western-road, Littlehampton, Sussex; Miss E. Blackmore (deaconess), 37, Tomkinson-street, Hoole, Chester; W. Midwinter, Utile Dulci, Baker-street, Weston-super-Mare; R. Jones, Holly Cottage, Brace Meol, Shrewsbury.

☞ As it is found that infidels and others send papers to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers should be CAREFULLY READ before being given away.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS. — J.C.L. H.M.H. T.B. F.E.P. T.A.Y. G.S.W. M.L.J. E.S W.A.B. Mrs. M.N. A.E.G. C.McN. W.C. F.S. J.H S.C. W.T. N. de C. L.G.F. A.F. S.D. L.S. W.B.B. M.G.J.S. H.M.G. M.A. W.B.S. J.G. R.C. C.B.B. G.G. E.J. T.S.M. H.S. M.H.C. J.C.M. E.P. Le F. E.L. J.A. S.W.B. E.E.F. G.C.N. W.A.C. W.A.S. A.J. W.R. P.F. A.M.C. H.E. W.J.T. A.M. H.S. C.S.A. C.E.B. P.W. I.S.R. G. de G.G. A.H. T.R. E.P. C.W. General H. E.R.Y. A.J.S. S.H. J.W. C.A.L. J.A. A.M. C.A.B. G.J.W. C.B.C. S.S.L. N.N. H.M. E.W.M. S.S.B. G.D.M. H.T. J.E.E.

OBITUARY.

REV. ANGUS M'KENNA.

The death of Rev. Angus M'Kenna, of the Baptist Missionary Society, occurred in the General Hospital, Calcutta, on Monday, August 5. He began his missionary career almost forty years ago, although at the time of his death he was but sixty-two years of age. During his life as a missionary he has been stationed in a number of places in Bengal, the last being Soory.

MRS. MADDEN, BOMBAY.

This well-known and greatly-loved missionary (Methodist Episcopal) passed away on Wednesday, August 7. A memorial gathering, arranged by the W.C.T.U., of which she was a leading member, was largely attended. Rev. H. A. Crane dwelt upon her earnestness and her endurance, and made mention of the mission in New York, which Mr. and Mrs. Madden left for work in India, and of which they were among the pioneers. This is now a flourishing mission. Mrs. Stephens, of Bombay, spoke of Mrs. Madden's spiritual experience, and of the great blessing she received at the last Lanowli camp meeting. She had been a great sufferer, but had learned to take strength from Jesus day by day. Mr. James Morris closed by mention of Mrs. Madden's work amongst the seamen.

MISS MARIANNE SELENA DOVE.

Many will hear with regret of the death of Miss Dove, of Falfield, which occurred on Saturday last, at Hereford, where she and her sister were visiting friends. As local secretary of the Y.W.C.A., of the Bible Society, and London Missionary Society, Miss Dove was well known, while as a Sunday school teacher and helper in all Christian and philanthropic work, she will be greatly missed in the neighbourhood. For her own immediate friends, and especially for the only surviving sister from whom she was, in life, inseparable, great sympathy is felt. In many a home, far and near, and especially in many a missionary home, her name was well known; but it was, most of all, by her lowly, consistent life, that she commended the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

MR. JOHN WHITE.

We much regret to learn of the death of Mr. John White, which took place at Eastbourne on the 5th inst., after an illness of some months' duration. As a man of business, Mr. White had earned considerable distinction, having been for very many years the general manager of the firm of W. H. Smith and Son, with whom he had been associated for nearly half a century. From his earliest life, Mr. White had been deeply interested in Christian work, and of late years particularly in that of the Young Men's Christian Association, who have lost by his death a valuable supporter and an energetic worker. His position, in addition to enabling him to afford practical support, which he did most generously, also enabled him to exert a practical and personal influence over the men who worked under his supervision, an influence for which many of them will never cease to be grateful.

His life, in its perfect rectitude, was a great power. He organised a Bible class in connection with the great house of business in the Strand, which he personally conducted, and which was continued until a short time before illness necessitated a retirement which it was hoped at the time would only be temporary. He made it a personal request to the men to attend this class, and did all that was possible to arouse and stimulate concern in their highest interests. His influence was the greater on account of the personal charm of his appearance and manner, and the affection and esteem of his subordinates is one of the greatest tributes to his memory. More than one of the men who had worked with him for nearly forty years, remarked within the hearing of the present writer, that never, during the whole of that time, had he uttered a word in unreasonable anger, or addressed to them a remark that they might wish recalled.

This is a great testimony to the power of God's grace when the annoyances and worries inseparable from a business life are so liable to upset the balance of even the best-intentioned man. He made no secret of the source of his strength, and whilst his energies were exerted to their utmost in his temporal affairs, and no devotion to them was too wearying, the instinctive bent of his thoughts and inclinations was ever towards the life beyond.

He was a Churchman, but unsectarian in his sympathies, and in his charities, the extent of which will never be known. It may be said with perfect truth that he was one of the few men who have moulded circumstances and set adversity at defiance; one of the few who, dying, has left a gap in the world that will not soon be filled.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS have held a conference at Leicester, on work among juveniles.

DONATIONS

RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1895.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or Post Office Orders, not by stamps.

 Will donors oblige by stating explicitly and fully the titles of the institutions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Further correspondence will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders should be made payable to Messrs. Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, London, E.C., and crossed "City Bank"; this will effectually prevent loss.

	£.	s.	d.
C. M., Dublin.—Please say which Mission to Jews.
Spanish and Portuguese Church Aid Society (Bible Work)—Lux in Tenebris	0	10	0
Paris City Mission—Lux in Tenebris	1	0	0
Count Campello's Work, Italy—Lux in Tenebris	0	10	0
Work at Iquique, Chili (A Lady's Maintenance)—Ryde	5	0	0
Tibetan Pioneer Mission (Miss A. Taylor)— E. H., Redhill	0	5	0
London Missionary Society—L. G. D. G., £1; (Centenary Fund) E. H., Redhill, 5s.	1	5	0
Armeni an Relief Fund—T. W., 10s.; Memorandum, £5; Recovered Income Tax, 6s.; S. L. R., 10s.; G. M., 5s.	6	11	0
China Inland Mission—M. A., 3s. 6d.; R. F., £1; Thankoffering, 5s.; Recovered Income Tax, £1; J. C. M., £1; M. W., £1	4	8	6
British and Foreign Bible Society—R. 'E., 5s.; N., 2s. 6d.; Thankoffering, 5s.; M. W., £1	1	12	6
Montorfano Building Fund—Alpha, 5s.; D., £5	5	5	0
Wesleyan Mission in France—Alpha	0	5	0
Protestant Home, Milan—Alpha, 5s.; N., 2s. 6d.	0	7	6
Church Missionary Society—D., £5; L. G. D. G., £1; (Medical Missions) M. W., £1	7	0	0
Baptist Missionary Society—D.	5	0	0
South Africa General Mission—D.	5	0	0
Moravian Lepers—(Dutch Guinea) D., £5; (Central America) D., £5	10	0	0
United Presbyterian Missionary Society—D.	5	0	0
Anti-Opium Society—J. C. P.	0	5	0
Soc. Relief Persecuted Jews—N., 2s. 6d.; J. H., £1.	1	2	6
Mission to Lepers of India, etc.—E. C. C., £1; M. W., 10s.	1	10	0
Mr. Warszawiak's Work (Christ's Synagogue)—A. A.	1	15	0
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission—Recovered Income Tax	1	0	0
Yiddish Bible Translation Fund (Mr. Bergmann)—2 Cor. ix. 10-12	5	0	0
Mr. W. H. Sloan's Work, Mexico—2 Cor. ix. 10-12.	5	0	0
McAll Mission, France—M. W.	1	0	0
Miss De Broen's Work—M. W.	0	10	0
Asylums at La Force—M. W.	0	10	0
Mr. Rabinowitz' Work—M. W.	0	10	0
North Africa Mission—M. W.	0	10	0
South American Missionary Society—E. S.	0	5	0
Persecuted Stundists, Russia—H. L. G. A.	0	10	0
Blackfoot Mission, Calgary (Rev. J. W. Tims)—Dowager Lady S.	5	0	0
Dr. Grattan Guinness's Work—E. C. C., £1; (Home and Foreign Missions) Thankoffering, 5s.	1	5	0
Trinitarian Bible Society—Lux in Tenebris	0	10	0
Friendless and Fallen—Lux in Tenebris, 5s.; N., 5s.	0	10	0
Day in Country Fund—A. I. P., 2s. 6d.; J. W. V., £5; A Friend, 2s. 6d.; M. R. H., £5; Alpha, 5s.; F. C., 5s.; J. S., 6s. 2d.; J. D., 2s.; J. W., £2; Hope, 5s.; Mrs. G. P., 10s.; A. M. O. C., £1; W. R. V., £5; Misses P., 10s.; M. W., 10s.; J. W. G. O., £3; S. B., 5s.	24	3	2
Poor Sick Children's Country Holiday—Constant Reader, 3s.; C. W. S., £2; N., 5s.; E. C. C., £1	3	8	0
Ragged School Union—R. E., 5s.; (Day in Country) Thankoffering, 5s.; (Holiday Fund) S. L. R., 5s.	0	15	0
Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh—2 Cor. ix. 10-12, £5; (Legal Expenses) Alpha, 5s.	5	5	0
Mission Deep Sea Fishermen—D., £5; Newington, 5s.; M. W., £1	6	5	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—N., 5s.; E. C. C., £1; Thankoffering, 5s.; 2 Cor. ix. 10-12, £20; M. W., £1; (Emigration) E. M. and L. M., 15s.	23	5	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—Hope, 2s. 6d.; 2 Cor. ix. 10-12, £5; M. W., £1; (Day in Country) E. C. C., £1	7	2	6
Miss Mittendorff's Homes—J. C. P., 5s.; 2 Cor. ix. 10-12, £5	5	5	0
Salvation Army—J. C. P.	0	5	0
Scripture Readers' Society Ireland—J. C. P., 5s.; N., 2s. 6d.	0	7	6
Children's Country Holiday Fund—M. C., 2s. 6d.; N. R., 5s.	0	7	6
Convalescent Home, Sandgate—E. B. D.	1	1	0
Protestant Reformation Society—N.	0	2	6
George Yard Ragged School—N., 2s. 6d.; Thankoffering, 5s.	0	7	6
National Refuges for Homeless Children—N.	0	2	6
Flower Girls' Mission—N.	0	2	6
Deptford Poor Boys (Mr. Punnett)—N.	0	2	6
Operative Jewish Converts' Institution—N., 2s. 6d.; E. C. C., £1	1	2	6
Christian Blind Relief Society—E. C. C., £1; S. L. R., 5s.	1	5	0
Homes Aged Blind, Crouch Hill—E. C. C.	1	0	0
Friedenheim Home for Dying—E. C. C.	1	0	0
Mr. Fegan's Homes—Thankoffering, 5s.; 2 Cor. ix. 10-12, £5	5	5	0
The Spurgeon Orphanage—Recovered Income Tax, £1; E. W., £2	3	0	0
Children's Fresh Air Mission—J. H.	0	10	0
Liberator Relief Fund—A. M., per G. B.	5	0	0
Home for the Fatherless (Mr. Toye)—2 Cor. ix. 10-12	20	0	0
Bridge of Hope (Miss Steer)—2 Cor. ix. 10-12	10	0	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—M. W.	1	0	0
Miss Weston's Work, R.N.—M. W.	1	0	0
Miss Robinson's Work—M. W.	1	0	0
London City Mission—M. W.	1	0	0
Mrs. Meredith's Work—M. W.	0	10	0
Sailors' Welcome Home (Miss Child)—M. W.	0	10	0
Gratuitous Circulation of "The Christian"—M. W.	0	5	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—C. L. M. T.	1	0	0
Total	£218	6	8

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Mildmay Mission to the Jews.—M. B., 2s.

Convalescent Home for City Workwomen.—A., £1.

LONDON FEMALE GUARDIAN SOCIETY.

Testamentary Bequests are earnestly solicited.

Founded 1807 to rescue souls and bodies from destruction, to lift up the poor trampled flower of womanhood, to cleanse it from the blight of impurity, and, in the beauty of holiness to present it afresh to God.

President—
THE LORD KINNAIRD.

Ten Thousand Betrayed and Fallen women have been welcomed to these Homes, shielded from evil, instructed in the way of righteousness, and freely supplied with food, clothing, education, and residence for eighteen months; while Thousands of Cases have been advised, helped, and sheltered. Persons interested in Rescue Work are invited to send cases.

FUNDS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED,
And may be sent to the Office of THE CHRISTIAN, or will be thankfully received by Mr. W. E. PAGE, Secretary, at the Institution,
191. HIGH STREET, STOKE NEWINGTON, LONDON, N.

THE CHRISTIAN BLIND RELIEF SOCIETY.

Under the Patronage of H.M. the QUEEN.

President - - LORD EGERTON OF TATTON.

W. WAINWRIGHT, Esq., Hon. Treasurer.

No paid officials. No voting. No office expenses. No weary waiting for years. Aids 524 Pensioners in the United Kingdom. 51 Candidates waiting for Relief, six of whom are over 60, six over 70, and one over 83 years of age. Do HELP these poor afflicted ones!

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED.

Hon. Sec., Rev. J. PULLEIN THOMPSON, The Vicarage, Tite-street, Chelsea, S.W.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

FUNDS NEEDED to extend the work. Irish-speaking Scripture Readers are sent where required, and the work is carried on in a spirit of love and not of controversy. Reports to be had from the Secretary, Capt. J. KEARNEY WHITE. Offices: 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and No. 9, Paternoster-row, London, where Donations may be sent; or to the Office of THE CHRISTIAN. John xiii. 35.

ST. GILES' CHRISTIAN MISSION.

Fresh Air, Wholesome Food, and Home Comforts
FOR
SICKLY, DESTITUTE, & ORPHAN CHILDREN

Their need is great, and strongly pleads for help.

WILL YOU GIVE IT?

And enable us to benefit a large number by

A Fortnight's Stay in our Holiday Homes,

and to

PROVIDE A PERMANENT HOME

for those

Destitute and Orphan Children needing our aid.

Contributions will be gratefully received by
F. A. BEVAN, Esq., Treasurer,
54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or
WILLIAM WHEATLEY, Superintendent,
4, Ampton-street, Regent-square, W.C.

UNFERMENTED
PORT WINE AND BARK.
AN EXCELLENT NON-ALCOHOLIC TONIC AND RESTORATIVE after Typhoid, Scarlet and Rheumatic Fevers, Influenza, etc.
Sample Half-Bottle Free by Parcel Post for 2/9.
Prospectus, giving full particulars of price, dose, etc., Post Free on application.
F. WRIGHT, MUNDY, AND CO.,
Merton-road, Kensington Court, London, W.

NATIONAL PROVIDENT INSTITUTION.
For Mutual Life Assurance.
Invested Funds, £4,700,000.
Paid in Claims, £9,000,000.
Estd. 1835.

All the Profits are Divided amongst the Assured; already divided, £4,600,000.

DEATH DUTIES provided for by LIFE ASSURANCE.

48, GRACECHURCH STREET, LONDON, E.C.
ARTHUR SMITHER, Actuary & Secretary

APPLICATIONS FOR AGENCIES INVITED

TO LET, APARTMENTS, ETC.

(Continued from page 3.)

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Home of Rest for ladies and gentlemen, close to sea. Reduction in railway fares. Removed from Alexandra-terrace to Bude Wilson-road, West Cliffe.—Apply, with stamp, PRINCIPAL. c7200

SWANAGE Y.W.C.A., Ridley House.—Seaside holiday home for business young ladies, governesses, Christian workers, and others. Bracing climate. Near sea and hills. Private bedrooms. Terms from 14s. 6d.—Apply, Miss SOUTHWORTH. c5414

TORQUAY. — Cheerful, comfortable Young Women's Christian Association Home, Gambleville. Terms, 10s., 12s. 6d., 15s.; non-members, 12s. 6d., 15s., 16s.; confirmed invalids inadmissible.—Address, Miss JESSIE COOMBS, Torquay. Stamped envelope. c1549

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Home of Rest for Ladies, Inversnaid, Lonsdale Gardens. Recommended by Miss Annie Macpherson. Terms from 25s.—Address, Miss WOODFALL or Miss BOGUE, 9, Mount Ephraim-road, Tunbridge Wells. c5370

VENTNOR. — Beaconsfield, Steephill-road. Superior home. Governesses. Young ladies in business. Lovely view. Close to sea and park. Shared room 15s., single room from 1 guinea.—Apply, SECRETARY. Stamped envelope. c6613

VENTNOR, I.O.W.—COTTAGE apartments, clean, comfortable, not far from beach or rail. One bed-sitting-room, suit two lady friends or married couple. Terms moderate.—Mrs. BULL, 3, St. Catherine's-cottage, The Grove, Ventnor, I. of W. c7306

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Lady can receive one or two paying guests. Pretty cottage, outside town, near park, sea, omnibus. Air invigorating. Invalids especial care. Permanent or temporary. References exchanged.—c7247, Haddon's Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7347

WEYMOUTH.—Home from Home.—Winterslow House. Lovely view of harbour and bay. Terms for board and residence: Summer, from 25s.; winter, from 21s. Stamp. c6804

WORTHING.—COMFORTABLE HOME FOR VISITORS.—Close to sea and parade. Sheltered position. Invalids received for winter. Ladies from 21s., gentlemen from 23s.—Mrs. H., 1, Howard-terrace, West-street. c7210

WORTHING. — LARGE DETACHED house near station and sea. Board and residence, 18s. and 21s. per week. Bed and private sitting-room from 18s.—Mr. or Mrs. LA VANDER, Fellowship House. c7196

ADVERTISERS WISH TO MEET with some homely Christian ladies to board with them. Ten miles from London. Permanency. From 21s. per week.—c7240, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7240

ASTHMA OR BRONCHITIS.—Ladies or Gentlemen suffering from these complaints (or others), will be received by a lady living in a charming house (no stairs), in the most beneficial part of the Isle of Wight at very moderate terms.—Apply, Miss PURKISS, Park Mansion, St. Leonards-on-Sea, Sussex. c6885

A COMFORTABLE HOME, with or without board, with a lady and her daughter, in a pleasant country town. Terms moderate. References exchanged.—Mrs. EDWARDS, 2, Priory-villas, Calne, Wilts. c7313

A COMFORTABLE, PLEASANT and superior house for Board and Residence, with large and small bedrooms, gardens. References, clergy and others.—Mr. and Mrs. BOTTON, 14, Brunswick-square, Bloomsbury, London. c7104

A LADY CAN BE RECEIVED at a vicarage, near Bath and Bristol. Board and residence, £1 5s. weekly. Beautiful country. Evangelical ministry.—H. C. W., Thatcher's Library, Bristol. c7175

A LADY WISHES to meet with another or two sisters, engaged during the day, to share her home. Terms moderate.—HOME, care of Mr. BOOME, Commerce-road, Wood Green. c7293

A LADY OF LIMITED MEANS seeks one in like position to share her cottage-home in a village between Truro and Falmouth. Terms on application. —Miss FARQUHARSON, Devoran, Cornwall. c7184

A LADY WISHES to recommend a very comfortable home at Hove. Advertiser's own house. Kind attention given. Lovely views, fine air. Most moderate terms.—Miss BRIGHT, 2, Ranelagh-villas, Hove. c7167

BOARDERS.—Bachelor, with comfortable house, desires to receive two gentlemen boarders, students or business men. Christians preferred. Terms moderate. References exchanged.—T.W., 89, Wandsworth Bridge-road, Fulham, S.W. c7273

CHAPEL, N.E. LONDON, TO BE LET, or freehold would be sold to an Evangelical Christian denomination. Will accommodate 750, good condition, exterior repaired and painted this year. Present congregation unsectarian.—Apply by letter, HART, 39, Hampstead-road, N.W. c7370

CHEERFUL, COMFORTABLE Home for Ladies. Very commodious, handsome residence, with every accommodation, from 15s. per week.—Address, THE SUPERINTENDENT, Somerset House, Norwood-road, S.E. c5441

CHRISTIAN HOME in a pleasant country town offered to one or two ladies. Home liberty. Terms, 18s. 6d. Two sharing bedroom, 15s. each.—c7287, Messrs. Haddon, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7287

COMFORTABLY FURNISHED SEA-SIDE COTTAGE at Rustington to let, from September 14, for the winter. Six rooms, stable, donkey and car, piano. South aspect. On main road between Littlehampton and Worthing.—B., 20, Rose-hill-road, Wandsworth. c7304

COMFORTABLE HOME OFFERED to gentleman or lady in Congregational minister's family. Two children. Extensive views of river and valley of Medway. High and healthy situation. Bath-room. Cheap steamboat communication with Kentish watering-places. Twenty-eight miles from London. Moderate terms. References given and expected.—Address, Rev. W. HARRISON TOWLE, The Burrs, Strood Hill, Rochester. c7205

COMFORTABLE HOME offered in private Christian family to ladies or gentlemen. Large, well-appointed house, most conveniently situated in healthy and pretty suburb. Moderate terms. Highest references.—c7310, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C c7310

SCRIPTURE LANTERN SLIDES.

MOST IMPORTANT FOR MISSIONARIES, PREACHERS, AND TEACHERS.

To be fully equipped with a stock of our Lantern Sets from THE LANTERN BIBLE. Old Testament, 720 slides; New Testament, 720 slides. All different. Magnificent selection of Pictures and Texts. Small sets comprise Lives of Abraham (40); Joseph (21); Moses (36); David (40); Prophets (18); Women of the Bible (18). LIFE OF CHRIST (40).—Birth and childhood; Christ on Calvary; Lost Sheep; Brazen Serpent. MINISTRY OF ANGELS.—Blind Bartimæus, Lives of Peter and Paul, etc., etc. ALL THE BEST HYMNS. "Nothing could excel or equal them."—The Christian Union. "Much the most comprehensive of any series of pictures yet prepared."—Help. "Very complete. . . . of value to Schools, Bible Classes, etc."—Photographic Times.

CATALOGUES GRATIS ON APPLICATION—STEVEN BROS., 33, Osborne-street, City, Glasgow.

BEST & CHEAPEST COOKED FOOD

TRADE MARK

"FRAME FOOD" DIET

for INFANTS, INVALIDS, & EVERYBODY.

Contains Extracted Wheat Phosphates.

Sold in tins, 1 lb. at 1s., ½ lbs. at 3s. 9d. ¼-lb. Sample for trial sent free on receipt of 3d. to pay postage. (Mention this Paper.)

FRAME FOOD CO., LTD., LOMBARD ROAD, BATTERSEA, LONDON, S.W.

16 OZ. for 1 S.

Compare Price, Weight, and Value of other Foods.

COSTLY JEWELS

VALUED, PURCHASED, OR EXCHANGED.

Also Silver Plate, Gold, &c.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths & Silversmiths, 17 and 18, PICCADILLY, W. (Corner of Air Street), And at 1 & 2, Gracechurch-street, Cornhill, E.C.

Respectfully announce that they have a Special Department for the Accurate Valuation, Purchase, or Exchange of the above. Established 1772. Appointments made if desired.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.

LADIES' AND GENTLEMEN'S DRESS, also Furniture of all kinds Cleaned or Dyed. 95, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark Park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C. Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts. PRICE LISTS BY POST.

COUNTRY HOME OFFERED by Norfolk vicar and his wife, to lady or gentleman as paying guest (or children). Evangelical. Ample opportunity for church work. Healthy parish. Beautiful garden, carriage, etc.—Address, c7163, Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square. c7162

FARMHOUSE. — COMFORTABLE QUIET home offered for winter months, from October 1, with or without board. Healthy situation. Rooms large and airy. Dairy produce.—Mrs. WHITE, Well House, Ideford, Chudleigh. c7225

HOME SETTLEMENT FOR YOUNG MEN.

1, Wyndham-place, Bryanston-square, W.

With Drawing, Dining, and Writing rooms, and all the conveniences of a large and commodious house. Conducted on the basis of refinement, fellowship, and freedom. The Home is unsectarian.—All communications to be addressed. Rev. W. DARLOW SERJEANT, 88, Oseney-crescent, Camden-road, London, N.W.

HOME OF REST, The Hollies, Kingswood, Warwickshire, for Christian workers and ladies. Warwick, Stratford, Kenilworth easily reached. Terms from 17s. to 25s. Open throughout the year.—Address, Miss WINTERBOTTOM. c5375

HOME FROM HOME.—One or two friends can be received in the pleasant, quiet little home of two ladies (sisters). Three minutes to churches and sea. Friends sharing room, 38s. a week for a permanency. References.—G., 62, Royal-road, Ramsgate. c7300

HOME OFFERED to lady in good school near Crystal Palace. Home comforts. Moderate terms. Lady whose husband is abroad, having children to educate, could be received.—200, Selhurst-road, South Norwood. c6637

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS, Cosham, Hants, close to lovely Portsdown Hills. Board and residence, from 12s. 6d. weekly. Home comforts.—For particulars send stamped envelope to Mr. M. HUDSON, above address. c7027

INEBRIATE CASE.—Will an able-bodied Christian receive in own home a man anxious to reform? Patient supervision and Christian influence essential. 25s. weekly.—REFORMER, 939, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, London. c39

LADY AND GENTLEMAN, lately married, would be glad to hear of an elderly Christian lady to board with them in their comfortable home. Large garden and good aspect. Close to railway and trams. Terms moderate.—Address, E. W., Cestra, Claremont-road, Archway-road, Highgate, N. c7342

LADY WANTS TWO UNFURNISHED ROOMS, with board, in sociable family (musical). Ready access to British Museum. Bath, garden essential. Low terms permanency.—MAY, care of Rashleigh, 249, Elgin Avenue, Maida Vale. c7227

MINISTER RECOMMENDS QUIET, clean, well-furnished apartments, sitting and bedrooms, with attendances, or board and residence. Country, near station. Terms reasonable. — SEABROOK, Therfield House, Durant's-road, Ponder's End, N. c7307

MISS HAYWARD (daughter of late Rev T. Hayward) offers board and residence. Pleasantly situated house near sea and cliffs. Terms from 21s. per week.—1, St. Vincent's-road, Southend, Essex. c7249

PERMANENT LODGINGS on reasonable terms offered to a lady and gentleman, or one or two ladies in a comfortable house in a lovely country parish near S.E. Railway.—Mrs. GRIST, Homebush, Matfield. c7269

PRIVATE CONVALESCENT HOME for ladies. Terms on application. Misses Marriott and Browne, trained nurses. Certificated masseuse.—Knypersley House, Park-road, Southport. c5469

PAYING GUEST.—LADY OFFERS comfortable home to lady, in country, half an hour's drive from Bromley, Kent. Very dry and bracing. Large garden.—E., care of Rutherford, Silverdale-road, Eastbourne. c7157

SMALL COUNTRY HOUSE TO LET.—Two sitting and four bedrooms. Fruit garden, tennis lawn, stable. Rent £20, or less by agreement.—c7169, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7169

THE ADVERTISER IS DESIROUS to find a home for a delicate and backward boy, aged nine, at the seaside. Bracing air. Clergyman's family or other, where he would have individual attention and the training and company of a gentleman. Terms moderate.—Apply, by letter only, to B., care of Yates, 70, Wigmore-street, London, W. c7154

MISCELLANEOUS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

Displayed Advertisements according to space.

Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—Address EVANGELINE, 25, Rozel-road, Clapham, S.W. John iii. 36.

THE ADDRESS wanted of the gentleman who occasionally advertises as being willing to advise about troublesome or backward lads.—c7178, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7178

VANS FOR MISSIONS, lecturing, &c. —"The Vehicular Register," price 6d., describes a large number of caravans, second-hand, several specially adapted to above purpose.—ROWLAND HILL, 85, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. c7202

WINTERING ON NILE, in Dahabieh, two months, £50; three, £65. Leaving Cairo November. Brother of Bishop Hannington conducting party. Room for four ladies or gentlemen. Apply immediately.—JOSEPH HANNINGTON, Brighton. c6894

INVESTMENT.—Lady or gentleman can join established engineer in successful development, paying large profits. Pupil taken, who can board with principal. Solicitor's investigation invited.—C.E., 7, Huron-road, Tooting Common, London. c7245

FOREIGN STAMPS.—PRIVATE GENTLEMAN would like to purchase a collection of stamps, old one preferred. Album no object. Will give high price for suitable collection. — c7166, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7166

AMERICAN ORGANS from ..	£5	5	0
HARMONIUMS from	3	17	0
PORTABLES from	3	15	0

All makers at reduced prices. Every instrument warranted five years. The late Mr. Gawin Kirkham wrote: "I can speak from a long experience of the excellency of your instruments."

CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21 High-street, Kingsland, London. c1679

Umbrellas Re-covered from 2s. each.

IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RE-COVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG Bros., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies', 2s.; gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to Rev. G. H. Cambern, Redhill.

☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List Free.

IDEAL PURE WOOL SUMMER CLOTHING.—5 per cent. Discount until September 1st, 1895.—The celebrated CASTLE DONINGTON quality. Highly recommended by the Medical Profession. Thoroughly hygienic, exquisitely soft and light. This unique speciality is admirably adapted to Consumptive, Rheumatic, and delicate people. Every description of garment, natural, cream, and pink, in Purest Wools of English manufacture, at reasonable prices. Catalogue and Patterns post free. Carriage paid on all orders throughout the United Kingdom, half on foreign and Colonial parcels.—HYGIENIC HOSIERY MILLS, Castle Donington, via Derby.

INDIAN SHAWLS. — Lady received box softest, warmest, real Rampore Chuddahs, washable, 3 yards by 1¼. Indispensable driving, evening, invalids. About half price, 22s. 9d. Approval free.—DOUGLAS, 6, Shandwick-place, Edinburgh. c7715

SKIRTS! SKIRTS! SKIRTS!—In bankruptcy, the entire stock of a manufacturer. Wool serge dress skirts in black and navy, beautifully trimmed, 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., 6s. 6d. Also 20 doz. Holland costume skirts, fashionably made and trimmed, 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d. Also lot pure alpaca under skirts, hand embroidered, 3s. 11d., in fawns, silver-greys, shots, etc. All above lots worth double. Carriage paid.—Postal orders, THOMAS, 55, Everton-road, Manchester. c6462

PATCHWORK FOR THE MILLION.—50 large lovely silks, satins, brocades, 1s. 9d.; 50 beautiful plushes, velvets, 1s. 9d.; 200 crazy brocades, 1s. 6d.; splendid print parcel for quilts, 1s. 4d. Post free.—J. DEAN, New Brompton, Kent. c7263

A PERFECT FOOD! High-class Irish butter, made on the centrifugal system, posted direct, with or without salt. Reaches the consumer in its prime. Prices: 1½ lb. for 2s.; 2½ lb. 3s.; 5 lb 6s.; 9 lbs. 10s., postage paid. Weekly supplies.—ARTHUR JACOB, Lismore Mills Creamery, Lismore co. Waterford, Ireland. c7251

ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL.

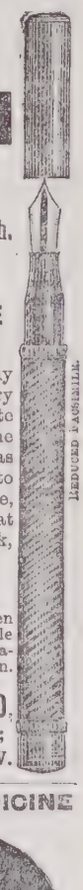
Preserves, Beautifies, Strengthens the Hair. Prevents Baldness, Eradicates Scurf. All Scientists assert that Oil is absolutely necessary to Nourish and Preserve the Hair, and ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL is the best. Also in a Golden Colour for Fair-haired Ladies and Children. Ask Chemists for ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL of 20, Hatton Garden, London

DELICIOUS BREAKFAST DAINTIES. —My celebrated "Real Loch Fyne" Kippered Herrings are now in prime condition. Post free for 2s., 3s., 4s., 5s., weighing 4lb., 6lb., 8lb., 10lb.—A. HARVIE, Watergate, Rothesay, N.B. c5142

SCHOOLS, ETC.—Teas, pure and hygienic, specially adapted for schools. Wholesale in 20lb. packages and upwards, from 10½d. per lb. Price list and sample on receipt of Principal's card, mentioning class and price of tea required.—SELECT CEYLON TEA AGENCY, 39, Lime-street, London. c5881

STRAW SKEP, CONTAINING 15lb. pure honeycomb. The same in 1lb. and 2lb. sections 10d. per pound. Orders gratefully received. Profits for charitable purpose.—W., Normanhurst, Basingstoke. c7195

RUPTURE. — COLWELL'S TRUSSES are the most effectual. Prices, 2s. 6d. to 21s. Air or water pad trusses. Perfect comfort in wearing.—COLWELL, 116, Newington-causeway, S.E. c7155



HAIR FALLING OFF.—A lady, whose daughter was cured in a fortnight, will send particulars to anyone sending stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. C. FOSTER, Trafalgar-road, South Wimbledon London. c7276

THE

SWAN FOUNTAIN PEN.

Manufactured in three sizes,

at 10/6, 16/6, & 25/- each.

REDUCED FACSIMILE.

HOW MR. HALL CAINE WROTE "THE MANXMAN."

"Yes, if the fact is of any "consequence, you are very "welcome to say that I wrote "'The MANXMAN' with the "Swan Fountain Pen. It has "become quite indispensable to "me. I can use it with ease, "and certainly anywhere and at "any time, even in the dark, "in bed, and on horseback.

"HALL CAINE."

We only require your steel pen and handwriting to select a suitable pen. Complete Illustrated Catalogue sent post free on application.

MABIE, TODD, & BARD, 93, Cheapside, London, E.C.; 95a, Regent Street, London, W.

BEST FAMILY MEDICINE

KAYE'S WORSDELL'S PILLS

They Purify the Blood and as a Mild but effectual Aperient are unequalled. They brace up all the organs to their proper action and restore to health.

THEY ARE A CERTAIN CURE for Indigestion, Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Liver & Kidney Complaints, etc. or ladies of all ages they are invaluable.

Of all Chemists, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH
EASIEST, QUICKEST, THE BEST & BEST BLACKLEAD IN THE WORLD!
In Half the Time, with Half the Labour, you can produce More Polish with Two Penny Packets of Rising Sun than with Half-Dozen of ordinary Blacklead.
Sample Post Free for 2 Stamps.
C. CHANCELLOR & CO., LONDON, E.C.

NEAVE'S FOOD.
BEST AND CHEAPEST.

John Heath's Pens

MIDLAND FURNISHING COMPANY,
69, 71, 73, 75, & 77, Judd-street, King's Cross, London.
Established 1880.
TERMS FOR FURNISHING BY EASY INSTALMENTS.

£10 worth	..	..	£0	6	0 per month.
£20	..	..	£0	11	0 .. ..
£30	..	..	£0	18	0 .. ..
£40	..	..	£1	3	6 .. ..
£50	..	..	£1	7	6 .. ..
£100	..	..	£2	5	0 .. ..
£200	..	..	£5	0	0 .. ..

NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED.
Goods delivered free in private vans on payment of first instalment, or other terms can be arranged. If necessary a house of any magnitude furnished at a day's notice. No Interest or Extra Charges. Country orders carriage paid to any railway station. £60,000 stock to select from on our own spacious premises. Business hours 9 till 8. Saturdays 9 till 6.
Prospectus, catalogue, and press opinions post free
GEO. MICHAEL, Manager

TOOTH-ACHE
CURED INSTANTLY BY BUNTER'S NERVINE
Prevents Decay. Saves Extraction. Sleepless Nights Prevented
Neuralgic Headache and all Nerve Pains removed by BUNTER'S NERVINE.
All Chemists, 1s. 1½d.

PUBLICATIONS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, Manchester, for New List. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. per 100; foreign, 1s. per 100. Missionaries constantly want cards. Gifts of money would greatly help to supply his need. c5300

ASSORTED GOSPEL BOOKLETS, including "A Saviour for You," "Thy Day," etc. Millions sold. Fifteen for 1s., post free; larger quantities at greatly reduced prices. Catalogues free. —S. M. Haughton, 5, Hazelwood-road, Northampton. c5276

FOREIGN MISSIONARIES invited to apply to British and Foreign Evangelical Tract Society for free grants of foreign tracts. Stock comprises thirty languages.—Address, Mr. Roberts, 26, Paternoster-row, London. c5484

HARVEST THANKSGIVING SERVICES Hymn Sheets. New hymns, tastefully printed. Specimens free.—Penman and Co., 33, Furnival-street, London, E.C. c5430

AT HALF PRICE.—Genuine offer of our well-known Tracts, Leaflets, Cards, etc. Immense variety. Published price from 1s. per 1000. Specimens and particulars post free.—Penman and Co., 33, Furnival-street London, E.C.

"THE EARLY DAYS OF CHRISTIANITY in Britain. By Rev. E. Compton. Price 6d. F. Kerby, 17, Bouverie-street, E.C. A great reduction for distribution in Protestant work.—Apply, Author, 9, Wellington-square, Hastings. c7183

JUST PUBLISHED, paper cover, 6d. each; 1s. each cloth.
LIFE IN EARNEST, by the late James Hamilton. MOUNT OF OLIVES, by the late James Hamilton. KEEP TO THE RIGHT, the Young Man's Guide. FAIR ADORNMENT, the Young Woman's Guide, each by John Angell James. Single copies post free.—E. Knight, 18 and 19, Middle-street, Aldersgate, E.C. c7312

THE LIBRARY BOOK COVER AND RAILWAY READING CASE (patented).—"Nominal in price, easy of adjustment."—Literary World. The specimen set, 1s., post free, with list of stock sizes, and how to fit any book with patent cover, in cloth, at trifling cost.—S. E. Roberts, 26, Paternoster-row, E.C. c5483

THE DEAF HEAR
The New Patent SOUND DISCS
Completely overcome Deafness and Head Noises, no matter of how long standing. Are the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes. Invisible. Comfortable. Worn months without removal. Explanatory Pamphlet Free.
THE H. P. WALES CO.,
62 and 63, New Bond St., London, W.

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Church Army will send evangelists (working men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions.—Address, Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, London, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any Evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Apply, Hon. Sec., 64, Kennington-oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for temporary or permanent work in our villages and country towns. Apply to Mr. G. H. Mawer, secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, E.C.

Thorne Evangelistic Missions.—Friends desirous to arrange for mission services, to be conducted by Mr. Thorne, should make early application to the secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, to whom subscriptions for the Mission may be forwarded.

The King's Own Mission, St. James's Hall, Royal-road, Kennington, S.E.—Sun., Mr. O. L. Heatley, 7 p.m.; 3.15 p.m., P.S.A., Mr. O. L. Heatley.

Meetings for Men.—Christian Evidence lectures or evangelistic missions conducted in any part of the United Kingdom. Address, Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh, 70, King's Cross-road, London, W.C.

Home of Industry, 29, Bethnal Green-road.—Monthly meeting for Christian workers, Wednesday, Sept. 18. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. Friends are earnestly invited to gather for a special season of prayer on behalf of the forthcoming meetings to be held in the East-end by Rev. Andrew Murray. Mr. Albert A. Head and Mrs. Penn Lewis will address the meeting. Miss Macpherson, lately returned from Canada, will be present.

Metropolitan Tabernacle, Newington-butts, S.E.—Sunday next, Sept. 15, at 11 a.m., and 6.30 p.m., Rev. Hugh D. Brown, of Dublin.

Miss Francis E. Willard, before her departure to America September 21, will address a public meeting on Friday, Sept. 20, at 3 p.m., in Mr. Spurgeon's Tabernacle.

Regent's Park Chapel.—A week's Conference for Christian workers is to be held in the Schoolroom, Regent's Park Chapel, September 16 to 21, at 8 p.m. each evening. The speakers will be Revs. J. Gregory Mantle, W. Williams, E. G. Gange, and Thos. Waugh, and Mr. T. Hutton, and it is hoped, Lord Radstock.

London Missionary Society.—Founders' Week missionary Convention in the City Temple, E.C., September 21 to 27. Full programme from the Secretaries and L.M.S. Mission House, 14, Blomfield-street, London, E.C.

Protestant Reformation Society.—Monthly prayer meeting, Thurs., Sept. 19, 3.30 p.m., in Committee Room, 20, Berners-street, W.

Homes for Little Boys, Farningham and Swanley.—Queen's Hall, Langham-place, W., Saturday afternoon, October 26, Earl Compton presiding.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn Gate, N.W., Sunday, at 7 p.m., Mr. F. Hutchins; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill, N.W., Mr. P. Garrioch; the Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W., Sunday, at 3.30 and 7, Mr. H. E. L. Purcell.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Sunday, 11 and 7, Mr. Benjamin Glasgow.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, E.—Open every night at 8; Sunday at 11 and 6.30, Mr. George Nokes.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sunday next, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. J. S. Harrison; 3 p.m., P.S.A.

Clapton Hall, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sundays 6.30, Thursdays 7.30.

Polytechnic, 309, Regent-street.—Mr. Charles Inglis, each Sunday in Sept., at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

Talbot Tabernacle, Notting Hill, W.—Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Dr. Anderson.

Special Religious Services in Theatres, Halls, etc.—Sunday, September 15.—Agricultural Hall, Islington, 3.30, Rev. Robert Wylie; 7, Mr. Job Williams. Evangelical Hall, Homerton, 3 and 7, Mr. Charles Button. Hall of Varieties, Clapham Junction, 3, Mr. W. Archer; 7, Mr. Cromwell. Shaftesbury Hall, Ealing Broadway, at 7, Captain Lowe.

Coming Conferences.

Dundee.—September 17, 18, and 19.
Salisbury.—September 23—28.
Evangelical Alliance.—Annual British Conference, Belfast, Sept. 24-26.

St. George's Cross Tabernacle, Glasgow, Sept. 28-29.
Dublin.—Sept. 30 to Oct. 3.
West Norwood (Lansdowne Hall).—Oct. 15, 16, and 17 (Second Advent).
Deepening of Spiritual Life.—Kingstown (Dublin), Sept. 16-20; Rothesay, Sept. 19-23; Glasgow, Sept. 24-26; Hastings, Sept. 30 to Oct. 4; Aldershot, Oct. 1—3; Blackheath, Oct. 1-4; Star Hall, Manchester, Oct. 6-13; Dorking, Oct. 7-11; Wakefield, Oct. 8-10; Barnet, Oct. 8-10; Cork, Oct. 14-18; Ealing, Oct. 15-18; Oxford, Oct. 28-31; Norwich, Oct. 28 to Nov. 1; Belfast, Nov. 4-8; Bradford, Nov. 5-8; Edinburgh, Nov. 11-16.

CONSUMPTION.
THE GRAND OLD MEDICINE OF NEARLY 70 YEARS
has maintained its position as the first medicine in all Chest Complaints.*
As a preventative of mischief, it should be taken at the first appearance of Cough or Cold. As a safeguard against Influenza, and in subsequent weakness of the lungs, it has been used with wonderful results.
But the renown of this celebrated medicine in all these cases has been eclipsed by its success in cases of PHTHISIS PULMONALIS, or CONSUMPTION, Aptly called the Scourge of England.
Interviews with patients, new and old, by Mr. Congreve's Commissioner, are published every alternate week in most of the weekly journals.
Mr. Congreve's book on Consumption and Chest Diseases may be had post free for one shilling, from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.
* Congreve's Balsamic Elixir may be had of all Medicine Vendors in Bottles at 1s. 1½*d.*, 2s. 9*d.*, 4s. 6*d.*, and large bottles at 11s. and 22s. The smaller sizes are of little use except in slight cases of Cough or Cold.

BUMSTED'S TABLE SALT.

One little bottle of Norton's Pills
Is not guaranteed to cure all ills,
But one little bottle, beyond all question,
Will thoroughly conquer Indigestion!
They have 100 YEARS' REPUTATION of being an UNEQUALLED REMEDY for INDIGESTION, HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, DEBILITY, STOMACH and LIVER COMPLAINTS. A SPLENDID TONIC AND GENTLE APERIENT.
NORTON'S CAMOMILE PILLS
Mild in Operation, Perfectly Safe, and Free from Injurious Drugs.
In Bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 11s., of all Medicine Vendors. Ask for "Norton's Camomile Pills," and do not be persuaded to take a substitute.
Prepared by Norton's Ltd., 21 Spital Square, London, E.
ONE LITTLE BOTTLE. NORTON'S TRADE MARK.

WORKS BY REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Expository Volumes.
Each Vol.: Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

The Way into the Holiest.
Expositions of the Epistle to the Hebrews.
Tried by Fire. Expositions of the First Epistle of Peter.
The Life and Light of Men.
Expositions of John I.—XII.
"The popularity of Mr. Meyer's Expositions is a good sign of the times."—British Weekly.
"Studies in the lives and times of Biblical characters. . . . Marked by great care in preparation, and a suggestiveness that has made them very acceptable to preachers and teachers."—The Quiver.

LIBRARY OF SCRIPTURE EXPOSITION
Consists of the abovementioned Three Volumes, attractively Bound in Library Style, and enclosed in a Handsome Case.
Price 6s. 6d. net. Post free, 7s. 1½d.
London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be had of any Bookseller.

ABSTAINERS, before Insuring, send for Prospectus of Scottish Temperance Life and Accident Insurance Company (Ltd.), 81, Renfield-street, Glasgow London Office, 96, Queen-street, Cheapside.

EPILEPTIC FITS.
TRENCH'S REMEDY.
Write for particulars to
J. TOWNSEND TRENCH,
The Remedy Depot,
33, SOUTH FREDERICK STREET, DUBLIN.

Just Published. Price One Shilling.
CANCER:
ITS NATURE & SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.
Post Free One Shilling, from the Author,
H. KELWAY BAMBER, F.I.C., Westminster Chambers, 9, Victoria-st., London, S.W.
E. W. ALLEN, 4, Ave Maria Lane, E.C.

THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION
CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, AND ASTHMA.
Success of Dr. Alabone's Treatment.
D. T. Young writes:—"Your treatment for Consumption has proved a great success in my own case—after having been given up by several eminent physicians. I am convinced, not only by my own experience, but from the evidence of other cases I have seen, that it is the remedy so long sought after."
Medical men and others cordially give an opinion entirely in favour of Dr. Alabone's treatment.
Full particulars and the details of a large number of cases pronounced incurable which have been cured, and a mass of information of vital importance to those suffering from chest disease, are given in the Cure of Consumption, 25th Edition. Price 2s. 6d., post free, by Edwin W. Alabone, M.P., Phil., U.S.A., D.Sc., ex.-M.R.C.S. Eng. by Exam., 1870, Lynton House, Highbury Quadrant, London, N.

The Christian.

No. 1338.] [SEPTEMBER 19, 1895.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

PORTRAIT AND SKETCH OF MRS. BRYSON, OF TIENTSIN.

"Rightly Dividing" the Word. By Dr. H. R. Reynolds 6
A Missing Note in To-day's Preaching. By Rev. F. C. Spurr 7
A Faithless Stone 7
The Mercy of God that Led to Repentance. By Rev. F. B. Meyer 8
Ceylon and India General Mission 9
Church Missionary Society 9
The Lord our Banner (poem) 9
Our Daily Homily 10
International Sunday-school Lesson 11
Jesus Knocking at the Door of the Heart (poem) 11
For the Young.—What we May Pray for 11
Business Counsels 11
Letters from the Other Side.—Chicago 12
The Bridge of Hope... 12
Among the Red Indians.—An Old Warrior's Lesson 14
Dr. A. T. Pierson 14
Twenty-four Years in Hyde Park 14
Perth Christian Conference 15
The Evangelist: "It's Boiling Over"... 16
Revival Memories (Letter to the Editor) 16
Lowestoft Bethel Mission 17
Sunday Cargo Work Abroad 17
The Christian Associations 18
Evangelistic Notes 18
Personalia... 18
Among the Churches 19

INSTITUTIONS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS AND MISSION,
HIGH STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.
GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from "M.L.M.F.," £5; "Inasmuch as ye have done it," £1.
Rations of food to hungry children. Infant Day-Nursery. Day and Sunday Schools. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Evening Classes for Boys and Girls. Classes, Meetings, and Institute for Young Women and Elder Girls. Various Meetings, Classes and Parlour for Young Men and Lads. Bible Classes. Evangelistic Services. Lodging House Meetings. Temperance Work and Meetings. Mothers' Meetings. Clubs for Clothing, Coals, Bibles, &c. Prayer Meetings. Country Homes for Men, Women, and Children. Training Home for Motherless Girls, &c.
Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.
Post-office Orders should be made payable at 72, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.
"A Record of Work" for the Year 1894 will be sent free of cost to any friend requiring them. c7324

THE SOUTHWARK.
Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto. BOYS' HOME,
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT,
To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond ABSOLUTE NEED.
Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at the Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays, from 10 till 2.
All communications should be addressed—
J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home,
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, Belgravia, S.W., trains ladies for MEDICAL MISSION WORK in Eastern lands. Vacancies for pupils. Next term October. Partially free studentships granted. Funds needed. c5861

THE PARKHALL CONVENTION for the Deepening of Spiritual Life will be held (D.V.) on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, the 18th, 19th, and 20th September. Conveyances will be provided to meet the trains at Polmont Station, N.B. Ry. c6915

THE BENEVOLENT OR
Strangers' Friend Society.
Treasurer, Alderman Sir JOSEPH C. DIMSDALE.
Chairman, J. H. ANDERSON, Esq.
Founded a hundred and nine years ago. GREATLY STRAITENED FROM WANT OF FUNDS. There are 168 Christian men and women unpaid visitors engaged in the Society's work of BEFRIENDING THE SICK POOR of London. Kindly remember it in testamentary arrangements.
Office, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. c5466

Annual All-day Prayer on behalf of Israel.
Meetings (D.V.) will be held in Room No. 6, Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, N., on Monday, September 30th, 1895.—at 9 a.m. to 10.30 a.m.; 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.; 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.; and 6.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.
Mr. CLANCY will preside at 9 a.m.; Colonel MORTON will preside at 11 a.m.; Rev. J. WILKINSON will preside at 3 p.m.; Rev. D. B. HANKIN will preside at 6.30 p.m.
All Missionaries and other friends of Israel are invited to fellowship with us on that day, and their presence will be gratefully welcomed.
We suggest that friends at a distance, who cannot join us at the Conference Hall, will organize one or more meetings locally for the same object on the same day. J. WILKINSON.
c7322

SOCIETY FOR THE ASSISTANCE OF LADIES IN REDUCED CIRCUMSTANCES.—Gifts of money are earnestly solicited for the poor, old, and infirm of this Society. £6 will provide one lady with comforts for a year. Will several people combine to raise that sum, which will be gratefully received by the Hon. Sec., Miss SMALLWOOD, The Lees, Gt. Malvern. c7441

THE LONDON BIBLE WAREHOUSE.
BIBLES AT HALF PRICE, Post Free.
The International Teachers' Bibles.
RUBY TYPE, Pocket Edition. A good Type in a small Book. Published at 12/6; for 6/3.
BOURGEOIS TYPE. A special large type in a moderate-sized Book. Published at 25/-; for 12/6.
The above are strongly and handsomely bound in French Levant Morocco Yapp, calf lined to edge, round corners, red under gold edges.
Lists of 5,000 Oxford, Bagster's, and other Bibles, at 3d. to 6d. in 1s. discount, sent post free.
THE LONDON BIBLE WAREHOUSE, 53, PATERNOSTER ROW.

FOURTH ANNUAL
South Coast Convention for the Deepening of Spiritual Life
Will be held (God permitting) at the
BRASSEY INSTITUTE, HASTINGS,
September 30th to October 4th, 1895.
PROGRAMME OF MEETINGS.—OPENING MEETING, Monday, September 30th, at 7.30 p.m. DAILY PROGRAMME for Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, October 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th:—10.15 to 10.45 a.m., Prayer Meeting; 11 a.m., General Meeting; 3.30 p.m., Bible Reading; 7.30 p.m., General Meeting.
LIST OF SPEAKERS.—ROBERT WILSON, Esq. (Chairman); Captain BARING, Tunbridge Wells; Rev. J. B. FIGGIS, Brighton; Rev. J. GELSON GREGSON, Portsmouth; Rev. EVAN HOPKINS, London; Rev. W. HOUGHTON, Guildford; Rev. G. H. C. MACGREGOR, London; Rev. R. MIDDLETON, Norwich; Rev. C. G. MOORE, London; Mrs. TOTTENHAM (for Ladies), Wimbledon; and others.
On Friday, October 4th, 3.30 p.m., an Address to Ladies by Mrs. TOTTENHAM, of Wimbledon.
On Friday, October 4th, 7.30 p.m., a Missionary Meeting, addressed by Rev. J. GELSON GREGSON, Rev. G. H. C. MACGREGOR, and Miss WILSON.
REQUESTS FOR PRAYER will be presented at the 10.15 a.m. Prayer Meetings.
As the expenses connected with the Convention are heavy, Liberal Offerings are earnestly asked in the boxes at the doors after each Service. Larger contributions may be forwarded to the Secretaries or Treasurer.
"HYMNS OF CONSECRATION AND FAITH" (New Edition), will be used at all the Services, and can be obtained at the door.
Secretaries—FREDERICK WHITFIELD, St. Mary's, Hastings; W. R. PEACOCK, 8, Belgrave-terrace, Hastings.
Treasurer—WILLIAM PLUMMER, Esq.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.
FROM 3s. 6d.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS (LIMITED), 15, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

SOUTH AMERICAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY
(The CHURCH of ENGLAND MISSION to SOUTH AMERICA).
All who desire to see the Gospel preached to the millions of Indians in South America, and are interested in the spiritual well-being of our fellow-countrymen scattered throughout that vast continent, and who also desire to see its Spanish and Portuguese speaking people brought to a knowledge of the truth, are invited to GIVE THEIR SUPPORT TO THIS SOCIETY, which sends out its Bishop and Clergy and Lay Missionaries to effect these blessed and important objects. Its work at the great ports AMONGST THE SAILORS is deeply valued.
THE MISSION BAND TO THE INDIANS OF ARAUCANIA
Now consists of a Clergyman and Three Laymen.
All who desire that this finest of all the Aboriginal races of South America should be brought to a knowledge of the Gospel of Christ, are asked to further the rapid extension of the work by their believing prayers and willing offerings. The door is open. The Leader is a tried Missionary, and the band includes a medically trained Assistant. Much blessing is anticipated through the power of God the Holy Spirit. There are other open doors the Society is waiting to enter. MEN AND MEANS ARE NEEDED.
Cheques and Money Orders should be crossed "Messrs. BARCLAY AND Co.," and made payable to Captain E. POULDEN, R.N., Lay Sec., at the Society's Offices, 1, Clifford's Inn, Fleet-street London, E.C.

EDUCATIONAL.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A clergyman's daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood.—Tredegar House, East Dulwich-road, S.E. 5332

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Wilton House, Tylehurst-road, Reading. Head Mistress, Miss Marion White. Assisted by well qualified resident mistresses and visiting professors. Pupils prepared, if desired, for public examination. Wilton House stands on high ground, gravel soil, outside the town. Large garden, cricket field, tennis courts. Tepid swimming bath. Next term begins Thursday, September 19. c5373

FOUR GIRLS can be received in good school near Crystal Palace for 35 guineas inclusive. Thorough education. English subjects, music, languages, etc. Motherly care.—PRINCIPAL, 200, Selhurst-road, South Norwood. c6656

STAFFORD HOUSE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, 260, Marylebone-road, London. Principal, Miss SHILLAKER. Healthy locality, near parks. Individual teaching. Special advantages for music and art subjects. Civil Service and all public examinations. Terms moderate. Highest references. Vacancy for articled pupil. c4476

ROSEBERRY, Western-parade, Southsea, facing sea and common. Christian home school for gentlemen's daughters. Thorough and successful teaching, careful godly training, refined happy home. Resident English and foreign governesses. Highly recommended. Principals, the Misses ROBINSON. c5405

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.—Principal, Miss HOLLIS. c2317

UPPER MOUNT, SOUTHSEA.—High-class Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Autumn term, September 17th.—For Prospectus, etc., address, PRINCIPAL. c5337

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.
1, CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.
Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P.
Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in daily attendance. Resident certificated governesses. Careful personal supervision, home comforts, and Christian training. Preparation for any examination if desired. Good garden and tennis.
Highly recommended by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. D. MacEwan, D.D. and parents of former and present pupils.

OXFORD COLLEGE (YOUNG LADIES), Clacton-on-Sea, Essex, England, Principals, Misses Beard. Thirty-roomed house, facing sea. South aspect. Happy home. Finishing education. Professors. Excellent musical training. Governess-student required with premium for examinations preferred. Kindergarten. c7009

REV. D. B. HANKIN, Mildmay, kindly recommends good home school, two hours from London. Spacious detached house. Thorough education. Fees from £25.—Miss LARTER, Nene House School, Thrapstone, Northamptonshire. c5433

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Rugby House, Leamington.—Principal, Miss ARNOLD. Highest educational advantages. Preparation for exams. Vacancy for governess-student. Premium. c7080

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—The Misses BALCH and EDMEADES, Clevedon Lodge, Reading. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge Locals (higher, senior, junior), and Trinity College Exams. Vacancy for student teacher (premium). c5488

BURLTON HOUSE, READING.—High-class Ladies' School. Principal, Miss RATCLIFFE. Old established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Well-appointed home. Highest references. c5271

ALLAN BANK, OWLS ROAD, BOSCOMBE.
HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS. Thorough education. Success in public examinations. Care of delicate girls. House near sea among pines. Terms moderate. References to Evangelical Clergymen, and to Ministers.—Apply, Miss COCKS, Principal. c5391

TO PARENTS.—Girls of any age instructed in practical housewifery, superior economical cookery, intelligent catering, marketing, and book-keeping.—For full prospectus, apply, PRINCIPAL, 64, East Dulwich-road, S.E. c7316

EDUCATION NEAR LONDON.—Good professors. Christian training. Highly recommended by Miss Leicester, Head Mistress Wyggiston Girls' High School, Leicester, and parents of pupils. Governess-student wanted. Fee, 8 guineas per term—c7315, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury square, E.C. c7315

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL near London for gentlemen's daughters. Conversational French, German, good music, drawing, painting, drilling, singing. Home comforts. Present vacancy is offered at half fees, 40 guineas.—c7390, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7390

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—Gentleman's daughter will be received in sea-side home, on very moderate terms, as companion to another. Educational advantages, and every care.—"C. L. E." Gehan's Cliftonville Library, Margate. c7366

MALVERN HOUSE, BLOCKLEY, WORCESTERSHIRE.
Principals, the Misses JUDSON. Home school for girls in a lovely and bracing village on the Cotswold Hills. Resident foreign and English governesses and visiting masters. Earnest Christian training. Terms moderate and inclusive. References kindly permitted to the Rev. John Wilkinson, Mildmay Mission to the Jews, and to parents of pupils. The Autumn term begins (D.V.), September 18, 1895. c3068

ABERGELDIE, ALMA ROAD, CLIFTON.—High-class Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Thorough Christian training. Separate school-house. Tennis, gymnasium, and swimming. Preparations for all exams. Highest references.—Principal, Miss BLANCHE MORRIS. c7437

CHRISTIAN MOTHER wishes for two children to educate with her own two girls. Home comforts studied. Experienced care given to delicate child. Farm house near sea. Highly recommended.—c7340, Haddon's Advertising Office, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7340

SEASIDE HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Shaftesbury House, Hunstanton. Bright rooms. Liberal diet. Kind individual attention. English, music, languages, painting. Two guineas per month. No extras. c7446

COMBER HOUSE, CAMBRIDGE.—Girls' Christian home school.—Special attention to music and languages. Thorough preparation for exams. Health and happiness carefully studied. Moderate and inclusive fees. Governess-student required. Small premium. c7127

THE MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fulneck, near Leeds.—A thorough, advanced, and Christian education. Boys' School, Rev. W. T. Titterington. Ladies' School, Rev. M. B. O'Connor. c5841

PARIS.—Establishment for young ladies, 16, Rue d'Anteuil (near the Bois de Boulogne). Principals, Mdlles. Bouré. Thorough French and German, music, drawing, painting, etc. Prospectus on application. c6621

NEUCHATEL, SWITZERLAND.—Young ladies received in superior French Evangelical finishing home school. Eminent professors. Languages, music, art. Delightful climate. English home comforts. Highest references.—Apply to Mlle. Coulieru, Neuchatel, Switzerland. c6661

STANLEY HOUSE, CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough education, with decided Christian training. The premises include workshop, chemical laboratory, covered and open playgrounds, tennis courts and cricket field. Delicate boys receive special care. Fees moderate and inclusive.—For prospectus, apply Principal. c2003

TO GODLY PARENTS.—The undermentioned (who is in no way connected with the school) is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL where the constant aim of the principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class education.

The premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA on the south coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for outdoor recreation.

Prospectuses and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several wards in Chancery have been appointed as pupils in the school. Terms moderate.—Dr. Thorn (not Thorne), Paddington, London. c4668

Huntingdon House School, TEDDINGTON, Middlesex.

Christian training. First-class masters. Thorough teaching. Moderate fees. Preparation for professional and business life, and for examinations (over 100 certificates gained). Recommended by Rev. Evan Hopkins, Kensington, and many Christian parents. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.

Principal—Mr. Geo. Cumes, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

ALRESFORD HOUSE SCHOOL, MARGATE. High-class school for the sons of gentlemen. Boys are prepared for the various competitive examinations. Special care of Indian children. Christian home.—Apply, The Principals. c5471

PENFILLAN HOUSE, FOLKESTONE.—Mr. N. L. Toke, B.A. (Mathematics and Nat. Sc.), C. C. Vaughan Wilkes, M.A. (Classics), assisted by special tutors for German and for scientific and military subjects, receive a limited number of pupils for the University, Army, and other exams. Careful supervision. Individual attention. Four successes in 1894.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL

To the Public Schools and Royal Navy, for Gentlemen's Sons, aged 8 to 14.

The Old Hall, Wellington, Shropshire.

(Founded 1845.) Very healthily situated, 370 feet above the sea, near the Wrekin. 3½ hours from London, by L. & N.W. or G.W.R. Beautiful grounds, playing fields, &c. Illustrated Prospectus on application to the Head Master, G. E. W. CRANAGE, M.A. (Shrewsbury School and Trinity College, Oxford); or Hadd'on's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5383

MR. W. ERNEST MATTHEWS, B.A. (honours), assisted by efficient masters, prepares for the Army, Navy, Universities, Public Schools, &c. Pupils under Christian influence. Excellent situation.—10, Worcester-terrace, Clifton, Gloucestershire. c7344

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory school for the sons of gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily. Prospectus on application to Lady Principals. c5331

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL for boys. Thorough education. Every home comfort, with unlimited diet. Health resort. Medical reference. Careful Christian training. Terms inclusive and very moderate.—Principal, Lucton School, Henfield, Sussex. c5418

NEW COLLEGE, CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Head Master: Rev. G. Hugh Jones, F.A.S.

High-class School for sons of Christian gentlemen. Inclusive Fees, £45 per annum; under eleven, £40.

MORAVIAN SCHOOL, Ockbrook, near Derby. Pupils prepared for the Camb. Local and London Matric. Exams. Third term, September 19.—Apply, Rev. J. M. Mallalieu. c5449

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and education with Mr. and Mrs. W. Dixon, Gordon School, Kingston-hill, Surrey. Established twelve years. Beautifully situated near Richmond Park and rail. London exams. Home comforts. Inclusive terms, 18 to 25 guineas yearly. Entrance, any time. c5340

FOLKESTONE.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class school for sons of gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references.—Mr. J. W. C. Fegan, Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-st., S.E. c1674

EXPERIENCED AND RELIABLE GOVERNESS (had own school nine years). Advanced English, elocution, mathematics, French, German, Latin, good music, singing. Good needlewomen. Diploma from cookery school.—W.W., Mrs. Hooper's Governesses' Institute, Compton-terrace, London, N. c7438

LADY, CERTIFICATED COLLEGE OF PRECEPTORS, requires engagement in school or family. Thorough English, arithmetic, French, music. Class singing. Drawing and needlework. Fond of children.—H., 11, Park-street, Selby, Yorks. c7402

AN ENGAGEMENT AS GOVERNESS wanted in family or school. Good English (certificated), fluent conversational French, German, and music.—Margaret Casswell, Sleaford-road, Boston. c7349

CHRISTIAN YOUNG LADY desires post of morning governess. Usual subjects, with French, piano, singing, drawing, elocution. Highest references. South-east district preferred.—c7324, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7425

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.

Boys received from six to eighteen years of age. Three separate departments classified according to age. Preparation undertaken for public schools or for commerce, the professions, and universities. Delicate boys or those from colonies receive special care. Autumn term commences September 21. Illustrated prospectus, references, etc., on application to the Principal, J. C. Duff. c5399

ABROAD OR ENGLAND.—An English certificated governess, age 29, who teaches French, music, Latin, and drawing, desires re-engagement. Excellent references.—16345, the Ladies' Agent for Schools and Governesses, Barker House, York. c7328

YOUNG LADY, PARISIAN, Protestant, desires to teach French in a school. South of England preferred.—Write to Mademoiselle A. L., Villa Jeannette, Houlgate, Calvados, France. c7330

FRENCH-SWISS LADY, clergyman's sister, wishes to enter a school to teach French and German. Would like a Christian home, and be member of the family. £25—£30.—Apply to Miss Bovon, 15, Mecklenburgh-square, W.C. c7343

AS NURSERY GOVERNESS, Christian, 21, to children under eight. English and music. Not been out before. Good references. Dissenter. Salary.—G. Graham, Stutton, Ipswich. c7358

EXPERIENCED TUTOR, School or family, desires engagement. English, French, Latin, drawing.—B. A., c.o. Mr. Barge, 12, Thirlmere-road, Everton, Liverpool. c7348

A KINDERGARTEN STUDENT required in a high-class Ladies' School at Reading. Refined home, with superior educational advantages. Premium.—c5457, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5457

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES

(English and Foreign), recommended GRATIS by Mrs. Edwin Hooper, Governesses' Institute and Home, Compton-terrace, London, N. (Established 1879). BOARD AND RESIDENCE from 18s. weekly. No fee to Governesses until placed. Schools recommended and transferred. c5211

SITUATIONS, ETC., WANTED.

30 WORDS for 3s.

9d. for each additional 9 Words.

Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

CHRISTIAN MAN seeks place of trust, or would make himself useful in any capacity. Age 26. Single, good reference.—Write A.L.X., Willing's, 162, Piccadilly, W. c7414

WILL SOME CHRISTIAN LADY help man to obtain employment who lost his character and is striving to regain it? Has become cripple; could do copying or similar work. Galatians vi. 2.—Reply to the Rev. H. E. Gunson, 165, Fentiman-road, London, S.W., who will gladly give all particulars. c7413

AS COACHMAN or any position of trust, caretaker, etc. Married. No children. Ten years' first-class reference by present employer. Christian. Abstainer.—A.B., care of Mr. Leach, Stationer, Redhill. c7419

THE REV. W. E. LIGHT wishes to recommend his groom and gardener, as thoroughly trustworthy. Five years' character. Age 23.—Address, The Gables, Fleet, Hants. c7434

AS HEAD GARDENER, by Christian man, 25 years' practical experience in general gardening. Seven years' good character.—S., care of Mr. Johnson, Fairlawn Nursery, Acton Green, London. c7429

GARDENER, HEAD-WORKING. Thorough practical experience and good references. Age 27. Married when suited.—A. Hill, Sherborne Park Gardens, Northleach, Gloucestershire. c7399

GARDENER, UNDER OR SINGLE-HANDED.—Lady recommends young man. Age 22. Christian. Abstainer. Christian home valued. Can attend to pony.—Miss Bartholomew, Wendy Rectory, Royston, Cambridgeshire. c7367

C.M.S. LADY MISSIONARY, temporarily detained in England, desires parish, mission, soldiers' or sailors' work, after October. Salary required. Bracing locality.—Miss Ridley, 7, Thyra Grove, North Finchley, N. c7359

Y.W.C.A. WORKER, disengaged October. Secretary or superintendent of Home or Mission work, Bible classes, etc., organize work, housekeeping. Varied experience. Age 29.—c7392, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7392

LADY (30) SEEKS OPENING for Christian work. Three years' experience in Deaconess House. Could take charge of Y.W.C.A., or similar institution.—Address, c7444, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7444

LADY OFFERS HER SERVICES as secretary or superintendent in a mission. South of England preferred. Salary nominal, but home must be provided.—Address, Miriam, 22, Addison-gardens, Kensington, London. c7432

HOUSEKEEPER.—Re-engagement required by domesticated, Christian young lady (30), to lady or gentleman, where servant is kept, or any position of trust. Highest references.—Miss Gale, 7, Avenue-terrace, Winchester. c7431

HOUSEKEEPER OR COMPANION.—Lady strongly recommends thoroughly experienced trustworthy Christian lady, middle-aged, to lady or gentleman. Most careful manager, methodical. Excellent in sickness, cooking and needlework.—E.H., Miss Oxford's, Wareham. c7426

HOUSEKEEPER, RE-ENGAGEMENT DESIRED to gentleman or lady, where servant kept, any position of trust, business or private, experienced, economical manager, good references, small salary.—E. H., c.o. 45, Earl's Court-road, Kensington, W. c7862

RE-ENGAGEMENT DESIRED by a lady, 52, as housekeeper to a gentleman, where servant is kept, or as companionable help to a lady. Good references.—Address, W.E., 66, Royal-terrace, Queen's-walk, Nottingham. c7371

A LADY SEEKS POSITION. Experienced housekeeper, excellent needlewoman, able to teach and train young children. Six years' experience in management of orphanage.—Mrs. M., 46, Carson-road, West Dulwich, London. c7864

AS WORKING HOUSEKEEPER.—Situation wanted in small household, where servant is kept. Excellent character, good plain cooking. Wages £22 to £24. Disengaged October. Interview requested. Or attendant-housekeeper to elderly or invalid lady. Wages same.—Address, G., Abbiss, Streatham Common. c7397

HOUSEKEEPER.—LADY, MIDDLE-AGED, seeks engagement in private family, gentlemen, small business, or any place of trust where servant is kept, Domesticated.—Mrs. R., 1, Victoria-terrace, Willesboro, Ashford, Kent. c7378

AS USEFUL COMPANION or housekeeper. Young lady, minister's daughter, highly recommended, seeks engagement. Willing, careful, domesticated, abstainer, musical. Disengaged October.—261, Friern-road, East Dulwich, London, S.E. c7375

LADY HOUSEKEEPER or companion.—Advertiser, who is marrying again, is anxious to recommend his housekeeper, young, bright, well educated, musical, very companionable, and fond of children. Other references can be given.—A. B. C., 22, Knight's Hill-road, West Norwood. c7142

LADY DESIRING QUIET HOME seeks re-engagement as companion-friend to lady. Thirteen years in situation. Asks no salary, only board and laundry. Has small income of her own. Excellent references, Rhetorician. Glad to help in visiting the poor.—c7327, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7327

YOUNG LADY (21) desires engagement as companion. Tall. Domesticated. Needlewoman. Abstainer. Comfortable home greater consideration than high salary. Country or suburbs preferred. Highest references.—Ivy, 78, Idmiston-road, Forest Gate. c7357

AS COMPANION.—A young lady desires an engagement as above. Domesticated and musical. Age 23.—Write, Ethel, care of Brockhill's Library, St. Leonards-on-Sea. c7409

A LADY wants an engagement as companion or position of trust. Would travel. Can speak fluent French. Highest references offered.—Address, Beta, "Melrose," 14, South Hill Park-gardens, Hampstead, N.W. c7406

A CLERGYMAN'S DAUGHTER, well educated and practical, offers her services. Small remuneration.—Address, c7395, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7395

YOUNG LADY (27) desires to go abroad as travelling companion, or to take charge of children on voyage. Cheerful. Musical.—S. E. G., care of S. Bagster and Sons, 15, Paternoster-row, E.C. c7385

A LADY WISHES TO RECOMMEND a young person, who has lived with her for some months, as help and companion to an elderly lady. She is amiable and of good manners, and willing in any way to be useful.—Address, C. S., Messrs. Haddon's, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5513

NO SALARY.—Young lady will give services. Y.W.C.A. or Home of Rest preferred. Domesticated, musical, good reader and amanuensis. Can cook.—B., Westbourne High School, Pine Tree Glen, Bournemouth. c7355

LADY, ENGAGED AS AMANUENSIS part of the day, wishes for additional work for spare time. Temporary or permanent. Refs.—Address, F., 75, Muldmay-park, N. c7374

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED as useful children's maid to wait upon children attending school, or nurse to children not in arms. Very good needlewoman. Two years and eight months in last situation. Nine and a-half previous.—W. R., 5, Gill-street, Nottingham. c7366

AS NURSE to lady's first child. Thoroughly trustworthy. Experienced to take baby from the month. Christian home desired. Wages £20.—C. Harding, 34, Burrard-road, West Hampstead. c7378

AS UNDER-NURSE.—Situation wanted by young girl, age 19, in or near Bournemouth, good references. Fond of children.—Address, E. J., care of Miss Ellis, Fairleigh, Drummond-road, Bournemouth, E. c5504

TO TEMPERANCE WORKERS.—A light situation for a good plain cook, honest, clean, and good-tempered, in a Christian home. Other hopeful rescue cases.—Miss A. Best, Ashton Lea, Torquay. c7372

AS PLAIN COOK.—Situation wanted, age 25. Nine years' good character. Several other good cooks and generals waiting.—Registry Office, 20, New Jersey-road, Gloucester. c7334

WANTED, BY TWO FRIENDS, a situation together in a quiet family. One a good plain cook, in a place of trust, and the other as housemaid or house-parlourmaid. Good references.—T. Smith, Old Brickyard, Smitherfield, near Stratford-on-Avon. c7391

AS KITCHENMAID.—Wanted, situation in Christian family for girl, aged 18. Eighteen months' character. Leaving present place on account of household being broken up.—Apply, Miss Barnes, Glenmohr, Wallington, Surrey. c7380

WILL ANY KIND LADY take a poor girl and give her a chance of regaining her character?—A. F., 9, Park-street, Windsor. c7344

A LADY WISHES to find comfortable home for girl, 22. Very respectable, honest, willing, and clean. Able to do light work, but not to take a hard place. Neighbourhood of London preferred.—Apply, Hon. Sec., M.A.B.Y.S., 103, Borough-road, Tuesdays and Fridays, 11 to 1 o'clock. c7436

SITUATIONS, ETC., VACANT.

30 WORDS for 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

Y.M.C.A. EVENING SECRETARY required for young association north-west suburb London. Salary £80.—Address, with full particulars of experience, Sigma, care of Housekeeper, 1, Royal Exchange Buildings, E.C. c7321

YOUNG MEN wanted, with a thorough knowledge of office routine, and capable of keeping books, accounts, etc. Reasonable salary and good prospects. None but those of decided Christian character, and who are able to furnish good references, need apply to Commissioner E. Cadman, 272, Whitechapel-road, E. c7415

AS INDOOR SERVANT (South Coast).—Reliable Christian man wanted, who thoroughly understands duties. Small family, very quiet. Abstainer. Highest references required.—Write, Butler, 642, care of Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. 642

COACHMAN wanted, to take abroad. One year's engagement, with a view to permanency. Must be thoroughly competent, trustworthy, and obliging. Married man preferred. Wife to undertake laundry work of the family. Ages about 30. Christian couple from country preferred. References required.—Address, c7182, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square. c7182

MAN AND WIFE wanted, as caretakers, in East London. Both must be Evangelical, abstainers, and communicants, and give their whole time. Good health, active, intelligence, and willing disposition indispensable.—Address, with full particulars, to Vicar, care of Messrs. W. Dawson and Sons, 161, Cannon-street, London, E.C. c7272

MAN AND WIFE wanted, as indoor servants. Must be abstainers. Four in family. Wages, about £30, all found. No other servant kept. Garden.—Apply, by letter, Mr. J. H. Bodger, 1, Featherstone Buildings, London, W.C. c7440

RESPECTABLE, WELL-MANNERED BOY, neat appearance, required for house and pony. Indoors, 14 to 15, 5ft. 2in. to 5ft. 3in. Some experience preferred. Good home. Age, height, wages (moderate).—Full particulars, c7303, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7303

AN ASSISTANT-MATRON wanted for a Refuge Home near London.—Apply by letter to Mrs. Watkin, 80, Onslow-gardens, S.W. c7445

USEFUL COMPANION wanted, by an elderly lady, not twelve miles from London. Must have filled a similar position before, domesticated, some knowledge of nursing, good needlewoman, not under 40, and an abstainer.—Address, A., Warneford House, 4, Farfield-place, Radford-road, Leamington. c7440

YOUNG LADY COMPANION wanted for married lady in North of England for a few months. Duties so trifling, no salary, but pleasant Christian home.—Apply, M., 53, Grand Parade, Eastbourne. c7408

APPRENTICES WANTED for the Art Needlework business, indoor or outdoor. Thoroughly taught the business in all its branches.—Apply, Mrs. Morley, Appleton House, Blackheath, S.E. c7389

YOUNG LADY (daughter of Christian parents) wanted as apprentice to fancy drapery, baby linen, children's outfitting, etc. Christian home. Treated as one of the family. Small premium.—Glover, 86, Regent-street, Weston-super-Mare. c7868

AN ACTIVE GIRL wanted, able to assist with dressmaking. Also an apprentice.—Address, S.C.B., 25, Church-street, Blackpool. c7365

USEFUL HELP wanted. Christian. Abstainer. Light duties. Knowledge of cooking. Small family. Servant kept. North London.—Address, c7417, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, Fleet-street, E.C. c7417

A FEW VACANCIES FOR PROBATIONERS. Candidates must be educated gentlewomen, members of some Protestant and Evangelical church, and total abstainers. Age from 21 to 28 years. Applications, enclosing photo and stamped envelope (without which a reply will not be sent), addressed to the Matron, H.M. Hospital, Stepney, London, E. A personal interview necessary in every case before engagement. c5498

SUPERIOR NURSE wanted (Christian) principally for little girl, 5 years. Three older ones, attend school, need supervision. Must undertake day nursery and needlework.—Mrs. Young, Fulford House, Beverley-road, Hull. c7388

NURSERY GOVERNESS and young nurse wanted by a family about to return to Trinidad, West Indies. Thoroughly comfortable and permanent home. Highest references given and required. Liberal salaries.—Reply by letter, stating age and experience, to Mrs. Rapsey, care of Mrs. Horner, 89, King Edward-road, South Hackney, N.E. c7386

NURSE wanted at once for two young children. Abstainer. Good needlewoman. Good character.—Apply, stating wages and particulars A. G., Cumrew, Ditton Hill, Surbiton. c7430

NURSE WANTED, IN DUBLIN, for two children. Ages, 6 and 3 and 9 months.—Apply, with references, and state wages expected, to Mrs. Fry, Wilton House, Merrion-road, Dublin. c7433

NURSE OR MOTHER'S HELP wanted at once, age from 20, to help mother with care of two little children. State wage.—Mrs. Rix, 34, Clifton-road, Crouch End, N. c7354

A SUPERIOR NURSE wanted for St. Leonards, to take charge of two little girls, age 3 and 5. Good needlewoman, from 28 to 35 years of age. Good references indispensable.—Apply, A.M., 2832, Observer Office, Hastings. c7445

ASSISTANT LAUNDRY MATRON wanted in Rescue Home, must have thorough knowledge of the work, no machinery. Salary, £16 to £18.—Home, Hyde Park-road, Southsea. c7428

GOOD PLAIN COOK and house-parlourmaid wanted early in October, for small family at Sydenham. Must be trustworthy, also early risers.—c7160, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7160

COOK (thorough plain) wanted at once, for gentleman's small family. Must be well recommended. Good wages. Christian preferred.—Address, Mrs. S., Thornhill, Long Ditton, Surbiton. c5502

TWO GOOD SERVANTS wanted, sisters or friends, ages 30 to 40, as cook-housekeeper and house-parlourmaid, to take entire charge of small, well-appointed house. Christian servants valued. One gentleman only. Wages £21 and £18. No beer.—Apply, between 2 and 6, at 37, Brunswick-square, Bloomsbury. c7338

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted, the first week in October. Age, about 22. Small family. Must have some length of character.—Apply, by letter, stating age and wages, to Mrs. Roberts, Abingdon, Addiscombe-grove, Croydon.

HOUSEMAID wanted. Must be abstainer. Conscientious. Trustworthy. Early riser. Strong. Willing. Not under 24. No fringe. Two servants kept. Wages, £15.—Mrs. De Carteret, Chiltern Lodge, New Malden, Surrey. c7363

The Christian.

☞ To avoid delay it is requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan and Scott, and not to its individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for THE CHRISTIAN should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 1 of cover.)

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

☞ The Publishers request that all orders for THE CHRISTIAN by post, and remittances for same, be addressed to "THE CHRISTIAN" POSTAL DEPARTMENT, BOUVERIE HOUSE, SALISBURY SQUARE, LONDON, E.C.

Cheques and Post Orders to be made payable to Messrs. John Haddon and Co. at that address.

The subscription for one year, including Postage and Coloured Almanack, is as under :—

For Great Britain and Ireland ..	6s. 7d. per annum
For India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, France, Germany, and other European Countries	8s. 10d. " "
For United States and Canada ..	2¼ dols. " "
Or including Monthly Copy of HERALD OF MERCY	2½ dols. " "

Subscriptions for THE HERALD OF MERCY.

4 Copies monthly	2s. per annum
8 " "	4s. " "
12 " "	6s. " "
24 " "	12s. " "

Post free to any address at home or abroad.

Remittances to be sent as above. Postcard should be enclosed for receipt or extra stamp to cover postage of same.

Notes and Comments.

THE welcome accorded to Khama and the notice of his work by the Press have been all that could be wished. Of course, the success of his mission will not be decided by these signs; the ultimate and determining word remains with Mr. Chamberlain as head of the Colonial Office. But the general impression and estimate of Khama ought to have, and, we believe, will have, some influence with him. Khama is England's friend, and has proved his fidelity over and over again.

He is a wise, strong man, in whose hands the Bechuana will be a great force for righteousness in South Africa. To have under our protectorate a large tract of country well governed, and strong tribes warmly in our favour, cannot but be an immense advantage to our rule and influence throughout the whole of Africa. But our chief reason for desiring that Khama's present relations to the Crown may remain undisturbed is that his rule is so favourable to the spread of the Gospel. We trust that God's people will pray for him and his people to be led aright.

The faith of the Malagasy is, we learn from a worker who has just returned from the island, very much tried by the present cruel war; they simply wish to be delivered from the presence of the French, and their prayer is—"Send them home again." No desire for revenge is expressed. But if this prayer is not answered in a literal way, they will be shaken and confused in mind; for they are babes in their conceptions, and have not, in thousands of cases, entered into the deep meaning of praying in absolute submission to God. Perhaps no more appropriate prayer could be offered for them than that they may be able to leave their country in the hands of God, who can make the wrath of man to praise Him, and the remainder of whose wrath He can restrain.

As so much is said about good preaching by which is too often meant preaching of a certain intellectual standard and literary finish, it is good to hear someone call out for pastoral visitation—even if it come as "A growl from the pew." The "Growler" in one of our contemporaries has pointed out that only few preachers can really be of supreme power, and that the average man would do well to supplement his influence and efficiency by the peculiar hold on the heart which is gained by friendly, wise visitation.

Agreed. But places differ widely. Visitation in London, if done in the daytime, means visitation of the women and missing the men; and when the men come home at night they are probably dining when visited, or are otherwise engaged. This among the well-to-do. With working men it is different in form only; obstructions remain. But with all drawbacks, and in spite of all difficulties, visitation, where practicable, must, in the case of a loving-hearted pastor, be an unspeakable power for good.

Dr. D. S. Gregory points out, in The Homiletic Review, the danger there is to theological students in being trained in Continental, but especially German, seats of learning. They are State institutions, and the appointments to them are political. A man does not need to be a Christian in order to become either a student or a professor in them. Dr. Gregory uses exceptionally strong language when he says that often the theological professor hates Evangelical religion and God and earnest Christians, "because they are a perpetual rebuke to the corrupt and beastly life he leads. If he fills a professor's chair in such a theological institution, where drunken brawls are not unknown, and where licentiousness is rife and often open, to attract attention, he must have something striking to present in his teaching. Hence the theological vagaries, etc." There can be no doubt that a training in theology or in Bible criticism at the hands of an unbeliever is not the preparation which any student should have for the ministry.

The American writer is correct who observes that "one trouble with preachers is that they and their hearers are moving in two different worlds of thought." Any preacher can detect that from the reading and conversation of a large number of his people, and he must often be set on thinking as to how he can best draw their thoughts to higher themes. The abundance of novels and light magazines appals him, and the rush of worldly talk about pleasures and business comes upon him like a flood. One advantage of worship is that it draws the thoughts, or seeks to draw them, into another world.

The Gospel by the wayside is practically the only means of reaching the "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God," who throng the highways, parks, and other open spaces on the Lord's Day. The past summer months have afforded opportunities rather above the average, so far as weather is concerned, for the uplifting of the Saviour of men in the open air, and from many quarters come encouraging reports of blessing experienced, and of converts gathered in. There is no finer training ground for young workers; it develops shrewdness and tact, readiness for emergency, and, though the fruits are not always seen at once, there is joy in the work itself, and a patient faith trusts in the faithfulness of the Great Husbandman. In Hyde Park alone a single agency has worked, week in, week out, for twenty-four consecutive summers, under the leadership of Mr. Charles Cook, and converts have been gathered in from all classes. Now that infidel propaganda are so obtrusive, it behoves the followers of the Lord to take every opportunity offered to proclaim the Gospel by the wayside—provided, let us add, that the workers are sufficiently well-qualified and numerous to command attention and respect.

A correspondent of a contemporary, a trustee of a chapel, surely expresses a sound opinion when he says that he would exclude from office in the Church any man, no matter how godly nor however much a victim of circumstances, who had become a bankrupt, or had been obliged to compound with his creditors :—

> Let sympathy abound and brotherly help be extended, but let the ark of the Lord be committed to other hands until such time as office can be resumed by the member who has been unfortunate, with the happy knowledge that he has paid every man his due.

Dr. Parker informs us that he is not so anxious as some are, and as he himself used to be long ago, about going round answering infidels. He wants to go round awakening Christians. He would like a man, a true revivalist, to arise among us "who will turn sleep into blasphemy, and make men ashamed of their do-nothingness." Were he the constructor of Congregational churches he would never allow any man to become a church member until he pledged himself to give one-tenth of his income to Christ. "It would reduce the church roll, but it would increase the church fire. Self-taxation in money, in service, sacrifice at some crucifying Calvary point—that is Christianity." Truly, the Church's chief difficulties and gravest dangers are always in her own condition. A spiritually-minded Church cannot but succeed; a worldly one must fail.

Before churches employ organists, surely they ought to be as satisfied about their Christian character as they are about the characters of their ministers. It is a mistake to suppose that, because organists only play an instrument, their sympathy, or want of sympathy, with the service of praise, is not distinctly felt by the congregation. The cold heart makes listless, unhelpful playing. Especially should the intemperate organists who so largely abound in churches of every order be removed from their posts; they are an unspeakable evil wherever they are found. Until something thorough is done there will be a recurrence of painful scandals which bring the Gospel into disrepute. Just lately a church has had great trouble through an intemperate organist, and another has been saved from similar experience by its pastor carefully enquiring beforehand.

The efforts at Re-union have only made more manifest the impassable barriers which separate the Roman Catholic from the Anglican Church, and the High Anglican from Nonconformists. It all lies in the superstition of a superior ordination. Cardinal Vaughan has again reminded us of what we all knew, that "the kernel of the question consists in the admission of the Roman claim that the Pope has received by Divine right authority to teach and govern the whole Church." Then what is the use of wasting time in talking about re-union? Unless Anglicans will submit unconditionally to Rome, they can have no place in the Roman fold; and unless Nonconformists will submit to the Church of England, they can have no place therein. Better give the whole question up, except among families of churches, Methodists and Methodists, Presbyterians and Presbyterians, and possibly Independents and Baptists, and go on all the more energetically with evangelisation.

Professor Slater is of opinion that there was at the beginning a dualism in the Apostolic churches, and that it has continued ever since, and will probably continue to the end. There will always be those who refuse to be bound by forms of words, and those who will refuse to join any fellowship not based on traditional formulas. These should admit and allow their differences, and not claim the title of "Catholic" or "Liberal." If this be granted so far, has Professor Slater fairly described Evangelicals when he describes them as publishing their gospel at the corners of the streets, and "counting individual conversions as more important than the regeneration of provinces"? We always thought that they believed in the regeneration of provinces by the regeneration of individuals, and did not set the one against the other. And when the Professor goes on to define the dualism thus:—

The one side says; "Be religious, and God will forgive you." The other invites men to accept forgiveness that they may become religious in the Christian sense.

We say that these are not compatible elements in the Church. It is not a temperament which is sensitive to historic associations, and one which cares nothing for them; it is the presence of light and darkness, and it means an irreconcilable contention between them.

With what perfect balance and harmony the Almighty has created all things, becomes more apparent the better the universe is known. The language of the prophet is not simply sublime poetry—"He weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance"—it is mathematically correct. Lord Kelvin has said, and his words have been adopted by Sir Douglas Galton, that "nearly all the grandest discoveries of science have been but the rewards of accurate measurement and patient, long-continued labour in the sifting of numerical results." He regards the discovery of argon as a remarkable illustration of the truth of this remark. Accurate standards of length, of a light, of temperature, of force, and energy, are "amongst the foundations of scientific investigation." It is hard to believe that everything in the material world is weighed and measured to a shadow of a shade, and yet no one measured or weighed it. "God is very great; his ways are past finding out."

There is a passage in Sir Douglas Galton's address to the British Association, which finely illustrates the smallness of our knowledge and the mystery and wonder of the universe; it also may be taken as a proof that he is not of those who have thrown faith away:—

Far as we have advanced in the application of electricity to the uses of life, we know but little even yet of its real nature. We are only on the threshold of the knowledge of molecular action, or of the constitution of the all-pervading æther...It is only within the last few years that we have begun to realise that electricity is closely connected with the vibrations which cause heat and light, and which seem to pervade all space—vibrations which may be termed the voice of the Creator calling to each atom and to each cell of protoplasm to fall into its ordained position, each, as it were, a musical note in the harmonious symphony which we call the universe.

The moral aspects of trade are the most important, even for trade itself. Immoral trade always tends to failure. In this light there is some painful reading in the report of the Select Committee on Food Products Adulteration, from which we gather that there is adulteration and fraud of the most serious and most wide-spread description in the articles which are consumed as human food. But the worst of the case, as laid before the Select Committee, is the way in which the frauds are, in too many instances, winked at by the Government inspectors. An honest trader in London laid proofs of fraud by several of his neighbours before the inspector, who only replied: "You mind your business and leave other people alone, and nobody will interfere with you." No doubt this gentleman enjoyed two salaries—one from the Government for doing his duty, and another from the tradesmen for not doing it. What is the remedy? To insist that "No liar or thief shall enter the Kingdom of God."

ENGLISH AND FRENCH COASTING MISSION.

The mission steamer Good News continues its good work of carrying the glad tidings from port to port. During the last four weeks, Ramsgate, Rochester, and Lowestoft have been visited, and the ship is now at Ipswich. At each place the Lord has blessed, and the seed sown will bear fruit to his praise and glory. Tracts and books have been liberally distributed amongst the various ships and fishing-boats, both English and foreign, as well as to lightships, where services were also held on board.

By the time these lines are in print the Good News will have left Ipswich for the next port, working homeward, ready to proceed to France in October for work on the rivers and canals. Will readers pray much for blessing on the further English work, and for France? The Mission is still carried on in simple dependence on a faithful God for all that is required. Sending the boat to France means a great deal in wages to the crew, and other working expenses, but the need is great, and there are many souls to be won for the Master.

It may be that some readers will have it on their hearts to give as the Lord has given to them, and thus share in the joy of sending his glad tidings to those who are in darkness. Help will be gratefully acknowledged by Mrs. S. A. Cook, 47, Stoke-road, Gosport. Will donors kindly state whether their gifts are for the English or French coasting work?

A NEW STATION IN RUNGPORE.

The following letter, recently received from Rev. J. Ellison, suggests how many heathen there may be who are waiting for the glad news of salvation:—

"During the cold season we visited Madhupur, which name signifies place of honey. We did not find any honey there; but we found souls seeking for Christ, and this was 'sweeter to us than honey and the honeycomb.' About a year ago we visited this village, and found some people of low caste, who, for over ten years, had been wanting to know more of Christ. They told us that one of their Gurus had many years ago heard someone preaching about Christ in a neighbouring district, and that he had told them to renounce the names of their Hindu gods and use the name of Christ only. He passed away, but his disciples have obeyed his injunctions, and have used the name of Christ as a charm against diseases and evil spirits, and, they say, with remarkable success. Before their leader passed away he said, 'Some day an Englishman will come and tell you more of Christ, and when he does, believe what he says.' I had the joy of fulfilling that prophecy, and I was led there by a train of circumstances which convinced me that I was being led of the Spirit. In no part of this district have we had such joy in preaching the Word, and during our last visit we had the pleasure of baptising three of the people of that village. As we are more likely to gather fruit there than in any other place in the district we have commenced an out-station."

THE MUSIC OF THE SOUL.

My heaven-born soul is like a well-tuned lute,
Without the player's hand for ever mute,
Waiting, with harmony in every string—
The music of his skilful fingering;
For when the chords the living touch awakes,
What sweetness from each quivering lute-string breaks!
So, blessed Spirit, Thou, awake, awake
My poor dumb soul, and holy music make;
By thy skill'd touch, call forth the melody,
Sweet to the ear of angels and of Thee,
The thrilling notes of prayer, thanksgiving, praise,
Which hearts unmoved by Thee can never raise;
Oh! let thy fingers sweep the chords along,
And wake the fervent prayer, th' exultant song.

A. A. Rees.

"Rightly Dividing" the Word.*

(2 Tim. ii. 15.)

By Rev. Dr. Reynolds.

Doubtless many illustrations might be given of the special lines or ways in which Timothy might fail, and would thus be in peril of eternal shame; but the one consideration to which the imprisoned and all-but-martyred Apostle especially calls him is this: "Rightly dividing the Word of truth." He uses a very rare word, which may have lost its etymology when thus applied. Certainly it meant cutting a straight line or furrow, or severing the right length from a larger quantity. Our Revisers are probably correct in giving it a general application — "rightly handling," honestly administering the Word.

The duties of Timothy as the Apostle's delegate or fellow soldier, and the function of the pastor and teacher in these days is concentrated in his treatment of God's Word. He has to deliver a message from heaven—a veritable Gospel to every creature—the message in its fulness of meaning and its glorious adaptation to every condition and grade of mankind—rich and poor, philosopher and child, prince and peasant, parson and people. It is a word that is addressed to the busiest and most contemplative, and is equally applicable in the market, the exchange, the sick chamber. It speaks to the monk in his cell, to the judge on the bench, and to the prisoner at the bar. It has a voice addressed to the statesman in the council-room, to the mother in her home. It never wears its mission out, for it comes with more force to dying men than to living men. It is urgent, luminous, intense, satisfying, inexhaustible in every case. There is no wisdom that can surpass it, no authority that can transcend it, no philosophy that can mend it. It is this, beloved friend, you have to handle, rightly to divide, to apply, to administer.

The fulness of this message may be sacrificed either by carelessness, fashion and whim, or by one-sided utterance, giving a part for the whole. It is not enough to set forth what Christ is, unless you show with equal force what Christ has done for every human creature. You might so enlarge upon the human life and example and mind of Christ as to let half your message vanish into thin air, seeing that his life derives its meaning for the world, in its being the manifestation in the flesh of the greatest glory of God, both in his moral perfections and absolute essence. It is, on the other hand, possible so to preach Christ as to hide in cloudy metaphysic the essential humanity without which He cannot prove Himself to be a Saviour or Mediator, our adequate Example or our competent Judge.

Beware of so handling the word of truth that, though it may set forth a lofty ideal, it shows no atoning sacrifice, no promise or conditions or guarantee for the pardon of sin, no definite help in purifying life. The Gospel is the highest philosophy which has ever reigned in the most cultured schools; but it is the practical, forcible secret of life at every epoch of it, in the mystery of pain and at the gates of death. "Go, tell it to every creature," said the Lord, as He put on the garments of invisibility and hid Himself in God. If the world believed it, if our Parliaments and municipalities and chambers of commerce and science, our kings of men, our priests and poets and teachers believed it, the world would be metamorphosed beyond knowledge.

* From Lamps of the Temple and other Addresses to Young Men. By Rev. H. R. Reynolds, D.D. (3s. 6d. Religious Tract Society.)

A Missing Note

IN THE PREACHING OF TO-DAY.

There never was, surely, in the history of the Church of Jesus Christ, more determined endeavour on behalf of human souls than that which, in various channels, is current to-day. Ingenuity seems to have been taxed to the utmost in order to discover new methods of reaching men and women. There are "missions" of a special character designed to touch every section of the community. Criticism of new methods has given place to hope that "some good" may be wrought by the fresh departure. And the result has been—what? Let us gratefully acknowledge all the good that has resulted from these newer methods as well as that of the old-established ones. We thank God for every soul rescued from sin, no matter what the agency. But frankly, with all this activity, are the general results satisfactory? Is the country turning to God? Are the churches and the mission halls better filled than formerly?

From every quarter reports come in that indifference is the prevailing characteristic of our time. The old vulgar blasphemy has ceased to attract the working classes, and now vast masses of these our brethren, as well as those of the middle and upper classes, simply "don't care" about the question of religion at all. They are not sufficiently interested in it to oppose it. God to them is much like an inscription upon a pavement which numberless feet have worn away. What is the explanation of the apathy around us? We are continually meeting in conference to bewail our weakness, and all sorts of reasons are given by way of accounting for the prevailing indifference. Leaving for the present out of view that fruitful reason of all irreligion—the natural enmity of the human heart against God; passing by also the facts of human sin, and of superstition, and of Satan's counterfeit of God's Gospel, I desire to point out one great cause of the present distressing indifference, which seems to me to have been overlooked, or nearly so. And it is this: we Evangelicals are suffering from a reaction upon much of our ministry. We have been too onesided. The keynote of much of our preaching has been pitched too low. We have been swayed by the sense of man's need and of his eternal peril; we have told men even unto satiety that if they will only come to God, happiness will be their portion. We have vied with each other in the attempt to manufacture the most palatable theological confectionery. We have "brightened" our services, gone in for "getting hold" of the people, and

NOW THE REACTION HAS COME.

We may blow our trumpets at the street corners in vain, and our "special efforts" are by the majority viewed with disdain. One of the most experienced and judicious of our missioners—a man who formerly drew audiences of many thousands, and who is still recognised as one of the most competent preachers of the day—told me a few weeks ago that he finds it increasingly difficult to reach genuine "outsiders." Christians will come to his meetings and a few outsiders, but miserably few as compared with what used to be. What is the explanation of this? Let me repeat, there has been a missing note in our preaching—namely, that we have not insisted sufficiently upon the claims—the absolutely righteous claims of Almighty God—upon the human soul. Much evangelism represents God as the suppliant rather than as the King. Our present time especially needs a trumpet voice to sound out the note—God is Master and Monarch: man is but a creature and a servant; man's business is to obey—he ought to obey; if he does not, he is guilty of red-handed rebellion. Carefully examine the matter of Apostolic preaching, and you will find that the thought of God's rights in men dominated it. There was comparatively little pleading in their preaching (although, of course, there was that), but there was much of demanding.

One reason perhaps why there is so little in our preaching about the supremacy of God may be that we ourselves, who are Christians and teachers, have not perfectly responded to the absolute claims of God upon our whole nature. Certainly we preach that which is the greatest fact to us, and the conspicuous absence of any great truth from our teaching may fairly be regarded as proof that it has little grip on our inner life. It is not difficult to see how this view of God's utter supremacy will affect the preacher. For one thing there will be no need to whip one's self on to duty; on the contrary, the soul will be pervaded with a Divine enthusiasm of unbounded activity for repairing the outraged honour of God. To see men through God is to see them clearly, and to reach men through God is the only sure way of reaching them. The man who views men thus can himself never be flung back by any reverse. The just now is not reassuring. Why are so many chafing under the disappointment of a diminishing or barely sustained cause? Why are some renouncing their vocation and returning to secular work at a time when thousands of voices from afar are crying for the light? Is not the chief reason this, that such brethren have taken a wrong view of their work? They have looked at men, and schemed for men; and men have not responded, and the workers have lost heart. Whereas if they had been swayed by the sense of what is due to God, the disappointment could not have arisen. Even if their message had not been received, they would have turned back to their Master and found rest in Him. A man whose dominant thought is that God's rights are paramount, is practically invincible. That man will never fawn upon his fellows, nor adopt illicit methods to "attract" them. Let us back to the Apostolic method; let us pray God to restore to his Church this missing note. It must come if ever we are to have a latter-day Pentecost. "That God may be all in all," must be our watchword.

DISCONTENT IN CHRISTIAN CIRCLES

F. C. Spurr.

DUBLIN VISITING MEDICAL MISSION.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Needham addressed the workers and friends of this Mission recently, encouraging us with accounts of similar missions which they had been the means of starting in Philadelphia and Chicago, and telling us what great things the Lord is doing there. Mrs. Needham urged us to more zeal in personal effort, taking John i. 41 as an example, and pointing to the day of Pentecost as the result of Andrew's personal effort. Thus we have been cheered on to resume our morning dispensaries which were closed during August; and we are looking for great things during the coming winter, for, with enlarged premises and a second doctor, we have much more scope for work. The committee have secured the services of Dr. A. G. Fenn, son of Mr. A. R. Fenn, well known as a missionary in Spain, and we ask much prayer on behalf of the Mission. We have great cause to praise God, too, for recent conversions among the patients.

We would remind our friends that we need money just now. Having many bills to meet and only a few pounds in the bank; we ask the Lord's stewards to bear this Mission in mind.

(Mrs.) E. Edith Figgis, Hon. Sec.

6, Simmonscourt-villas, Donnybrook, Dublin.

THE FAITHLESS STONE.

"He placed his foot upon a faithless stone; it slipped from under him, and he fell some sixty feet into the precipice below. Death seems to have been instantaneous."

Such were the words (writes a holiday correspondent) in which the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol referred to a lamentable accident, the particulars of which have since been published in our daily papers. The deceased was an experienced climber, and had been a visitor at the Bel Alp Hotel in Switzerland for many successive seasons. The Sparrenhorn, on which the fatality occurred, was only about 3000 feet above the hotel, and was by no means a difficult or a dangerous ascent. But the faithless stone promised a support which it was not able to give. The unfortunate traveller trusted to it, and was lost!

It was on the following Sunday, at the little English church behind the hotel, that the bishop referred to the calamity, and sought to apply its lessons. His text was a very appropriate one: "Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of Man cometh at an hour when ye think not" (Luke xii. 40). The occasion was favourable for declaring a simple and unmistakable Gospel message. The feelings of the people were deeply moved, and when the bishop asked the question, "But how shall we be ready?" all were waiting attentively for the answer.

"I will give the answer," said the bishop, "in the words of our Lord." Then he read Mark xiii. 33: "Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is." The way to be ready, therefore, whether for the Lord's Second Advent or for death, was to "Watch and Pray!" No complaint can be urged against such counsel if all the hearers were already saved, and were established on the Rock. But what of those who know nothing of true conversion, whose religion is a mere matter of outward forms, and who have never been born again from above? The bishop's counsel was an invitation to such to "place their foot upon a faithless stone," with most disastrous consequences. Watching and praying, if they precede "repentance towards God and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ," are valueless for salvation in the sight of God. In these days of formalism, when a religious profession is so easy, surely a faithful watchman needs to utter the warning.

"But were they not all Christians?" We tried to believe that they were, but here is the plan of salvation as explained the next Sunday morning in a sermon of twelve minutes' duration preached by the chaplain. His text was, "We know that we have passed from death unto life" (1 John iii. 14). Who that knows the Gospel could fail to preach it from such a text? But, "We are familiar," said he, "with the passage from life unto death, for that is taking place commonly around us. God's order is the opposite—passing from death unto life, as the seed dies in the soil in order to bring forth its new life. This principle operates in our spiritual life. But how is this life to be obtained?" The preacher's words were unmistakably clear, as they ought to be in answering such a question, and they were repeated with emphasis lest they should be misunderstood. "We obtain life," said he, "by the Holy Sacrament of baptism." "Yes," he repeated, "a few drops of water sprinkled upon the face make a child of wrath into a child of God!"

Then he asked a further question, "How is this new life sustained?" And the answer again was emphatic and clear, "By the Holy Communion." And to prevent mistake he again added, "By the partaking of the consecrated bread and wine the spiritual life is fed and maintained!"

"Clear and emphatic" I have called these statements; but how awfully ensnaring and false! It causes a shudder to think of the poor mountaineer, trusting the "faithless stone," and the next moment lying a mangled corpse sixty feet below. But is it not equally distressing to see so great a number of people invited to trust in mere outward ceremonialism, and in their own watchfulness and prayers, if they would be ready to meet God? What fearful and eternal disaster must result from false confidence in a matter of such importance! This is to trust "a faithless stone" indeed.

Nor, unhappily, need we travel so far as the Swiss mountain side to meet with such perversion of the truth of God. Our own beloved land is the school in which these faulty guides learn their lesson, and from which they go forth to lead others who are as purblind as themselves.

The Mercy of God that Led to Repentance.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER.

1 Sam. xxix., xxx.

Throughout that season of declension and relapse which we have been considering, the loving mercy of God hovered tenderly over David's life. When we believe not, He remains faithful, He cannot deny Himself, and when his servants are wandering far afield, sowing for themselves thistledown, and piercing themselves through with bitter sorrows, He is encompassing their path and their lying down, solicitous of heart and compassionate, exhibiting the tenderest traits of his mercy and pity, as though to win them back to Himself.

This is specially illustrated by the present stage of David's history. There was a special focussing of Divine gentleness and goodness to withdraw him from his purpose, to keep back his soul from the pit and his life from perishing with the sword. We will now trace the successive stages in this loving process of Divine restoration; and as we do so, we will believe that all these things doth God work still, to bring back our souls from the pit, that we may be enlightened with the light of life. In us also, David's words shall be verified, spoken as he reviewed this part of his career from the eminence of prosperity and glory to which God's goodness afterwards raised him, "Thy gentleness hath made me great." God's restoring mercy was evident—

I.—BY INCLINING STRONG AND NOBLE MEN TO IDENTIFY THEMSELVES WITH DAVID'S CAUSE.

"Now these are they," says the chronicler, "that came to David to Ziklag, while he yet kept himself close because of Saul, the son of Kish; and they were among the mighty men, helpers in war." (1 Chron. xii. 1.) And he proceeds to enumerate them. Some came from Saul's own tribe, experienced marksmen, who could use, with equal dexterity, the right hand and the left, in slinging stones and in shooting arrows from the bow. Some came from the eastern bank of the Jordan, swimming it at the flood, mighty men of valour, men trained for war, whose faces were like the faces of lions, and they were as swift as roes among the mountains. Some came from Benjamin and Judah, assuring David that there was no ground for his suspicions of their loyalty. What a manly, generous ring there was in those reassuring words, as uttered by their leader, Amasai, and which were probably the expression of the feelings of all the contingent of heroes which at this time rallied around David's standard: "Thine are we, David; and on thy side, thou son of Jesse; peace, peace be unto thee, and peace to thine helpers, for thy God helpeth thee."

Evidently the spirit of discontent was abroad in Israel. The people, weary of Saul's oppression and misgovernment, were beginning to realise that the true hope of Israel lay in the son of Jesse. They therefore went out to him without the camp, bearing his reproach, content to forfeit everything they possessed in the assurance that they would receive it all again, and a hundredfold beside, when he came by his own. Thus from day to day "there came to David to help him, until it was a great host, like the host of God."

So, in silence and secresy, loyal and true hearts are gathering around our blessed Lord, the centre of whose kingdom is not earthly but heavenly; who has gone away to receive a kingdom, but who shall certainly return; and when He is manifested in his kingly glory, then shall they also be manifested with Him. Who then are willing to leave the tottering realm of the prince of this world, soon to be shattered on the last great battlefield of time, and identify themselves with the kingdom of the Son of David, which is destined to endure as long as the sun?

II.—BY EXTRICATING HIS SERVANT FROM THE FALSE POSITION INTO WHICH HE HAD DRIFTED.

The Philistines suddenly resolved on a forward policy. They were aware of the disintegration which was slowly dividing Saul's kingdom, and had noticed with secret satisfaction the growing numbers of mighty men who were leaving it to seek identification with David, and therefore, presumably, with themselves. Not content, therefore, with the border hostilities that had engaged them so long, they resolved to follow the course of the maritime plain—the long stretch of low-lying land on the shores of the Mediterranean, and to strike a blow in the very heart of the land, the fertile plain of Esdraelon, destined to be one of the greatest battle-fields of the world, drenched with the blood of great leaders, as Sisera, Saul, and Joash, and of vast hosts, Philistine and Hebrew, Egyptian and Assyrian, Roman and Maccabæan, Saracen and Anglo-Saxon. "The Philistines gathered their hosts together for warfare, to Aphek, and the Israelites pitched by the fountain which is in Jezreel."

When this campaign was being meditated, the guileless king assured David that he should accompany him. This was perhaps said, as a mark of special confidence. It would have been foolhardy on the part of Achish to associate David with himself on such an expedition, had he not conceived the most absolute confidence in his integrity. He had seen no fault in his protégé from the hour that he had first come into his court, but had looked on him as an angel of God; and he had no hesitation in summoning him to march beside him, and even to be captain of his bodyguard. "Therefore will I make thee keeper of mine head for ever." It was a relief to the gentle nature of the king to turn from his imperious lords to this generous open-hearted soul, and entrust himself to his strong care.

It was, however, a very critical juncture with David. He had no alternative than follow his liege lord into the battle, but it must have been with a sinking heart. It looked as though he would be forced to fight Saul, from whom for so many years he had fled; and Jonathan, his beloved friend; and the people, over whom he had hoped one day to rule. He could not but reply evasively, and with forced composure and gaiety: "Thou shalt know what thy servant will do," but every mile of those fifty or sixty which had to be traversed must have been trodden with lowering face and troubled heart. There was no hope for him in man. It may be that already his heart was turning in eager prayer to God, that He would extricate him from the net that his sins had woven for his feet, and in the evasiveness of the reply he gave to Achish, there is a trace of glimmering hope that God would yet show a way of escape from his fearful dilemma.

If by your mistakes and sins, you have reduced yourself to a false position like this, do not despair; hope still in God. Confess and put away your sin, and humble yourself before Him, and He will arise to deliver you. You may have destroyed yourself, but in Him will be your help. "If any of thine outcasts—outcasts because of their disobedience and apostasy—be in the uttermost parts of heaven, from thence will the Lord thy God gather thee, and from thence will He fetch thee, and the Lord thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it: and He will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers."

An unexpected door of hope was suddenly opened in this valley of Achor. When Achish reviewed his troops in Aphek, after the lords of the Philistines had passed on by hundreds and by thousands, David and his men passed on in the rearward with the king. This aroused the jealousy and suspicion of the imperious Philistine princes, and they came to Achish with fierce words and threats. "What do these Hebrews here? Make the man return, that he may go back to the place where thou hast appointed him, and let him not go down with us to the battle." In vain Achish pleaded on the behalf of his favourite; the Philistines would have none of it. They pointed out how virulent a foe he had been, and how tempting the opportunity for him to purchase reconciliation with Saul by turning traitor in the fight. In the end, therefore, the king had to yield. It cost him much to inform David of the inevitable decision to which he was driven; but he little realised with what a burst of relief his announcement was received. We can imagine David saying to himself as he left the royal pavilion:—

"My soul is escaped as a bird from the snare of the fowler.

"The snare is broken, and I am escaped."

He made a show of injured innocence, "What have I done, and what hast thou found in thy servant so long as I have been before thee unto this day, that I may not go and fight against the enemies of my lord the king?" But his heart was not with his words, and it was with unfeigned satisfaction that he received the stringent command to depart from the camp with the morning light. But as, in the dawn, he stealthily mustered his men to start, did he not fling one glance as far as the mists permitted to the camp of Israel, where the lion-heart of the beloved Jonathan was doubtless preparing itself for the fight? Oh to have been permitted to be beside him in repelling one of the most formidable invasions of their lives!

III.—BY THE DIVINE DEALINGS WITH HIM IN RESPECT TO THE BURNING OF ZIKLAG.

It was by God's great mercy that the Philistine lords were so set against the continuance of David in their camp. They thought that they were executing a piece of ordinary policy, dictated by prudence and foresight, little realising that they were the shears by which God was cutting the meshes of David's net. Their protest was lodged at exactly the right moment; had it been postponed by but a few hours, David had been involved in the battle, or had not been back in time to overtake the Amalekites, red-handed in the sack of Ziklag.

As David was leaving the battlefield, a number of the men of Manasseh, who appear to have deserted to Achish, were assigned to him by the Philistines, lest they also should turn traitors on the field. Thus he left the camp with a greatly increased following. This, too, was a proof of God's tender thoughtfulness, because at no time of his life was he in greater need of reinforcements than now. Thus God goes before us with the blessings of his goodness. He anticipates coming trial, and reinforces us against its certain imminence and pressure. We are taken into the House Beautiful to be armed, before we descend into the valley of conflict with Apollyon.

It was altogether, also, according to God's merciful providence that, contrary to his wont, David had left no men to defend Ziklag during his absence. It is difficult to understand the laxity of his arrangements for its safeguard in those wild and perilous times, but apparently not one single soldier was left to protect the women and children. But it was well, for when a band of Amalekites fell suddenly on the little town there was none to irritate them by offering resistance, none to obstruct their will, nothing to excite their fear of pursuit or revenge. Evidently neither David nor his soldiers would be back from the war for weeks or months, there was therefore no need to exercise the usual precautions; they could spread themselves abroad over all the ground, eating and drinking, and feasting.

In the first outburst of grief and horror, nothing but the gracious interposition of God could have saved David's life. On reaching the spot which they accounted home, after three days' exhausting march, the soldiers found it a mass of smouldering ruins; and instead of the welcome of wives and children, silence and desolation reigned supreme. "Then David and the people that were with him lifted up their voice, and wept until they had no more power to weep"; but in David's case there was an added element of distress. Those who had a little before cried, "Peace, peace to thee, thou son of Jesse, thy God helpeth thee," now spoke of stoning him. The loyalty and devotion which he had never failed to receive from his followers were suddenly changed to vinegar and gall. The milk of human kindness had turned sour in this awful thunderstorm.

But this was the moment of his return to God. In that dread hour, with the charred embers smoking at his feet; with the cold hand of anxiety for the fate of his wives feeling at his heart; with the sense of duplicity and deceit which he had been practising, and which had alienated him from God, on his conscience; with this threat of stoning in his ears; his heart suddenly sprang back into its old resting-place in the bosom of God. "David was greatly distressed, for the people spake of stoning him, because the soul of all the people was grieved, every man for his sons and for his daughters; but David strengthened himself in the Lord his God."

As a modern instance of this experience, we may quote in this connection a beautiful illustration from the life of David Livingstone. On one occasion he required several canoes to transport his party across a broad stream, but the natives refused to let him have one, and gathered in a very threatening attitude. It was evening, and he almost resolved to steal away in the dark, but he writes in his diary, "I suddenly remembered my Master said, 'Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature; and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end.' It is the word of a gentleman, the word of perfect honour. I will not try to escape by night, but I will wait till the dawn, and leave before them all." This is what is meant by strengthening oneself in God.

From this moment David was himself again, his own strong, glad, noble self. For the first time, after months of disuse, he bids Abiathar bring him the ephod, and he inquires of the Lord. With marvellous vigour he arises to pursue the marauding troop, and he overtakes it. He withholds the impetuosity of his men till daylight wanes, loosing them from the leash in the twilight, and leading them to the work of rescue and vengeance with such irresistible impetuosity that not a man of them escaped, save 400 young men who rode upon camels and fled. And when the greed of his followers proposed to withhold from those whose faintness had stayed them by the brook Besor all share in the rich plunder, he dared to stand alone against the whole of them, and insisted that it should not be so, but that as his share was that went down to the battle, so his should be that tarried by the stuff. Thus he who had power with God had power also with man.

And when, shortly after, the breathless messenger burst into his presence with the tidings of Gilboa's fatal rout, though they meant the fulfilment of long-delayed hopes, he was able to bear himself humbly, and with unaffected sorrow, to express his lament in the most exquisite funeral ode in existence, and to award the Amalekite his deserts.

He was sweet as well as strong, as courteous as brave. For when he returned to Ziklag, his first act was to send of the spoil taken from the Amalekites to the elders of all the towns on the southern frontier where he and his men were wont to haunt, acknowledging his indebtedness to them, and so far as possible requiting it.

Thus the sunshine of God's favour rested afresh upon his soul. He had broken from Doubting Castle and Giant Despair, and had reached again the path of obedience and safety. God had brought him up from the horrible pit and the miry clay, and set his feet on a rock, and established his going; and had put a new song of praise in his mouth. Let all backsliders give heed and take comfort. These things were written aforetime for our instruction, that we, through the comfort and instruction of the Scriptures, might have hope.

CEYLON AND INDIA GENERAL MISSION.

In common with other Indian hill stations, Coonoor has a considerable English-speaking community. A good work has been carried on here for many years in the schoolroom built and supported by a well-known planter, Mr. Thos. Stanes. Since the spiritual part of the work was undertaken by our Mission there has been a steady increase in the attendance. In order to meet this, a new wing has just been added to the building, rendering it at once airy and commodious.

Our little church is conducted on undenominational lines, and we have in connection with it a Sunday-school, Christian Endeavour Band, and temperance society. Not the least interesting part of our work is that among the soldiers of the Wellington garrison and convalescent depôt, situated about two miles from Coonoor. During the months from March to October as many as 1800 men are quartered there, and this affords a fine field for evangelistic effort.

The Christian men have a prayer-room set apart for their use by the Government, and this proves a great boon to them, as it is open for their use at any time. Daily prayer meetings are held in it by the men themselves, and on Tuesday evenings we have a meeting of the Soldiers' Christian Association. Meetings are also held on Sundays and during the week in the schoolroom. As many as 120 or 140 soldiers come over to the meeting on Sunday evenings, and not a few have been found of Christ there. Life in the barracks is not the most helpful spiritually, and in India the temptations in the pathway of a soldier are increased, but we have many bright witnesses for Christ in Wellington.

As a part of its efforts our Christian Endeavour Band holds a monthly flower service, and between one and two hundred bouquets, made up with tracts and booklets attached, are afterwards taken by Christian soldiers to the military hospital, and distributed there. Should any friends interested send tracts or papers for this, they will be gladly received.

David R. Logan.

Coonoor, Nilgiris, South India.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The report of the C.M.S. gives details of world-wide operations during the ninety-sixth year of the Society's existence. The total receipts amounted to £272,000. Attention is called to the fact that one way in which the increase in the missionary force has been effected is by the addition both of honorary missionaries and of missionaries specially maintained by their own families, or by individual friends, or by the Gleaners' Union and its branches, or by bodies like the Royal Irish Constabulary, now numbering altogether (including a few partially supported) no less than 154. In most cases these contributions to support the donors' "own missionaries" are independent of, and additional to, their regular subscriptions, and they come chiefly, not from the wealthy, but from the rank and file of the Society's supporters.

AFRICA.

In connection with the Eastern Equatorial Mission, Rev. W. E. Taylor revised the Swahili version of St. Luke in Arabic character, and that of St. Matthew in Kigiriyama, besides writing several tracts and composing hymns in Swahili. He occupies spare moments with much profit and enjoyment in collecting proverbial sayings current among the people, which are frequently used with effect in the open-air addresses. He says:—"To the professors and 'lawyers' who can read the Gospel, but won't, and frighten the common people from listening to it, we quote, 'The snake in the lime-tree,' answering to our 'dog in the manger.' To the slave population, 'God looks on none as abject,' and 'the soul has no price.' To the self-satisfied, who are content with their false peace and hate to be aroused, 'Truth, though bitter, tell me, and hide it not,' and 'Bitter truth is better than sweet lying.' To the doubting, 'To God nothing is too far and nothing is difficult.' To the lazy, 'Idleness is a house of hunger.' To the discouraged, 'He that prays tires not.' And 'God, and your loins girt' to ourselves. Do not these old proverbs show that 'God has not left Himself without witness,' even in East Africa?"

INDIA.

The Hindu fakir, the Jewish travelling merchant, the Mussulman judge, the Afghan chief, the Gond villager from the jungle, are among the types of men brought to the Lord in India alone. Rev. Robert Clark, of Amritsar, writes:—"The general feeling amongst the educated is that their own religions are faulty, and that Christianity is true; but the minds of most are turning more and more towards material objects which may be for their worldly benefit, rather than on that which will be for the salvation of their souls. Their desire and aim is to bring their customs and beliefs into line with Christianity, as far as they can without suffering for it; and so to mix up the new with the old, that they may gain the advantages of modern civilisation without the temporal disadvantages of being baptized. Only the very few are willing to leave all to follow Christ. Evangelisation goes on, in the streets and lanes, in the pulpits of churches and in evangelistic halls, in schools and hospitals, and in the homes of men and women, in both towns and villages, wherever the opportunity is given. The light and the love keep pouring in, as Christ is set before the people in the power of his Word and Spirit, and in due time to all God's chosen ones the life will come. The results will depend more on what the evangelists are (whether they are native or European) than even on what they do; and conversion depends on the faith of the evangelists, as well as on that of the people. Wherever faith exists, it is borne witness to by God."

CHINA.

Archdeacon Moule indicates the actual duty and attitude of the Christian Church to China, remarking:—"Surely our duty now is by no means to withdraw or hesitate in the face of possible temporary peril, but to stand fast in our Master's name, and to have large reinforcements ready to occupy, promptly and without delay, such openings for widespread evangelisation, or more settled station work, as the issues of the war will develop. China cannot slumber again, and open her gates any longer only ajar. Railways will rush and roar where the telegraph-lines already stretch in silence. Great wisdom, 'the meekness of wisdom,' will be required in future mission work in these great lands, quite as urgently as prompt and vigorous action. But the great lesson for us to learn now is, I humbly think, to be ready, aye, ready, for our Lord's guiding hand and all-conquering call; to 'come' like obedient servants when He says 'Come'; to 'go' when he says 'Go'; and when He points to special work in China or Japan or in the vast unevangelised world, promptly, gladly, prayerfully, courageously, to 'do it.'"

JAPAN.

As elsewhere there are in the Britain of the East people of lowly as well as haughty dispositions. Rev. J. Hind (Fukuoka) writes of a catechist:—"Some of the people say that Miwa San is out of his mind. We know our Lord's own relations said the same of Him, and Festus accused St. Paul of the same thing. Thank God, Miwa's madness is of the same kind. I watched him carefully once while he was preaching, and could imagine anyone who knew nothing of the mind of Christ, which makes one long for souls, saying such a thing. The dear fellow is in dead earnest. I seldom, if ever, met a man with such intense sympathy and unselfishness."

Miss G. Nott (Kumamoto) says:—"I was talking one day to a dear little woman of very good family, an officer's wife here, and was telling her that before the One True God we are all sinners. She listened politely, and then, covering her face with her hands, she burst into a peal of quiet laughter. 'I do beg your pardon,' she said, 'but I a sinner! the idea is too ridiculous.' You see it is firmly believed in many cases among men, and women too, that other nations may need a Saviour, but not Japan; Japan is the country of the gods, the Japanese the children of the gods, and therefore they cannot sin."

THE LORD OUR BANNER.

(Exodus xvii. 8-16.)

Tumult in the valley,
Sound of ringing blows,
See, 'tis Israel fighting
With most bitter foes!
Terrible the contest,
Fierce and sharp the fray,
To and fro it surges
Through the weary day.

As the battle thickens
Ever and again,
Glances are uplifted
From the seething plain,
To those patient figures
On a rocky height,
And each heart is strengthened
By the cheering sight;
There as intercessors
Still their leaders plead,
That the LORD may help them
In their sorest need.

And they know the meaning
Of the upstretched rod,
Strength to fight is given
By a faithful God.
Now the shadows lengthen
Day is nearly done,
The red rocks grow redder
In the setting sun.

Through the winding defiles
See the headlong flight
Of the foes now scattered
Hurrying out of sight.
They, in prayer who wrestled,
They, who wrestling prayed,
Now shall join in praises
For Jehovah's aid.

. . . . . .

Only guessed the details,
Yet the picture stands,
Of the three who waited
With uplifted hands;
And I ask Thee, Father,
Merciful and kind,
Fix the truth it teaches
Deep in heart and mind!

Bitter is the conflict,
Strong the unseen foe,
And a weary warfare
Still thy people know.
They, in prayer who wrestle,
They, who wrestling pray,
Shall rejoice together
In thy crowning day.

E. E. Trusted.

[905]

OUR DAILY HOMILY.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 22.

"With bitter herbs."—Ex. xii. 18.

The Paschal feast is the emblem of the Christian life. The Blood is ever speaking to God for us; though we see it not, God sees it, and hears its prevalent plea. We in the meanwhile are called upon to feed in faith daily, hourly, on the flesh of the Son of Man, according to his own command. In all Christian life, even in its hours of greatest rapture, there must be a touch of the bitter herb.

We can never forget the cost of our redemption.—Even in heaven, in the full realisation of its bliss, whenever we catch sight of the print of the nails in his hand, we shall remember the agony and bloody sweat, the cross and passion, and eat the feast with the faint flavour of the bitter herb. How much more on earth, where we are so constantly requiring the efficacy of his precious death.

Then, there will always be the memory of our sinnership.—We cannot forget our unworthiness and sin. He has forgiven, but we cannot forget. Ah, those years of rebellion and perverseness before we yielded to Him; and those years of self-will and pride since we knew his love! They will sometimes come back to us, and give us to eat of the bitter herb.

Moreover, in us all there must be the constant crucifixion of the self-life.—We can only properly feed on Jesus, the Lamb of God, when we are animated by the spirit of self-surrender, and humiliation, of death to the world and to the will of the flesh, which were the characteristics of his cross. Deep down in our hearts, the drinking of his cup and being baptized with his baptism, will be the touch of the bitter herbs in the feast.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 23.

"By strength of hand the Lord brought us out."—Ex. xiii. 14.

Four times over in this chapter Moses lays stress on the strong hand with which God redeemed his people from the bondage of Egypt, and we are reminded of "the exceeding greatness of His power, which is to us-ward who believe, according to that working of the strength of his might, which He wrought in Christ, when He raised Him from the dead, and made Him to sit at his right hand in the heavenlies" (Eph. i. 19-20).

God's strong hand reaches down to where we are.—It would have been useless if Israel had been bidden to help itself up to a certain point, whilst God would do the rest. The people were so broken that they could only lie at the bottom of the pit and moan. God's hand reached down to touch and grasp them at their lowest. So God's help is not conditional on our doing something, whilst He will do the rest. When we are without strength, when we have expended our all in vain, when heart and flesh fail, then God comes where we are, and becomes the strength of our heart and our portion for ever.

God's strong hand is mightier than our mightiest adversaries.—Pharaoh was strong, and held the people as a child may hold a moth in its clenched fist. But a man's hand is stronger than a child's, and God's than Pharaoh's. So Satan may have held you in bondage; but do not fear him any more, look away to the strength of God's hand. What can it not do for you? None, said our Lord, can pluck my sheep out of my Father's hand.

We must appropriate and reckon on God's strong hand.—It is there towards them who believe, as a locomotive may be next a line of carriages; still, there must be a coupling-iron connecting them. So you must trust God's strength, and avail yourself of it, and yield to it. Remember that his arm is not shortened, nor his hand paralysed, except our unbelief and sin intercept and hinder the mighty working of his Power.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24.

"And Israel saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea shore."—Ex. xiv. 30.

What a relief that morning brought from the anxieties of the previous night. Then, as they lifted up their eyes, they saw Pharaoh and the dreaded Egyptian taskmaster in full pursuit, now they beheld the sea-shore strewn with their bodies, stark and cold. They would never see them again, or hear the crack of their whips.

So in life we are permitted to see the dreaded temptations and evils of earlier days suddenly deprived of all power to hurt us. The Egyptians are dead upon the shore; and we see the great work of the Lord. Let us take comfort in this—

In the pressure of trial.—You are suffering keenly, yet remember that no trial is allowed to come from any source in which there is not a Divine meaning. God is like the good housewife, who uses a sieve, so that nothing may all into her basin which should not be there. Nothing can enter your life, except God permits it to pass through his sieve. Though the pressure of your trial is almost unbearable, you will one day see your Egyptians dead.

Amid the temptations of the great adversary of souls.—They may seem at this moment more than you can bear, but God is about to deliver you. He can so absolutely free you from the habits of self-indulgence which you have contracted, and from the perpetual yielding to temptation to which you have been prone, that some day you will look with amazement and thankfulness on these things, as Egyptians dead on the seashore.

So also in the presence of death.—Many believers dread, not the after-death, but the act of dying. But, as the morning of eternity breaks, they will awake with songs of joy to see death and the grave and all the evils that they dreaded, like Egyptians, strewn on the shores of the sea of glass.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25.

"The waters were made sweet."—Ex. xv. 25.

Our joys and sorrows, like the varied products of nature, lie very close together. One moment we are singing the joyous song of victory on the shores of the Red Sea, and vow we will never again mistrust our God; and then, by a sudden transition, we find ourselves standing besides the Marah waters of pain and disappointment, inclined to murmur at our lot.

There is, however, a tree, which, when cast into the waters, makes them sweet. It is the tree of the cross. "He bare our sins in his own body on the tree." The cross means the yielding up of the will. Now, it is in proportion as we see God's will in the various events of life, and surrender ourselves either to bear or do it, that we shall find earth's bitter things becoming sweet, and its hard things made easy.

We must yield our will to God.—The words of Jesus equally befit our lips—"Not my will, but thine, be done." The secret of blessedness is in saying Yes to the will of God, as it is shown in the circumstances of our lot, or the revelations of his Word. It is the will of a Father whose love and wisdom are beyond question.

We must accept what He permits.—It may be that our pains emanate from the malevolence or negligence of others; still, if He has permitted them, they are his will for us. By the time they reach us they have become minted with his die, and we must patiently submit.

We must do all He bids.—The thread of obedience must always be running through our hands. At all costs to our choice and feeling we must not only have his commands, but keep them. Our Lord perpetually lays stress on obeying his words.

This is the spirit of the Cross, and the properties of this tree sweeten earth's bitterest sorrows. "Disappointments become his appointments."

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26.

"A day's portion every day."—Ex. xvi. 4.

It is said that the twenty-four hours should be divided thus: Eight hours for work, eight for rest, eight for recreation, food, etc. There should be a counterpart of this in Christian living. Each day there should be a portion for work, a portion for restful meditation and sitting before the Lord, and a portion for the gathering of God's manna.

Each day brings its own work.—God has created us for good works, and has prepared our pathway, so that we may come to them one by one. He has apportioned to each one some office to fulfil, some service to render, some function in the mystical body of our Lord. It is comforting to know that we have not to scheme for ourselves, but to look up for guidance into the Divine plan. Do not get flurried or perturbed; rest in God, and ask Him to make known his will.

Each day brings its own difficulties.—God spreads them over our days, giving each day only what we can sustain. The servant girl might be startled were she told that she would have to carry the coals, which it has taken two horses and a great cart to bring to her master's door; but she will be comforted by being reminded that they will be borne upstairs only a coal-scuttle full at a time.

Each day brings its own supply.—No Israelite could point to his store of manna and congratulate himself that he was proof against any famine that might befall. The lesson of daily trust for daily bread was constantly being enforced, for as the day came the manna fell. Those who followed the cloud were always certain of their sustenance. Where the cloud brooded the manna fell. Whatever any day may bring there always will be within reach of you, lying ready prepared on the sands of the desert, just what you require. Go forth and gather it; there will be no lack.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27.

"I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb, and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink."—Ex. xvii. 6.

Here is a beautiful example of the co-operation between God and his servants in providing for the needs of his people. Clearly the smiting of the rock was a very small item in this incident, the main consideration was what God was doing in the heart of the earth. But the two wrought together, Moses in the eyes of the people, God in hidden depths. Similarly we are fellow-workers with God.

One of the greatest revelations that can come to any Christian worker is the realisation, that in every act of Christian ministry there are two agents, God and man; that God does not need to be implored to help us, but wants us to help Him; that our part is the very unimportant and subsidiary one of smiting the rock, whilst his is the Divine and all important part of making the waters flow.

Did Moses go to the rock that day weighted with care, his brow furrowed with the anxiety of furnishing a river of which his people might drink? Certainly not; he had only to smite, God would do all the rest, and had pledged Himself to it. So, Christian worker, you have been worrying as though the whole weight of God's inheritance was on you, but you are greatly mistaken; smiting is very easy work.

In every congregation and religious gathering the Holy Spirit is present, eager to glorify Christ, and to pour out rivers of living water for thirsty men; believe this. See that you are spiritually in a right condition, that He may be able to ally you with Himself; keep reckoning on Him to do his share; and when the river is flowing be sure not to take the praise.

In sawing through a beam there is one sawyer at the pit's mouth, another in the depth; they work together, each moving with the other. "We are workers together with God."

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28.

"And God command thee so."—Ex. xviii. 23.

It was good and sound advice that Jethro gave his son-in-law. It could hardly have been better. It is always better to set 100 men to work than attempt to do the work of 100 men. There is no greater art in the world than to develop the latent capacities of those around us by yoking them to useful service. But good though the advice obviously was, Jethro carefully guarded Moses against adopting it, unless the Lord had been consulted, and had commanded it.

Let us test human advice.—There are plenty of voices that advise us, and each has some nostrum for our health, some direction for our path. Some are true guides, whom God has sent to us, as Jethro to Moses. Often an onlooker can see mistakes we are making, and can suggest something better. But when all have spoken, we are wise to get alone into the holy presence of God, and ask what He commands, what is his will.

Let us test human teachings.—So full is the world of voices, so bewildering the din of religious schools and sects! The Apostle was justified in advising us to prove all things, and to try the spirits, whether they were of God. There are four tests for truth: what glorifies Christ, what humbles the flesh, what is in accord with the Word of God, and what has stood the trial of Christian experience in the past.

There is no teacher like God, and we may always detect his voice. It is small and still; it casts down imagination, and brings our thoughts into the captivity of Jesus; it is definite and distinct. When there is an indistinct murmur of many sounds along the wire, you may be sure that you are not in communication with your Father's person. When He speaks, there is no mistaking his voice or his will. What saith my Lord unto his servant?

TERNATIONAL S. S. LESSONS.

SEPTEMBER 29.

REVIEW OF THE QUARTER'S LESSONS.

GOLDEN TEXT.—1 Kings viii. 56.

IXTY-FOUR years are covered by this series of ons. Of these thirty-nine were spent in the lerness, seven in the conquest of Canaan, and se were followed by eighteen years during which people occupied the promised land.

For the review, trace on the map the course pur- l by the Israelites, and mention the particular nt connected with each place.

Most, if not all the events, have an applicaton to selves (1 Cor, x, 11). The spiritual history of n believer may be traced in the history of the aelites, from their deliverance out of Egypt to r settlement in the promised land.

The prominent events are: the bondage in Egypt, abolising the condition of the unsaved; the verance by blood and by power as a type of ation; the pillar of cloud and of fire to guide the ple through the wilderness; the tabernacle and its services bearing witness to God's presence in midst of His people; the murmurings of the ple and the grace of God revealed to them; the th of Moses, the representative of Law, and the ointment of Joshua (Jesus) who led them into ; and the need for vigorous faith in order to ess in reality that which God had given.

Warning examples are found in failure of Aaron, unbelief of the spies, the murmuring of the ple, and the defeat of Ai resulting from the sin Achan.

Examples worthy of our imitation are suggested Moses, Caleb, and Joshua.

The Golden Text is illustrated by the whole his- , which shows how God fulfils his word in spite the most violent opposition of enemies and the uent unfaithfulness of his people.

JESUS KNOCKING AT THE DOOR OF THE HEART.

JESUS knocks, and calls for thee,
Love divine his only plea,
He can save, and only He:—
Open wide the door!

Jesus knocks! He loves to save,
'Twas for thee his life He gave;
Trust Him e'en thro' Jordan's wave:—
Open wide the door!

Jesus knocks: the world is cold,
Jesus longs thy hand to hold,
Jesus calls thee to his fold:—
Open wide the door!

Jesus knocks! O hear Him speak—
"Art thou sinful? Art thou weak?
'Tis thy happiness I seek:
Open wide the door!"

Jesus knocks, is knocking still,
Yield to Him that rebel will;
He with joy thy heart can fill:—
Open wide the door!

Jesus knocks. Why yet delay?
Wilt thou turn thy Lord away?
Sunbeams round his footsteps play:—
Open wide the door!

Jesus knocks, but who can tell
When may sound thy funeral knell?
Still He doeth all things well:—
Open wide the door!

Jesus knocks, the moments fly,
Brings He yet salvation nigh:
Ere his footsteps have passed by,
Open wide the door!

Valton Park, Clevedon. W. KITCHING.

ALF-YEARLY MEETING OF CHRISTIANS, ASGOW.—These well-known meetings will be held dnesday, September 25, to Saturday, Septem- 28, in the City Hall. Full details of Mr. W. e, 38, Sauchiehall-street, Glasgow.

MOHAMMEDAN BAPTIZED.—Rev. E. F. Ward tes from Raj Nandgaon, C.P., under date of gust 26:—"You will doubtless be glad to learn we have baptized a young Mohammedan here week, who gives promise of great usefulness. It administered in a large artificial lake of water r the bazaar, and was a thing entirely novel to natives of this vicinity; about fifty natives were sent, including a few Mohammedans. They sat tly on the banks of the lake and listened to the ice throughout."

For the Young.

WHAT WE MAY PRAY FOR.

AN INTERESTING BIBLE-STUDY.

MANY a Sunday-school address on the words of Jesus in Matt. vii. 7, has pointed out that there are three words—Ask, Seek, Knock—used to describe prayer, and that the initials of these three words form the word "Ask," which is the first of the three. Prayer, in one important aspect, is asking something from God, with the assurance that we shall receive.

But what shall we ask? No wise mother gives her child all that it asks; and it is possible that in our folly we may ask for many things that would injure us. The four letters of the word "Pray" shall suggest four things that, rightly understood, we may pray for. These four are exactly the things which everyone desires; but many mistake the shadow for the substance, and so are never satisfied. The four things are these:—

Pleasures.
Riches.
Advancement.
Youth.

Do not be shocked when I suggest that we may ask God for all these, and may be confident that it is his will to give them. "Pleasures! Riches!" said a little fellow to whom I gave this message. Then he thought a moment and said, "Oh, I see; it is heavenly pleasures and heavenly riches." He was right, and in that sense it is that I suggest your asking for these four things.

Let us have a little Bible-reading together. I am not going to quote the verses. Will you find them in your Bible, and write them out in full?

First, write the word PLEASURES, and remember you are allowed to ask God for these. But what sort of pleasures? Not the "pleasures of sin," which Moses forsook (Heb. xi.); not the pleasures which choke the good seed so that it becomes unfruitful (Luke viii.); not those pleasures, in which, if we live, Paul says we are dead (1 Tim. v.). Will you fill in the verses? You will see that such pleasures are not worth having, and God is not likely to give them.

But are there no true, pure, heavenly, enduring pleasures for which we may pray? Turn to Psa. xvi., look carefully down the verses, and you will find one that speaks about "pleasures for evermore." Write it out in full. "But," you say, "those pleasures are in heaven, and cannot reach us." Then turn to Psa. xxxvi., and look for another verse, that tells of "the river of God's pleasures" flowing down to us. We may drink of these. They are pleasures that never leave any painful regrets, and that never pass away. God means you to have them. Ask Him for pleasures of the right kind.

Then take the word RICHES and find a few Scriptures about these. Who does not want to be rich? Yet many who have no lack of this world's wealth are not happy or contented. The riches that leave their hearts unsatisfied are not what we should ask from God. You would not care to throw yourself into the sea and be drowned, would you? Yet there is a worse kind of drowning than that; and they who are guilty of loving this world's riches are guilty of it. Find the verse in 1 Tim. vi.

But there are some riches we may desire. Out of many Scriptures that speak of them I ask you to find only two. In Prov. viii. the voice of wisdom speaks, and invites us to possess true riches, better than gold, yea, than fine gold. Write out the two verses in full and get them into your memory. What an unspeakable pity it would be for you to set your heart upon the riches that flee away, and neglect the "durable riches!" The other passage is a very remarkable one in Job. xxii. You must find the verses, and if you have a reference Bible, look at the margin too. If you have not noticed the words you will be charmed with their promise. Turn the promise into a prayer, and how truly rich you will be!

The next word, ADVANCEMENT, means promotion, exaltation, honour. There is again a worldly kind of advancement which you may not seek. In a very short chapter (Jer. xlv.) there is a verse that reproves Baruch. You had better find that verse before we proceed farther. It will guard you against a false ambition.

What kind of promotion may you seek? There are just two passages in which you find the answer. The first is in Matthew xviii., and the other in Mark x. Their teaching is very much the same, and they remind us that true greatness is not what passes for that name among men, but a very different quality. He is greatest who is least and lowliest, and who is ready to perform the humblest service towards others. To pray for advancement in this sense, is to pray for likeness to Jesus.

The last word, YOUTH, can be ours also. The body will grow old, but we need not. Two Scriptures encourage us to expect perpetual youthfulness. Find one in Psa. ciii., and the other in Isa. xl. There is no growing old in the heavenly life. The angel who appeared in our Lord's sepulchre was one of those who had been present when God made the world, yet he is described as "a young man" (Mark xvi. 5)! Whenever will he be old, if after thousands of years he is still young? Never.

Such is the life that you have in Christ. It is heavenly, and can never decay. Ask that you may be successors of such men as Moses (Deut. xxxiv. 7), Caleb (Josh. xiv. 11), and Paul (2 Cor. iv.16).

Pure Pleasures, enduring Riches, true Advancement, and eternal Youth—all these we may ask, and God will give.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.
SEASIDE SERVICES.

Mr. J. H. P. Cutting, C.S.S.M. van at Wretton, to Sept. 19; Wereham, Sept. 20-27; Mr. S. J. Hewlett, C.S.S.M. van at Bewbury, near Bicester, to Sept. 20; Mr. H. Hutchinson, Salisbury (Fisherton Schools), Sept. 23-27; Mr. Josiah Spiers, Newark-on-Trent, Sept. 27 to Oct. 11; Mr. G. Goodman, Campsbourne Mission School, Hornsey, to Sept. 22.

Meeting for reports of Seaside Services.—Sept. 30, Queen's Hall, 3.30 p.m.; St. Martin's Town Hall, 6.30 p.m.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending September 28, 1895.—Sun., 22, Mark xv. 16-32; Mon., 23, xv. 33-47; Tues., 24, xvi. 1-11; Wed., 25, xvi. 12-20; Thurs., 26, Psalm xci. 1-16; Fri., 27, xcii. 1-15; Sat., 28, cxiii. 1-5.

BUSINESS COUNSELS.

(Extract from the Letter of one Christian Tradesman to Another.)

I HEAR from Mr. C. that he, too, the doctor says, is "run down." All this through the unrighteous race of competition; and it is doubtful whether he will recover strength for a long time to come.

Ah! this foolish and reckless spirit of the age, to get gain, and keep up style at any cost, or gain and supplant, without regard to right and one's neighbour's needs, is ruinous alike to personal health, to morals, and to commerce.

It is suicidal because the man and victim first destroys himself, physically and morally: it often follows that the supplanted, as well as the supplanter, fall in the same battle. It is sinful, because the man who presses his way through every closed door and obstacle to increase his possessions and to improve his position, does so at the violation of law as written within him, and of that also which has been given to all from above.

The fruit also from this tree is bitter, and it never fails; it surely comes; the producer may determine its rate of growth, but he may not change the nature of the fruit. I have in my mind just now a terrible proof and example of this. A well-known friend, once a true gentleman, liberal-minded, courteous, truthful, and kind-hearted — a true Christian it would seem, but now alas! as the result of this terrible form of overwork, he has degenerated into that painful form of a selfish mind, heartless in conduct, and often acting as one who feels on bad terms with himself and everybody else. Am I not right then, in my conclusions, that such a course of business life is both "an evil feature of the age," and is also sinful and suicidal in its results?

It is a Christian duty, as well as an act of benevolence, to let the light of truth in upon this evil. The wise will not regard it with lightness, or slight the case of the fallen comrade in any battle, but he will fear rather lest he also fall into the same pit before his weapons are put off. The duty of the moralist, the philanthropist, and the Christian preacher alike, is to decry this evil, as a great and terrible sin against God and man.

THE ASSOCIATION OF THE DAUGHTERS OF INDIA is the name of a society recently formed by Indian Christian ladies in North India. The object is the conversion and amelioration of their Indian sisters. One special feature of this Society is their strict adherence to a rule forbidding the soliciting of subscriptions from any person other than a native of India. This society is said to be the outcome of the discussion upon an Indian Missionary Society raised by Rev. Hira Singh Puri, of Benares, at the Annual Convention of the Indian Christian Association held in Lucknow last year.—Bombay Guardian.

Letters from the Other Side.

CHICAGO.

"A living dog is better than a dead lion." In this restless, sleepless, pitiless, business-ridden, pleasure-loving, money-driven, but not God-forsaken city of mingled peoples, a Salvation Army captain, saved from the music-hall and the saloon, singing in the street, to the accompaniment of tambourine and drum, uncouth and unconventional songs of Jesus, "to every sort of sinner, deep-dyed or only a beginner," is better than a cleric, however respectable or imposing, riding in silence in a Sunday car.

This going-ahead city is an epitome of the world, and represents the tendency of the age, to bring hands under the dominion of brains and capital. A Christian would scarcely choose to live here for the sake of the pressive and oppressive life; but Mr. Goff, a "lawyer-evangelist," preaching at the Y.M.C.A., on the Sunday of our visit, took the right view of the situation. "Chicago is the centre of the North American continent, and of the commercial world. It attracts people of all sorts, good, bad, and indifferent; the best and the worse are here. This state of things had to come, and I am glad that we (Christians) are here in the midst of it."

At the same place, Mr. Morton, a man of business, related his remarkable and repeated experience of alternate success and failure, culminating in his salvation. A young fellow sitting by me said, "I like to hear a man talk who knows by experience the life we've got to live." That in a nutshell explains the preaching that tells; no matter whether the preacher be humanly "ordained" or not.

"HOW CHRIST CAME TO CHURCH,"

by the late Dr. A. J. Gordon, has an appalling indictment of some forms of church-life here, yet they have their counterpart in our own country:—

"'Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are' (1 Cor. iii. 16, 17). We do not judge that the defilement here mentioned is that of personal impurity, in which one sins against his own body by the indulgence of fleshly lusts and passions. Though the words are often construed in this way, there seems to be no good ground for so construing them. It is the corporate body which is spoken of, not the individual body; and to defile the temple of God is to profane that temple by bringing into its precincts idolatrous rites and ceremonies, secular and carnal indulgences, unsanctified amusements and frivolous entertainments, to minister to 'the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life.'

"Here we shall refer only to what we know as being carried on within the circle of Protestant and evangelical churches, confessing, as we do so, that it is a shame even to speak of the things done by them in public. Nevertheless we must look at the unseemly catalogue: Performers brought from the opera or from the theatre to regale the ears of the church with some flighty song or artistic musical display. A star violinist, dressed in the style of his profession, preparing the way for the sermon by a brilliant and fantastic solo. A curtain drawn across the pulpit platform on a week-night, footlights and scenery brought from the playhouse, and a drama enacted by the young people of the church, ending with a dance by the gaily-dressed children; a comic reader filling the pulpit on Monday evening, delivering a caricature sermon, amid the hand-clapping and laughter of the Christians present.

"These are but a few acts in the comedy which the god of this world is performing weekly in our church assemblies. Taken with the dramatic readings, literary entertainments, amateur theatricals, fairs, frolics, festivals, and lotteries, the story is enough to make the angels of the churches blush, and to give fresh occasion for an apostle's tears, while he utters the solemn verdict: 'For many walk of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ; whose end is destruction, whose god is their belly, whose glory is their shame, who mind earthly things.'"

In this land, as at home, it is evident that the future of aggressive Christianity lies with the evangelistic halls and missions, and such churches as do business for eternity on the same lines as they: rather than with those churches whose evangelicalism is only traditional, and which are given over to higher criticism, culture, amusement, and compromise.

It will be objected, however, that evangelistic halls and missions deal chiefly, if not entirely, with publicans and sinners, with the poor, the degraded, the vulgar, and the lost. It has always been so. God said through Zephaniah, "I will take away out of the midst of thee them that rejoice in thy pride, and thou shalt no more be haughty in my holy mountain. I will also leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people, and they shall trust in the name of the Lord." So in the early antediluvian time: "In the days of Enosh (=fallen man, subject to all kinds of evil), then began men to call upon the name of Jehovah"—the I AM. So all the publicans and sinners drew near to Jesus for to hear Him: the common people heard Him gladly: hung upon Him for to hear Him. At last He suffered without the gate of the city of worn-out solemnities; and we have an altar of which we eat when we go forth unto Him without the camp, bearing and sharing his reproach. The early Christians had their meetings and their dwelling-places in the catacombs. The elders, of whom the world was not worthy, gathered in dens and caves of the earth. The followers of Wickliffe, Huss, and Luther, the Waldensians, the Paulicians, and the Friends of God, the Huguenots and Covenanters, and Quakers, assembled not in gorgeous or pretentious edifices, but wherever they could find a place.

Early Methodist chapels, what were they but mission halls? and what are mission halls but churches in primitive simplicity? As one denomination after another waxed great and elegant and high-minded and worldly, the sack-cloth witness has begun again in places like the Pacific Garden Mission, for which Lawyer-Evangelist Goff prayed, as getting into and gathering them to Christ as the Saviour of men.

ACTUAL CONTACT WITH THE PEOPLE,

Leaving the Y.M.C.A., we went on to that mission where Mrs. Colonel Clarke and her wearied but indefatigable helpers are at their nightly work, seeking the lost until they find them, and bring them home with rejoicing, according to the promise, "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

The salvation of God was here declared to men and women whom we call "hands," but whom God calls "souls," in words like these:—"I tell you, gentlemen, it lifts; the Gospel lifts. You get this Bible under a man's life and something is going to break. It takes a Christ to do this—to break the whisky habit, and the unclean life, and to lift men and women into harmony with God."

The temperature must have been 90 deg., and the hall was close and steamy, but there were angels hovering round to carry the tidings to the New Jerusalem that sinners were gathering home.

There is scarcely an evening when there is not joy in heaven over souls won in this dingy locality. And if this is the proper function of the Church of Christ, then here, far more than in gorgeous and palatial buildings, the mission of Christ's witnesses is represented and expressed.

A humiliating consciousness of showing how not to do the Lord's business, in marked contrast with the skill and energy with which they conduct their own, must exercise many Christian manufacturers and men of business, accustomed to adapt and proportionate means to ends, and to gather up their fragments that nothing be lost, when they think of thousands of pounds spent on churches, useful for only one purpose, and only used a few hours in the week. Considering that the whole unevangelised world is dying without God, must it not make angels weep to see the dead capital buried in these expensive tombs, or the tombs themselves buried under debt, while the people outside are crying, "Who will show us any good?" and while Ethiopia is stretching forth her hands to God, and the promise waits that "these shall come from the east and the west, and these from the land of Sinim"?

R. C. Morgan.

[1908]

REV. ANDREW MURRAY.

Rev. Andrew Murray was taking part with Dr. A. T. Pierson and others in a Convention on the Spiritual Life, from September 2 to 6, in the Association Hall, Toronto, Canada, and at New York, in the Collegiate Dutch Reformed Church, from September 9 to 13. He sailed by the Cunard steamer, Lucania, on the 14th. He hopes to b at the Rothesay Conference from Saturday to Mon day, September 21-23; at Glasgow Conventio 24-28; Dublin Convention, October 1-3. Returnin to London he will be at the two days' meeting o East-end and other workers, in the Great Assembl Hall, October 8-9. He afterwards goes to Holland where he will give addresses on the spiritual life i various towns.

THE BRIDGE OF HOPE.

What possibilities lie dormant in a little child Nearly thirteen years ago, in the early part of 188 one of my fellow-helpers, who has at length obtaine her heart's desire, and is now living a missionary' life in far Japan, brought to me two little girl whom she had found in one of the miserable alley in Ratcliff-highway, which have since bee demolished to make way for model dwellings an railway improvements.

The elder of the little sisters was ten years ol and their story was one, such as we often have t listen to in its dreary monotony, but sad enough t make me decide that the children indeed were i "grave moral danger," and therefore such as w were called upon to help and save. I remembe the elder one perfectly; she was particularly brigh and lively, and the very necessary cleansing proces which is usually such a dismal affair, afforded h the keenest amusement. I had no children's home then, and had to be indebted to my friends a round to receive my little rescued waifs.

Miss Rye took these, and as although their su roundings had been so evil, the children were sti uncontaminated, they were taken to Canada. have occasionally heard of their welfare, but the Christian training, which must have been indee good, passed into other hands, so we were only th first link in the chain.

At length they developed into useful wome The elder, at twenty years of age, married a American missionary, stationed on the west coa of Africa, and at twenty-one was left a widow Thinking that after her bereavement she woul wish to return to her Canadian home, the direct of the mission offered to pay her journey thithe "No," she replied, "I prefer to live and labou where my husband laid down his life." Her pat has not been easy, but difficulties have been ove come, and she is now put in charge of a school twenty little African boys and girls, where we he she is developing a little infant native churc which is as a tree planted by the rivers of wate which will more than "bring forth its fruit in i season."

In looking through the records of the earlier tim of our work in Ratcliff-highway, I see that much written by the hand of one who lies in a grave i India, whence she was called up higher after but short time of work there, and our sympathy keenly drawn out towards those in China wh have lived with us, and worked with us in th East-end of London. It often proves the be training-ground for foreign service, and our pray has very often been, that those little ones whom w are educating now, rescued as they are from liv which, humanly speaking, must have been spent sin and degradation, the workhouse or the priso may be among those who will not only carry th Gospel message to the heathen at home, but in th east and the west, the north and the south, will te of the salvation which Jesus brings.

Pegging away at work in East London amo these poor waifs, notwithstanding many disappoin ments and constant struggle to make ends anythi like meet, is not without the sweetest compensatio We prove day by day that God's grace is strong than hereditary tendency (the bugbear which is often held up to frighten us). Even now here a there we are gathering "the first fruits," as so of the children who were brought to us in t earlier days of the Mission are growing up in pure and Christian womanhood, but we believe th the harvest of a hundred-fold is yet to come.

I think I shall touch even more tenderly the lit ones who will come to us. We know so little wh God means in the future, when He says "Ta this child and nurse it for Me." "In the morni sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thi hand; for thou knowest not whether shall prosp either this or that, or whether both shall be ali good."

Mary H. Steer.

Bridge of Hope Mission, 28, Betts-street, London,

Mrs. Bryson,

MISSIONARY AT WUCHANG AND TIENTSIN.

Many things contribute to the making of a good missionary to the heathen, and it is interesting to learn how the Divine Tutor fore-ordains and actively supervises the preparation of his sons and daughters for the highest form of human toil.

The accomplished lady whose portrait we give this week, was introduced to Christian service as a teacher in the Bunyan Meeting Sunday-school, Bedford, at the early age of fifteen. Her father, Mr. George Carruthers, has this year retired, after being nearly thirty years superintendent of that school. In the county as well as upon the council of the Sunday-school Union, he has done most effective work.

In 1875 Miss Mary I. Carruthers was married to Rev. Thomas Bryson, of the London Missionary Society, and accompanied him to Wuchang-fu, one of the three cities surrounding the confluence of the rivers Han and Yang-tze-kiang. Her eager and sympathetic nature led her to yearn over the pig-tailed boys and small-footed girls who followed her in large numbers along the narrow streets, and gathered wonderingly around her as she sat on the green slopes of their city wall. In 1876 Mrs. Bryson accompanied her husband and Rev. David Hill, of the Wesleyan Missionary Society, on a long journey, and visited several cities where a foreign lady had not been seen before, and on this tour she had some rough experiences.

Mr. Bryson commenced a women's weekly meeting for reading and prayer, which Mrs. Bryson was soon able to conduct, the object being to stimulate in the women a desire to read the Word of God for themselves. This was not an easy task for Chinese women. Whether sojourning in the little cottages among the mountains, or travelling with the boatmen's families upon Chinese lakes and rivers, or visiting the ancient homes of better-class families, with their gloomy and comfortless grandeur, Mrs. Bryson has always endeavoured, by showing sympathy towards the children, to enlist the influence of their mothers in their welfare, knowing that such efforts would make the mothers conscious of their own need of instruction.

Early in 1877 the longing expressions of a little lad named Chih Shwin: "How I wish I could learn to read better," and "How I wish we had a Christian school opened here again," led Mrs. Bryson to pray earnestly that help might be forthcoming to establish a school. This was soon accomplished by money raised in the Sunday-school at Bedford, where Mrs. Bryson had been a teacher. A day-school for boys was formed, and the teacher found time to take some girls also. A Sunday-school was established at the same time. Mrs. Bryson, in various ways, obtained admission to the houses of all classes of people. The ladies of wealthy and official families were at first difficult of access, until the wife and daughter-in-law of a Taotai, accompanied by a lady belonging to a Mandarin's family, called upon her. The elder lady remarked, "I have heard many strange stories of foreigners, and always fancied they were people to be feared and avoided, till my friend here convinced me that I was mistaken. Having made your acquaintance I shall know better in future, for I think that after all you are not very unlike ourselves." It was fortunate that the lady who represented foreigners to these people was sympathetic and tactful. After this visit, ladies from a large number of families in good position called upon Mrs. Bryson and invited her to their homes. The influence of a Christian lady who uses every opportunity thus afforded to commend "the religion of Jesus," must be considerable, though its results will never be fully tabulated.

After suffering much from malarial fever Mrs. Bryson returned to England on sick certificate in 1883. It was with much disappointment that she heard the medical adviser of the Board of Directors forbid her return to Wuchang. However, a suitable appointment was found at Tientsin, for which Mr. and Mrs. Bryson sailed in January, 1885. At this splendid sphere for Christian effort Mrs. Bryson has worked with much enthusiasm and success. In 1885 Mrs. Jonathan Lees and herself were the only ladies of the Mission, and the work among the women and girls of so large a station soon became very heavy. In addition to the school and visitation of families there was the medical work of Dr. Mackenzie, who had been their fellow worker in Wuchang. It has fallen to her lot to write the biography of this loving and single-minded servant of the Lord, the perusal of which has been a means of grace to many.

(From a Photograph by Messrs. E. Walker & Co., Midland-road, Bedford.)

The medical work was stimulated by the princely generosity of the Viceroy, Li-Hung Chang, who supported a special hospital for Dr. Mackenzie. Miss Winterbotham and Miss Roberts arrived to share the work at a time when family claims were unusually heavy, but Mrs. Bryson seized the earliest opportunity to establish an industrial class for Christian women, and many were able to add to the scanty income of their families by knitting all manner of men, women, and children's garments.

While thus engaged in this full routine of a missionary's wife, and with the claims of a large family upon her, Mrs. Bryson has also been fruitful as a writer. For several years before marriage she wrote for the Sunday School Union periodicals, also The Leisure Hour, Dr. Barnardo's Children's Treasury, etc., under the name of "Isa Kar." Since going to China, her pen has been very busy in contributing to various missionary publications, also those of the Religious Tract Society, The Quiver, and others. In 1885, a very graphic volume was published, entitled "Child Life in Chinese Homes"; and her book entitled "Fred C. Roberts, of Tientsin; or, for Christ and China,"* has just been published.

Although her activity surprised many, all could not see under what burdens this ever bright and happy worker toiled. Her large family has gone through nearly all the ills that beset young life in China, not to speak of the further trouble of malarial fevers, with other trying but less serious ailments; but her faith in God's wise dealings with her and those dear to her, has never given way, neither have those in daily contact with her heard even a whisper of murmur or complaint. Christ is to her an inspiring Friend, the source of her life. His service is her delight, and his people her chosen friends. This strong and active nature is also tenacious and discriminating in its friendships. The hospitality of missionaries is proverbial, but Mrs. Bryson's house seems to have elastic walls, and to be bounded only by the powers of her capacious and generous heart.

Mrs. Bryson and her husband are at present at home enjoying much-needed rest and change. Soon they hope to return to their loved work; meanwhile, so far as strength and opportunity serve, they are seeking, by speaking from place to place, to awaken a deepened interest in Missions, and to call forth fresh labourers among the heathen.

It will be seen that whatever Mrs. Bryson has been able to accomplish has not been done because time and opportunity invited the effort. "Hindrances strewed all the way." Excuses lurked in every homely duty. But the spirit of true discipleship, led by its Divine inspirer, yearned over the mothers and little ones of the Middle Kingdom and longed to introduce them to the Kingdom of God. Thus, despite weariness, pain, and anxiety beyond the lot of many, she has toiled in a manner which another worker has aptly described:—

I look up to my Father, and know that I am heard,
And ask Him for the glowing thought, and for the fitting Word;
I look up to my Father, for I cannot write alone,
'Tis sweeter far to seek his strength than lean upon my own.
I bless the gracious Father, who has moulded praise from pain,
And turned a wail of mourning to a trustful calm refrain;
To many a sorrow giving me an afterward of song,
And wafting it to other hearts in comfort true and strong.

THE NATIONAL BIBLE SOCIETY OF SCOTLAND.—The directors at their last week's meeting in Glasgow took farewell of Messrs. M. J. Walker and R. P. Simpson on their return to China and Spain. Further communications in reference to the recent outbreak in China were received from agents in that country. There was laid on the table a Japanese pocket Bible, published by the three Bible Societies, and sold at elevenpence, a price which more than covers the cost of production. In the quarter ending June 30 last 86,226 Scriptures, including 8,521 Bibles and Testaments, had been sold in Japan. The Society's French tricycle-colporteur had sold during the past four months in the department of the Somme 2,784 New Testaments. Two new colporteurs were appointed on trial for service in Spain. It was reported that two of the Society's Spanish colporteurs, on a false charge of horse-stealing, had been thrown into a country prison; but they were happily set free after one night's imprisonment. A grant was made of thirty large type Bibles, specially bound for use on board the s.s. Dayspring, of the New Hebrides Mission.

* In this biography, Fred C. Roberts, of Tientsin, by Mrs. Bryson (3s. 6d. H. R. Allenson), the gifted authoress tells sympathetically, as a co-worker with Dr. Roberts, the story of his devoted life. Brief though it be, it is crowded with incident and interest. The lights and shadows of medical missionary life in a great Chinese city, its trials and difficulties, its joys and sorrows, are reflected from Dr. Roberts's own letters and diaries, while many glimpses are given of an inner life made strong by communion with the risen Saviour.

Among the Red Indians.

By Rev. EGERTON R. YOUNG.

IV.—AN OLD WARRIOR'S LESSON.

The incident given below is one of the early memories of my life. It deeply impressed me by the painful way in which the lesson was taught, and gave some insight into the methods by which the Red Indians are early disciplined into what is one of their most distinguishing characteristics, that is, the perfect control they can exercise over their feelings and emotions when they so desire. Naturally they are as susceptible to pain and suffering as are other races, but by stern discipline and strong will-power, they are able to steel themselves against every emotion, and to look upon all things, whether of joy or sorrow, with utter indifference, and to put up with the greatest agony or torture without the quivering of a muscle, or the blanching of a cheek.

When I was a small boy, my father was stationed on a large Mission in the backwoods of Canada. The native Indian tribes were drifting backwards before the irresistible march of the white man, or were being settled on reservations, selected for them by the Government. For years they retained their rights to roam about and kill the game, which still abounded, but which was rapidly becoming less as the white settlements increased, and the great forests disappeared.

To these Indians upon their reservations, the Gospel was proclaimed by the self-sacrificing missionaries as they travelled their toilsome rounds on those large mission fields. Many were their hardships and dangers. Wild beasts sometimes attacked them. Storms were not infrequent, and there was the constant risk of getting bewildered and lost in the great forests, which still abounded, and often stretched unbroken for many miles between the remote settlements.

These visits to the Indians were not made in vain. Many of those children of the forest, sick and dissatisfied with their old paganism, which gave no peace to their troubled spirits, gladly received the truth, and became earnest, consistent Christians. Their godly lives, in many places, were a constant reproof against the inconsistencies and sins of their white neighbours. So much so in some places was this the case, that very deliberate efforts were made to induce the Indians to get drunk on liquor freely offered to them as gifts, that they might thus disgrace themselves.

At rare intervals, it was a great privilege in my boyhood days to be permitted to accompany my father to some of the Indian encampments, that were not very far from our home. Well do I remember their sweet plaintive voices, as they sang some of our hymns, which had been translated into their own language. Their devout and attentive demeanour during the religious services deeply impressed me.

In one wigwam a very characteristic incident occurred. Being known as the son of the Black Coat, for in this way was the missionary designated by this tribe, I was always welcomed in their wigwams, and given a seat in the circle around the fire. Seated on the ground in the wigwam where this incident occurred, were several Indians variously employed. There were three generations of them, all busily engaged in work, principally at basket-making, except the aged grandfather. He was a venerable, patriarchal-looking old man, and sat there on his blanket absorbed in thought.

The youngest of the company, and the one that naturally attracted my attention, next to the old man, was a young Indian lad, who seemed to be about my own age. He was busily engaged with an Indian crooked knife, endeavouring to make an arrow. In his eagerness to succeed in his work he let his knife slip, and unfortunately cut himself very badly. At the sight of the blood, which flowed freely, for it was an ugly wound, the lad set up a howl of pain and alarm, which greatly startled the stoical Indians. Relief was quickly afforded, and the cut was covered with balsam, and tied up in a piece of deerskin. Not one word of sympathy did the boy receive for the accident, but from the mouths of nearly every person in the wigwam there arose a chorus of indignation and disgust at the fact of his having cried out when injured.

Indians very seldom punish their children. Against the boys especially the rod is seldom used. The girls, in the still heathen families, often have a hard time of it, being badly knocked about and beaten. But the boys generally escape, even if they richly deserve the punishment. Here, however, was a very serious case. This boy had committed the serious crime of crying out at an ordinary cut on his hand, inflicted by himself. It would never do to let it pass. The lad must be taught a lesson that would never be forgotten, and this is the way in which it was done, much to my boyish amazement and surprise, by his old grandfather, who was deeply stirred at what he deemed the unworthy conduct of his grandson.

Placing the lad near him, he gave him a talk upon the duty of bearing pain without uttering a cry, or even a groan.

The fine old man, who had been a great warrior in his younger days, told him that if he were not more courageous than that he would never become a brave warrior, or a good hunter, and that unless he was able to control his feelings, and never cry out, no matter what was the cause, they could never respect him any more than they would an old grandmother. While he talked he renewed the fire, which had partly burned down on the ground in the middle of the wigwam. When this was, by the addition of some very dry wood, burning up vigorously, the old man quickly turned to his grandson again, and speaking out sharply and excitedly he said: "See here! Look at me! This is the way a brave should stand pain!" Then, to my horror, he suddenly reached out his hand and held one finger in the flame, and kept it there until it was fearfully burnt.

During this sickening ordeal not a muscle of the old man's face quivered, not a groan escaped from his firmly-set lips. To judge from his appearance, it might have been a stick he was burning. When at length he drew back the crisp burnt finger, on the now blistered hand, he held it towards his grandson, and gave him another lecture, telling him, among other things, that if he ever expected to be great or honoured among his people, in the way he had witnessed in his grandfather, he must bear pain without flinching or uttering a cry.

This incident created a deep impression on my mind, and I have often thought since that if an Indian in his ignorance would endure such pain for the sake of upholding a heathen tradition, how unworthy it is of many of us that we are willing to bear so little for the sake of the Saviour who died for us.

DR. A. T. PIERSON.

Permit me to state that Dr. A. T. Pierson has promised to spend six months in this country from January, and it is proposed that he should visit several of the larger towns, spending three or four days in each, and holding conferences on the following subjects:—First day, the Inspiration and Authority of the Bible; second day, the Personality and Power of the Holy Spirit; third day, the Culture of the Inner Life; fourth day, Christian Missions. There would be two meetings daily.

I should be glad to hear from those who are prepared to arrange for these conferences in various towns. The following conditions are suggested:—First: That the meetings be held on neutral ground, one of the largest buildings being taken. Second: That an effort should be made to engage the interest and co-operation of Evangelical leaders belonging to all branches of the Church. Third: That the local expenses, advertising, etc., be met by those who arrange the meetings (this may easily be met by having an offering at the doors at each meeting); and that the balance should be sent to us for general expenses. Fourth: That the arrangement as to dates, etc., be left as far as possible with us, so as to save needless travelling to and fro.

We hope and believe that much good may result from this visit of our honoured friend.

F. B. Meyer.

Christ Church, Westminster Bridge-road, S.E.

TWENTY-FOUR YEARS IN HYDE PARK.

We are just closing our twenty-fourth year of Gospel services in the great park of the West-end, and are rejoicing in the fruits abounding from the season just concluded.

We began this work in 1872, and for some years endured a great deal of hostility from the infidels, being often obliged to continue singing the Gospel until our enemies were tired out and left us undisturbed. In 1874 Hyde Park Hall was built and opened. Then a choir of godly and baptized believers was formed, and trained to sing from music, which has now entered upon its twenty-first year, and hopes soon to celebrate its coming of age.

Much of the success which has resulted is owing (humanly speaking) to large audiences being attracted by good singing, and, while the bulk of the listeners are of the artisan class, yet many notables (including a Premier and other Cabinet Ministers), have been observed listening.

In 1875 the Metropolitan Music Hall was engaged for Sunday nights as the further outcome of the work in the park; and though capable of seating 2000 persons, it was crowded on the opening night, and has continued so for the past twenty years.

Our week-night services are now closed for this year, as it is hardly prudent to begin an open-air service in the dark. Every meeting is followed by an indoor service, and it is exceptional not to find anxious troubled souls, who have followed the workers in from the park, inquiring the way to rest and peace. Many notable speakers have preached with us; numbers of striking cases of conversion have been noted. Visiting a London hospital recently a man said to me "I was converted when Dr. Talmage preached from the text 'Come thou and all thy house into the Ark.'"

Another striking feature has been the large number of foreigners who have come under the influence of the Gospel in the open-air, no less than fourteen nationalities having been represented by the converts up to last year. A young German two Sundays ago said to me: "I was at the meeting in the park on Sunday last, and came into the hall, and I have trusted in the Lord Jesus, and am able to thank God for saving me."

Another case is still more interesting. At the close of a Monday evening service in the Park we adjourned as usual to the Hall, which is within three minutes' walk, when a Stundist, who has held a high appointment in Russia, came in with us. His story was most pathetic; an exile without friends, he had wandered through England and London, and though not actually in want, was very much reduced in circumstances, and although speaking five or six languages, could get no regular employment. "I had almost lost all hope, and well nigh faith, when I came to your meeting to-night," he said to us at the close of the service, "but now I will hope in God, and trust in Christ." I was enabled to start him in a small way in business, and he is now both bright and cheerful. He is an efficient teacher of languages, being master of Hebrew, Greek, and Latin, besides the spoken languages of the Continent.

I could extend the recital of such instances, and also gratefully acknowledge much blessing amongst our own people. We are hoping to continue the Sunday evening meetings till the end of the present month; then we should re-open the large music-hall for the winter; but the loss through death of several liberal subscribers have made me question whether I dare accept the financial responsibility of the latter without some promise of help to meet it. The rent alone is £150 for seven months, which, with other expenses, always amounts to fully £200. If spared another year, I should then complete a quarter of a century's work in Hyde Park, and twenty-one years in the music-hall. The work is so directly aggressive that it cannot possibly be self-supporting, seeing that half of the year the work is chiefly in the open-air, where we deem it highly impolitic to have any collections. A friend has volunteered £50 if the remainder is forthcoming.

Chas. Cook.

6, Frithville Gardens, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MISSION, WALTHAMSTOW.—There is revived interest in connection with the Gospel services for children, held under the auspices of this Mission. Some whom the workers have been praying for for some time past have come to Jesus, and we are looking for others to do the same. F. W.

ERTH CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

The thirty-third annual meeting of this Confe-nce was held in Perth from the 9th to the 12th st. The various gatherings were very well tended, the evening meetings being crowded. erhaps it may be said here, the appearance of the udiences had a much more local aspect than heretore, but when we reflect that whereas the Perth onference remained for years one of two, the other eing Barnet, now Mildmay, Christian confe-nces and conventions are now to be counted by e score, it is not to be wondered at if Perth is not much frequented by strangers, especially from ngland, as before. One very gratifying circum-ance is that evidently many more of the Christian eople in the neighbourhood visit the Conference. he committee is still representative of Scotland.

As usual, on the evening before the Conference roper assembled a reception was held, when visitors om a distance were welcomed with tea and many eetings. An hour thereafter an adjournment was ade to the adjoining Free Middle Church, where prayer meeting was held for special blessing during e Conference season. An evangelistic meeting for omen was also held in another place, when Mrs. atts, of Glasgow, gave an earnest and excellent ldress. We may say just here that the lad eemed to have organised their plans thoroughly nd genially, for every day in the afternoon interval ey held tea-meetings, with addresses to women terwards.

The early morning meeting is always full of terest, alike from the reports of various kinds of ork with interesting and somewhat private details, nd from the pleasure of seeing face to face notable orkers who previously were only known by name in rint. This year these early meetings were not hind in furnishing glad tidings and matter of anksgiving.

In the forenoon of Tuesday, 10th inst., the Con-rence proper was constituted by praise and prayer the City Hall. Lord Kinnaird presided. The bject of Conference was Deliverance, Past, Pre-nt, and Future; each phase of the subject in turn eing treated in the consecutive days. The text on hich the subject was based was 2 Cor. i. 10. The rst address was given by

REV. PROFESSOR LAIDLAW, D.D.

Here we have a threefold aspect of salvation hich God accomplishes for us and in us. In one spect it is accomplished; in another it is still oing on; in a third aspect it is looked forward to, be revealed when the Lord comes. We shall onsider the first aspect, and especially the practical es of knowing this aspect of salvation. In illus-ation of this, take another passage, 1 Thess i. 10: Jesus, which delivered us from the wrath to ome." We would naturally have expected here will deliver us" instead of "delivered." This ord shows that there is no condemnation to God's eople. Condemnation and wrath are all behind. ou know this, but do you realise it? How slow hristians are, even earnest Christians, to take this . That old native tendency (which itself is just opery) is apt to return. The feeling, "I must do omething for expiation of my own sin; I must ke some share in it," rises in us, and we forget hat God says, "I, even I, am He that blotteth out y transgressions."

Take another passage, Col. i. 13, "Hath delivered s from the power" (or more correctly, authority) of darkness." This brings out the fact that you annot belong to the two kingdoms at once. Lord rougham grew to be so fond of Cannes that he ought to be naturalised as a Frenchman, but ound it was impossible to be both a peer of ngland and a citizen of a French town; he must enounce the one to become the other. Coming ut from under the authority of darkness one gets he right or authority (same word in John i. 12 as ere) to become a son of God, and have the stand-ng of children in the family. This applies to the iscipline of life. Though you are pardoned, do ot imagine you can sin if you like. Nay; you are nswerable for any sins you commit. "What?" ou say, "is it not finished after all?" Yes, it is nished; but, being translated out of the region of w and penalty altogether, you are put into the osition of children.

Now, the faults of children are dealt with by the arent, severely, it may be, but lovingly, for their ood. The servant who grievously offends is dis-issed, perhaps without being scolded at all. The on who as grievously offends is not dismissed, but severely dealt with. "Whom I love I rebuke and chasten." This is the "rebuke" which the Holy Ghost carries on (Isa. xxxvii. 3).

Consider now another passage. "Thou hast delivered my soul from death"—i.e., from death in trespasses and sins—or from the dominion of sin. Rom. vii. explains this. It is there said that the two opposite principles are in the believer, the old nature and the new. But the one is crucified and dying, and the other prevails, and is superior. Remember, you cannot serve two masters. You may serve two men, but not two masters. This means the prevailing tendency of your character is to be towards the serving and pleasing of God.

The other speaker was Rev. A. J. Poynder, who expounded and applied Ps. lvi. 13.

The afternoon meeting was given to many workers to tell in five minutes each, how the Lord had delivered some from sin and shame. Thereafter a short prayer-meeting "For our children" was held, and a special meeting for ministers, under the presidency of Dr. Bannerman, was addressed by Dr. Laidlaw, Dr. Stalker, and Rev. A. J. Poynder.

DR. J. L. STALKER,

the first speaker in the evening, took as his text Eph. ii. 12, and confined himself to the three points "Without God, without Christ, without hope," the godless man's condition. He maintained that man is essentially a religious being; all science goes to prove that there is a throne in man's nature which remains untenanted until God takes possession of it. Why is it, then, that God does not reign in every man? Here the problem of free-will comes in. God will not force Himself on any man. He stands at the door and knocks. The door can be opened from the inside, and God will not enter until it is opened, and the invitation issued from within. Illustrating the second, "Without Christ," Dr. Stalker said, "In this Christian land no man can be described as wholly without Christ. Christ's influence is far-reaching, and permeates everything; every book we read, every study we pursue, is more or less under the influence of Christ. But it is one thing to be under an influence from which we cannot escape, and quite another to know Christ personally, and to have entered into the closest of all relationships with Him. It is the want of this that brings men into the condition described in the text.

Dr. Corbett, of Glasgow, followed, and, taking Pilate's question as a text (Matt. xxvii. 22), delivered an impressive address on "A Soul's Perplexity." Now, Christ's day of trial is not yet over. He still, as it were, is being tried by every man, and Pilate's question has to be answered by every man for himself. On the answer all eternity depended. By-and-by Christ would be the Judge; his attitude then would be decided by man's attitude to Him now.

SECOND DAY.

On Wednesday forenoon Sir Archibald Campbell, Bart., was chairman. Dr. Corbett was the first speaker. His subject was, "Who doth Deliver"—God's present deliverance. It was a glorious thing to look back upon our steps and see God's power and grace in deliverance. There we find cause to praise Him for all He hath done. But there was danger of not doing equal justice to the fact that God is a present deliverer, and then we do grievous hurt to the beauty of Christian life. God is really our deliverer to-day. Were we to remember this, our Christianity would be a far brighter thing than it is. Fathers, mothers, young men and young women who want to have God's will, and yet are surrounded by the worry and business of life, what a joy would be theirs did they realise that God doth deliver. They heard much of going back to Christ, and it was a precious fact of to-day that they were doing so, but don't let them mistake—Christ is here. What they had to do was to realise the present Christ, to recognise that He is in their offices and homes.

Rev. Arthur Gordon, Monsievaird, followed with an address on "Conscious Deliverance," based on Acts xii. 11.

Rev. Dr. Stalker gave the last address on Eph. ii. 2, on "Deliverance out of the World." The world in Paul's day was a far more definite thing than in ours. Now the difficulty of coming out is greater. He then referred to some of the phases of worldliness from which we are delivered. (1) Seeking happiness outside. Here is seeking and never finding. To find happiness inside instead of outside is to be delivered. (2) To be delivered from the aimlessness and uselessness of the worldly life. (3) From pride. Christ delivers by giving us a new standard of measurement of ourselves. In our character we are to correspond with Him. (4) falsehood. In what way does Christ deliver us from falsehood? By making us think of the eye of God and the judgment.

The afternoon and evening were devoted to reports from the mission field, and missionary addresses. Several missionaries from distant lands were present.

CLOSING DAY.

On Thursday forenoon the Conference again met, Mr. W. C. Malcolm, of Burnfoot, presiding. Rev. Arthur Gordon led the Conference in the subject for the day, viz., "Deliverance for the Future." Proceeding, he inquired, Who questions it? (1) The scoffer, the unbeliever who says, "Where is the promise of his coming?" He calls faith in Christ superstition. But is not the Christian superstition in itself so much superior to all others that it is our duty to spread it? (2) The perplexed soul, whom he might call a spiritual hypochondriac. He is fond of selfish self-analysis—a spiritual disease. Let them forget themselves, and live for Christ, for others. (3) Others who are temporarily in the darkness, and are to be sympathised with. Sickness is sometimes a help to the Christian. Then the mind and intellect are clear. But such is not a constant experience. What is the remedy? Look to Jesus. Remember his sense of forsakenness when the burden of the world's sin came in all its intensity upon the pure and holy soul of Jesus, and hid his Father's face. Take three texts: (1) Isa. l. 10, "Who is among you that feareth the Lord," etc. You see God has a character, a name, the name of the Lord. (2) Ps. l. 15: "Call upon Me in the day of trouble," etc. Some people were too much in the company of Mrs. Diffidence, Giant Despair's wife. They have the key of promise in their own bosoms if they would only remember. (3) James v. 13: "Is any among you afflicted?" etc. Go and tell it to God. Unbosom your difficulty, your sorrow, as King Hezekiah spread the letter before the Lord, and He will make your way clear.

Professor Laidlaw followed with an address on the words, "Unto Him who is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy."

In the afternoon the Communion of the Lord's Supper was held in the Free Middle Church, under the charge of the Wesleyan minister and Session, Dr. Laidlaw and Rev. Arthur Gordon giving the addresses.

In the evening a great evangelistic meeting was held. Prof. Simpson, Edinburgh, was in the chair, and earnest addresses were given by Rev. Dr. Robson and Mr. W. A. Campbell, Glasgow.

Dr. Bannerman, as joint secretary, directed the business of the various meetings with excellent order. His late coadjutor, Mr. James Mudie, of Montrose, was not forgotten, nor were many others who are now with the Lord in the Upper Sanctuary, who were wont to be visibly present with us. We all met and parted, we trust, under the welcome and benediction of our Deliverer, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named.

Scone. A. K. McM.

LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY:

FOUNDERS' WEEK CONVENTION.

In September, 1795, during a week of very remarkable meetings, the London Missionary Society was founded, and now, after the lapse of a century, the directors are marking the event by a week's convention, to be held in London. More delegates, however, are coming than have thus far been provided for; and on the strength of the Society's catholic basis and history a general appeal is made for help in this matter. The hospitality required will include supper, bed, and breakfast for the five days of the convention—that is, from Monday evening, September 23, to Friday evening, September 27, or possibly Saturday morning, September 28. The names and addresses of friends willing to entertain delegates as guests will be gratefully received by the secretaries of the Hospitality Committee, Revs. G. Cousins and T. Grear, 14, Blomfield-street, E.C.

BRUMANA, SYRIA.—The Girls' Training Home is now nearly ready for use again, after heavy repairs, and Miss Caroline Cadbury hopes to reach Brumana about the middle of October, to receive the scholars, after their unusually long holiday. The additional story provides room for several more girls, an enlargement which has become very urgent.

The Evangelist.

"IT'S BOILING OVER."

By Rev. W. E. SELLERS.

I was conducting a village mission. From the little chapel in which the services were being held not more than two or three houses could be seen, and yet it was crowded night by night with eager listeners, who gathered from all the country side. Great power was resting upon both preacher and people; and many were in trouble about their souls.

My "home" was a large rambling farmhouse, standing at some distance from any other house, and a mile or more from the chapel. The farmer—a real old Methodist—had several children, one of these, a bright young fellow of about twenty-one, speedily attracted my special attention. He attended the services out of courtesy to his father and his father's guest, but every night as soon as the sermon was over he left the chapel, and could not be prevailed upon to stay to the after-meeting. I saw it was no use speaking personally to him on the subject of religion. He was one of those who are best left alone. So I contented myself with praying for him, and quite expected to see him converted before the mission closed.

The week was, however, passing rapidly, and there was no sign of yielding on the part of the young man. On the Thursday night, although there was special power in the service, he left as usual as soon as the sermon was concluded, apparently still unmoved. When I returned tired out to my farmhouse home, he was nowhere to be seen. We had supper and went to bed, thinking but little of his absence, as there were so many duties to claim his attention. I had just reached the borderland of dreams, when all at once the door of my room opened, and I heard someone step softly to my bedside.

Then the voice spoke from out of the darkness, "Please, sir, will you come and pray with me?" I understood it now. It was my host's son in trouble about his soul. He had waited until all had gone to bed, and then, unable to bear his mental agony longer, had come to the minister for help. "Oh, yes!" I said; "that I will, right gladly. Go downstairs. I'll be with you in a minute."

Hastily slipping on a few clothes, I stumbled downstairs and into the dining-room. He was there in the darkness, groaning in agony of soul. We did not stop to strike a light, but from the darkness sent our petitions to God's throne. Hour after hour we pleaded. He was in desperation. In his terrible conflict of soul, all unconsciously to himself, he pushed the table first in one direction and then in another; and the various articles of furniture suffered rather seriously during those midnight hours! In his extremity he cried repeatedly, "I must be saved to-night."

By-and-by his cries aroused the sleeping family, and I heard steps overhead and down the stairs, and then I saw the glint of a candle through the keyhole. They were listening to him, and then, realising the situation, they retired like wise people to their rooms.

Unknown to his friends and to me he had been under conviction of sin for days, but had made up his mind that he would not yield. Said he afterwards, "I was so determined and so angry that if you had spoken to me about my soul I should have knocked you down." But that last service had been too much for him. He had left the chapel and gone into the stable, and there among the straw he had knelt and prayed to God, and at last, unable to find peace with God, he had decided to arouse the minister.

How he did pray! How determined he was! At length, after hours of mighty wrestling, there was a pause, and a strange quiet rested upon us, like a lull after some terrible storm. He was kneeling close to me, and I felt him stretch forth his hand. "What is it?" I said. "What do you see?" "See!" he cried, and he jumped to his feet; "I see Jesus Christ hanging on the cross for my sins." He felt for my hand in the darkness, and grasped it in a way which gave both pleasure and pain. "Oh," he cried, "won't father be glad!" The first thought was for the old man who for so many years had been praying for his son. We rejoiced together, and then, fearing the consequences of further excitement, I begged him to go to bed. We parted for the night, both praising God with joyful songs.

When after an hour or two's sleep I came down to breakfast, I met him on the stairs. His face was beaming. He seemed a new man. What a strange yet glorious light plays upon human faces after long communion with God! How the lines of care fade away, and the eyes, shining with a lustre not their own, seem able to look into eternity.

"Well," I said, "how is it this morning?" "Oh!" he replied, "it's boiling over, boiling over." It looked like it. And as I watched the nervous working of that sensitive face, and listened to him praising God as we sat at breakfast, I thought it would not be long before others felt the warmth of that love which was even then "boiling over."

I had not an opportunity to speak to him alone again until we walked to chapel in the evening. It was evident it was "boiling over." His heart was full to overflowing, and his face and lips told it.

The chapel was full when we reached it, and the service was one of power. I had just concluded the sermon when I felt my coat pulled from behind, and a voice said, "Don't you remember what I told you this morning? 'It's boiling over, and it must come out.'"

"Well," I replied, "come with me into the pulpit, and let it 'come out.'"

He came, and before all the congregation gave his testimony.

"I can't help it, I must speak. To have the love of God in one's heart and not to tell about it is impossible. It's a fire burning within, and it seems to me others must catch the blaze. You'll think it strange to see me in the pulpit. And it is strange. Aye, but I ought to have been in that big front pew during the week, but I wouldn't go, and now I've had to come into the pulpit instead. That's worse than going into the pew. And if I didn't tell you about it some of you would think I wanted to slink into religion. And so I've come here to tell you all. But there, it's no credit to me. I can no more keep it in than I can fly. It's boiling over, as I told the minister, and I reckon it'll keep boiling over, as long as it's near the fire."

Not long afterwards I was asked to reopen the chapel, which had been enlarged because the increased congregations demanded "more room." I went, and to my great delight found that it was still "boiling over." He had gathered several of the young men into a Bible class, and was not only teaching them the Scriptures, but leading them to Christ.

CANON HOARE MEMORIAL.—Those who valued the late Canon Hoare's teaching and testimony have been endeavouring to raise £5000 to add a new wing to the South-Eastern College, at Ramsgate, in memory of him. Of this £4400 has been secured, and strong efforts are being made to complete the amount. A friend has offered an additional gift of £100, if the other £500 be obtained by September 30, and towards this a poor man has sent £10. With a little self-denial the thing would be done. The secretary is Rev. J. H. Townsend, D.D., St. Mark's, Tunbridge Wells.

THE BARNET CONFERENCE.—After a lapse of many years another conference will be held to commemorate the jubilee of the parish of Christ Church. Special sermons will be preached on Sunday, October 6, by Rev. John Barton, and a prayer meeting will be held on the Monday evening. The conference will last three days, viz., October 8, 9, and 10, and Revs. Evan Hopkins, Barnes-Lawrence, Geo. H. C. Macgregor, W. E. Chapman, E. J. Kennedy, and others will take part. Canon Trotter, the vicar, will preside. The subject for the three days will be "The Love of God," in salvation, sanctification, and service. A Bible-reading will be held on Tuesday and Thursday at 3 o'clock—on the latter day on "The Lord's Coming". On Wednesday afternoon the claims of the heathen, the Mohammedans, and the Jews will be set forth. There has been much prayer, and a season of great blessing is expected. High Barnet station, on the Great Northern Railway, is not far from the conference tent. Special arrangements for the comfort of visitors have been made, and hospitality will be found as far as possible for those who can stay the three days. Information may be had from Canon Trotter, Christ Church Vicarage, Barnet.

Letter to the Editor.

ROMAN CATHOLIC ADVANCES.

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me to ask all readers of The Christian to join in prayer that the Government may not make any concessions to the Church of Rome in Ireland?

With the prospect of a Government grant to the "Christian Brothers," followed perhaps by further grants (a general endowment scheme is in the air), and in view of the openings for Gospel work at present in Ireland, and the increasing willingness of the people to receive the truth, let us pray very earnestly that this work may not be hindered by any concessions to Rome.—Yours very truly,

September 9. C. Butler Stoney.

REVIVAL MEMORIES.

Dear Sir,—Through the thoughtful kindness of a friend in Scotland, I receive occasionally at my Dunedin (N.Z.) home a copy of The Christian. No articles have interested me more than those which have recounted the marvellous goodness of God in America and Scotland during the ever-memorable years of 1857-60. Gladly do I "remember the days of old." As long as life lasts I shall gratefully recall the names of honoured brethren who, through God's grace, did grand service in those splendid years, viz., Reginald Radcliffe, Richard Weaver, E. P. Hammond, Duncan Matheson, Gordon Forlong, Brownlow North, and others. They were then carried forward on the crest of the wave. Undoubtedly, as Joseph Cook puts it, "God is the author of revivals and revivalists." Very largely through dear Mr. Hammond I was brought, in March, 1861, to decision for Christ, and ever since have been doing work for the Master in the old land and the new.

To God be all the praise for what we have seen and heard in later years through Mr. Moody, and other brave good men, whose names appear in your paper from time to time. But yet it seems to some interested onlookers that the evidences of deep repentance for sin are not now so marked as in the blessed years of grace just mentioned. If that be correct, how shall we explain it? In my judgment, we do not now plough deep enough; we have too much machinery, we have quite a plethora of organisations, but far too little Holy Ghost power! Viewed from some aspects, we are too progressive; and although perhaps a little humbling, we must face the inevitable and quietly get back to Apostolic Christianity, and to what some may sneer at as primitive methods, if the day of Pentecost is again to be repeated.

In Maoriland, where for over twenty years I have done service for Christ, over a large part of Victoria, including Melbourne, Geelong, Ballarat, and other centres, in many parts of New South Wales, including Sydney, Newcastle, &c., and now in, Tasmania (beautiful island of the sea), I have met and conversed with many persons from Great Britain and Ireland who were converted to God during the years already referred to. Oh, for another mighty wave, deep and strong, of Holy Ghost power to sweep over the homeland and these fair islands of the sea! And let all the people say, "Amen."

It is far from enough, on any side of the sea, that we should "hold the fort." In the name of our risen Lord and King the Christian Church must attack Satan's strongholds; it is imperative that we be aggressive, and that vigorously and constantly we spread abroad a knowledge of the Saviour's name.

Come, Holy Spirit, come,
Let thy bright beams arise!

—Yours truly,

D. Wright (of Dunedin, N.Z.).

Tasmania.

A MISSIONARY FAREWELL.—A valedictory service was held in St. George's Cross Tabernacle, Glasgow, on the 12th inst., to wish God-speed to Mr. John Cooper, going forth to China this month in connection with the China Inland Mission. Pastor D. J. Findlay presided. Rev. J. W. Stevenson, deputy director of the Mission, gave an account of thirty years' work for God in China. Mr. Robert Grierson told something of his ten years' experience there; and asked special prayer for the native Christians at present passing through a storm of persecution. The pastor, in presenting a handsome Bible (Bagster) to Mr. Cooper, gave him also 2 Tim. iv. 1, 2, as his text from the workers. Mr. Cooper replied in a few touching words. The congregation have also provided the young missionary's outfit and passage

---

* From Strange Scenes and Strange Experiences. (1s. 6d. C. H. Kelly.) A series of stirring incidents from the experiences of a Methodist minister. They are graphically penned, and many of them are singularly interesting.

The Book World.

The Perfections and Excellences of Holy Scripture. By Thomas Newberry. (John Ritchie, Kilmarnock.) A little volume of significant facts and suggestive inferences.

The "Autocrat" Birthday Book. (1s. 6d. Sunday School Union.) A tastefully-prepared book, with daily selections (as hinted in the title) from the writings of Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Consecration: "I am the Lord's." By H. L. Hastings. An admirable booklet; choice in contents, tasteful in binding. Many have been helped by these pages, and we trust the re-issue will be largely blessed. (1s. Marshall Brothers.)

The Mystery of Human Suffering Dispelled. By John Maynard. (1s. Partridge.) There is good reasoning here; although the work is too slight to take into account some of the important issues inevitably raised in the problem of pain.

Bible Readings for the Year: A Book for the Young. By T. S. Henderson. (Simpkin, Marshall & Co.) A re-issue of an admirable little work. The Scripture texts are well chosen, and the explanations are simple and directed to a practical end.

The Pathway of Light: A Study of the Conditions and Privileges of Christian Fellowship. By Rev. J. P. Lilley, M.A. (1s. 6d. C. H. Kelly.) A series of meditations on 1 John i. 7, a passage marvellously comprehensive in its teaching. The exposition is lucid and essentially practical.

The Will of God: What is it? and how to do it. By Rev. J. P. Hobson. (1s. Religious Tract Society.) A series of brief chapters on an important and practical subject, which doubtless exercises greatly the minds of all believers who seek to walk in obedience and fellowship. Clear and helpful hints are given as to recognising the will of God in things of daily life.

"For the Good of the House," and other temperance readings, by Rev. Charles Courtenay. (1s. Religious Tract Society.) We have often read with pleasure the author's vigorous and sensible papers on the evils of strong drink and the value of abstinence; hence we gladly welcome this collection of readings in cheap and convenient form likely to prove of service to many.

James Talbert, Dundee. By J. C. Smith. (6d. J. P. Matthew, Dundee.) We do not wonder that this simple story of one who for sixty long years was a prisoner of Jesus Christ should have attracted general attention, and consequently run through its first edition. A second edition now appears with three additional chapters, a facsimile of James's handwriting, and other fresh matter. We doubt not it will meet with a warm welcome.

Ben Hur, by Lew Wallace. (2s. Sunday School Union.) A cheap edition of a book which has already become widely known. As throwing light on the days when our Lord Jesus Christ walked this earth it has its merits, giving, as it does, in the form of a tale, glimpses of the condition of things then prevailing and the habits and customs of the people. Many, however, must feel some objection to the chapters which introduce "the Nazarene," though, we must admit these are penned in a reverent spirit.

The Bible: its Origin, Growth, and Descent: A Lantern Lecture by Rev. W. M. Wadsworth, M.A. (s. Stockton-on-Tees: E. Appleby, 59, High-street.) The story is pointed and succinct, and should prove a service to lecturers. Those who are not familiar with the subject will find the pages very readable; those who know the subject, will find the treatment suggestive. As particulars are given of over eighty lantern slides, including information as to where they may be bought or hired, it is hoped that the volume will promote an excellent method of popular education.

The Lord's Supper: Aids to its Intelligent and Devout Observance. By W. T. Davison, D.D. (2s. C. H. Kelly.) Prepared at the request of the Book Committee of the Wesleyan Conference, this little work, in the language of its author, "is an attempt to combine the giving of some measure of instruction concerning the history and meaning of the Lord's Supper, with devotional guidance towards its reverent observance." Experienced Christians, as well as young disciples, may read its pages with profit; for the treatment is at once Scriptural and stimulating.

Home-Making; or, the Ideal Family Life. By Rev. J. R. Miller, D.D. (3s. 6d. Sunday School Union.) The first half of this book has already appeared in a volume entitled "The Perfect Home." The new chapters constitute this a very valuable work on a subject of great importance. In the words of the author: "The aim is to mark out the duties and responsibilities of each member of the household—husband, wife, parents, children, brothers and sisters—and to suggest how each may do a part in making the home-life what God meant it to be." The volume is full of wise and godly counsels, and will, we trust, have many readers.

Twenty Years in Khama's Country, and pioneering among the Batauana of Lake Ngami, is the title of a timely volume of letters by the late Rev. J. D. Hepburn, edited by C. H. Lyall. (6s. Hodder & Stoughton.) As is well known, Mr. Hepburn was a devoted agent of the L.M.S. He combined sterling common sense with deep piety, and was permitted to see remarkable fruit of his labour among South African tribes. We last week gave our readers an extract showing how Khama cleared his country of the drink scourge. The pages tell a story which has its light and shade, but one thing is obvious, and that is that Khama is no ordinary man, and that his land is one that should engage the sympathy and prayers of Christians everywhere. The habits of the people are admirably described; and it is impossible not to admire the modesty of the missionary, also his courage, which was bravely shared by his wife in times of peculiar difficulty and danger.

Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh, 70, King's Cross-road, W.C., has published a useful placard (1½d., post free), entitled, "Beware of Infidelity!"

The Church Almanac is an admirable wall sheet. The issue for next year is embellished by an excellent portrait of the Queen, and pictures of the Royal Palaces. (1d. Church Monthly Office, New Bridge-street, E.C.)

Did Jesus Christ ever Live?—This tract makes available for all the substance of a lecture by F. W. Birkett, in reply to ignorant declarations of a Secularist leader. The treatment is pointed and plain. (1d. W. Gregg, Western Hill, Sunderland.)

Miss Emily Headland has added to her very useful "Brief Sketches of C.M.S. Workers" outlines of the lives of Rev. George Maxwell Gordon, well known for his itinerant labours in India, Persia, and Afghanistan; and Right Rev. William Williams, Missionary in New Zealand and Bishop of Waiapu. In each case there is a portrait of the subject. (2d. Nisbet & Co.)

Useful booklets are: If Not, Why Not? Plain reasons for coming to the Holy Communion, by Rev. Alfred Leedes Hunt, M.A., Rector of St. Mary's, Maldon. (1d. W. Hunt & Co.) Plain Bible Statements, doctrinal and practical. (2d., post free. F. J. Parsons, Printer, Claremont, Hastings.) Be Definite: A Word for the Times, by Gerald Coultas. (1d. Marshall Brothers.) God's Eyes and Mine, by Ethel Ruth Boddy, a searching booklet, calculated to solemnise many readers. (8d. per dozen. G. W. McKane, Keswick.) A Strange Conference and its Result, a sound Gospel appeal, by John Elliot. (6d. per dozen. Religious Tract & Book Society of Scotland, 93, George-street, Edinburgh.)

RICHARD WEAVER IN GLASGOW.

On the evening of Friday last this veteran evangelist concluded a fortnight of special services in White Memorial Free Church (Rev. Jas. Paterson's). During the first week he had as co-worker his son Frank, whose solo singing was attractive and impressive. The evangelist himself spoke with energy and spiritual power. On the Sabbath evenings though some 1300 could be packed into the building, it was too small for those who wanted to get in, and on week-night evenings the audiences were very large. The message was with such power, that men and women night after night rose from their seats, and in the face of the great congregation, made their way to the vestry to ask, "What must we do to be saved?" Conviction of sin is one outstanding feature of the signs that accompany the preaching of this evangelist.

His frequent presence at the noon meeting in Bothwell-street was greatly relished by the faithful few who keep that lamp of the sanctuary alight.

On his paying an early afternoon visit to the mission shelter, the seventy women who have found a refuge there were gathered together, and the old man spoke the Word to them so touchingly that for the most of them the fountains of the great deep were broken up, and the glistening tears witnessed to the presence of Him who said, "I will be as the dew unto Israel." How eagerly they asked him to come again! And how feelingly (of their own accord) they struck up and sang, "God be with you till we meet again!"

Mr. Weaver has now gone to St. George's Cross Tabernacle (Pastor D. J. Findlay), and is conducting a fortnight of services there. He earnestly wishes the prayers of your readers. J. P.

DR. PENTECOST'S RETURN.

The return of Dr. Pentecost from America has been celebrated by a crowded meeting in the lecture hall of his church, and the heartiness of the welcome must surely have gladdened the heart and given fresh encouragement to their pastor. The chair was taken by an elder of the church, who gave an address of welcome. Mr. Hugh Matheson also spoke. All the various branches of this busy church were represented on the occasion. Dr. Pentecost, in a few appropriate words, returned thanks, and said that although sometimes he suffered from home-sickness, he was glad to be among us, and his desire was not to be pastor and preacher only, but, as far as possible, the friend of his people.

LOWESTOFT BETHEL MISSION.

This mission exists to carry God's remedy for sin and sorrow to seamen and fishermen and their families. The forty-fifth annual report says:—"During the last trying winter, in the midst of sorrow and death, occasioned by the severe gales and storms, and when so many of our seamen and fishermen found a grave in the great deep, we had no less than five memorial services at the Bethel on Sunday evenings, when a large number of the sea-faring people, with the relatives of the drowned, attended. The widows and parents of men lost at sea are all visited, and through my being hon. agent of the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society they receive immediate relief."

Mr. William Johnson, who has for so long carried on the work, has been compelled through advanced age, to relax his energies, especially in the visitation of vessels in the harbour. The directors of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society have appointed Rev. B. Hughes, formerly of the Milford Haven Mission, to that department, and also to help in the work of the Bethel. Mr. Hughes, during four months, has visited 1031 vessels, and put on board the boats and smacks 421 parcels of books; he has also given 4045 tracts, 129 Gospels in different languages, thirty-six New Testaments in different languages. He has been welcomed and received kindly by the men.

It is interesting to note that thirty-two masters of luggers are members of the Bethel Union Association, and fly the flag (which is white with blue star). These luggers do not go to sea on the Lord's Day, and the masters when at sea, do not put their gear down during the hours of Sunday.

SUNDAY CARGO WORK ABROAD.

The regrettable practice of working cargoes on Sundays, although, happily, not permitted in the harbours of the United Kingdom, nor in most British colonies with representative government, is still, unfortunately, allowed in some Crown colonies. The harbour-master at Hong Kong, speaking recently respecting the Sunday cargo-working ordinance in force at that port, said: "The intention of the ordinance was, I believe, to put a stop, or nearly so, to Sunday work on board European vessels in the harbour, and the fine originally fixed was thought to be a prohibitive one. It is evident, however, that this is not so; and if I am correct in my surmise as to the intention of the ordinance, I think the fine should be doubled." The Marquis of Ripon, it appears, when Secretary of State for the Colonies, in spite of the strong protest of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce, relaxed the ordinance of his predecessor in the case of the steamers carrying mails, thus permitting Sunday work on board these vessels. It is, therefore, felt that it will be difficult to double the fine in the case of ordinary cargo ships, in order to do away with Sunday labour as far as possible, when their competitors in trade, the subsidised mail steamers, are allowed to go entirely free. The Missions to Seamen, British and Foreign Sailors' Society, and other kindred agencies, in their efforts on behalf of the moral and spiritual welfare of our seamen, have always endeavoured to put a stop to unnecessary work on the Lord's day on board ships in foreign ports, and it is therefore earnestly hoped that the present Government will see their way not only to withdrawing the exceptional privilege enjoyed by the mail boats at Hong Kong, but to try and put an end to labour of all kinds on the Sabbath.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on a special mission conducted by Mr. Charles Lazenby in Spencer-place Chapel, Goswell-road.—For a special mission to young men at Exeter Hall, September 22 to October 4, by Mr. W. R. Lane.—For special services this month and next at Barry Dock Gospel Tent, and for special services there by Mr. Opie Rodway, of Stroud, to commence next Saturday (21st).—For a lady who is afflicted with cataract.—For definite blessing on a fifteen days' mission by Mr. John Cooke, of Evangelisation Society, at Three Bridges Railway Mission, Sussex, commencing September 29.—For a great blessing upon the annual Christian Convention, to be held in the Christian Union Buildings, Dublin, September 30 to October 3.—For one of God's people whose business is fast failing, from no fault of his own, that he may be sustained under the sore trial, and that some way may be opened up for him.—For great blessing on the tent services now being held at Redlynch, Wilts, by Mr. Bray, of the Evangelisation Society.—By a widowed mother for her children and grandchildren, that they may be converted; they are utterly indifferent, and one has become a Roman Catholic.

THE Y.M.C.A.

The Finsbury Park Association announces the inaugural meeting of the coming session for October 7. A strong programme is issued for the autumn and winter.

The Tunbridge Wells Y.M.C.A. commence their winter session with a mission to young men, conducted by a band of young men from the Universities. It begins to-day (September 19) and will continue to the end of the month. The prayers of all Christians are asked for that much blessing may result from this special effort to reach the young men in the town. Good open-air meetings have been held outside the rooms by members of this Association throughout the past summer, and not without blessing. In the villages of the district much good work has also been done.

Says The Bulletin:—"By the end of this month the holidays will be practically over. Even now we are anticipating the autumnal 'settling down' and resumption of indoor work. Secretaries and committees are busy with new plans, fresh ideas are being matured, and programmes are in a state of evolution. How many Y.M.C.A. members—what one may call the 'rank and file'—are considering thoughtfully and prayerfully the work of the coming autumn and winter? How many are engaged in preparation for the efforts in which they will be called upon to take part?"

The district secretaries throughout the country met for prayer and informal conference at Exeter Hall on Thursday evening, under the presidency of Sir George Williams, and again assembled on Friday morning for the consideration of matters affecting the work of the forthcoming autumn and winter. The gatherings were of great interest and profitableness, and developed many useful suggestions for the approaching autumn conferences in the districts. The national council met subsequently, when amongst the visitors present were Mr. Frank Clark, late hon. sec. at Bombay, and Rev. J. Campbell Wall, a vice-president of the Association at Rome. The nomination of an officer to work under the auspices of the council among native student young men in the Bombay Presidency was approved, and the gentleman selected, who was present, was cordially welcomed. Special effort will be put forth among the home Associations during this winter to secure the interest and co-operation of English members in the promotion of this new mission.

THE Y.W.C.A.

THE LONDON ASSOCIATION.

The annual report of the London Association, entitled "Voices from the London Y.W.C.A.," has reached us. The lists of Departments and of Institutes and Homes and other tables at the beginning of the report are useful for reference. The body of the report consists of eight chapters, being voices of presidents of the World's Y.W.C.A., of members, and notes from the Institutes, Departments, etc. It is impossible even to glance through its pages without being impressed with the great extent and value of the work done by the Association amongst London's young women. There are nearly thirty Departments and affiliated Unions and Associations, the usefulness of which is indicated by their titles—Employment Agency, Park Mission, Polytechnic, Educational, Total Abstinence, etc. Lists are given of nearly fifty Institutes and Homes spread over London, each one being a centre of Christian activity. The report largely justifies the estimate of Viscountess Portman, the London president, expressed in the first chapter, that "no Association has ever existed in our own land or in any other of such value as this."

During the year 174 destitute and often friendless girls passed through the Park Mission Lodge. Besides permanent residents, over 600 stayed at Kent House, Great Portland-street, during six months, while passing examinations, taking courses of lessons, or seeking employment. The Welbeck Home accommodates sixty boarders, and 652 girls passed through the Servants' Home during the year.

The Central Institute has 923 members, as against 811 in the previous year, and seventy active working members, who undertake, among other works, the entire organisation and maintenance of a mission for poor girls.

At Belgravia, Princess House, the Percy, Finsbury, and other centres, similar efforts are in progress with encouraging success. Work amongst foreigners in London, the nurses' union, restaurant visitation, teachers' department, etc., are dealt with in the report. The closing chapter deals with finance, and appeals for a much larger number of annual subscribers. The appeal ought not and, we believe, will not be in vain. It must commend itself to all who know anything of the lonely condition of thousands of our young women, and of the peculiar temptations to which they are exposed. The office of the Y.W.C.A. is at 16A, Old Cavendish-street, W.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Redhill.—Rev. F. C. Spurr has held a ten days' mission in the Baptist Chapel. The afternoon meetings were very helpful to Christians, and the evening evangelistic services proved fruitful in blessing to many of the unsaved.

Mr. Charles Lazenby, of the Evangelisation Society, is conducting a Mission in Spencer-place Chapel, Goswell-road, with remarkable success, and with many evidences of the Divine blessing. The services are held every night, and will close on the 22nd inst.

Messrs. McGregor and Crawford, of the Edinburgh Gospel Mission, have conducted successful meetings in Stromness and Longhope. Tokens of blessing were manifest in the latter place, and the meetings largely attended. They are now labouring in St. Margaret's Hope.

Mr. William A. Boyd, general secretary of the City of Dublin Y.M.C.A., has conducted a very successful mission for men only, under the auspices of the Carlisle Y.M.C.A. Many of the members have been stirred up to renewed efforts in reaching the unsaved, backsliders have been restored, and unsaved rejoice in their new-found Saviour.

Ireland.—Successful Gospel meetings have been held at Magherafelt and Castledawson by Miss Wakefield, of Portadown. Similar services have been held at Ballinacor, Lurgan, by Revs. H. Ball and John Good, while Mr. S. G. Montgomery has conducted an open-air mission, which has resulted in much blessing, in connection with Mountpottinger Presbyterian Church.

Barry Tent Mission.—The work which Mr. and Mrs. Gerald R. Coultas have been carrying on amongst the labouring people who crowd this district has been much blessed. Night by night many, who rarely, if ever, attend a place of worship, are found listening to the Gospel in the tent, and many have been saved. Now that the winter is approaching great anxiety is felt to secure a wooden hall in which to continue the services. Mr. Coultas may be addressed, 19, Romilly-road, Barry, near Cardiff.

Ross Bible Carriage Mission.—We have returned from a twelve days' mission amongst the hop-pickers of Herefordshire, holding open-air and tent meetings. The best way to reach them is to go right into their yards, and this we have done. We seek the prayers of your readers that blessing will rest upon the 10,000 Gospel books and tracts left with the hop-pickers. We commenced on Sunday (15th) our closing tent mission for this season at Winchcombe. John Coates.

Brighton.—Mr. Herbert Hurditch, of the Evangelistic Mission, has been preaching at the Athenæum Hall during the month of August, with much help from the Lord, to large congregations, and on some occasions both floor and galleries of the commodious hall were completely packed. Notwithstanding the heat, which made protracted meetings undesirable, evidence has not been wanting of the Gospel being the power of God to salvation unto them who through grace have believed. This young evangelist is now leaving for Ireland, followed by the prayers of many who have greatly profited under his ministry. W. B. S.

The Firth of Clyde.—Mr. Henry Powers, accompanied by his wife and daughter, have closed a successful mission to the coast towns in the West of Scotland, amongst these Helensburgh, Rothesay, Largs, Milport, Campbelltown, and Gourock were visited, and numbers were led to decide for Christ. Before returning to England other ten days were given to Helensburgh, when remarkable open-air meetings were held. The crowds were attracted, and the Word was with great power. The singing of Mrs. and Miss Powers, accompanied by their instruments, assisted in gathering the people together. The evangelists have been followed with the prayers and well wishes of many friends in Scotland. R. U.

Mr. Duncan Wright, the New Zealand evangelist, has again visited Melbourne, and also Tasmania. With the Wesleyans he held services at Devonport, East and West, Wesley Vale, and Sassafras, on the north-west coast. In July, on the invitation of the Rev. Alexander Hardie, Convener of the Evangelistic Committee of the Presbyterian Church of Tasmania, Mr. Wright began a three months' tour, and has held services of a cheering character at Scottsdale, Lilydale, Evandale, Launceston, Hagley, and Longford; and Campbell Town, Fingal, Epping, Oatlands, Bothwell, and Hobart were to follow. Both pastors and people have been greatly helped and encouraged. If nothing hinders, Mr. Wright hopes to resume his evangelistic efforts in New Zealand about October next. He seeks prayer and sympathy.

Mr. David Rea has concluded a good series of tent meetings which lasted over nine weeks at Ballymena. The interest and blessing increased marvellously up to the end. The tent had to be further enlarged, and that for the second time, accommodating upwards of 2,000 persons. On Sunday night, about two hours before the time, people began to assemble, and long ere its arrival the entire place was packed to excess, and the roads and streets leading to it were thick with people coming. A portion of the sides were lowered, which enabled hundreds to stand around, while numbers who saw they could not get near turned away. The deep solemnity and attention of such a crowd of people was truly surprising. It was a touching thing to see the numbers at the close who gathered round, pleading that the meetings should go on for another week. But Mr. Rea was so done up in body, after such a spell of work, it was impossible to comply therewith. One very marked aspect of the work has been the uniting together of the people of God, which is and must ever be the forerunner of blessing. The meetings were altogether devoid of the "sensational." Sin, and its dreadful consequences, also a full, free, present, and eternal salvation, through Christ alone, were kept constantly and prominently in view, And many, yea, very many, will have cause to praise God in time and through eternity for such a visitation of his power. John B. Kingston.

PERSONALIA.

Dr. and Mrs. B. J. Manasseh, of Syria, are now in Cornwall. They expect to return to their sphere of labour in the beginning of October.

Mrs. Alexander, wife of the Bishop of Londonderry, and the gifted authoress of "There is a Green Hill far Away," "Jesus Calls Us," and other hymns, lies dangerously ill at the Palace, Londonderry.

Mr. F. S. Ball, of the Evangelisation Society, sailed from Melbourne on board the Orizaba, and is due to arrive in England on September 26. He hopes to be equal to begin evangelistic work at once, his health having considerably improved in the colonies.

Rev. George C. Needham, who sails from Southampton on Saturday, on his return home to America, gave an address on Monday, at Aldersgate-street noon prayer-meeting. His theme was "The Secret of Samson's Strength"—the filling of the Holy Spirit.

Earl Compton, M.P., President of the Ragged School Union, is, we regret to hear, in an unsatisfactory state of health. He is quietly resigned to the will of God, yet we ask many to pray that should He see fit this valuable worker may be restored to further service.

Rev. James Johnstone has felt compelled, owing to increasing years and uncertain health, to resign the secretaryship of the Christian Literature Society for India. Rev. George Paterson, for twenty years a missionary in India, has accepted the vacant post, and in so doing has issued a letter strongly urging the need for widely extended effort in supplying the people of India with wholesome literature.

Rev. E. Bosworth, of Canada, has come to Great Britain for the purpose of interesting British Christians in the work of French evangelisation in Quebec. The "Grande Ligne Mission," which he represents officially, has done a glorious work for many years past, and Mr. Bosworth is influentially commended to Christians in this country. Letters may be addressed to the care of Baptist Missionary Society, Furnival-street, Holborn, W.C.

Pastor Thomas Spurgeon, who has been spending a few weeks in Wales, returns to London this week, and intends being in his vestry at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on his birthday, Friday (20th), between the hours of 3 and 9 p.m., to receive gifts in aid of the various institutions connected with the Tabernacle which are most in want of funds. Mr. Spurgeon hopes to preach both morning and evening at the Tabernacle on Sunday.

Miss Lydia von Finkelstein (Mrs. Mountford), having completed a successful lecture tour in the United States and Canada, has arrived in England. She hopes during the winter months to deliver lectures on Palestine life and Scripture story; and as her representations will be without costumes, she will touch upon many subjects not treated during her previous tours. Communications should be addressed to the care of Mr. J. J. Bennell, 61, Chancery-lane, W.C.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

An American divine has declared that C.E. should come to mean Cities Emancipated, Country Evangelised, and so Christ Enthroned.

A Baptist pastor writes:—"Last year we commenced a branch of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavour with fifteen members, which has been very successful, and proved helpful to the development of spiritual life in our Sunday-school. Weekly meetings have been regularly held and well attended, and many have felt them seasons of blessing."

OBITUARY.

CAPTAIN JAMES ARMSTRONG.

We hear with regret of the falling asleep of this earnest worker, who passed away at The Home, Girvan, N.B., on the 10th inst. James Armstrong, late Captain in Her Majesty's 26th (or Cameronian) Regiment of Foot, was known to many as Hon. Superintendent of the Gibraltar and South Spanish Mission, and as a faithful helper of the Lord's work in various ways

M. PAUL LERESCHE, PASTEUR.

The death is announced of M. Paul Leresche-Baup at the age of sixty-eight. The son of a pastor, who was an intimate friend of Alexander Vinet, he was brought up under strong Evangelical influences. After careful training, he began pastoral work at the age of twenty-six, and served several churches in the Canton Vaud. At length, in 1885, he retired to Lausanne, not so much to take rest as to vary his work. He acted as secretary of the Mission Romande, and helped the churches in a variety of ways. On September 9 he passed away, and many friends mourn his loss.

MR. CORNELL HENRY FISON.

On August 31 passed from us Mr. C. H. Fison, of Ford-place, Thetford, at the comparatively early age of sixty-six, one of the most prominent and respected Christians of the town of Thetford. He was born in Thetford in 1829, and resided there during the whole of his lifetime, being for many years the senior partner in the firm of James Fison and Sons. He was ever ready to bear his full share of public responsibility, and to assist every movement for the benefit of his fellow-townsmen. In the working of the Education Act he took a very deep interest, serving for some time as chairman of the School Board. The Bible he sincerely loved as the daily guide of his own life, and he did his utmost to maintain it as the basis of the education of the town. From the formation of the School Board in 1875, he was never ashamed to put in the forefront as his principle that secular education can only be sound as it is based on loyalty to the Word of God, and consistently with that he ever aimed at maintaining careful religious instruction in the schools by offering each year prizes for Bible knowledge. This position he was, under God's blessing, enabled to maintain, and from the first Bible teaching has been an essential part of the Board School education in this town. His interest in all that was connected with the Lord's work both at home and abroad was very deep. His grasp of Evangelical truth was very firm. Not a hair's breadth would he swerve from the old truths so dear to our forefathers, and for which the Reformers were willing to lay down their lives. He was an attached member of the Church of England, and contributed largely towards the restoration of two of the parish churches of the town. He was a generous and liberal supporter of many of the societies connected with the Evangelical section of the Church of England for carrying the simple Gospel to those who knew it not. The Church Missionary, the Church Pastoral Aid, the Bible and Religious Tract Societies had for him great interest, and when a county branch of the National Protestant Church Union was formed he was one of its first members.

He had been in failing health for some time, but it is only a few weeks ago that he was advised that he was suffering from an internal disorder which must sooner or later prove fatal. Firm in his trust in God, he received the intelligence with calmness and peaceful resignation. The thought of his approaching end filled him with no distress. He spoke of the real sense of peace which God had given him, which remained unbroken to the end. He could say with the Apostle, "I know whom I have believed, and I am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed to Him against that day."

On the Sunday following his interment, St. Peter's Church was densely crowded to hear the funeral sermon, preached by the Rector from the words, "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace" (Psalm xxxvii. 37).

In a quiet, unassuming way, with strong convictions, and a resolution which grappled with difficulties without fearing them, he lived for God, and the good of those with whom he came into contact. His religion was such as could not be mistaken. Every one who knew him felt that he was actuated by Christian principles. "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." His sad and unlooked-for end has closed the mortal life of an upright, honourable, God-fearing citizen, a kind and benevolent neighbour, and a true friend.

J. P. W.

"A WORD OF CHRIST BEFORE WE PART" was Archbishop Ussher's saying when in the society of his friends.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

THE charge of St. George's, Leeds, has been offered to Rev. J. C. Wright, of Ulverston.

Rev. H. E. Fox is expected to enter on his duties as hon. secretary of the C.M.S. in November.

Archdeacon Sinclair intends visiting Liverpool next week, and speaking on behalf of the N.P.C.U.

Canon Atkinson, of Manchester, will, it is said, accept the Crown living of Gedney, near Spalding.

The Bishop of Sierra Leone has returned from the West Indies, where he has held good meetings.

Rev. A. R. and Mrs. Blackett and Rev. C. H. and Mrs. Stileman, are now returning to Persia, after furlough.

Canon Duckworth, acting for the Bishop of London, has admitted Rev. Dr. Gleeson, a Roman Catholic priest, into the Church of England.

Messrs. Marshall Brothers will shortly issue a memoir of the late Rev. Robert and Mrs. Stewart, of Ku-Cheng, written by Mrs. Watson, sister of Mrs. Stewart.

Canon Gibson, of Wells Cathedral, says The Leeds Mercury, has been offered the vicarage of Leeds, in succession to Dr. Talbot, Bishop-designate of Rochester.

Rev. James Allen, who is ninety-two years of age, has resigned the Deanery of St. David's. He was the oldest dean, and has been connected with St. David's Cathedral for half a century.

It is stated that the Earl of Harrowby is to be invited to accept the chairmanship of the London School Board in place of Lord George Hamilton. Lord Harrowby—then Lord Sandon—was Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education from 1874 to 1878. He is President of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

The health of the Bishop of Newcastle is far from satisfactory. In the spring he was attacked with influenza, against which he struggled, and went on with his work, with the result that his recovery has been retarded. A brief trip to the States did him temporary good, but resumption of work has caused a return of weakness.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. Clinton de Burgh has been recognised as pastor of the Tabernacle, Penn-street, Bristol.

Rev. Henry Webb, late of Bradford, has been recognised as pastor of Queen-street Church, Leeds.

The bicentenary of Doddridge Church, Northampton, is to be celebrated on October 22, 23, 24, and 25.

Rev. H. Hermann Carlisle has been compelled to cancel a series of engagements, having had to submit to a severe surgical operation.

Rev. Tom Warren, who has been a Methodist preacher for nineteen years, has been welcomed to the pastorate of Brickfields Church, Stratford.

During the pastor's absence, Rev. W. H. Milburn, D.D. (a blind preacher from America), has been preaching in Harecourt Chapel, Canonbury.

A farewell service was held last week at Rye in connection with the departure of the pastor's daughter, Miss Saville, M.D., for medical mission service in Peking.

Dr. Barrett, who is about to visit the churches of Jamaica and New Guinea, will sail in the Aurania on the 24th inst. Visits will be paid to all the churches in Berbice, Essequibo and Demerara.

A series of lectures will be delivered at Highbury-quadrant Church during the coming winter by Sir Robert Ball, Dr. Dallinger, Captain Charles Reade, Dr. Andrew Wilson, Dean Farrar, Sir Lewis Morris, Rev. Charles Clarke, Dean Stubbs, Dr. Fairbairn, Captain Wiggins, and others.

Calls.—Rev. J. Stockwell Watts, to Victoria Chapel, Southsea; Mr. A. G. Spears, to Ilford; Rev. E. Goodison, of Earlsheaton, to Sandwich, Kent; Rev. A. Glading, to Bridlington.

BAPTIST.

Rev. R. A. Good has been recognised as pastor of Exmouth.

Rev. R. L. and Mrs. Lacey have arrived home on furlough from Berhampore, Orissa.

Rev. James Baillie, of Bloomsbury Chapel, who has been absent since the last Sunday in May, resumed his ministry on Sunday.

A new house having been started at Shawbury Hall, East Dulwich, opening sermons were preached on Sunday by Rev. V. J. Charlesworth, head-master of the Stockwell Orphanage, to good congregations.

The manual of the Abergavenny Chapel (Frogmore-street) shows great encouragement during the past year, and a considerable increase in membership. The schools, Bible-classes, C.E. society, and other agencies are doing a good work.

At the quarterly conference of North-West Kent Association, a resolution expressing sympathy with Rev. J. W. Marshall, vicar of St. John's, Blackheath, in the bereavement he had sustained by the martyrdom of his daughter in China, was unanimously passed.

At Maidenhead, the seventh anniversary of the pastor, Rev. Harry J. Preece, was celebrated on Thursday, 12th inst., Rev. E. G. Gange preaching in the afternoon, and speaking at the public meeting in the evening, at which all the local ministers took part, expressing the hearty sympathy of themselves and their churches.

The annual meetings of Bristol College were held last week. Dr. Glover's report showed a balance due to the treasurer of nearly £200. An interesting item was the new arrangement which had been made with the Western College on its removal to Bristol for co-operation in subjects of study common to each. A further matter of interest was the admission to the college of a Stundist—Mr. Prekhanoff—as a new student. In the evening a reunion soirée took place at the Countership Lecture Hall, by invitation of the pastor and deacons. After the conference a public meeting was presided over in the chapel by the High Sheriff of Bristol, Mr. W. Pethick, the speakers being Revs. D. J. Hiley, E. C. Nickalls, and J. M. G. Owen. On Tuesday evening the annual address to the students was delivered by Rev. William Cuff, who gave some practical advice.

Calls.—Rev. W. Denmee, of Maidstone, to Hoxne; Rev. J. Day, to Devizes; Rev. D. Lewis, of Saundersfoot, to Honeyborough, Pembroke.

Resignation.—Rev. G. W. Oldring, of Long Sutton.

METHODIST.

At Grangetown, Cardiff, the foundation-stone of a new chapel has been laid.

Rev. W. S. Micklethwaite, of Riddings, has been accepted for missions in West Africa.

Rev. G. Turner, examining secretary (United Methodist), has recovered from his severe illness.

The South Wales Mission has held a musical festival in the Town Hall, Pontypridd. The choir was 1000 strong, and a new tune called "Pontypridd," composed by the mission organist, was sung.

Memorial-stones of a new chapel to seat 500 have been laid at Quaker's Yard, Glamorganshire, a colliery centre.

Mr. T. Taylor, a useful local preacher in Sheffield, is about to enter Dr. Guinness's Institute with a view to foreign missions.

Rev. W. L. Watkinson is going shortly to the States as the representative of the Wesleyan Conference to that of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Twenty-eight soldiers' and sailors' Homes have now been established in connection with Wesleyan Army and Navy work—viz., twelve in Great Britain and sixteen abroad. The actual cost has been £33,797, and the income for the past year amounted to £5,483. The "declared Wesleyans" in the Army and Navy now number 22,128, 1,480 being Church members.

The Wesleyan Missionary Secretaries are seeking to arouse interest in their department by addressing a special circular to superintendents of circuits, reminding them of the action of the Conference at Plymouth in appointing the first Friday in October as a Day of Intercession on behalf of foreign missions. It is pointed out that the experience of last year strengthens their conviction that, with adequate preparation, the services may be fraught with blessing and a source of increased life and strength to the cause. Attention is called to the insufficiency of the Society's income for its present undertakings.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Special services are being held this week in Islington Church, Liverpool.

Rev. P. Campbell has been appointed assistant to Rev. A. N. Mackray, of Croydon.

The fifth annual conference of the Welsh Presbyterians was held last week at Cardiff.

At Wallsend-on-Tyne, the work under the care of Rev. Wm. Stuart is reported as flourishing.

Mr. G. J. Israel, of the Madras Tamil Ragged Schools, preached on Sunday week in West Kirby, where the children of the Sunday-school support one of his orphan boys.

Trinity Presbyterian Church, Notting-hill, will be reopened on September 22, when Rev. G. H. C. Macgregor will preach at 11 a.m. and Rev. Alex. Connell at 7 p.m. The church has been redecorated and many improvements carried out. Many fresh sittings are being let, and the attendance now resembles what it used to be in the time of the late Dr. Saphir. A tablet has recently been erected on one of the walls of the church to his memory.

Calls.—Rev. A. R. Rose, to Riccarton; Rev. W. D. Millar, of Largs, to Dunipace; Rev. W. J. Macfee, of Pendleton, to Partick; Rev. P. R. Landreth, of Dundee, to West Parish, Perth; Rev. E. V. Humphreys, of Barmouth, to Llwyngwirill and Sarcey; Mr. J. E. Davies, of Conway, to Rehoboth, Holywell; Rev. J. E. Hughes, of Carnarvon, to Argyle Church, Swansea; Rev. W. R. Pirie, of Keith, to St. Andrew's, Edinburgh.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Wilmington and North Carolina, U.S.A., yearly meetings just held, indicate similar activities and similar results, the different conditions of society considered, and thus Hope and Revival seem to be ahead of the Society of Friends.

At home, similar agencies are in operation, and hope is strong that the coming conference at Manchester will rouse the Society into holier vigour still for the spread of Christian truth. Here and there closed meeting-houses are being opened, and, while direct good is being done, the talents of the young are being developed, and trained for the Master's use.

Many are the anxieties felt just now in connection with Foreign Mission work. Owing to poor health several workers are invalided, and coming home from India, while others are greatly needed to take their place, otherwise the work will probably suffer much. The condition of affairs in Madagascar and China has baptised missionaries in the field and committees and Friends at home into deep and living sympathy one with the other, and as a natural outcome, a united prayer meeting was held at Devonshire House on the 4th inst., when the manifold needs of all were presented to Him who hears and answers prayer. Active work, amid several changes, is persistently maintained on Mount Lebanon, and all around "the goodly mountain," with the aim and hope of dispersing the gloom of ancient superstition there. Evangelistic, educational, and medical mission work, the great Head of the Church is deigning to bless.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

Mr. Bramwell Booth was very unwell during last week, and will be compelled to take a few days' rest.

Mrs. Ballington Booth is conducting midnight meetings in the streets of New York with much evident blessing.

Mid-day meetings are held daily at the International Headquarters, 101, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C., from 12.30 to 1.45.

Canada has sustained severe loss in the deaths of Major Jewer and Staff-Captain Agnes Jones, two talented and devoted labourers.

The annual meeting in connection with the social work in South Africa, has just been held at the Opera House, Cape Town, Sir Gordon Sprigg, K.C.M.G., M.L.A., presiding; 217 men have been dealt with during the year, twenty-four of whom were discharged convicts, while fifty-five were received direct from the local gaol.

A cable from South Africa says:—"General Booth visited Bloemfontein, Pretoria, and Johannesburg. He was received by enthusiastic audiences composed of all classes. In Pretoria the reception breakfast included forty leading men in Church and State. The General had fine crowded meetings at Johannesburg. The keenest interest was manifested in the Social Scheme."

FALLEN ASLEEP.

At Bradford, on 4th inst., JOHN A. THISTLETHWAITE, aged fifty-five, well known among the Friends.—At Bishop Auckland, Mr. ROBERT HEDLEY, an energetic Presbyterian, and a large and willing giver to the Lord's work.—At Newton Stewart, Rev. JAMES GOOLD, senior minister of Princes-street.—At Rhyl, Rev. RICHARD WILLIAMS, a strong and vigorous Welsh Methodist preacher.—At Newquay, Cornwall, Mrs. R. H. KITTON, of Handsworth, aged fifty-eight, a member of the Society of Friends.—At Pendleton, on 3rd inst., Mr. SAMUEL GILL, aged seventy-nine, brother of a famous missionary, and a well-known leader in Christian work.—At Tredegar, on 7th inst., Rev. WILLIAM JONES, for forty-two years minister at Elim Church.—At Melton Mowbray, aged 70, Mr. CHARLES CARTWRIGHT, an active Methodist.—At Reading, on 4th inst., Mrs. W. J. KIRK, widow of Mr. Kirk, of Stoke Newington.—At Spalding, Mr. ROBERT DONINGTON, a leading Wesleyan.—At Ventnor, Isle of Wight, Mr. A. E. NICHOLL, a preacher of the Gospel.—At Stoke-on-Trent, on 5th inst., Rev. W. GLUYAS PASCOE, for many years an active and popular Methodist minister.—At Belfast, Mrs. MCCAMMOND, wife of Mr. Wm. McCammond, Lord Mayor of Belfast, after a lengthened illness.

WOMEN'S PROTESTANT UNION.

Madame Lecoat, of the Breton Evangelical Mission, Côtes-du-Nord, France, has accepted an invitation from the president and council of this Union, to address, in conjunction with Miss Rouse, deputation secretary, a series of meetings at the end of this month and beginning of October. It is hoped that she will speak on the subjects announced for prayer and humiliation is Exeter Hall, on September 26, viz., the Confessional and the Conventual System, as she is not only a Christian worker among Roman Catholics but a convert from Roman Catholicism herself. Mrs. W. R. Arbuthnot, Plaw-hatch, East Grinstead, will be very glad to receive invitations for drawing-room and other meetings for Madame Lecoat, from September 26 to October 7.

The new session of the W.P.U. commences with a total enrolment of 8200 members, in its senior and junior divisions. The branches scattered throughout Great Britain and Ireland, the Continent, and the Colonies, now number ninety-eight, twelve of which have been added during the summer months.

A W.W.C.T.U. TRAINING HOME.

At the last session of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union the department of Evangelistic Institutes and Training was made, and Mrs. J. Fowler Willing was elected its superintendent.

Temperance workers have long felt the want of a training-school for their evangelists. They will rejoice that it is already under way.

New York is providentially the site of the school. A most needy mission field in the vicinity of the Home and a large chapel give ample space for practice. New York affords the best facilities for study. It will be convenient for our workers from other countries till branch schools are established in their own lands.

The present plan is to take ladies who are qualified in the main for work, giving them only such instruction time shows them to need.

Tuition is free, cost of living is within reach of all. For further information apply to Mrs. J. Fowler Willing, who is superintendent of the department, and of Bevachah Mission, address 463 W., 32d-street, New York City, N.Y.

THE INSTINCTS OF WOMEN.

Mrs. Josephine E. Butler has issued a second letter of appeal and warning to members of the British, Continental, and General Federation for the Abolition of the State Regulation of Prostitution. Copies may be had from the office, 1, King-street, Westminster, S.W. (price 1d.). After dealing with instances of the defection of women, Mrs. Butler concludes:—"It is in the joint action of men and women in this great cause that our force, under God, chiefly resides.

"It may be said that, in a certain sense, the instincts of women 'make for righteousness.' Their interests lie in the lines of order, of peace, of the purity of the home, and the stability of family life. But these instinctive tendencies are not enough, apart from a higher and surer guidance, to save them from grave error, and from aberrations which may tend to the destruction of the very interests of which they are the natural guardians.

"'I gat me right humbly to my God,' said the Psalmist. There is no such thing as unerring wisdom to be found in women any more than in men. The great uprising and forward and onward movement of the 'new womanhood' can only prove a blessing to humanity if the thousands who form that great army continually resort, right humbly, to Him who is the 'Wonderful, the Counsellor,' who 'giveth wisdom' liberally, and upbraiding not, to all who ask wisdom of Him."

CHARTERHOUSE SCIENCE AND ART SCHOOLS AND LITERARY INSTITUTE.—The winter session will commence on Saturday, September 28th, under the presidency of Rev. Henry Swann, M.A. During the late session upwards of 1,200 students, mostly elementary teachers, availed themselves of the privileges afforded by this institution, and of this number 682 presented themselves for examination, and were successful in obtaining a large number of certificates awarded by the Science and Art Department of South Kensington. Instruction of a practical character is given in most of the sciences at a very nominal fee; whilst in art, at an equally low rate, students under the direction of competent instructors can be advanced in their studies. Aspirants for University honours can, at a very small expense, be assisted in their studies. Full particulars of the classes are to be obtained from C. Smith, organising secretary.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1895.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or Post Office Orders, not by stamps.

 Will donors oblige by stating explicitly and fully the titles of the institutions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Further correspondence will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders should be made payable to Messrs. Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, London, E.C., and crossed "City Bank"; this will effectually prevent loss.

J. F. C.—Kindly communicate with us. Amount does not agree.

	£	s.	d.
Congo Balolo Mission—C. Y. R., 10s.; Mrs. J. T., £5	5	10	0
China Inland Mission—S. N., £10; C., £10 10s.; Mrs. J. T., £5; M. T., 10s.; R. B. H., 7s. 6d. ..	26	7	6
Société d'Evangelisation Nationale (Pastor Bonhomme's Stipend)—A Wesleyan, 10s.; Praise, £5	5	10	0
Poor Jews, Jerusalem—S. and S.	2	0	0
Society Relief Persecuted Jews—S. and S., £2; R. B. H., 2s. 6d.; C. M., Dublin, 5s.	2	7	6
Figueras Mission (Distribution of Tracts, etc., to Soldiers and Sailors)—F. F. L.	2	0	0
North Africa Mission—C., £10 10s.; Mrs. J. T., £5	15	10	0
"Joyful News" Mission—C.	5	5	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—Mrs. J. T... ..	5	0	0
Amora Leper Asylum—Mrs. J. T...	5	0	0
Central College, New Guinea (Dr. W. G. Lawes)—Cs.	1	0	0
J. G. Paton Mission Fund—Cs., £1; Two Friends, 10s.	1	10	0
Mission to Lepers of India, etc.—Cs.	1	0	0
Persecuted Stundists—Cs., £1; C. M., Dublin, 5s. ..	1	5	0
Miss Procter's Schools, Lebanon—Cs.	1	0	0
Mission Deep Sea Fishermen (Labrador)—Cs... ..	1	0	0
Mr. Warszawiak's Work—(Christ's Synagogue) Cs., £1; (Home for Persecuted Jews) Cs., £1	2	0	0
Mr. W. H. Sloan's Work, Mexico—F. F...	1	1	0
Illustrated Spanish Gospels to America—L. M. F...	5	5	0
Pastor P. Besson's Work, Buenos Ayres—K. R. ..	0	5	0
Aintab Orphanage—R. J. F.	5	0	0
Day in Country Fund—Major-General L. T., £2 2s.; Lieut.-Col. R. H., 12s. 6d.; J. B. S., £2; H. F. H., £1; N. E., 2s. 6d.; L. N., 10s.; S. A. T., 10s.; H. H., 5s.	7	2	0
Poor Sick Children's Holiday Fund—Selbourne, £1; E. A., £1	2	0	0
St. Giles's Christian Mission—C. Y. R., 3s. 6d.; C., £5 5s.; E. H., 10s.; A Reader THE CHRISTIAN, 2s. 6d.; (Children's Country Holiday) E. A., £2 ..	8	1	0
Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh—A Wesleyan, 5s.; (Legal Expenses) Ryde, £2	2	5	0
Jewish Work, London City Mission (Holidays)—S. and S.	0	11	3
Christian Community (Holiday Fund)—E. A.	2	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—D. O. B., 2s.; J. G. C., £1; C. W., 3s.; E. H., 10s.; W. A. S. G., 5s.; Miss A., 4s.; F. D., 10s.; A Reader of THE CHRISTIAN, 2s. 6d.; (Emigration) S. A. T., 10s.	3	6	6
Red, White, and Blue Christian Institute— D. O. B.	0	2	0
Children's Fresh Air Mission—D. O. B.	0	2	0
Salvation Army—C.	10	10	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—C.	10	10	0
Assoc. Free Distribution of the Scriptures—Mrs. J. T	5	0	0
London City Mission—Mrs. J. T...	5	0	0
George Yard Mission—Mrs. J. T...	5	0	0
Sermon Lane Mission—J. H.	0	10	0
Mission to Hop-pickers (Mr. G. Heath)—Cs.	0	10	0
Children's Country Holiday Fund—E. A. C.	0	3	0
Church Pastoral Aid Society—E. H.	0	10	0
Irish Church Missions—E. H...	0	10	0
Rev. J. W. Atkinson's Country Holiday Fund—M...	0	2	6
Total	£158	11	3

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

St. Giles' Christian Mission.—W. P., £5.

Bethnal Green Free Library, E.—J. J., per Bankers, Barclay, Bevan, and Co., £2.

Notices.

Communications received with Thanks.—Mrs. S. W.R. M.C. G.T.F. G.T.B. M.H.A. R.D.B.McQ. F.B. E.F.S. W.D.B. R.H.P. H.J.M. C.McE. E.R. J.P.L. R.C.M. I.M.P. E.B. S.H. A.J.S. R.M.M. C.A.C. R.L. W.W. M.B.S. A.P.T. R.G. J.B.K. E.N. H.F.M. L.E.E. E.K.Y. W.G.B. R.U. W.P. A.G.D. T.J.V.B. J.C. J.W.McC. D.M.G. A.B. H.J. O.R. D.W. F.S.B. W.O/E. F.C.S. W.C.G. J.H.P. J.D.B. C.H.F. C.B. S.H. D.M.A. D.R.L. F.A.E. C.M.B. J.W.W. A.H. T.D.P. E.H.S. M.B. F.P. D.J.E. J.H.W. R.H.S. W.K. J.W.P. J.H.T. J.E. M.J.L. F.G.K. J.M.N. A.M.B. W.H.A.

Applicants for Tracts.—"Decima," Ballywalter, Gorey, Ireland; J. Larcombe, 141, Bancroft-road, Mile End-road, E.; Geo. B. Thompson, 78, Sussex-road, Southport; Rev. Philip Gast, 12, Noel-street, Islington, N.; W. E. Abbott, 91, Grafton-street, Mile End-road, E.; Miss Perks, Soldiers' Home, Winchester; R. Caldwell, 45, Park-lane, Clissold Park, N.; E. J. Snow, 14, Packington-street, Islington; Frederick Brocklehurst, Kenworthy View, Northenden, near Manchester; Leonard Hall, Hombleton Fold, Mellor, via Stockport; Mr. Johnson, 9, Albert-square, Manchester; Miss Reeve, 107, St. George's-road, Southwark, S.E.; F. Stevans, Withworth-terrace, George Town, Tredegar, Mon.; H. Scott, Evangelist, 42, Victoria-street, Ashton-under-Lyne; Charles A. Harrison, 138, Weston-street, S.E.

☞ As it is found that infidels and others send papers to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers should be CAREFULLY READ before being given away.

FAITH AND ITS OUTCOME.—Evangelical obedience can only flow from Evangelical faith and hope. Love to Christ catches fire from the perception of his love to us. Without this perception all is weariness, evil, and travail of soul in his service; duty, not privilege; constraint, not delight; conscience, not love. Hence the most assured believers will be the most devoted servants of their Master.—Bridges.

THE CHRISTIAN BLIND RELIEF SOCIETY.

Under the Patronage of H.M. the QUEEN.

President - - Lord Egerton of Tatton.

W. Wainwright, Esq., Hon. Treasurer.

No paid officials. No voting. No office expenses. No weary waiting for years. Aids 524 Pensioners in the United Kingdom. 51 Candidates waiting for Relief, six of whom are over 60, six over 70, and one over 83 years of age. Do HELP these poor afflicted ones!

FUNDS URGENTLY NEEDED.

Hon. Sec., Rev. J. Pullein Thompson, The Vicarage, Tite-street, Chelsea, S.W.

LONDON FEMALE GUARDIAN SOCIETY.

Testamentary Bequests are earnestly solicited.

Founded 1807 to rescue souls and bodies from destruction, to lift up the poor trampled flower of womanhood, to cleanse it from the blight of impurity, and, in the beauty of holiness to present it afresh to God.

President—
THE LORD KINNAIRD.

Ten Thousand Betrayed and Fallen women have been welcomed to these Homes, shielded from evil, instructed in the way of righteousness, and freely supplied with food, clothing, education, and residence for eighteen months; while Thousands of Cases have been advised, helped, and sheltered. Persons interested in Rescue Work are invited to send cases.

FUNDS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED,

And may be sent to the Office of The Christian, or will be thankfully received by Mr. W. E. Page, Secretary, at the Institution,

191, HIGH STREET, STOKE NEWINGTON, LONDON, N.

STAR HALL, MANCHESTER
(ANCOATS).

"If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle?" (1 Cor. xiv. 8.)

HOLINESS CONVENTION.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 6 TO 13 (EIGHT DAYS).

Expected Speakers.
Rev. J. GELSON GREGSON.
Dr. & Mrs. R. H. FALLON. Mr. & Mrs. J. G. GOVAN.
Mr. and Mrs. READER HARRIS.
Rev. EDWARD HAMILTON.
Miss ISABELLA LEONARD. Rev. J. G. MANTLE.
Mrs. E. C. MILLARD, of China.
Rev. G. CAMPBELL MORGAN.
Mr. and Mrs. C. T. STUDD, of China.

MISSIONARY DAY, Friday, October 11.
PRAISE MEETING, Monday, Oct. 14, at 7.30 p.m.
Mr. and Mrs. F. W. CROSSLEY, Conveners.

Trams from Piccadilly every few minutes.
Accommodation for Visitors remaining throughout the day.
MEETINGS—Sundays, 7, 11, 3, 6.30.
Week-days, 9.15, 11, 3.30, 6, and 7.30.
Secretary—Mr. E. Trowbridge, to whom applications for Rooms should be made.

ST. GILES' CHRISTIAN MISSION.

Fresh Air, Wholesome Food, and Home Comforts
FOR
SICKLY, DESTITUTE, & ORPHAN CHILDREN

Their need is great, and strongly pleads for help.

WILL YOU GIVE IT?

And enable us to benefit a large number by

A Fortnight's Stay in our Holiday Homes,
and to
PROVIDE A PERMANENT HOME
for those
Destitute and Orphan Children needing our aid.

Contributions will be gratefully received by
F. A. BEVAN, Esq., Treasurer,
54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or
WILLIAM WHEATLEY, Superintendent,
4, Ampton-street, Regent-square, W.C.

TO LET, APARTMENTS, ETC.

(Continued from page 3.)

COMFORTABLY FURNISHED SEA-SIDE COTTAGE at Rustington to let, from September 14, for the winter. Six rooms, stable, donkey and car, piano. South aspect. On main road between Littlehampton and Worthing.—B., 20, Rosehill-road, Wandsworth. c7451

FURNISHED APARTMENTS, sitting and one or two bed rooms. Near the sea. Terms very moderate and inclusive. Very easy terms for the winter months.—Mrs. NICHOLLS, 24, Bradstone-avenue, Folkestone. c7384

HOME SETTLEMENT FOR YOUNG MEN.

1, Wyndham-place, Bryanston-square, W. With Drawing, Dining, and Writing rooms, and all the conveniences of a large and commodious house. Conducted on the basis of refinement, fellowship, and freedom. The Home is unsectarian.—All communications to be addressed Rev. W. DARLOW SERJEANT, 88, Osnery-crescent, Camden-road, London, N.W.

HOME OF REST, The Hollies, Kingswood, Warwickshire, for Christian workers and ladies. Warwick. Stratford, Kenilworth easily reached. Terms from 17s. to 25s. Open throughout the year.—Address, Miss WINTERBOTTOM. c5375

HOME OFFERED to lady in good school near Crystal Palace. Home comforts. Moderate terms. Lady whose husband is abroad, having children to educate, could be received.—200, Selhurst-road, South Norwood. c6857

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS, Cosham, Hants, close to lovely Portsdown Hills. Board and residence, from 12s. 6d. weekly. Home comforts.—For particulars send stamped envelope to Mr. M. HUDSON, above address. c7027

HOME REQUIRED BY YOUNG LADY in return for small weekly sum and companionship or assistance in mission work. Competent to instruct in English, Music, French, German. Reciprocal terms preferred. Kind home valued.—c7392, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7392

HOME OFFERED in Christian family, to business men or students in North of London. Easy access to all parts. Comfortable, well-furnished house.—c7421, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury Square, London. c7421

IN NORTHERN SUBURBS, near Midland and Great Northern Railway.—A Christian gentleman requiring a congenial and refined home in a private family, with every comfort, may hear of same by applying to c5513, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5513

IN THE HOUSE OF A CLERGYMAN.—Unfurnished drawing and two bed rooms, with use of kitchen, to let to Christian lady and maid, or two sisters. No attendance. Quiet, clean, and comfortable home.—Address, CLERICUS, 40, Colebrooke-row, Islington, N. c7347

LADY DESIRES CHRISTIAN home, pay partial board. Services given in forenoon. Domesticated. High principled. If kindly home with Christians ensured, arrangement might prove mutually beneficial. Sea-side or bracing country. At liberty few weeks hence.—c7342, Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C. c7343

PRIVATE CONVALESCENT HOME for ladies. Terms on application. Misses Marriott and Browne, trained nurses. Certificated masseuse.—Knypersley House, Park-road, Southport. c5469

PRIVATE NURSING HOME for aged or chronic invalids, acute cases. Also vacancies for gentlemen. Every home comfort. Terms moderate. —Apply, SISTER, 105, Tufnell Park-road, N. c7411

TO LET (six months), FURNISHED HOUSE. Well situated, overlooking Clissold Park. Three sitting, three bed rooms, bath room, conservatory, garden. Two reliable servants left. Direct communication, by tram and omnibus, with Mildmay Park, Finsbury Park, and Stoke Newington stations. Terms moderate.—Address, J., 38, Lordship-park, Stoke Newington. c7396

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—A young gentleman, preparing for the law or medicine, received as boarder in a clergyman's house. Good home. No family or other boarders. Terms according to requirements.—Address, CLERICUS, 40, Colebrooke-row, Islington, N. c7346

WIDOW LADY desires to meet with a Christian lady to share her furnished home. Pleasantly situated in clean village. References exchanged. Terms moderate.—A., care of Mr. Manton, Harrold, Bedford. c7388

MISCELLANEOUS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—Address EVANGELINE, 25, Rozel-road, Clapham, S.W. John iii. 36. c2109

MISS LYDIA M. VON FINKELSTEIN (Mrs. Mountford), the eminent Oriental lecturer. Any friends who are desirous of arranging for a visit from the above celebrated lecturer are desired to communicate with her agent, Mr. J. J. BENNELL, 61, Chancery-lane, London, W.C. c7429

A WIDOW LADY (Christian) desires the charge of one or two little girls. Good home, with mother's care. Terms moderate.—Mrs. CLARK, 1, Leicester-villas, Junction-road, Andover, Hants. c7398

CHRISTIAN LADY DESIRES INFANT (or older child), to bring up. Superior Christian home and mother's love. Moderate terms (or would adopt). Ministers' references.—c7427, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7427

A MIDDLE-AGED LADY will be glad to hear of a Christian young lady with means, wanting a comfortable home. Country village in Midlands, high, gravel soil, beautiful scenery. References exchanged.—c7381, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7381

AT LESS THAN HALF-PRICE.

MORGAN AND SCOTT'S EDITIONS OF

The Pilgrim's Progress,

WITH SPECIALLY PREPARED ILLUSTRATIONS.

Imperial 8vo size.

THE 6d. EDITION IS OFFERED FOR 3/- PER DOZ. NET CARRIAGE PAID.
In Tinted Covers.

THE 1/6 EDITION IS OFFERED FOR 7/6 PER DOZ. NET CARRIAGE PAID.
In Leatherette, with handsomely gilt side.

SPECIAL OFFER.

100 Copies of the 6d. edition (Published price, £2 10s.),
OR
40 Copies of the 1/6 edition (Published price, £3.)

Sent on receipt of Postal Order for 20/- CARRIAGE EXTRA.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

IRON ROOM, small, wanted to purchase, New or secondhand. Reasonable price.—c7333, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7333

BUSINESS (small) wanted. Town or country. Lowest price, inclusive, and full particulars. State what kind. No agents. — MANSBRIDGE, 9, Brocklebank-road, Earlsfield. c7448

SOUTH COAST.—The goodwill and furniture of a Home of Rest for disposal. Illness cause of giving up. Good connection, winter season.—B., care of H. Swain, Stationer, 156, Queen's-road, Hastings. c7379

AMERICAN ORGANS from .. £5 5 0
HARMONIUMS from 3 17 0
PORTABLES from 3 15 0
All makers at reduced prices. Every instrument warranted five years. The late Mr. Gawin Kirkham wrote: "I can speak from a long experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21 High-street, Kingsland, London. c1670

ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL.

Preserves, Beautifies, Strengthens the Hair. Prevents Baldness, Eradicates Scurf. All Scientists assert that Oil is absolutely necessary to Nourish and Preserve the Hair, and ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL is the best. Also in a Golden Colour for Fair-haired Ladies and Children. Ask Chemists for ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL of 20, Hatton Garden, London

Umbrellas Re-covered from 2s. each.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RE-COVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies', 2s.; gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to Rev. G. H. Camborn, Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

IDEAL PURE WOOL SUMMER CLOTHING.—5 per cent. Discount until September 1st, 1895.—The celebrated CASTLE DONINGTON quality. Highly recommended by the Medical Profession. Thoroughly hygienic, exquisitely soft and light. This unique speciality is admirably adapted to Consumptive, Rheumatic, and delicate people. Every description of garment, natural, cream, and pink, in Purest Wools of English manufacture, at reasonable prices. Catalogue and Patterns post free. Carriage paid on all orders throughout the United Kingdom, half on foreign and Colonial parcels.—HYGIENIC HOSIERY MILLS, Castle Donington, via Derby.

INDIAN SHAWLS. — Lady received box softest, warmest, real Rampore Chuddahs, washable, 3 yards by 1¼. Indispensable driving, evening, invalids. About half price, 22s. 9d. Approval free.—DOUGLAS, 6, Shandwick-place, Edinburgh. c6715

PATCHWORK FOR THE MILLION.—50 large lovely silks, satins, brocades, 1s. 9d.; 50 beautiful plushes, velvets, 1s. 9d.; 200 crazy brocades, 1s. 6d.; splendid print parcel for quilts, 1s. 4d. Post free.—J. DEAN, New Brompton, Kent. c7405

FOR THE COMPLEXION.

BYROLIN

Renders the Skin Soft and Smooth.
Heals Bruises, Burns, and Heat Spots.
J. HOWARD & Co., 29-31, Queenhithe, London, E.C. c6557

CROCHET SHAWL PATTERNS.—"Cobweb," like fine lace, 1s.; "Moss," handsome, feathery pattern, 6d.; "Criss-Cross," 8d.; "Spider," 4d.; "Scarf," 4d.; or the five patterns for 2s. 6d., and three other pretty ones included. Instructions: wool to use. Lady F. writes:—"I think your patterns lovely."—VIOLET, 22, Bouverie-road, W., Folkestone. c7353

A PERFECT FOOD! High-class Irish butter, made on the centrifugal system, posted direct, with or without salt. Reaches the consumer in its prime. Prices: 1½ lb. for 2s.; 2½ lb. 3s.; 5 lb. 6s.; 9 lbs. 10s., postage paid. Weekly supplies.—ARTHUR JACOB, Lismore Mills Creamery, Lismore, co. Waterford, Ireland. c6354

DELICIOUS BREAKFAST DAINTIES.—My celebrated "Real Loch Fyne" Kippered Herrings are now in prime condition. Post free for 2s., 3s., 4s., 5s., weighing 4lb., 6lb., 8lb., 10lb.—A. HARVIE, Watergate, Rothesay, N.B. c5142

URN FOR SALE.—New nickel-plated "Compact." Holds one gallon each of tea and coffee, two and a-half gallons of water, and space for milk.—BAKER, Garfield, Lowestoft, c7403

SCHOOLS, ETC.—Teas, pure and hygienic, specially adapted for schools. Wholesale in 20lb. packages and upwards, from 10½d. per lb. Price list and sample on receipt of Principal's card, mentioning class and price of tea required.—SELECT CEYLON TEA AGENCY, 89, Lime-street, London. c5381

24 PORTRAITS, stamp size, for 1s. 6d.; 100 for 3s. 6d. Twelve carte portraits, 2s. 6d.; six for 1s. 6d. Twelve cabinet portraits, 5s. 6d.; six for 3s.; three for 2s. Enlargements: 8in., 3s.; 12in., 7s. 6d.; 16in., 10s. 6d. Send carte or cabinet and P.O., and you will receive highly-finished copies with original.—FRANCIS AND CO., 20, Ludgate Hill, London. Established 1856. c4162

TO THE DEAF.—A gentleman who cured himself of deafness and noises in the head after fourteen years' suffering will gladly send full particulars of the remedy post free.—Address, H. CLIFTON, Norfolk House, Norfolk-street, Strand, London, W.C. c5267

GIVEN AWAY!
RE-VULCANISED Gold Medal RUBBER STAMPS. Your Name, Monogram, bottle of Endorsing Ink, two Pads, Box, and Brush, 9d, post free; with Marking Ink, 1s. 3d. Nickel Silver Pen and Pencil Case with Name Stamp, 6d. Nickel Silver Name and Address Stamp, 9d.; Watch Case, beautifully chased, with ditto, 1s., and every other description of Rubber Stamp, Endorsing, and Indelible Inks, Stencils, Hand-printing Appliance, etc., at half the usual price. Send for List. 100 Illustrations. Agents wanted.—Address to Crystal Palace (John Bond's Daughter's) Gold Medal Marking Ink Works, 75, Southgate-road, London, N.

TOOTHACHE.—Wonderful old printed recipe for the cure of toothache and neuralgia. Immediate relief. Price 2d. post free. Sold for a charity.—Miss W. B., Wrentham Rectory, Suffolk. c7337

HAIR FALLING OFF.—A lady, whose daughter was cured in a fortnight, will send particulars to anyone sending stamped addressed envelope to Mrs. C. FOSTER, Trafalgar-road, South Wimbledon, London. c7416

RUPTURE. — COLWELL'S TRUSSES are the most effectual. Prices, 2s. 6d. to 21s. Air or water pad trusses. Perfect comfort in wearing.—COLWELL, 116, Newington-causeway, S.E. c7155

NEAVE'S FOOD.
BEST AND CHEAPEST.

PUBLICATIONS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, Manchester for New List. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. per 100; foreign, 1s. per 100. Missionaries constantly want cards. Gifts of money would greatly help to supply his need. c5380

ASSORTED GOSPEL BOOKLETS, including "A Saviour for You," "Thy Day," etc. Millions sold. Fifteen for 1s., post free; larger quantities at greatly reduced prices. Catalogues free. —S. M. HAUGHTON, 6, Hazelwood-road, Northampton. c5376

HARVEST THANKSGIVING SERVICES Hymn Sheets. New hymns, tastefully printed. Specimens free.—PENMAN AND CO., 33, Furnival-street, London, E.C. c5490

"THE MONTHLY."—Suitable for localisation. A new illustrated evangelical family magazine, edited by Rev. John Mitchell. Ready October 1. Price one penny.—G. STONEMAN, 89, Warwick-lane, E.C. c5506

CONVERSION. WHAT IS IT? By W. R. Bradlaugh (ld.). Removes doubts, and helps those who stumble at the idea of sudden conversion. —JOHN SNOW AND CO., 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row, London. c5489

JUST PUBLISHED, paper cover, 6d. each; 1s. each cloth.
LIFE IN EARNEST, by the late James Hamilton. MOUNT OF OLIVES, by the late James Hamilton. KEEP TO THE RIGHT, the Young Man's Guide. FAIR ADORNMENT, the Young Woman's Guide, each by John Angell James. Single copies post free.
E. KNIGHT, 18 and 19, Middle-street, Aldersgate, E.C. c7422

"A USEFUL INVENTION FOR THE PROTECTION OF BOOKS."—The Christian.—The Library Book Cover and Railway Reading Case. The specimen set, 1s., post free, with list of stock sizes, and how to fit any book with patent cover, in cloth, at trifling cost.—S. E. ROBERTS, 26, Paternoster-row, E.C. c5488

ARTISTIC FRENCH WALL TEXTS, landscape, etc., suitable for framing. Set of eight, post free, 1s., comprising Isaiah lv. 6, liii. 6, and 1 Tim. ii. 5.—EVANGELICAL TRACT SOCIETY, 20, Paternoster-row. c5428

MIDLAND FURNISHING COMPANY,
60, 71, 73, 75, & 77, Judd-street, King's Cross, London.

ESTABLISHED 1830.

TERMS FOR FURNISHING BY EASY INSTALMENTS.

£10 worth	.. ..	£0 6 0	per month.
£20	"	£0 11 0	"	"
£30	"	£0 18 0	"	"
£40	"	£1 3 6	"	"
£60	"	£1 7 6	"	"
£100	"	£2 5 0	"	"
£200	"	£5 0 0	"	"

NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED.

Goods delivered free in private vans on payment of first instalment, or other terms can be arranged. If necessary a house of any magnitude furnished at a day's notice. No INTEREST or Extra Charges. Country orders carriage paid to any railway station. £60,000 stock to select from on our own spacious premises. Business hours 9 till 8. Saturdays 9 till 6.
Prospectus, catalogue, and press opinions post free
GEO. MICHAEL, Manager.

VI-COCOA PREVENTS DYSPEPSIA & INSOMNIA

DR. TIBBLES' VI-COCOA

A PERFECT HOME DRINK.

Choicest COCOA combined with KOLA, the quintessence of all food products, and Extract of MALT and HOPS, the purest and best tonics.

THE LANCET says: "A VALUABLE FRONT RANK OF REAL AND VALUABLE FOODS."

BUILDS UP THE SYSTEM PERMANENTLY

SUSTAINS EFFORT FOR MENTAL OR MANUAL LABOUR

FREE A dainty Sample tin Free on receipt of post card. In 6d packets, and 9d, and 1s. 6d tins.

THE VI-COCOA COMPANY.
102 FENCHURCH ST LONDON. E.C.

VI-COCOA BANISHES BRAIN "AC

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Church Army will send evangelists (working men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions.—Address, Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, London, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any Evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Apply, Hon. Sec., 64, Kennington-oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for temporary or permanent work in our villages and country towns. Apply to Mr. G. H. Mawer, secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, E.C.

Thorne Evangelistic Missions.—Friends desirous to arrange for mission services, to be conducted by Mr. Thorne, should make early application to the secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, to whom subscriptions for the Mission may be forwarded.

Mr. James Eyres, the Liverpool evangelist, conducts missions and supplies pulpits throughout the kingdom (without fee). Preference given to poorer churches of any sect. Address, care of Y.M.C.A., Mount Pleasant, Liverpool; or 37, Hawarden-avenue, Liverpool.

The King's Own Mission, St. James's Hall, Royal-road, Kennington, S.E.—Sun., Mr. O. L. Heatley, 7 p.m.; 3.15 p.m., P.S.A., Mr. O. L. Heatley.

Meetings for Men.—Christian Evidence lectures or evangelistic missions conducted in any part of the United Kingdom. Address, Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh, 70, King's Cross-road, London, W.C.

Exeter Hall.—A special mission to young men will be held here by Mr. W. R. Lane, from Sept. 22 to Oct. 4.

Rev. Andrew Murray will lead meetings for humiliation and waiting upon God at the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, E., Oct. 8, at 7.30 p.m.; Oct. 9 and 10, at 11 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m.

Miss Frances E. Willard, before her departure to America September 21, will address a public meeting on Friday, Sept. 20, at 3 p.m., in Mr. Spurgeon's Tabernacle.

Ragged School Union.—Conversazione on "Work Among Cripples," on Friday, Sept. 27, 5.30 to 8.30 p.m., at the Offices, 37, Norfolk-street, Strand, W.C.

London Missionary Society.—Founders' Week missionary Convention in the City Temple, E.C., September 21 to 27. Full programme from the Secretaries and L.M.S. Mission House, 14, Blomfield-street, London, E.C.

Richmond Y.W.C.A.—Annual meetings, Monday, October 7, 3.30 and 8, at The Hall, Lower Mortlake-road. Addresses by Rev. Andrew Murray.

Protestant Reformation Society.—Monthly prayer meeting, Thurs., Sept. 19, 3.30 p.m., in Committee Room, 20, Berners-street, W., Rev. S. L. Dixon (Chelsea), will preside; address by Rev. John Grundy (South Lambeth).

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn Gate, N.W., Sunday, at 7 p.m., Mr. F. Hutchins; Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill, N.W., Mr. P. Garrioch; the Conference Hall, Eccleston-street, S.W., Sunday, at 3.30 and 7, Mr. H. E. L. Purcell.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Sunday, 11 and 7, Mr. Benjamin Glasgow.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, E.—Open every night at 8; Sunday at 11 and 6.30, Mr. George Nokes.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sunday next, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. J. S. Harrison; 3 p.m., P.S.A.

Clapton Hall, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sundays 6.30, Thursdays 7.30.

Polytechnic, 309, Regent-street.—Mr. Charles Inglis, each Sunday in Sept., at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

Talbot Tabernacle, Notting Hill, W.—Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. W. H. Gaussen.

Trinity Presbyterian Church, Notting Hill, W.—Re-opening service, Sun., 22nd; Rev. G. H. C. Macgregor, 11 a.m.; Rev. A. Connell, 7 p.m.

Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, N.—Sun., Sept. 15, 3.30 and 7, Mr. Forbes Witherby.

Special Religious Services in Theatres, Halls, etc.—Sunday, September 22.—Agricultural Hall, Islington, 3.30, Rev. Saml. Gregory; 7, Mr. Job Williams. Evangelical Hall, Homerton, 3, Mr. Charles Button; 7, Mr. H. W. Willcox. Hall of Varieties, Clapham Junction, 3, Mr. J. Jones; 7, Mr. Cromwell. Morley Hall, Hackney, 7, Mr. William Coates.

Quiet Days in Preparation for Service, at Morley Halls, 316, Regent-street, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, October 2, 3, and 4, daily at 7.30 a.m., prayer meeting; 11 a.m. to 12 noon, Bible reading; 12 noon to 1 p.m., devotional meeting; 3 to 5 p.m., general meeting; 6 to 7 p.m., conversational hour; 8.30 p.m., evening meeting. The meetings will be addressed by Lieut.-Colonel Oldham (who will preside), Mrs. Hatt Noble, Mrs. Penn Lewis, and others.

Coming Conferences.

Salisbury.—September 23—28.

Evangelical Alliance.—Annual British Conference, Belfast, Sept. 24-26.

Half-yearly Meetings for Christians.—Glasgow, Sept. 25 to 28, in City Hall.

St. George's Cross Tabernacle, Glasgow, Sept. 28-29.

Dublin.—Sept. 30 to Oct. 3.

West Norwood (Lansdowne Hall).—Oct. 15, 16, and 17 (Second Advent).

Deepening of Spiritual Life.—Glasgow, Sept. 24-26; Hastings, Sept. 30 to Oct. 4; Aldershot, Oct. 1—3; Blackheath, Oct. 1-4; Star Hall, Manchester, Oct. 6-13; Dorking, Oct. 7-11; Wakefield, Oct. 8-10; Barnet, Oct. 8-10; Cork, Oct. 14-18; Ealing, Oct. 15-18; Oxford, Oct. 28-31; Norwich, Oct. 28 to Nov. 1; Belfast, Nov. 4-8; Bradford, Nov. 5-8; Edinburgh, Nov. 11-16.

STEPNEY MISSION TO THE JEWS.—The annual report of this work, the centre of which is Marnham Hall, Darling-row, gives a sketch of the career of the missionary, Mr. D. J. Neugewirtz, with portrait. Pastor Archibald G. Brown writes an introduction to the booklet, copies of which (price 2d.) may be had from the missionary, at 90, Dempsey-street, Stepney, E.

CONSUMPTION,
AND
ALL CHEST DISEASES.
INTERVIEWS WITH OLD PATIENTS, AND NEW CASES.

By MR. CONGREVE'S COMMISSIONER.

NINETY-EIGHTH INTERVIEW,
With Mr. J. H. SMITH, 172, Dudley-rd., Birmingham.
"HOPELESS CASE OF CONSUMPTION."

Which has been referred to incidentally in the Appendix to Mr. Congreve's work on "Consumption," p. 48.

Mr. J. H. Smith is a son-in-law of Mr. Mousley, with whom an Interview recently appeared. In the "Appendix" above referred to, Mr. Mousley had written: "My son-in-law's case was a hopeless one of Consumption two years ago. He is now strong, and well, and hearty, through your treatment." And at a later date he wrote: "My son-in-law has been able to follow his business ever since restored to health by your means."

Having with me these brief particulars, I called upon Mr. Smith in Birmingham a short time ago, and asked him to give me a history of his case.

"I was first taken ill when living in Leeds in 1882" (he said). "I had a severe cough, and lost my voice for three months. As time went on I got worse, and all the symptoms of Consumption appeared—profuse night-sweats, blood-spitting, loss of flesh, etc. I was reduced to seven stones twelve pounds, my normal weight being three stones heavier, and I became so weak that I had to give up work for over a year. Thinking the change might benefit me, I removed to London and attended a hospital there. The doctors said they could do nothing for me; I had better get back to my native air. About this time my father-in-law, Mr. Mousley, sent me some of Mr. Congreve's medicine. I took it, and continued so to do for nearly three years, until I had quite recovered and was thoroughly strong and well. During the greater portion of that time I scarcely ever missed a dose. The result was that when once more I returned to work, I was able to carry a quarter of beef" (Mr. Smith is a butcher). "From that time I have followed my employment, and have never had a day's illness, sometimes having to face fog and bitterly cold weather. Being in a shop I am constantly exposed."

"What do you think would have been the result if you had not commenced Mr. Congreve's treatment when you did?"

"I don't think I should have got better; nothing else seemed to do me the slightest good."

In reply to a further question, Mr. Smith told me he had recommended the treatment and seen good results from it in other cases, and very willingly accorded me his permission to publish this account of our chat.

MR. G. T. CONGREVE'S work on CONSUMPTION, &c., in which are detailed THE CAUSES, SYMPTOMS, PROGRESS, AND SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT of this SCOURGE OF ENGLAND.—WITH NEARLY FOUR HUNDRED CASES OF CURE. ALSO ON COUGH, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c., &c. The Book will be sent, post free, for ONE SHILLING by the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.

TOWER TEA
"A DAILY TREAT"

SOLD IN PACKETS ONLY 2/4, 2/-, 1/7, 1/4, 1/- PER POUND.

REGISTERED TRADE MARK — THE GREAT TOWER STREET TEA COMPY LIMITED — STRENGTH — LONDON

NONE GENUINE WITHOUT THE REGD TRADE MARK AND SIGNATURE.

AGENTS Tower Tea EVERYWHERE.

THE GREAT TOWER ST TEA Co LTD
5, JEWRY STREET, LONDON, E.C.
Will send sample of tea and name of nearest agent on application.

CURE FOR HEADACHE — BISHOP'S CITRATE OF CAFFEINE
Removes fatigue. Highly commended by the Lancet and British Medical Journal. Highest award Paris, 1889. Of all chemists at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 6d.

ABSTAINERS, before Insuring, send for Prospectus of Scottish Temperance Life and Accident Insurance Company (Ltd.), 81, Renfield-street, Glasgow London Office, 96, Queen-street, Cheapside.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER.
Awarded Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890, Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.

IRISH CAMBRIC

Children's	1/3	per doz.
Ladies'	2/3	"
Gentlemen's	3/3	"
Hemstitch:—
Ladies'	2/9	"
Gentlemen's	3/11	"

Embroidered Handkerchiefs in all the latest styles, 1/- to 20/-

Samples and Illustrated Price Lists Post Free

POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS

"The Irish Cambrics of Messrs. Robinson & Cleaver have a world-wide fame."—Queen.

By appointments to the Queen and Empress Frederick of Germany.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, BELFAST.

AN OLD FRIEND OF 20 YEARS' STANDING IS Hockin's Remedy for Asthma & Bronchitis
Easy to Use. Immediate Action. No Injurious Results.
Packets, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s., all Chemists, or sent direct post free.

Address: R. A. HOCKIN, Ryde, Isle of Wight.
Trial Packet free to any address. Mention paper.

AT HALF PRICE.

Morgan & Scott have a REMAINDER OF THE LIFE OF

George Whitefield

By the late
J. R. ANDREWS, Esq.,
Barrister-at-Law.

Published at 5/-
which they are clearing out at 2/6 net.
Postage 4½d. extra.

This Beautiful Volume Contains 472 Pages, Printed on Fine Paper; with Portrait Engraved on Steel; is Tastefully Bound in Cloth, with Bevelled Boards; and Would Form a VERY HANDSOME PRESENT.

As the number remaining is limited, orders, with remittance, should be sent at once to the Publishers,

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, London,
Or to any Bookseller.

LAZENBY'S

PREPARED FROM THE ORIGINAL RECIPE
BEARS THE WELL KNOWN LABEL
Signed Elizabeth Lazenby

HARVEY'S SAUCE

LAZENBY'S PICKLES
LAZENBY'S SOUPS
LAZENBY'S SOUP SQUARES
LAZENBY'S TABLE JELLIES
LAZENBY'S POTTED MEATS
LAZENBY'S BAKING POWDER

No. 1330.] The Christian. [SEPTEMBER 26, 1895.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

PORTRAIT AND SKETCH OF THE LATE MR. L. F. LIESCHING.

World-wide Evangelisation 8
The Troubles in China. By Rev. J. Hudson Taylor 9
Our National Perplexity. By Rev. J. E. Linnell 9
A Work for All. By Dr. J. R. Miller 10
The Fire on the "Iona" 10
Thrice Crowned. By Rev. F. B. Meyer 11
Missionary Rome 12
Medical Mission Work in Shantung 12
The Neglected Continent 13
Miss Willard's Farewell 13
Our Daily Homily 14
Conference in Thüringia 14
International Sunday-school Lesson 15
For the Young.—Three Fishing Boats... 15
Letters from the Other Side: Personal 16
Miss Macpherson's Return 16
Among the Red Indians.—By Rev. E. R. Young 18
Salvation Army Self-Denial Week 18
The Cornfield's Visitant (poem) 18
Conference at Dundee 19
The L.M.S. Centenary 20
Mr. Thomas Spurgeon 20
Mr. Lane at Exeter Hall 20
Mrs. Butler's Work in Europe 21
The Aintab Orphanage 21
The Evangelist: The Grievousness of Sin 22
The Bible Society 22
Church Government and Christian Unity 23

INSTITUTIONS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS AND MISSION,
HIGH STREET, WHITECHAPEL, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from "M.N.," £1; "A Stranger," Pamphlets and Clothing.

Rations of food to hungry children. Infant Day-Nursery. Day and Sunday Schools. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Evening Classes for Boys and Girls. Classes, Meetings, and Institute for Young Women and Elder Girls. Various Meetings, Classes and Parlour for Young Men and Lads. Bible Classes. Evangelistic Services. Lodging House Meetings. Temperance Work and Meetings. Mothers' Meetings. Clubs for Clothing, Coals, Bibles, &c. Prayer Meetings. Country Homes for Men, Women, and Children. Training Home for Motherless Girls, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 72, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E. c5457

THE SOUTHWARK. BOYS' HOME,
Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT,

To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond ABSOLUTE NEED.

Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at the Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays, from 10 till 2.

All communications should be addressed—
J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home.
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, Belgravia, S.W., trains ladies for MEDICAL MISSION WORK in Eastern lands. Vacancies for pupils. Next term October. Partially free studentships granted. Funds needed. c5361

CLAPHAM MATERNITY HOSPITAL (and School of Midwifery), Jeffreys-road, S.W. Under fully qualified Medical Women. Ladies trained in Midwifery for L.O.S. Also monthly nurses trained (three months). October vacancies. Good nurses recommended. Small weekly payments from patients. Donations urgently needed. c5438

EDUCATIONAL.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A clergyman's daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood.—Tredegar House, East Dulwich-road, S.E. 5382

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.
1, CARLTON MANSIONS, CLAPHAM-RISE, LONDON, S.W.
Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P.

Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in daily attendance. Resident certificated governesses. Careful personal supervision, home comforts, and Christian training. Preparation for any examination if desired. Good garden and tennis.

Highly recommended by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. D. MacEwan, D.D. and parents of former and present pupils.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

THE MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fulneck, near Leeds.—A thorough, advanced, and Christian education. Boys' School, Rev. W. T. TITTERINGTON. Ladies' School, Rev. M. E. O'CONNOR. c5341

TO BE PUBLISHED ON OCTOBER 1st.
Cloth Gilt, 3/6.
NEW BOOK
BY
C. H. SPURGEON.
THE SOUL-WINNER;
Or, How to lead Sinners to the Saviour.

PASSMORE and ALABASTER, 4, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C.

THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY,
56, Paternoster Row, London.

For GENERAL Distribution.

TRACTS

For LOAN Circulation.

TRACTS, HANDBILLS, BOOKLETS, &c., &c., &c.

Please Write for the Society's
NEW TRACT CATALOGUE,
Post Free on application to the Publisher.
56, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

150 SIXPENNY PACKETS.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES.
FROM 3s. 6d.

SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS (LIMITED), 15, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

FOURTH ANNUAL
South Coast Convention for the Deepening of Spiritual Life
Will be held (God permitting) at the Brassey Institute, Hastings, Sept. 30th to Oct. 4th, 1895.

PROGRAMME OF MEETINGS.—OPENING MEETING, Monday, September 30th, at 7.30 p.m. DAILY PROGRAMME for Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, October 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th:—10.15 to 10.45 a.m., Prayer Meeting; 11 a.m., General Meeting; 3.30 p.m., Bible Reading; 7.30 p.m., General Meeting.

LIST OF SPEAKERS.—ROBERT WILSON, Esq. (Chairman); Captain BARING, Tunbridge Wells; Rev. J. B. FIGGIS, Brighton; Rev. EVAN HOPKINS, London; Rev. W. HOUGHTON, Guildford; Rev. R. MIDDLETON, Norwich; Rev. C. G. MOORE, London; and others.

On Friday, Oct. 4th, 3.30 p.m., an Address to Ladies by Mrs. TOTTENHAM, of Wimbledon; and at 7.30 p.m., a Missionary Meeting, addressed by Rev. J. GELSON GREGSON, Rev. G. H. C. MACGREGOR, & Miss WILSON.

As the expenses connected with the Convention are heavy, Liberal Offerings are earnestly asked in the boxes at the doors after each Service. Larger contributions may be forwarded to the Secretaries or Treasurer.

"HYMNS OF CONSECRATION AND FAITH" (New Edition), will be used at all the Services.

Secretaries—FREDERICK WHITFIELD, St. Mary's, Hastings, W. R. PEACOCK, 8, Belgrave-terrace, Hastings.
Treasurer—WILLIAM PLUMMER, Esq.

MALVERN HOUSE, BLOCKLEY,
WORCESTERSHIRE.

Principals, the Misses JUDSON. Home school for girls in a lovely and bracing village on the Cotswold Hills. Resident foreign and English governesses and visiting masters. Earnest Christian training. Terms moderate and inclusive. References kindly permitted to the Rev. John Wilkinson, Mildmay Mission to the Jews, and to parents of pupils. The Autumn term begins (D.V.), September 18, 1895. c3968

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Wilton House, Tylehurst-road, Reading. Head Mistress, Miss Marion White. Assisted by well qualified resident mistresses and visiting professors. Pupils prepared, if desired, for public examination. Wilton House stands on high ground, gravel soil, outside the town. Large garden, cricket field, tennis courts. Tepid swimming bath. Next term begins Thursday, September 19. c5373

STAFFORD HOUSE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, 260, Marylebone-road, London. Principal, Miss SHILLAKER. Healthy locality, near parks. Individual teaching. Special advantages for music and art subjects. Civil Service and all public examinations. Terms moderate. Highest references. Vacancy for articled pupil. c4476

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.—Principal, Miss HOLLIS. c2317

UPPER MOUNT, SOUTHSEA.—High-class Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Autumn term, September 17th.—For Prospectus, etc., address, PRINCIPAL. c5337

ALLAN BANK, OWLS ROAD, BOSCOMBE.
HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.
Thorough education. Success in public examinations. Care of delicate girls. House near sea among pines. Terms moderate. References to Evangelical Clergymen, and to Ministers.—Apply, Miss COCKS, Principal. c5301

EDUCATION NEAR LONDON.—Good professors. Christian training. Highly recommended by Miss Leicester, Head Mistress Wyggiston Girls' High School, Leicester, and parents of pupils. Governess-student wanted. Fee, 8 guineas per term.—c7315, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7315

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—The Misses BALCH and EDMEADES, Clevedon Lodge, Reading. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge Locals (higher, senior, junior), and Trinity College Exams. Vacancy for student teacher (premium). c5488

ROSEBERRY, Western-parade, Southsea, facing sea and common. Christian home school for gentlemen's daughters. Thorough and successful teaching, careful godly training, refined happy home. Resident English and foreign governesses. Highly recommended. Principals, the Misses ROBINSON. c6405

ABERGELDIE, ALMA ROAD, CLIFTON.—High-class Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Thorough Christian training. Separate school-house. Tennis, gymnasium, and swimming. Preparations for all exams. Highest references.—Principal, Miss BLANCHE MORRIS. c7437

REV. D. B. HANKIN, Mildmay, kindly recommends good home school, two hours from London. Spacious detached house. Thorough education. Fees from £25.—Miss LARTER, Nene House School, Thrapstone, Northamptonshire. c5433

SEASIDE HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Shaftesbury House, Hunstanton. Bright rooms. Liberal diet. Kind individual attention. English, music, languages, painting. Two guineas per month. No extras. c7446

COMBER HOUSE, CAMBRIDGE.—Girls' Christian home school.—Special attention to music and languages. Thorough preparation for exams. Health and happiness carefully studied. Moderate and inclusive fees. Governess-student required. Small premium. c7447

A YOUNG LADY desires to meet with one or two little girls to educate with her sister, age 9. Every care in comfortable Christian home.—Apply, Mrs. CROXFORD, Harrold, Beds. c7481

EASTBOURNE.—A clergyman's daughter can receive two or three children into her happy Home School, for 20 guineas yearly, to fill vacancies. House on sea front, facing south.—Muncaster House, Royal Parade. c7492

EASTBOURNE.—The Principal of a Home School will receive young ladies requiring home care and change, for 15s. weekly. If desired, finishing lessons with professors.—Muncaster House, Royal Parade. c7493

COMPANION PUPIL WANTED for two girls 14, 16, in good home school, near Crystal Palace. Specially reduced fees. All advantages. Long references from parents present pupils.—Marmora-road School, Honor Oak. c7517

BATH.—Clergyman and wife wish to receive one or two children to educate with own. Happy home, with motherly care. References exchanged. Terms moderate.—F., care of Mr. Buckland, 7, Bennett-street, Bath. c7519

TO PARENTS.—Girls of any age instructed in practical housewifery, superior economical cookery, intelligent catering, marketing, and book-keeping.—For full prospectus, apply, PRINCIPAL, 64, East Dulwich-road, S.E. c7816

PARIS.—Establishment for young ladies, 16, Rue d'Auteuil (near the Bois de Boulogne). Principals, Mdlles. Bouré. Thorough French and German, music, drawing, painting, etc. Prospectus on application. c6621

YOUNG PEOPLE who wish to study German, find a comfortable home in the family of Rev. O. Flex, Karlsruhe, Baden. Particularly suited for Anglo-Indian children. Terms moderate. c7474

STANLEY HOUSE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.
Thorough education, with decided Christian training. The premises include workshop, chemical laboratory, covered and open playgrounds, tennis courts and cricket field. Delicate boys receive special care. Fees moderate and inclusive.—For prospectus, apply PRINCIPAL. c2692

Huntingdon House School,
TEDDINGTON, Middlesex.
Christian training. First-class masters. Thorough teaching. Moderate fees. Preparation for professional and business life, and for examinations (over 100 certificates gained). Recommended by Rev. Evan Hopkins, Kensington, and many Christian parents. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.
Principal—Mr. GEO. CUMES, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL
To the Public Schools and Royal Navy, for Gentlemen's Sons, aged 8 to 14.
The Old Hall, Wellington, Shropshire.
(Founded 1845.) Very healthily situated, 370 feet above the sea, near the Wrekin. 3¼ hours from London, by L. & N.W. or G.W.R. Beautiful grounds, playing fields, &c. Illustrated Prospectus on application to the Head Master, G. E. W. CRANAGE, M.A. (Shrewsbury School and Trinity College, Oxford); or Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5333

NEW COLLEGE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.
Head Master: Rev. G. Hugh Jones, F.A.S.
High-class School for sons of Christian gentlemen. Inclusive Fees, £45 per annum; under eleven, £40.

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory school for the sons of gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily. Prospectus on application to LADY PRINCIPALS. c5334

ALRESFORD HOUSE SCHOOL, MARGATE.—High-class school for the sons of gentlemen. Boys are prepared for the various competitive examinations. Special care of Indian children. Christian home.—Apply, The PRINCIPALS. c5371

FOLKESTONE

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class school for sons of gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references.—Mr. J. W. C. Fegan, Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-st., S.E. c1574

MR. W. ERNEST MATTHEWS, B.A. (honours), assisted by efficient masters, prepares for the Army, Navy, Universities, Public Schools, etc. Pupils under Christian influence. Excellent situation.—10, Worcester-terrace, Clifton, Gloucestershire. c5388

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL for boys. Thorough education. Every home comfort, with unlimited diet. Health resort. Medical reference. Careful Christian training. Terms inclusive and very moderate.—Principal, Lucton School, Henfield, Sussex. c5418

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and education with Mr. and Mrs. W. Dixon, Gordon School, Kingston-hill, Surrey. Established twelve years. Beautifully situated near Richmond Park and rail. London exams. Home comforts. Inclusive terms, 18 to 25 guineas yearly. Entrance, any time. c5230

HURSTPIERPOINT PREPARATORY SCHOOL, near Brighton, Sussex. Individual attention to delicate, backward boys. Home care. Thorough grounding for public schools. Masters. Highest references. Healthy surroundings. Fees, £20.—Address, Lady Principal, Belmont. c7467

SKETCHING in Colours direct from Nature. Correspondence lessons. Experienced teacher. The Blackstairs Sketching Club. Beginners' sketch club, drawing class. Circulating portfolios. Art magazine club.—Miss Hill, Urrins Fort, Enniscorthy, Ireland. c7469

MUSIC AND SINGING.—A Christian lady, of long experience in teaching, gives lessons in music and singing to those who wish their gifts cultivated for the Master's use.—For particulars, apply by letter to c7539, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7539

THE HEAD-MASTER of a Grammar School wishes to place his daughter (18) as governess in a Christian family. Fluent French, German, music, drawing.—X587, care of Deacon's, Leadenhall-street. c7487

AS JUNIOR GOVERNESS in high-class ladies' school. Age 19. Tall. English, French, Latin, Euclid, Algebra. Good piano and drawing. Mutual terms or small salary.—5, St. George's-terrace, Herne Bay. c7497

GOVERNESS wanted for two girls (11 and 9 years) and boy (6 years), also to help two older boys with lessons for school. English, French, Latin, music, algebra, and Euclid. Undenominational Christian preferred.—Mrs. Wallace, Woodbank, near Dalkey, co. Dublin. c7542

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES

(English and Foreign), recommended GRATIS by Mrs. Edwin Hooper, Governesses' Institute and Home, Compton-terrace, London, N. (Established 1879). BOARD AND RESIDENCE from 18s. weekly. No fee to Governesses until placed. Schools recommended and transferred. c5241

SITUATIONS, ETC., WANTED.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

SMALL STIPEND.—Pastorship desired by married gentleman. Undenominational. No children. Willing to work up cause. Able preacher. Would go abroad. — c7543, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, London, E.C. c7543

EXPERIENCED WORKER desires engagement. Secretary, lay preacher, missionary, etc. Twenty years engaged in active Christian work (including soldiers). Presently honorary secretary mission district. Aged 40. Married. Presbyterian communicant. Highest references.—Address, R. Richardson, 58, Irishtown-road, Dublin. c7628

GENTLEMAN, CHRISTIAN WORKER, with thorough business experience, of good address, desires appointment of responsibility, where there are opportunities for evangelistic work. Unexceptionable references. Country preferred.—A. Z., 153, Fulham-road, S.W. c7466

ACCOUNTANT, CASHIER, AND CORRESPONDENT.—Advertiser, age 33, shortly at liberty, can take entire charge of cash books, bought and sold ledgers, colliery wages books, and accounts generally. Abstainer. Not afraid of work. Thoroughly competent shorthand correspondent, well up in office routine. Five years with Chadwicks and Co., chartered accountants, and ten years in railway accountant's office. Excellent references as to character and ability.—Apply to Mr. Ernest Rickman, 28, Croham-road, South Croydon. G43

A CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN, with highest credentials, and of large and varied commercial experience, is desirous of partial employment as manager, secretary, agent, receiver of rents, or accountant.—"Beta," Roberts' Advertising Agency, 26, Paternoster-row, London. c5533

SITUATION wanted by respectable mechanic. Understands machinery, gas, steam, hot and cold water apparatus. General repairs of large establishment. Willing to be useful.—Thomas, 66, Farringdon-road-buildings, London. c7550

TO CHRISTIAN MASTER BAKERS.—Young man (21) desires situation as good second hand, or able to manage small business. North of England preferred. Christian, non-smoker, abstainer. Well up in smalls.—H. J. Griffiths, 4, North-terrace, Inverness-st., Winchmore. c7525

CHRISTIAN MAN seeks place of trust, or would make himself useful in any capacity. Age 26. Single, good reference.—Write A.L.X., Willing's, 102, Piccadilly, W. c7414

WILL ANY CHRISTIAN BOOT-MAKER take a young man, 26 years of age, into his home, board, lodge, and teach him for 6s. or 7s. per week, in addition to his labour? — Further particulars of W. H., 180, Edgware-road, W. c5526

WILL SOME CHRISTIAN LADY help man to obtain employment who lost his character and in striving to regain it has become a cripple? Could do copying or similar work. Galatians vi. 2.—Reply to the Rev. H. E. Gunson, 165, Pentiman-road, London, S.W., who will gladly give all particulars. c7218

A SITUATION wanted as caretaker, post of trust, gardener to help in house, by middle-aged married man. Country preferred. Five years in present situation. Excellent character.—A. B., 41, Hubert-grove, Stockwell. c7506

A GENTLEMAN WISHES to find a quiet single-handed place for his late gardener, who is a Christian and an abstainer.—Address, C. A., Redlands, Branksome, Bournemouth. c7464

CHRISTIAN MAN SEEKS SITUATION as gardener. Willing to make himself generally useful. Understands horses and cows, or any place of trust. Married. Age 42. Three children, youngest six. South or West of England preferred. Four years' good character and references. — W. Bonner, 2, Manor-cottages, Staines. c7529

BIBLEWOMAN.—A lady wishes to recommend a Bible woman for similar work. Zealous in her work, strong, and capable.—Apply, A. C., Singleton, Torquay. c7477

AS SUPERINTENDENT OF SMALL HOME, or to assist. Five years' experience in Y.W.C.A., club, and preventive work. Good housekeeper and organiser. Excellent references. Salary. —c7533, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7533

MATRON.—Re-engagement wanted. Educated, musical, can teach the art of dressmaking, cutting, and fitting. Abstainer, good references.—C.o. Miss A. Gough, Y.W.C.A., 16a, Old Cavendish-street, W. c7475

RE-ENGAGEMENT BY CHRISTIAN WORKER as matron of girls' training home or assistant in orphanage or industrial. Good disciplinarian, manager, needlewoman. Experienced in nursing. Highest references.—c7535, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square. c7535

A LADY, WELL EDUCATED and practical, offers her services weekly. Salary required. —Address, D., 80, Alexandra-road, N.W. c7557

AS WORKING HOUSEKEEPER, or place of trust, required by young widow, with little girl, age 3. Understands cooking and needlework, dressmaking. Highest references.—c7560, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, London. c7560

MIDDLE-AGED WIDOW LADY desires appointment as housekeeper or companion to an invalid lady. Wesleyan. An abstainer. Good references.—Address, M. W., care of Mrs. Seaman, Enged, Eastern-road, Brighton. c7508

LADY, 32, desires engagement as housekeeper, companion-help, or attendant. Thoroughly domesticated and trustworthy. Salary £20. Highest references given. Christian home.—c7536, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7536

A CHRISTIAN LADY desires a re-engagement as companion to an elderly or invalid lady. Abstainer. Kind and gentle. Excellent references.—T., 83, Keildon-road, Clapham Common, S.W. c7522

A LADY (Church of England) desires an engagement, about Christmas, as companion to a lady, and to help in Christian work.—Address, M., care of Mr. Clarke, 16, Cumberland-street, Devonport, Devon. c7513

SWISS LADY (Protestant), speaking English, French and German fluently, seeks a re-engagement as companion. Used to travelling. A suffering lady would receive affectionate care.—Address, Mademoiselle Portmann, Athenée, Geneva. c7478

DOCTOR'S DAUGHTER (34), with some experience, desires re-engagement as companion to elderly or young lady. Cheerful home. Good needlewoman. Comfortable Christian home more an object than high salary. Highest references. — Address, c7490, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7490

NO SALARY.—FRIEND-COMPANION for the winter with nice people and surroundings. Could comfort the lonely or aged. Kind and sympathetic. Highest references.—A.B.C., 90, High-street, Bedford. c7461

READING ALOUD.—Lady, pleasant voice, having few hours disengaged, wishes to hear of someone who would employ her as reader. Moderate terms.—Miss Welsh, 28, Wolverton-gardens, Hammersmith. c7473

SWISS MAID.—Lady desires situation for above, two years in her service. Able to teach young children. Good French. Plain sewing. Thoroughly honest and respectable.—Mrs. Mackintosh, Tenneka, Alton, Hants. c7405

SITUATION WANTED as useful, or young ladies' maid. Good needlewoman. Plain dressmaker, age 22 years. Eighteen months' reference. Please state wages.—E. T., Royalty Fishery, Christchurch, Hants. c7566

SITUATION wanted as useful maid. Good dressmaker and needlewoman. Thoroughly understands her duties. Baptist denomination. Seventeen months' excellent character. Age 29. Disengaged.—E. H., Corran, Harrow. c7548

CHRISTIAN LADY (trained nurse) seeks engagement as companion to delicate lady, or to have care of invalid child. Highest references.—A., Ansley House, Mill-lane, West Hampstead. c7455

MATERNITY NURSES (Diploma L.O.S.).—The honorary secretary can with every confidence recommend two nurses, both Christians and abstainers. Other nurses provided.—Further particulars on application, York House, Leamington. Telegrams, "Nursing." c5120

AS NURSE TO LADY'S first child. Thoroughly trustworthy. Experienced to take baby from the month. Christian home desired. Wages £20.—C. Harding, 34, Burrard-road, West Hampstead. c7515

AS UNDERNURSE (15), under good upper nurse in gentleman's small family. A lady recommends a well brought up Christian girl. Abstainer. First place. Full particulars requested.—Miss Greene, Midgham, Reading. c7458

MAID ATTENDANT to an elderly lady. Some experience in nursery. Would assist in light house duties. Good needlewoman, Willing and obliging. Middle-aged. Good references.—Address, E., 32, Sydney-street, Fulham-road, S.W. c7551

MRS. CAVE recommends a competent trustworthy upper-housemaid, or single where manservant is kept. Three years' service. Leaving through changes in household. Town preferred.—Dentry, 114, Ledbury-road, Bayswater, W. c7507

A LADY CAN RECOMMEND a thorough housemaid (middle-aged) for small private family, where a parlourmaid is kept. Disengaged October 3.—Miss Smith, Bidborough Rectory, Tunbridge Wells. c7484

A PLACE wanted as general servant to an elderly couple, in or near Finsbury Park, by October 8. — Address, M. Watts, 12, Park-road, Haverstock Hill, N.W. c7488

WANTED, BY SEPTEMBER 29th, a situation as general servant, in a teetotal household, for a widow woman (43), who will then be leaving an inebriates' home. Wages, £9 or £10.—Apply to Miss Edith Weatherhead, Gawthorpe Hall, Bingley. c7572

SITUATIONS, ETC., VACANT.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

Y.M.C.A. EVENING SECRETARY required for young association north-west suburb London. Salary £90.—Address, with full particulars of experience, Sigma care of Housekeeper, 1, Royal Exchange Buildings, E.C. c7321

TO MEDICAL MEN seeking partial retirement, light service is required at a small health resort in a beautiful neighbourhood.—Address, c5529, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C. c5529

WANTED, godly, married working tradesmen and foremen, without family. Not over 35, Church of England preferred, to manage small working homes. Salaries range between 30s. and 40s. per week.—Apply, W. H., 180, Edgware-road, W. c5519

COACHMAN wanted, married, no children, in a quiet Christian family. Must be trustworthy, useful, and obliging. Age from 30 to 40. Unexceptionable references required.—Address, Mr. Clarke, Stationer, Dorking. c7564

HAPPY SPHERE OF SERVICE in home and institute offered to earnest Christian, able to pay partial board. Must be musical.—Apply, Sec., Y.W.C.A., Thicket-road, Sutton, Surrey. c7512

WANTED, for Protestant Orphanage (girls'), near Dublin, two Christian women, one to take charge of domestic arrangements, needlework, etc., the other as teacher. State ages, qualifications, enclose photos, and give full particulars of former occupation. Salaries £20 and £18 respectively.—By letter only, Orphanage, Elvery and Co., Sackville-street, Dublin. c7571

HOUSEKEEPER WANTED, a middle-aged Christian person, abstainer, to take the management of a small household. Must be a good cook and have unexceptionable references. Country situation. —Send photo and full particulars to "Housekeeper," care of Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. N.B.1.

LADY'S MAID wanted.—Useful, active. Must be good needlewoman and have travelled with an invalid. Churchwoman. Wages £25. State age and height.—Mrs. R., 37, Ormistan-road, Uxbridge-road, London. c7486

USEFUL MAID wanted by a lady to attend upon herself and assist in light part of housework. Age between 30 and 40. Good needlewoman. Must be well recommended. Good wages to suitable person.—Miss St. Quintin, Harrold, Beds. c7482

CAN LADY RECOMMEND CHILDREN'S MAID, about 20, for Southport? Three children, youngest nine. One formerly nursemaid preferred. Nice, gentle manners essential. Good needlewoman.—Mrs. B. Peek, The Bungalow, Boscombe, Hants. c7479

MOTHER'S HELP required at once to take charge of four young children. Must be strong, reliable, and a good needlewoman.—Apply, 40, Penn-road, Holloway, N. c7456

USEFUL HELP WANTED for one lady, thoroughly domesticated, for housework and cooking. Assistance given. Christian, abstainer. State age, denomination, circumstances. Good references.—B., 20, De Crespigny Park, Denmark Hill, London. c7499

VACANCY FOR A PROBATIONER.—An educated Christian gentlewoman, belonging to some Evangelical church. Age not under 22.—Apply by letter, with all particulars, to Miss Davidson, "Friedenheim," Upper Avenue-road, London, N.W. A personal interview necessary before engagement. c7532

NURSE WANTED, to do bedrooms and take charge of three little boys. Another nurse kept for infant six months. Would have to take charge of infant when other nurse leaves, but do no bedroom work. Christian and good-tempered person much valued. Homely place. Good wages.—Mrs. Holland, Hurst-road, Horsham. c7521

CAN ANY LADY RECOMMEND a thoroughly good, trustworthy Christian nurse for four little children? Must be abstainer. Nursery-maid kept. Age preferred, about 30.—Mrs. Richard Phayre, Belgaum, Woking. c7558

GOOD NURSE wanted, Christian (Congregationalist preferred). Must be abstainer. Two young children. Housemaid kept. Good wages.—Apply by letter, Mrs. D., Trecombe, Arthur-road, Wimbledon Park. c7565

TRUSTWORTHY SERVANT wanted as nurse to heavy invalid lady. Must be strong, tall, not over 35, and abstainer. Good character indispensable. Wages £18 to £20.—Apply, 2, Cambridge-road, Lee, S.E. c7568

FRENCH, SWISS, OR GERMAN NURSE.—Can lady thoroughly recommend Protestant, required end of October, for three little girls, 8, 6, 3½?—Address, Mrs. Marston, Icomb Rectory, Stow-on-the-Wold, Glos. c7669

CHURCH ARMY LAUNDRY.—Wanted, a thoroughly competent laundry matron. Excellent character indispensable. Church of England. Teetotaler preferred. Also first-class workers as packers and sorters, washers, ironers (shirt and collar). Excellent characters indispensable.—Apply at once, stating wages, Miss Hurst, 21, Nutford-place, Edgware-road, W. c7405

SORTER AND PACKER, experienced, wanted for laundry in Penitent's home. Church woman. Total abstainer. References. Salary £20. —Address, H. L. S., Home Villa, Queen's Park, Brighton. c7500

A CHRISTIAN PERSON wanted, as laundress in a farmhouse. Good shirt and collar ironer. Comfortable home offered.—Beckingham, Stoke House, St. Mary Bourne, Andover, Hants. c7528

A GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted for a medical missionary's family in Palestine, must have good references.—Mrs. Abbott, c.o. L. P. Nott, Esq., Gorsfield, Pendleton, Manchester. c7491

PLAIN COOK WANTED, quiet family, five usually at home. Good general might suit if good cook. Wages £20. Sunday evenings given.—Apply, Tavistock Lodge, 47, Blessing ton-road, Lee. c7503

A GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted in a clergyman's family in a country village. No dairy or washing. Help given after one o'clock. Churchwoman required. Age not under 30.—Address, Mrs. W. G. L., Bulvan Rectory, Romford. c7555

PLAIN COOK or good kitchenmaid.—Wanted, a middle-aged active Christian person, abstainer, under housekeeper, in a small family in the country. Unexceptionable references.—Address, with photo and full particulars, "Plain Cook," care of Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. N.B.

TWO GOOD SERVANTS WANTED, thoroughly trustworthy, managing plain cook, and house-parlourmaid. Single lady. No beer. Christians valued.—Apply, by letter, stating wages, B., Holly Cottage, Barton-road, Cambridge. c7514

TWO SUPERIOR PERSONS wanted as good plain cook and house-parlourmaid in small, quiet family. Good wages given. No boots or knives. Abstainers.—Mrs. Saunders, Lisicsworth, Esher, Surrey. c7524

EXPERIENCED HOUSE-PARLOUR-maid wanted. Two ladies in family. Frequent visitors. Good long character indispensable. No fringe.—Newlands, Epsom-road, Guildford. c7490

HOUSEMAID WANTED, a middle-aged active Christian person. Abstainer. Small family in the country. Unexceptionable references.—Send photo and full particulars to "Housemaid," care of Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. N.B. 2

SUPERIOR GENERAL SERVANT wanted. Christian, abstainer. About 30. Able to cook nicely. Good personal character. Another servant kept. Wages £18, all found. One lady. Light comfortable place.—Mrs. Grant, 9, Larkhall-rise, Clapham. c7526

CHRISTIAN SERVANTS' AGENCY for supplying cooks, housemaids, parlourmaids, children's nurses, and others. Kindly recommended by the Rev. E. G. Gange.—Apply, Mrs. J. Dunsford, 6, Great Quebec-street, Montagu-square, W. c7501

LADIES WANTING SERVANTS and servants seeking situations, should apply to Miss Maulden (late missionary), 97, Harrow-road, Paddington Green, whose office is well known and kindly recommended by the Rev. G. F. Pentecost, D.D., and others. Stamps for reply. c7541

7s. 6d. A WEEK SALARY and upward offered to both sexes (for spare moments) everywhere. The work may be done evenings.—Apply, enclosing addressed envelope, to M. Truscott and Co, 5, Sherwood-terrace, Chelston (105), Torquay. c5492

PROFITABLE ladylike business at home (10s. to 50s. weekly) can be secured with an "Automatic" Knitter. Cash or hire. Work can be had. —Write to C. V., Director, 67, Southwark-street, London. c5430

TO LET, APARTMENTS, ETC.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C. — A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to J. W. Turner, Proprietor.

W. TAVERNER, TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from Great Northern, Midland, and North-Western Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Silent roadway. Ten minutes from British Museum. Tariff on application.

AT LONDON.—TRANTER'S TEMPERANCE HOTEL, Bridgewater-square, Barbican, near St. Paul's Cathedral, G.P.O., and all places of interest. Quiet, clean, economical.—Write for "Visitors' Guide," showing "How to Spend a Week in London," with tariff and testimonials, post free.

LONDON, VISITORS TO,
Will find Rest, Comfort, and Kindness at Bernard's
Private Christian Temperance Hotel,
1 and 2, Granville-square, King's Cross-road, W.C. Quiet square. Most central position in London. Bed and breakfast, 3s. Bed, breakfast, and tea, 3s. 9d. Reduction to Ministers. No attendance fees or gratuities. Write "Secretary" for rooms. c5416

BURR'S HOTEL, Queen-square, London, W.C., near British Museum, in centre of Metropolis, but just out of the daily noise and bustle, thus giving restful quiet. Write for terms. c5379

BATH.—Comfortable and refined home offered a young lady, two sisters, or lady and child in a clergyman's family. Terms moderate. References exchanged.—Address, F., care of Mr. Buckland, 7, Bennett-street, Bath. c7529

BOGNOR.—HIGHBURY HOUSE, ESPLANADE. — Seaside home for gentlewomen who do not care to visit a boarding-house. All the comforts of home life, 18s. to 25s., inclusive.—Address, Miss Harrison. c7463

BOSCOMBE, BOURNEMOUTH.—To let, suites of rooms or entire house, well furnished, fifteen rooms, choice position, main road, very near sea, gardens, arcade, etc. Terms on application.—86, Christchurch-road. c5363

BOSCOMBE, BOURNEMOUTH.—Ladies' holiday boarding house. Near sea and chine gardens. Temperance. Terms 18s. to 25s. weekly. Special terms for long period. Stamp for reply.—Miss Ellis, Fairleigh, Drummond-road. c5508

The Christian.

☞ To avoid delay it is requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan and Scott, and not to its individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for THE CHRISTIAN should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 1 of cover.)

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

☞ The Publishers request that all orders for THE CHRISTIAN by post, and remittances for same, be addressed to "THE CHRISTIAN" POSTAL DEPARTMENT, BOUVERIE HOUSE, SALISBURY SQUARE, LONDON, E.C.

Cheques and Post Orders to be made payable to Messrs. John Haddon and Co. at that address.

The subscription for one year, including Postage and Coloured Almanack, is as under :—

For Great Britain and Ireland ..	6s. 7d. per annum
For India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, France, Germany, and other European Countries	8s. 10d. " "
For United States and Canada ..	2½ dols. " "
Or including Monthly Copy of HERALD OF MERCY	2½ dols. " "

Subscriptions for THE HERALD OF MERCY.

4 Copies monthly	2s. per annum
8 " "	4s. " "
12 " "	6s. " "
24 " "	12s. " "

Post free to any address at home or abroad.

Remittances to be sent as above. Postcard should be enclosed for receipt or extra stamp to cover postage of same.

Notes and Comments.

REV. DR. RANDLES is the author of a happy epigram, spoken to theological students—"You miss the mark if you are not better Christians for your theology, and better theologians for your Christian experience." Theology would be no mere science if it were recognised as touching and being touched by the life of the soul.

Another wise word, addressed to students, falls from the lips of Dr. Glover, who warns them against making their pulpits popular. He pertinently asks, whether the Church has to lay herself out to please the world? "If a Church does so it deserves failure, and will achieve it without any manner of doubt." Perhaps the hunger for popularity is generally rather the hunger of the congregation for its minister than his own desire to have an applauding crowd around him; at any rate, the condemnation often passed on ministers is that they "do not draw"—not that they are unfaithful, or unworthy in character. It is a struggle in some cases to bear up against carnal church members.

The Biblical World, of Chicago, is somewhat "advanced," but at the same time it is vigorously promoting thorough Biblical study. The September issue records the continued progress of the Summer Bible Study movement, pointing out that the students are for the most part from the "laity." Deploring the neglect of Scripture exposition in the pulpit, Dr. Harper says :—

> Our ministers fail not only to teach the Bible, but also to preach it. The average sermon contains less and less of Biblical material, and more and more of that which comes from outside the Bible.
>
> It may be said without fear of sustained contradiction that the membership of our churches is gradually becoming less and less familiar with the contents and teachings of the sacred Scriptures.

Hence there is a call for men and women who shall give themselves up to teaching the Bible. Theological training, as it is understood to-day, by no means qualifies for this. Indeed, it is not infrequently found that the "training" is weakest just where it should be strongest—on the point of Scripture knowledge.

Pleasant no doubt it is to read of the good which is being done in a thousand ways among the poorest of our own city population, but how difficult it is to realise the cost—the cost, not of money, but of comfort and of social brightness and enjoyment. Imagine it—all the day spent in a dingy street, among young women and girls who are ignorant and often depraved, every hour bringing its burden of anxiety and effort. In the evening exercise is taken by a stroll down a narrow alley, past Jamrach's, along Ratcliff-highway, noisy with drays, and malodorous with countless smells, and then—great treat!—over the Tower Bridge, and back again. How different this from "a walk down the lane," "a run over the downs," "a saunter in the park," or "half an hour in the garden." Truly these workers have hidden manna, secret joys, pleasure in self-sacrifice. Yet we should often remember them.

A certain Gospel Temperance Society having decided that entertainments shall play a very subordinate part in its work, practically no part at all, but that every exertion shall be made to rescue men and women from intemperance and bring them to the knowledge of Christ, has had its reward in gaining to a considerable extent its object, and in growing steadily in numbers. To seek first the kingdom of God is always the way to obtain other things; they are "added."

The Methodist Recorder says that Mr. Forman, of the Punjab, who has been trying to commend himself and his mission to the people by living like one of themselves, has been greatly disappointed. The people, seeing an Englishman living in a portion of a small house, the rest of which was occupied by shoemakers, concluded that he could not get anything more remunerative to do, and regarded him as "poor white trash." Several towns to which he went regarded him in the same way. The people never attributed his conduct to self-denial; he was a mere worldling, but an unfortunate one. "They respect the Englishman who lives in the English manner." It should never be forgotten that India is as familiar with the habits of Englishmen as England itself, and that nothing is gained by ignoring that fact, or by acting contrary to it.

Missions to the heathen seem to be claiming more and more of the attention of the churches. In the last number of The Methodist Recorder, one fourth of the letterpress was devoted to missionary work in some phase or other of it. A portion of this was a letter from Rev. Charles Bone, of Canton, on the anti-foreign missionary riots in China, which testifies that the literary and learned classes are opposed, and in many cases bitterly opposed, to missionaries, but that the majority in general regard them with indifference, whilst a considerable minority is quite friendly. This view of the situation accords with that of other well-known authorities. Whilst the Chinese are in such a mood he thinks that it would be unwise "in this decade" to deluge their country with missionaries from England and America.

He bases his opposition to this policy on the imperfect knowledge of Chinese life of the new workers, the narrowness of their sympathies, and their inability to appreciate the religious and political problems which would confront them. He believes it is not the number, but the quality of the workers which is so essential "at this stage." That is always and everywhere true. But is it not also true that all new workers, however few in number, and however well suited to the work, have precisely the same difficulties to confront? And is it not also true that we shall have to wait for ever, if we wait for the Chinese to settle into a quiescent mood before sending an increased number of workers? The rage against them will only subside as the Chinese know them and their works better.

The Anthropological Section of the British Association was not over wise in its handling of the question, "Interference with the civilisation of other races," the general feeling being in favour of leaving them very much as they are. Dr. Cust would protect the people from preachers of new religions and fadmongers who intrude themselves where they are not wanted. He would leave the civilised peoples of Asia and North America alone; maintain a firm and impartial administration of justice, free locomotion, free right of assembly, free religion, free trade, free principles, a firm opposition to all old women's fads, and the gushing suggestions of impertinent intruders into the domestic habits, etc., etc. Of course, Dr. Cust would claim the right to decide what a "fad" is, but other people might have as much right and as much ability to do that as he; and how the enjoyment of free religion would be reconciled with the suppression of fads is not plain. In the year A.D. 60 he would have suppressed Paul as a faddist. Better that such philosophers should clear their minds of cant and say frankly that they object to the Gospel.

Dr. Forbes, in his attack at the British Association on missionaries, was careful to name two exceptions, Chalmers and Lawes, of New Guinea, of whom he spoke in the highest terms. Now, we do not believe that these brethren will thank Dr. Forbes for praising them at the cost of fellow-labourers. They may be exceptional men in the sense of energy, courage, and resource, but they are only a fair sample of the kind of man who has always been sent to the mission field. The great work of evangelisation owes as much or more to the hosts of obscure men and women who have toiled in it as to the illustrious Carey, Moffat, and Livingstone.

Archbishop Croke, when interviewed by Mr. Stead and asked what he thought about religion in Ireland, replied that it had the most satisfactory record of all. He did not believe that since the days of St. Patrick has there ever been a time when the Irish people were so "devoted to their religion, practising their religion as now. That is a great comfort in the midst of all adversity and disappointments." He thinks, however, that the recent troubles have not improved their character. "There has been a development of suspicion, covetousness, and distrust which was foreign to them before," which seems to prove that external attention to religion may advance while the temper and disposition grow worse. One of the most suggestive things in the sketch is the account of the Archbishop's "fierce debate" with the Pope on the subject of a national testimonial to Mr. Parnell. Even the Pope has to struggle hard sometimes to have his own way.

One of the sensational pieces of news last week was the report published in an influential paper that Roman Catholics were to be invited to place £200,000,000 in the hands of the Pope with which he may purchase Rome and some adjacent territory, including a strip down to the sea coast and a seaport, from the Italian Government. Some regard the proposal as an absurd rumour of the dull season, but others think that it contains the foundation, at any rate, of an agreement between the Pope and the King of Italy. It would be a strange and contemptible result of twenty-five years' enjoyment of self-government. How the patriots who bled and suffered to recover Rome for Italy would despise the very thought of the dearly-earned inheritance being sold for money! No doubt Italy is poor, and would be greatly relieved if her exchequer had two hundred millions poured into it, but money is no more the life of a nation than of an individual, and from the effects of such a bargain Italy would never rally.

A correspondent writes that the fact that a number of priests have recently left the Church of Rome in France, has made the Bishop of La Rochelle very sad. One of them, Abbé Bonhomme, preached from his own pulpit on the subject, "Why I leave, and why you ought to leave the Church of Rome." He had, as we recently reported, a packed church to hear him. The disconsolate bishop, on applying to the Prefect to stop his "revolutionary priests," got no comfort, but was told that he (the Prefect) was not charged to administer consciences, and that people were now far from St. Bartholomew's night and the Inquisition. Appealed to to protect "the Church of France," he replied that there were three acknowledged churches in France, the Roman, the Protestant, and the Jewish, and added, "If your priests become Protestants, I refuse to interfere with them, or even to scold them."

"Modern Paganism" is treated in The Quarterly Review in an able and interesting way, though the subject is sad enough. The account given of Mr. J. Addington Symonds' early life and spiritual conflicts is pathetic and suggestive. He was influenced on one side by his father, whose whole life was summed up in art, morality, and modern progress, and on the other by his grandmother, who thought all pleasant things were from the Evil One, and who surrounded herself, as he said, with a "motley crew of preachers and missionaries, tradespeople and cripples." The grandmother's influence was the strongest, but it did him no good. The lesson here seems to be, that parents and others should carefully observe the gifts and sympathies of their children, and treat them accordingly. We recall a musical boy saved to the services of Christ by having a Sunday-school teacher and a minister who loved music, and aided him in his studies; and also a scientific lady, saved to faith, in these days of unbelief, by a wise mother, who encouraged her to read the writings of the Apostle John.

Young Symonds was still more unfortunate in his university experience. "The Oxford of thirty-five years ago," he says, "made men Rhetoricians and Sophists, who would come out brilliantly in The Saturday Review, and, if they fell under Jowett's influence, were sceptics." He himself moved into the position of "stoical acceptance of his place in the world, combined with Epicurean indulgence." All moods of existence, if they were pleasurable, were justified to him; if they gave pain, resignation was the wisest course. He had no rule of conduct, and no grounds of hope—a very dreary and broken condition! The writer points out with great force whither all this kind of thing tends—the worship of art and the absence of faith. It was the Pagan Renaissance which brought about the Puritan Reformation, in which some pleasant things perished, but not so many as is commonly supposed. The men who despised religion ruined art. And no doubt they will do it again, if they prevail.

Those who care to see what part may be played in English political life by the lowest of motives and influences may read the article by Mr. Escott in the August number of The Twentieth Century. Religion is made a stalking horse; horse-racing is a bond between politicians of the front rank; and eagerness to get into "society" is an occasion for changing a political creed. It is pleasant to know that all politicians are not of that description, but it is very unpleasant to know how some are, and that in all parties.

The following is from the English Churchman:—

The Church Times has a second article on "The Church Association and its Colporteurs," which is characterised throughout by gross misrepresentation, and which from its bitterness will probably do more harm than good to the Association's enemies. Every effort is made to connect the working of the Association with Dissent; and THE CHRISTIAN, through which a contribution to its funds was sent, is described as "the widely-read organ of Congregational Dissenters," whereas it is an undenominational publication probably supported more largely by Church people than Dissenters. THE CHRISTIAN has done much to draw Evangelical Churchmen and Evangelical Nonconformists more closely together in opposition to Romanism, Ritualism, and Rationalism, as well as in the promotion of Gospel enterprises, and for this reason we rejoice in its widespread influence. It is the growth of sacerdotalism which has given undenominationalism its present strength, and, in estimating the influence of the Oxford movement, this fact should be borne in mind.

GATHERED GOLD.

THE BIBLE.

House of treasures! here I find
Food and medicine for the mind,
Sword to wield
Against the foe,
Helm and shield
To ward his blow,
Songs of praise in sunny hours,
Dirges when the tempest lowers;
But I need not thus go on Naming treasures one by one,
Why should I the rest recall?
Christ is here—and Christ is all.

Arthur Augustus Rees.

PRAYER.

I know not by what methods rare,
But this I know, God answers prayer.
I know not if the blessing sought
Will come in just the guise I sought;
I leave my prayers with Him alone,
Whose will is wiser than my own. —Anon.

RESIGNATION.

It is the Lord—should I distrust
Or contradict his will,
Who cannot do but what is just,
And must be righteous still?
It is the Lord—who gives me all,
My wealth, my friends, my ease;
And of his bounties may recall
Whatever part He please.

Matthew Green (1696-1737).

INSTANT IN PRAYER.

Paul's term, "instant in prayer," being used by Stonewall Jackson one day, his sense of its meaning was required. "I can give you," he said, "my idea of it by illustration, if you will allow it, and will not think that I am setting myself up as a model for others." On assurance being given that there would be no misjudgment, he went on to say: "I have so fixed the habit in my mind that I never raise a glass of water to my lips without a moment asking God's blessing. I never seal a letter without putting a word of prayer under the seal. I never take a letter from the post without a brief sending of my thought heavenward. I never change my classes in the section-room without a minute's petition on the cadets who come in." "And don't you sometimes forget to do this?" "I think I scarcely can say that I do. The habit has become as fixed almost as breathing." —Selected.

World-Wide Evangelisation.

THE closing words of my last appeal in THE CHRISTIAN of September 5, in the face of the cruel persecution by some of the Chinese, were addressed not to missionaries only, but to all Christians, to arise and spread the Gospel everywhere.

Now, therefore, it is with joy that I may be permitted to call attention to the coming meeting in the Great Assembly Hall, London, E., for October 8, 9, and 10 for humiliation and waiting upon God, which are to be addressed by Rev. Andrew Murray and others. Many who read THE CHRISTIAN cannot be present, but every true Christian who reads these lines, although unable to be present at those meetings, may call to mind the Saviour's earnest entreaty in John iv. 34, 35, and 36, "Jesus saith unto them, my meat is to do the will of Him that sent Me, and to finish his work. Say not ye, there are yet four months, and then cometh harvest! Behold, I say unto you, lift up your eyes and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest. And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal; that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together."

It is true the heathen urgently need the Gospel. But is there not a prior need nearer home? Do not true communicants, both preachers and hearers of us, need to hunger and to thirst to be filled with the Holy Ghost? If not, would a thousand years bring us any nearer overtaking the world? I think not. Why? Because, notwithstanding all our missionary societies, is it not too true that the heathen and Mohammedan populations, besides the lapsed and lapsing state of much of Christendom itself, are now actually gaining upon us, and not we upon them? whilst at home, in London itself, tens of thousands of men and women are in masses forsaking even the outward semblance of true Christianity. Surely, then, those who are calling us to assemble in the heart of the East-end of London in Mr. Charrington's Hall, for the purpose of humiliation and interceding prayer for two whole days, have done right, and are in strict obedience to the Saviour's own earnest injunction.

REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

THE VICTORIA INSTITUTE.

IT will be remembered that some time ago a paper by Mr. Rassam, the explorer, and a discussion thereon, appeared in the Transactions of the Victoria Institute. Mr. Rassam showed the impossibility of the Babylonian Garden of Eden being the original of the Bible "Garden in Eden"; and in the just issued members' Journal of the Institute the new theory that the name of the Creator as given in Genesis is borrowed or adapted from the Babylonian finds its answer. The name is similar, but, for reasons given, cannot have been derived from it. The lesson of all this is, that we must not forget that there were civilisations before the Babylonian.

Papers by Sir Thomas Wade, Dr. Gordon, and others appear in the Journal. As bearing on the present difficulties in China, the following sentence in one of the discussions is worthy of notice. The writer is the head of a Chinese high school. "The question as to the effect upon nineteenth century international relations of the sacred edict, 'cast out foreign sects,' is a very practical one in China: That edict is by law read publicly by high officials every month throughout the land of China."

THE WAY OF HOLINESS. — Envyings, heart-burnings, animosities, shall we carry these to heaven with us? Let us labour to divest ourselves and strike off from our spirits every thing that shall not go with us to heaven, or is equally unsuitable to our end and way, that there may be nothing to obstruct and hinder our abundant entrance at length into the everlasting kingdom.—John Howe.

The Troubles in China.

My Dear Friends,—I am sure you have ead with deep and painful interest the ccounts of the recent troubles in China; the oting against the missionaries in Si-ch'uen the far west; against the native Christians the Bing-yiæ district of Wun-chan, our ost south-easterly station, in the Cheh-iang province, and still more recently the errible massacre of missionaries at Ku-n'eng in Fuh-kien. You can have imagined hat all these tidings have meant to us out ere in the field. We sympathise very deeply ith the bereaved relatives, and with the com-ittees who have lost valued workers. God as again honoured the C.M.S. and He has kewise honoured the C.E.Z.M. by trusting hem with so great a trial. Our trials com-ared with theirs have been light, yet we ave felt that without Divine grace they ould have been more than we could bear. Ve have been consciously sustained by the rayers of God's people, and enabled to re-oice in Him who sitteth King for ever.

Our most recent tidings are satisfactory; here has been no further disturbance in ing-yiæ, and we hope that ere long the native hristians will be able to return to their illages and rebuild the destroyed homesteads.

In Si-ch'uen we learn from Mr. Vale and Ir. and Mrs. Ririe that in Niuchau, Tan-lin, nd Kia-ting satisfactory settlements have een arrived at so far as the C.I.M, is con-erned. In Niu-chan Mr. Vale and the native elper were reinstated with honour, with the ongratulations of the people and to the great oy of the native Christians. He found the hurch intact, not one had denied the faith, nd the inquirers, too, had all stood firm. 'ungchau was still unoccupied, but Mr. 'ang hoped to return there by-and-by.

As to Chen-tu, Mr. Vale was intending to eturn there, but received a letter from the onsul asking him to wait a little. He writes, n July 16: "I am in communication with he Church through Mr. Li. I am glad to ay that the members are well, and are able o meet together for worship in the house of ne of their number. So far as I can hear o attempt has been made to injure them or heir houses."

All was quiet and peaceful in Tan-lin, and Ir. Vale proposed to make his headquarters here after the summer, unless able to return o Chen-tu itself.

As to future prospects, Mr. Vale writes: I believe we are going to have great blessing. do not look upon this matter as a disaster, ut rather as a clearing up. . . . I trust e shall soon see the work in Si-ch'uen settled gain on a firmer basis than ever." And he gns his letter "Yours in Christ's joyful ervice."

A kind letter from Mr. Horsburgh, of the .M.S., dated July 9, says: "We are very hankful to our God that He is stilling the umults of the people in this direction now. Ie has wonderfully kept us. . . . Our ome here is still guarded, but I do trust soon ow there will be quiet fully restored, and a ider door than ever open. . . . We are ooking to God to show us greater things in earts turning to Him."

There is, therefore, much cause for thank-ulness; but also very great need for earnest rayer. China is honeycombed by secret ocieties, and had they disaffected leaders on hom they could depend, wide-spread rebellion ight soon take place; but they lack such eaders, and united action is improbable. It s an unspeakable comfort to know that no rouble, local or general, can arise without the permission of our Father in heaven, who makes the wrath of man to praise Him, and who will restrain the remainder of wrath. We fear no evil, for He is with us alway, and all things are working together for good. Still we need to be instant and earnest in prayer, and should pray very earnestly for the powers that be, that in these troublous times they may be guided to act, and that their authority may be maintained. Also for the poor rioters; they know not what they do.—Gratefully yours in Christ, J. Hudson Taylor.

Chefoo, August 14.

Our National Perplexity.

By Rev. J. E. LINNELL, Pavenham.

The harvest is passing, the summer is ending, and already the faces of the poor are gathering blackness as they think of the still distant winter. In many a rural parish strong men have been without regular employment through a great part of the year. There will be but few root crops to require their labour in the late autumn months; and God help them, ah, and help their wives and children, too, when January, February, and March shall bring their frosts and snows.

Some will be moving to the towns, to swell the ranks of the unemployed there; some will eke out sustenance on the scant produce of their allotments; but some—unless private charity shall come forward to supply their needs—must inevitably starve.

Town prospects are no brighter than those of the country. I heard a lady of rank remark, the other day, "What a look of despair there was in that man's face!" It was a poor artisan who had attracted her attention. Had she sought it, the same hopeless expression would have been found on the features of thousands of tradesfolk too.

"But what is to be done?" is the cry of those who fain would find a remedy for the present sad state of things.

It is certain that our legislators can do but little. The Master said it should be so; and, with the distress of nations, we have "perplexity." I say nothing about individuals; but human nature is so ingrained with selfishness that, while each class of the community is willing to adopt remedial measures at the expense of other classes, it resents every appeal for self-sacrifice that is addressed to itself.

It is the same with the poor as with the rich. I heard the problem of the day discussed by a knot of villagers, a week or two ago; and one of them remarked to another, "Your husband is in work, or you would argue differently. If you would acknowledge the truth, you want everything as cheap as you can get it, while you can get it, not caring who sinks or who swims, so long as you can keep afloat. Am I not right?" There was a moment's hesitation, a meaning smile, and then the confession that the right nail had been hit on the head. What is

THE SECRET OF THE PRESENT DISTRESS?

Answers to such a question are by no means wanting; but party feeling or class interest appears to supply them all. Some fall foul of free trade; others murmur at the unequal distribution of wealth; some point to trades unionism; others again blame the unsettling legislation of the past. The poor peasant thinks that too much machinery is used; and his employer, maybe, mourns the present-day price of labour. But does the student of God's Word look to things like these? Nay; he sees, and he must see, that the chastening hand of God lies heavy upon the land. There may be "perplexity" with those who ignore Jehovah, as "The God of nations"; but to every Spirit-taught soul, the way back to the Divine favour, and consequently to national prosperity, for Britain, is the same as that which the Word marks out for the individual believer—the way of repentance, humiliation, and prayer.

In the old oaken chest that stands in the vestry of Pavenham church, are a number of parish books that date back from the beginning of the last century: and, among their many quaint entries, is frequent reference to "The Fast Day." In spite of what has been told and written about their brutalising sports, their gross spiritual ignorance, and unblushing wickedness, in general, our fathers, at a time of national trouble, believed in humbling themselves as a people, before God.

When was the last general "Fast Day" in Britain?

Our agriculture is depressed to the last degree; our home industries are all languishing; our foreign trade is fast leaving us; and, however slow we are to admit the truth, we are certainly losing our prestige among the other nations of the earth. Only God can help us, but his aid is never nationally sought. To us He has given the blessings and privileges that once belonged to poor Israel; but as by Israel, so by us, He has been provoked to recall them all. Yet, though we plainly see that the strain we impose on his patience is beginning to weaken it, and tends to wholly destroy it; there is no national confession of sin; no national appeal for pardon.

We were nearly consumed with drought in 1893, but there was no special prayer for rain. This year, in many parts of the country, the crops are an utter failure. The grain is not worth gathering; many of the root crops have been eaten off by fly; and our farmers are a body of ruined men. But, as far as I know, not even a short collect has been issued for use in our churches.

Why this reluctance to turn to God? Are the sneers of the scoffer dreaded? Do church leaders imagine that God has forgotten to be gracious? Or is this apathy judicial?

To me it has been a striking sign of the times to find two of my clerical acquaintance seeking colonial appointments, because of evils that are threatening our nation. Each is what one might term "an ex-man of the world"; each has learnt the capabilities of human nature, in an experience that preceded conversion; and each has a wife and daughters.

It is possible that such a movement may already be too late. We may, even now, be at "the beginning of sorrows." That day which was to come, may be upon us, even as I write, and the whole earth may awaken to find itself in that ever-tightening snare against which it has been so often warned in God's Word. "The King's business requireth haste," and what is to be done must be done quickly. In case others should refuse to act could not "The Evangelical Alliance" arrange simultaneous meetings for prayer and humiliation, on some given day, after the fashion of their "New Year's programme"? Or, if nothing should be done from this quarter, could not some of the Mildmay, or Keswick, leaders make some such appointment?

There is not a Sabbath passes but members of the Church of England use these words, "O God, we have heard with our ears, and our fathers have declared unto us the noble works Thou didst in their days, and in the old time before them." Let us reverently and humbly prove Him, and see if God cannot do as much for the children as He used to do for the fathers.

A Work for All.

By Rev. J. R. MILLER, D.D.

With the opening of another autumn there should be in every church the reconsecration of the entire membership to active service. It is a "living sacrifice" which God asks. "Simply to thy cross I cling," is very precious Gospel, but it is only half the Gospel. If we are saved ourselves, we have something to do in saving others. There is a common print which shows one clinging with one hand to a cross, rising out of the waves, while the other hand is reached down, trying to rescue another drowning one. The picture is a completer Gospel than the hymn-line. One reason Jesus leaves his disciples in this world after they are saved is, that they may seek the salvation of others.

Now, this is just as true of all Christ's disciples as of any. It is a false idea that only some Christians are to try to save others. The church will never reach its full possibility of power and usefulness until every one who takes the bread and wine of its communion goes out to carry to other perishing souls the bread of life and the wine of grace. There is converting power enough lying idle and covered up in the lives of the membership of Christian churches, if only it were all called into action and anointed for service, to bring the whole world in a little while to the feet of Christ.

Part of this great reserve of unused power is in each individual life. We have different faculties, powers, gifts, capacities, and therefore different duties and responsibilities. There is the orator, whose eloquence thrills men's souls and sways their wills. There is the poet, whose song lives and goes abroad as an angel of blessing, singing age after age. There is the artist whose pictures live to be admired throughout centuries. Perhaps these gifts are beyond most of us; but there are lowlier spheres. "There is the little wood-thrush, that sits on the limb of a tree and sings his cheery note, hour after hour; and there are men and women who have only a slender work to do, but whose work is just as important to the perfection of the whole as the largest mission that ever gifted genius achieved."

Pulpits are not the only places of service that need to be filled. Officers alone do not make an army; without the men in the ranks few battles could be fought, few victories won. The humblest soldier's part is just as important in its place as that of the commander. It is so in the church. The one talent may not shine as brightly before men as the five, yet they are just as essential to the perfection of the ministry of the church. Look at some of the places, besides its pulpit, that the filled. It wants teachers who will enter with heart and soul into Sabbath-school work, shepherding with gentle care the lambs of the flock. It wants visitors who will go after absent people and absent scholars, invite strangers to the services, and carry the Gospel to those who will not come within the sanctuary. It wants angels of mercy to go to homes of sickness, sorrow, and distress, and bear there the gracious comforts of Christ's Gospel. It wants a whole congregation, large or small, that will exhibit the love of Christ in the sanctuary, in the kindly courtesy that is such a real means of grace. It wants a company of young people willing to give at least one evening every week to the Lord's work. It wants scores of Andrews and Phillips, who, having found Christ themselves, hasten to bring their brothers or neighbours to Him. It wants an entire congregation of loving, sympathising people, who will be patient with the erring, who will lift up the fallen, who will seek to reclaim the wandering, whose daily lives shall be illuminated pages of bright Gospel, whose whole influence shall be purifying, elevating, enlightening. It wants members who shall be in their place at all services, ready to take hearty part in all the worship, and also in all the work that the church seeks to do.

AVERAGE CHURCH WANTS

Besides all these formal classes of service, there is an individual ministry, a daily and hourly wayside ministry, which cannot be classified, but which every Christian should render, which he cannot but render unless he be untrue to the very spirit of his high calling. "Woman's work is never done," says the rhyme: the same is true of the Christian's work. Save when he sleeps, he is always on duty as Christ's servant, with some mission which he is bound to render or be faithless. Wherever he goes, he goes as a Christian and represents his Master. To every one he meets, even most casually, he has an errand, some message from God, some lesson of example, some helpful influence. Even those who are too old and infirm or too sick to go beyond their own chambers, or leave their beds, have still their mission to those who stand about them. They can exhibit patience in suffering. They can show joyous submission to God's will when that will brings pain. They can illustrate in suffering the graces of the Spirit.

Then the sick and the aged—the "shut-ins"—can perform a ministry of intercession for those without, the power of which none can estimate. In their quiet seclusion, near to God, they can plead continually for the active workers in the field, for the careless, for the backsliding, for the tempted, for the unsaved. No church can ever know the value of the little oratories in its homes, where holy hands are ever held up in intercession. Pastors receive heavenly anointing through these chambers of prayer. Revivals come, called down by the same energy of supplication. One by one lost ones turn their faces homeward because hands of prayer are there held up in tireless beseeching.

Thus, there is not one member in any Christian church who may not do something to advance Christ's work and bless others. And what one can do one ought to do. The failure to do what we can do and what is allotted to us, is not only disloyalty to Christ and malfeasance in the highest of callings; it is also ruinous to one's own soul. The penalty for not using one's gifts is the loss of the gifts. The fruitless branches are cut off and cast away. Unused power shrivels into death.

Let there be all over the land an early arousing in the churches which shall call every member into the field to do something—his own part—in the work of the Lord. We are living in stirring times, and God expects every Christian to do his duty.—N.Y. Evangelist.

THE SILVER STAR SOCIETY.—At the fourth annual meeting, a few days ago, Lord Compton presiding, the secretary, Mr. W. Robbins, reported that meetings to the number of 150 had been held by the evangelistic branch, and visitation of the sick had been kept up; and this part of the work had been a source of special blessing to both the sick and to those who belonged to them. During the year 310 open-air Gospel and temperance meetings had been held, and the attendance had been good. Assistance had been rendered to missions, etc., at a number of places in London and the suburbs. It was desired to extend the limelight lectures, but for this purpose some £20 was required. The balance-sheet showed an income of £87 10s., with a balance in hand of 7s. 9d. Mr. Robbins's address is: Manor-park, E.

THE FIRE ON THE "IONA."

Many hearts have been stirred to their utmost depths by reading of the terrible fire on board the Iona. As the vessel was ploughing her way through the waters on Sunday night, Sept. 15, on her way from Leith to London, the alarm of fire rang out, and seven lives were lost because the one outlet of the ladies' cabin was in flames. This vessel has been closely associated with the work at Miss Child's Welcome Home, Ratcliff Highway, for many years. Memories of happy work in connection with it arose to mind as the terrible scenes of sorrow and death were read last week. We could not but remember "the story of John McQueen,"* the fireman, who was converted one night in the ship's tunnel on board the Iona. He had been aroused to a sense of his sinfulness in one of the Fo'c's'le meetings, held at the "Welcome Home," Ratcliff Highway. After a brief but very faithful Christian life on board ship, he was suddenly struck down by heart disease while at his work. He often said, when speaking of his conversion, "It was in the ship's tunnel I found Christ." After his sudden decease, a party from the Welcome Home went to see this spot so full of interest in connection with him. It was indeed a strange place in which to meet with the Lord Jesus for the first time. We descended deep down into a narrow passage, and as the little book describes it "among the machinery where the ship's propeller works, in imagination we seemed to see our departed friend, kneeling in the dead of night, pleading with his God for pardon and peace. Neither the clash and rattle of the machinery, nor the roar of the ocean waves as the vessel ploughed her way through the waters, prevented our God from hearing the cry of that distressed soul; for the glorious light came, the burden of guilt was lost, and by faith he saw his sins forgiven."

We rejoice also to recall the many Gospel services which have been held at various times on this vessel, when she was lying at Hermitage Wharf, by Miss Child and her helpers. For many years an earnest Christian man was ship's carpenter on the Iona, and he regularly attended the Fo'c's'le meetings at the "Welcome Home" whenever the vessel was in London. He ever sought to further the interests of the Redeemer's kingdom by getting permission for services to be held on Sundays. By setting a consistent Christian example on board the ship, he was a true friend to John McQueen, and they helped each other in the Christian life. A remarkable incident is given in "Our Sailors' Series," called "How the Lord helped me with the Windlass."†

We feel, as we read of the constant dangers and perils of those who go down to the sea in ships, and the many deaths that storm and fire and shipwreck occasion, how deep the need of constant labour for the welfare of our seamen. A fresh season of effort is beginning as winter draws nigh. Miss Child hopes to be again able to minister to the destitute and hungry ones by giving timely help according to the need, and by providing free suppers, and gathering the men to hear the Gospel of God's grace.

The Christian Lifeboat Crew has been doing earnest and faithful work in many places, through the past year, and will, by God's help, continue its labour with even greater zeal in the opening season. Many are feeling "the time is short, and the day of the Lord draweth near." Miss Child is looking forward to having her usual "Christmas Boat," and also to hold the many meetings usually associated with this effort, seeking to promote spiritual blessing and temporal comfort for those who so need a home while away from home. Gifts of woollen helmets, cuffs, scarves, hussifs, etc., for the boat will be gratefully received, also contributions towards the relief among the destitute so sorely needed as winter draws nigh.

All the needs of the Home and the constant claims and meetings there require earnest prayer, and we ask dear Christian friends to plead for God's increased and continued blessing on our sister's work among our sailors. C. T.

DORKING CONVENTION has, at the request of several of the chief speakers, been postponed to October 14-18 (instead of 7-11), so that none may be deprived the privilege of attending the special meetings arranged by Rev. A. Murray on the previous week in the Great Assembly Hall.

* "Saved in the Ship's Tunnel." (Morgan & Scott. 6d. per doz.)

† "Our Sailors' Series." (Morgan & Scott. 6d. per packet.)

Thrice Crowned.

(2 Sam. i.-iv.)

By REV. F. B. MEYER.

Two whole days had passed since that triumphant narch back from the slaughter of Amalek to the charred and blackened ruins of Ziklag, and it appeared as though David were awaiting some sign o determine his future course.

On the third day a young man rushed breathless nto the camp, his clothes rent, and earth upon his head. He made straight for David, and fell to the ground at his feet. In a moment more his tidings were told, each word stabbing David to the quick. Israel had fled before the foe; large numbers were allen on the battlefield; Saul and Jonathan were dead also. That moment David knew that the thundercloud which had been so long lowering over his head had broken, and that the expectations of years were on the point of being realised; but he had no thought for himself or for the marvellous change in his fortunes. His generous soul, oblivious o itself, poured out a flood of the noblest tears man ever shed, for Saul and for Jonathan his son, and for the people of the Lord, and for the house of Israel, because they were fallen by the sword.

I.—DAVID'S TREATMENT OF SAUL'S MEMORY.

There could be no doubt that Saul was dead. David seems to have been as one stunned till the evening, and then aroused himself to show respect o his memory.

He gave short shrift to the Amalekite. The bearer of the sad news had been held under arrest, because, on his own showing, he had slain the Lord's anointed; and, as the evening fell, the wretched man was again brought into the chieftain's presence. David seems to have had some doubt s to his tale, and it afterwards appeared that the tory was false; still it was necessary that the egicide should pay the extreme penalty for the deed, to which he had confessed.

With that reverence for the Lord's anointing which had smitten him to the heart, when he cut off the piece of his robe, David asked, an expression of horror in his tone, "How wast thou not afraid o put forth thine hand to destroy the Lord's anointed?" Then calling one of the young men, he bade him go near, and fall upon him. And he smote him that he died.

He next poured out his grief in The Song of the Bow, which at first was taught to and sung by the children of Judah, and has since passed into the literature of the world, as an unrivalled model of a funeral dirge. The Dead March in Saul is a familiar strain in every national mourning. It was originally called the Song of the Bow (v. 18, R.V.), because of the reference to that weapon in the poem.

The greatness of Israel's loss is brought out in the fancied exultation with which the daughters of Philistia would welcome their returning warriors; in the lasting curse invoked on the mountains where the shield of the mighty was polluted with gore and dust; and in the exploits which the heroes wrought with bow and sword before they fell. And then the Psalmist bursts into pathetic reminiscences of the ancient friendship which had bound him to the departed. He forgets all he had suffered at the hands of Saul, he thinks only of the ideal of his early manhood. His chivalrous love refuses to consider anything but what had been brave and fair and noble in his liege-lord, before self-will had dragged down his soul into the mirky abyss, in which for the last few years it had been entombed as in a living grave. "Lovely and pleasant," such is the epitaph he inscribes on the memorial cenotaph.

But for Jonathan, there must be a special stanza. Might had been his, as Saul's. Had he not, single-handed, attacked an army, and wrought a great deliverance? But with all his strength, he had been sweet. A brother-soul; every memory of whom was very pleasant, like a sweet strain of music, or the scent of the spring breeze. Tender, gentle, loving as a woman. A knightly nature; dreaded by foe, dearly loved by friend; terrible as a whirlwind in battle, but capable of exerting all the witchery of a woman's love, and more.

> "Thy love to me was wonderful,
> Passing the love of woman."

Moreover, he sent a message of thanks and congratulation to the men of Jabesh-Gilead. The indignity with which the Philistines had treated the royal bodies had been amply expiated by the devotion of the men of Jabesh-Gilead. They had not forgotten that Saul's first act as king had been to deliver them from a horrible fate, and had organised an expedition which had taken the bodies of Saul and his three sons from the walls of Bethshan, to which, after being beheaded, they were affixed, and had carried them through the night to their own city, where they had burned them to save them from further dishonour—the ashes being reverently buried under the tamarisk tree in Gilead.

As soon as David heard of this act he sent messengers to the men of Jabesh-Gilead, thanking them for their chivalrous devotion to the memory of the fallen king, and promising to requite the kindness as one done to the entire nation, and to himself.

In all this David evinced great magnanimity. There was no thought of himself or his own interests. He had learnt the secret of escaping from himself in his devotion and care for another. It is the secret of all self-oblivion. Live in another's life, especially in the interests of your Master, Christ, and you will be freed from the constant obtrusion and tyranny of self.

II.—DAVID'S ATTITUDE WITH RESPECT TO THE KINGDOM.

There is something very beautiful in his movements at this juncture, evidencing how completely his soul had come back to its equipoise in God. He had resumed his old attitude of waiting only upon God, and directing all his expectation to Him. It was for God to give him the kingdom, and therefore he refused to take one step towards the throne apart from the direct Divine impulse.

This was the more remarkable, when so many reasons might have been alleged for immediate action. The kingdom was overrun by Philistines, indeed it is probable that for the next five years there was no settled government among the northern tribes. It must have been difficult for his patriot heart to restrain itself from gathering the scattered forces of Israel and flinging himself on the foe. He knew, too, that he was God's designated king, and it would have been only natural for him immediately to step up to the empty throne, assuming the sceptre as his right. So mere human judgment reasons. But David was better advised. Refusing to judge according to the judgment of his eyes, he inquired of the Lord, saying, Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah? And when the Divine oracle directed him to proceed to Hebron, he does not appear to have gone there in any sense as king or leader, but settled quietly with his followers among the towns and villages in its vicinity, waiting till the men of Judah came, and by a consentaneous movement owned him king. Then for a second time he was anointed.

Anointed first by Samuel in the secrecy of his father's house, he was now anointed king over his own people; just as the Lord Jesus, of whom he was the great exemplar and type, was anointed first by the banks of the Jordan, and again as the representative of his people, when He ascended for them into the presence of the Father, and was set as king on the holy hill of Zion.

We cannot turn from this second anointing without emphasising the obvious lesson that at each great crisis of our life, and especially when standing on the threshold of some new and enlarged sphere of service, we should seek and receive a fresh anointing to fit us to fulfil its fresh demands. There should be successive and repeated anointings in our life-history as our opportunities widen out in ever-increasing circles. It is a mistake to be always counting back to an anointing which we have received; we must be anointed with fresh oil. When leaving the school for the college, and again when stepping forth from the college to the first cure of souls; when standing at the altar to become a wife, and again when bending over the cradle of the first babe; when summoned to public office in Church or State—each new step should be characterised by a definite waiting on God, that there may be a fresh enduement of power, a recharging of the spirit with his might.

Such anointing can only be ours when we are resting quietly in the will of God. It was just because David was able to quiet and still himself, that he was capable of receiving such rich gifts. We get not God's best whilst we are perturbed and passionate, overcome by the promptings and energies of our self-life, swept to and fro by feverish haste. We must be still, waiting the slow movement of the hands of God's dial. Then will faith arise in full assurance to claim and receive the Divine anointing.

It is thus too that we come to the throne. The power to reign over others is God's gift to the spirit that has learnt to subject itself to Him. It was because David had this marvellous power of obedience and self-restraint, that he was qualified to rule; and it is in proportion as we learn this lesson of submission to the will and way of God that we become his crowned kings. When a man has learnt to submit his entire being to God's authority, then he can say Go, or Come; he begins to exercise the power to bind and loose; it is given him to sit down with Christ on his throne, as He also is sat down with the Father on his throne.

III.—THE CHARACTERISTICS OF DAVID'S REIGN IN HEBRON.

For seven years and six months David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah, with that same spirit of waiting expectancy which was the habit and temper of his soul, and so rarely broken in upon. In this he reminds us of our Lord, who sits at his Father's side, till his foes are made the footstool of his feet. Similarly, David sat on the throne of Judah, in the city of Hebron—which means fellowship—waiting until God had levelled all difficulties, removed all obstacles, and smoothed the pathway to the supreme dignity which He had promised.

In national affairs he maintained an almost passive policy; what fighting was necessary was left to Joab. The overtures for the transference of the kingdom of Israel were finally made by Abner himself, and the negotiations with Israel and Benjamin were also carried out by him in entire independence of David; it was he who had communications with the elders of Israel, and spake in the ears of Benjamin, and went finally to speak in the ears of David in Hebron all that seemed good to Israel and to the whole house of Benjamin. It was Abner who proposed to David to go and gather all Israel unto him, addressing him as lord and king, and bidding him prepare to rule over all that his soul desired (iii. 17-21).

Throughout these transactions, David quietly receives what is offered: and only asserts himself with intensity and passion on two occasions, when it was necessary to clear himself of complicity in dastardly crimes, and to show his detestation and abhorrence of those who had perpetrated them.

It was a noble spectacle when the king followed the bier of Abner, and wept at his grave. He forgot that this man had been his persistent foe, and remembered him only as a prince and a great man; and he wove a chaplet of elegiacs to lay on his grave, as he had done for Saul's.

Then followed the dastardly assassination of the puppet king, Ish-bosheth. His had been a feeble reign throughout. Located at Mahanaim, on the eastern side of Jordan, he had never exercised more than a nominal sovereignty; all his power was due to Abner, and when he was taken away the entire house of cards crumbled to pieces, and the hapless monarch fell under the daggers of traitors. As soon as they bore the tidings to David, bringing his head as ghastly evidence, David turned to the Lord, who had redeemed him from all adversity; and solemnly swore that he would require at their hands the blood of the murdered man.

Then came all the tribes of Israel to that "long stone town on the western slope of the bare terraced hill," and offered him the crown of the entire kingdom. They remembered his kinship with them as their bone and flesh; recalled his former services, when, even in Saul's days, he led out and brought in their armies; and reminded him of the Divine promise that he should be shepherd and prince. Then David made a covenant with them, and became their constitutional king and was solemnly anointed, for the third time, king over the entire people; as the Son of man shall be one day acknowledged King over the world of men, and shall reign without a rival.

It is to this period that we must attribute Psalm xviii., which undoubtedly touches the high-water mark of rapturous thankfulness and adoration. Every precious name for God is laid under contribution; the figure of his coming to rescue his servant in a thunderstorm is unparalleled in sublimity. We can hear the rattle of the hailstones, and see the lightning flash, and the gleam of the coals of fire, and there is throughout an appreciation of the tenderness and love of God's dealings with his children, which might have been written by the Apostle whom Jesus loved:—

> Thou hast given me the shield of thy salvation,
> Thy right hand hath holden me up,
> And thy gentleness hath made me great.

Missionary Rome:

HER TACTICS IN THE MISSION FIELD.—I.

It is said that in Germany the Roman Catholic Church has a missionary map, in which the whole world is mapped out and divided into Roman Catholic provinces. Where she is first in the field, she will do what she can to hold it in her exclusive possession, and where others are first she has no scruple in following them, and, if possible, thrusting them aside, her aim being universal dominion. Many things tend to disappoint her ambition, and there can be no doubt that she will ultimately fail. For example, when she has the power and the opportunity, she always meddles with the politics of a nation, and this is sure to be resented, to her religious detriment. Also, when she follows other Churches, she is compelled to adopt their methods, even to the circulating of the Scriptures, and this, again, imperils her hold on the blind obedience of her converts.

FRENCH COLONIES.

The extension of French colonies has been an excellent opportunity, of which the Roman Catholic Church has availed itself to the full. Where she cannot prevail on the home Government to adopt and further her policy, she is too often able to get the aid of officials on the spot. Petty persecution is indulged in which a responsible Government, liable to be promptly questioned, would be careful to avoid. One of the earliest mission stations, Tahiti, was seized by craft and strength some fifty years ago, and has from that time been under French rule. The initiation and execution of the movement were distinctly owing to the priests, one of whom came to the island disguised as a carpenter. The story is one of fraud, intrigue, and violence, yet the Roman Catholic Church has not been able to work her will unchecked. The converts, who were well grounded in the knowledge of the Scriptures, have, in the main, stood firm to the Gospel, and have been unmoved by the power of their conquerors, and unaffected by the showy services and the magnificent cathedral built to allure them. The sheet-anchor here, as everywhere, has been knowledge of the Bible. Now, the danger lies in the breaking up of the schools, which have been under the care of the pastor, and the gathering of the children into district French schools.

At Lifu, which is in possession of the French, the Government hoped the people would all come round with a swing, but such has not proved to be the case; and hence they have had to send a Protestant minister, just as in Tahiti, the Paris Society for Evangelical Missions has taken the place of the L.M.S. Yet this does not prevent the priests from using enormous power. In this island it is illegal for native converts to send any aid to the missionary society by which it was originally saved from the most degraded cannibalism. The policy is to go as far as possible in hindering what cannot be stopped.

In the Hervey Islands (British), the Roman Catholic Church did nothing for seventy-three years after the evangelisation of the people, and when she came her method was to give free education, including music, and French, and English. Her success has not been among the Raratongans whom Williams won for Christ, and who have formed such brave Gospel pioneers, but among half-castes and settlers from other islands. She was never great at education when she held the key of knowledge, but here, where she is not wanted, she is full of educational zeal.

In the Samoan Islands the Roman Catholic Church has some 5000 adherents out of a population of 36,000; while the L.M.S. and the Wesleyans have the rest of the people mainly under their influence; the L.M.S. having 5743 church members. The Romanists have a girls' school, and wherever a priest settles there is a school of some sort which he looks after. In the island of Tutuila, with 4000 souls, they have 500 followers; and here they have two French priests, several sisters of mercy, and well-equipped headquarters. It is a curious fact that at one of the Samoan stations, the R.C. priest accepted an invitation from the L.M.S. missionary to attend along with his school a Bible lecture illustrated by magic-lantern slides. Permission to attend such lectures generally was given to his people.

In Madagascar the Romanists began missionary work 150 years ago, but discontinued it after a few years; in 1862, when the Island was opened to missionary work, they entered along with the Protestants, having a fair field and no favour, and now they have from thirty to forty thousand persons under their care, as compared with 250,000 whom the Protestants have gathered. The possession of the Scriptures by the natives has been the conquering force of Protestantism, neither heathenism nor Romanism being strong enough to withstand an intelligent faith.

In some places—e.g., New Guinea—where the Romanists quickly followed the Protestants, they do not meddle with the work which Protestants are doing, but content themselves with getting a footing, and some hold upon the people.

THE USE OF THE SCRIPTURES.

The use of the Scriptures in the South Seas is so marked a feature of Roman Catholic work as to deserve special notice. The policy of Rome seems to be to fight the Bible with the Bible. This was first begun when England threw off Papal supremacy, and it was felt that if ever so enlightened and vigorous a nation as the English were to be brought again into the fold it must be done by giving them the Scriptures. Hence Cardinal Allen, the English priest living at Douay, prepared the Douay translation, which, with short notes, abound in the twists and turns of meaning which exalt that Church. In Tahiti you might at one time have seen a copy of the Bible issued by the British and Foreign Bible Society lying on the desks of the Roman Catholic churches. They were bought from a missionary of the London Missionary Society; but as soon as a translation of the Vulgate was obtained, all other Bibles in the possession of Roman Catholics were collected, piled in a heap, and burnt. In Madagascar the Roman Catholics have translated the Bible book by book for their converts. Father Vaughan, brother of Cardinal Vaughan, has lately been round the world visiting mission stations, and instructing that in every case Roman Catholic missionaries should make use of the Scriptures. This method should confirm Protestants in their old method of grounding their converts well in the knowledge of the Word of God. Once the Bible has been faithfully translated and distributed, the truth has got an eternal hold, which no Church authority and no corrupt translations can shake.

SCHOOLS.

Where Evangelical Christianity has prevailed, and there are large numbers of young persons ready to be educated and eager to enter upon some useful work, the educational policy of Rome is admirably adapted to proselytising. For the sake of seeing their children well educated many Christians, beside those who have been converted from heathenism, will send them to a Roman Catholic school. It is in the use of secular knowledge for a denominational end that the Romanists excel, and certainly they will be hard to beat in this field, because our missionary societies only touch secular teaching incidentally.

In the neighbourhood of Lake Tanganyika a kind of military method is in force. Every settlement is in the charge of a military man, a Belgian, who gathers a force round him, and stockades the village. Children are bought to be trained in the faith.

As in the South Sea Islands, schools under the care of the native pastors are closed, and the children are forced into district schools, often at an inconvenient distance, on the pretence that education must be given in French, so it is on the West Coast of Africa in the French sphere of influence.

A curious way of getting rid of a missionary is to say that he is obnoxious to the police regulations. This can be done under a treaty according religious liberty. The troubler is got rid of under a bye-law, and without infringing a treaty right. Truly the ways of Rome are wonderful.

J. P. G.

IN AID OF MISSIONS.—A few months ago a number of workers for home and foreign missions formed a Missionary Union, at Blackburn, with the following objects:—(1) To study mission work; (2) To pray for missions, for which the Union has a cycle of prayer; and (3) To contribute to the help of missions, each member to give at least one penny per week. The Union embraces workers for several different societies. To carry out the first object, the committee have decided to form a library of missionary literature. Particulars may be learned from Mr. E. Slater, 9, Fernhurst-street, Blackburn.

MEDICAL MISSION WORK IN SHANTUNG.

I have recently returned from a hundred-mile trip to the country south-west of Ichoufu, and observed new evidences of the beneficial results of the medical work as carried on by the Ichoufu station. Years ago, before Ichoufu was opened as a mission station, it formed the southern terminus of the missionary efforts of Drs. Nevius and Corbett, of Chefoo. The region to the south of Ichoufu was practically an unknown one to the mission when the station was opened five years ago. During the last few years this country has been worked up, all the large towns and villages visited, and hundreds of religious books and tracts sold and distributed at the markets. It is a thickly populated district, extending to the Yellow Sea on the east, to the Kiangsu Province and Grand Canal on the south, and the mountainous region of Central Shantung on the west. It is a very old country, full of historic interest.

The people as a class do not possess an enviable reputation. They are quarrelsome and turbulent, and it sometimes requires drastic measures on the part of the officials to keep them down. During some seasons of the year travelling is risky in this region, as the people make a practice of highway robbery. Nearly all the criminal cases the district official has to deal with come from this part of the country. Thanks to energetic measures this element is becoming subdued. I have found the people friendly and straightforward, and as a rule eager to listen to the preaching of the Gospel, and anxious to buy religious books and tracts. A large proportion of the patients at our dispensary come from this region, and in many places I was welcomed as soon as the people learned that I came from Ichoufu. A very wealthy gentleman, whose wife had received great benefit from the treatment of our lady physician, celebrated the recovery by nine days' theatricals.

It is one of the noteworthy features of our evangelistic work in this region that we have made the acquaintance, and secured the friendship, of some wealthy and respectable families, who, though they know the "doctrine," do not have the courage to make a profession of their faith. While thus still outside the kingdom of God, they yet help much to its becoming known among the people. They rebuke all reviling, and tell the people that our motives are pure, and the "doctrine" we preach good and acceptable. This field is one of great promise, and we are praying and labouring that ere long a rich harvest shall be reaped.

Our medical work, which is such an aid to our evangelistic efforts, has steadily increased since its opening a few years ago, from an attendance of 2500 to 10,000 last year, and this year, in spite of the war, these figures show but little falling off. Our physicians, Dr. O. F. Johnson and Dr. Anna Larson, are much hampered, however, by lack of room and buildings. The dispensaries are altogether too small for their purpose, and hundreds of patients are turned away from lack of hospital buildings. Our mission board has granted an appropriation to meet this crying need, but the money has not all been secured yet. We therefore bring the matter before the earnest consideration of God's people at large. The Gospel is daily preached to the crowds that come to the dispensary, but far better work could be done by a hospital.

W. O. Etterick,
(American Presbyterian Mission).

Ichoufu, Shantung.

THE NORTH DEVON AND CORNISH COAST branches of the Seamen's Christian Friend Society continue to be the means of much blessing to seamen and fishermen. Rev. G. J. Hill and Mrs. Hill, of London, have paid their annual visit to these stations to take part at the anniversary meetings, and conduct special missions. Mr. Wood, who has succeeded Mr. Cairns at the Sailors' Rest, Appledore, has become very popular with the seamen and fisherfolk, and his meetings are crowded. The debt on the Sailors' Home at Fowey has been cleared off through the exertions of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Townend. During the year this "home and rest" has been visited by thousands of seamen. The services conducted by the sailors' missionary, Mr. Henry James, at the rest at Fowey, and also at Par, Charlestown, Polperro, and other places in the Cornish coast, have resulted in the conversion of many.

The Neglected Continent.

SKETCHES OF MISSIONARY TRAVEL.

BY HARRIET L. MILNE.

IT is now some days since we returned from the journey I mentioned in my last letter, and of which I shall endeavour to give you some particulars. The journey from Callao to Oroya, over that world-famed Peruvian railway, occupied all day of Friday, July 18. This magnificent and wonderful piece of engineering is far beyond any description of mine. It follows mainly the course of the Rimac river up to the watershed. It takes one first through wide sugar and cotton fields; is said to rise nearly 5000 feet in the first forty-six miles; over forty-seven bridges, one of them across a chasm 580 feet wide, the central pier being 252 feet high; through fifty-seven tunnels, the last and the longest of them being at an elevation of 15,665 feet, the highest railway tunnel in the world. It reaches the elevations by long single or double zig-zags, so that we could sometimes look down on four lines we had already crossed. We could seldom see the track above us, except where sometimes it was marked by a tunnel which looked like a rat's hole in the side of the mountain.

We had not long left Lima when our attention was attracted to the terraces on the sides of the mountains, built, and cultivated, and watered by the subjects of the ancient Incas by great labour and ingenuity, mostly lying waste, but some of them still cultivated by the Indians. We also saw the the walls and peaked gables, built of clay and stone, still perfect. Everywhere one gets the impression that these valleys and mountain sides were once densely populated. Why the unspeakable cruelties that crushed and destroyed so great a people? What is the Divine purpose toward their down-trodden descendants; and why has the universal panacea—the blessed Gospel of our Lord and Saviour—been so long withheld from them?

RUINS OF MANY ANCIENT VILLAGES,

When at the highest elevation, and during the night we spent at Oroya, we were all considerably affected by the soroche, or mountain sickness. It produces nausea and headache, and on the slightest exertion—a quick step upstairs or across the floor—one gasps for breath. The ascent is rapid, and the consequent sudden change of temperature is also somewhat trying. On both sides of the highest tunnel we were in a heavy fall of snow, and could not see any distance, but even away up there we saw some small cattle, goats, sheep, and llamas nibbling the coarse grass, their backs covered with snow.

Oroya is merely the terminus. Apart from the railway buildings, which include a good hotel, there are only a very few poor houses forming an Indian village. The river is crossed there by a swinging bridge, hence its name. They are building a permanent bridge, the first step towards the extension of the railway. The elevation of Oroya is over 12,000 feet.

TARMA.

Our next point of touch was the town of Tarma. In has some eight or ten thousand inhabitants, and is distant a day's journey on horse or mule back from Oroya. The way leads at first over a wide plain making an ascent of 2000 feet, then down a long very rough rocky gorge. Then it runs along the valley of the Tarma river, passing through several Indian villages. Here we began to meet large troops of small donkeys or llamas laden with aguardiente or coffee from the Perene or the Chauchamayo valley driven by Indians. The llamas are very pretty creatures, carrying their heads erect, and looking so wide awake. The Indians are said to treat them with much kindness. They do not carry a very heavy load. When too heavily laden they lie down, and nothing will induce them to go on until their burden is partly removed.

These valleys are solely occupied by Indians, living either in villages, through many of which we passed, or in separate huts. They cultivate their land or tend their flocks, and are an humble and industrious people. The women are almost invariably spinning. I have seen a woman tending a flock of sheep, with a baby tied on her back, and spinning as she walked along. They spin both cotton and wool. They also knit both stockings and armlets for the men. The latter are worn up over the elbows and frequently have ingenious patterns woven in with different colours. Their houses have no windows; sometimes there is a hole with bars across but generally not even that. They talk their own language—Quichna—but occasionally we met those who saluted us in Spanish, and in the vicinity of towns where they go to trade many of them speak Spanish.

Tarma looks attractive in the distance, being thickly interspersed with trees. There is a long avenue of tall eucalyptus leading to the entrance. This is through an arch with a huge wall on either side, which gives one the impression that it may once have been a walled town. We rode through the long narrow badly-paved street, at the other end of which was the plaza. The plaza or open square is prettily shaded by trees all round, and ornamented by a small fountain and railed-in garden in the centre. Our hotel was here. Early on Sunday morning the plaza was all alive with fair. The country people come in to sell their produce—potatoes, vegetables, corn, fowls. There were also meat stalls, stalls with hats, with shoes, &c. On Sundays the fair lasts all day; other days only during the forenoon.

All the people in the fair, buyers and sellers, were Indians, the descendants of the ancient Inca subjects. They are short of stature, but stout and full-chested. Their religion, such as it is,

HAS VERY LITTLE HOLD ON THEM.

The bell rang for mass, but there was no priest present in the church; no mass nor service of any kind all day; no holy water in the fount. In the evening there were a few candles lit, and a very few worshippers kneeling at the different shrines. The images in the church there are the most hideous I have seen. There is no one in Tarma to tell out God's message of mercy to man; nor in all the beautiful valley, nor in many other such towns and valleys of this wonderful land. Who will come? May God touch some hearts, and send workers of his own choosing to this people so long neglected.

They are much given to feasting and drinking. A good crop or any other happy circumstance is made an excuse for a fiesta, which will sometimes last, with drinking and dancing, for eight or ten days. We saw several such. They will go with a band of brass instruments to the municipality, where they pay so much money for a sort of licence; then to the church, where they pay the priest for mass, and then they are at liberty to carry on their revelry.

Callao, Peru, August 12.

PERSECUTION IN PERU.

WRITING from Lima on August 19, Mr. A. R. Stark, of the Peruvian Mission, says:—

"The following telegram has just been received from our brethren, Peters and Jarrett, Cuzco:—'Tumult has arisen. Prefect urges us to leave. Advise us.' We cannot tell how serious this may be, and are anxiously awaiting further news. Their last letter, dated August 5, informed us that both were seriously ill in bed, Mr. Jarrett with small-pox and Mr. Peters with similar symptoms.

"The British Consul-General of Peru has laid the trouble before the President, who has telegraphed to the Prefect of Cuzco, in the hope of preventing any fresh outbreak. But Cuzco is many miles inland, and practically ruled by the priests who instigated the mob. The lives of our brethren are still in danger, and we cannot tell if they will be able to maintain their ground.

"This is the first attempt to open a permanent mission in the interior of Peru, and we request the prayers and sympathy of all who desire to see the work of the Lord prospering in this needy land. Any friends desirous of further information, or wishing to help forward the Gospel here, may address, A. R. Stark, care of British Consul, Callao, or Dr. Guinness, Harley House, London, E."

PROTESTANT REFORMATION SOCIETY.—The monthly prayer meeting was held on Thursday, in the committee room, 20, Berners-street, W. The chair was taken by Rev. S. L. Dixon, who spoke of the need of an intelligent, prayerful, and earnest Protestantism, and the necessity there was of boldly standing up for the faith once for all delivered to the saints. He added that he was determined, by God's grace, to live and die a Protestant. Prayer having been offered on behalf of the missionaries and their work, Rev. J. Grundy read Psalm xxviii., and delivered an address on "Prayer."

MISS WILLARD'S FAREWELL.

THE confidence and esteem which the gifted president of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union has won during her stay in this country, and the enthusiasm aroused by her addresses, were evidenced in the great gathering at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Friday evening to say "Good-bye" to Miss Frances E. Willard and her companions, who were to leave the next morning for America. The meeting was called in the Lecture Hall, but this was crowded out at an early hour, and an adjournment had to be made to the larger auditorium of the Tabernacle itself.

Pastor THOMAS SPURGEON welcomed Miss Willard in a few hearty sentences, rejoicing in the work the ladies are now doing in the cause of temperance and purity.

Miss WILLARD followed with a graceful and touching speech, in the course of which she referred to the impression made upon her in the prairies of the West by reading a sermon of the late Mr. Spurgeon, and to the visit which she paid to the Tabernacle at a later period, when, at the age of twenty-seven, she came as a tourist to the mother country. Mr. Spurgeon on that occasion invited visitors who wished to join in the Communion to obtain a ticket from him in the vestry. As she had not been immersed, she went to see him in fear and trembling, and told him the state of the case. Taking her heartily by the hands, he said, "Come along, my sister, we are glad to have you." She did not then think that she would ever stand where he had stood. In her address, Miss Willard urged the claims of the temperance cause to the active support of the women of England, and spoke with confidence of the results that would be obtained. It was a matter of regret that in connection with the great international women's temperance meetings held in London last June they had been unable to arrange a meeting in that building, but the present gathering supplied the omission. She hoped that out of that meeting there might grow a local branch of the British Women's Temperance Association.

Mrs. CLARA HOFFMAN, of New York, described the progress of temperance reform and of the anti-tobacco movement in the United States. She urged the women of this country to carry on an agitation on behalf of temperance principles, maintaining that if women overcame their reserve and timidity they would become a mighty power for good. By means of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union, of which Miss Willard was president, British women joined hands with their sisters across the Atlantic Ocean and round the world to lead the Anglo-Saxon race from the degradation of drunkenness. They must not be discouraged by temporary defeats.

Dr. SARAH BROWN, who is connected with the Home for Inebriate Women, established close to Reigate, gave some account of the progress of the work, and said it was intended to receive the babies of poor women sent to the Home, and she appealed for funds to support a cottage for little ones.

Mrs. Eva McLaren and Mrs. Ward Poole also addressed the meeting; as did Madame Antoinette Sterling in a few impassioned words. Madame Sterling also sang twice, one of the songs being "De Massa ob de Sheepfold." Mr. Raper moved a vote of thanks to Miss Willard, with best wishes for a successful voyage and an early return, and this was passed with enthusiasm.

At the commencement of the meeting a number of coloured boys from the Jenkins Orphan Institution, Charleston, South Carolina, under the direction of Mr. D. J. Jenkins, sang songs, and a collection was made for the institution, after an earnest appeal by Mrs. Ormiston Chant.

THE PURE LITERATURE SOCIETY has the distinctive feature that it does not publish either books or periodicals, but it selects, recommends, and circulates periodicals and books, besides cottage pictures, school cards, diagrams, texts, maps, and broad sheets. From these, subscribers of a guinea may have a shilling parcel every month and may purchase books at reduced prices, or may recommend grants of libraries from £5 to £10 at half price. 8823 libraries have been thus granted to associations, schools, village committees, hotels, workhouses, gaols, hospitals, working men's institutions, etc., in all parts of the world, to the value of £72,000, as well as to ships, which have now over 600 libraries afloat. The Society's catalogue contains a list of 4859 books suited for all classes. The office of the Society is 11, Buckingham-street, Adelphi, W.C.

OUR DAILY HOMILY.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 29.

"A peculiar treasure unto me."—Ex. xix. 5.

Our Saviour told of a man who, in ploughing his field, heard his plough-share chink against buried treasure, and hastened to sell all that he had in order to buy it. In speaking thus, He pictured Himself as well as us. He found us before we found Him. The treasure is his people, to purchase whom He gave up all that He had, even to his throne (Matt. xiii. 44).

Where his treasure is, there is a man's heart. If it is in ships on the treacherous sea, he tosses restlessly on his bed, solicitous for its safety. If it is in fabrics, he guards against moth; if in metal, against rust and thieves. And is Christ less careful for his own? Does He not guard with equal care against all that would deteriorate our value in his esteem? Need we fear the thief? Will not the Only-begotten keep us, so that the evil one shall not touch us (Matt. vi. 18, 20)?

God's treasure is his for ever. "They shall be mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that day that I do make, even a peculiar treasure." He will hold his own, as men cling to their treasure, binding it about their loins, in a storm at sea (Mal. iii. 17, R.V.).

Let us mind the conditions: to obey his voice, and keep his covenant, then on eagles' wings He will bring us to Himself.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 30.

"The thick darkness where God was."—Ex. xx. 21.

God is light, and dwells in light, but it is mercifully veiled to the weak eye of man. This is why Christ spake in parables, that seeing they might not see. As Moses veiled his face when he spake to the people, so God veils Himself in the flesh of Jesus, in which He tabernacles; and in the mysteries of his providence, beneath which He conceals a smiling face. Our sun must hide beneath the cloud, else we should fall at his feet as dead. It may be that his light seems to us darkness, because of its excessive brilliance, but nevertheless God dwells in the thick darkness—clouds and darkness are round about Him.

The darkness of mystery.—God has still his hidden secrets, hidden from the wise and prudent. Do not fear them; be content to accept things you cannot understand; wait patiently. Presently He will reveal to you the treasures of darkness, the riches of the glory of the mystery. Mystery is only the veil on God's face.

The darkness of trial.—Do not be afraid to enter the cloud that is settling down on your life. God is in it, The other side is radiant with His glory.

The darkness of desertion.—When you seem loneliest and most forsaken, God is nighest. Jesus once cried "Forsaken," and immediately after, "Father." God is in the dark cloud.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1.

"With an awl."—Ex. xxi. 6.

The Hebrew slave who meant perpetual consecration of service had to let a little blood. It was a disagreeable and not wholly painless process, by which his vows were ratified, and rendered permanent. But not otherwise could he serve for ever. That awl represents the nail that affixed Christ to the cross, and we must expect it in every true act of consecration. For want of it so many seem to go through that supreme act, and shortly after go back from it, bringing discredit and shame upon the teaching they had eagerly welcomed.

The awl spiritually means the humiliation and pain with which we surrender the self-life. We are tempted to consecrate ourselves in our own energy, to resolve on the devout life in the strength of our own resolution, to say, "I will serve Christ utterly." We avoid the awl which deprives us of our own energy, which is applied to us by the hand of another, which makes us helpless and self-emptied, that God may become all in all. In your case the awl may be the daily fret of some uncongenial associate, the pressure of loss and anxiety for the sake of Jesus, the humiliation of your pride by perpetual sense of failure. Welcome all that binds you to his cross, because through death you live.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2.

"He shall make restitution."—Ex. xxii. 5.

This chapter is full of restitution, of which there is too little of it in ordinary Christian life. We try to make amends for injury done to another by an extraordinary amount of civility, but we are reluctant in so many words to confess that we have done wrong and make reparation for the act or speech. We often excuse ourselves by the thought that we were fully justified in speaking or acting as we did, whereas we may behave ourselves wrongly in courses of conduct which are themselves legitimate.

Loosing a beast into another man's field (5).—We may through our carelessness allow another to suffer detriment. The beast ought not to have thus allowed to stray, but, as we let it loose, we should make amends for our carelessness in guarding our brother's interests. We wrong another not only by what we do, but in what we carelessly fail in doing.

Kindling a fire (6).—The tongue is a spark that kindles a great matter. If we drop firebrands and lighted matches in the inflammable material of a circle of gossip, we should make amends to the person whose character we have injured.

Borrowed goods (14).—To return a house, a book, a horse, in the state in which we received it, fair wear and tear excepted, or to make good any injury, should be a commonplace of Christian morality. Trustees are responsible for not making due inquiry into risky investments. Each is his brother's keeper. If we remember at the prayer-hour that he has aught against us, let us seek him, and confess, and restore.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3.

"An enemy unto thine enemies."—Ex. xxiii. 22.

It is a most helpful thought that the angel of the covenant, in whom is God's name, alway precedes us. In our march through the wilderness we perceive his form, which is viewless to others, and realise that his strong hand prepares our path. Let us be very careful not to grieve or disobey Him, lest we lose his mighty championship. Strict obedience to his slightest whisper secures our vindication from the wrongs we suffer at the hands of our foes.

A little lower down the same voice promises to send a hornet before the chosen host (28). He who is an angel to the saint, is a hornet to his foes. A swarm of hornets is the most irresistible foe that a man can face.

All have foes, but let us be sure that they are God's foes also. There are people in our life who would cease to be our enemies if once we took up the proper attitude towards God. We are out with them because we are not right with Him. Let us have no enemies but those who hate us for the truth's sake and God's.

When we are right with God we shall have many new enemies. All who hate Him will hate us. Those who have defamed the master of the household will be hostile to his servants.

But when our cause is one with God's, and his foes ours, our foes are his. He deals with them, He stands between us and their hate. He will give us vindication and deliverance.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4.

"They beheld God, and did eat and drink."—Ex. xxiv. 11.

It is a beautiful combination, which we should do well to emulate.

Some eat and drink, and do not behold God.—They are taken up with the delights of sense. Their one cry, as the children of this world, is, What shall we eat, what shall we drink, and wherewithal shall we be clothed? But the God in whose hand their breath is and whose are all their ways, they do not glorify. Let us beware; it was of Christian professors that the Apostle said, Their God is their belly.

Some behold God, and do not eat and drink.—They look on God with such awful fear that they isolate Him from the common duties of life. They draw a strict line between the sacred and secular, between Sunday and weekday, between God's and their own. This divorce between religion and daily life is fatal to true religion, which was meant to be the bond between the commonest details of life and the service of God.

Some behold God, and eat and drink.—They turn from the commonest avocations to look up into his face. They glorify God in their body as well as in their spirit. Whatever they do, whether they eat or drink, they do all to his glory. Oh for the grace to be able to combine the vision of God with every incident—to live beneath his eye in the free gladness of little children in their Father's presence!

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5.

"According to all that I shew thee...even so shall ye make it."—Ex. xxv. 9.

It was clear that God would only be responsible for the material that was needed for his plan. If Moses, or the people, insisted on putting in more than was in his original plan, they would have to bear the anxiety of securing the stuff. This is our mistake. We incur responsibilities that God does not put on us, we introduce anxiety and care into our hearts, by introducing so many items into our daily life which would not have been there if only we had been content with God's programme.

God's plan in our character.—There it is in Jesus. Let us never rest content with anything less than being conformed to the image of the Son.

God's plan in our Christian service.—Not seeking to resemble some other devoted life, but being just what God would have us, the embodiment of his thought, the expression of his conception.

God's plan for every day.—He has prepared a scheme for the employment of every hour, and will show it to us by the indication of his Spirit, or by the trend of circumstances. Let us abide in Him, doing nothing that He does not teach, doing all He does. So life will become a tabernacle in which the Shechinah will shine.

CONFERENCE IN THURINGIA.

The tenth annual Alliance Conference was recently held in Blankenburg, Thuringia. It was well attended, and pastors and members of the Prussian United State Church and of several petty Lutheran National Churches, Methodists, and Baptists, together with members of various free Churches, united in true brotherly love; the unity was that of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

The vivid accounts given by Mr. Arnold, general secretary of the Evangelical Alliance, of their work all over the world were received with deep interest. Thus in the midst of lovely scenery flooded by glorious sunshine, this happy band of Christians of four different nationalities met day after day in all the freedom of family life for prayerful study of the grand subject chosen: "Our Great High Priest," how He once offered Himself a perfect sacrifice to put away sin, and will yet come a second time apart from sin unto salvation to reign gloriously. This last part of the subject was treated with much clearness and power by Pastor Horst. Between these two comings, which occupied the swiftly-passing hours of the first and last days of the Conference, was the kindred subject of the second day, viz.: "What we have in our Great High Priest, his blessing for his people." Out of this fulness of peace and power, glory and security, grew naturally the subject of the third day, "the sacrifice we should bring to that altar that sanctifies the giver and the gift," ourselves a living sacrifice, our glad, our reasonable, and, blessed be God, our acceptable service.

In the midst of these beautiful, solemn days the Christians present met as one family round the table of their one Lord to show forth his death till He come. There was much united private prayer during the Conference, and the answer could be felt in the evident control of the Holy Spirit over the lips that spoke and the hearts that listened. The greater number of those present were actively engaged in work for the Master, and we rejoice to know that the blessing of such days is felt in after life by many souls in different places.

Fraulein von Weling is doing a great work in Germany by giving God's children such an annual opportunity of meeting. Pastor Jellinghaus, of Potsdam; Mr. Arnold, of London; Pastor Gir Pon, of East Prussia; Pastor Yanssen, of Halle; Pastor Horst, of Mausback, were the principal speakers, while Lieutenant-Colonel von Knobelsdorff, Berlin, acted as a most able and spiritual president in this tenth Conference.

E. P.

A SAVIOUR NIGH AT HAND.—Thou mayest seek after honours and not obtain them; thou mayest labour for riches and yet remain poor; thou mayest dote on pleasures and have many sorrows. But our God of his supreme goodness says—Who ever sought Me and found Me not? Who ever desired Me and obtained Me not? Who ever loved Me and missed Me? I am with him that seeks for Me. He hath Me already that wisheth for Me; and he that loveth Me is assured of my love. The way to come to Me is neither long nor difficult.—Augustine.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSONS.

OCTOBER 6.

THE TIME OF THE JUDGES.

Judges ii. 1-12, 16.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Verse 16.

THIS lesson divides itself into three portions. The first describes the scene at Bochim (1-5); the second goes back to the time of Joshua's death (6-10); and the last gives a general view of the history of Israel during the time of the Judges (11, 12, 16).

I. The locality of Bochim is uncertain; it was probably not far from Shiloh, where the tabernacle was set up. There appears to have been a great assembly at Bochim (4, 5). The reason for the assembly may have been the failure of the people to drive out the inhabitants of the land, and the annoyance and trouble they suffered in consequence (see i. 27-36). It seems as though God's promises were not being fulfilled. Every seeming failure should bring us to God that we may learn the cause.

A messenger from God gives them their answer. "The Angel" (1) is used to denote some special manifestation to God. He delivers his message as though God were speaking by him. An ambassador speaks with the authority of the king he represents; and a messenger from God with the authority of God (John xiii. 20). The message, first of all, vindicates God. He has not broken, and will never break, the oath made to their fathers (1). Their whole history in the past and their position now in Canaan were a sufficient testimony to the faithfulness of God. The cause of the failure was with them (2). The covenant into which they had entered involved them in certain responsibilities. The question, "Why does not God drive out our enemies?" suggested another, "Why have ye done this" (2)? For the Israelites, and for us, God does not fulfil his promises without asking conditions on our part. To enter into friendly league with the Canaanites and to expect God to deal with them as enemies was vain. Yet not more so than to expect God to make us holy while we secretly love any sin.

The people repented (4). Yet their repentance spent itself mostly in tears. Hence the name of the place. It was the distress they suffered rather than the sin they committed that they grieved over. Their emotions were stirred on the surface; but the whole bent of their life was not permanently changed (see Hos. vi. 4). All sorrow for sin is not godly sorrow. True repentance must appear, not in the bitterness of our tears, but in forsaking the sins of our life.

II.—This is a backward look to the time of Joshua's death (6-10). We may assign a period of about fifty years from the entrance into Canaan to the death of the elders, or about twenty-five years after the death of Joshua. It was after this period that "another generation" arose (10), and the decline of religion began.

For some time two things helped to keep the people faithful—first, the influence of Joshua, and next, the great impression made by the works of God (7). But with a new generation the impressions that were so powerful in the fathers passed away. The children did not learn the lessons which had been taught the fathers. Did the spirit of Abraham live in the Israelitish parents (Gen. xviii. 19)? Did they, as God intended, pass on the instruction they had received (Psa. lxxviii. 5-7)? Did they warn against idolatry by recounting the judgment of Baal-Peor (Numb. xxv.)? or tell of the failure of Ai through Achan's disobedience (Josh. vii.)? Or was the fault with their children? Were they, as some are to-day, desirous of knowing evil, not by mere report, but by actual experience?

III. The history of the whole period of the judges is summarised in these verses (11, 12, 16). It is a record of sin and failure on the part of the people, and of the grace which God continually manifested toward them. They brought themselves into difficulty and bondage, He delivered them. It is the summary of many a life since then (Hos. xiii. 9).

The course of evil is clearly marked. They begin with loss of faith in God (10), and proceed to do evil (11). The connection between faith and conduct is so close that when the first fails the second soon follows. Don't abandon the faith that made your fathers what they were, and without which you would not be where and what you are. The evil took two forms—first, their alliance with the heathen (iii. 6); and, next, their worship of Baal and other gods, in defiance of God's direct command (ii. 11-13).

"Nevertheless" (16) they were God's people still. Their oppression by the heathen, whose sins they had imitated, was God's method of chastising them, and bringing them to Himself. And every judge was raised up by God; and by whatever means the deliverance was effected, they owed it all to Him.

For the Young.

THREE FISHING BOATS.*

By Rev. John C. Lambert.

"Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and ye shall find."—John xxi. 6. (R.V.)

MANY of you when you were away for your summer holidays were staying at the seaside, and one of your chief pleasures there was to go out in a boat, especially if you had lines and bait so that you could "go a-fishing." I daresay you have noticed, when two of you were fishing from opposite sides of the boat, that sometimes the fish came only to the one line, and left the other severely alone, until you began to think that the right side of the boat must be a better side to fish from than the left.

Last summer I was staying on the shores of Loch Fyne, and often, when I was out on the loch in the evenings, I saw a shoal of mackerel or herring passing quite near. Sometimes on the one side of the boat the water would be perfectly calm, not a fish to be seen; but on the other it seemed almost to be boiling with the jumping fish.

Well, one evening Peter and James and John, and some other disciples went out in their boat to fish. They fished all night but caught nothing. They hadn't even, it appears, a single fish for their own breakfast. Jesus came down to the shore, and He knew, although they did not, that there was a great shoal of fish on the right side of the boat. So He cried across the water, "Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and ye shall find." And now, when they cast the net, they could not draw it in for the multitude of fishes.

Now, I want to speak to you for a few minutes about casting the net on the right side of the boat. I wish you to imagine that you are all fishermen. Sometimes the New Testament says that we are all to be soldiers, and again that we are all to be builders, and again that we are all to be travellers. But suppose at present that you are all fishers, and that Jesus comes to you and says when you are fishing, "Cast your net on the right side of the boat, and ye shall find."

Let me tell you of three boats in which boys and girls go out to fish.

1. The first I would call the School-boat.

As soon as you are old enough you are put into this boat and launched out upon the wide sea; and your duty in this boat is to catch something. Can you tell me what it is? I think the name of it is Knowledge. You would be very poor and helpless creatures by-and-by in this busy world if you had no knowledge. And that is why your parents send you to school, and your teachers do their best to educate your minds.

But how are you to get this precious thing which is called knowledge? You must cast your net on the right side of the boat. For there is a right side and a wrong side in this school-boat. On the wrong side are the lazy children, and the idle children, and the inattentive children, and all the children who do not wish to learn. On the right side are children who love knowledge, and do their best to gain it. And be sure of this, boys and girls, that if you cast your net on the right side of the boat you are certain to find.

2. The second boat I call the Business-boat.

Some of the bigger boys have left school now. We never see them going along the road, as they used to do, with large bundles of books. They have given up wearing their school caps, and have taken to felt hats; and they start by train every morning along with the City men. And some of you, I know, have just finished your school days, and are looking out at present for something to do. You are not sure what you are going to be, but at all events you are going into business.

Now can you tell me what people go to business for? "To make money," I think I hear you saying. But I say, "No! Not to make money merely, but to work." Of course, we must be paid for the work we do, or we could not live; but it is a very poor thing to work only for the money we get. We should work for the work's sake, because work is a noble thing in itself, and because every honest worker is serving God, and doing good to his fellows, as well as benefiting himself.

Well, in this business-boat also there is a right side and a wrong side. The wrong side is the side of carelessness, and unpunctuality, and dishonesty. The right side is the very opposite of all these things. And if you cast your net on the right side of the boat, if you listen to the voice of Christ, and do what He tells you, you are certain to succeed. You may not make a great pile of money, and die a rich man; but God will send a blessing upon all your labour, and enable you to serve your own generation according to his will.

3. The third boat is the Home-boat.

This is the best boat of all. It is a boat for girls, as well as for boys, for the old, as well as for the young. And what can we catch in the home-boat? If the school-boat is for finding knowledge, and the business-boat for finding work; the home-boat, I think, is for finding love. God puts us into homes that we may learn to love—that parents may love their children, and children their parents, and brothers and sisters may love one another.

But in this beautiful home-boat there is a right side and a wrong side. The wrong side is the side of selfishness and disobedience; the right side is the side of obedience and love. Which side are you on, boys and girls? Remember that Jesus is watching you from the shore, and He is telling you what to do. If you will hearken to his voice, and cast your net on the right side of the boat, your homes will soon be full of a holy love which will make your lives both beautiful and bright.

*From THREE FISHING BOATS, and other Talks to Children, by Rev. J. C. Lambert, B.D., 1s. 6d. (Oliphant, Anderson and Ferrier), a book which we warmly commend for its sensible and helpful style in telling the Gospel to the children.

C.S.S.M. ON EXMOUTH SANDS.

AMONGST the various meetings held this summer on the sands, there was one which may specially interest some, viz., a missionary meeting with an illuminated map of Africa, eight yards square. The coast line was carefully drawn with a double row of snow-white shells of uniform size, shaded with seaweed. Upon the closing of the meeting for juveniles, at 7.30 p.m., the map was illuminated by small Chinese lanterns. The names of the places, printed in large type, could be easily read by those possessing good eyesight. A great deal of interest had been caused by the novelty of the meeting, and a large gathering listened for nearly one hour to an account of the spread of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ in Uganda. PHILLIPS WELCH.

39, Wandsworth Bridge-road, Fulham, S.W.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Salisbury (Fisherton Schools), to Sept. 27; Finchley, Oct. 3; Mildmay, Oct. 4; Kingsland, Oct 6; Stalybridge, Oct. 10; Altrincham, Oct. 11; Warrington Oct. 12; Liverpool, Oct. 14; Bolton-le-Moors (Central Hall 7 o'clock), Oct. 15; Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Oct. 16; Manchester (Strangeways Hall, 3 o'clock and 6.30), October 17; Liverpool (Gordon Hall, 3.30 and 7 o'clock), Oct. 18; Mr. J. B. Tyler, Hassocks, Sept. 29; Tean, near Stoke-on-Trent, Oct. 20-27; Mr. H. Falkner, Faringdon, Berks, Oct. 1; Slough, Oct. 3; Windsor, Oct. 5; Reading, Oct. 6; Riseley, Beds, Oct. 21; Mr. Josiah Spiers, Newark-on-Trent, Sept. 27 to Oct. 11; Mr. J H. P. Cutting, C.S.S.M. van, at Wercham, to Sept. 27; Mr. S J. Hewlett, C.S.S.M. van, at Wheatley, near Oxford, to Oct 1; Mr. E. Hughes, Bisley, Oct. 20.

Meeting for reports of Seaside Services.—Sept. 30, Queen's Hall, 3 p.m.; St. Martin's Town Hall, 6.30 p.m.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending October 5, 1895.—Sun., Sept. 29, Psalms xciv. 1-11; Mon., 30, xciv. 12-23; Tues., Oct. 1, Exodus i. 1-14; Wed., 2, ii. 1-10; Thurs., 3, ii. 11-25; Fri., 4, iii. 1-12; Sat., 5, iii. 13-22.

SLUM BABIES.

ALTHOUGH only established in April last, the Walworth Crèche, South-street, Walworth, S.E., has made its mark as one of the useful unostentatious charities which are too little known, but nevertheless exist in the slums of our city. Walworth and Locksfields, although so densely populated with hosts of out-of-works and women bread-winners, have for some years been without any place where children could be crèched; here the long felt want is supplied, and baby is fed, found, washed, and caressed from 8 a.m to 8 p.m., for the nominal charge of twopence daily. It seems hard when a mother pleads, "may she leave baby" that she "has a day's washing to go to, and her man's earned nothing for three weeks," hard to shut the door on the wailing infant and say "no room." But for some time past the little cottage originally opened has proved totally inadequate to accommodate the numerous applicants.

After much seeking, a building in South-street, close by, has been secured, possessing the advantages of lofty, well-ventilated rooms, good sanitation, and a large enclosed garden. The Hon. Superintendent, Mrs. F. Kinghorne, 18, Wilson-road, Camberwell, S.E., is appealing for help to meet the increased expenses of rent, wages, gas, etc., and the numberless items connected with a removal.

Letters from the Other Side.

PERSONAL.

My partner Mr. Scott, and two of his sons went with me. The boys were obliged to be from home during their holidays, to avoid an epidemic of whooping-cough in their neighbourhood. Thus we had the double advantage of a tour together, and of leaving our junior partner and his helpers to feel their feet—with very satisfactory results.

We do not know our friends until we have lived under their roof. The knowledge of Mr. and Mrs. Moody and their family at home, acquired by their guests, is all one with that of their life abroad. Nearly thirty years of relationship of various kinds deepens our esteem and affection for them. With regard to his native town, what the patriarch Job was to the land of Uz, that Mr. Moody is to Northfield. If we followed our inclination we should much extend these reticent remarks. Long may his bow abide in strength, and his future be as his past, and much more abundant.

Mr. and Mrs. Sankey were at Northfield during the whole of the Convention. Mrs. Sankey is not very widely known, but all who know her love her; her husband also, and he praiseth her. Mr. Sankey was at his post throughout the Convention, contributing to the general enjoyment and praise.

As the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sankey we met at their house in Brooklyn our dear friend Fanny Crosby, the writer of "Safe in the arms of Jesus," and several other of the "Songs and Solos." Blind she is as to outward vision, but visions of God are her continual experience. It is to her an unfailing spring of joy to think that the first object her eyes will see will be the Son of God who loved her and gave Himself for her.

All who know Mr. Moody are aware that a flow of humour is one of the gifts with which he has been endowed by the only wise God. The onerous needs the humorous. The serious view which he takes of life, the heavy responsibilities which he willingly incurs, and the labours which he undertakes, are counterpoised by the fun and wit and humour of his nature. The balancings of the clouds and the balancings of character are alike the works of a faithful Creator.

One day Mr. Moody was sitting with his friend Mr. Sankey on the piazza before his house, when a neighbour passed with a load of rich loam—a bonne bouche to the hungry New England soil. The following colloquy occurred:—

"Neighbour," calling him by his name, "it would do you good to come and dump that load of mould down right here; it would help you to get rid of your selfishness."

"Have you two been out holding meetings lately?"—"Yes."

"There's one thing you might do more than you've ever done yet."—"What is it?" "But I don't believe you would undertake it."—"Well, let us hear what it is."

"I don't believe you would do it, but it would be a wonderful thing if you would."—"Anyhow, we can't do it if you don't tell us what it is." "Ah, it would do a lot of good to yourselves and to other people, but I don't believe you could do it if you tried." Our friends were naturally anxious to be informed of this new method of doing good, and at length their neighbour satisfied their curiosity by saying, "Well, it's to mind your own business."

No doubt Mr. Moody knew his man when he opened the conversation; and he tells the story with a gusto which shows that the humour of the reply quite overshadowed the fact that the tables had been turned upon himself.

A lady had heard the story and told it to a Scotchman who had been offering her some counsel which she had thought irrelevant. He was quite amused by the neighbour's tactics, but was sublimely unconscious of the reason why the tale had been retailed to him, until the lady, with profuse apologies, explained how his unasked advice had led up to it.

When I last visited Northfield I left Mrs. Stebbins dangerously ill in typhoid fever; she is now better than I have ever seen her. This time on our arrival we found that her husband was suffering from the same exhausting malady. We left, however, rejoicing to see him past the crisis, in a fair way of recovery, and by the good hand of God upon him rapidly regaining strength. Our readers know the excellent music of his compositions.

Passing within thirty miles of Kinsman, Ohio, where our dear friends Mr. and Mrs. McGranahan reside, we had the pleasure of spending parts of two days with them in their pleasant country home, and hearing them sing together, reminding me of the first time I heard them, at the noon meeting in Aldersgate-street, sing "I shall be satisfied." They were both in good health, but Mr. McGranahan has not for years been able to undertake public work. A fair was bringing a large concourse of people together from the surrounding towns and villages, and he was enthusiastically busy in preparation for open-air meetings immediately the fair was over. A little dell in a copse had been seated for the occasion, and the preacher was to be Mr. Moody. He had never preached there before, and large numbers were expected. We parted from him at New York, he for Ohio and we for home.

Miss Ada R. Habershon's addresses on the Types were much valued. Of her book, "The Priests and Levites, a Type of the Church" (Holness, 1s.), Mr. George Trench wrote to her: "I have read your extracts and notes on Leviticus with great interest and wonder. What struck me as most original and most valuable was the note on the Levites' immunity from the wilderness ruin. But is it not true that God is unsealing the Book as never before? The seed-corn is filling once more the ear."

The announcement of Prebendary Webb-Peploe caused a good deal of interested inquiry as to what a prebendary is; which was solved by looking up the word in Webster's Dictionary. It was evident that to Mr. Webb-Peploe, the quondam athlete, the manly and vigorous speaker, the painstaking and comprehensive student of Scripture, the intelligent expositor, an ecclesiastical title, though it seemed to be somewhat, added nothing in the estimation of the people, who thronged to hear not the prebendary, but the diligent learner who had become the Spirit-taught teacher. The last address from him to which I listened was the most lucid utterance I have heard on the outpouring of the Spirit.

Rev. Andrew Murray was not so well heard as his companion; seldom does a man excel both in writing and speaking. There was a visible diminution of the audience each morning, when Mr. Webb-Peploe had concluded his exhaustive and somewhat exhausting address. But the wise remained—those angels of the churches, who estimated aright the responsibility of their position; and others who were coveting earnestly the best gifts: those who habitually draw the water which in the drawing is turned to wine, and who know whence it comes—the servants who serve Him, and see the Master's face. All such remained after the five minutes' recess, and drew near to hear the saintly man who dwells "in the holiest," and whose apparently feeble physique puts the presence of the Spirit more in evidence. The feathered arrow of exposition was pointed by the mellowed and matured experience of one who has learned of Him who is meek and lowly in heart; one who has apprehended the virtue of the first beatitude, the foundation of all the rest—"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the Kingdom of the heavens." And they who tarried knew that as they had drawn near to God they had been drawn within the holiest.

Enter the holiest, happy nation!
Blood rent for you that open way;
Faith's utterance is supplication;
Adoption's sweetest right—to pray.
The boldest comers are most welcome there;
He honours Jesus best who proves Him most by prayer.

I was not at Keswick this year, but I have been told that the atmosphere of the place was more than usually pervaded by the conscious presence of God; and that this seemed to be chiefly consequent upon the presence of the dear servant of Christ and of his people, Andrew Murray. I can well believe it. For in him is manifest the humility he inculcates, when he says, "The spirit of Him who washed the disciples' feet makes it a joy to us to be indeed the least, to be servants one of another." His little book, "Humility the Beauty of Holiness" (1s. Nisbet.) seems the most needed of all his books, for it speaks of the grace which underlies all the rest. "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls." "He humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross, wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him." If every Christian would really thus learn of Him there would be perhaps the greatest revival the world has ever seen.

R. C. Morgan.

MISS MACPHERSON'S RETURN.

THE WORKERS' WELCOME.

A large company, representing workers and friends in many parts, assembled at the Home of Industry on Wednesday week, to welcome Miss Macpherson on her return from the other side. The pleasant and informal opening, when a party of little ones from the Training Home were introduced, was followed by a season of prayer.

Miss Macpherson then told of the Lord's gracious leadings, stating that as Christian workers, longing to be wise to win the children, we need in these last days the power of God and the wisdom from above, that we may take the right step at the right time. "More and more as the days go by, we feel the tremendous need and importance of knowing the will of God about each individual case. As a fellow-worker writes:—'What confidence and courage it gives when we know that we are sent of God! As his friends, we have the privilege of entering into his plans and purposes, and also have fellowship with our Lord in his sufferings (see John xv. 5; Phil. iii. 10).' Although we are not without discouragements in the work, we record with thankfulness that the encouragements far exceed them, and they satisfy our most sanguine expectations. Twenty-five years ago, as we looked forward to the time when our lads and lasses would be growing up, entering fresh situations and forming new associations, we felt that a home was indispensable, a place where they knew that full sympathy was to be found, and godly counsel was to be obtained, and opportunity given of observing how the early placing out and training prospered.

"The Lord has prospered some of our dear children wonderfully. One of our very little ones was placed many years ago with a Scotch widow. When that lady died, her money, though comparatively a small sum, was left to this adopted daughter. The young girl made use of it to go through a full medical course; she is now qualified, and is hoping soon to practise as a lady doctor in Ontario."

Miss Macpherson closed with an earnest appeal for additional workers for Bird Fair on Sunday mornings, and by calling for special prayer for the coming meetings in the Great Assembly Hall, Oct. 8-10, when Rev. Andrew Murray and others will seek to lead to fuller and deeper spiritual life.

Mr. A. A. Head came next, with earnest words on the power of God, reading Isa. lxiv., and showing the conditions under which God is ready to "rend the heavens and come down."

Mrs. Penn-Lewis followed on similar lines, bringing out from the life of Daniel various points illustrating how he was led on to the confession of Dan. ix., which again led to the answer to prayer recorded in Dan. x.

In the spirit of these earnest exhortations much time was spent in prayer, one after another calling upon God that He would be pleased to bless the coming meetings, and revive his work in London, and very specially in the East End.

THE LATE

Mr. Louis Frederick Liesching.

This fearless witness for Protestant and Evangelical truth, who was lately called hence, was born at the Cape of Good Hope on February 7, 1826. His grandfather was a German physician who had settled at the Cape, while his father belonged to the same profession. On his dying bed the father called his son Louis (then aged sixteen) to him and said, "A lifetime is not too much to prepare for death; you are young, begin now." These words seem to have made an impression on the lad's mind, and soon after, during preparation for confirmation in the Lutheran Church, he gave his heart to the Lord. His elder sisters, true followers of Christ, had much to do with his growth in spiritual things.

At nineteen he went to Ceylon, where he found in Sir Anthony and Lady Oliphant faithful Christian friends. Their house was his home, and he entered into legal studies with their only child, Laurence Oliphant. Together they read for the Bar, and a close friendship existed between them, until their paths diverged so widely, and affectionate letters passed between them until death closed the correspondence. Mr. Oliphant sent his friend many books and pamphlets in the hope of bringing him into the same line of thought as himself, but to him Mr. Liesching was ever "faithful friend," warning him and praying for him, and never himself turned aside from the Word of God as the only true guide.

Mr. Liesching was never called to the Bar, as he entered instead the Ceylon Civil Service, in which he remained for a period of thirty-three years. He was very fond of sport of all kinds, enjoying it as it came in his way while travelling through the jungle. More than once he was able to relieve the terror of out-of-the-way villages by shooting a cheetah or other wild beast which was disturbing their peace, and killing some of the villagers.

The business of his heavenly Father was ever before his mind, and when stationed for a time in a place he would gather the children around him on Sundays for instruction, and in after years he found some distinct fruit from these early efforts. In many cases he brought the spiritual needs of places in which he resided before the C.M.S., and assisted in establishing schools or catechists in them. One of his old friends among the missionaries says:—"How often, in past days of trouble and difficulty, his cheery words of sympathy and advice helped and strengthened me I cannot say. He it was, too, who led me to open the mission in Anharadnapura district, which has now grown greatly in extent, and which has brought the sound of the Gospel to many who would probably never otherwise have heard it. With him, I suppose I rode hundreds of miles through the jungle, availing myself of the opportunity thus afforded of uplifting Christ in parts of the country, where his name was not known. Would that there had been more men not ashamed to own Christ as their Master, and to make Him known to others." Another writes:—"You can scarcely understand how it was in Ceylon long ago, when we first knew Mr. Liesching—only a few on the Lord's side, and those scattered. What a joy it was to meet and to speak out about our common faith. His visits to us in the jungle stand out vividly." His great delight was in united Bible readings at his own or other houses. The missionaries of all the different societies in the island were personally known to him.

He early felt it laid upon him to preach the Gospel, and this he did wherever there was a door opened to him, whether in C.M.S. mission rooms, or in the Wesleyan, Baptist, or American Mission schoolrooms or chapels. His words were always acceptable, and delivered with an earnestness and solemnity which will not readily be forgotten by those who listened. He was the means of starting the Blue Ribbon movement in Colombo, having become in middle life a teetotaler, and a warm advocate of temperance.

When on leave and after retirement from the Ceylon Civil Service, he joined the Evangelisation Society of London, his relations with which were always most happy. In this work there was a break of three years when he succeeded Rev. Henry Brooke at the Dovercourt Mission-hall. There also his relations with the congregation were most affectionate, and he regretted that he could not continue his work in that place; but the incessant journeying to and from Dovercourt became too heavy a tax upon his strength.

(From a Photograph by Messrs. J. Russell & Sons, Chichester and Southsea).

The Master vouchsafed him several tokens that his work there had not been in vain.

About this time he was much impressed by the ritualistic proceedings at Cardiff in connection with the Church Congress, and this led to his writing, at the National Club, of which he was a member, a letter in The English Churchman, which resulted in the establishment of the National Protestant Congress, now held yearly for three days in various cities, in October. These gatherings have been the means of bringing together, in affectionate fellowship, leading Evangelical men of different denominations, and have become quite a power in the land for the upholding of the sacred Word of Truth and the cause of Evangelical religion, as opposed to superstitious and idolatrous forms and ceremonies. Though not started by the Protestant Alliance, it works in unison with it, and all other kindred societies which have for their object the maintenance of the simplicity of Gospel, and the banishment of erroneous doctrine. With all Protestant work Mr. Liesching had intense sympathy. Many who knew him only through his letters in the religious papers appreciated their calm and kindly, yet pointed and weighty tone, and many such will miss the friend whom they never saw. "Had circumstances permitted," writes a contemporary, "he would have done much more to unite all Evangelical Christians, so that in some way or other there should be combined effort, and if possible, corporate unity."

During his Ceylon life he wrote "Trifles from Ceylon," which was accepted by Mr. Charles Dickens, and published in All the Year Round; also a little guide to and history of Ceylon, and a small book published by Cassell, entitled, "Through Peril to Fortune"; but the booklet through which he, being dead, yet will speak to the souls of others, is one published by the Religious Tract Society, and called "Perfect Peace." It has already been owned of God in many instances and we trust will still continue to be so.

His ripe judgment, his generous, peace-making, and conciliatory manner and spiritual tone will be greatly missed by his companions in the Lord's work who sat in committee with him. His activity in the midst of bodily weakness was very marked during the last year or two of his life, and he frequently gave utterance to the impression that his time for work was drawing to a close. He had long studied prophecy, and wrote and spoke on the subject very frequently, and with great clearness expressed his views, which largely coincided with those of his friend Mr. Pember. In this, however, as on other subjects, he always evinced great humility, being always ready to learn from others, while sifting all with judicial mind.

The Lord called him very gently to Himself on July 25 last. He was only a fortnight in his room, but that fortnight was a blessed season to all around him. He sang the last verse of the hymn, two verses of which close the booklet "Perfect Peace":—

Tho' the pangs of death assail me,
Weep not for me;
Christ is mine, He cannot fail me,
Weep not for me.

Yea, though sin and doubt endeavour—

and here he stopped to say, with something of his old bright manner: "No doubts, nothing of that kind with me"—

Yea, though sin and doubt endeavour
From his love my soul to sever,
Jesus is my strength for ever:
Weep not for me.

He had done as his father bade him. His lifetime had been a lifetime of preparation for death, and the verse continually repeated was—

I know in whom I have believed.

Having been baptized into and brought up in the Lutheran Church, he never joined another, but he was in sympathy with all God's people everywhere, and longing for the day when the Lord's Prayer should be fulfilled, and they should be one indeed, with all the mists cleared away.

We mourn that we shall see his face no more among us, but though "lost to us he is found in heavenly places," and we shall recognise him again when we, too, enter the Golden Gates, and he greets our incoming with joy.

CENTRAL SOUDAN MISSION. — The "Mid-Monthly," issued by Dr. Fallon, gives a recent and encouraging letter from Mr. Herman Harris, telling of fresh inquirers and of converts growing in grace. It is also mentioned that Mr. John Bonnar, who went out to the Training Home in Tripoli about three years ago with Herbert Webb, and who has since been in the Central Soudan, as far as Kano, with Rev. Chas. Robinson, has about a month ago returned with the deadly fever so on him, that it was thought he could not reach England. He was brought to his own home in Devonshire, however, in life, although still prostrate with fever and dysentery, and has been gradually recovering.

Among the Red Indians.

By Rev. EGERTON R. YOUNG.

IV.—BIG TOM'S AMBITION.

His full name was Thomas Mamanowatum, which means "O be joyful." He was a big man, almost gigantic, and generally slow in his movements, except when on the trail. When he rose to address an assembly, either in council or church, he got up by inches, and seemed to rest between them. But when he was up and began to talk, he always had something to say worthy of attention.

Our first introduction to him was in 1868. He was the guide and steersman of the little Hudson Bay inland boat in which my wife and I travelled from Fort Garry, on the Red River of the North, to Norway House, north of Lake Winnipeg. This was a long and dangerous journey of about four hundred miles, and occupied fourteen days. Big Tom steered our boat with a long oar with wonderful skill.

At night we used to camp upon the shore, but one night, in our anxiety to push on, the Indians decided not to go ashore and camp, but to sail all night, as the wind was favourable. During the small hours the wind increased almost to a gale, while dark clouds obscured nearly every star. Suddenly the boat was thrown on its side, and came to a standstill. For a time there was great excitement, and the shouting of orders, by the usually quiet Indians, about equalled the raging of the storm. With great presence of mind, Big Tom instantly lowered the sail, and thus saved us from a complete upset. It was found that we had run on the sloping side of a smooth submerged granite rock. Fortunate indeed was it for us that our boat was well ballasted by its cargo, the heaviest item of which was a large ox, which had from time to time given us great anxiety by its erratic movements. But the unanimous opinion of the Indians was that it was his great weight that saved us from a capsize. By careful management the boat was released from its perilous position uninjured, and the adventurous journey resumed.

After that exciting adventure Big Tom decided that there must be no more night travelling. So from early dawn until late at night, when possible, we hurried on, and camped each evening in some favourable spot by the lake side.

Shortly after we all assembled around the camp fire for our evening devotions. Some additional logs as fuel on our camp fire so brightens it up, that all who wish, can easily, in their own Testaments, follow the reading of the lesson, and use their own hymn-books in the service of song.

Very precious and delightful are the memories of some of those blessed services held on the shores of some of these Northern lakes and rivers. Still can we hear Big Tom's deep rich voice reading in his musical Cree language, the words which in English are: "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in Me;" and then, after the chapter, the hymn so thoroughly enjoyed, even if in another language:—

> Glory to Thee, my God, this night,
> For all the blessings of the light;
> Keep me, O keep me, King of Kings,
> Beneath thine own Almighty wings.

As the years rolled on with their varied duties, we ever found in Big Tom a most valued and trusted assistant. His noble consistent life made him a benediction to both whites and Indians. When any disputes arose, and arbitration was necessary, it was Big Tom who would first be thought of as an arbitrator, and we cannot recall an instance where his decision was rejected.

He was a great hunter in his day, and many were the stories afloat of his skill and prowess. For years he held the record of being the best moose hunter in the village. Here is an incident which beautifully revealed the disinterested character of the man, and unfolded to us what was the heart's ambition of this Christian Indian.

For many generations these American Indians have been divided into tribes. Many and diverse are their languages, but many of their customs and methods of government are similar. In all the tribes they were governed by chiefs, who had more or less authority. In some the honour was hereditary, in others the result of selection, though in the latter case the son of the chief had the greater chance of being appointed in his father's place, if he were at all suitable for the position.

When the Canadian Government made treaties with the Indians of the Great North West, it ever acknowledged the authority of the chiefs, transacting business through them with the tribes.

For some years before the treaty was made with the Northern Crees, the office of chieftainship had fallen into abeyance. When the word arrived that the Government was about to enter into treaty with them, and wished to know who was their chief, there was a good deal of excitement. Very [illegible] able has been the record of the Dominion Government in its treatment of the Indians, and in [illegible] respect which it pays to the chiefs of this naturally sensitive people. Silver medals, fine clothes, and extra gratuities, both in money and supplies, are the allowances to the chiefs. Of course, there was excitement among the people at the prospect of these great political changes. Councils were frequent, and many pipes were smoked, in wigwams and at campfires, over the matter. Various names were discussed, and sons and grandsons of chiefs were brought forward, only to be rejected one after another. Big Tom took but little interest in these proceedings, and attended but few meetings. One day a deputation of Indians informed him that he was urgently needed at the Council House, where in full council he was informed that he was the choice of the people to be their chief. Instead of accepting the position at once, he became deeply affected, and in broken words asked for an adjournment of the matter until the next day. Big Tom was a speaker of no mean order, although rather slow until he warmed up with his subject, so on reassembling we were all there eager to hear an Indian oration under the best auspices.

It was a speech, calm, eloquent, delightful, but how different from what had been expected. What a chance for an ambitious, aspiring man to talk of himself, of what he had done, and what he was going to do. But in Big Tom's address there was nothing of the kind. Quietly and modestly he talked (as I have described more fully in *By Canoe and Dog-Train), warming up as he proceeded:—

"Long ago, when the missionaries came and preached to us, for a time we refused to listen to them, and would not become Christians. Then after awhile many of us who had been in distress began to feel in our hearts that what they told us was for our good. And so we accepted these things, and they have done us good. When I got the assurance in my heart that I was a child of God, and had a soul that should live for ever, I found that in working out its salvation I had something great to live for. To do this was the great object of my life. By and by I married, and then as my family increased and began to grow up around me I found I had another object for which to live. To help them along to the way to Heaven, as well as to work for their comfort here, was my second great work.

"Then after awhile the missionary gave me the charge of a class. I was to meet with them, and we were to talk together about our souls, and God's love to us, and to do all we could to help each other to the better land. To do my duty as the leader was a great and an important work. While attending to these duties, I found I had another object for which to live. These three things:—

"1. My own soul's salvation; 2. The salvation of my family; and 3. To do all I can to help and encourage the members of my class to be true and faithful to Him who died for us, that we may see Him by-and-by, are the uppermost things in my heart.

"I am thankful for your confidence in me, in asking me to be your chief. I know it is a great honour, but I see it will have many responsibilities, and that whoever has the position will have to attend to many other things than those which I have set my mind upon. So you must appoint someone else; for with those three things I cannot let anything else interfere. I thank you, my brothers, and love you all."

Noble, disinterested Big Tom. As I listened to him while thus he talked, I was prouder of him than ever, and thanked God for the conversion of such men from paganism to Christianity, and the development in their hearts and lives of such noble qualities and virtues.

[*3s. 6d. Wesleyan Book Room.—Ed.]

THE S.A. SELF-DENIAL WEEK.

The annual Self-denial Week of the Salvation Army begins on Sunday, September 29. Inaugurated as a sort of dubious though prayerfully-planned experiment, in a time of great financial burden, this season of special effort to reduce all personal expenditure, with a view to putting more money into the Lord's treasury, has come to be a regular part of the Salvationists' yearly programme. It appears to have been much blessed. So far from the enthusiasm of the soldiers lessening, the receipts have increased year by year, since 1886, while Commissioner Howard, the officer in charge of the Army's work in this country, says that its result on their spiritual life is excellent, the extra services of the week leading in many instances to blessed revivals.

Mr. Bramwell Booth has ordered that a week of special prayer for an outpouring of the Holy Ghost shall this year precede the regular Self-denial Week. This is held on behalf of the work, not only in Great Britain, but all over the world, the Army's advance during the past year into the more neglected portions of the vineyard being noteworthy. Since Self-denial Week, 1894, it has sent workers into Japan, Iceland, British Guiana, Spain, Gibraltar, and among the Red Indians of British Columbia. General Booth writes in a letter which is being widely circulated:—

"Our present fields of labour are extensive, but how can we abandon one of them? The new work before us is most promising. We must go on. From British Guiana, where our pioneers only arrived in April, they already report 400 converts, twenty-one at a single open-air meeting, and calls are coming to us from all parts of the colony. Two more officers have just sailed for Java, where the field seems white. In Spain, where we have only just gone, after years of entreaty from Christian workers on whose hearts that land lay heavy, we have made a beginning encouraging beyond our hope. Malta, Bermuda, Barbadoes, and Trinidad pour upon us claims not to be set aside. I repeat, we must go forward. My own people are poor, but they contribute according to their ability. But on the week commencing Sunday, September 29, and ending October 5, they are making a special effort in the shape of a week of self-denial. It will be a week of prayer; it will be a week of work; it will be a week of blessing. Will you join with us, or will you, by a small contribution, show your good will and sympathy, and also lend a hand in the important work in which we are engaged?"

Donations may be sent by postal order or cheque crossed "Bank of England," to William Booth, 101, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C.

THE CORNFIELD'S VISITANT.

"He went through the cornfields."—Mark ii. 23.

The Master trod with weary feet,
Where earth's profusion grew;
Its waving cadence, clear and sweet,
Was music well He knew,
As forth its tuneful praise it poured
In honour of its Maker-Lord.

His presence in the fruitful field
The harvest sanctified,
And once again the promise sealed,
So precious, full, and wide—
That Heaven would ne'er forgetful be
Of all earth's widespread family.

Now, with its waving fragrant gale,
Commingling praise we yield,
With joy and gladness Him we hail
Lord of the harvest field;
His praise we sing, and Him adore,
God of all fulness evermore!

Albert Midlane.

CONFERENCE IN DUNDEE.

THE Dundee annual Christian Conference was opened in the Kinnaird Hall on Tuesday last week. There was a large attendance. Mr. Samuel Smith, M.P., presided. The subject under consideration was "The Credibility of the Christian Religion."

The CHAIRMAN said that one of the features of the present day is widespread doubt and unbelief, and of difficulties of all kinds in connection with the Christian dispensation. It would not do for the Church to ignore these difficulties, and to frown upon them and to deal with them as if they were merely an invention of the evil one, only to be met with denunciation. We have to recognise the fact that in this age, when all sorts of opinions are ventilated so fully, where young people come in contact with all sorts and phases of thought, and where they hear very able statements of the difficulties of the Christian dispensation, there is much of what he would call honest and sincere difficulty and doubt, which ought to be met by Christians in a loving, patient, and earnest way—as the Lord Jesus Christ would have dealt with them.

Rev. WILLIAM MUIR, Blairgowrie, claimed that Christianity satisfies the highest aspirations of the human soul. He was followed by Rev. A. E. Garvie, Montrose, who spoke on the life and miracles of Christ. A conversational meeting was held in the afternoon, the subject discussed being "A Holy Life a strong argument for the Credibility of the Christian Religion." Mr. Samuel Smith, M.P., presided, and addresses were given by Mr. Robert Glasgow, Rev. W. Harris, Rev. W. Muir, and others.

In the evening, PROFESSOR ORR adduced evidence of the Credibility of Christianity from the incarnation, life, and resurrection of Christ. Strange as it might sound, he remarked, in the ears of those who sought the whole of Christianity in the exalted moral teaching and sublime personal example of Jesus in the days of his earthly ministry, it was, nevertheless, historically certain that it was neither the teaching nor the example of Jesus which first of all gave his religion its decisive successes in the world, but the fact that in the firm belief of his followers and disciples Jesus died and rose again and ascended to the right hand of God. There was a disposition at the present time in certain circles to dissociate Christianity from this foundation, and to make it appear as if faith would suffer little injury even were they compelled to concede that the disciples were mistaken in the belief that the Lord had arisen. In opposition to that they could not but maintain that the resurrection of Christ was the supreme vital fact on which the faith of the early believers mainly hinged, and on which everything in Christianity depended. The Professor then dealt with the resurrection from a historical point of view. He pointed to the great incontestable fact of the empty grave on the third day, and the fixed, unwavering confidence of the first disciples that the Lord had risen, and that they had seen Him and conversed with Him both individually and as a company. He combated the various theories advanced by sceptical writers regarding the resurrection, maintaining that they chased each other across the sky, yielding no satisfying or permanent results even to those who put them forth.

A stirring evangelistic address was afterwards delivered by Rev. A. E. Garvie.

Lord KINNAIRD presided on Wednesday, and there was a large attendance. Professor ORR, Edinburgh, delivered an address on "Evidence for the Christian Religion from Fulfilled Prophecy." They ought not to be deterred from making the fullest use of the arguments from fulfilled prophecy by the obstacles thrown in their path from

THE PRESENT CRITICAL DISCUSSION

as to the age, the authorship, and historical worth of the books of the Old Testament, nor yet by the doubts that were cast on the inspiration, the Divine origin of the contents of these books, nor by the theories which would entirely exclude the predictive elements from prophecy. Many were the straits to which rationalism was reduced in its attempts to eliminate the predictive element from Scripture prophecy, but so deeply engrained was this element of prediction in the texture of the Bible record that rub and rub as the critics would they could not get rid of this unwelcome proof of the presence of the supernatural. In order to get prediction taken out of the Old and New Testaments they would have to make an entire revolution and cut it right and left; if everything of the nature of prediction be cut out they would be surprised to find how little was left. Those gentlemen of the British Association who on the previous day employed themselves in attacking missions were a proof of their fulfilment. Their blasts, however, were likely to do a great deal more harm to the British Association than to missions. Do not let them make light of Scripture prophecy, despite all that might be said against it or about it in these times. It was in some respects—it is still, as regarded its unfulfilled portion—a light shining in a dark place till the day dawned and the day-star arose in their hearts.

The CHAIRMAN said he was very glad that a learned association like the British Association should speak out plainly their opinions, for it did less harm than the throwing out of doubts in an uncertain manner. It was well that they should get into one or other of the two camps—those who believed God's Word and those who did not believe it. Rev. JOHN URQUHART, Weston-super-Mare, then dwelt on the fulfilment of the prophecy as shown by the history of the Jewish people.

In the afternoon Rev. A. INCH presided, and in opening the meeting said the subject before them was the internal evidence of the truth of Scripture. Was it not, he asked, an indication of its Divine origin that at that time of day the Bible should be in existence at all? The Bible bore on the face of it the unmistakable stamp of authority and veracity. That was the argument from its contents, and the argument from results was that the Bible proved itself to be of God by the way in which it appealed to their deepest hearts.

In the evening Rev. J. M. Benson presided. Rev. John Urquhart, Weston-super-Mare, addressed the meeting on the testimony of the Credibility of the Christian religion from recent discoveries in Egypt and Assyria. Rev. J. E. Houston, Cambuslang, followed with an evangelistic address.

At the forenoon meeting (Thursday), Lord OVERTOUN was chairman, and there was again a large attendance. Rev. J. E. HOUSTON spoke of the Credibility of the Christian religion as attested by miracles of grace in our own land. Some one had said that SCOTLAND WAS THE LAND OF REVIVAL.

It was well for them at times to cast their eyes over the history of their land, so that they might praise God for what He had done, and might be encouraged to look to Him to do still greater things in the times that yet might be. History was simply a record of the workings of Divine providence, and Church history ought to be a record of the working of God's grace in the hearts of men. Going back to the early records of the history of this land, and beginning at the time of the Reformation in the 16th century, he asked them to look at Scotland at that time, and they would have to admit that of all the dark places in Europe Scotland seemed to be as dark as any. There they had a people degraded, superstitious, in almost heathenish ignorance. The clergy were very much the same as the people. They knew very little about the Old and New Testaments, and scarcely knew anything but their prayer book. If they looked at the Reformation in the right way, they would find it was one of the miracles of grace. People might talk of the political and social events that led to the Reformation, but the fact remained that the Reformation was the outcome in Scotland of a great religious movement carried on by the power of God. He asked them to give little heed to those who made little of the Reformation, for it was to it they owed their glorious religious privileges which to this day they enjoyed. Mr. Houston proceeded to refer to the days of the Covenanters, and to times of revival which had taken place in recent times in Dundee. There was a time when if the church bells were tolled at any hour of the day there was always certain to be a large congregation to hear the Gospel. Let them toll the Steeple Church bell to-day; would they find people flocking to fill the church in the middle of the day? There were plenty people with leisure in Dundee who could easily fill the place. How could they account for it? He could only account for it by the fact that it was a miracle of grace—

THE WORK OF THE SPIRIT OF GOD.

Lord OVERTOUN was the next speaker, and his subject was the credibility of the Christian religion as evidenced by manifest transformations wrought upon heathen lands. The religion of Jesus Christ, he said, undertook to meet the deepest needs of the human heart, and Christianity was attested by the fruit it produced. It had not only given light and peace to the human soul, but had done a great deal more in ways that appealed to the unbelieving. It had been the means of developing manhood, of subduing the passions and the selfishness of the human heart, of producing family life, of bringing freedom and happiness wherever it had come, of producing civilisation, order, and education, of giving woman her proper place in the world, and of transforming the character of men and women. The Christian missions, he said, were destined to change the face of the world. But, after all, they were only scratching the surface. If Great Britain with her might was called to conquer the world and sent a few battalions and spent £2,000,000 a year they would think she was not very hearty, and that it was very strange if she succeeded. People said that missions had been a failure, and pointed to the martyrs and to generations that had passed where missions had worked without a single conversion. There were people who said that the work and life of Jesus Christ were failures, and so the world said at the time, but it generally happened when a great leader of opinion died his influence flagged, and soon expired. When Jesus Christ died the power of his teaching began to be felt, and it had grown and grown until now it was mightier than ever, and was beginning more and more to transform the world. Considering the insignificant efforts the Church had made, the missions had been more successful than in her wildest dreams she had any right to expect.

A MISSIONARY MEETING

was held in the afternoon, when Lord Overtoun again presided. His lordship said there was not a mission field all over the world where the unmistakable fruits of God's grace had not been made to grow and thrive. Reference had already been made at the Conference to some speakers at the meeting of the British Association, who had been expressing their opinion that they should leave native races alone to develop on their own lines, and not press on them the doctrines and the practices which they were pleased to say were peculiar to our own race. They very much mistook Jesus Christ if they imagined He would brook to be placed in a Pantheon among other gods. He claimed authority over the heart and life of all men, of whatever kindred, and to whatever race they belonged. His great command, which was still ringing in the ears of his people, was, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." The experience of centuries shut them up to the conclusion that while there were doubtless many civilising and elevating agencies at work, the Gospel alone was the great remedy for fallen humanity—it alone could lift people once degraded to intellectual, moral, social, and spiritual life.

Dr. Anderson, China, spoke on mission work in China, and Rev. H. Patterson, Patna, India, followed with details of the work in India. A missionary tea meeting was afterwards held in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, Lord Overtoun in the chair.

At the closing meeting in the evening, Rev. George Smart presided, and the hall was crowded. Rev. Charles Jordan spoke on the ultimate and glorious triumph of Christ's kingdom. There was nothing more clearly revealed in the Bible than the universal triumph of Christ's kingdom. Their assurance that the cause of Christ must triumph rested upon the will of God, and upon the work of Christ, and the progress the kingdom had already made was another assurance. If only the Christian churches of our day were faithful to their duty, the world was not so very far from the universal triumph of Christ's kingdom.

An evangelistic address was delivered by Rev. John Urquhart, and the Conference was brought to a close.

CHRIST AND THE BELIEVER.—Once having tasted of his grace, the soul is never willing to be parted from its Lord. And as the years roll on, and the shadows lengthen, the cry, "Abide with me," becomes more pathetically intense. Blessed the man, as the mists gather around his feet, and the sun is going down, who still yearns for this company! Blessed is he who, from past experience, knows that if Christ be with him, even the chills of death shall never extinguish the heart flame.—G. C. Lorimer, D.D.

THE L.M.S. CENTENARY.

A century's progress is being celebrated this week by a series of meetings in the City Temple. The young people had the place of honour, in that their meeting came first, being held on Saturday afternoon. Alderman Belsey, J.P., presided over a large and enthusiastic assemblage. Khama and his brother chiefs occupied seats on the platform, and were introduced to the gathering by the Foreign Secretary, Rev. R. Wardlaw Thompson, who reminded the meeting that the African chiefs were in close sympathy with the London Missionary Society, Rev. W. C. Willoughby, who accompanied Khama on his mission to England, told the chiefs that they saw before them the vanguard of the new generation of the Society's supporters, who would put their heel on the liquor traffic, and put the strong arm of Christian sympathy round the shoulders of every native chieftain who tried to uplift his people.

Chief Khama, speaking in the Bechuana tongue, said: I rejoice very much to be present here with you in this house of God. I rejoice much to see so many young children, and I pray God that as we have been joined together in the body, so He will help us to join in the one spirit, the spirit to help people. The work in which we stand is a work of goodness, a work which excels all other works in real goodness. The work that we find on the earth is a work that tries men, and again it is a work that passes away, but the work of God has no ending. And I have been trying to get my own people to go forward in the ways of righteousness as you are doing. I have not long words to say to you, because I am not a man practised in speech, I know how to do things better than to say them. But I give you joy with my words, the joy that I see in your faces.

Amongst the subsequent speakers were Revs. A. Rowland, A. N. Johnson, and James Chalmers.

Monday's gatherings were chiefly devoted to thanksgiving: in the morning a praise meeting, in the afternoon a reception of delegates, and in the evening a public thanksgiving meeting, when the City Temple was crowded.

Rev. J. P. Gledstone, who presided, opened with a thoughtful address, looking back on the origin of the Society, showing the energy, zeal, and devotion which inspired the founder, who had to encounter difficulties wholly unknown to us. In closing, he said: Two things more remain: First, I am anxious that this representative meeting should know, and all our friends through it, that a special committee has just examined into the whole of the Society's expenditure, both home and foreign, and is persuaded that there is no waste to any appreciable extent. No economising can be done, except at the expense of the efficiency of the work, and the utmost the committee can see their way to save, unless some great mission be closed, is about £1500 a year; but, remember, even that means less work done. I cannot believe that the friends of the Society will hear of crippling it, or withdrawing from any of its fields of labour. Our Centenary Fund will take us over present difficulties, but for the maintenance of our present staff of helpers we require a permanently increased income. If so be that we are blessed in this convention, with a fresh filling of the Holy Spirit, then this will be one more difficulty removed from our pathway.

The convention this week will place before us something like a review of missionary work and methods, and I am of opinion that the examination will be quite as severe as that made by the anthropologists, and a good deal more intelligent. It will be sure to be useful, it will reveal weak places as well as strong places. Is there anything weaker than this, that the Church as a whole has not yet seen clearly her missionary calling? Is not this the root of every other weakness? And yet nothing is more certain than that every one who accepts the great reconciliation has the word of reconciliation put into him in order that he may make it known, and cause it to be made known to others. We are redeemed for the purpose of living an unselfish life, of consecrating ourselves and all we have to the glory of God, of seeking the salvation of all men. That fundamental truth has yet to be lodged in the Church's heart, to make itself dominant in all her life, dominant in the life of each member. Anything that this convention may do towards this result will be a permanent blessing, flowing without intermission through all the second century of our work.

After the Chairman's address, Rev. R. Wardlaw Thompson said that representatives were present from about twenty different societies. The list, which he read, included delegates from the Moravian, the Netherlands, Norwegian, Basle and Dutch Reformed Missionary Societies, also the Baptist Missionary Society, the Free Church of Scotland, U.P. Church of Scotland, Presbyterian Church of Ireland, Wesleyan Missionary Society, Primitive Methodist, United Free Methodist, Welsh Calvinistic, Presbyterian Church of England, Friends' Foreign Missions, Religious Tract Society, and the Bible Society.

Chief Khama and his two companions were also introduced, and the Chief addressed the meeting, in his own tongue, but, as interpreted, in the heartiest and most thankful terms, rejoicing in the Gospel sent to his people, and in the kind reception they themselves had received in this country. All the three native chiefs were introduced to the audience and enthusiastically received.

Rev. Otto Padel, as representing the Moravians, spoke of nineteen years' work in South Africa, where he had laboured alongside the L. M. S. Missionaries on the most brotherly terms. After a general review of the importance of missions, he spoke of his own Kaffirs—accounted too often as mere "black fellows" of no value—thousands of whom become servants of Christ. Several incidents from his own experience lent much point to the testimony thus borne as to the power of the Gospel amongst native tribes.

Rev. J. G. Greenhough, who appeared on behalf of the Baptist Missionary Society, spoke of the unity and love in which the two societies (the Baptist and L.M.S.) have worked. It could not surely be otherwise, as both sprang from the same impulse of compassion for the perishing and obedience to the Master's command, both are animated by the one Spirit, and both are labouring for a common end—the glory of God and the salvation of lost sinners. In stirring terms he proceeded to enlarge on the missionary enterprise as one of the most encouraging and salient features of the century.

Dr. W. Lindsay, of the Free Church of Scotland, had been announced to speak, but, owing to the lateness of the hour, his address was postponed to the following evening rather than compel him to speak hurriedly at a time when many were feeling anxious about catching their homeward conveyances.

MR. THOMAS SPURGEON.

On Sunday morning Pastor Thomas Spurgeon resumed his ministry at the Metropolitan Tabernacle after a vacation of several weeks, spent in Wales. Nearly six thousand attended the morning service to hear the pastor, who looked remarkably well, and was in excellent voice.

Before commencing his sermon, Mr. Spurgeon returned thanks to those who had so kindly welcomed him home on the previous Friday, and also for the sum of £750 received for the Tabernacle institutions. His sermon was on 2 Timothy iv. 16-18. Mr. Spurgeon eloquently pictured the desertion of Paul in the hour of trial by so-called friends, of whom he speaks in the text, "At my first answer no man stood with me: I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge." "Swallow friends," the preacher called Paul's companions who forsook him when trouble came. Paul was not alone in his bitter experience. Swallow friends forsook Job and David and our Lord Jesus Christ in the hour of trial, and so it is often to-day—when we need them most, so-called friends who are not true and real forsake us, but thank God the Lord stands by. God remains, although all the world forsakes, and He is better than all other aids.

Mr. Spurgeon then referred at length to the trials of Paul, which had the effect of making him more noble and self-sacrificing than ever, and to see God's purpose to be fulfilled in him, so that with faith he was able to say, "The Lord stood by me, and strengthened me; that by me the preaching might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might hear; and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion."

In conclusion, Mr. Spurgeon referred to the trusting and forgiving spirit of Paul, and said Paul recognised Christ's purpose, and displayed a willingness to suffer all things for the cause of Christ, and showed his happy faith when he exclaimed, "And the Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto his heavenly kingdom." This is the spirit all Christians should cultivate, being ready always to suffer and even to die for the Master if called upon.

MR. LANE AT EXETER HALL.

Mr. W. R. Lane is conducting a special mission to young men at Exeter Hall, which will last until October 4. The mission was opened on Sunday last by Sir George Williams, president of the Young Men's Christian Association, who prayed for a special blessing on the efforts of the Association to reach the young men of London. Sir George Williams was followed by Mr. J. H. Putterill, the general secretary of the Association, who announced that in connection with the mission services would be held daily at 1 and 8 p.m., and on Sundays at 3.45 and 7 p.m.

Mr. Lane then delivered a very telling address on Ezekiel xxxvii. 8, dwelling especially on the words "but there was no breath in them." He said the dry bones spoken of by Ezekiel illustrated the condition of many so-called Christians of to-day—they lack the vitalising Spirit. He earnestly pleaded with his hearers to enter upon a full spiritual life.

The meetings are being attended by a goodly number of young men, and many at the close of the services respond to Mr. Lane's urgent appeals, to indicate their desire to respond to the claims of Christ. A feature of the musical part of the programme is a string band. Members of the Exeter Hall male voice mission choir sing at all the services, which are of a stirring, telling kind, and great results are hoped for ere the mission closes.

On Monday evening Sir George Williams invited about 600 young men to tea and a social reception. The host gave a short address, showing that the grand object in life is not making a fortune or winning a glorious name, but getting right with God. After one or two testimonies, Mr. W. R. Lane gave a powerful address on "What shall I do with Jesus, that is called Christ?" At the close, a large number of young men seemed impressed, and many remained to inquire further regarding the way of life.

"USE HOSPITALITY."

I have just returned from a visit of five weeks in the home of old friends of mine; they are a large family, not all of whom are Christians, and the worldly element prevails. Even so, they all have the grace of hospitality, and use it for the purpose of cultivating social relations. Why do not we Christians exercise the grace of God that is in us for this purpose? Christian families are not active enough in this respect. I refer only to those who have the means and are responsible for their use in this line of things. My experience is that poor Christians are more hospitable than the rich. This should not be so.

Guests are sometimes uncomfortable when they think they encroach upon their receivers; but it is usually a happy fellowship. Will you help me to encourage those who can do so to use more hospitality? It is the most delightful way of manifesting love to each other when done without grudging. Mission workers who have small means are often puzzled how to make out a holiday.

Convalescent Homes and Houses of Rest are kindly, and well-bestowed, honourable substitutes; but they are not equivalent to the friendly visit to a family home, which, without money or price, receives in the name of the Lord one who, though a stranger, may be an angel unawares. I am afraid that many think it would increase their expenses beyond their means, but this need not be so; comforts can be provided not in excess of the family expenditure by increasing the quantity but not the expense of the provision. In fact, there are many ways of entertaining strangers that ought to be understood by all capable Christian householders.

High-class and wealthy Christians should endeavour to fulfil the Lord's commands by receiving those who are poorer and lower in rank than themselves, and thereby securing blessings and rewards in this life, and testifying for the Master in a way that nothing else can do. We know of cases where nobles by their nobility honour God as they use hospitality.

I venture to give these suggestions at this season, as it may be practically useful and very pleasant before the winter comes upon us. If St. Paul was here he would, I think, thus charge those who are rich, and say to all ranks and classes "Love one another." S. M.

MRS. BUTLER'S WORK IN EUROPE.

The British, Continental, and General Federation for securing an end of the system of tolerating known houses of bad repute and licensing public immorality by various Governments of Europe, has been holding its eighteenth annual international conference at Colmar, Alsace, Germany. This federation was started mainly on the initiative of Mrs. Josephine E. Butler in 1877, at a time when the agitation against the C.D. Acts in England was in its greatest struggle, and when supporters of State-licensed vice in England were constantly pointing to the various countries of Europe as examples of the success of that system.

It was by slow and painful effort that Mrs. Butler secured the adhesion of a few supporters in Europe when she made such frequent visits and prolonged stays there. And at a moment when the English agitation was painfully embarrassed, its leaders heard mention of the Mayor of Colmar, M. Schlumberger, who, having been recently elected to his office, of his own personal initiative made an order for the compulsory closing of all houses in the town now and hitherto officially recognised for purposes of immorality.

Such a bold step could not fail to support the hands of the English agitators against State-licensed vice in England, and therefore the example of the Mayor of Colmar was cited as a set off against the pernicious examples of other countries in Europe. An attempt was made to rob the Mayor of Colmar of the credit of this blow for morality by alleging that it was done on the initiative of the Colmar military authorities, but as time went on no attempt to re-establish the bad houses was made, and during the thirteen years which have passed since then this same Mayor has been re-elected to his office every three years, and the whole of the local community not only express their confidence in him in this way, but openly praise the wholesome act of M. Schlumberger in officially cleansing the Augean stable. These facts in the history of Mrs. Butler's work made the choosing of Colmar for this year's International Conference of unique interest.

Since 1882, when the Mayor of Colmar led the way to repeal, the British Government has abolished the C.D. Acts, and all similar laws of regulation, both at home and in her Crown colonies and India.

During last week's conferences at Colmar, Mrs. Butler (who, in spite of some ailments, is remarkably energetic) spoke several times, and was still more arduously employed in committee work, and in seeking or granting interviews. The Mayor of Colmar (he who led the van in 1882) gave the delegates a public reception at his official residence, the Stadthaus, and he was backed by a strong committee of reception, which represented every section of the people—the Jewish Chief-Rabbi, the heads of the Protestant and Catholic schools, the local Press, pastors of very many churches, and representatives of the middle-class citizens, and the commercial and working community. Delegates came to the Conference from most of the countries of Europe, even from Armenia, and the general public of Colmar and its vicinity mustered with eager minds and in great numbers. The ladies held private devotional meetings each morning.

REPORTS OF PROGRESS.

As regards the speakers at the various meetings, there were a number of very interesting communications tendered by some of the delegates. For example, Mdlle. Hogendorp, of The Hague, Holland, said that when in 1883 the Federation held its International Congress in her town, she was completely ignorant of the raison d'être of the existence of the Federation—an ignorance shared in by many of her own class of society. But since that year a local committee has been at work, and she was glad to report that in June last the forcible medical examination of women (the keystone of the whole regulation system) had been abolished.

From Zurich there came also a record of progress, when M. Boss-Jegler reported that the Municipal Council of that town, in whom is vested the option of having State regulation or not, had decided not to tolerate that system. Moreover there is a power existing that when 5,000 citizens petition Parliament for any measure, a plebiscite of the nation must be taken upon it; and as 17,000 inhabitants are now demanding abolition of licensed vice, there is hope of success in the immediate future. And this demand of the people is backed by the testimony of sixteen doctors that the medical examination as now practised is ineffectual.

Similar good news of repeal was also tendered from Berne, and from Neuchatel in Switzerland, and Miss Ida Welhaven, of Christiania, an old champion of the cause of morality, was pleased to state that some local differences of detail had been healed, and there was a very general uprising of moral feeling, and an influx of support for the Abolitionist movement.

But perhaps the most interesting testimony of success for English readers was that tendered both by Prof. Stuart, M.P., and Mr. H. J. Wilson, M.P. (Holmfirth), in regard to India. Many persons who have followed the history of this movement will remember that when the House of Commons repealed the C.D. Acts in England, the authorities in India did not discontinue the system there. Agitation followed. Pressure was put upon the India Office; private scrutiny of the system of vice among the British troops in India was made by Mrs. Andrews and Dr. Kate Bushnell. Their evidence was given before a Royal Commission in London. That testimony was denied in toto by Lord Roberts, but Lord Roberts's evidence was also directly contradicted by his subordinate in command, Major-General Chapman, who established the accuracy of Dr. Bushnell and Mrs. Andrews, and as the last resort the whole question of licensed debauchery and the health of the British troops was referred for exhaustive inquiry and report to the Army Sanitary Commission of the War Office. After a most elaborate examination of the facts that Commission has reported, and the report is issued as a Blue Book. It was, therefore, with a natural and justifiable pride and satisfaction that Mr. Stuart, M.P., and Mr. H. J. Wilson, M.P., quoted this report in proof of the triumph of Abolitionist principles. That Commission has reported to Parliament that, "The facts as far as we can ascertain them lead us to the conclusion that the compulsory Lock hospital system in India has proved a failure, and that its re-institution cannot be advocated on sanitary grounds...We believe that the best practical means of diminishing the prevalence of these diseases is to be found in establishing a system of voluntary Lock hospitals, and in providing the soldiers as far as possible with healthy occupations and recreations." This testimony from the highest sanitary authority in England must be accepted as final proof that Governmental regulation of vice is a failure from a sanitary point of view—a view endorsed by M. Lecour, of Paris, and M. Lenaers, of Brussels, the chiefs of police in their respective cities. The former evasions of the will of the House of Commons by the Indian military and medical authorities may, therefore, be hoped to be ended, and further aggressive effort is being made upon the Governor of India in Council to make it illegal, and punishable, for any person to make any examination of a female with a view to her intended or prospective lapse from morality.

The legal, social, moral, and physical aspects of this painful subject were all in turn examined at the Conference by men and women of all nations who have consecrated their lives to the amelioration and uplifting of those of their human sisters whose characters and lives are stained by this special form of evil, and a fresh fillip has been given to push forward those legal and social reforms which two decades of agitation and experience have proved to be desirable. Mrs. Butler's work now, therefore, is not so largely as before personally aggressive, but rather to marshal her very numerous international lieutenants of both sexes, and direct the helm of the ship she personally launched in 1887.

THE GOSPEL IN BRITTANY.

Will you allow me to mention that any Christian friends who are visiting Brittany will find at St. Malo an evangelistic service conducted in English at the Sailors' Rest, on Sunday evenings, at half-past six. Mr. Hamon, the agent of the London and South-Western Railway at St. Malo, conducts these meetings, and is always ready to welcome any evangelist who will preach there. Mr. Henniker, the British Consul, and his wife, are also interested in these meetings. They are the more needed because the English Church services at St. Malo and other neighbouring places are conducted on High Church lines, and are therefore unacceptable to those who desire to hear a simple Gospel message from the pulpit.—Yours sincerely, Harry C. Nisbet.

35, Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.

THE AINTAB ORPHANAGE.

We have on several occasions called attention to the Aintab Orphanage, founded in 1876 by Rev. H. Hovhannessian, and still carried on by him with blessed results. For some time past Mr. Hovhannessian has been in Great Britain interesting friends in his work, and the time is approaching when he must return home. His principal object in coming to England this time has been to collect funds for the extinction of the debt on the building, and he has been enabled to send to the trustees £500 towards this desirable end. In a note to us he writes: "For the Orphanage to be free from debt would be a great advantage to our work, the benefits of which are open to children from all parts of Asia Minor. It is bad to be in debt; to be clear of this weight of responsibility would put new life into me, and start the Orphanage on a new career of usefulness." To finish the buildings £300 is required, also £100 for the purchase of a piece of improved land, over thirty acres in extent, which the orphans will be able to cultivate in various ways, in aid of the institution, and for their own practical good.

An excellent work has been done by the Orphanage. About a hundred boys and girls have been sent forth to fight life's battle; and some of these are to-day engaged as teachers, physicians, carpenters, builders, and shoemakers, and one as a dentist. The orphans work as well as study, and the current account of the institution shows a balance on the right side. Mr. Hovhannessian aims at developing the more useful arts and trades among them, and he has in a courageous manner been recently devoting himself to acquiring the latest methods of polishing wood, making brushes, and fitting machinery. Moreover, in order to meet a need in Aintab, he has purchased a stone flour mill, to be driven by an oil engine, which will be worked to help the income of the Orphanage, as well as supply a public want.

Mr. Hovhannessian hopes to return home in a few weeks, and then to seek out unhappy orphans from Sassoun and district (of tragic memory) and add them to his numerous family. On this he says in his letter to us: "By the wish and through the kind compassions of British Christians, who have promised the sum of £6 yearly, I hope to take in several orphans from the region of Sassoun, in some cases for eight years, in others for four. These will be instructed in Holy Scripture and Christian life, also taught useful trades whereby they may afterwards earn their own livelihoods. A lady in Edinburgh and a doctor near Glasgow have cheerfully contributed in aid of two orphans."

Communications for Mr. Hovhannessian may be addressed: West Central Hotel, 75, Southampton-row, W.C.

THE FUTURE.

God holds the future in his hand.
O heart of mine, be still!
His love will plan the best for thee,
The best, or light or dark it be,—
Then rest thee in his will.

God holds the future in his hand.
Why should I shrink or fear?
Through every dark and cloudy day—
Yea, all along my pilgrim way
His love will bless and cheer.

God holds the future in his hand,
And I can trust his love.
The past declares his faithfulness;
His eye will guide, his heart will bless,
Till I am safe above.

God holds the future in his hand;
I leave it all with Him.
I know one day He will explain
The "wherefore" of each grief and pain,
Though reasons now are dim.

J. H. W.

CHRIST'S BIRTH was the nativity of love, his mission was a mission of love, his sermons were words of love, his miracles were wonders of love, his tears were the meltings of love, his dying was the agony of love.—John Angell James.

DOORSTEP MISSION.—Mrs. Brown, 2, Mount Pleasant-villas, Crouch Hill, N., writes earnestly desiring help for her doorstep girls. She has two waiting to go out. One she has a place for, and another, a girl of eighteen, asks to be provided with a situation. All need outfits, and Mrs. Brown is unable to furnish them.

The Evangelist.

THE GRIEVOUSNESS OF SIN.*

By Rev. ANDREW MURRAY.

"Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned."—Psalm li. 4.

In this verse confession is made of that in which consists properly the grievousness of sin. It is against God that it has been committed. According as the soul understands this, will its knowledge of the real nature of sin increase, and its insight into the reasons for which nothing but wonderful and Divine grace can take it away.

In order to feel this we have only to think how on earth the heinousness of a misdeed depends on the person against whom it is committed. The same action is accounted much baser when done against a father than against a servant, against a king than against an ordinary subject; and this is the grievousness of sin, that it has been committed against God.

Yes: against God: and who is He? Is He not the Holy and Perfect One, who manifests Himself as a consuming fire against all that is evil? Is He not the King and Lawgiver of heaven and earth, whose will is joyfully accomplished throughout the whole heaven? Is He not the Creator and Upholder, who has a right to expect at the hands of his creatures that they will do what He has created them for? Is He not the God who in accordance with that right has given us his law, and towards whom it was a matter of the highest reasonableness that we should show obedience? And against this God you have sinned; that is, you have withheld obedience from Him. You have refused to do what He hath commanded you. You have not hesitated to violate and to break his holy law. You have sinned against Him. You have exalted and chosen your will, unjust and perverse as it is, above his will.

You have said that the counsel and the will of Satan are more attractive to you, and have more influence with you than the will of God. As far as it was in your power, you have done your uttermost to rob God of his glory. You have withstood Him. You have assailed Him in his honour. You have dishonoured Him, this great and infinite God. You, a poor worm of the dust, you have affronted and insulted the High and Holy One before whom angels prostrate themselves. And as God is the Lawgiver and Proprietor of the universe, He cannot endure sin. He must maintain his right in the universe. Every transgression of his law violates that right, and the terrible wrath of God is kindled in order to maintain it. And against this God you have sinned. What think you? The moment a man succeeds in once beholding this God in his greatness, does it not become self-evident that it is this which startles and bruises his soul: "Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned"? Oh what have I done? I have revolted from this God, the highest perfection: I have dared to provoke his wrath and curse: this God, without whom I cannot live, I have made mine enemy. Woe is me!

And this is still not all. There yet remains one thought which makes all this still more bitter for the awakened soul. The God against whom I have sinned is the God of love. He has not only shown me his goodness in the thousand blessings of this life, but He is the God of love and the God of grace who has revealed his Son Jesus Christ in his eternal glory. And I have been such a child of hell that I have dared to sin against this God. I have despised his Son, and turned my back on Him. O, there is an inexpressible bitterness for the soul who truly feels this in the confession: "Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned."

IT IS THIS THAT MAKES SIN SO TERRIBLE—That makes it so impossible for man to bring his sin to nought; for sin is an act of enmity against the holy God. And man is not in a position to recall this sin or to take it away. Every sin is an assault against the law, and a violation of it, an inroad upon its authority of which by the law cognisance is taken, and nothing that man is able to do can possibly bring to nought one single sin that has been committed. Sin has been committed against God. He has observed and marked it. It has assailed Him. He alone can say if He will forgive it, and He alone has the power to blot it out and to annul it. Yes: against God has the sin been committed, and with God must it be accounted for. Once again, this is the terrible element of sin that is expressed in the confession: "Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned." And yet how little thought is bestowed upon this fact. Even in the case of awakened sinners, how much do they concentrate their thoughts simply on the view that they have sinned against themselves and their own happiness, and how little on what ought to cause them the greatest concern—namely, the fact that they have sinned against God.

My reader, let this be the goal of all your effort. Make it, I entreat you, a matter of much prayer. You have to do with God. On the great day of judgment you shall meet Him face to face. If you have not thoroughly learned to feel it, you will then experience to your everlasting horror what is meant by your having sinned against God. Even here it is grievous and painful to make confession; but far better be humbled here than be condemned for ever. And do not suffer yourself to be drawn away by anything from your endeavour to make this confession. There are thousands of so-called Christians who know nothing of this conviction of sin; but, bethink yourself, they shall not be able to help you in that great day. Many will say to you that you must not make yourself too anxious about sin; but I feel bound to say to you that you have reason to be anxious about sin. You have sinned against God, and He is a consuming fire. Your sin is so great, the danger is so threatening, that it is in the highest degree unreasonable not to be anxious about sin. As certainly as you have sinned has God uttered his sentence of wrath upon you, and it is only sheer folly to seek rest and comfort before you know that this God has taken away your sins. The God in whose hand your life is, is your enemy. He can at any moment suffer his wrath to flash out against you. O, hasten then, I pray you, to Him with the confession: "Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned." And if your heart does not feel it so deeply as it ought to feel it, entreat Him to work out this result Himself in your heart. The Spirit who taught David the word will also teach you, if you continually make the petition, to say: "Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned."

* Extracted from "Have Mercy Upon Me," reviewed on our "Book World" page.

THE BIBLE SOCIETY.

The ninety-first report of the British and Foreign Bible Society deals with interesting facts and large figures. From almost every part of the field the reports are encouraging. The financial returns are reassuring. The circulation has very generally advanced, and a large amount of work has been accomplished. But there is something beyond these general facts, pleasant as they are. There is a vitality in narrative after narrative, a consciousness of progress, a hope of better things not distant—like the peculiar sense of the approach of morning after night, or of spring after a prolonged winter. We make some brief extracts from the foreign sections.

FRANCE.

About one hundred thousand copies of the Scriptures were sold at the central depot in Paris. "I am always surprised," writes a colporteur, "when working at Castres, at the great liberty we have to spread the Gospel, and at the apparent desire that exists to know more about it. Can it be that truth, so long kept under the bushel, is now about to come to light? The clergy's hostility is much less now than it was when I began my work. It is quite an exception when I find that my books have been burnt, and no exception to find they are appreciated and read. 'I would rather have a Bible,' said a woman to whom I presented a Testament. 'Not that I am a Protestant: no, I am a Roman Catholic, but I have been in service in a Protestant house, where I was accustomed to hear the Bible read, and now I miss it very much.' 'I must have another copy of the Testament,' said a woman at the fair. 'The copy you sold to my son he has read over and over again, and he lends it to so many friends that the book is never to be found at home.'"

SPAIN.

There is determined effort in Spain, where, as elsewhere, infidelity and Romanism go hand in hand. This is illustrated by the following, from a colporteur who makes excursions to Old Castile: "Few days sufficed to persuade one that the towns and villages are at the height or rather depth of spiritual degradation. Materialists wear the cloak of hypocrisy: one day they deny the existence of God, and the next they are in their place as standard-bearers in some Romish procession. It is sufficient that some Jesuit father visit a place for them all to crowd round and hasten as meek as sheep to the confessional, many who never enter a church door. Some boast that they have gone to prove what they boast in other places—that all they do and say is a lie. Others excuse themselves, saying that they merely approached the confessional without saying anything. But the sure result is that the Jesuit is able to boast that he has made them all go to the confession, and so has them and all their families under his thumb. In some places where they appear at least not to be hostile, they will, nevertheless, forbid us to read or explain the Word. They deny the existence of God on the one hand, and yet swim with the current of the stream."

RUSSIA.

The circulation in the Russian Empire exceeded half a million copies. "When a Russian peasant receives a Gospel, he uncovers his head, reverently makes the sign of the cross, and prays that he may have the divine blessing in using the book he is so thankful to possess. In that devotional gesture one may recognise the most hopeful characteristic of the Slavonic races—their spirituality of nature, their simplicity and receptivensss, their instinctive piety. We may also see, if we will but consider, one of the most hopeful facts in regard to the future—perhaps even the political future—of ages and of kingdoms yet to be. The Russian Empire is still in its youth: no one can easily forecast the strength and influence of its maturity. But if there is any single fact to which the reports of Dr. Nicolson and of Mr. Morrison bear uniform testimony, it is the goodwill of the Russian authorities to the agents of the Bible Society, and the readiness of the people to welcome the colporteurs when they appear. Of every seven copies of the Scriptures circulated by the Society last year, one passed into the hands of a subject of the Russian Empire. A place of authority and influence much greater than even now it possesses may yet be held by the Russian race. The reports of the Bible Society — and none perhaps more than the last—give good reason to indulge the hope that the influence will be exerted by a Bible-loving and a devout people."

INDIA.

From Calcutta it is reported:—"During the year we have heard from many missionaries interesting testimonies of conversion through reading the Scriptures, and also of the growing influence of the Bible in moulding the thoughts and opinions of non-Christians. Even those who contend for their own sacred books do not strive to show that they are superior to the Bible, but rather that they contain the same truths as the Bible. One interesting fact showing the indirect influence of the Bible is that some Bengali non-Christians have commenced to translate the New Testament into Bengali. This, I believe, is not done in any spirit of opposition to Christianity, as they have asked several Christian gentlemen to read their proofs, and invited them to offer suggestions on the translation."

CHINA AND JAPAN.

If the chronicles of war have been, as they ever are, deeply written in blood, the records of the work of the Bible Society are singularly peaceful, and, it must be added, singularly encouraging. The soldier too often leaves a waste behind his march, and in Korea and Manchuria he has for the time displaced the colporteur; but the circulation of the Scriptures has notably increased. Up to the last of December, about 16,700 copies of the Testament and Gospels had been donated to the Japanese army and navy. Rev. J. H. Pettee, of Okayama, writing on Christian effort among Japanese soldiers says:—"The work done at Hiroshima during the past two months, and now being steadily continued and enlarged, is strongly permeated with Biblical ideas. The Bible itself is there, and Biblical motives, a Biblical spirit, and Biblical enthusiasm are driving it forward. In my judgment no single piece of work done by the Bible Societies for years has been of greater importance to the general Christian cause in Japan. It is impossible to tabulate results; but it is very clear that a profound impression in favour of Christianity has been made by it."

Letter to the Editor.

CHURCH GOVERNMENT AND CHRISTIAN UNITY.

SIR,—It is very remarkable and also very sad to notice how largely people are of late years looking upon Church government as being a vital part of Christianity. The Church of Rome considers that our clergy are not descended in an unbroken line from the Apostles, and, therefore, that we are not part of the true Church. We defend our orders: and many of our communion say that Dissenters are not part of the true Church because they have not got bishops at all. Multitudes of people regret our "unhappy divisions," by which they mean generally our different ways of Church government, not our quarrelling or difference in belief in Christ. The "Union of Christendom" that so many desire, is thus not a union in faith, but a union under one scheme of visible Church government.

Now, true Christianity is belief and trust in Jesus Christ, through whom and in whom we get sanctification and love*; while Church government is not an essential part of the life of Christians at all. Whether or not they are members of the one true Church depends upon whether they truly believe in Jesus Christ. I want to make it clear that our Saviour did certainly not leave any definite and absolute instructions at all for the government of the Church. Christians gradually worked out their own Church government, guided by the Holy Spirit into what was best. And if this is so, it follows that believers are still free, looking to God for guidance, to keep to the old ways, or leave them, or improve upon them, as seems best in each age and country.

If, as many in our own Church now so confidently say, Christ had left instructions before He went to heaven as to Church government, of course the Apostles would have followed these orders from the first, or at any rate as soon as circumstances required them to act. But, instead of this, we find them gradually acting: so that, at the end of the written New Testament times, even the threefold ministry was not really in force. We find them beginning by making "deacons" instead of beginning at the bishops, who should make priests, and then deacons; and, what is absolutely conclusive against the Sacerdotal argument, when they did make deacons they made them laymen, and appointed them not to preach but to give out bread to widows. These men were distinctly given only what we regard as the duties of district visitors or churchwardens. It was the force of circumstances that made them develop into an order of clergy.

Let us study Acts vi. Poor widows were finding fault with the way in which the Apostles gave away the daily bread. So the Apostles advised that the people should choose seven "deacons" or "servants" to "serve tables," so that they might have all their time to give to the "service" of the Word. They were to be wise and of good reputation, and, above all, religious men. They chose such splendid men for this work that they moulded the whole future of the Church, and, in their zeal and love, carried the Gospel everywhere, and did a work which the Apostles followed up.† But such zealous service was quite an addition to the duties which the Apostles gave them. A district visitor to-day is just appointed to such work as the first seven deacons; and if she be full of Christ's Spirit, she often goes forward in a work which a clergyman is glad to follow up. It was just the missionary zeal of these first lay deacons which led to their being recognised before the Bible closed, at any rate in proconsular Asia, as a necessary body of men, whom it would be well to have in every town, as a body of men who should be given the work, not of dealing out bread only, but of other and more spiritual objects.‡

As confirming what I have said there were not, apparently, even in late times, deacons in Crete (Titus i. 5-10), and Phœbe was a deaconess (Romans xvi. 1). The deacons became great because they were great men. Stephen apparently was the spiritual forerunner of St. Paul; and Philip, a layman, not tied down by modern ideas, went everywhere as a missionary, received the Samaritans into the faith, and then the Ethiopian Eunuch who is said to have founded the Ethiopian Church in Africa. But all this was a thoroughly unplanned development.—Yours faithfully,

St. Giles' Vicarage, Norwich. J. A. LLOYD.

* St. James i. 27, and St. Matt. xxv. 31. † Acts viii. ‡ Tim. iii. 8.

ENDOWMENT OF VOLUNTARY SCHOOLS.

DEAR SIR,—Members of the present Cabinet are making speeches up and down the country plainly showing that it is their intention to legislate in favour of increased grants to Church of England Schools, which, of course, must include the Ritualistic and afterwards the Roman Catholic.

Is it not high time that Christians organised protests from every town in the land against our being compelled to subscribe towards the education of the young in the religion of the priest and the confessional?

No time should be lost, for if these tacticians find that their proposals provoke no resistance we shall have the burden upon us within two years.

I will gladly co-operate with any in this district who will communicate with me, in the hope that many will rise up all over the country to show that Protestants are jealous of the privileges so dearly purchased by our forefathers.

If Romish doctrines are taught in our schools, the next English generation will be Papist.—Yours respectfully, R. SHERMAN.

52, Granby-row, Manchester.

THE KINGSTOWN CONVENTION.

A CONVENTION for the deepening of spiritual life was held at Kingstown, co. Dublin, last week. Professor H. W. Mackintosh, the convener of the meetings, presided at every gathering, giving carefully though-out and spiritual addresses, which were blessed to many. That on Wednesday afternoon was especially noteworthy, the subject being 1 Cor. xii. 27, the connection between the Head—Christ, and the members—all Christians; any failure in prompt, unreasoning obedience proving an unhealthy condition of life.

Mr. C. H. Judd brought ripe experience from his long years spent in China. His exposition of the lessons in Abraham's life, the Israelitish wanderings, and the uses of the blood of sacrifice as types (1) Of protection in Egypt (Ex. xii. 22); (2) of purification in the wilderness (Ex. xxiv. 8); (3) of sanctification in Canaan (Lev. xvi. 14) was most helpful. Friday's meeting was devoted to missionary addresses by Mr. Judd and Archdeacon Collisson (C.M.S. North Pacific Mission). The evening meetings, held in the Town Hall, were largely attended, and really enjoyed by those busy workers who could not be present earlier in the day. Rev. J. Sloan, of Glasgow, gave a Bible reading on the manifestation of Christ (1) To us; (2) For us; (3) In us (1 Tim. iii. 16). Rev. F. Ainley, of Cork, read and expounded Isaiah xxxii. 1-8. Rev. J. Robertson showed the desire of God that every Christian should strive to rise to his standard of perfection (Eph. iii. 13).

On Saturday morning an early praise meeting was held, and in the afternoon a special address was given to young ladies by Professor Mackintosh, who took the "Song of Solomon" as the text for an appeal to admit Christ to the garden of the soul (iv. 12), not only as a visitor, but a Master (v. 1), caring not for the winds which disturb the peaceful atmosphere (iv. 16), if their awakening breath cause the spices, formerly sealed and shut up, to flow out in blessing to others.

C. MAUD BATTERSBY.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For a blessing on a Convention for the Deepening of the Christian Life, to be held at Darjeeling, India, October 1 to 3, under the presidency of Rev. R. Wright Hay (B.M.S.).—For a large Bible-class of young women which re-opens on October 6, that many more of its members may be brought to Christ.—That a rich shower of blessing may be poured upon the mission now being conducted by Dr. Harry Guinness, in connection with the Hackney Y.M.C.A.—A Christian widow, for her son-in-law and his seven motherless little children (residing in the East of London) that he and they may be brought to God.—For an evangelistic mission at Chiswick, commencing September 29, to be conducted by Mr. J. J. Scroggie.—For a gentleman who is seriously ill, that he and his wife may be enabled to rejoice in Christ as their personal Saviour.—For the conversion of an officer long prayed for.—Believers are invited to observe October 1st as a day of special prayer for the deepening and quickening power of the Holy Ghost in the hearts of the children of God, and in convicting the ungodly of sin (Mark ix. 29), 7 a.m., noon and evening.—For a great blessing on a special mission to men at the Kingstown Men's Christian Institute, co. Dublin, by Rev. J. H. Thorpe, October 2-13.

IRISH NOTES.

MISS BROWN, of Toherdoo, co. Fermanagh, who has been training in America for mission work, has been conducting evangelistic services in her native place, and is going out to Africa as a missionary.

The handsome missionary ship Daysprings, built for missionary work in the New Hebrides, under Rev. Dr. Paton's auspices, visited Belfast last week, where it spent two days, and was visited by a large number of friends interested in missionary work.

A very successful Christian Convention has been held in the Methodist Church, Drimoleague, co. Cork, a place made famous by the earnest labours of the late Messrs. Feckman and Jagoe. There was a very large attendance, and much good is believed to have been done.

On Sunday week the bicentenary of Carndonagh Presbyterian Congregation, co. Donegal, was observed, the preacher on the occasion being Rev. G. A. Kennedy, of Aghadowey. As a memorial of the occasion, the ladies of the congregation presented the church with a silver communion service and a baptismal bowl.

Much sorrow is felt in the North of Ireland at the death of two Presbyterian ministers, both in the prime of life, who were called away last week. One of them, Rev. John McAlery, of Ballycarry, who had been formerly connected with the Belfast Press, was only thirty-nine years of age, and the other, Rev. James McKee, of Drumkeen, co. Monaghan, was only fifty years. Both were earnest, devoted ministers and pastors.

SCOTTISH NOTES.

THE congregation of John Knox Free Church, Aberdeen, have decided to erect a new church on the site of the present building in Gerrard-street.

Rev. W. J. Cox, who has been minister of Panmure-street Congregational Chapel, Dundee, for twenty-three years, has resigned, to the deep regret of his attached people.

The annual soirée of the Dundee Y.W.C.A., held in Kinnaird Hall last week, was a popular and interesting gathering. Some 1700 women were present, and the addresses were most stimulating. A good and practical work goes on in connection with the Association.

The death is announced at Haddington, on Tuesday week, of Rev. Dr. John C. Brown, formerly pastor of the Belmont-street U.P. Church. He resigned his charge to become Colonial Botanist at the Cape—an appointment which he held for about half a dozen years. On his return to this country, he occupied for a time a charge at Berwick-on-Tweed, but for many years past he has lived in retirement at Haddington.

Rev. John Mitchell, of Kirkintilloch, whose jubilee was observed last week, now shares with Dr. Joseph Brown the honour of being one of the two members of the Glasgow U.P. Presbytery who have served in the ministry for fifty years. Dr. Robert Jeffrey had passed his jubilee, but his death a few weeks ago left the venerable minister of Kent-road Church, Glasgow, the only minister in the Presbytery who had seen his jubilee.

The annual meeting of the Forfarshire Mission to the Blind was held in the Town Hall, Forfar, last week. The financial statement for the past year showed that the total income amounted to £206 8s. 10d., and the expenditure to £185 10s. 3d. The annual report stated that at the end of August, 1894, there were 151 blind persons on the roll, to which there had been added nine, while fourteen had died, and two had recovered their sight, leaving on the roll 144 (53 males and 91 females), and being a reduction of seven on the numbers of last year.

MR. ISAAC SKIDMORE is now in Hartlepool, hoping to open in October a mission hall (now being built) in West Hartlepool. He asks prayer for his exertions amongst the working classes.

THE BIBLE: A TREASURY AND MIRROR.—No case has yet occurred, or ever will, for which there is not a sufficient provision made in this invaluable treasury. Here we may seek (and we shall not seek in vain) wherewith to combat and vanquish every error, to illustrate and confirm every spiritual truth. Here are promises suited to every want, directions adapted to every doubt that can possibly arise. Here is milk for babes, meat for strong men, medicines for the wounded, refreshment for the weary. The general history of all nations and ages, and the particular experience of each private believer, from the beginning to the end of time, are wonderfully comprised in this single volume, so that whoever reads and improves it aright, may discover his state, his progress, his temptations, his danger and his duty, as distinctly and minutely marked out as if the whole had been written for him alone.—John Newton.

THE Y.M.C.A.

THE CENTRAL LONDON ASSOCIATION.

Preparations are in progress for a vigorous work in connection with the Central Association, during the forthcoming winter. The session is commencing by a special Gospel Mission to the young men of London, now being conducted by Mr. W. R. Lane, at Exeter Hall, and to be continued to October 4. In addition to the nightly meetings, special addresses are being delivered at midday to business men, and a series of gatherings is arranged also for those engaged in banks, insurance offices, the Civil Service, etc. It is an encouraging fact that a number of the suburban Associations are uniting in this special effort. The Mission will be followed up by a series of evangelistic meetings, to be conducted by Rev. H. G. C. Macgregor, of Notting Hill; while the nightly Gospel meetings, which for years have been a feature of the Exeter Hall work, will be maintained.

The work at Aldersgate-street will be on lines lines similar to those of past years. Rev. F. B. Meyer has again consented to conduct the weekly Bible talks to young men on Saturday afternoons, which have hitherto been attended with such remarkable success. Arrangements are being made for a number of special meetings at the Cornhill centre, at which addresses will be given by prominent clergymen and ministers. These meetings will be adapted to meet the needs of the young men engaged in that portion of the city. While attention will be thus concentrated upon the primary work of the Association, the social, physical, and intellectual departments of the work are also receiving much careful attention.

SCOTTISH CONFERENCE.

The twenty-fifth annual conference of Scottish Y.M.C.A. and Fellowship Unions has been held at Saltcoats, a little watering place on the west coast. Dr. Wells, Pollokshields, preached the special sermon to a fine audience, mostly of young men, on Christ's question to the disciples in John vi., "Will ye also go away?" and Peter's answer, "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." On Tuesday evening a reception meeting was held. On Wednesday intense interest was taken in the discussion of the Association's attitude to social problems, as presented in an able paper by Mr. George Macpherson, Glasgow. He would have the Associations tackle social sins, e.g., gambling, impurity, Sabbath desecration, etc., but some speakers, while agreeing with him, thought the Association should not stand aloof from the consideration of Christian Socialism. After the pleasant relaxation of a garden party at Parkend, the residence of Provost and Mrs. M'Isaac, and an intervening sitting dealing with organisation, a great public meeting was held in the town hall, presided over by Lord Kinnaird, who spoke with the utmost enthusiasm of the prospects of the work among young men. Papers were read on the help that might be given to Associations by parents, ministers and elders, and employers. Mr. Paulin, treasurer of the Edinburgh Y.M.C.A., speaking on the latter subject, recommended that employers should purchase subscription tickets for the first year, to make the Association more of an employment bureau, extend hospitality to young men connected with the Association, give liberally on behalf of the Association, attend ordinary meetings, and exert the influence of example in their daily life and dealings. Mr. D. A. Black, Belfast, delivered a powerful evangelistic address.

The proceedings of Thursday partook partly of conference and partly excursion. The most successful sitting, from a practical point of view, was that on Foreign Missions, when an excellent paper by Mr. Stewart, of Leith, was followed by a resolution to appoint a foreign travelling secretary, conditional on the requisite funds being got. It was announced that Lord Kinnaird, who had left the meeting, had intimated his willingness to subscribe £30, or a third of the sum wanted, but not more than £50.

Matters affecting organisation were discussed at West Kilbride on a paper by Mr. Oatts, of Glasgow, and the conference was entertained by the local Association. Altogether a high spiritual tone pervaded the various meetings, and no one could help being struck by the brotherly feeling manifested, and the fervour and vigour that characterised the speaking.

BRIEF NOTES.

The Auckland, N.Z., monthly organ devotes a large portion of its space to Dr. Joseph Cook's visit and the interest awakened by his lectures.

There was a crowded congregation at the Duke-street Baptist Chapel, Richmond, on Sunday evening, when Rev. E. Matthews gave a special sermon to young men in connection with the local Association.

The statement made in a recent issue as to the starting of a new Association at Bury, referred to Burnley. We are glad to hear that the Bury Association (which has been in existence for twenty years) is in a prosperous condition, and doing good all-round work for young men.

The Adelaide Association has completed its eighth year of uninterrupted Sunday evening Gospel services in the Theatre Royal, in connection with which many hundreds have professed conversion. In reviewing the work Our Herald declares that this evangelistic effort has been a spring of vitality and strength to the whole Association.

In connection with the Hackney Y.M.C.A., a fourteen days' mission is now being conducted by Dr. Harry Guinness and a band of missionary students from Harley House, Bow. The hall is packed nightly, many having to be turned away. The Word has been preached with clearness and great power. Numerous conversions have greatly cheered the workers. During the mission a special address was given to young men on "Gambling."

The annual conference of the North-Eastern District Union of Young Men's Christian Associations was held on Wednesday at the Y.M.C.A., Sunderland. Mr. C. S. Wilson, president of the district, was in the chair at the business session, and 62 delegates from 18 Associations were present. Mr. John C. Moor, the district secretary, presented the report, which stated that there are 24 Associations in the district with 3726 members as against 3584 last year. In the afternoon Mr. W. H. Mills read an interesting paper upon "The Bible in the Association."

An interim conference of Associations in the Midland District Union took place at Ludlow on Thursday in the Council chamber, which was kindly lent for the occasion by the mayor. The threefold aspect of Association work—spirit, mind, and body—was considered in the afternoon, papers being read by Messrs. E. A. Hannant (Burton-on-Trent), F. B. Allen (Walsall), and J. A. Roxburgh (Wolverhampton). A public meeting held in the evening was presided over by Mr. H. J. Allcroft, and the speakers were Messrs. W. Hind Smith, H. Whitwell, J. A. Roxburgh, and F. C. Bennett.

We have just been blessed by a visit from Rev. Prebendary Webb-Peploe. Through the kindness of Mr. Moody we were notified that Mr. Webb-Peploe was to stop in Winnipeg over Sunday, on his way to visit his son in the North-west. The Young Men's Christian Association arranged a meeting for Sunday afternoon in the Opera House, which was crowded, and scores turned away. Notwithstanding that the day was oppressively hot, the audience listened with eager interest for about an hour to his impressive words. We hope that others of the Keswick leaders may find Winnipeg in their line of travel, and that the next will plan to stay more than one day. There is considerable inquiry regarding the higher life.

T. D. Patton.

The annual North of Ireland District Conference was held last week at Omagh, and was by far the most successful gathering of this kind ever held in Ireland. About forty delegates were in attendance, representing nineteen different towns and villages in Ulster. The meetings were most enthusiastic, and the reports from the various Associations most cheering. One junior Association reported that during its eight years' work amongst boys in Belfast, 300 boys' names had been on the roll, and of these over fifty, who were known to the committee, were maintaining a consistent profession of conversion made at the meetings, and of twenty young men at present studying for the foreign field and the ministry thirteen had been converted in the Association. The public meeting was addressed by Revs. W. J. M'Caughan and James Grubb, and Mr. T. A. Bailey. Mr. R. M'Cann read a paper on "How to reach the young men of small towns and villages," urging the development of corresponding members, and of uniting small groups for prayer and Bible study.

The English Year Book of Y.M.C.A.'s for 1895, containing accounts of work, statistical tables, etc., for Great Britain, her colonies, and dependencies, and for the countries of the world, has just been issued. It is an interesting volume, well printed, and for Y.M.C.A. workers the world over constitutes a most valuable directory of useful information. The outlook, as the Associations embark upon their second half century of service, is fully dealt with, and plans are indicated for an advance movement, both in the home and foreign fields; while, in addition to reports from English districts and from all parts of the universe, a summary is given of the excellent work accomplished by the various kindred agencies allied with the Associations. In Great Britain the Y.M.C.A. is now represented, either by associations, auxiliaries, or corresponding members, at 1055 centres, as compared with 843 shown in the last report; and throughout the world there are now 5735 centres, as compared with 5158. The gross membership in Great Britain is 95,830, as compared with 87,464, and the world's membership is 492,585, as compared with 467,515

Y.W.C.A. HOME AT HASTINGS.

The workers at Hastings thankfully record God's goodness in guiding them to new and suitable premises in answer to much prayer. The new Home, which still retains the old name of "Mildmay House," is beautifully situated, a large, well-built, sunny house, where, besides several large rooms divided into curtained cubicles, there are private bedrooms, the lack of which was much felt in the old Home. Christian workers and others needing a short sojourn by the sea, or desiring a warm climate in the winter months, will be cordially welcomed. Applications for residence to be made to the superintendent, 26, Holmesdale-gardens. The Home was opened in July last by dedicatory services. Rev. J. Awdry Jamieson, vicar of St. Leonards, presided at the afternoon gathering in the large dining and class room, which was well filled, and Mrs. Penn Lewis, of Richmond, and Capt. Tottenham gave addresses.

A. D. Langham, President.
A. M. S. Douglas Dale, Hon. Sec.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

The Bible Christians of Victoria, Australia, have most heartily commended Endeavour societies in their conference, and have appointed a committee to urge their formation.

The Endeavourers in Brentford, Ont., have held a great convention here September 24th—26th. The children's rally was held in the drill shed, as no church in town was large enough to accommodate the crowd.

Some Christian Endeavourers in the Western Electric Company's factory, Chicago, Ill., have formed a society similar in all its methods to the C.E. Society, and have for some time been holding noon-day meetings of an especially evangelistic character. There were only four attendants at the first meeting, but now the number has increased to more than two hundred.

Miss Edith G. Cherry (2, Bedford-park, Plymouth) writes:—"I am collecting (with a view to publication) short quotations, prose and verse, of special interest to Endeavourers. I shall be glad to receive from readers of The Christian any such selections or odd copies of C.E. pamphlets and magazines, especially American ones; also any gems of thought heard at C.E. meetings or conventions."

The fourth convention of the Manchester and District Union of Y.P.S.C.E. was held on Saturday in Union Chapel, Manchester. At the afternoon meeting the "Endeavourers" were received by Rev. J. E. Roberts, the retiring president. Papers on subjects relating to the work of the societies were read by Mr. D. Morris (Marple), Rev. W. H. Towers, and Mr. D. Morris. In the evening a second meeting was held in the chapel, Rev. W. H. Towers, the new president, in the chair.

A conference of clergymen, ministers, Sunday-school superintendents, and others connected with religious work among the young was held on Thursday evening in the Lord Mayor's Parlour, Manchester, under the auspices of the Manchester and District Union of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavour. This Union comprises 130 societies, with a membership of upwards of 6000 young people. During the year 42 new societies have joined the Union, having 2029 members. The National Council of the British section of the Christian Endeavour movement held their quarterly meeting in the city during the earlier part of the day.

FUNCHAL, MADEIRA.—Mr. W. G. Smart and Mr. F. A. Jefford, the missionaries at this port, appeal to Christian friends on behalf of their Mission to the Sailors for a supply of French, Italian, Portuguese and Spanish tracts for distribution on the ships visiting the port. Friends wishing to help can send their gifts to Mr. A. Dearlove, 18, Tomlin's-grove, Bow, London, E. Both ashore and afloat the work is making progress.

COLWYN BAY INSTITUTE.—In the first week in October, five self-supporting native African missionaries will leave the Institute. Joseph and Alfred are returning to the Cameroons, and three native African missionaries go to Yorubaland, W. Africa—Rev. Majolu Agbebi, Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Ricketts. Gifts of evangelical books and workmen's tools for carpenter, sewing machine for tailor, would be most gratefully received by Rev. Wm. Hughes, Congo Institute, Colwyn Bay, N. Wales.

REV. F. B. MEYER resumes his Saturday Afternoon Bible Lectures at 186, Aldersgate-street, on October 4, from three to four o'clock. His topic is the International Sunday-school Lesson (afternoon series) for the following day. All young men, whether teachers or not, are heartily welcomed. So warmly has this opportunity been valued in the past, that it has secured a weekly average attendance of between two and three hundred young men.

OBITUARY.

REV. JAMES JOHNSTONE, SPRINGBURN.

THIS earnest minister died on Thursday last at his residence in Springburn, near Glasgow. He began his ministerial work at West Linton in 1852. In this quiet village he laboured successfully for nine years, until in 1861 he was inducted as minister of a newly-formed congregation in the then rising district of Springburn. Here he spent the remainder of an active and honoured life. In the year 1838, while yet a lad, he became a member of the Duns Total Abstinence Society, and he was one of eight abstainers who, at Falkirk, in 1844, formed the Scottish Temperance League, of which he was among the first office-bearers. When he went to Springburn he was elected a director. For thirteen years he was chairman of the board, and at the annual meeting in May last he was elected president, in succession to the late Sir William Collins. Mr. Johnstone's temperance jubilee was celebrated in December, 1889.

MRS. OWEN, CHUNG-KING, CHINA.

This earnest labourer was called to her rest on September 11, at Chung-King. Some thirteen years ago she was known and loved as an active worker in Harrogate. Foreign missions being laid on her heart, she entered the Zenana Medical College, St. George's-road, for training. After two years Miss Sugden went out to Hankow, where she did valuable work. Returning home after eight years' service, she married Rev. William Owen, of the London Missionary Society, and subsequently went out with her husband to resume their missionary work in China, Mr. Owen having been engaged in the work for about sixteen years. After returning to the field of their labour, Mrs. Owen not only opened a dispensary and carried on missionary and medical work, but was ever ready to assist her husband and those around her. Mr. and Mrs. Owen did not escape trouble and anxiety during the recent unsettled state of China; on the contrary, they lived almost in the heart of the district affected by the riots of which such distressing accounts lately reached this country. Fortunately, although passing through days of anxiety, Mr. and Mrs. Owen were spared all bodily harm, and there was every appearance of the country becoming more settled, when Mrs. Owen's lamentable death occurred. On the 10th inst. Mrs. Owen had two baby boys (who subsequently died), and on the following day she fell asleep in Jesus.

MR. F. H. MACKENZIE.

Many will see with deep regret the announcement of the death of Mr. Francis Harford Mackenzie. Shortly after the close of the war between Turkey and Servia, Mr. Mackenzie settled at Belgrade, where he bought land, and set going what is now quite a new quarter of the town. He did a great deal for the charities of the town, and was well known and respected in the Servian capital. His interest in religious work was constant and unfailing. At the meeting of the Free Church Assembly in Inverness, the late Dr. Somerville made special mention of Mr. Mackenzie's kindness to himself during his visit to Belgrade. Latterly he built a hall, which could be used as a school or place of worship. For some time Mr. Mackenzie's health was far from robust, and in June last Sir Kenneth and Lady Mackenzie were summoned to Belgrade. They found that his strength had rallied, and he returned with them to London, where his health continued to improve. A relapse came, however, and Mr. Mackenzie passed somewhat suddenly away. He was sixty-two years of age, and unmarried. He was a strong Evangelical Protestant, unswerving in his principles, to the propagation of which he devoted himself. In his lifetime he met with much opposition from the Orthodox Church at Belgrade, and that a requiem for his soul should have been sung there on receipt of the news of his death, shows somewhat remarkably how, in spite of irreconcilable ecclesiastical differences prominently maintained, a man with a truly catholic spirit may win such esteem from those who look on him as a heretic, that they still deem him worthy of the Kingdom of Heaven. Mr. Mackenzie was an occasional and much-esteemed contributor to our columns.

REV. WILLIAM GRAY, C.M.S.

By the removal to his rest of William Gray, the Church of Christ in our country has lost one of those devoted and single-hearted men, whose work, though not unrecognised while it lasted, has yet been far more important than conspicuous, and far more fruitful in triumphs of good over evil, and light over darkness, than in the fame or earthly dignity of the workers themselves. He devoted himself to missionary work in 1858, after four years in the ministry, and after two as vice-principal of the Doveton College, Madras. He was then for about two years more a working missionary in the Tinnevelly Itinerancy, for which post he proved himself thoroughly well adapted. This very efficiency, however, combined with other qualifications, pointed him out as suited for that kind of superintendence over other labourers which belongs to the position of a C.M.S. secretary. The post was accordingly offered to him, and was held first for four years in Madras, and afterwards (when disabled for foreign work, and after deputational service in Nottingham) to London.

It was no easy task to which William Gray devoted the greater part of his life, till, overdone by heavy and unremitting exertions, failing powers obliged him to retire about a year ago. As for the qualifications of which he proved himself possessed, he himself would have said, and said most truly, "Not I, but the grace of God that was in me." Through that grace—complete devotion; unflagging industry; unvarying kindliness; unfailing consistency, so far as fellow-workers could judge; firm trust in God; unconquerable hopefulness; steadfast hold to the spiritual standpoint in viewing missionary events and circumstances; unmistakable indications of a heart in constant communion with God, and of an intellect, naturally powerful, ever taught from Scripture by the Holy Spirit—these were some of the characteristics of one whom all who knew him loved, and whom all who loved wished he might remain longer with us.—The Record.

PERSONALIA.

Rev. J. F. T. Hallowes, having accepted the post of principal of Cliff College, will leave Birmingham on Oct. 1, for Cliff House, Curbar, via Sheffield.

Mr. Henry Toye, well known to our readers as the founder of the Home for the Fatherless, Greenwich, who has been so seriously ill, is, we are glad to hear, now steadily improving, and was able last week to leave his bed.

Rev. G. C. Needham and Mrs. Needham sailed from Southampton on Saturday last, after a stay of nearly three months on this side. A large part of their time has been spent in Ireland, where they have been evangelising with encouraging results.

Mrs. Woodford Fawcett, of Tulse Hill, we are deeply sorry to say, is seriously unwell, and fears are entertained as to the result of her malady. Very widespread sympathy has been expressed in the Tulse Hill and Norwood district, where Mrs. Fawcett's labours have been abundant and unwearied.

Rev. Hubert Brooke, Incumbent of St. Mary's Episcopal Chapel, Castle street, Reading, some little time since tendered his resignation to the trustees of the church, principally on account of his continued ill-health. Mr. Brooke has now accepted a chaplaincy for the winter at Les Avants, near Montreux, just above the Lake of Geneva. He has accomplished nearly seven years' ministry at St. Mary's Episcopal Chapel, and will be greatly missed by his congregation and many friends.

THE SHEO-YANG MISSION.

THE company of devoted servants of Christ, who have specially given themselves to labour in Eastern Shan-si have issued an Occasional Paper, showing how the Lord is prospering the work. We may note that Mr. W. S. Johnston, who with his family has been at home for a time, started on his return voyage by the German mail from Southampton on Sunday, Sept. 15. Mr. T. W. Pigott, in the paper referred to, says, "Persecution continues, but God is with his people, and it has already been blessed. We have had a week of prayer, and have some tokens of further blessing.

"Li-pai, the shepherd, writes from the Southern hills that he is gladly bearing the cross for his Master's sake, and I believe it is so. His twenty-two companions, who also feed flocks on the same mountains, and folding them together, lodge in the same villages, join to persecute him. Others tell of him that he daily teaches and speaks for Christ, and that he has sold not a few of his books.

"The persecution of Li-kia-yu has passed through several stages since I wrote last. The Mandarin to whom we first appealed died, and Kia-yu's (Li is his surname) uncle took advantage of this respite to call a family council, at which every means, save actual violence, was used, to intimidate him, and make him give up his Saviour. The family even threatened to bury him alive, or beat him to death if he did not, to which even his mother consented, hoping by the threat to frighten him; his wife, too, would no longer care for, or nurse, his infant girl, and threatened to commit suicide if he did not give up the truth, or divorce her. She was greatly enraged at being called a foreign devil's wife, the cognomen by which we often go, and by which the native Christians also get called." In all this Kia-yu had grace to stand firm. Prayer is asked for these and other sufferers for Christ and the Gospel's sake. The London correspondent of the Sheo-yang Mission is Mr. W. B. Pratt, 38, Rendlesham-road, Clapton, N.E.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Hawick.—Mr. John Walbran, of Ballymena, has held a week's mission in the Arcade Hall, with good results. He has now begun a mission in Dundee, for which prayer is desired.

Mr. Henry Collins, of the Evangelisation Society, closed a fortnight's mission at Castle Cary, Somerset, on the 22nd inst. The services were well attended. The addresses were faithful and impressive.

Mr. George Clarke commenced a mission on Sunday in the large Assembly Rooms, Bath. In the afternoon and evening we had overflowing meetings, at which many could not get in. Everything leads us to believe that God is about to use his servant in our city. May we claim an interest in prayer on our behalf? G. E. T.

Mr. J. Albinson has completed an encouraging five weeks' mission at the Tolbooth Hall, Glasgow, which has resulted in blessing to the workers and many conversions. Amongst the inquirers two atheists were found, and one of the new converts immediately joined a church in the neighbourhood, and began to work for Jesus in the open air.

Mr. E. P. Telford has concluded a successful mission in the Public Hall, Wisbech, in which the Nonconformist churches of the town united. On Sunday last he began his sixth mission in Bristol. The Brookland Church was crowded to the doors, and in the after-meeting the inquiry-rooms were filled with many anxious souls. There is a sign of "abundance of rain."

Ireland.—An excellent tent mission has been held by Rev. Henry Ball at Tullyroan, co. Tyrone, and successful Gospel meetings have been held in the Methodist Church, Edenderry, Portadown, by Revs. Dr. Maguire and T. E. Gibson. In St. Mark's Churchyard, Dublin, during the summer three open-air evangelistic services are held weekly, and although the preachers can be easily heard and seen from the street, as a rule no annoyance is given.

The Weaver Brothers have concluded a very successful fortnight's mission in the Public Hall, Galashiels, under the auspices of the Home Mission. The mission commenced with a consecration meeting for Christians, and during the first week the addresses were specially directed to the Christians, resulting in a quickening of their spiritual life. Many young people were among those who decided for Christ. Each night anxious ones were dealt with. Mr. Bewley Weaver tells the simple Gospel story with great earnestness and power. A special attraction was the singing of his brother Frank, who possesses a sweet voice, and sings out of a full heart of the love of Jesus. A. W.

Mr. John H. Cooke, of the Evangelisation Society, has been holding for the past eight weeks a most successful tent mission at Wingham, Kent, which has been attended by most blessed results. Large numbers, night after night (which have kept up also during the busy season of hop-picking), have gathered to hear God's message of love and salvation earnestly and faithfully proclaimed. An additional marquee had to be erected adjoining the tent. God has wonderfully used his servant, very many having publicly testified to their having accepted Christ as Saviour and King, while backsliders have been brought back; spiritual life has been quickened, and the spirit of unity and brotherly love between various sections of believers in the parish has been strengthened. D. A. F.

Mrs. Baeyertz in Rutherglen.—Mrs. Baeyertz has concluded a short mission, which has been successful in every way. It had been intended that the meeting should be held in the Evangelistic Institute, but the large hall there is at present being extended. The meetings consequently were held in the Free church (Rev. J. Gall's), the Town Hall, and the parish church (Rev. W. F. Stevenson). From the outset there was great interest in the meeting, and towards the close the buildings were filled to overflowing. On the closing night the Town Hall was crowded long before the advertised hour, and an overflow meeting had to be held in the parish church. It is long since there has been such deep and widespread interest in a mission, and the apparent fruit is very abundant. Quite a large number of those who were unsaved have professed conversion, and Christians have been stimulated, and brought into fuller light and blessing. Mrs. Baeyertz's afternoon Bible-readings were greatly appreciated by those privileged to attend them.

FROM SELF TO GOD.—When once a man is become as nothing before God, and when he is delivered from himself, so that he is nothing, and hath nothing, then through this time of loss and sorrow he enters into surpassing joy. For it is sorrow and suffering to a man to be stripped and emptied of all, and to learn through tribulation and temptation what it is to rest in God alone.—John Tauler.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The congregation of Holy Trinity, Bordesley, have accorded a hearty welcome to their new vicar, Rev. G. C. Williamson.

Rev. F. L'Estrange Fawcett, of Stowmarket, has been offered the charge of Emmanuel Church, one of the most important in Liverpool.

Rev. John Crennell, who has done such good work amongst the miners of Beamish, has been appointed to the Rectory of Byers Green.

At the Carlisle Diocesan Conference last week, "The Church and Socialism" were discussed by the Archbishop of York, the Bishop of Carlisle, and others.

In connection with the commemoration of the Jubilee of Christ Church, Barnet, the congregation has resolved to make a special effort to raise at least £1000 to be applied to some necessary alterations.

Revs. W. Hay Aitken and J. Stephens commence a fortnight's mission at Christ Church, Hampstead (Rev. G. F. Head, vicar) on Sunday next. Services will be held each day (Saturdays excepted) at 11.30 a.m., 4.30, and 8 p.m.

Rev. W. H. Collis has been appointed the first incumbent of the new parochial district of St. Luke's, Maidstone, by the trustees. Mr. Collis has done a great work as curate-in-charge, and his Evangelical ministry has been highly valued.

The Bishop of St. David's has appointed Rev. E. O. Phillips, Chancellor of the Diocese, to the Deanery of St. David's Cathedral, vacant by the recent resignation of Rev. James Allen. The new Dean has worked in Wales since 1854: he has had both parochial and cathedral experience; he is a bi-linguist; and he is a sound Evangelical. The appointment has been very favourably received throughout South Wales.

A conference of clergy connected with diocesan mission work was held last week at Keble College, Oxford. It was attended by nearly forty clergymen, including Revs. W. Hay Aitken, R. L. Page, Canon Hutchings, and many well-known missioners. The subjects discussed were—"The Conditions and Perils of a Missioner's Life and Work," and "Days of Devotion for Clergy and Laity." A letter was read from the Archbishop of Canterbury urging that fresh prominence should be given to the evangelistic side of parochial missions.

There was a crowded meeting at the Church Missionary House on Thursday afternoon to take farewell of Mr. Eugene Stock and Rev. H. Percy Grubb, two of the Society's secretaries, who left on Saturday for Canada. Mr. Stock referred to his former colonial tour, when he had as his colleague the late Rev. R. W. Stewart, of Kucheng. The Bishop of Sierra Leone, fresh from his visit to the West Indies, where he has been endeavouring to stir up the missionary zeal of the native Church members on behalf of West Africa, took part in the meeting.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. G. C. Postans has been recognised as pastor at Shepton Mallet.

Rev. Thomas Nicholson has been welcomed to the pastorate at Bromley, Kent.

Mr. Albert Ore has been recognised as pastor of the church at Castle Combe.

It is stated that Dr. Brown has chosen as the theme of his coming Union Lecture "The Apostolical Succession."

Rev. W. A. Wrigley, after a ministry of forty years—thirty at Carlisle and ten at Silloth—has retired to Keswick.

Rev. Egerton R. Young gave an address on his work among Indians, on Sunday morning, in Mount View Church, Stroud Green, N.

Rev. J. W. Butler has resumed his duties at Westgate Church, Peterborough, after an absence of six months abroad for the benefit of his health.

Rev. Dinsdale T. Young, of Manchester, conducted the services at the City Temple on Sunday. Rev. Dr. Parker will resume his ministry on Sunday next.

Rev. John Thomas, after a pastorate of thirty years, including eleven and a-half years at Lowther-street Church, Carlisle, has retired from active ministerial work through broken health.

Rev. Ralph C. Scurrah, who recently gave notice of his intention to resign the pastorate of Hessle-road Church, Hull, has received a requisition, signed by nearly 400 of the church, congregation and friends, urging him to remain, and he has now consented to do so.

The Congregational Union has appointed Rev. George S. Barrett, D.D., and one of its ex-chairmen, to represent the Congregational Churches of this country at the Triennial National Council of American Churches to be held at Syracuse, New York, early in October.

Rev. N. MacNeill made, on Sunday week, reference at Bedford Church, Charrington-street, N.W., to the late Rev. John L. Phillips, a former pastor of the church, who died suddenly at Castletown, South Australia, as the result of a shock caused by being thrown from his horse. Mr. Phillips held the pastorate of Bedford Church from 1882-89, and he had previously held pastorates at Haverhill and Malmsbury.

The Congregational School for the Education of the Sons of Ministers, Caterham Valley, Surrey, was erected twelve years ago at a cost of £32,000. Naturally, after this period, the buildings need extensive repair, in addition to which their sanitary arrangements, though on the whole satisfactory, require modification and improvement. To accomplish both these objects, an appeal is made by the committee for the sum of at least £1000. The treasurer is Rev. Josiah Viney, Caterham Valley, Surrey.

Calls.—Rev. W. Douglas Reid, professor at Cheshunt, to Beverley (accepted); Rev. J. C. Neil, formerly of Mearns-street, Greenock, to Hoylake, Cheshire; Rev. W. Evans, of Blackpool, to Rochdale; Mr. R. C. Richardson, to Mearns-street, Greenock.

Resignations.—Rev. John Thomas, of Lowther-street, Carlisle; Rev. F. Smith, of South Molton; Rev. J. Thomas, of Bryn, Llanelly.

BAPTIST.

A new chapel is being erected in South Woodford.

A new chapel has been opened at Beechwood, Caterham.

Rev. E. Judson Page has been recognised as pastor at Woking.

Rev. R. C. Griffin has been recognised as pastor at Horfield.

Rev. J. Butler has been recognised as pastor at Shipston-on-Stour.

Rev. C. Hobbs has been recognised as pastor at Union Chapel, High Wycombe.

Rev. Frank Slater has been recognised as pastor of Fellon-lane Church, Halifax.

Rev. E. Harborough, of Lewisham-road, Greenwich, is suffering from a throat affection.

Rev. W. Bonser has returned to England from Australia, where he held a pastorate for some years.

Pastor James L. Stanley, of Chatsworth-road Church, has removed to Abbotsford, Idmiston-road, West Norwood, S.E.

Rev. Robert Silvey has been recognised as pastor at Bromley.

Mr. John Pinnock, a native of Jamaica, who has been for eight years a missionary on the Congo, has arrived in this country with his family.

Rev. Philip Lewis has preached his farewell sermons at Romsey, and will commence his ministry at Chipping Campden on the first Sunday in October.

Mr. Richard Cole, who has done good service on the Congo in connection with the Congo-Balolo Mission, and was the means of starting the work at Bongandanga, is now at home and unable to return to the field for a time owing to family circumstances. He would be glad to take charge of a small Baptist or unsectarian church or mission hall for the next six months. His address is Bargates, Christchurch, Hants.

On Sunday, Sept. 15, in the West Cliff Tabernacle, Bournemouth, Pastor George Wainwright preached two sermons in celebration of his seventh anniversary. The services were continued on the following Wednesday. Rev. H. Williams, of Upton Chapel, London, preached in the afternoon; and a public meeting was held in the evening. Mr. Geo. Pearce presided, and addresses were given by Revs. C. D. Crouch, W. Williams, and J. Ossian Davies, and Mr. R. Colman, J.P. The report given by the pastor told of steady progress in every department of the work, and especially in connection with foreign missions.

Calls.—Pastor H. J. Knight, of Portskewett, Mon., to Peckham Rye Tabernacle (accepted); Rev. W. F. Edgerton, of Carmel, Woolwich, to Harlington; Rev. D. Lewis, of Saundersfoot, to Honeyborough; Rev. E. Powell, of Treherbert, to Briton Ferry.

METHODIST.

Mr. John Pethick, of Cornwall, has been accepted for mission work in East Africa.

A new chapel is to be built in Rushden as the outcome of Mission services in the Moor-road.

Rev. C. C. McKechnie, for many years Primitive Methodist Connexional editor, is seriously ill.

Rev. J. Gair, of Nottingham, has accepted the governorship of Elmfield College, York, for 1896.

The Irwell-street Mission, Salford, has held its anniversary, reporting good progress and success.

Rev. R. M. Ormerod has paid several visits to the recently established station at Witu, and has held some encouraging services.

Rev. D. J. Waller, D.D., President of the Wesleyan Conference, officiated at the opening services at the new Wesleyan church, Sidcup, on Friday.

Rev. E. Icke, whose remarkable success at Chatham received recognition, has thrown himself with characteristic energy into the work of his new circuit at Brighton.

Rev. W. G. Howe, writing from East Africa, states that the harvest prospects are very satisfactory, and there is now no reason to fear a repetition of the late famine experiences.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes has resumed his ministry in connection with the West London Mission, preaching on Sunday morning in Craven Chapel, and in the evening at St. James's Hall.

Letters from China to the New Connexion Missions Committee speak hopefully of the work being done, and especially emphasising the opportunity medical practice affords to impart religious instruction.

The Bible Christians of Clapham, who are now entering upon vigorous mission work, are holding special evangelistic services in the Assembly Rooms, Gauden-road, during the next four Sundays, to be conducted by Revs. A. Trengrove, D. J. Rounsefell, and H. J. Christmas.

PRESBYTERIAN.

A new chapel is to be built at Cefniwrch, Anglesey.

At Saltney a temporary iron chapel is to be built for an English congregation.

Mr. William Foulkes has entered upon the pastorate at Colwyn, Denbighshire.

Mr. T. Goshen Evans, late of Trevecca College, has been recognised as pastor at Ynysybwl.

The inaugural college lecture will be delivered on the evening of October 7 by Professor Skinner.

New halls are about to be opened at Grangetown and Saltmead, two great working-class centres in Cardiff, under the auspices of the Forward Movement.

A meeting will be held in Highbury Church (Rev. P. Carmichael) on October 24 to set apart and take leave of four missionaries on their departure for China.

The London Presbytery, which aids a dozen congregations in working-class districts, has arranged for a conference to be held in the college on the 30th inst. An address will be delivered by Rev. J. Watts Ditchfield, curate of St. Peter's Church, Dartmouth Park, N., who has succeeded in organising large gatherings of working men.

In St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Waterloo, Liverpool, on Sunday week, Mr. David A. Hunter, about to go out to Lovedale, South Africa, was ordained a missionary elder. Rev. W. J. B. Moir, of Lovedale, who assisted the minister of the church (Rev. J. J. Muir) in the service, said that this church was Mr. Hunter's Antioch, from which he was sent forth, and to which, in God's goodness, he would return to tell of the grace of God to the heathen. St. Andrew's, Waterloo, is now the Antioch of Miss Hannah Stephenson in Gugrat, India, Mrs. Wales in China, Mrs. Cooper in Rampore Beauleah, India, and Miss Coombs and Miss Prowse in Lovedale, Africa. Miss Roberts, medical missionary of the Irish Presbyterian Church at Borsad, India, also belongs to this church. Ought not every flock in the land to be the Antioch to some missionary?

Calls.—Rev. P. R. Landreth, of Dundee, to Westchurch, Perth; Mr. J. Ll. Bowen, of Cardiff, to Brynmawr; Mr. T. Evans, of Dyfill, to Cendl, Mon.; Rev. U. Davies, of Prestatyn, Rhyl, to Plasmarl, West Glam.; Rev. E. Lloyd, of Prenteg, to Gatehouse; Rev. E. F. Scott, to Prestwick.

Resignation.—Rev. J. J. Knight, of Bearsden.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

The High School at Hoshangabad, C.P.I., is still in great need of a rightly qualified head teacher.

Our friends, Ernest and Sarah Munnings, have just arrived from Bombay on furlough, and gone to Dublin for a time of rest.

Luke and Elvira Woodard, of Indiana, have also been at work in Ireland, especially in Ulster, and holding very satisfactory meetings.

John T. Dorland, on behalf of the Friends' First Day School Association, has been visiting Ireland. He attended a conference in Belfast, and gave an admirably comprehensive address on adult school work in England. The conference has, we believe, deepened the interest of many Friends in first-day school work.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

The work amongst the soldiers and sailors at Gibraltar continues to develop in extent and usefulness.

Among the inmates of the Bradford shelter there are a minister, a doctor, a journalist, and a first-class accountant.

A Swedish church, holding 1000 people, has been leased for three years for the Brooklyn Swedish Corps, which now comprises 158 members.

The work in Germany is rapidly extending, and a large party of officers is to be despatched at once for this country, while three new corps are to be opened.

The Salvation Army week of self-denial commences next Sunday. £46,105 was raised last year, but increased receipts are necessitated for the much-extended missionary work.

General Booth sailed from Cape Town for Australia on the 14th inst., after conducting most successful meetings in South Africa. His mission here, says a Reuter's telegram from Cape Town, has been most successful, and he has had a gift of 20,000 acres of land in Swaziland made to him in connection with the important extensions of his work.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

At Blackheath, on 15th inst., Mr. G. B. Richardson, a loyal and devoted Evangelical Churchman.—At Dalston, on 7th inst., Mr. Thomas Gambell, of Wendover, for over forty years an active worker.—At Long Itchington, Warwick, Rev. S. A. Ellis, for thirty-one years vicar of the parish.—At the Close, Lichfield, on 15th inst., Prebendary J. F. Smith, known as an active clergyman and a writer on Church subjects.—At Todmorden, Mr. Abraham Stansfield, aged sixty, closely associated with Cornholme Chapel.—At Blyth, on 10th inst., Rev. J. L. Fox, a useful Methodist minister.—At Stapleford, on 13th inst., Mr. Henry Fletcher, aged fifty-one, an earnest preacher of the Gospel.—At Runcorn, Mr. T. Handley, a useful helper.—At Chippenham, Mr. T. Townsend, a leader at the Tabernacle.—At Gateshead, Rev. Samuel Laycock, aged seventy, a devoted Methodist minister for many years.—At Preston, Rev. T. B. Goodwin, who for forty years occupied a leading position among the Wesleyans.—At Newcastle, co. Down, Rev. John Johnston, an earnest and devoted Methodist minister, aged seventy-two years.—At Markethill, co. Armagh, Mr. Joseph Sinton, for over fifty years a consistent Christian, aged sixty-six years.—In Melbourne Hall, Leicester, suddenly, during a meeting of workers, Mr. Charles Clarke, aged fifty-six, who passed away just as he finished a short address.—At Singapore, Miss Sophia Cooke, for forty-two years a missionary of the Society for Promoting Female Education in the East.

Appeals.

The Bethnal Green Free Library.—More than 52,000 persons attended the library, classes, &c., during the past year. On the eve of another winter's work the committee find themselves compelled to appeal for the necessary funds to enable them to meet the needs of the library, and to maintain the institute in a state of efficiency for the moral and mental improvement of the toilers of East London generally. Contributions may be paid to the treasurer, Mr. F. A. Bevan, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

Notices.

Communications Received with Thanks.—F.G. J.P. J.W.P. D.A.F. E.F.G.P. M.F.P. M.A.L. E.H.K. E.S. R.S. J.S. E.R.T. H.C.N. J.G.A. R.T. D.L.R. C.B.B. W.P.H. A.R.S. H.J.E. G.S.M. H.H. J.S. E.H. T.P. Mrs. T. J.A. J.F.B. A.H. D.R.S. C.E.J. S.M.M. H.T. J.N.H. A.K.P. W.R. C.B.H. J.B. E.G.C. H.D. G.D. G.F.H. C.M. G.R. J.P.G. L.H.C. F.I.P. A.P.W. T.C.M. J.K.T. A.D. H.C.S. R.C. R. McC. L.P. E.S.E. J.E.W. G.J.H. J.O. S.M. J.H.H. P.W. E.L.P. C.W.A. G.S. H.L.Y. J.L.S. M.F.P. G.E.T. H.C. J.E.W. E.P.T. E.T.G. F.E.R. F.A.S. A.M.W. C.M.B.

Applicants for Tracts.—R. Roberts, The Rest, Mortlake; W. J. Young, Alleyne's-road, Stevenage, Herts; J. Robinson, 14, High-street, Mortlake; Alex. Bannister, 24, Marlboro'-road, Stratford; Geo. Lyons, 76, Collier-street, Pentonville, N.; E. C. Howard, 17, Hale-street, Linton-street, London, N.; G. Barnes, 18, Penton-place, Pentonville; W. Barnes, 48, Havelock-street, Copenhagen-street, N.; E. Coleman, 142, Cassland-road, South Hackney.

☞ As it is found that infidels and others send papers to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers should be carefully read before being given away.

Christian Workers holding sales for the benefit of Evangelical Missionary effort, will be helped, on writing full details to 'Millions," Lower Bourne, Farnham, Surrey.

MISSIONARY MISSION TO MEN.—A special effort is to be made in November, under the auspices of the C.M.S. Lay Workers' Union for London, for the purpose of arousing and deepening the interest of Churchmen in foreign missions. The reason for the effort is to be found in the fact that so few men, comparatively speaking, manifest any real interest in missionary operations, or realise to any extent the obligation which lies upon the Christian Church as a whole, and themselves as individuals, to make known the glad tidings of salvation throughout the world. The plan to be adopted is, shortly, as follows: (1) Meetings for men in their own parishes between November 15 and 30; (2) sermons to men on Sundays, November 17, 24, or December 1; (3) aggregate meetings in districts; (4) mass meeting for men only in Exeter Hall on Tuesday, December 3. The gatherings will not be missionary meetings of the ordinary kind, but rather aim at enforcing the Scriptural reasons for missionary enterprise and the claims of the heathen and Mohammedan world upon the Christian Church. About one hundred of the churches supporting the C.M.S. within the metropolitan area have up to the present signified their intention of co-operating in the movement, and it is hoped that this number will be considerably increased.

Sacred Songs and Solos

WITH STANDARD HYMNS COMBINED

(750 Pieces).

COMPILED AND SUNG BY Ira D. Sankey.

Words and Music.

Old Notation, Large Type.

		s.	d.
FF 1.	Cloth limp	4	0
FF 2.	Cloth boards	5	0
FF 3.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	6	0
FF 4.	Leather, burnished red edges	7	6
FF 5.	Morocco, gilt edges	10	6
FF 6.	Morocco, yapp, gilt edges	14	6

Old Notation, Cheap Edition.

HH 1.	Cloth limp	2	6
HH 2.	Cloth boards	3	0
HH 3.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	3	6
HH 4.	Leather, burnished red edges	4	6
HH 5.	Morocco, gilt edges	6	6
HH 6.	Morocco, yapp, gilt edges	9	6

Tonic Sol-fa Edition.

RR 1.	Cloth limp	2	6
RR 2.	Cloth boards	3	0
RR 3.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	3	6
RR 4.	Leather, burnished red edges	4	6
RR 5.	Morocco, gilt edges	6	6
RR 6.	Morocco, yapp, gilt edges	9	6

Quarto Edition.

For Use at the Piano, Organ, or Harmonium.

MM 1.	Cloth boards	7	6
MM 2.	Bevelled boards, gilt edges	9	6
MM 3.	Leather, burnished red edges	12	6
MM 4.	Persian morocco, boards, gilt	17	6
MM 5.	Best Turkey morocco, boards, gilt	25	0

Words Only.

Small Type Edition.

AA 1.	Tinted covers	0	2
AA 2.	Printed Cloth	0	3
AA 2½.	Printed Cloth boards	0	4
AA 3.	Cloth boards, gilt	0	6
AA 4.	Leather, burnished red edges	1	0

Nonpareil Edition.

BB 1.	Cloth limp	0	6
BB 2.	Cloth boards	0	9
BB 3.	Leather, burnished red edges	1	6

Pocket Edition.

CC 1.	Cloth limp	0	9
CC 2.	Cloth boards	1	0
CC 3.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	1	6
CC 4.	Leather, burnished red edges	2	0
CC 5.	Morocco, gilt edges	3	0
CC 6.	Morocco, yapp, kid-lined, gilt edges	4	6

Large Type Edition.

DD 1.	Tinted covers	1	0
DD 2.	Cloth limp	1	6
DD 3.	Cloth boards	2	0
DD 4.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	2	6
DD 5.	Leather, burnished red edges	3	6
DD 6.	Morocco, gilt edges	4	6

Extra Large Type Edition.

EE 1.	Tinted covers	2	0
EE 2.	Cloth limp	2	6
EE 3.	Cloth boards	3	0
EE 4.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges	3	6
EE 5.	Leather, burnished edges	4	6
EE 6.	Morocco, gilt edges	6	6
EE 7.	Morocco, yapp, gilt edges	9	6

☞ To Ministers, Evangelists, Sabbath School Superintendents and Teachers, and Christian Workers.—A Specimen Copy of the New and Enlarged Edition of "SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS" (750 pieces), price 2d., together with a Prospectus showing the various sizes of type, will be sent FREE on application to the Publishers.

New Hymns and Solos.

A Collection of 138 New Pieces Compiled by Mr. SANKEY.

Words and Music.

IN OLD NOTATION OR TONIC SOL-FA.

Tinted covers, 1s 6d.; Cloth limp, 2s.; Cloth, bevelled Boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.; Morocco, limp, gilt edges, 7s. 6d.

Words only. Tinted covers, 1d.; Printed cloth, 2d.

Sacred Songs and Solos

(750 Pieces) AND

New Hymns and Solos

(138 Pieces)

BOUND TOGETHER IN ONE VOLUME.

Words and Music.

Old Notation.

		s.	d.
FN 1.	Limp Cloth	5	6
FN 2.	Cloth Boards	6	6
FN 3.	Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges	7	6
FN 4.	Leather, Gilt Edges	9	0
FN 5.	Morocco, Gilt Edges	12	6
FN 6.	Do. Yapp, Kid Lined	17	6

Old Notation, Cheap Edition.

HN 1.	Limp Cloth	4	0
HN 2.	Cloth Boards	4	6
HN 3.	Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges	5	0
HN 4.	Leather, Gilt Edges	6	0
HN 5.	Morocco, Gilt Edges	8	6
HN 6.	Do. Yapp, Kid Lined	12	6

Tonic Sol-fa Edition.

RN 1.	Limp Cloth	4	0
RN 2.	Cloth Boards	4	6
RN 3.	Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges	5	0
RN 4.	Leather, Gilt Edges	6	0
RN 5.	Morocco, Gilt Edges	8	6
RN 6.	Do. Yapp, Kid Lined	12	6

Words Only.

AN 1.	Printed Cloth	0	4
AN 2.	Cloth Boards	0	6
BN 1.	Limp Cloth	0	8
BN 2.	Cloth Boards	1	0
BN 3.	Morocco, Gilt Edges	3	6

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PUBLISHED BY MORGAN and SCOTT.

Tracts

SPECIAL OFFERS.

30/- WORTH FOR 20/-

15/- ,, ,, 10/-

SUITABLE FOR

OPEN-AIR GATHERINGS;
CHILDREN'S MEETINGS;
COLPORTAGE WORK;
SEASIDE SERVICES;
SPECIAL SERVICES;
GENERAL DISTRIBUTION.

In each Tract the Gospel is presented in Pointed, Earnest, and Attractive Fashion.

SPECIAL OFFER.

30/- worth for 20/- net.

A Parcel containing the undermentioned

FIVE THOUSAND TRACTS

(About 384 Varieties) for

£1 net. (Carriage extra.)

(Purchased in separate packets the price of the contents of this parcel would be £1 10s.)

CONTENTS OF THE 20/- PARCEL.

			SOLD SEPARATELY AS FOLLOWS, In Packets, Post free:—
500	BLACKDOWN TRACTS. A Series of Narratives.	32 VARIETIES.	64 for 6d.	128 for 1/-	1000 for 5/9
500	PICTURES OF LIFE. Illustrated. 4 pp. each.	8 ,,	64 , 6d.	128 , 1/-	1000 , 5/9
500	BROWNLOW NORTH'S TRACTS. On Tinted Paper. 4 pp. each.	32 ,,	64 , 6d.	128 , 1/-	1000 , 5/9
500	NARRATIVE TRACTS. By Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Gosse. 4 pp. each.	32 ,,	64 , 6d.	128 , 1/-	1000 , 5/9
300	"THE SCRIPTURE SAITH." Scripture Words: with illustrative incidents. 2 pages each.	16 ,,	150 , 6d.	300 , 1/-	1000 , 3/-
500	HERALD OF MERCY TRACTS. With small Illustrations. 2 pp. ea.	64 ,,	100 , 6d.	200 , 1/-	1000 , 4/1½
200	WORDS FOR WAYFARERS. A Series of Pointed Appeals. 2 pp. each.	16 ,,	150 , 6d.	300 , 1/-	1000 , 3/-
500	HERALD OF MERCY LEAVES. Quarto size. Illustrated. 2 pp. ea.	about 120 ,,	160 , 1/4½	400 , 2/6	1000 , 6/1½
300	PLAIN QUESTIONS. In the very Words of Scripture. 2 pp. each.	16 ,,	150 , 6d.	300 , 1/-	1000 , 2/9
200	BUNYAN LEAFLETS. On Tinted Paper. 2 pp. each.	16 ,,	150 , 6d.	300 , 1/-	1000 , 3/-
500	LAMPS FOR LITTLE FEET. For Distribution at Children's Services, and in Sabbath Schools. 4 pp. each.	16 ,,	100 , 6d.	200 , 1/-	1000 , 4/1½
500	LITTLE TRACTS FOR LITTLE READERS. Illustrated Narratives for Children. 4 pp. each.	16 ,,	100 , 6d.	200 , 1/-	1000 , 4/1½

5000 TRACTS: ABOUT 384 VARIETIES, FOR 20/- NET.

SPECIAL OFFER.

15/- worth for 10/- net.

A Parcel, containing the undermentioned

3000 TRACTS (About 168 Varieties) FOR 10/- net. (Carriage extra)

(Purchased in separate packets the price of the contents of this parcel would be 15/-.)

CONTENTS OF THE 10/- PARCEL.

500	HERALD OF MERCY TRACTS	64 VARIETIES.
300	THE SCRIPTURE SAITH	16 ,,
500	PICTURES OF LIFE	8 ,,
200	WORDS FOR WAYFARERS	16 ,,
300	PLAIN QUESTIONS	16 ,,
200	BUNYAN LEAFLETS	16 ,,
500	LAMPS FOR LITTLE FEET	16 ,,
500	LITTLE TRACTS FOR LITTLE READERS	16 ,,
3000	TRACTS	168 ,,

FOR 10/- NET.

These Tracts are also sold separately. For prices see above.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Forthcoming Meetings.

[Communications respecting forthcoming meetings cannot be inserted unless received by Tuesday morning at the latest.]

The Church Army will send evangelists (working men) to any clergyman on due notice, for short or long missions.—Address, Hon. Sec., 128 and 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, or Wales, on due notice. Apply Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, London, W.C.; or, The Sec., Evangelisation Society, Scottish Branch, The Grove-street Institute, Glasgow.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any Evangelical denomination within the London postal area. Apply, Hon. Sec., 64, Kennington-oval, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for temporary or permanent work in our villages and country towns. Apply to Mr. G. H. Mawer, secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, E.C.

Thorne Evangelistic Missions.—Friends desirous to arrange for mission services, to be conducted by Mr. Thorne, should make early application to the secretary, Mr. James Pearce, Exeter Hall, Strand, to whom subscriptions for the Mission may be forwarded.

Mr. James Eyres, the Liverpool evangelist, conducts missions and supplies pulpits throughout the kingdom (without fee). Preference given to poorer churches of any sect. Address, care of Y.M.C.A., Mount Pleasant, Liverpool; or 37, Hawarden-avenue, Liverpool.

The King's Own Mission, St. James's Hall, Royal-road, Kennington, S.E.—Sun., Mr. O. L. Heatley, 7 p.m.; 3.15 p.m., P.S.A., Mr. O. L. Heatley.

Meetings for Men.—Christian Evidence lectures or evangelistic missions conducted in any part of the United Kingdom. Address, Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh, 70, King's Cross-road, London, W.C.

Exeter Hall.—A special mission to young men is being held here this week and next by Mr. W. R. Lane. Weekdays, 1 and 8 p.m. Sundays, 3.45 and 7 p.m.

Rev. Andrew Murray will lead meetings for humiliation and waiting upon God at the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, E., Oct. 8, at 7.30 p.m.; Oct. 9 and 10, at 11 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m.

Ragged School Union.—Conversazione on "Work Among Cripples," on Friday, Sept. 27, 5.30 to 8.30 p.m., at the Offices, 37, Norfolk-street, Strand, W.C.

Hackney Y.M.C.A., 275, Mare-street, N.E.—Special Mission conducted by Dr. Harry Guinness. Every night at 8.30. On Sunday, meetings for Young Men at 8 a.m. (breakfast), 3, and 8.30 p.m. United service at Cambridge Heath Congregational Church on Sunday evening, 6.30.

Christian Lifeboat Crew monthly muster at Sailors' Welcome Home, 173, St. George-street, Ratcliff-highway, E., on Tuesday, October 1, at 7 p.m.

Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Monthly Workers' Meeting, Friday, October 4; Teachers' meeting at 7, chairman, Mr. J. Christian Hukins; an address by Rev. J. R. Wood, on "The Secret of Increasing Peace." Miss Kate Rogers (C.I.M.), shortly leaving for China, will also speak.

Blackstock Hall, Blackstock-road, Tollington-park, N.—Next Sunday, at 7, Mr. Wigston, of Spain, will preach; and on Monday evening, at 8, he will speak of the Lord's work in Spain.

Richmond Y.W.C.A.—Annual meetings, Monday, October 7, 3.30 and 8, at The Hall, Lower Mortlake-road. Addresses by Rev. Andrew Murray.

Evangelistic Mission.—Kilburn Hall, Kilburn Gate, N.W., Sunday, at 7 p.m., Mr. P. R. Hurditch, Malden Hall, Queen's-crescent, Haverstock Hill, N.W., Mr. P. Garrioch.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Sunday, 11 and 7, Mr. Benjamin Glasgow.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, E.—Open every night at 8; Sunday at 11 and 6.30, Mr. George Nokes.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sunday next, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Mr. J. S. Harrison; 3 p.m., P.S.A.

Clapton Hall, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sundays 6.30, Thursdays 7.30.

Polytechnic, 309, Regent-street.—Mr. Charles Inglis, each Sunday in Sept., at 3.30 and 7 p.m.

Talbot Tabernacle, Notting Hill, W.—Sunday, 11 a.m., Mr. W. R. Lane, and 7 p.m., Mr. W. H. Gaussen.

Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, N.—Sun., 3.30, Mr. W. Packer; and 7, Mr. Forbes Witherby.

Quiet Days in Preparation for Service, at Morley Halls, 316, Regent-street, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, October 2, 3, and 4, daily at 7.30 a.m., prayer meeting; 11 a.m. to 12 noon, Bible reading; 12 noon to 1 p.m., devotional meeting; 3 to 5 p.m., general meeting; 6 to 7 p.m., conversational hour; 8.30 p.m., evening meeting. The meetings will be addressed by Lieut.-Colonel Oldham (who will preside), Mrs. Constantine, Mrs. Penn Lewis, and others.

Homes for Little Boys, Farningham and Swanley.—Queen's Hall, Langham-place, W., Saturday afternoon, October 26, Earl Compton presiding.

Special Religious Services in Theatres, etc.—Sunday, September 29.—Agricultural Hall, 3.30, Rev. Charles Doubble; 7, Mr. Job Williams. Hall of Varieties, Clapham Junction, 3, Mr. J. Jones; 7, Mr. Cromwell. Shaftesbury Hall, Ealing, 7.30, Mr. Robert Smith. Morley Hall, Hackney, 7, Mr. William Coates. Evangelical Hall, Homerton, 3 and 7, Mr. Charles Button.

Coming Conferences.

St. George's Cross Tabernacle, Glasgow, Sept. 28-29.
Dublin.—Sept. 30 to Oct. 3.
Clifton Conference.—Oct. 1, 2, and 3.
West Norwood (Lansdowne Hall).—Oct. 15, 16, and 17 (Second Advent).
Deepening of Spiritual Life.—Hastings, Sept. 30 to Oct. 4; Aldershot, Oct. 1—3; Blackheath, Oct. 1-4; Star Hall, Manchester, Oct. 6-13; Dorking, Oct. 14-18; Wakefield, Oct. 8-10; Barnet, Oct. 8-10; Cork, Oct. 14-18; Ealing, Oct. 15-18; Oxford, Oct. 28-31; Norwich, Oct. 28 to Nov. 1; Belfast, Nov. 4-8; Bradford, Nov. 5-8; Edinburgh, Nov. 11-16.
Quarterly Conference of the P.T.C.A. (Senior Branch), on Tuesday, Oct. 22; Prayer-meeting, 3 to 4; Conference, 4 to 5, Rev. E. J. Hamilton, of Bath, will give addresses at 5 and 8.15.

USE
HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT
FOR BURNS, SCALDS, CUTS, SPRAINS,
OLD WOUNDS, SORES, AND EVERY FORM OF SKIN DISEASE.
THERE IS MAGIC IN ITS TOUCH.

CONSUMPTION.
THE GRAND OLD MEDICINE OF NEARLY 70 YEARS
has maintained its position as the first medicine in all Chest Complaints.*
As a preventative of mischief, it should be taken at the first appearance of Cough or Cold. As a safeguard against Influenza, and in subsequent weakness of the lungs, it has been used with wonderful results.
But the renown of this celebrated medicine in all these cases has been eclipsed by its success in cases of
PHTHISIS PULMONALIS, or CONSUMPTION,
Aptly called the Scourge of England.
Interviews with patients, new and old, by Mr. Congreve's Commissioner, are published every alternate week in most of the weekly journals.
Mr. Congreve's book on Consumption and Chest Diseases may be had post free for one shilling, from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, London, S.E.
* Congreve's Balsamic Elixir may be had of all Medicine Vendors in Bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and large bottles at 11s. and 22s. The smaller sizes are of little use except in slight cases of Cough or Cold.

ABSTAINERS, before Insuring, send for Prospectus of Scottish Temperance Life and Accident Insurance Company (Ltd.), 81, Renfield-street, Glasgow London Office, 96, Queen-street, Cheapside.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER'S
Awarded Grand Diploma of Honour, Edinburgh, 1890; Two Prize Medals, Paris, 1889.
LINEN Collars, Ladies' 3-fold from 3/6 doz. Gents' 4-fold 4/11 per doz.
" Cuffs for Ladies or Gentlemen from 5/11 per dozen.
Samples Post Free.
COLLARS, CUFFS, AND SHIRTS.
Matchless Shirts. Best quality Long Cloth, with 4-fold Linen Fronts, 35s. 6d. per ½ doz. (to measure 2s. extra).
By appointments to the Queen and Empress Frederick of Germany.
ROBINSON AND CLEAVER, BELFAST.

One little bottle of Norton's Pills
Is not guaranteed to cure all ills,
But one little bottle, beyond all question,
Will thoroughly conquer Indigestion!
They have 100 YEARS' REPUTATION of being an UNEQUALLED REMEDY for INDIGESTION, HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, DEBILITY, STOMACH and LIVER COMPLAINTS. A SPLENDID TONIC AND GENTLE APERIENT.
NORTON'S
CAMOMILE PILLS
Mild in Operation, Perfectly Safe, and Free from Injurious Drugs.
In Bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 11s., of all Medicine Vendors. Ask for "Norton's Camomile Pills," and do not be persuaded to take a substitute.
Prepared by Norton's Ltd., 21 Spital Square, London, E.
ONE LITTLE BOTTLE. NORTON'S TRADE MARK.

[Advertisement.]
CORPULENCY.
INCREASING POPULARITY OF
AN EFFECTUAL CURE.
Many of our readers are doubtless familiar with the nature of the extraordinary revolution in the cure of obesity which, within recent years, has been wrought by the original researches of that now eminent expert, Mr. F. Cecil Russell, of Woburn House, Store-street, Bedford-square, London, W.C. It is evident that the certainty, the rapidity, and the agreeable surroundings of his curative process have been recognised, in a very large degree, among ladies and gentlemen belonging to the highest social circles. Keen observers who have an opportunity of judging inform us, through the pages of Society papers and otherwise, that, owing to the general employment of Mr. Russell's treatment, extreme obesity is becoming as much a thing of the past at fashionable gatherings as intoxication; and, no doubt, it will soon be regarded as nearly as disgraceful. The issue of an eighteenth edition of the author's singularly convicting little text-book, "Corpulency and the Cure," however, serves to remind us that the popularity of the system has now reached spheres far remote from those of West-End fashion. The book of 256 pages may be had, post free, by sending six penny stamps to Mr. Russell's offices, as above; and it is worth the careful attention of those who wish to free themselves of a burden of fat—not merely because it is unseemly and adds enormously to the apparent age of the sufferer—but because extreme obesity terribly interferes with the energy necessary in these days of competition to make one's way in the world, or even to earn a very modest competency. A large proportion of the letters of Mr. Russell's grateful correspondents refer to their delight at being enabled—within a very brief period and without any irksome conditions implying semi-starvation—to attack their accustomed tasks with pleasure instead of wearied disgust, through being reduced to their normal weight. The popularity of the system is also largely due, doubtless, to the English hatred of mystery, which is utterly swept aside by Mr. Russell. He fully explains his modus operandi, and supplies the recipe for his preparation.

AN OLD FRIEND OF 20 YEARS' STANDING IS HOCKIN'S REMEDY
FOR
Asthma and Bronchitis.
Easy to Use. Immediate Action. No Injurious Results.
Packets, 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s., all Chemists, or sent direct post free.
Address: R. A. HOCKIN, Ryde, Isle of Wight.
Trial Packet free to any address. Mention paper.

3 GOOD THINGS!
DUNN'S ICELAND MOSS COCOA. Nutritious Digestible!! Tonic!!!

TRADE MARK.
DUNN'S Perfect COCOA ESSENCE. Pure and Palatable.
DUNN'S CHOCOLATES.

BUMSTED'S
TABLE SALT.

USEFUL PRESENTS.
Be Lovers Still!
Friendly Hints to a Bride and Bridegroom.
By Rev. G. Pettitt.
In Beautifully-illuminated Cover, Gilt Edges, 6d.; Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s.
"A dainty booklet, the contents of which are a 'choice blend' of good-will and common sense. . . . As a wedding-gift it is small; but it is like to prove more precious than all costly presents."—The Cambs. Cong. Magazine.
Marriage and Home.
A Volume of Wise Counsels for the Newly-Married.
In Elegant White Cloth binding, with Carmine and Gilt lettering on side, and Gilt edges, 2s. 6d.
In Handsome Leather binding, Gilt lettering on side, and Gilt edges, 4s. 6d.
Ministers will find this handsomely got-up little Volume a very suitable gift on the occasion of the Marriage of any young couple in whom they may be interested.
London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

No. 1340.]

The Christian.

[October 3, 1895.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

PORTRAIT AND SKETCH OF THE LATE PROFESSOR BABINGTON.

Praying Exceedingly. By Rev. Andrew Murray 8
Rev. F. B. Meyer's Exposition 9
The Nobler Conquest 10
The Mainspring. By Mrs. Harvey-Jellie 10
Ninety Years Old 11
The L.M.S. Centenary 12
Ludhiana School of Medicine... 13
Scratching the Surface 13
Our Daily Homily 14
International Sunday-school Lesson 15
For the Young.—The Emptied Cup 15
Notes from Jersey 15
Harvest Poems... 16
The Story of Delia (with portraits) 17
The Gospel in Korea 17
The Evangelist: A Miss is as Good as a Mile ... 18
Christian Conferences 19
Evangelical Alliance Conference 20
Mr. Henry Varley 20
Conference in London 21
The McAll Mission 21
Jewish Mission Tour 21
Irish Railway Talks—5 22
Rev. W. Hay Aitken's Tour 22
A Burman Student's Story 22
London's Cripple Children 23
The Christian Associations 24
Children's Special Service Mission 24
Evangelistic Notes 25
Temperance Notes 26

ANNOUNCEMENTS

of Births, Marriages, and Deaths, inserted in this column.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each additional 9 Words.

Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

MARRIAGE.

PIDDLESDEN—WILTON. — On September 25, at the Baptist Tabernacle, Tunbridge Wells, by Pastor James Smith, Mr. Edwin J. Piddlesden, Secretary of the Sunday School, to Miss Christina Wilton, teacher of the same school.

INSTITUTIONS.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each Additional 9 Words.

Displayed Advertisements according to space.

Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

ANXIETY OF SOUL.—Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS AND MISSION,
High Street, Whitechapel, E.

Received with many thanks, a great-coat from Let him that hath two coats give unto him that hath none." Two pairs of earrings, a locket, a bracelet, etc., from "An Unknown Friend."

Rations of food to hungry children. Infant Day-Nursery. Day and Sunday Schools. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Evening Classes for Boys and Girls. Classes, Meetings, and Institute for Young Women and Elder Girls. Various Meetings, Classes and Parlour for Young Men and Lads. Bible Classes. Evangelistic Services. Lodging House Meetings. Temperance Work and Meetings. Mothers' Meetings. Clubs for Clothing, Coals, Bibles, &c. Prayer Meetings. Country Homes for Men, Women, and Children. Training Home for Motherless Girls, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 72, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to George Holland, The Ragged Schools, George-yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E. c7579

THE BOYS' HOME, SOUTHWARK.

Branches: Greenwich, Ramsgate, Toronto.

OPEN DAY AND NIGHT,

To receive really destitute boys from 6 to 18 years of age without payment or recommendation beyond ABSOLUTE NEED.

Urgent cases are considered at any time, but Mr. Fegan may be personally consulted about Orphan, Homeless, or Erring Boys at the Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E., on Mondays, from 10 till 2.

All communications should be addressed—

J. W. C. FEGAN,
The Boys' Home.
95, Southwark-street, London, S.E.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, Belgravia, S.W., trains ladies for MEDICAL MISSION WORK in Eastern lands. Vacancies for pupils. Next term October. Partially free studentships granted. Funds needed. c5361

THE BENEVOLENT OR

Strangers' Friend Society.

Treasurer, Alderman Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale.
Chairman, J. H. Anderson, Esq.

Founded a hundred and nine years ago. GREATLY STRAITENED FROM WANT OF FUNDS. There are 188 Christian men and women unpaid visitors engaged in the Society's work of BEFRIENDING THE SICK POOR of London. Kindly remember it in testamentary arrangements.

Office, 52, Finsbury-pavement, E.C. c5466

EDUCATIONAL.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.

9d. for each additional 9 Words.

Displayed Advertisements according to space.

Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL.—A clergyman's daughter offers the above. Loving care. Good education. Every attention. Terms £2 monthly, or 20 guineas yearly. Healthy, open neighbourhood.—Tredegar House, East Dulwich-road S.E. 5332

THE LONDON BIBLE WAREHOUSE.

BIBLES AT HALF PRICE, Post Free.

A NEW TEACHERS' BIBLE.

Minion large type edition. Size 7½ × 5⅛ × 1⅜ in.

Best French Morocco, yapp, leather-lined, gilt edges 17/-, for 8/6.
*Algerian Levant, yapp, leather-lined, red and gold edges, silk sewn .. .. 20/-, „ 10/-
*Real Levant Morocco, yapp, kid-lined do. do. 26/-, „ 13/-
*Best Levant Morocco, yapp, kid-lined, silk sewn, the best binding extant .. .. 30/-, „ 15/-

Also a Ruby Type Pocket Edition, French Levant, yapp, leather-lined, red under gold edges, round corners, 12/6, for 6/3.

*India paper Editions, 1/6 extra. Prospectus post free.

THE LONDON BIBLE WAREHOUSE, 53, PATERNOSTER ROW.

THE SALVATION ARMY SELF-DENIAL WEEK.

Thousands of Salvationists are pledging themselves to give up some article of food or clothing, or in some other way to deny themselves during the week ending October 5, 1895, so as to be able to help forward the glorious warfare of the Cross, without lessening their usual gifts to the funds of their own Corps.

WILL YOU HELP?

If so, please send to the Captain of the Corps nearest to your address, or remit to William Booth, 101, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C.

BAGSTER'S BIBLES,

From 3s. 6d.

SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS (Limited), 15, Paternoster Row, London.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies.
1, Carlton Mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.
Principal—Mrs. Hale, A.C.P.

Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters in daily attendance. Resident certificated governesses. Careful personal supervision, home comforts, and Christian training. Preparation for any examination if desired. Good garden and tennis.

Highly recommended by the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. D. MacEwan, D.D. and parents of former and present pupils.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
Delta, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-pk.-rd., W.

THE MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fulneck, near Leeds.—A thorough, advanced, and Christian education. Boys' School, Rev. W. T. Titterington. Ladies' School, Rev. M. B. O'Connor. c5341

MALVERN HOUSE, BLOCKLEY,
WORCESTERSHIRE.

Principals, the Misses Judson. Home school for girls in a lovely and bracing village on the Cotswold Hills. Resident foreign and English governesses and visiting masters. Earnest Christian training. Terms moderate and inclusive. References kindly permitted to the Rev. John Wilkinson, Mildmay Mission to the Jews, and to parents of pupils. The Autumn term begins (D.V.), September 18, 1895. c3968

HIGH-CLASS SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Wilton House, Tylehurst-road, Reading. Head Mistress, Miss Marion White. Assisted by well qualified resident mistresses and visiting professors. Pupils prepared, if desired, for public examination. Wilton House stands on high ground, gravel soil, outside the town. Large garden, cricket field, tennis courts. Tepid swimming bath. Next term begins Thursday, September 19. c5373

STAFFORD HOUSE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, 260, Marylebone-road, London. Principal, Miss Shillaker. Healthy locality, near parks. Individual teaching. Special advantages for music and art subjects. Civil Service and all public examinations. Terms moderate. Highest references. Vacancy for articled pupil. c4476

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.—Principal, Miss Hollis. c2317

UPPER MOUNT, SOUTHSEA.—High-class Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Autumn term, September 17th.—For Prospectus, etc., address, Principal. c5337

HOME SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—The Misses Balch and Edmeades, Clevedon Lodge, Reading. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge Locals (higher, senior, junior), and Trinity College Exams. Vacancy for student teacher (premium). c5188

ROSEBERRY, Western-parade, Southsea, facing sea and common. Christian home school for gentlemen's daughters. Thorough and successful teaching, careful godly training, refined happy home. Resident English and foreign governesses. Highly recommended. Principals, the Misses Robinson. c5405

ABERGELDIE, ALMA ROAD, CLIFTON.—High-class Home School for the daughters of gentlemen. Thorough Christian training. Separate school-house. Tennis, gymnasium, and swimming. Preparations for all exams. Highest references.—Principal, Miss Blanche Morris. c7487

REV. D. B. HANKIN, Mildmay, kindly recommends good home school, two hours from London. Spacious detached house. Thorough education. Fees from £25.—Miss Larter, Nene House School, Thrapstone, Northamptonshire. c5433

EASTBOURNE.—A clergyman's daughter can receive two or three children into her happy home school, for 20 guineas yearly, to fill vacancies. House on sea front, facing south.—Muncaster House, Royal Parade. c7634

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—Gentleman's daughter will be received in seaside home school, on moderate terms, as companion pupil. Educational advantages and every care.—C.L.E., Gehan's Cliftonville Library, Margate. c7642

YOUNG PEOPLE who wish to study German, find a comfortable home in the family of Rev. O. Flex, Karlsruhe, Baden. Particularly suited for Anglo-Indian children. Terms moderate. c7474

Huntingdon House School, TEDDINGTON, Middlesex.

Christian training. First-class masters. Thorough teaching. Moderate fees. Preparation for professional and business life, and for examinations (over 100 certificates gained). Recommended by Rev. Evan Hopkins, Kensington, and many Christian parents. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.
Principal—Mr. Geo. Cumes, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL

To the Public Schools and Royal Navy, for Gentlemen's Sons, aged 8 to 14.

The Old Hall, Wellington, Shropshire. (Founded 1845.) Very healthily situated, 370 feet above the sea, near the Wrekin. 3¼ hours from London, by L. & N.W. or G.W.R. Beautiful grounds, playing fields, &c. Illustrated Prospectus on application to the Head Master, G. E. W. Cranage, M.A. (Shrewsbury School and Trinity College, Oxford); or Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c5382

MR. W. ERNEST MATTHEWS, B.A. (honours), assisted by efficient masters, prepares for the Army, Navy, Universities, Public Schools, etc. Pupils under Christian influence. Excellent situation.—10, Worcester-terrace, Clifton, Gloucestershire. c5388

HAPPY HOME SCHOOL for boys. Thorough education. Every home comfort, with unlimited diet. Health resort. Medical reference. Careful Christian training. Terms inclusive and very moderate.—Principal, Lucton School, Henfield, Sussex. c5418

NEW COLLEGE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Head Master: Rev. G. Hugh Jones, F.A.S. High-class School for sons of Christian gentlemen. Inclusive Fees, £45 per annum; under eleven, £40.

ETONHURST, WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Preparatory school for the sons of gentlemen. Competent masters attend daily. Prospectus on application to Lady Principals. c5334

BEST POSSIBLE EDUCATION, offered pro. tem. at reduced fee by tutor (University honours) of large experience, starting school. Quick, thorough work for any exam. Backward, delicate, or difficult boys. Lovely and most healthy position. Every home comfort, with best of food; opportunity rarely met with, unsurpassed references to pupils' parents.—Z., 295, Strand, W.C. c7606

ALRESFORD HOUSE SCHOOL, MARGATE.—High-class school for the sons of gentlemen. Boys are prepared for the various competitive examinations. Special care of Indian children. Christian home.—Apply, The Principals. c5371

FOLKESTONE

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class school for sons of gentlemen, in the best part of Folkestone. A thoroughly good education with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy. Highest references.—Mr. J. W. C. Fegan, Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-st., S.E. c1574

PENFILLAN HOUSE, FOLKESTONE.—Mr. N. E. Toke, B.A. (Mathematics), and Mr. L. C. Vaughan Wilkes, M.A. (Classics), assisted by special tutors for German and for scientific and military subjects, receive a limited number of pupils for the University, Army, and other exams. Careful supervision, individual attention. Four successes in 1894.

YOUR BOYS have Christian home and education with Mr. and Mrs. W. Dixon, Gordon School, Kingston-hill, Surrey. Established twelve years. Beautifully situated near Richmond Park and rail. London exams. Home comforts. Inclusive terms, 18 to 25 guineas yearly. Entrance, any time. c5250

HURSTPIERPOINT PREPARATORY SCHOOL, near Brighton, Sussex. Individual attention to delicate, backward boys. Home care. Thorough grounding for public schools. Masters. Highest references. Healthy surroundings. Fees, £20.—Address, Lady Principal, Belmont. c7467

STANLEY HOUSE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Thorough education, with decided Christian training. The premises include workshop, chemical laboratory, covered and open playgrounds, tennis courts and cricket field. Delicate boys receive special care. Fees moderate and inclusive.—For prospectus, apply Principal. c2502

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED governess (parent, painstaking. Two and a-half years reference. Certificated English, French, music with theory, drawing (cert.), kindergarten, needlework. £25.—Helen, Mrs. Edwin Hooper's Governesses' Home, Compton-terrace, London. No fees. c7676

GOVERNESS FOR ONE OR TWO children. Young Italian lady. Evangelical. Educated in England. French and music. Well recommended.—Mrs. Darby, Hurstpierpoint. c7681

LADY NURSE, or nursery governess, wanted for four children, youngest five. The others go to day school. Good needlewoman. Age about 28.—Mrs. Bartlett, 38, Connaught-square, W. c7698

YOUNG LADY (18) requires any light daily employment. Could teach and walk out with young children. Elementary English and music. London.—Address, c7696, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, London. c7696

GOVERNESS (believer) wanted, by a widow, seven children, oldest fourteen. One who would value more a Christian home than high salary. Advantage of a simple meeting.—M., Metfield, Harleston, Norfolk. c7687

A SCHOOLMASTER wanted for boys' industrial school. Must be single, abstainer, Churchman, willing to assist in the general work of the institution, and lodge and board in the school. Full particulars required as to experience, references, salary, and age.—Address, c7705, Haddon's Advertising Office, Salisbury-square. c7705

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES

(English and Foreign), recommended GRATIS by Mrs. EDWIN HOOPER, Governesses' Institute and Home, Compton-terrace, London, N. (Established 1879). BOARD AND RESIDENCE from 13s. weekly. No fee to Governesses until placed. Schools recommended and transferred. c5241

SITUATIONS, ETC., WANTED.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN (28), with large business experience, is open to take management of manufacturing or other business, with view to purchase or partnership. Highest references.—c7582, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7582

SECRETARY OR CLERK.—Gentleman, aged 33 years, with good experience in city, commercial, and institution work, desires an engagement as above. Highest references.—Address, c7609, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7609

GENTLEMAN, CHRISTIAN WORKER, with thorough business experience, of good address, desires appointment of responsibility, where there are opportunities for evangelistic work. Unexceptionable references. Country preferred.—A. Z., 1, 3, Fulham-road, S.W. c7608

WOULD ANY CHRISTIAN DRAPER give employment to a respectable all-round man? Has been reclaimed from intemperance. An abstainer the last twelve months. In a Christian family.—Address, R. HUMPHRIES, Blockley, Worcestershire. c7709

CHRISTIAN MAN seeks place of trust, or would make himself useful in any capacity. Age 26. Single, good reference.—Write A.L.X., Willing's, 162, Piccadilly, W. c7684

AS COACHMAN, by a very respectable man, age 30. Light-weight. Thoroughly understands his duties. Ride and drive well, pair or single. Good references. Disengaged. — W. G., 89, Cole-street, London, S.E. c7675

GARDENER, HEAD-WORKING. Thorough practical experience and good references. Age 27. Married when suited.—A. HILL, Sherborne Park Gardens, Northleach, Gloucestershire. c7649

A SITUATION wanted by man and wife (no children), as caretakers, or any post of trust. Christians and abstainers. Good references.—CARETAKERS, Mission Hall, Aldersho... c7615

A CHRISTIAN MISSION and temperance worker, with her son, desires situation to live and work together. Son can serve and manage coffee-house. Total abstainers, with good references. —WARD, Ladson Lodge, Lydd, near Folkestone. c7584

BIBLEWOMAN.—A lady wishes to recommend a Bible woman for similar work. Zealous in her work, strong, and capable.—Apply, A. C., Singleton, Torquay. c7477

AS MATRON.—ENGAGEMENT required in home of rest, Y.W.C.A., small orphanage, or as companion-housekeeper to elderly or delicate lady. Abstainer. Domesticated. Moderate salary.—M., Home of Rest, London-road, Sevenoaks. c76 8

MATRON, QUALIFIED BY EXPERIENCE, seeks re-engagement in Rescue, Training, or Penitentiary Home. Excellent testimonials from committee and clergy. Abstainer. Communicant. — "Clovelly," Genesta-road, Plumstead, Kent. c7651

YOUNG LADY desires an engagement as shorthand writer and typist. Christian work preferred. Shorthand speed 110. Typewriting 40 (Densmore or Remington).—K. F., 17, Benedict-road, Stockwell. c7618

WIDOW, age 30, with little girl age three, seeks situation as housekeeper or place of trust. Good cook and dressmaker. Good references.—L., Bazzar, 8, Churchfield-road, Acton. c7692

AS WORKING HOUSEKEEPER, or place of trust, required by a Christian woman. Abstainer. Good character from last place. London or suburbs only.—E. T., 89, Alexandra-road, Wimbledon. c7690

A FARMER'S WIDOW seeks re-engagement as housekeeper, assistant-housekeeper, or any position of trust. Christian and abstainer. Good references.—HEWETT, 228, High-street, Camden Town. c7653

RE-ENGAGEMENT.—COMPANION, WARDROBE-KEEPER in school, assistant in mission work, or any position of trust. Musical, abstainer. Plain needlework. Previous experience. Good reference. Salary.—37, Lesbia-road, Clapton, N.E. c7655

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED.—Companion or housekeeper in quiet family, or to gentleman where servant is kept. Nine years' recommendation. Experienced. Thoroughly domesticated.—Miss S., 41, Agamemnon-road, West Hampstead, N.W. c7627

A LADY (NOT YOUNG) seeks re-engagement as companion-housekeeper, or any position of trust. A comfortable home the chief consideration.—Address, E., 4, Waverley-place, Finchley-road, St. John's Wood. c7672

NO SALARY.—FRIEND-COMPANION for the winter with nice people and surroundings. Could comfort the lonely or aged. Kind and sympathetic. Highest references.—A.B.C., 90, High-street, Bedford. c7461

LADY (27), highly educated and accomplished, would reside or travel with invalid as medical companion or otherwise. Highest references. —Address, c7598, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7598

CHRISTIAN LADY (trained nurse) seeks engagement as companion to delicate lady, or to have care of invalid child. Highest references.—A., Ansley House, Mill-lane, West Hampstead. c7475

A LADY HIGHLY RECOMMENDS young lady as companion. Good reader, amanuensis. Musical. Bright and active. Some hospital training. Does not object to travel.—Mrs. J. MILFORD BARNETT, Elmwood-avenue, Belfast. c7583

YOUNG LADY wishes for comfortable home with bright Christian family, in return for partial board and helping with housekeeping or teaching music.—c7661, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7661

ENGAGEMENT ON SOUTH COAST, Hastings or Eastbourne preferred. Useful companion or nursery governess. Domesticated, good dressmaker. Comfortable home greater object than high salary.—c7664, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7664

WANTED BY SWISS Christian lady, in return for companionship and services rendered to another lady, or as nursery governess, a home and small stipend. Kind, domesticated. Highest references from clergymen and others.—L.R., 15, Springfield-Place, Landsdown, Bath. c7666

CLERGYMAN RECOMMENDS lady as lady-companion. Accustomed to parish work. Protestant. Cheerful, musical, domesticated, willing. Travelling not objected to.—Further particulars address, ALPHA, care of Mrs. Baker, Great Cornard, Sudbury, Suffolk. c7625

A CHRISTIAN LADY desires a re-engagement as companion to an elderly or invalid lady. Abstainer. Kind and gentle. Excellent references.—T., 38, Keildon-road, Clapham Common, S.W. c7617

LADY WISHES SITUATION as companion to lady, companion-help in family, housekeeper, or any position similar in Christian home. Thoroughly domesticated. Good needlewoman. Highest references. — M. S., 26, Market-square, Aylesbury. c7620

YOUNG LADY DESIRES ENGAGEMENT as useful companion or lady help, where servant is kept. Domesticated, musical. Comfortable Christian home valued. Kindly state salary and particulars.—Miss F. GOUGH, Bodenham, Leominster. c7610

RE-ENGAGEMENT AS MOTHER'S HELP, to only one child preferred. Minister's daughter (31). Thoroughly domesticated. Good tempered. Abstainer. Understands good plain cooking. Moderate salary.—A., 8, Queen's-road, Buckhurst Hill, Essex. c7677

A LADY WISHES to recommend a person as useful maid to elderly or invalid lady.—Mrs. JAMES, Wheathill Lodge, 199, Croydon-road, Anerley, S.E. c7641

AS PLAIN COOK.—A young person seeks light situation only, in London. Abstainer.—Address, H., care of Miss Bennett, 16, Park Village East, London, N.W. c7632

A LADY WISHES to recommend her under-housemaid as housemaid or children's maid, latter preferred. Age 21, abstainer, good needlewoman. Four years present situation.—Address, Mrs. PELLY, Theydon Place, Epping. c7599

A LADY RECOMMENDS a tall girl of fourteen for housework. Has had some training.—Miss BUXTON, Easneye, Ware. c7595

SITUATION WANTED by a Christian young woman, age 20, as general servant in a small family where another is kept. Total abstainer. Wages £16. Three years and nine months' character. Highgate or Hampstead preferred.—A. P., 4, Victoria-road, Camden Town, N.W. c7593

LADY WISHES SITUATION for middle-aged woman, who was about two years in temperance home, and since eighteen months in service. Good needlewoman. Could be house-tablemaid in small family.—Apply, Mrs. LOCKHART, 9, Royal-terrace, Edinburgh. c7603

WANTED, IN CHRISTIAN FAMILY, situation for young woman, been in a home twelve months. Can wash and iron.—MATRON, Rescue Home, Westbourne Green, Harrow-road, W. c5548

SITUATIONS, ETC., VACANT.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

ASSISTANT MINISTER wanted for Countess of Huntingdon Church (Liturgy used), to help with services and work mission room, in exchange for furnished cottage, pleasantly situated, and small remuneration. Must be a good Gospel preacher.—Apply, K., Hickman's Library, Dorking. c7600

MISSION TO JEWS, 36, Wellclose-square, E.C. (old Mildmay Mission). Earnest Christian workers would be heartily welcomed Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, at 8, Saturday at 3 p.m. c7656

ASSISTANT SECRETARY. — Wanted for Dublin, a Christian gentleman, aged under 50, to act in connection with a well-known Evangelical society. Salary £150 per annum. Naval or military half-pay officers of such experience will not be objected to.—Send copies of testimonials to W., care of William Fry and Son, Solicitors, 14, Lower Mount-street, Dublin. c7703

TO MEDICAL MEN seeking partial retirement, light service is required at a small health resort in a beautiful neighbourhood.—Address, c5329, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C. c5329

INDOOR MANSERVANT.—Wanted, a steady, civil respectable man in the country. Christian and abstainer. Must thoroughly understand his work.—Address, with photo and full particulars, to "INDOOR SERVANT," Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. N.B.

GROOM AND COACHMAN wanted in the country, a steady respectable man, Christian and abstainer, thoroughly up to his work, and with unexceptionable references. If married, no children. Send photo and full particulars to "COACHMAN," Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. N.B.

A THOROUGHLY GOOD single-handed gardener wanted. Man without family preferred.—Address, stating wages, to DRESSER, Topclyffe Grange, Farnborough, R.S.O., Kent. c7636

WANTED AT ONCE, an earnest Christian lady evangelist for mission attached to Congregational Church. Salary £40.—Apply, with full particulars and references, JAMES WATTS, Cross Keys-street, Merthyr Tydfil. c7618

EXPERIENCED LADY COLLECTOR wanted, Unsectarian and abstainer, for rescue work. Should live near Manchester, to canvass Lancashire and Yorkshire towns. References required.—c7592, Haddon's Advertising Offices, Salisbury - square, London, E.C. c7592

YOUNG LADY OF CHRISTIAN CHARACTER REQUIRED in Private Hotel, conducted on Christian principles. Must be thoroughly domesticated, quick, willing, and good address. Small salary. Unexceptionable references needed.—c7658, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7658

MIDDLE-AGED CHRISTIAN WOMAN wanted to take entire charge of small crèche in S.E. district. Abstainer. Comfortable home.—Particulars, lowest terms, and references to c7690, c.o. Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7690

MOTHERS' HELP wanted for October 17.—Take charge of four children and assist in housework. Three attend school, youngest 2½. Good needlewoman. Church. State age, wages, and experience. No reply if suited.—Mrs. ADAMS, Devonshire Lodge, Basingstoke. c7686

WANTED IN VERY QUIET country place, a respectable Christian needlewoman (middle aged), who understands a little about sick nursing. Wages moderate. Two other maid servants kept.—BETA, Blackdown House, Crewkerne. c7588

TRAINED NURSE wanted, middle-aged, for winter months, in a school, to help train young matron. Some needlework required.—Address, MACKIE, Sedbergh, Yorks. c7590

FRENCH, SWISS, OR GERMAN NURSE.—Can lady thoroughly recommend Protestant, required end of October, for three little girls, 8, 6, 8½?—Address, Mrs. MARSTON, Icomb Rectory, Stow-on-the-Wold, Glos. c7614

MOTHER'S HELP wanted in Christian family. Thoroughly domesticated. Good needlewoman, and fond of children. Abstainer. Young servant kept. Comfortable home.—Mrs. SEAR, 1, Eaton-terrace, St. John's Wood. c7610

COOK.—WANTED, A THOROUGHLY good plain cook. Christian and abstainer.—Apply by letter to Miss L., 8, Vanbrugh-terrace, Blackheath, S.E. c7671

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, must be abstainer. Some housework. Small family. Nurse and housemaid kept. Good wages.—Apply by letter to Mrs. D., Trecombe, Arthur-road, Wimbledon Park. c7670

GOOD COOK and careful manager in the country wanted, a conscientious person, middle aged. Christian and abstainer. Two in family, five servants. Good kitchenmaid kept.—Address, with photo and full particulars, Good Cook, care of Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C.

TWO SUPERIOR SERVANTS wanted at once, one as good plain cook, and house-parlourmaid. Abstainers. Christians. No fringe. Quiet, small family. Easy place.—Mrs. A., care of Brown, Stationer, Streatham. c7693

A SUPERIOR upper housemaid wanted for Tasmania, who understands waiting on the lady. She must be a good needlewoman, able to take charge of the house linen, thoroughly competent in every department of her work, and with an undeniable character. Also a good cook in the same family. Good wages.—Address, Mrs. REED, 72, Worple-road, Wimbledon. c7652

NURSE-HOUSEMAID wanted in family of four. Take charge of two children. Light house duties, needlework. Good character indispensable. Wages £14.—Address, K., Clareville, King's Hall-road, Beckenham. c7595

KITCHENMAID wanted, over 19.—School-house. Eight servants. Wages £16. Must be quiet and respectable.—Address, MACKIE, Sedbergh, Yorks. c7590

CAN LADY RECOMMEND good plain cook-general servant (for small private school (boys')? An early riser and steady. Christian home.—Address, Avenue House, Sevenoaks. c7678

SUPERIOR SERVANT for general work wanted. Thorough references. £18 to £20. No washing. One lady. South-west district. Christian privileges.—c7605, Haddon's Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7605

A GOOD STRONG GENERAL servant and cook wanted, for the country, near Reigate. Also a house-parlourmaid.—X., care of T. Leach Linkfield-corner, Redhill. c7691

STRONG GENERAL SERVANT wanted in a quiet Christian family in North London. Also a young lady, fond of children, as mother's help. —Address, c7688, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7688

EARNEST CHRISTIAN wanted, as general servant. Must be strong. Washing done at home. Nurse kept.—Address, Mrs. W., 2, Elmwood-road, North Park, Croydon. c7622

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, for superior, comfortable situation. Help given. Early riser and abstainer essential.—Apply to Miss BENNETT, 16, Park Village East, London, N.W. c7631

TWO YOUNG GIRLS wanted, one as general servant, the other as housemaid. Comfortable Christian home, with every convenience.—11, Wolseley-road, Crouch End, N. c7608

COOK-GENERAL servant wanted, also housemaid, in a small family.—Rosebery, Carleton-road, Tufnell Park, N. c7611

LADIES WANTING SERVANTS and servants seeking situations, should apply to Miss MAULDEN (late missionary), 97, Harrow-road, Paddington Green, whose office is well known and kindly recommended by the Rev. G. F. Pentecost, D.D., and others. Stamps for reply. c7678

7s. 6d. A WEEK SALARY and upward offered to both sexes (for spare moments) everywhere. The work may be done evenings.—Apply, enclosing addressed envelope, to M. TRUSCOTT AND Co, 5, Sherwood-terrace, Chelston (105), Torquay. c5402

PROFITABLE ladylike business at home (10s. to 60s. weekly) can be secured with an "Automatic" Knitter. Cash or hire. Work can be had. —Write to C. V., Director, 67, Southwark-street, London. c542

TO LET, APARTMENTS, ETC.

30 WORDS FOR 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by JOHN HADDON & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than MONDAY.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C. — A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

W. TAVERNER, TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from Great Northern, Midland, and North-Western Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Silent roadway. Ten minutes from British Museum. Tariff on application.

AT LONDON.—TRANTER'S TEMPERANCE HOTEL, Bridgewater-square, Barbican, near St. Paul's Cathedral, G.P.O., and all places of interest. Quiet, clean, economical.—Write for "Visitors' Guide," showing "How to Spend a Week in London," with tariff and testimonials, post free.

LONDON, VISITORS TO,

Will find Rest, Comfort, and Kindness at Bernard's
Private Christian Temperance Hotel,
1 and 2, Granville-square, King's Cross-road, W.C. Quiet square. Most central position in London. Bed and breakfast, 3s. Bed, breakfast, and tea, 3s. 9d. Reduction to Ministers. No attendance fees or gratuities. Write "Secretary" for rooms. c5416

BURR'S HOTEL, Queen-square, London, W.C., near British Museum, in centre of Metropolis, but just out of the daily noise and bustle, thus giving restful quiet. Write for terms. c5379

BOSCOMBE, BOURNEMOUTH.—To let, suites of rooms or entire house, well furnished, fifteen rooms, choice position, main road, very near sea, gardens, arcade, etc. Terms on application.—86, Christchurch-road. c5363

BOSCOMBE, BOURNEMOUTH.—Ladies' holiday boarding house. Near sea and chine gardens. Temperance. Terms 18s. to 25s. weekly. Special terms for long period. Stamp for reply.—Miss ELLIS, Fairleigh, Drummond-road. c5503

BOSCOMBE, BOURNEMOUTH.—Refined home offered to a Christian lady, not an invalid, as paying guest, on very moderate terms, for sake of companionship, permanently or otherwise.—VERITAS, 73, High-street, Cheltenham. c7655

CASTLE COURT, EAST CLIFF, BOURNEMOUTH.

Private Boarding Establishment (warmed by coils in winter) overlooking Boscombe Chine Public Gardens. Magnificent land and sea views. Excellent Cuisine. Private Apartments. Boro' Sanitary Certificate.
MR. & MRS. J. D. HAZARD.

BOURNEMOUTH WEST. Most comfortable boarding house. Near sea. Charming views. Pleasant garden. Tennis lawn. Generous table. Sanitary certificate. Bright, Christian home. Moderate terms.—Durley Hall, Durley Chine, Mrs. MANWARING, Proprietress. c5331

BOURNEMOUTH.—THE HOMESTEAD, St. Peter's-road.—Comfortable winter apartments, well furnished, in large and small suites. Sheltered. South aspect. Central, and pleasantly situated. Near sea and pines.—Mrs. NICHOLLS, Proprietress. c7597

BOURNEMOUTH. — APARTMENTS WELL-FURNISHED, sitting-room and bedroom. Close to sea and station. Home comforts, with every attention. Terms 18s. per week. Extra bedrooms if required. — Mrs. SCOTT, Hunterstone, Southcote-road. c7646

BOURNEMOUTH (near sea, overlooking public gardens). Comfortable winter apartments, south aspect, sheltered position, bath (h. & c.), good cooking and attendance, warmed corridors. Terms moderate.—Mrs. HARPER, Pine Glen, Spencer-road. c7619

BOURNEMOUTH. — THE MIDLAND Family and Commercial Temperance Hotel. Cuisine first class. Near West Railway Station. Electric light. Handsomely furnished coffee, drawing, reading, and commercial rooms.—Boarding terms on application to MANAGERESS. c5449

BOURNEMOUTH.—A HOME FROM HOME is offered to visitors wishing to spend the winter, or otherwise. Facing gardens, near sea, pines, station. Board or apartments. Recommended. Moderate terms.—28, Francis-road. c7691

BOURNEMOUTH. — COMFORTABLE APARTMENTS, £1 1s. Large combined room, south, 10s. 6d. Boarders, 21s. and 25s. weekly. Clerical references.—PROPRIETRESS, "Carrington," Wootton Gardens. c7700

GLENMALURE, WEST CLIFF GARDENS, BOURNEMOUTH.

Situated on high ground, but very sheltered. Two minutes from the Cliff and Pines. Mrs. C. H. Mackintosh (widow of Dr. Mackintosh, of Poole) receives a limited number for board and residence. Good table. Special care given to invalids. Sanitary Certificate. c6288

BRIGHTON.—Sussex House Boarding Establishment, 58, Old Steine.—Sea view, near to Pavilion, Aquarium, and Piers. Liberal table, home comforts. Terms moderate.—Mr. and Mrs. Box. Established 20 years. c5116

MORELAND HOUSE, BRIGHTON. 116, Lansdowne-place. Recommended by Rev. David Davies. Beautiful situation near sea and lawns. Refined and homelike board and residence. Liberal arrangements. Terms moderate. c4625

BRIGHTON.—Wanted, a small house for some weeks in the winter. Sunny situation. If with stable preferred.—Reply, stating terms, B., 15 Ampton-road, Birmingham. c7639

The Christian.

☞ To avoid delay it is requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan and Scott, and not to its individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for THE CHRISTIAN should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 1 of cover.)

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

☞ The Publishers request that all orders for THE CHRISTIAN by post, and remittances for same, be addressed to "THE CHRISTIAN" POSTAL DEPARTMENT, BOUVERIE HOUSE, SALISBURY SQUARE, LONDON, E.C.

Cheques and Post Orders to be made payable to Messrs. John Haddon and Co. at that address.

The subscription for one year, including Postage and Coloured Almanack, is as under :—

For Great Britain and Ireland ..	6s. 7d.	per annum
For India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, France, Germany, and other European Countries	8s. 10d.	" "
For United States and Canada ..	2¼ dols.	" "
Or including Monthly Copy of HERALD OF MERCY	2½ dols.	" "

Subscriptions for THE HERALD OF MERCY.

4 Copies monthly	2s.	per annum
8 " "	4s.	" "
12 " "	6s.	" "
24 " "	12s.	" "

Post free to any address at home or abroad.

Remittances to be sent as above. Postcard should be enclosed for receipt or extra stamp to cover postage of same.

Notes and Comments.

MAY we remind our readers of the special meetings next week at the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End Road? On Tuesday evening at 7.30 there will be a gathering specially for prayer, and there are to be conference meetings on the two following days at 11, 3, and 7. Rev. Andrew Murray hopes to speak at most of the meetings, and other Christian workers will take part. In connection with the meetings we would direct attention to Mr. Murray's article on prayer to be found on next page.

It was pointed out at the L.M.S. Convention that at the formation of the Society there was no trace of strain, over-exertion, or anxiety on the part of its founders; it was formed in the joy of the Holy Ghost. There was more joy of the Spirit than anything else to be seen. And yet what an immense task they had before them! It is that joy in the Spirit which is still wanted in every work; out of it true work comes, by means of it true work is nourished and crowned. "The fruit of the Spirit is joy." "It is not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord." As the word grew originally there was much joy among the believers—that was the joy of harvest.

One of the speakers at the Convention drew attention to the vital difference there is between the conception of our Lord entertained by some natives of India and that which is given in the Scriptures. These men call Him "the flower of humanity," and He is that, but He is also its root. He is human, but He is also the Lord and Creator of men. This observation was in harmony with that of Mr. Chalmers, who said that he was one of the old-fashioned Christians who believe in conversion, who think that men should be brought definitely to believe that God loves them, and that Christ died for them. "I don't understand the new terms," he added. The Convention was a grand vindication of the power of the old Evangelical faith.

"What do you mean to do with it?" inquired Mr. Chalmers, the pioneer of New Guinea, as he broke into a discussion on the work done for Africa. "You have just cheered a reference to the sweeping away of the drink traffic; but do you mean to do anything in reality?" Then he went on to tell how the Governor of New Guinea had passed an ordinance making it penal for any one either to sell or give drink to another, with a fine of £30 or six months' imprisonment for a first offence, and expulsion from the island for a second offence. And the first offender was punished accordingly. Yes; if we could move in that way, it would be an immense satisfaction; but with opinion divided, even among Christian people, we are weakened.

But the weakness is wearing away; and nothing so wears it away as to hear of the deadly effects of drink among native tribes. See the position of many Christians to-day. They would hold up both hands for Khama to have the power to keep drink out of his kingdom, but they vote for the drink traffic at home, and use the drink. Can this inconsistency continue? The drink question returns to us from abroad, demanding an answer in a new form; we give the answer, and that answer will have to stand for Britain also. It is not what are we going to do with the drink traffic, but what is it going to do with Christians who drink; it is going to make them abstainers. Many a man has become an abstainer for the sake of his children; and Christians will have to do it for the sake of their spiritual children.

The combination of industrial work with missionary enterprise in foreign mission fields is one that holds many grand possibilities, under proper management. The Industrial Missions Aid Society, which is now in course of formation, seems to be planned on a solid and hopeful basis. It has received the sanction of some of our long-established missionary societies, and its objects are highly commended by many experienced Christian workers in heathen lands. It aims at being a handmaid to missions, while relieving them of financial responsibility for its operations. We understand that a preliminary public meeting in connection with the Society will shortly be held; due notice will be given in our columns. Meantime Christian friends interested can obtain particulars from the office of the Society, 32, Old Jewry, London, E.C.

There are many kinds of public meetings in support of the spread of the Gospel. There is the quiet, serious meeting, in which light is diffused, the heart is touched, the conscience is roused, the whole soul is moved and gained. There is little thought of the speaker and of his style, but a good deal of his subject and purpose. It is a time when, as John Woolman would phrase it, "the fountain of love is opened." There is another kind of meeting, in which fun and fancy, rhetoric and sarcasm, wit and humour, play a great part. The fireworks are on, the clapping is loud and exciting; but you feel no nearer to God, and the voice of the Spirit is hushed. A merely flashy speech may do immense harm.

What is the secret and centre of all true work for the Saviour? To dwell near his heart, which is love. No appeals are so melting as his love to us and to all men; no authority is so commanding as the love which bought us; no patience is so enduring as the love which bears with us and saves us. To abide in his love is to be ready unto every good work; and if we are not made ready in that way, we shall never be ready at all.

If our rising generation of Englishmen are ignorant of the Bible, and we fear it is largely the case, it cannot be for want of abundant means placed within their reach for knowing and understanding it. The various schemes of Bible lessons and daily readings evince great activity, and there must be a good deal of honest reading, and let us hope, useful study. The Congregational Union is now preparing to issue a series of lessons for Sunday-schools and Bible classes. That they will benefit many who already read in connection with some existing Union is certain; we hope it may also lay hold upon some classes of young persons not already reached and included in any union.

The extent to which sport is absorbing the physical and mental strength of our young population is a serious question. Cricket in summer and football in winter seem to thousands as important as earning their daily bread, or more so. Athletics are good, we hold, so long as they mean reasonable exercise for the sake of health; but when they lead to over-exertion on the part of contestants, to gambling and drinking, and neglect of duty on the part of thousands, they are undoubtedly harmful. When we read of football interrupting the work of factories, and injuring the work of Sunday-schools, it is clearly carried to excess. It would appear that a large proportion of our population is too idle to indulge in healthful games, but contents itself with reading about them and betting on their results. More harm is done thus than by any actual sport which is enjoyed. The sins of the flesh will find gratification from one source or another, until the heart is set right with God.

The subject of boys' reading continues to engage a good deal of attention, and the correspondence will be useful by showing how much is being done in certain places, and thus showing other places how much they may do. The provision made for boys in some of our libraries is a most healthy sign. In the olden time, when books were scarce, it was the boy who used any odd collection of books available to him, and attended the week-night school, who generally became the intelligent worker, and frequently the influential employer. Mr. Stead makes some wise and practical suggestions on the matter, but we quite dissent from his view that boys "had better read 'penny-dreadfuls' than nothing at all." The witness of the police-court contradicts such a theory. Once more it is the heart that is at fault. Literate or illiterate, man will follow his evil bias until he yields his will to his Maker.

A minister states that his chief difficulty is to get his deacons and pew-holders to relinquish their absorbing interest in the race for gold, politics, and municipal affairs, "which crowd better thoughts out of existence." A great many ministers would say that that was their chief difficulty. One declares, that, after having urged men of ability and social standing to enter public life, and then seen them forsaking every week-day service, he almost regrets what he did, and thinks he will never repeat it. The loss to the Church is not even balanced by a corresponding gain to the world, for these friends cease to carry with them in all its pure force a devotional spirit.

Two or three answers may be made to those people who have lately been so loud in their denunciation of the "reckless expenditure" of life in connection with missionary work. (1) A good deal more is spent for military purposes; to wit, present French losses in Madagascar, or we might say, the number of English disabled every year in reviews alone. (2) Our Empire is built upon the lives of its countrymen, and we also take life without scruple; but our Saviour asks only for the lives of his own disciples. (3) We never retreat from any national position because a few soldiers lay down their lives there. It is very singular to see how tender the Press becomes over a few missionaries, and how hard it can be over a few thousand soldiers, yet it will blame the work of the missionaries, and praise that of the soldiers.

A remark concerning worldly amusement is made in Mr. Meyer's paper on David (p. 9), which suggests yet another thought. Many Christians abjure the theatre and the opera, but find pleasure in the circus and other forms of worldly entertainment. He is not the best coachman who drives nervously near to danger, but he who keeps as far from it as he can. A similar principle holds good in the spiritual life. It is Christian as well as humanitarian—

> Never to blend your pleasure or your pride
> With sorrow of the meanest thing that feels.

This is not a high requirement, but its principle would debar us—say rather would save us—from finding pleasure in any performance in which we could not ourselves engage without forfeiting our good conscience or our Christian reputation. The life of many young disciples, who have sat under Jesus' shadow with great delight, and instinctively presented their bodies a living sacrifice to God, as their reasonable service, is spoiled at the outset by the cruel kindness of withered Christians, who lead them to suppose that they cannot enjoy life without something of the world, the flesh, and the devil in it. It is characteristic of God's little children that they have known the Father; but if anyone love the world, the love of the Father is not in him.

A MINISTER'S DILEMMA.

No doubt many of our readers will remember the case of Rev. Chas. Joseph, of Portsmouth, who, some months ago made certain allegations as to the character of a licensed house in the town. His statement was made at a public meeting and reported in the local press. As a result, the publican brought an action for libel against the minister, the latter being condemned in damages and costs, in spite of his declaration on oath that he had been incorrectly reported. Unless the full amount be paid at once, Mr. Joseph will be declared a bankrupt. But to avert this disaster, and in view of the services he has rendered in the town to the cause of social and moral reform, a strong committee has been formed, with the vicar at the head, composed of the leading clergy and Nonconformist ministers. The amount needed is £700. Full particulars may be had of Rev. John Kemp, Coombe Lodge, Castle-road, Southsea. This is a case in which all interested in temperance reform should take sympathetic part.

A LADY MATRON is required for St. Luke's House, the Home for the Dying, of the West London Mission. It is a very important post, and one for which several special qualifications are necessary, including hospital training. Full particulars may be had of Mr. Howard Barrett, 49, Gordon-square, W.C.
[948]

Night and Day, Praying Exceedingly.

THE TRUE CONVENTION SPIRIT.

"Night and day praying exceedingly that we might see your face, and might perfect that which is lacking in your faith." Thus the Apostle expresses his one aim in desiring to see the Thessalonian Christians; "to perfect that which is lacking in your faith;" and the intensity of his unceasing waiting upon God to accomplish through Him what his heart longed for: night and day praying exceedingly. The word Convention simply means, coming together. The blessing Paul aimed at in meeting his converts, and the way in which he sought that blessing, suggest what the spirit of our Conventions, of all our meetings for worship, ought to be.

That I might perfect that which is lacking in your faith. The faith of a Christian may be bright and joyous, and yet lacking in many things—in intensity, in extent, in spirituality, and in power of action and victory. What is lacking must be perfected, or the development will be arrested, and stagnation, backsliding, feebleness set in. In the most earnest young converts what is lacking must be perfected. How much more is this needed in those who have already grown cold. The great work of the ministry is to perfect that which is lacking in the faith of God's children. This is the object of our Conventions.

Paul believed that in answer to prayer God could enable him to do this work. Hence his night and day praying exceedingly. He believed that power from above was needed; he believed that it would be given in answer to much prayer. Night and day praying exceedingly was his preparation for the blessed work.

It is this we need for our Conventions. We praise God for what He has wrought, but we long to see his power more abundantly manifested, in a deeper, mightier, more extended work among his people. Let us make it the keynote of our Convention gatherings, night and day praying exceedingly.

The need is great. And the worst feature is that it is not realised. What efforts are being made to rouse to prayer on behalf of the perishing heathen! And how many Christians pray daily for them. What interest is being awakened in the neglected masses of our own country! And how much prayer is made for the help of God in all our undertakings on behalf of these! How much prayer is offered, in connection with evangelistic work, for the ingathering of the unconverted in our churches!

But how little systematic definite prayer is there for the thousands of our fellow believers who are living in a low and feeble state. How little sense there is of the dishonour done to Christ, of the hindrance to his work, of the loss to his Church by the life they live. How little real sorrowing on their behalf, how little hope that it can be otherwise, how little pleading in love with God in the first place for the believers around us. And yet, without a great revival within the Church, its work can never be done as God would have it done. Would God that the Paul spirit, in view of what is lacking in the faith of our brethren, might be ours—night and day praying exceedingly.

Our Conventions are the great witnesses to the need of more holiness, and the faith that God can work a change, and the power which He does bestow for a consecrated life, and the desire He works in our hearts on behalf of our brethren. Let much, let unceasing prayer be made that the Spirit out of which they are born, by which they are pervaded, in which all their work is followed up, be none other than this: night and day praying exceedingly.

Let us pray for the speakers. It is not enough that they have in times past spoken in power, and are ready to speak again. God may have new sides of truth He wants taught.

There may be new difficulties to be met. There are deeper applications of the truth to be made. There are larger spheres of life to be brought under its sway. Let us pray for the speakers; that each of them may be like Paul—night and day praying exceedingly; that all together they may in prayer be baptized ever afresh into one Spirit; that their insight into the terrible need of the Church, and of believers, who have as yet never wakened up to the consciousness of their low estate, may be more clear; that their sense of impotence and of the need of a Divine interposition may be ever deeper; that their faith in the glorious sufficiency of the Divine provision may be ever brighter; that their whole presence in the Convention may be as of men who have met God and have power with Him. Pray for the speakers—night and day exceedingly.

And pray for all who assemble, that those who know what entire consecration is may all come to be a spiritual power in the gathering, carrying, and imparting the sense of God's presence, the very bearers of a hidden Divine power. That all whose faith is yet lacking may come into close contact with the convicting and searching power of God's Spirit, and be led to an immediate and complete repentance of their life of indecision. That the Word of God may be as a sword and as a fire, to wound and to burn; a heavenly power to deliver and to bless.

Night and day praying unceasingly, where this is the atmosphere of a gathering, God's presence will be felt, and it will be as of old. "If there come in one that believeth not, or one that is unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all: and thus are the secrets of his heart made manifest; and so falling down on his face he will report that God is in you of a truth."

And pray that the Convention may so long be bearers of God's great power; that from them a spiritual influence shall go out to convince those who were never present, and to bless the whole Church of God.

Night and day praying exceedingly.—Be this of God's grace, the spirit in which we look forward, the covering under which we gather and tarry in our waiting on God, the power in which we part.

"I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O, Jerusalem, which shall not hold their peace day nor night. Ye that are the Lord's remembrancers, keep not silence, and give Him no rest till He establish and till He make Jerusalem a name in the earth.

"Shall not God avenge his own elect, which cry day and night unto Him, though He bear long with them? I tell you that He will avenge them speedily."

Ardrossan, N.B. ANDREW MURRAY.

THE MERCHANTS' LECTURE.—The first lecture of the winter session was given on Tuesday, at 1 p.m., in the Memorial Hall, by Rev. J. M. Gibbon, of Stamford Hill. His topic for this month's course is "The Epistle to the Hebrews." In Tuesday's lecture, after some preliminary thoughts on the correspondence of our times with those in which the Epistle was written, Mr. Gibbon dealt with Christianity in the light of our Lord's unique Divine and human personality. It was a singularly cogent and eloquent demonstration of the Divinity of Jesus Christ, and the supremacy of his revelation of the Father. Next Tuesday the subject will be "Christianity Viewed in the Light of Christ's Life and Death."

Oh for the Water of the Well of Bethlehem!

2 Sam. v. 17-25, xxi. 15, xxiii. 8.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER.

It must have been a rare and imposing assembly that came to crown David King of all Israel. The Chronicles record the names and numbers of the principal contingents that were present on that memorable occasion (1 Chron. xii. 23, etc.). Mighty men of valour from Judah and Simeon; Levites, led by Jehoiada and Zadok; famous men from Ephraim; men of Issachar that had understanding of the times; of Zebulun, such as were not of double heart, and could order the battle array. These and many more, amounting in all to 331,300 men of war, came with a perfect heart to Hebron to make David king over all Israel. For three days they remained with him, keeping high festival, the provisions being contributed by such distant tribes as Zebulun and Naphtali, as well as by those near at hand, so that all Israel participated in the joy of the occasion.

The Philistines, however, were watching the scene with profound dissatisfaction. So long as David was content to rule as a petty king in Hebron, leaving them free to raid the northern tribes at their will, they were not disposed to interfere, but when they heard that they had anointed David king over all Israel, all the Philistines went down to seek David. They probably waited until the august ceremonial was over, and the thousands of Israel had dispersed to their homes, and then poured in on Judah in such vast numbers, spreading themselves in the Valley of Ephraim, and cutting off David's connection with the northern tribes, that he was forced to retire with his mighty men and faithful 600 to the hold, which, by comparison of passages, must have been the celebrated fortress-cave of Adullam (2 Sam. v. 17 and xxiii. 13).

I.—A SUDDEN REVERSAL OF FORTUNE.

It was but as yesterday that David was the centre of the greatest assembly of warriors that his land had seen for many generations. With national acclaim he had been carried to the throne of a united people. He had realised that he was fondly enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen; now to-day he is driven from Hebron, where for more than seven years he had dwelt in undisturbed security, back to that desolate mountain fastness, in which years before he had taken refuge from the hatred of Saul. It was a startling reversal of fortune, a sudden overcasting of a radiant noon, a bolt out of a clear sky. It is probable, however, that he took refuge in God. These were days when he walked very closely with his Almighty Friend, and he did not for a moment waver in his confidence that God would perfect what concerned him, and establish him firmly in his kingdom.

Such sudden reversals come to us all, to wean us from confidence in men and things, to stay us from building our nest on any earth-grown tree, to force us to root ourselves in God alone. It was salutary that David should be reminded at this crisis of his history that he was as dependent on God as ever, and that He who had given could as easily take back his gifts. Child of mortality, such lessons will inevitably be set before thee to learn. In the hour of most radiant triumph, thou must remember Him who has accounted thee fit to be his steward; thou must understand that thy place and power are thine only as his gift, and as a trusteeship for his glory. Be not surprised then if He make thy throne tremble now and again, that thou mayest remember that it rests, not on some inherent necessity, but only on the determination of his will, the forth-putting of his might.

This contrast between the anointing of Hebron and the conflict of Adullam presents a striking analogy to the experiences of our Lord, who, after his anointing at the banks of the Jordan, was driven by the Spirit into the wilderness of Judæa to be forty days tempted of the devil. It is the law of the spiritual life. Loneliness, solitude, temptation, conflict—these are the flames that burn the Divine colours into the character, such the processes through which the blessings of our anointing are made available for the poor, the broken-hearted, prisoners, captives, and blind.

II.—GLEAMS OF LIGHT.

The misty gloom of these dark hours was lit by some notable incidents. The mighty men excelled themselves in single combats with the Philistine champions. Then Abishai, the son of Zeruiah, smote the giant, who with his new sword thought to have slain David; and Elhanan slew the brother of Goliath of Gath; and Jonathan, David's nephew, slew a huge montrosity who had defied Israel; and Eleazar stood in the breach, when the rest had fled, and smote the Philistines till his hand was weary, and the discomfited soldiers returned only to spoil. Such prodigies of valour were performed around the person of their prince, whom his followers delighted to call the Light of Israel, albeit for the hour obscured by clinging mists (xxi. 17).

What marvels may be wrought by the inspiration of a single life! We cannot but revert in thought to that hour when hard by that very spot, an unknown youth stepped forth from the affrighted hosts of Israel to face the dreaded Goliath. Alone, so far as human succour went, he had encountered and defeated that terrible antagonist; but now, after some fourteen or fifteen years had run their course, he no longer stood by himself; there were scores of men, animated by his spirit, inspired by his faith, who pushed him gently back, and told him that they must be permitted to bear the brunt of the conflict, since his life, which was the fountain-source of all their energy, must be carefully withheld from needless peril.

Thus the lives of great men light up and inspire other lives. They mould their contemporaries. The inspiration of a Wesley's career raises a great army of preachers. The enthusiasm of a Carey, a Williams, a Livingstone, stirs multitudes of hearts with missionary zeal. Those who had been the disciples of Jesus became his apostles and martyrs. His own life of self-sacrifice for men has become the beacon-fire that has summoned myriads from the lowland valley of selfishness to the surrender, the self denial, the anguish of the cross, if only they might follow in his steps.

III.—A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

Adullam was not far from Bethlehem. Often, in his earliest years, David had led his father's flocks to pasture amid the valleys where he was now sheltering, and the familiar scenes recalled, as a scent or strain are wont to do, memories which came trooping back from the past, and spoke to him of Jesse, and his mother, and his boyhood's home.

One sultry afternoon, as it would seem, these recollections were unusually fresh and vivid. He was a semi-prisoner in the hold. Over yonder, almost within sight, a garrison of Philistines held Bethlehem. Suddenly an irresistible longing swept across him to taste the water of the well of Bethlehem, which was by the gate. Almost involuntarily he gave expression to the wish. He did not suspect that any of his stalwarts were within earshot, or if there were that they would be foolhardy enough to attempt to gratify his whim. If he had thought this, however, he miscalculated. He had not gauged the warmth of the affection with which those strong men loved him.

Three of his mightiest warriors overheard their chieftain's wish, stole secretly out of the cave and down the valley, burst through the host of the Philistines, drew water from the well, and, before they had been missed, placed the brimming vessel in David's hands. It was the priceless expression of a love that was stronger than death. He could not drink it. To him the vessel seemed gleaming crimson with the blood it might have cost. With that instinctive chivalry of soul which made him in all the changes of his fortune so absolutely kingly as to compel the enthusiastic devotion of his adherents, he arose and poured it out as a libation to God, as though the gift were fit only to be made to Him, saying, as he did so, "My God forbid it me that I should do this; shall I drink the blood of these men that have put their lives in jeopardy?"

We have another example in this graphic episode of David's marvellous self-control. Up to this time of his life he seems always to have lived with the tightly-girded loin—no desire was allowed to have unchallenged sway. The wayward impulse of passion, the assertion of caprice, were repressed by the iron determination of the purpose in all things to live according to the loftiest ideals of manhood and kingliness. The question of selfish gratification was always secondary to the considerations of high and noble principle.

It were well if all young men and women, ay, and others also, who read these words, would ask themselves whether certain gratifications, in which they, with others of their class, have been accustomed to indulge, are not purchased at too dear a cost. Could they quaff the cup of pleasure, in the theatre and opera-house, if they realised that it was presented to their lips at the cost of scores of souls, whose modesty and virtue were being sacrificed behind the scenes? Could they enjoy many forms of amusement, outside of which they draw the line, if they remembered that they could not themselves provide the entertainment without sacrificing their reputation as Christians? Could they drink of the intoxicating cup, as a beverage, if they realised that the drinking customs of society were annually costing the happiness, the life, and the eternal welfare of myriads?

How often we sigh for the waters of the well of Bethlehem. We go back on our past, and dwell longingly on never-to-be-forgotten memories. Oh, to see again that face, to feel the touch of that gentle hand, to hear that voice! Oh, to be again as in those guileless happy years, when the forbidden fruit had never been tasted, and the flaming sword had never been passed! Oh, for that fresh vision of life, that devotion to the Saviour's service, that new glad outburst of love! Oh, that one would give us to drink of the water of the well of Bethlehem, which is beside the gate! They are vain regrets, there are no mighties strong enough to break through the serried ranks of the years, and fetch back the past. But the quest of the soul may yet be satisfied by what awaits it in Him who said, "He that drinketh of this water shall thirst again, but he that drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst, but it shall be in him a spring of water, rising up to everlasting life." Not in Bethlehem's well, but in Him who was born there, shall the soul's thirst be quenched for ever.

IV.—THE OVERTHROW OF THE PHILISTINES.

Prosperity had not altered the attitude of David's soul in its persistent waiting on God. As he was when first he came to Hebron, so he was still, and in this hour of perplexity, he inquired of the Lord, saying, "Shall I go up against the Philistines? Wilt Thou deliver them into mine hand?" In reply, he received the Divine assurance of certain victory; and when the battle commenced, it seemed to him as if the Lord Himself were sweeping them before Him, like a winter flood, which, rushing down the mountain-side, carries all before it in its impetuous rush. "The Lord," said he, "hath broken forth upon mine enemies." The routed foe had no time even to gather up their gods, which fell into the conqueror's hands.

Again the Philistines came up to assert their olden supremacy, and again David waited on the Lord for direction. It was well that he did so, because the plan of campaign was not as before. Those that rely on God's co-operation must be careful to be in constant touch with Him. The aid which was given yesterday in one form, will be given to-morrow in another. In the first battle the position of the Philistines was carried by assault, in the second turned by ambush. To have reversed the order, or to have acted on the two occasions identically, would have missed the method and movement of those Divine legions who acted as David's invincible allies.

This movement in the mulberry trees, which indicated that the ambush must bestir itself, and advance on the foe, reminds us of the footfalls of angelic squadrons passing onward to the battle. "The Lord is gone out before thee to smite the host of the Philistines." Then David broke on their ranks and pursued them from Gibeon unto the heart of the maritime plain.

Sometimes we have to march, sometimes to halt: now we are called to action, again to suffering: in this battle to rush forward like a torrent, in the next to glide cautiously to ambush and wait. There must be nothing stereotyped in our methods. What did very well in the house of Dorcas will not suit in the stately palace of Cornelius. There must be living faith in God, the calm waiting on the house-top in prayer, the perception of the new departure which the Spirit of God is intending and foreshadowing, the willingness to follow though it be at the sacrifice of all the older prejudices. Then shall we know what God can do as a mighty force in our lives, making a breach in our foes, and marching his swift-stepping legions to our succour.

THE NOBLER CONQUEST.

BY REV. R. BALGARNIE, D.D.

Young Alexander of Macedon lay asleep and dreaming in his palace on the western shore of the Ægean. He was in doubt and perplexity about the future. The invasion and conquest of Persia was on his mind; but his army was small, his means were limited, and the prize seemed beyond his grasp. Suddenly out of the night, from across the Hellespont, "a man of Judæa" appeared to him in a vision of the night, beckoning him to come over and begin his career of conquest.

The dream decided him, according to the legend; and, like Cæsar, he went, and saw, and conquered.

Years afterwards, when Tyre had been captured and Palestine had come under his sceptre, the Jewish High Priest, clad in his robes of office, met the conqueror on his way to Jerusalem and persuaded him to spare the city. Alexander at once acceded to his request, declaring at the same time, according to Josephus, that this was the very man who had appeared to him in the vision and encouraged him to enter on the campaign.

About 400 years later, in another dream, a vision of the night, "a man of Macedonia" from across the Ægean appeared to Paul (the little), inviting him to come over and conquer the West! The dream decided him, and he went, and saw, and conquered. He began with Alexander's country.

As far to the West as Alexander had penetrated to the East the apostle carried the banner of the cross. He, too, marched from victory to victory. "His weapons were not carnal, but mighty through God, to the pulling down of strongholds." His mission was salvation, not destruction. After ten years of conflict Alexander turned back from India; after ten years of spiritual warfare St. Paul returned from Spain. Alexander, after conquering the East, died at Babylon a victim to intemperance; he had failed to conquer himself. St. Paul, after conquering the West, died at Rome, "greater than he that taketh a city." He had fought the good fight, finished his course, had kept the faith, and God, the righteous judge, awarded him the crown.

His surely was the nobler conflict. Let us enlist under Christ's banner, and follow him as Captain of our Salvation, and we, too, shall be "more than conqueror" through Him that loves us.

The Manse, Bishop Auckland.

"IT'S THE MAINSPRING."

By Mrs. Harvey-Jellie.

"Hazeldene will be decked in autumn beauty; we shall only just be in time to see it, Kathleen."

"Perhaps I am wanting in appreciation, Gerald, but the thought of going home is not pleasant to me. I know I have all I can ask for, with society and pleasures all round, but I weary of the management of servants, and responsibility of affairs altogether. The very splendour of all you plan to give me happiness seems sickening. Why look so startled? I mean it," she said, turning her pale, frank face, toward the rock on which her husband sat.

"You women seem to have as much anxiety and annoyance as we do, and I fancy we are guilty of selfish indifference. I often wonder how the complex machinery of the household moves on so easily; for I can see enough to know it requires a firm will, and wise tact, and yet a kindly manner that seems to be at perfect liberty from any claims. When I close my office, my annoyances are out of sight for the time; your worries are always about you, and in the home."

Such words, and from the one she had thought quite ignorant of such matters, unlocked the door wherein she was learning to hide her feelings of discontent and anxious care.

"Gerald, I never knew you understood, and I felt so lonely. Our pretty home and lovely gardens were becoming like a golden cage to a restless bird. I wanted to feel different about it all before we return, and that is why I am unwilling to end our holiday."

Kathleen Vaughan looked the last of womankind who would fret over anxieties. Married to a wealthy man, who admired and loved her, and lavished attention and money at her feet, she might be expected to live exempt from all vexation. But little by little she had found herself entangled in the loose threads that must be woven by ingenious skill if the pattern of a home is to be worked out. Ruffled and disappointed she gladly left it thus, and gave her children into the nurse's care, leaving a housekeeper to manage all the rest, while she accompanied her husband to the seaside for a change. They had satisfactory reports from "Hazeldene," their home, and the days passed pleasantly, but the idea of taking up the routine management again still troubled her.

"We must begin afresh, Kathleen. If you are run down all will be wrong. You little know how dependent every thing is on you, everything—the children, the house; and the business, in fact, for if you are wrong I am bound to be, and then work suffers. Suppose we stay another week here, and you'll brighten up, and be ready to hold the reins again."

She knew how kindly it was meant, and yet he saw she shrank from her task. As soon as they returned nurse was leaving, and the cook had given notice, and strangers must go in with all that that means to the manager, and she not strong.

The last day came; they had engaged the old boatman who had taken them many times over the waves.

"Here's Donald, I declare, and I promised if he came I would go over the hills with him," said Gerald.

"You must go, and I will have the boat; the sea air for this last afternoon will suit me best," she said.

Placing her in the boat, and giving careful injunctions to the boatman, he saw his wife gliding over the blue sea, and in his heart there was a big desire to shield her from every trouble.

"Fond of the sea, mum? Well, I likes it well enough, though it plays false sometimes; but there, it's like everything else here, it ain't got the power to give comfort or happiness."

In the next quarter of an hour, Kathleen listened to the plash of the oars, only now and then answering a remark, as the thought of the much that was calculated to give her "comfort and gladness" flitted before her; but she came to the conclusion, as the boatman said, "It's like everything else."

"It must be a free, happy life you live," she said, leaning forward to make him hear.

Resting a moment on the oars, the bright old sea-tanned face grew brighter, as he answered—

"'Taint the life outside, it's the mainspring as regulates it all. I tell ye, mum, there's many a one as is rich in this life, and poor in his own soul; eh! a grand case and chain don't make a good watch if the mainspring ain't right, and if 'tis, it'll go well, no matter how rough the outside be."

"Then you find your life has cares?"

"Well, yes; but the outside don't trouble me since it's been right within. That came about from seeing a text as my mate put up in his cabin, —'Christ in you, the hope of glory'—and, says he, 'that's the mainspring, mate, as regulates all, and'll keep you going in the right way,' and so I've found it, and you'll pardon me, but so will you, my dear lady."

She gazed at the honest old face, and felt she would have given all she had to understand the full meaning of his words, a humble boatman, but a disciple of Christ Jesus.

The boat mounted the wave gracefully, and landed them safely, and into his hand she placed an extra gift, for he had started new thoughts for which she felt thankful.

Six months later it was Gerald Vaughan who lay recovering from an illness, and Kathleen, who sat beside him, trying to cheer him out of his despondency. "The boatman's words were right, Gerald; it is 'Christ in you, the hope of glory, that's the mainspring, and puts everything else right.' You praise me for better management, and stronger health, but it is all regulated by that; responsibilities are an honour, difficulties are stepping-stones, and all goes easily and well when Christ is the ruling centre, the joy and hope."

As she crossed the room to answer a report from the nursery, he almost wondered if she could be the same Kathleen—all her lassitude gone, her life full of energy and brightness; and all since that afternoon on the sea.

"Kathleen," he said, as she came back to him, "I am not unmindful of your patient words, your life proves the truth of what you say. Maybe the same One is to be my mainspring too, and in this—the only bond that can never be broken—we shall be united for ever."

The only shadow that hung over her spirit rolled away, as she said, "Thank God, for ever."

Then another autumn came. "Hazeldene" looked brighter than before, every wheel in the house moved in harmony, one spirit ruled throughout. Work seemed lighter, cares more sacred, pleasures more invigorating. Depression and weariness had given place to courage and gladness—and the explanation lay in the fact that the "Mainspring" was right.

Christ in you, the hope of glory,
On Thee, O Jesus, strongly leaning,
I calmly onward go;
No cloud, no coldness intervening,
To damp love's blessed flow.
In Thee for ever, Lord, abiding,
I know that all is well;
Within thy love for ever hiding,
Who can my gladness tell?"

THE MANCHESTER MISSION has opened its winter campaign. During the summer months the work has been for the most part in the open air. The five brass bands fulfilled their ministry, bringing music into the narrow, grimy streets of the areas covered by the Mission and drawing crowds to listen to the preaching. Some of the best open-air speakers are men who have themselves been brought to God through the agency of the Mission.

NINETY YEARS OLD.

Friday last was Mr. George Müller's ninetieth anniversary of his birthday. In the evening a tea was partaken of at Bethesda Chapel, Great George-street, Bristol, by the members of the church, and subsequently, there was a crowded gathering in that place of worship, when a presentation was made to the venerable philanthropist; he, in reply, gave an interesting sketch of his long career, with a view of showing how good God had been to him.

Mr. B. Perry, who presided, said he was expected to find words that with one voice could express the pent-up feelings welling over in all their hearts towards their beloved brother—feelings of warm love and affection for him personally, feelings of gratitude for the many, many years of long, faithful eminently Scriptural ministry, counsel, and discretion which that church had received at his hands; and of admiration of his holy life of faith, and abundant labours in their midst—especially as set forth in his great life work at Ashley Down, as founder and director of that great institution.

Their hearts were possessed with a feeling of gratitude to God that He had raised up their beloved brother to do such a mighty work as he has done. It was their joy to praise God that on his ninetieth birthday, they were able to meet him with his abundant strength of body, his vigour of mind, and with grace reigning triumphant as it was rarely to be seen in one of God's children. He remembered when ten years ago they met Mr. Müller under somewhat similar circumstances when he was eighty years of age. He referred to Caleb, who, when he was eighty-five years of age, said: "I am eighty and five years old, yet am I as strong as when Moses sent me forth forty-five years ago." Their brother had now outrun Caleb by five years. They devoutly thanked God for manifesting his power in the strength—physical, mental, spiritual—given to Mr. Müller in response to simple trust in Him. God had most lovingly and graciously given him a co-worker in his great work at Ashley Down and at that church in his beloved son-in-law. A very pleasant duty devolved upon him—in the name of the church, he asked Mr. Müller to accept a purse containing £184 13s. 6d., the free-will love gifts of friends connected with that church, and he hoped Mr. Müller would kindly accept it at their hands. He wished that if it be the Lord's will, and for his glory, they might meet that day ten years, and see Mr. Müller still in the enjoyment of health and strength and joy in the Lord.

MR. MÜLLER'S CONVERSION.

Mr. George Müller then ascended the pulpit and addressed the crowded congregation. He said in the 103rd psalm David sought to recount the mercies of the Lord, and he began in these words, "Forget not all his benefits." These words were particularly laid upon his own heart as he saw his Christian friends gathered together that evening. He would in all simplicity, for their comfort and encouragement, seek to recount a few of the numberless blessings and mercies which he had received at the hands of his heavenly Father. First he was brought in a remarkable manner to the knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. He was a careless, reckless, most worldly young man in the first twenty years of his life. From the time he was confirmed, when he was fourteen years old, until the time he was twenty years five weeks of age, he never read the Holy Scriptures, never thought about the concerns of his soul, never in the least degree sought to care about God, or of life and work for Him. His whole life and determination were as if there were no God. In this state he entered the University for the purpose of being prepared to become a clergyman, but he had scarcely entered the University when the life of worldliness, carelessness, and indifference to spiritual things which he was leading was manifested more than ever. It pleased God in the wonders of his grace, through one of his fellow students, to lead him to a little prayer-meeting in the house of a tradesman, which was attended by only four pious students—three only besides himself—out of the 1260 frequenting the University. In the little prayer-meeting he saw for the first time persons kneeling in prayer as he had never seen them before; for the first time he heard about the way of salvation through Jesus Christ; for the first time he saw what a wicked, guilty sinner he had been, walking without a thought or care about God. It pleased God, after he had entered the house as one dead in trespasses and sins, and utterly unconcerned and reckless about the things of God as one could possibly be, to allow him to leave it a Christian, although one extremely little instructed about the things of God. Without anyone telling him, the theatre was no longer frequented, the ballroom frequented no more, and the card table given up. He said to himself at once that his whole life should be different to what it had been, and by the grace of God that had been done.

A little before his University course was finished, he desired to become a missionary to the Jews, and he was influenced in this by interviews with Professor Tholuck, one of the most holy men known, who acted in connection with the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews.

He was asked whether he would like to become a missionary to the Jews, and he considered this to be a most remarkable question, because he was especially fond of the Hebrew language, and was especially given to the study of it. After much prayer and consideration, it was fixed that he should go to London in connection with that Society. Then came the question about his passport, for he was liable to military service. By the advice of friends he applied to the President of the province, but his application was refused. Then his friends told him to go to the King himself, but the King for the first time declined to exempt a missionary, and the matter was referred to the Minister of State. Now there was no expectation he would ever obtain what he so desired, but getting an introduction to the Chief Marshal of the army—a Christian man—he was examined by two of the leading military medical officers at the marshal's desire.

THE FIRST OFFICER SAID HE WAS UNFIT

for the army; too weak, and with a tendency to consumption. He carried that opinion to the Chief Marshal, and he asked him at once to go to the other medical officer, who examined him for a long time, and then confirmed the judgment of the first doctor. Thus the Chief Marshal saw he could exempt him from military duties, and it was done. Now a passport could be obtained for England. Let them notice the remarkable circumstance. The young man, then twenty-three years and four months old, was now ninety, in good health and a vigorous state, physically and mentally. Let them admire the kindness of God and what He had enabled him to go through all this time.

He landed in England on March 19, 1829, and shortly afterwards, through overwork and study, was taken ill and brought near the gate of death. His expectation was that he would go home to the Lord, but He wondrously raised him up. He went for a change of air to Teignmouth, where he became acquainted with Mr. Craik, and he learned there more clearly than before the Word of God. As there was no desire on the part of the Jews to care about the Scriptures, he judged, under all the circumstances, that it was best he should dissolve his connection with the Society, and labour more generally among nominal Christians. He laboured in the little church at Teignmouth for two years and four months, and then in the Providence of God, in connection with the beloved Mr. Craik, in May, 1832, he came to Bristol. In the most remarkable way that chapel was obtained in answer to prayer in August, 1832. Seven met there for the first time to commemorate the dying love of Christ—Mr. Craik, his own beloved wife, himself, and four brethren and sisters. Since then, over 6000 had been received into fellowship. During the last eighteen months or two years of their labour there, hundreds were brought to the knowledge of Christ, to say nothing about believers being helped in the Divine life.

After being there two years he was directed to found the Scriptural Knowledge Institution for Home and Abroad for the purpose of aiding or establishing schools, circulating the Holy Scriptures, and afterwards also circulating tracts; and to it, twenty months later, was added the orphan work. That was an extremely small beginning, and it was ridiculed not a little by one and the other. Years afterwards No. 2 was erected because the applications increased more and more, and Nos. 3, 4, and 5 followed in due time in answer to many prayers. How was this? Was it that he was an excellent man? Nothing of the kind. He was just a very ordinary Christian, and had but one simple way of acting—trusting in God, not in the least degree depending upon himself, nor even on very wealthy friends, who would have at once come forward with a handful of bank-notes if he desired it. His whole determination was not to say a word, even if he could get ten thousand sovereigns by giving only a hint to his wealthy friends that they were in need. He did not do it. This was no mere statement, but a reality. There was not in the whole world a single individual who could say they hinted in the least to anyone to help them. God invariably helped him, though often and often it came to the great extremity, and often and often the appearance was that as if God had forgotten them and would not help them. That was only an appearance, for in reality invariably God aided them when it came to the greatest extremity.

SIMPLY RELYING UPON HIM;

His preaching tours he had before referred to in their hearing. He had by land and sea with his departed wife; had preached in forty-two countries in Europe, America, Africa, Asia, and the six Australian colonies. He had crossed the Atlantic seven times, had been over the Red Sea five times, and sixteen times the Mediterranean. He had crossed the Pacific Ocean and the Indian Ocean, and never once had he been in the least sick. See how good it was to be an obedient servant of Christ. His mental powers were as clear as when he passed his examinations, and wrote essays in Latin, French, German, and had to pass examinations in Hebrew and Greek, mathematics, history, and the like. These examinations were seventy years and six months ago. How they should admire the Lord's kindness! Godliness was profitable even in this life. He knew no way to begin and no way to end in speaking of the benefits the Lord had conferred on him. He had helped him in writing books which God had blessed, and in the forty-two countries wherever he went he met those who had known him a long time from his writings and who were delighted to meet him face to face. See how God could use a miserable worm which was only a wreck when brought to the knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ, and who was that evening at the commencement of his ninety-first year.

TRAVELLED 200,000 MILES

For sixty-nine years and ten months he had been a very happy man. That he attributed to two things. He had maintained a good conscience, not wilfully going on in a course he knew to be contrary to the mind of God; he did not mean, of course, that he was perfect; he was poor, weak, and sinful. Secondly, he attributed it to his love for the Holy Scripture. Of late years his practice had been four times every year to read through the Scriptures with application to his own heart and with meditation, and at that day he was a greater lover of the Word of God than he was sixty-six years ago. The more it was treated with carelessness and indifference, and the more it was reasoned away, the more he stuck close to it. It was this, and maintaining a good conscience, that had given him all those scores of years peace and joy in the Holy Ghost. He prayed that God's richest and choicest blessings might rest upon them.—Western Daily Press.

L.M.S. CENTENARY CONVENTION.

Seldom, if ever, have there been such missionary gatherings as have just come to a close in London. They have been remarkable alike for the breadth of their conception, the number who attended them, the bright and hopeful spirit that growingly pervaded their course, and the happy outlook which they everywhere revealed as opening before missionary work. Over a thousand delegates were present from all parts of the kingdom, and even of the world.

The organisers of this unique Convention deserve the hearty thanks of those interested in the work, for their splendid programme. Every part of the field, every form of effort, all the encouragements, difficulties, and perplexities of the situation at the close of this memorable century, were passed in review in papers written by those who knew most about the subject, and in addresses that were short, comprehensive, and so far as limits permitted, exhaustive of all the salient points, while in the conferences that usually succeeded, there was a free and frank exchange of opinion on points of policy and questions of difficulty.

One of the most pleasing features of the meetings was the fact that many of the papers were written by experienced men and women who are away in the mission field. On previous occasions only those on furlough have taken part in the annual meetings of the society; but many of the most suggestive addresses last week were from honourable absentees, who sent their words home to be read at this Convention. It would, of course, have been better if they had been there to read or speak their own thoughts, but this could only have been secured at enormous expense and much disturbance of their work; and the secretaries read the papers in a way that left nothing to be desired. This feature of the Convention made us feel in a touching way: it enlarged the scope of the centenary celebrations till we felt that for the week the City Temple was a centre of Christian thought, and prayer, and deliberation, of which the circumference was truly the whole wide world. There was something kindling to the imagination in the very idea, and the experiment might well be repeated at the more ordinary meetings of the society. Why should we not annually enjoy some messages from the battle-front? Generals send home their dispatches while the conflict is being waged: why not leaders in the battle of the Cross?

AT ONE WITH DISTANT WORKERS

Three impressions remain very vividly. One is the sense of advance that marks the work almost everywhere. The outlook, the British Association savants notwithstanding, is most inspiring. In only one or two fields, notably that of Madagascar, is there a feeling of discouragement and fear; and this is due not to the condition of the work itself, but to extraneous circumstances that have disturbed it. In other directions, the universal testimony is, that never were the conditions more favourable, never were the workers more encouraged or enthusiastic, never was the outlook more promising. The world is now an open door for the Gospel of Christ; the cry everywhere is—more men, and more money! In all lands the words of the hymn are being fulfilled:—

Far and wide, though all unknowing,
Pants for Him each human breast;
Mortal tears are for Him flowing,
Human hearts in Him would rest;
Thirsting, as for dews of even,
As the new-mown grass for rain,
Him they seek as God of Heaven,
Him, as Man for sinners slain.

Secondly, it was borne in very clearly upon our mind that besides the direct channels of preaching the Gospel, and the usual methods of evangelisation, much is being done to prepare the way by of reaching the hearts and minds of the heathen. Their hearts are being greatly touched in all lands by what is being done for their bodies by means of medical missions, and also by industrial missions; and their minds are being made sensitive to the truths of the Gospel by education. Some of the delegates at the Conference expressed a fear lest too much was being expected of these less spiritual methods, and deprecated, for instance, the stress that is being laid at present on reaching the educated classes of India through educational institutions; but the missionaries from the field spoke words of weighty reassurance on this point, and showed that they were in no danger of forgetting the central aim of their work, but that they were keenly alive to the opportunity education gave them of reaching the souls of men; and especially was this the case in India and China.

MORE INDIRECT METHODS

Thirdly, it is clear that women have a splendid opportunity before them in the mission field. As was said in one of the most suggestive papers, no woman can now say, "There is no work that I can do." Given good health, there is scope for every possible talent, if only there is a true consecration of spirit, and willingness to obey the call. When we think of the aimless, vapid life of thousands of middle-class women, with no home-ties, and little opening for the exercise of their dormant gifts, how they spend their years as a tale that is told, and leave no hearts better or holier for their presence in the world—what a call and what an opportunity is here! Will not some of my readers ask themselves whether they ought not to give their hearts, their substance, their lives to this magnificent and Divine work? Will no one say—"Here am I, send me!"?

J. G. E.

[BY ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.]

It was a thought from above to hold such a gathering, and everything seemed to conspire to make it a success. The number of delegates was about a thousand, and there was an overflowing amount of hospitality for them. The morning prayer-meeting and conference, the afternoon conference, and the evening public meeting, with the sermon and communion on Friday, were all well attended. The conference on women's work drew together the largest audience, and it was a great pity that the ladies who took part did not speak loud enough to be heard by everyone. That the City Temple is not beyond a lady's powers was proved by the way in which the great meeting heard Miss Roberts' tender and powerful appeal on behalf of China.

GENERAL FEATURES.

The papers read were of a practical and suggestive kind; there was no wild talk, not even on the subject of Industrial Missions, so long as the missionaries had the talking to do, while those at home who seized the opportunity of speaking, seldom went far astray, and never was there a word spoken but in the spirit of love. The presence of representatives of other societies, from Basle, Norway, and Holland, as well as from nearly all our home societies, added a catholic feature to the Convention worthy of the Society that called it together. The reunion of missionaries was evidently greatly enjoyed.

DIFFICULTIES OF MISSIONARY WORK.

These are manifold, and were impressively set forth in the picture of a missionary's daily life, e.g., in visiting among Chinese women you are met with the universal difficulty in the conditions of domestic life. The houses are so open that you can obtain no privacy; heathen neighbours are looking on and listening, going out and in; children are playing; animals are moving about; and perhaps a good deal of wrangling and quarrelling is going on, very likely the neighbours are gambling. Even when the Gospel has been accepted by a family, the limitations of the home are all inimical to the higher life, decency is almost impossible. Our crowded town populations in England present in an English form the difficulty which in its extremest form exists all over heathendom.

The position of woman is another universal difficulty. In India and China, and also among the savages of Africa and Polynesia, woman is oppressed. In Madagascar, as Miss Bliss informed the Convention, woman is a beast of burden, and if a man wants another beast he marries another wife. Obedience to parents is never taught, and in Samoa one man will adopt the son of another who has run away from home; foster-parents are the enemies of the true parent. Clan relationships are opposed to the new ideas and ways of Christianity. Caste, of course, is the great hindrance in India. But everywhere the unbridled passions of a sinful nature have built up their own walls of defence against the truth. In Matabeleland the conceit of the people had barred the way to them; with conceit came cruelty, treachery, and intolerable oppression. That is now changing, especially among the young. Another trouble among tribes of a comparatively small size is the influence of a hostile chief. In Samoa the native pastor is altogether dependent on the attitude of the chief.

HOME AND WAR.

Yet even in the most degraded communities the Gospel is changing the homes. The Christians set the example of more decent living; the students of the colleges are properly housed, and so the change comes in. A milder reign also comes with the knowledge of Jesus. Mr. Chalmers said that the missionaries everywhere set their faces against tribal strife, and taught that men should live in peace. Although war has not ceased in some places, it is not so terrible as formerly. The whole of the ten wars which they have lately had in Samo were not so destructive as one of the old wars.

ENGLISH AND VERNACULARS.

The right place of English in the work of the missionary as the language which he himself speaks, and in which are treasured up the stores of secular and sacred knowledge, is always difficult to determine. His more thoughtful people are sure to learn some of it; they are ambitious to learn it; but it ought not to fetter the use of the vernacular. In India many natives speak English, though they are only a small proportion of the whole. As was pointed out, English is to the vernacular very much as Latin was to English in the very earliest days of Christianity in our own island. Even to the time of Dante Italian was not regarded as the language for scholars and for books, but Dante changed all that; and the vernacular will no doubt triumph everywhere. The first place was distinctly given by the missionaries to the vernaculars. One curious difficulty, however, which seems to be specially pressing upon natives of the South Seas, is the poverty of their language for the ideas which the Gospel and the new life have brought. In the Hervey Islands the people are clamouring for English, because it gives more room for their minds. The difficulty will probably be solved as other nations, notably our own, have solved it—by introducing foreign words. In India, some 261 millions speak the vernacular, as against some fifteen millions who are able to read it; and there is about three-quarters of a million of the educated and higher classes.

EDUCATION AND EVANGELISTIC WORK.

The work of education becomes vital when once a few souls have been gathered together, and in India becomes urgent. In Africa and the South Sea it is a comparatively simple problem, how far and in what direction to go; in India it is complicated. In the South Seas the schools and colleges have done a splendid service in the way of training pastors and teachers. In the Hervey

Islands the church and the school form the central point of village life, and each village maintains its own school. The Malua College in Samoa has always been ready with teachers, who were willing to go anywhere, and to lay down their lives for the Saviour. Some of the warmest evangelists at the Convention were the most strongly in favour of education in India, and Dr. Glover pointed out that education, which was a main point in the early days of the Baptist Mission, had subsequently declined, but was now being revived. He contended that the life of Christ in man must touch and sanctify every part of man's nature. The suggestions for the further and higher education of Christians were indicative of the immense strides which missions have made. Mr. Whitmee revived his suggestions of twenty-five years ago for a college to be formed in Sydney, to which some of the most able of the young men from the South Seas might be sent; but it did not seem to meet with much favour. There was also a suggestion for a Christian University for India, which should also be a Union one, representing every branch of the Church, and which should be to the Christian educated youth of India what the Universities are to our youths at home. There was frequently expressed in the Convention a strong desire to do more for Young India, and to get hold of men of high position, who wield a large influence. "Quality," said one paper, "counts for more than quantity." The "new scholars," who hold the newspapers, are looked to by their countrymen for guidance. Secular education is breaking up the whole mode of thinking, and all the ancient beliefs of the people; the lack of reverence which is thus sweeping through the country is alarming even the Government. Yet in India Christ is regarded by large numbers as the flower of humanity and the crown of character; there is much private reading of the Scriptures, even Brahmins buy them for this purpose. But agnostic journals and unclean French novels have a large circulation. It is a strange antagonism of forces; hope is on one side, fear on the other. The Government spends more money on the higher education than on the lower or primary, which it casts on the missionary societies. Open-air preaching and lecturing are popular, and educated men with the Christian message are eagerly listened to everywhere. The large share which education obtained in the discussion only showed how necessary, yet how difficult, is the work. It does not overshadow or threaten the work of evangelisation, which takes about seven times more of the Society's strength.

WOMEN'S WORK.

This varies only in detail in different lands; the testimony from every quarter was that the woman worker was the friend and helper of the despised women and the neglected children. One of the favourite plans, alike in Madagascar with the Norwegian missionaries, with the Friends' Society, and with the L.M.S., and in India, is to get girls into "boarding schools," but these institutions do not quite resemble our boarding schools at home. They contain orphans and the children of evangelists, who, having to go wandering about, cannot see to their training and welfare, as well as the children of such parents as may be willing to send them. The opportunity of constantly and powerfully influencing these girls is greatly prized. European women can guide the work of native men teachers. European women can lead native women anywhere, and native women teachers can go anywhere, said Miss Budden, of Almora. Native girls are ambitious to learn. Even village evangelistic work can be best done by women in India; only, English women going abroad should remember that health and strength are required for the work, also cheerfulness and love to the people. Miss Budden also insisted with a wise insight upon a few homely qualities, such as the ability to keep accounts, and to use public money carefully. She thought that young workers should be placed with old and experienced ones. Now is the time for English Christian ladies to enter in, for the women of India are, as it were, awaking from sleep, and coming to know what they can do.

PRESENT-DAY THOUGHT AND KNOWLEDGE.

Although the argument and appeal for foreign missions was to be stated in relation to present-day thought and knowledge, the Convention heard very little about it. Some had been looking for the establishment of a working agreement between exact science, the higher criticism, and missions, but the workers seemed to be a good deal too intent on practical things to pay any attention to such a thing; evidently it was most practical to them yet.

SELF-SUPPORT AND SELF-GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Wardlaw Thompson spoke with much wisdom and force on this subject, pointing out that sometimes the churches, as in the South Seas, have power enough to support themselves, but not strength to govern and to guide themselves, while others again have the power of self-management, but not the means of self-support. They must be dealt with according to their condition, no hard or fast line being drawn. So far as the future is concerned, Dr. Muirhead said that the century on which the Society is entering may be new, but the work is old, the battle is the same, and the enemies are the same. The same power would have to be depended upon for victory—the Gospel applied by the Holy Spirit to the hearts of men. There was never a false note struck in the Convention on that vital point. The whole of the meetings were times of blessing, and missionary work cannot but feel an impulse from them all over the world.

LUDHIANA SCHOOL OF MEDICINE.

Some time ago we called attention to the North India School of Medicine for Christian women, at Ludhiana, in the Punjaub. In November last year a beginning was made, and for the last two terms the students have numbered thirteen. Five of these are being trained as nurses, two as compounders, and six have entered for the full course of medical study. With the exception of two English girls, all are natives or Eurasians, and all work happily together and enjoy their work.

The object of the school is to give native and Eurasian girls the opportunity of pursuing a complete course of medical study under the instruction of fully qualified lady doctors, and at the same time to keep them under daily Christian influence and Bible teaching, so that when their curriculum is completed, they may, with the helping of God, be fitted to minister to the spiritual as well as the physical needs of their suffering sisters, and thus be true medical missionaries.

The importance of the students being protected during the long course of study from the many temptations and dangers incident to the pursuit of medical training in mixed schools and under native men lecturers, and without the help of Christian teaching, must be easily seen by all who know anything of the habits of life in India as to the seclusion of women. Two American lady doctors were very kindly lent to the school from January to August, to give two hours' teaching in English daily, while they were themselves studying the language. Now a Scotch lady doctor is kindly lent for the same work for the next year; and through the kindness of the friends of the Manchester Convention, who have promised the salary for three years, a lady doctor (Miss E. Dodson) is going out to be on the permanent staff of teachers for the School.

Funds are greatly needed for the completion of the passage money, and also for the support of the school. Scholarships of £20 per annum are also much desired, as the students are mostly unable to pay their own fees. Above all, continued and earnest prayer is asked by the principal of the school, Dr. Edith M. Brown, who says, "The work is great, and our strength and wisdom are little, and we need very much besides the supply of temporal needs." The treasurer is Mrs. Percy Fleming, 93, Gower-street, London, W.C.

"SCRATCHING THE SURFACE."

While educated Hindus and Mohammedans have been testing the gullibility of American Christians as to the beauties of their religions, and the slight effect years of Christian effort have made upon them, let us see if it has more than "scratched the surface" of Buddhism in Burma.

The Gospel has been preached in Moulmein for less than seventy years, and what is there to show for it? As you land at the Tavoy wharf and look up at the first signboard you will see in English and Burmese, "Mission Road." Another street running at right angles with it is known as Christian-street. Nearly opposite the junction of these roads stands the Burman Baptist Chapel, a solid brick structure, kept in neat repair by the members of the church. The Christians living in these streets have good, substantial houses, some larger than the missionary's house, well furnished, with an air of comfort about them. The church numbers about two hundred and fifty members at present, and probably as many more have gone home to glory. They support their own pastor and a city missionary. There is a flourishing Sunday-school of one hundred and eighty members, a Woman's Christian Temperance Union, a Woman's Evangelical Society, and a Toungoo Missionary Society collect money monthly for their respective work.

The young people are strong in the Y.P.S.C.E., and a circle of King's Daughters. The latter have done efficient service in connection with the mission dispensary and hospital the past year. The contributions of the church last year averaged about Rs. 6, or two dollars per member.

Recently a poor Toungoo Christian, living thirty odd miles from town, was burned out. This week the missionary takes to his relief *Rs.*62, or over twenty dollars, as a freewill offering from his Christian brethren and sisters. The Buddhist would sit stolidly by and say: "It is his fate. Probably he committed some great sin in a former state of existence, for which this is the punishment." I have seen boats overturned in the swift currents of the Irrawaddy River, and other boats sailing by, not offering the least help to the struggling men in the water, because they would not "interfere with a man's fate."

Four large Christian schools show what Christianity is doing for the young. Twenty years ago it was difficult to keep Burman girls in school after they knew how to read and write. Now they are eager to pass the higher standards, and their needlework would compare favourably with that of any girls of their age in America. A Burman Christian doctor, educated in America, said that when he first returned to this country he could not make a living practising medicine, so he took up teaching for a number of years. He has now a lucrative practice among the heathen as well as Christians. The progress of Christianity among these bigoted heathens is slow, it is true; so is the progress of a glacier on the mountain side. One can scarcely see it, but it moves with resistless power, grinding to atoms whatever obstructs its way. So, I believe, in God's own good time, Christianity will crush the hoary religions of the East, sweeping away the vile religions of the Hindus, the sensual religion of the followers of the False Prophet, and the cold, selfish, hopeless religion of the Buddhist.—The Helping Hand.

PORT SAID.—Passing through on my way to India, I naturally sought a Christian resting place, and found it in the Seamen's Rest and Strangers' Welcome. I am sorry to learn that its funds are at a low ebb at present, and, therefore, venture to appeal to your readers for their kindly aid. A hundred pounds are much needed to carry on the work, and doubtless some of your readers will be able to send a goodly supply of Christian literature, books, tracts, etc., for distribution on board ship. The work appeals to the sympathies of us all.

Alfred Porcelli, Lieut.-Col. R.E.

OUR DAILY HOMILY.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 6.

"The vail shall divide unto you."—Ex. xxvi. 33.

That vail was rent when Jesus died, the Holy Ghost signifying that from that moment access was free into the Holiest. All believers are now welcome to draw near and live in the perpetual presence of God, their Father, even as Jesus did in his earthly life, and as He does in the Heaven of Heavens. This is the clear teaching of Heb. x. 19, &c.

But there is a deeper significance still. The new and living way was opened through the rending of the flesh of Jesus Christ. As his flesh rent on the Cross, the Temple vail was rent from the top to the bottom. And it is only when we have chosen the cross, with its shame and death, as the lot of our self-life, that we can enter into that immediate fellowship with God which is described as "within the vail."

How many there are who never get beyond that dividing vail. They know the brazen altar of Atonement, the laver of daily washing, the golden altar of intercession; but they are never admitted to that blessed intimacy of communion which sees the Shechinah glory between the cherubim and the blood-sprinkled mercy-seat.

O Spirit of God, apply the blood to sprinkle our consciences, and the water to cleanse the habits of our daily life, and lead us where our Forerunner and Priest awaits us.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 7.

"Pure olive oil beaten for the light."—Ex. xxvii. 20.

The saintly McCheyne used to say, when urging his brother ministers to diligent preparation for the pulpit: "Beaten oil for the sanctuary." And he strove never to present to his people truth which had not been beaten out by careful devout meditation.

But there is yet another thought. That lamp in the Holy Place was an emblem of the testimony of the Church, that is, of believers. As the incense table was a type of their aspect towards God, as intercessors; so the seven-branched candlestick was a type of their aspect towards the world, as luminaries. In the Book of Revelation, the Lord compares his churches to candlesticks.

The oil is, of course, as always in Scripture, a type of the Holy Spirit. He in us is the only source of light bearing. But the beaten oil reminds us of the chastisement and discipline through which alone our best testimony can be given. The persecutions of the Church have always been the times when she has given her fairest, brightest witness to the Redeemer. The sufferings of believers have ever led to the tenderest, strongest words for the Master, whether by the sick bed, or in the hospital ward.

The brokenness of spirit which is the surest mark of the mature work of God in the heart is also a rare condition of light-giving. The more beaten and broken you are, in poverty of spirit, the purer will be the heavenly ray of love and light to the glory of Christ.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8.

"A golden bell and a pomegranate."—Ex. xxviii. 34.

The robe of the high priest's ephod was of blue, the colour of heaven, of deep lakes, of the glacier-crevasse, of the gentian and forget-me-not. On the skirts were these alternate bells and pomegranates. Those skirts stand for ourselves. We dare not take a high place near the head or arm, but thank God, there is a place for each of us at the skirt, near the foot; and the holy oil will reach us there, for the Psalmist tells us that it descended even to the skirts of the high priest's robe. It is a blessed thought, that we may receive the droppings of each anointing that falls on the head of Jesus.

But the anointing of the Holy Ghost always shows itself in sweetness and fruitfulness; the sweetness of the golden bell, tinkling with every movement, and the fruitfulness of the pomegranate.

We must be sweet, as well as fruitful.—Too many Christian workers are over-tired and over-wrought; they are peevish and fretful. When they come back from meetings on which they have bestowed their last energies, they are neither sweet nor gentle to the home-circle, who have been so lonesome during their absence.

We must be fruitful, as well as sweet.—True religion is not a mere sentimentality; it is strong, healthy, helpful, fruit-bearing. Some seem to think that to attend moving meetings, to make profuse use of the word dear, is to touch the high-water mark; let them learn that the life must tell on others, in bearing fruit, which has in it the seed of reproduction.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9.

"Thou shalt wash them with water."—Ex. 29 4.

This chapter tells of the consecration to their high office of Aaron and his sons. The entire family is constantly joined thus together, as one in God's sight. Similarly Christ and his house, which is ourselves, who believe, are one. This account of investiture is, therefore, full of holy instruction for us. We too must be sprinkled by the blood on ear, and thumb, and toe, as those who have been redeemed. We too must be consecrated and anointed, but there must be the cleanliness of which these words speak.

This is where so many have erred; they have sought consecration, anointing, and the priestly office, but have not remembered that their bodies must first be washed with pure water.

We must be clean in our habits.—If there is anything in our daily behaviour which is not quite clean, it must be put away. There seems some incongruity between the anointing of the Holy Ghost and the fumes of tobacco. An excessive indulgence of the flesh, even in legitimate directions, and all indulgence in wrong ones, are inconsistent with the life of consecration.

We must be cleansed in our thoughts.—Whenever temptation is suggested, even when it is still in the far distance, we must turn from it with loathing, and ask that the blood of Jesus may go on cleansing hour by hour. "Cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of thy Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love Thee."

We must be cleansed in our intentions.—The self-life recedes as it is driven from the outworks of our nature, it goes deeper into the motives and springs of action. We discover that self is the spring of so much of our religious activity. Everywhere we need the laver, the hourly washing of John xiii.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10.

"Upon the flesh of man shall it not be poured."—Ex. xxx. 32.

What perpetual references there are to the work of the Holy Spirit, under the symbol of the Anointing Oil, meet us in these chapters. It becomes us to ask ourselves very seriously whether we lay an equal stress on it in our daily experience. Is it true of us, as of those to whom the Beloved Apostle wrote, that the anointing which we received abideth on us? It is not enough to have the Spirit in us for sanctification; He must be on us for service and ministry.

But He cannot come on the flesh of the ordinary man; He descends only on those who are washed, consecrated, set apart for God. Many claim the Holy Spirit's anointing, and try to reckon they have received it, but they find it fail, because they desire it for the flesh.

There must be no yielding to fleshly appetite. When we were in the flesh, sinful passions wrought in our members. But there must be no permission given in these directions. A calm, reverent, self-disciplined nature is alone fitted to be the seat of the Holy Ghost, his nest and home.

There must be no gratification to worldly pride and ambition. Too many are eager for the Holy Ghost, that they may be able to make a name, gather an audience, but God is not likely to give us his river of throne-water to turn the mill-wheels of personal ambition.

There must be no fleshly striving after it. We wrestle and struggle to win the Spirit, and miss Him. It is only when our hope of attaining this blessing by our own efforts dies down, and we are humbled and broken before God; when we cry out to Him to give what we cannot win, that He draws near and gives the best of all his donations.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11.

"I have called by name Bezaleel."—Ex. xxxi. 2.

We lightly speak of a man's occupation as his calling, and fail to realise the profound significance of the phrase. One man is called to the ministry, another to the bar, others, like Bezaleel and Aholiab, to work in all manner of workmanship. Each should realise, therefore, that faculty, desire, circumstance, constitute a Divine call, and that there may be as distinct a vocation in the merchant's office or the tradesman's shop, in the work of a domestic servant or the housewife, as in the Church itself.

The morning bell that summons us to daily duty is the call of our Father, bidding us to engage in the toils to which he has assigned us. He who gave Moses the plan gave the artificers the power to achieve it in gold, silver, brass, and in wood. Let this be your faith, and each morning, as you go to your work, however distasteful or humble it may be, say, "God has called me to this, and He will fill me with all the strength, wisdom, and grace that I need for its right doing." 1 Cor. vii. 20-24.

Abide in your calling.—Unless it is a wrong or dishonourable one, it is better to stay in it than to become restless and changeable; and if you feel that you must leave it, wait for God to open the door into something else.

Find in God the makeweight to all the deficiencies of your life.—If you are enslaved by daily duty, remember that in Christ you are free; if free from daily toil, in Christ you are a slave. The supply of every deficiency, the rectification of every hardship, is to be found in Jesus.

Mind to do all for God.—Some work for money, doing ill when poorly paid; others for praise of man, doing badly when none commend. But to do all in God and for Him, as artificers for his tabernacle and priests in his temple, remembering that He sees and accepts all, not according to the results accomplished, but to the heavenly and holy motives that prompt the worker—this is to be blessed.

SATURDAY OCTOBER 12.

"Peradventure I shall make Atonement for your Sin."—Ex. xxxii. 30.

The heart of Moses was full of that great, wonderful new word, atonement. For many days God had been telling him about it, and speaking it over and over to his heart. He seemed, however, to feel that no ordinary sacrifices would avail: the blood of goats and bulls would surely be insufficient to put away the black transgression into which Israel had fallen. But there was rising in his heart a resolve, to which he gave expression when he returned to God: "Blot me, I pray thee, out of the book which Thou hast written." He did not realise that even his blood would not avail, but that the blood of Christ, who, through the eternal Spirit, should, in the fulness of times, offer Himself without spot to God, alone could put away sin.

In every heart there is a deep conviction of the necessity of an Atonement.—This is the source of the temples, altars, and sacrifices, which have marked the history of every nation under heaven. Man has felt as by a natural instinct that some reparation was necessary to the broken law.

The insufficiency of animal sacrifice.—In the Levitical system there was a remembrance of sin made year by year, but the sin itself could not be purged by such rites. The fact that the worshippers so constantly came back to offer their sacrifices shows that they were not assured. The priests always stood: their attitude was an emblem of an unfinished work.

The sufficiency of Christ's Atonement.—He was willing to be cut off out of the land of the living for the transgression of his people; and because He died, there is no longer the—which in Moses' prayer speaks of uncertainty, but a blessed assurance that we are at one with God, with each other, and with all holy beings.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSONS.

OCTOBER 13.

THE TRIUMPH OF GIDEON.—Judges vii. 13-23.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Psa. xxvii. 3.

THE oppression by the Midianites was the severest the Israelites had been called to suffer. Year by year these "pirates of the desert" invaded the land, and utterly destroyed all the increase of the earth (vi. 1-16). It was the sin of the people that led to this oppression; consequently the deliverance needed was not the mere defeat of the Midianites, but the return of the people to God.

Gideon was a suitable man for this great work. One verse gives us his noble appearance, and the fact that two of his brothers had already been slain by the Midianites (viii. 18). He appears to have maintained his piety in spite of prevailing idolatry. Evidently his heart was burdened with trouble on account of the distress of his people (vi. 12-13). He was modest, yet brave; and if he asked for signs, it was not, as in the case of the Pharisees, to find an excuse for unbelief, but in order that his faith might have a solid ground. To such a man God gives all that is needed to strengthen and encourage him.

Before the greater work is attempted, Gideon is called to deal with idolatry in his own home (vi. 25-32). This was no easy task. It required fidelity, and resolution, and courage. By doing the thing that lies near to us, we are being prepared for higher service.

The field of battle was in the North of Palestine, about twenty miles south-west of the Sea of Galilee. The fountain of Harod was near Mount Gilboa, on the borders of the plain of Esdraelon. It was in this district that Saul and his three sons lost their lives (1 Sam. xxxi. 1). In the valley and on the hill-sides of Moreh were the 135,000 Midianites (viii. 10). Against this vast company Gideon could bring only 32,000 men into the field (vii. 3). What an unequal contest!

Yet God deems the Israelites too many. By two methods he reduces their numbers, and adds to their strength and efficiency. The first test (vii. 3) discovers the faint-hearted. This is to be a victory of faith; men who are trembling with doubt are a weakness in such a conflict. The next test (vii. 4-7) is differently explained. It seems to have distinguished the earnest, whole-hearted, from the self-indulgent. Probably the Jewish interpretation is also correct, in distinguishing by this test those who had not been accustomed to bow the knee to Baal. The 32,000 became only 300. But God's people must not be estimated by numbers. Their strength is in proportion to their faith.

Yet another encouragement is given to Gideon (9-15). It is evident that God was already fighting for his people. Fear was taking possession of the hearts of the Midianites, and preparing the way for their defeat.

The battle was strangely fought (16-23). Never was an army so strangely equipped. We hear nothing of the usual weapons of war. Trumpets and torches belonged only to leaders, so that each one of the three hundred appeared like the leader of a host.

The sudden flashing of the torches, and the sound of breaking the pitchers, blowing the trumpets, and the shout increased the fears of the Midianites. Each man in the darkness mistook friend for foe. Panic spread through all their ranks, until the whole company fled in confusion.

As an illustration of the Church's conflict with the forces of evil the story is very instructive. It reminds us that "the foolishness of God is wiser than men." To attempt such a victory with such a small army, and so strangely equipped, appeared like folly. The battle was the Lord's, and He uses such methods that the glory of the victory belongs only to Him.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Finchley, Oct. 3; Mildmay, Oct. 4; Kingsland, Oct. 6; Stalybridge, Oct. 10; Altrincham, Oct. 11; Warrington, Oct. 12; Bradford, Oct. 13; Liverpool, Oct. 14; Bolton-le-Moors (Central Hall, 7 o'clock), Oct. 15; Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Oct. 16; Manchester (Strangeways Hall, 3 o'clock and 6.30), October 17; Liverpool (Gordon Hall, 3.30 and 7 o'clock), Oct. 18; Mr. J. S. Tyler, Petworth, Oct. 4; Steyning, Oct. 8; Tean, near Stoke-on-Trent, Oct. 20-27; Mr. Josiah Spiers, Newark-on-Trent, to Oct. 11; Mr. H. Falkner, Slough, Oct. 3; Windsor, Oct. 5; Woolhampton, Oct. 6; Reading, Oct. 7; Checkenden, Oct. 8; Loudwater, Oct. 9; Woburn, Oct. 11; Husborne, Crawley, Oct. 13; Wolverton, Oct. 14; Stony Stratford, Oct. 15; Thurleigh, Oct. 20; Riseley, Beds, Oct. 21; Knotting Green, Oct. 22; Mr. E. Hughes, Bisley, Oct. 20; Mr. A. C. Jewell, Sandgate, Oct. 5-6.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—Portions for week ending October 12, 1895.—Sun., Oct. 6, Exodus iv. 1-17; Mon., 7, v. 1-13; Tues., 8, v. 14-23; Wed., 9, vi. 1-13; Thurs., 10, vii. 1-13; Fri., 11, vii. 14-25; Sat., 12, viii. 1-15.

For the Young.

THE EMPTIED CUP.

"The cup which my Father hath given Me, shall I not drink it?"—JOHN xviii. 11.

THE word "cup" is very often mentioned in the Word of God. Sometimes the material cup is meant, and sometimes the figurative. But these are hard words for little folks to understand, so I must try and explain them for their benefit. The material cup is that which you can handle and see; the figurative is that which you can neither handle nor see, except with the mind's eye—it is an imaginary cup. Both are frequently spoken of in the Bible, and you will soon see the difference between them when we have had a chat about the two kinds of cups referred to.

First, let me say a few words respecting material cups. When we set the tea-things for mamma at breakfast time or tea-time, we little think what an ancient bit of furniture a cup is. In Gen. xl. 11 we read of Pharaoh's cup, into which it was the duty of the chief butler to press the juice of grapes, and then to present it to the king. Then, in Gen. xliv. 11, 12, we read of Joseph's cup, which was found in Benjamin's sack, the discovery of which distressed Joseph's brethren, and led to his making himself known to them. Nehemiah tells us (Neh. i. 11) that he was "the king's cup-bearer." We read, too, in Jeremiah xxxv. 5 of the cups of wine which were set before the Rechabites, when the prophet proved to his people that these strangers were more faithful to their forefathers than they had been to God. So, you see, cups were in use thousands of years ago.

These cups were made of various materials, and used for different purposes. Gold, silver, copper, and other metals, hard stone, alabaster, glass, earthenware, pottery—all were employed in their manufacture. When you visit the British Museum you will see many of the cups which have been brought from the East, and which have been in existence for many hundreds of years. We have seen that these cups were used for drinking wine; doubtless they were used for other strong drinks, too. But I hope my young friends are following the example of those brave Rechabites in this respect, and have determined that they will never partake of these things which have ruined so many homes, and broken so many hearts. Of course these cups were used for ordinary drinking purposes as well. Then they were used by heathen people in their idol-offerings, and they were also employed for the purpose of fortune-telling. I have sometimes seen little girls look into their tea-cups, and imagine that in the dregs they can see a picture—just as we sometimes fancy in the winter evenings we can see faces in the fire; and I have wondered whether this practice of looking into the tea-cup is not a remnant of the very ancient custom of fortune-telling—or "divining"—by means of this little vessel.

But we read, too, of "the cup of blessing" (1 Cor. x. 16), used by the master of the Jewish feast when he pronounced blessing over a cup of wine, and then gave each of the guests in turn to drink. It is supposed that the Lord Jesus Christ alluded to this custom when, in the presence of his disciples, "He took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this and divide it among yourselves" (Luke xxii. 17).

The figurative cup signifies the lot, or portion, of anyone. We sometimes say of a man who has been repeatedly visited by trouble and affliction, "poor fellow, his cup is full to the brim." We mean that distress has, so to speak, poured in upon the man, just as water will fill to the brim a cup which is held under the tap. This is what David meant when he said, "My cup runneth over" (Psalm xxiii. 5), only his cup was filled with joy instead of sorrow. In Psalm cxvi. 13, we read of "the cup of salvation"; in xi. 6, of "the portion of the cup" of the wicked. And David has a beautiful expression in Psalm xvi. 5: "The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance, and of my cup." Now, I think you will understand the difference between the two "cups" of which I have spoken, the material and the figurative.

The "cup" which Jesus refers to in John xviii. 11, and Matt. xxvi. 39, 42, of course, was of the latter kind. He held in his hand, as it were, a cup which contained the penalty for the sins of the whole world. It was so terrible a draught that his human nature shrank from it. But Jesus so loved us that He drank the contents of that cup, so that we should not taste its bitterness.

At one time it was customary to put people to death by causing them to drink a cup of poison. In this way Socrates—that wise, but heathen man, of whom you have read—was executed. The deadly draught was brought to him, and, looking into it, he asked what was to be done with it. "Nothing more," replied the servant, "than, as soon as you have drunk it, to walk about till you find your legs grow weary, and afterwards lie down upon your bed." He drank the cup of poison as though it were refreshing water, and lay down and died.

We were condemned to death on account of sin; the cup of God's wrath was filled for us to drink; but Christ in mercy has drunk it for us.

Death and the curse were in that cup,
O Christ, 'twas full for Thee;
But Thou hast drained the last dark drop
'Tis empty now for me;
That bitter cup, love drank it up,
Now blessing's draught for me!

We must thank Jesus for such love; and we must show that we are thankful by our actions and our words. And if our hearts are grateful to Him, we cannot help loving and serving Him, and telling others about Him too. I trust this may be the case with each young reader. F. T. WATT.

NOTES FROM JERSEY.

MR. WOOKEY recently conducted a series of meetings in St. Heliers and in the outlying parishes, in aid of Dr. Barnardo's great work. The Bible Christian Church, spacious as it is, was well filled on one occasion with interested friends, a proof that the Home for Little Boys at Gorey is deservedly popular. Thirty-two of the inmates of the Jersey branch surrounded the preacher, and took part in the musical portion of the service. The address was well calculated to draw forth the sympathies of all who love the Lord Jesus Christ towards the innocent yet suffering and forsaken children, who through misfortune of one kind or another, find themselves friendless and unprovided for. The boast of the institution that "no destitute child is ever refused admission," was clearly set forth, notwithstanding the fact that nearly 5000 were at the present time under Dr. Barnardo's care in the numerous branches of his work. At the close of the service one felt refreshed by the vigorous and helpful words which Mr. Wookey had uttered, based upon the text, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" and stirred to more active Christian effort by the rebuke that the outcast and the poor often felt themselves forsaken of God, merely because his professed followers exhibited so little Christlike pity towards them in their sin and distress.

Each week-night found the lecturer and the musical boys engaged in seeking to win support for the rescue of the perishing ones. Several of the parishes into which the island is divided were thus visited. The band of little fellows from Gorey, and the hand-bell ringers from London, made a goodly company, and they succeeded admirably in the several parts allotted to them. Everywhere the boys met with invariable kindness, farmers in the island vying with each other in granting the loan of their horses and vans, to convey the lads to and from the localities where meetings had been arranged, and where the shrill whistle of the locomotive never disturbs the sweet stillness of nature's calm.

Mr. Wookey afterwards visited Guernsey, where like opportunities of advocating the cause to which he has devoted himself were offered.

U.S.A. HOME MISSIONS.—The Congregational Home Missionary Society employs 1197 missionaries. Of these 227 preach in thirteen foreign languages amongst the foreign immigrants in the great cities of the States.

THE LATE

Professor C. C. Babington.

Our sketch this week is a brief memoir of a man of science who was at the same time a devoted Christian.

Professor Charles Cardale Babington, M.A., F.R.S., was the son of Dr. Joseph Babington. From earliest childhood he was surrounded by healthful stimulating influences, receiving from the lips of parents and relatives that sound teaching, both in doctrine and practice, which can only come by careful obedience to the one infallible guide—the Word of God. Through the long life which lately closed, that faith was never shadowed, but, with the simple trust of a child, the great student of nature, the keen observer, the profound admirer of every detail in God's wonderful world, "kept the faith." "The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein"—this was a verse he loved, and he longed that his own keen delight in the minutest outcome of the Creator's power might be widely enjoyed by others.

Many a young man attending his lectures as Professor of Botany at Cambridge must recollect how carefully he ever sought to remind his class that in no study could the mind be more led to contemplate with wonder and adoration the God of Power and Love. And in these days of excitement and rush for pleasure, would it not be well if time were given, even during a busy period of the year, and far more during a vacation, for the quiet pursuit of some study in natural science, which not only furnishes opportunities for the awakening and strengthening of the observing powers, but which aids the heart in looking up and entering more fully into the words of the Psalmist: "Thou, Lord, hast made me glad through thy work"?

Professor Babington was a man of many-sided sympathies. The Irish Church Missions Society commended itself to him through personal knowledge gained when visiting Ireland botanically and archæologically (for he was a distinguished archæologist); and his deep interest led him to visit the missions in Dublin and Connemara, and also that in the Achill Islands.

The C.M.S. had in him a warm and true friend, and few of its supporters could be found more keenly interested in the perusal of its monthly Intelligencer. The work in Uganda had a large share of interest for him, but his warmest sympathies with the C.M.S. were in connection with the beloved and honoured Rev. Jani Alli and the work he carried on amongst the Mohammedans in Calcutta. This name recalls the large numbers of University men who gathered from time to time in the home at Brookside, either for social intercourse amongst a very few at a time, or in crowded audiences to hear some chosen speaker on missions, or for a Bible-reading. For the latter, none was ever more warmly welcomed than the beloved Sir Arthur Blackwood, whose last Bible reading in that Brookside home was given on Nov. 23, 1890, the eighty-second birthday of the Professor. Among the audience was a member of the Brahmo Somaj, who had expressed a desire to attend, and who afterwards said he would carry back to India the memory of the words he heard on that day.

Time would fail to tell of all the sacred influences exercised by Professor and Mrs. Babington amongst University men. It was in their home that the sainted Bishop Parker first met Rev. Jani Alli, and formed the friendship which gave that devoted worker to India, and afterwards to his noble life-sacrifice on far Nyanza's shore. When the "Cambridge Seven" were dismissed for China, their choice of a chairman fell on Professor Babington, because, as they said, "he is so large-hearted, he loves all who love the Lord Jesus Christ." What a gathering it was; and on every subsequent visit of the China Inland Mission, the secretary, Mr. Broomhall, sought and invariably obtained the services of the same honoured chairman, until sickness deprived him of what he ever considered a privilege.

The London City Mission was a specially favourite Society with him; he often said he knew not what London would have been without it. Medical missions had for years a large place in his heart, and he delighted in the thought that here was a work in which all denominations could join, and with one heart unite in fulfilling our Lord's own command to preach the Word and heal the sick.

Last year, when the venerable Dr. Paton, of the New Hebrides, was in Cambridge, he most kindly gave half-an-hour to visiting the

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Mayall & Co., Limited, 73, Piccadilly, London, W.)

Professor, whom he found well up in all the details of his grand and heroic labours. Spain and Italy found in him a warm friend. He largely aided the work in the former country, in which the Archbishop of Dublin takes so warm a share. Count Campello's work in Italy was also a cause of deep interest. Dr. Barnardo found in the late professor a faithful and true friend. To these may be added liberal support of local work in Cambridge, into which time and space forbid us to enter.

One word must be said of his unswerving, uncompromising attitude with regard to the sad inroads of Ritualism within the borders of the Church of which he was so true a member. He deplored the widespread prevalence of externals in worship, himself delighting in simplicity, and holding loyally to the Evangelical doctrines in which he had been nurtured.

A prolonged illness of nearly four years laid him aside from active work, but not from active heart-interest in the extension of our Saviour's Kingdom; and when able, as he was for much of that time, he followed with sympathetic eagerness the work at home and abroad. This is not the place in which to speak of the sacred memories which cluster round these later years. They brought him much of suffering and weakness, but the Hand that had led him all through his lengthened life sustained him still. His peace, his patience, his praise, were lessons for all who came within his influence, and with unfaltering trust and unbroken peace his gentle spirit passed into the presence of the Lord he loved.

Thus will it be seen that the subject of this brief sketch furnishes a noble evidence of union in science and faith. Cambridge has lost one of her most distinguished sons. The gates of glory have opened to admit into the King's presence this cherished saint, who lives for ever with Him who is our Life.

HARVEST HOME.

In the autumn sunlight beaming,
Fields of waving grain behold,
Like a sea of silver gleaming,
Lightly kissed by beams of gold.

Hark! the sickles bright are ringing,
And the corn in sheaves is bound.
Reapers Harvest Home are bringing;
God with good their toil has crowned.

Oh, behold the harvest hoary,
All the world's great fertile field,
That beneath the Love-Sun's glory,
Fairer, costlier fruits doth yield.

O'er yon plain and valley vernal,
O'er yon mountain wild and steep,
For the Harvest Home eternal,
Go ye forth as men that reap.

See, the precious grain is falling,
'Neath the busy toiler's hand;
Hear the Lord of Harvest calling,
One by one, his reaper band.

They to Him their sheaves are bringing,
Some have toiled in want and pain;
Others joyfully, with singing,
Gathered in the golden grain.

But the gracious Saviour meets them,
Crowns them; yea, and one by one,
With his kiss of welcome greets them,
And his tender, sweet, "Well done!"

Harriet Julia Evans.

HARVEST THANKSGIVING HYMN.

Now let our praise to God resound,
Who doth the harvest give,
Through whom the fruits of earth abound,
By whom all creatures live.

He gilds the fields of waving corn,
The autumn's ripening grain,
That forth at harvest-home is borne,
To many a joyful strain.

He framed the world with wondrous skill,
And nature's course sustains,
Obedient to his sovereign will,
As over all He reigns.

The summer sun his purpose serves,
When April showers are o'er,
Ne'er from her track our planet swerves,
Hence this unfailing store.

The flowers that bloom around our path
In rich luxuriance grow,
To witness of his power, who hath
The skill to make them blow.

Then let our praise to God ascend,
The Giver of all good,
Who will his children aye defend,
True to his fatherhood.

In Christ He yet Himself reveals,
The Giver of all grace,
Who still in tender mercy deals
With those who seek his face.

The sunshine of our Father's love
Makes glad the hearts of all,
And brightens, from his home above,
Our harvest festival!

Wolton Park, Clevedon. Wm. Kitching.

THE STORY OF DELIA.

"A BRAND PLUCKED OUT OF THE FIRE."

By Mrs. E. M. WHITTEMORE.

Before starting out on a midnight visit to the slums of our city, a most exquisite pink rose was handed me. Regarding its beauty for a moment, the thought was suggested to take it with me and to give it to the most depraved person we might meet that night, with the prayerful hope that its purity might be used of God to recall days of innocency, and lead the recipient to accept Christ himself.

The night was warm, and as we went from place to place, the very atmosphere, even some distance from those awful haunts of sin, seemed tainted by their foulness. Finally, in a sub-cellar on Mulberry-street, overcrowded with men and women of all ages, with haggard, pinched faces, denoting plainly the ravages that vice had made, amidst cursing, swearing, and evil talking, we found a young woman of twenty-three years. She was, certainly, a most deplorable representative of humanity. She wore an old faded blue dress; her hair was dishevelled; under both eyes were dark blue bruises from a recent fight, while a little bald spot on her head, in front, showed where some of her hair had been pulled out in a struggle of some kind. There was a wild, bold look upon her face, indicating a courage which plainly gave her the advantage over the many cowardly and timid ones she mingled with, who, in their way, admired as well as feared her.

She followed us out to the sidewalk, and proposed going with us into some of the opium places on Mott-street, adding (as near as I can remember): "I'm neither afraid of man, God, nor the devil, and so can go anywhere."

All we saw and came in contact with is too revolting to recall, and, with the exception of this poor girl, we know not if aught else was accomplished, although a large number of tracts were distributed, and many words spoken for Christ and in his name. But the recollection of what she was, and has been since, more than compensates for denying oneself of sleep for the Saviour's sake in those awful streets.

The Master's Spirit prompted me to present her with my rose, and we could not refrain from smiling at her reception or it. She nodded her head, and simply said, laughingly, "Oh, that's all right." Ah, she little knew—nor did we at the time—how all right it was! One of our small company of workers teased me a little, feeling sure that the rose was wasted, and I had as good as thrown it away. There was such a conviction, however, in my heart that God had prompted the giving of it that I answered: "He will use it in some way, because I asked his blessing upon it before I gave it to her."

Side by side for nearly an hour, Delia and I walked together, only separating as we entered the different places she accompanied us to. In real prayerfulness did I plead with her to leave this fearful life, but nothing seemed to touch her heart. She said she could get all she wanted to eat, and if she needed money all she had to do was to help herself from those who had it. She had yielded to every known sin, and said there was no use to do differently.

Nevertheless, the more we conversed together, the greater became the conviction that she must be saved; and even then, in the depths of that depraved heart could I perceive, with the grace of Jesus Christ, great possibilities of better things. This thought so took possession of me that no soul was ever held up by me more persistently in believing faith before God, than, for twenty-four hours, was this poor girl of the streets.

She was known by various names in that wicked district. The police, on account of their difficulty to find her, gave her the title of "The Mystery," while others called her "Blue Bell" (I suppose on account of her partiality for that colour). For three years she had been roaming from place to place, until she now appeared quite callous and indifferent to surroundings, or to anything good or respectable.

As I listened to all this, and more that I would not care to repeat, the thought presented itself over and over again, If this girl were once established in Christ, God could so sanctify that fearlessness of disposition as to make her as notorious for Him possibly as was Jerry McAuley; for there was scarcely a den of vice or place of iniquity she was not acquainted with nor would be afraid to enter, throughout that ward.

Her actions certainly gave no encouragement to these thoughts, until, just as we were about parting, she promised to come the following night to the Florence Midnight Mission. Quickly as she did so did she discern the look of incredulity upon some of our faces, and in a rough but dignified manner, drew herself up and said, "I suppose you don't believe my word, but when I say a thing I am a person to do what I say," and, with some force added, "I'll be there," and then bid us good-bye.

The next evening I waited till nearly eleven o'clock at the place designated, but finally returned home with a sad heart, and without seeing her. All the way up town but one prayer arose over and over again from the depths of my soul: "O God, save her; use anyone, but save her, for Christ's sake."

The following day I went, as usual, to the "Door of Hope," and found the matron awaiting me in the hall with a small parcel in her hand and an unusually happy face. She greeted me with these words: "Oh, I have something to tell you; but look inside of your parcel first." I undid it with some curiosity, and, at the first glance at its contents, my eyes filled with tears, and a peculiar feeling choked my utterance for an instant, accompanied with unspeakable joy, for I held in my hand the remnants of that once beautiful rose given in his name two nights ago. It had done its duty faithfully, and had silently spoken direct to the one the Lord intended it for. When she would gaze upon its purity and freshness, it seems a holy desire arose within her soul to seek a better life. She grew to love it, and, fearing it would fade too quickly, got permission in some low restaurant to keep it in water awhile; and then, I suppose, thinking she might lose it, she later carried it around wherever she went, until all its beauty had gone. It was in this condition when she found her way up to the mission, arriving there just after I had left.

Through the description given she was recognised, kindly conversed with, and then brought up by friends to the "Door of Hope," where she was lovingly received by the matron, and made comfortable for the remainder of the night.

The assistant matron was so touched by her affection for the wilted rose she still held, that she presented her with a fresh one. Later on, when referring to that night, she said: "I came to the Home like the poor, faded, pink rose, but with the grace of God I shall now bloom like the new rose given me then." (This first one I shall ever keep as a love token of God's faithfulness in using even little things when once truly committed to Him.)

Before our morning's Bible study the matron, Delia, and myself knelt in thankfulness and prayer together a little. Almost instantly the same desire that was breathed into my soul by the bedside of dear Vangie (who was gloriously saved shortly after the opening of the Home) was given me to pray for her: "Dear Lord, grant this poor girl thy love, for this is after all what she sorely needs, and give us so much love for her that we may just love her into loving Thee."

Those few moments waiting thus before the Lord, accomplished what all the words spoken two nights before to her in the streets, in tones of tenderness, had failed to do, for she broke down completely, and wept in real penitence and gratitude.

Then and there, I believe, that prayer was answered, and his love so began to penetrate into the depths of her heart, as to make her realise that Christ could save even to the uttermost. Since then she has indeed been following on to know the Lord, and has exclaimed more than once, "Has not God done wonderfully for me!" and other like expressions. Until her death, two years later, she lost all desire for either liquor, opium, or snuff, and she gave evidence of a truly changed heart. Not the least remarkable feature was the change wrought in her face during those two years, reflecting as it did the peace that reigned within.

To prove how God cares for every little detail of work, I must add that a day or so before Delia came, one of my Bible-class men called and asked if I would accept a trunk full of clothing, belonging once to his mother, who died, and which he had kept out of love to her for some time. He said: "I felt prompted by God to send them to you, to be used for the girls." It touched my heart very deeply, as I could see by the tears in his eyes that even then it cost something to relinquish them.

They arrived just in time for me to open the trunk, and get out some dresses for Delia. If she had been measured, the waists could not have fitted more perfectly. Then, before night, He put it into the heart of one of our party of workers to give a small amount for whatever else would be necessary for her comfort, and so verified the promise in Phil. iv. 19.

Dear co-labourers in Christ, and all who love the Lord, I earnestly solicit your prayers in her behalf, that she may truly be out and out for Christ, and in humility and power be greatly used in advancing his cause, and in rescuing others from the very places where once she was as one of them herself.

[This prayer was abundantly answered, though Delia only lived a year after her salvation.]

The "Door of Hope" is generally quite crowded, and the Lord is continually moving upon the hearts of the inmates. I do fervently desire great unity of spirit in prayer for the work.

Someone suggested during the winter, when I had a surplus of money sent, over and above expenses, that it would be prudent to set aside a portion every now and then as a reserve fund for the summer months, when people were liable to be out of the city. Thank God, He does not leave the city, therefore no such proceedings have been resorted to, nor do I anticipate any lack of funds, for "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever." After meeting weekly expenses, when anything has been left over, it has always been my desire to place it in the bank toward the purchasing of the house later on, and with God's help, that account shall be held sacred, and used only for that purpose. By so doing, I am compelled to fall back again, at the beginning of each week, upon the reserve fund that was never known to become exhausted—the bank of heaven—nor has it ever protested a note endorsed by faith, nor refused a draft drawn to the order of Jesus Christ, and sealed by, "All the promises of God are yea in Him, and in Him are Amen."

God grant that we may appreciate these facts more fully, and then, when we draw upon Him to supply our needs, we will approach Him with the full assurance of faith, and though tested a little before the reality of possession is experienced, we will learn the lesson the testing is permitted far more promptly, and be the better able to meet the next emergency in real Christlike humility and trust.

Anyone desiring information, etc., regarding the "Door of Hope," may address me at the Home, 102, East 61st-street, New York.

THE GOSPEL IN KOREA.

Rev. S. F. Moore, missionary of the American Presbyterian Board, writes to the New York Independent from Seoul:—

"It is the desire and purpose of the missionary body to offer the Gospel to every man and woman in Seoul before the coming winter. The number of native volunteers is not so large as we would like, but still large enough to do wonders under the blessing of God. One man reported having entered fifty houses in one day, and that the people received tracts, and promised to consider the question of eternal life and eternal death.

"Considerable attention has been called to a petition to the Government on behalf of the butchers, who for the past five hundred years have been treated with contempt by all classes as the offscouring of the earth. They have been beaten and plundered of their goods, and they had no redress. The petition asked that posters be pasted up in all the eight provinces, notifying the people that henceforth butchers shall be allowed to wear the ordinary civilian hat and mangen worn by all other classes, and shall be considered as on the same footing with other working-men, that higher class people be forbidden to beat them and take away their goods.

"One month ago the petition was sent in, and yesterday the posters were put up stamped with the Government seal. It is an occasion of very great rejoicing among the butchers. Mr. Pak, a Christian butcher, would like to go with another native to all the butchers—about thirty thousand men, he says, in all Korea. They would take a pony-load of books and be gone a long time, probably more than six months. He says that the butchers will be so grateful for this great deliverance, that they will listen to the Gospel well, and that there are many who will become believers. We want to begin with the lowest classes and work up; and I believe that God will call out many of his Korean saints from among the despised class."

The Evangelist.

A MISS AS GOOD AS A MILE.

An army officer was once speaking to a number of country people in a school-room, and in the course of his remarks used the following illustration:—If three of you men wanted to join a regiment of Guards, you would have to go before an officer, and walk under a rod placed six feet above the floor, having first taken off your boots or shoes. It is a rule in the Army that each Guardsman must be not less than six feet high in his stockings. No man, therefore, can join that regiment if he can walk under the rod without touching it with his head.

Now suppose (the captain said) you three men were different in height, one five feet eleven, another five feet ten, and the last five feet nine and a-half; you might all be right on every other point, but you would all pass under the rod without touching it, and thus prove yourselves to be too short for the required standard, so you would all be rejected. And, suppose, after leaving the officer's room, the five-feet-eleven man was to say, "I came nearer to the rod than either of you"; they might reply, "but you missed being a soldier just as much as we did."

Then the speaker put it in another way. Two persons are intending to travel by the same train; one arrives at the station only a minute too late, and the other is ten minutes behind. It would not be much satisfaction to the first man to boast that he was nearer to the time than the other, since they both equally lost the train.

And as regards the kingdom of heaven, the Bible says (Rom. iii. 23), "All have sinned, and come short of the glory of God." There is a vast difference in people's lives, no doubt, and of many it may be truly said that they are "not far from the kingdom of God" (Mark xii. 34). Some come very near to the door of heaven; others are a long distance from it; and many are not in the way at all. And yet they are all alike in one point, if they all fail to enter into the kingdom, and those who come nearest to it are, perhaps, more to be pitied than the others. To be at the very door of heaven, and yet not to enter in, seems worse than only to see it a long way off.

I have often thought of the captain's words at that meeting, so plain and full of teaching. What folly it is to be satisfied with being better than others! Yet such self-righteous persons are to be met with everywhere. They do not deny that they are sinners, but still trust to some fancied goodness in themselves. They are not so bad as some; or, they have a good heart at the bottom.

A great preacher was once speaking in a market-place on the subject of sin, and put it in the following telling way. If you come into this market to buy some apples, and see some looking very poor and decayed, you would say to the woman, "They are not fit for much." Suppose she answered, "It's true they are bad at the top, but they're better at the bottom." What would you think? You may depend upon it (the preacher said) if they're bad at the top, they're worse at the bottom! Anyone can see the force of his words, and yet how slow people are to believe what the Bible says of the fallen state of every child of Adam.

Ever since our first parents partook of the forbidden fruit, all who have lived on the earth have been lost sinners, without God, and without hope. "The soul that sinneth it shall die," is what God has said (Ezek. xvii. 4). And yet vain man would be wise above what is written, and prides himself on being less of a sinner than somebody else. This is foolishness indeed, as long as all are equally in a lost state. It is a foundation of sand, and will certainly fail when the great day of trial comes.

Happily, there is a bright side to this dark picture. It is true that "all have sinned," and incurred eternal death; but the deadly wound may be healed, and the lost may be found and saved. The door of heaven is shut against us by reason of sin, and no power in earth or hell can open it. Many (the Lord has told us) will come to the door at that day, and knock, and expect to be let in; they will say, "Lord, Lord, open unto us; we have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and Thou hast taught in our streets." Surely, we might think, these will enter in; the door must open to them. But no! the Lord knows them not, and there is no admittance for them. Self-righteous souls, however moral and upright in their conduct, cannot be received into his presence any more than the most abandoned and profligate sinners.

Who, then, will pass through the open door and be welcomed by the King of glory? Hear his own words: "I am the door; by Me if any man enter in He shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture" (John x. 9). Personal and experimental knowledge of Christ as our sin-bearing Saviour is what is wanted by everyone for acceptance at that day.

Now is the time to acquaint ourselves with Him and be at peace; then He will open the everlasting door and bid us enter into the joy of our Lord. But those who don't know Him now will not be owned by Him then; in spite of outwardly good conduct and high attainments in knowledge and profession of godliness, they will find the door hopelessly closed against them as much as against any others; and, when He shutteth, no man openeth.

Penzance. T. Cawley.

EXPOSITORY NOTES.

JOHN VIII. 1—11.

We read that a woman was brought before our Lord in the Temple, and accused of being taken "in the very act" of adultery. Her accusers declared that by the law of Moses "such should be stoned," and then asked "but what sayest Thou?" Thou who pretendest to be a teacher come from God. (John iii. 2.)

Now, the law distinctly required that both, the man and the woman, should be stoned (Lev. xx. 10, and Deut. xxii. 22). The Scribes and Pharisees, the great sticklers for the law of Moses, had failed completely in fulfilling this principal requirement of this very law, and must have allowed the man to escape, if the woman was taken "in the very act." Our Lord, who knew the hearts of all men, at once perceived their mistake, and in his love and mercy gave them an opportunity of reflecting on their proceedings. He gave them no answer at once, but wrote something on the ground (v. 6). We may well conjecture that He wrote, "But where is the man?" her partner in the sin and guilt. This they disregarded, and continued asking him the same idle question, and our Lord at once convinced them of their own sin in making such a one-sided accusation against a poor helpless woman in public, and in the temple, by saying: "He that is without sin among you" (who have even now failed to keep that very law of Moses you so much boast of), "let him first cast a stone at her" (v. 7).

No adversaries could stand up against such a defence, and such infinite wisdom and goodness. We read that they "went out one by one," in fact, slunk away, abashed at the sight of their own sin and hypocrisy, leaving the poor woman to receive that balm and consolation from the Saviour of the world, which He came to give freely to all repentant sinners. Jno. F. Fischer, General R.E.

Bangalore.

CHRISTIAN CONVENTIONS.

ROTHESAY.

A convention, under the auspices of the Faith ission, was held in Rothesay from September 19 23. The speakers were Rev. Andrew Murray, ev. C. G. Moore, Rev. J. Gregory Mantle, Rev. elson Gregson, Mr. John Colville, M.P. (Mother-ell), Mr. W. J. Govan, and Mr. J. F. Govan. All ie mission workers, numbering forty-five, were pre-ent. Christians of all denominations from diffe-ent parts of the kingdom were present.

On Sunday week the meetings were particularly rge, and although the new public hall in which ie meetings were held that day is seated for fif-een hundred, yet persons were found standing for ant of sufficient room. In the evening a specially rge march of between 400 and 500 persons went rough the town, and formed an open-air meeting the head of the pier, where some striking testi-onies were given.

It was a great joy and privilege to have Mr. Mur-ay amongst us, and it was beautiful how the Holy pirit led to perfect unity in the addresses delivered y the different speakers. The freedom and liberty prayer generally was refreshing. We all felt we ad met with God, the Blesser, and that He had earched and purified our inner life. And we left ith the desire that our life might be used wholly r God, and for the salvation of dying souls. We ve God the praise and glory for the time spent at is feet. M. C. R. C.

GLASGOW.

The annual Convention for the Deepening of piritual Life was held in the Queen's Rooms, lasgow, last week. The gatherings were even ore crowded than last year, and a deep feeling of olemnity pervaded them all. The proceedings ommenced with the customary preparatory prayer eeting, and from that point onward to the early orning thanksgiving there was a marked readiness take part in the service of prayer and praise. he requests for prayer handed in for the early eetings were numerous, and the nature of them ointed to a deep anxiety about spiritual things.

At the opening meeting, Rev. Charles G. Moore ave a stirring address on the inward significance the parable about the Hiring of Labourers for the ineyard, giving an exposition of Matthew xx. 1-16. is conviction was that no amount even of service the Lord, could give a guarantee of a prominent osition in the kingdom. He recalled a conversa-on with Mr. Hudson Taylor, when the latter said e believed the highest places in heaven would not e occupied by preachers and great workers, but ey might find they came after some poor woman, ith a drunken husband, who supported her family y washing, and did it all for Christ's sake.

On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, there ere day meetings 7 and 11 a.m., 3, and 7.30 p.m. n the afternoon of the first of these days, much terest was aroused by an address from Pastor rockmayer, his subject being, "The bringing forth Christians of the Image of the Lamb Slain from e Foundation of the World." The image of the on (Romans viii. 29) to which his people are to be onformed is that of the Lamb slain; and it is the me image that we have spoken of in Isaiah, by ohn the Baptist, by Peter in his first epistle, and the Book of Revelation. In the evening the hall as crowded, and Rev. Andrew Murray gave an ldress on "The call to Christian Repentance con-ined in the Epistle to the Church at Laodicea" Rev. iii. 19, 20). He said this was a call for re-entance, not of the unconverted, but of Christians. the epistles to the five churches, where there was omething blameworthy, we have the word "Re-ent," while in the other two it is wanting. He oke first about the sins from which Christ wanted ne Laodiceans to turn: (1) Lukewarmness; (2) neglect of his blessings, the gold tried in the fire, the white raiment and the eye-salve; (3) self-satisfaction: second, about what the repentance He called for implies; and, third, the wonderful blessings He promises to those who repent. He drew a graphic picture of Peter as a Christian who did not deny himself at Christ's call, but after He fell, repented and became altogether a new man.

On Wednesday Pastor Stockmayer addressed a crowded gathering on the subject of the Redemption of the Body. This, he said, is to follow sanctification. It is, indeed, the great hope of the Church (1 Cor. xiii. 13) to be accomplished only at the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The fact that Thursday was a public holiday in Glasgow and a number of surrounding towns, made it possible for many to attend the meetings then who would not otherwise have been able to do so. As a result overflow meetings were held in an adjoining hall, and the speaking force was divided to meet the exigencies of the occasion. The interest throughout the day in the two places of meeting gathered respectively round the addresses of Mr. Murray and Pastor Stockmayer. The latter continued his study of the privileges of those who wait for the appearing of the Lord, based on Ephesians iv. 1-16. The closing words of the Convention were spoken by Mr. Murray, whose subject was "Separation," beginning with the separation of the children of Levi from their brethren (Exodus xxxiii. 14-16). He said the separation of believers unto God means (1) separation from sin, (2) separation from the sinners, (3) consecration, (4) separation for fellowship, (5) separation for worship. The consecration prayer at the close moved all within the building to the depths of their hearts.

The presence of missionaries from many parts of the world was again a pleasing feature of the gatherings. The face of Mr. Cassels, Bishop designate of Western China, became a familiar one in Glasgow, and among others Mr. Orr Ewing and Mr. Grierson, of the China Inland Mission, were recognised by many.

The deep interest aroused in the city by the visit of Mr. Andrew Murray led to two special meetings being arranged to be held on the forenoon and afternoon of Friday, after the conclusion of the Convention proper. At the earlier of these he gave an address to mothers and daughters, while in the gathering at a later hour his words were mainly designed for ministers.

The gatherings of the week were brought to a fitting conclusion by the holding of a large missionary meeting under the auspices of the China Inland Mission, at which the chair was taken by Mr. John Colville, M.P. Addresses were delivered by Rev. J. W. Stevenson, Bishop Cassels, Mr. Archibald Orr Ewing, Mr. Robert Grierson, Mr. Walter B. Sloan, and other friends. The gathering was large and enthusiastic. Special interest was awakened by the references to the dark days through which many of the members of this and other missions have recently been called to pass.

SALISBURY.

Our twentieth conference is over. God's sunshine shone brightly overhead throughout the three days. God's sunshine was also manifestly shining in the hearts of many of his saints walking in the light, and having fellowship with one another in his glorious full salvation. It seemed to many that it was a gain to this conference that selected subjects were placed on one side, and more room made for the liberty and leading of the Holy Spirit. It was a special privilege to have Rev. W. W. Cassels, Bishop designate of Western China, with us on the Sunday preceding our gathering. His sermons were of a heart-searching character, and we praised God that he has been manifestly separated by the Holy Ghost for the position of responsibility which he has been called to fill.

The Introductory Conference Sermon was preached on Monday evening in Fisherton Church by Rev. W. Standen, of Smithills. The preacher's subject was Eph. i. 3, out of which he brought precious teaching as to (1) the Sinner's Portion; (2) the Saint's Portion; and (3) the Soldier's Portion.

One thought pervaded the various gatherings—we had met for conference with God rather than with man. It was the evident desire of the speakers that souls should be brought in touch with God Himself; that He alone could interpret into experience the blessed facts of death, burial, and resurrection with Christ.

The closing Conference address by Rev. E. S. Hamilton, of Bath, was an intensely helpful and practical one. The subject, Col. iii. 1-3, viz., "Living the Resurrection Life in a Mortal Body." The ideal and possible life which is set before us is that of living the resurrection life here and now in the body of our humiliation. Before resurrection comes death, and that death takes place experimentally the moment we are willing to give up all to God. We must be brought to this in each detail. Our friends, possessions, plans, and schemes must all go. Thus our Conference ended where it had begun—quickened into resurrection life with Christ in the heavenly places. May God the Holy Ghost interpret this blessed fact to many in daily experience, for the remaining time until Jesus comes again.

During the afternoons of the Conference various accounts of the Lord's work were given. On Tuesday Rev. W. W. Cassels spoke on Western China, Miss Panton (C.E.Z.) on India, Mr. Geo. Holland, of Whitechapel, on Rescue Work in London, and Rev. Dr. Spence, of Belfast, on the work of the Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland. On Wednesday "Sister Lucy" gave a graphic picture of Ceylon's deep needs, and Miss Griffin, of the Police Seaside Home, Brighton, spoke of the wondrous way the Lord Himself has worked in the hearts of the policemen there, and in the other branches of the C.P.A.

Thursday was our great missionary meeting, when the Bishop of Sierra Leone gave us a most interesting account of his visit to the West Indies, and his very practical scheme to extend mission work into Africa, in which country he has worked for ten and a-half years. Rev. L. Lloyd spoke of China's deep needs. God's ancient people were represented by Mr. Norullah, of Ispahan, who told us of blessed openings in Persia for work among the Jews. T.

AMONG THE HOP-PICKERS.

Dear Sir,—Mr. Heley, Mr. Luff, and others, with myself, have finished our thirteenth annual visit to the hop-pickers of Herefordshire and Worcestershire. We visited 150 lots, on that number of farms, comprising 16,000 grown people, and quite as many again younger folks. We had splendid openings and opportunities for preaching the Gospel to them, as well as giving them tracts and books, and personal conversations. The quiet good order, and gratitude showed by them for our Christian attentions was very manifest and real, and very encouraging to us.

At one place we met with ten down with small-pox, but every kindness possible was being showed them by their very eminent employers; they lacked for nothing necessary under such trying circumstances. We met with one little dead child, which was buried at Bosbury. The hop-pickers sung over it, "Jesus, lover of my soul," before making a start to its grave. We fell in with a fine young gipsy man lying down on a sack in a meadow very ill with diphtheria. We had perfect weather from beginning to end. Many kindnesses were showed us by the farmers and their wives. We met with a young man who told us that he was converted two years ago after our preaching. He seemed full of love and joy.

I feel more confirmed than ever that this is a very important mission to be fulfilled by somebody once a year.

I am grateful to God for being permitted to take a part in it.—Your indebted evangelist,

Shepherd's Bush, W. John Jones.

THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.

CONFERENCE AT BELFAST.

This northern Irish city was last week the scene of a well-attended and altogether useful gathering, being the usual autumn Conference of the British branch of the Alliance. Previous conferences in connection with it were held in Belfast in 1859 and in 1875; and that of last week was a worthy successor to these memorable occasions.

According to pleasant custom the sittings of the Conference opened with a conversazione, held on Tuesday evening in the annexe of the Ulster Hall, when there was a large muster of the Irish friends of the Alliance, as well as of others from "the adjacent island" of Great Britain. The recent death of the Lady Mayoress deprived the gathering of the presence and sympathetic speech of the Chief Magistrate of the city. His place as chairman was well filled by that tried friend of every Evangelical work, Mr. R. L. Hamilton, J.P. After his opening words of welcome, a more formal address of greeting came from another respected citizen, Mr. Thomas Sinclair. His reference to the spirit of the Alliance and its distinguished services to the causes, both of religious unity and humanity, were happily conceived and expressed. His words of fraternal esteem were replied to in equally brotherly terms by Canon Bell, of Cheltenham; Principal Douglas, of Glasgow, Rev. E. A. Stuart, of Bayswater, Rev. Peter Thompson, of East London, and, on behalf of Continental friends, Pastor Faithful, of Madrid. The Alliance, in its organic and official aspects, was ably represented by the secretary, Mr. A. J. Arnold, who greatly interested his auditors, as he invariably does, by a summary of its aims and achievements. The song of Mr. Vance and his choir was a pleasing feature of an enjoyable evening.

The more practical work of the Conference began on Wednesday morning. At the noon session Dr. Buick, Moderator of the Irish General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, presided. In the course of a weighty address he touched on the true and false aspects of Christian union, rejecting with special emphasis the Romish idea of one great ecclesiastical organisation.

THE ANNUAL ADDRESS

of the Conference was given by Principal Douglas, of Glasgow, whose subject was "The Ministry of Reconciliation." The three aspects of Christ's great life-work as Prophet, Priest, and King having been presented and summarised, the speaker enlarged on the work of the Holy Spirit in applying Christ's redemptive work, and proceeded to urge that the special offices of the Saviour cannot be usurped by his ministers, who can only proclaim what has been accomplished. Moreover, this Gospel ministry can and ought to be shared by the whole Church.

The "practical resolutions" embodied in the Alliance basis were read and powerfully enforced by Dr. Marshall Lang, of Glasgow. While he was not sanguine as to any organic union between differing Churches in the near future, he warmly urged that heart union and friendly co-operation in prayer and effort which ought to characterise all sections of the one Church.

A paper followed by Rev. W. Crosbie, of Nottingham, on "The Great Church Question." It was an earnest plea for a definite enduement of Holy Ghost power in the Church, in order to an increased and a fruitful spiritual life. In substance the same thoughts have been frequently set forth in these columns of late from Mr. Crosbie's pen.

HOME AND FOREIGN MISSIONS

were the deeply-engrossing topic of the Wednesday afternoon meeting, when Mr. W. E. Malcolm presided. The first to claim the sympathies of the assembly was Rev. Peter Thompson of the East End Wesleyan Mission. He unfolded the spiritual needs of that great teeming district of London, and described something of the various Missions at work to uplift the people. Mr. G. W. Jackson spoke of the evangelisation of India, making special reference to the need of a truly Christian education. The claims and Gospel Missions of Spain were well set forth by Pastor Faithful, from Madrid.

At the evening meeting, which was largely attended (under Dean Seaver's chairmanship), three addresses were given on "The World's Claims on Evangelical Christians." Dr. Marshall Lang spoke well on the general question, throwing into clear relief the last achievements of the missionary crusade, and calling for yet further sacrifices to that end by British Christians. A good deal of interesting information was given as to the state of that long-neglected continent, South America, by Mr. Wm. Barnett, who could speak from personal observation. The closing utterance of the evening was by Rev. W. Crosbie, who urged a greater use of the weapon of united prayer in the furtherance of missions.

The Conference was resumed on Thursday forenoon, when three addresses engaged the attention of those present. Canon Bell expounded, in his own weighty way,

"THE GLORY OF THE OLD TESTAMENT."

The modern assaults on the Bible, he said, reveal the latent popular unbelief of the time, and the loose hold that many nominal Christians have on their faith. The place and function of the Old Testament Scriptures, as a preparation for the fuller light of the New, were firmly and logically maintained. "The Messages to the Seven Churches, a Message for To-day" was the topic on which Rev. G. D. Hooper, of Luton, dilated with much cogency. The special failings of the Churches to whom John addressed himself in the Revelation were noted in some detail, and it was shown that a like tendency to worldliness, lukewarmness, and connivance at wrong can be found in our modern church life. We still need the open ear to hear the voice of the Master and the power of the Divine Spirit to enable us to overcome. An earnest address on Sabbath Observance, and the dangers of laxity in regard to the Lord's Day, followed from Rev. J. M. Shiach, of Portobello.

An afternoon garden party at Sea View, the residence of Mr. James Johnston, was a very enjoyable and refreshing interlude in the Conference. The large company were generously entertained, and there were fraternal words at the close from the host, and Principal Douglas as representing the guests.

Three speakers again filled up the programme for the closing session on Thursday evening, when Mr. W. E. Malcolm presided. A helpful address on "The High-Priesthood of our Lord," was given by Rev. E. A. Stuart. The very practical and timely question of "Worldly Amusements" was entrusted to Rev. G. H. C. Macgregor, of Notting Hill, who grappled with it in no halting or compromising way. While admitting that there is a legitimate place in human life for suitable and proper recreation, he pointed out how fatal to spirituality in the Christian Church is the predominating influence of the worldly spirit, which too often showed itself in doubtful methods of doing the Lord's work, as well as in grosser materialistic forms. Closing words of congratulation, and also of exhortation, fell from Rev. G. D. Hooper. During the evening Mr. A. J. Arnold heartily thanked the local friends for working so harmoniously and energetically to make the gatherings a success.

HITCHIN.—Mr. J. Rennie, colporteur, agent of the Religious Book Society, Edinburgh, has just closed his twenty-fourth year in the Hitchin district. The report shows that he has not laboured in vain, having sold and distributed in village and market 254,300 volumes, 534,110 periodicals and small books, and 3,394,200 tracts, and conducted some thousands of Gospel and temperance meetings.

MR. HENRY VARLEY.

This evangelist has been conducting a prolonged evangelistic effort in San Francisco and the adjacent cities of Oakland, Alameda and Berkley, under the title of a Bible Teaching Campaign. He has laboured there for five months with manifest tokens of blessing in the building up of believers as well as the conversion of many unsaved ones.

That the fight was a hard one all who know San Francisco can well believe, varied and crying evils having been accepted as inevitable by the community as a whole, though he found many believers whose robustness of Christian character illustrated the faithfulness of the Divine promise, "When the enemy comes in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him."

Unsparing denunciation of sin, repentance toward God, faith in Christ, and the promised return of our Lord have been the burden of no less than three hundred Bible studies and addresses, supported by the prayerful and hearty sympathy of Evangelical Christians of every name.

Personal dealing with anxious ones has involved no little strain, while the publication of 150,000 pamphlets at a cost of £220 (all of which has been subscribed) has enabled the evangelist to leave behind a testimony which will circulate far beyond the limits of his voice.

Visiting the great criminal establishment of San Quinten, about twenty miles distant, he gave four addresses to the 1300 men imprisoned there, and left a large supply of pamphlets for their leisurely perusal.

Writing on board ship from Honolulu on August 29, on his way home to Melbourne, Mr. Varley says: The quiet and freshness of this "great wide sea" is yielding refreshment from the oppressive sense of brain-fag and weariness which possessed me. The past Sunday gave me opportunity to tell of Christ Jesus and his wonderful salvation to the passengers on board. There is a strongly-marked tendency to let the Lord's Day pass on these steamers without any service; and I would avail myself of your columns to press upon my brethren who journey by sea to maintain bright and real services on shipboard, lest the evident tendency should become a precedent, and thus the services and the Lord's Day at sea be practically lost.

As for California, I am in love with the climate, and deeply attached to the people. It is never really hot, and scarcely ever cold in the sense of frost, whilst there is a marvellous exhilaration in the cool currents of air which come with constant and balmy freshness to San Francisco. I have not once been troubled with cold or bronchitis, and never felt more robust and strong than now.

I have seen much of the world, but that State, I think, surpasses all. Its productive power is simply marvellous; for fruits and flowers it is beyond description. The days and months of peerless sunshine, mingled with white mist upon which the direct rays of the sun appear to feed, effectually prevent the intensity of the heat of its direct rays.

Poverty should be unknown, and life a long anthem of praise. This would be so were it not for sin. Intemperance, the worship of money, and depravity of the most attractive and fascinating character literally blights the land and prevents its development and prosperity. Crime and sin, hideous and degrading, bid fair to change "this fruitful land into barrenness by reason of the wickedness of those that dwell therein."

THE LUTHER STATUE IN BERLIN, which was recently inaugurated, in the presence of Prince Leopold of Prussia, as delegate of the German Emperor, does not seem to mean much in the eyes of the civil authorities of Berlin. One of the chief speakers on the occasion was careful to explain that the monument should not be regarded as opposing confessions other than Protestant, but simply as doing honour to the genius of "the creator of the German language and the pioneer of popular education!" Other speakers did their utmost to hide the religious element, all having apparently forgotten that the monument exists in pursuance of a resolution passed in 1883, when, in a moment of national enthusiasm, Protestant Germany celebrated the fourth centenary of the birth of the great Reformer.

CONFERENCE IN LONDON.

We have just come to the end of a conference which has been held during the past week in Regent's Park Chapel. We look back on the meetings with hearts full of praise and thankfulness, for the Lord has indeed been very mightily with the brethren who have spoken to us, and the power of the Holy Spirit has been very manifest at all the meetings.

On Monday the first speaker was Rev. W. Middleton, who, speaking from Isaiah lxii. 6, dwelt very powerfully on the subject of prayer. His points were (1) We must pray in the consciousness that our God is very near; (5) we must believe that He is desirous to bestow; (3) we must show definitely that our hearts have been changed; (4) we must have had an experience of communion; (5) we must render unquestioning obedience; and (6) we must exercise a mighty faith. He showed clearly the distinction between spiritual blessings, which we could obtain from God, and temporal blessings, which we should ask in submission to God's will.

Lord Radstock, who followed, especially emphasised the fact that it is more of God that is needed; that there was plenty of religion, plenty of Christianity, but too little of God. Salvation was only the beginning of God's work in our lives. He made man in his own image, and this, the speaker believed, meant that God made man to be a representation of Himself—to represent Him; and that God's purpose was to restore us so that we could do this. If our Christianity was not supernatural, it was not Christianity at all. We were not called to try to do anything, but to yield ourselves to Him, and let it be all his work. Holiness was not perfection, but separation unto God—contact with God.

On Tuesday, Rev. G. Armstrong Bennetts, B.A., taking as his text Eph. i. 19-22, spoke powerfully on what the exceeding greatness of his power in us was. He said we needed to know more of the Gospel of the empty cross—to realise what an enthroned Christ meant to us. He is head over all things to us, and we are crowned with Christ here. He is head over our circumstances, our temptations, our disposition. We can only know the full meaning of this when we are brought to an end of ourselves.

Rev. J. S. Pawlyn, speaking on Acts i. 8, dwelt on the power of Christ through us—power for service. Energy was to be desired, but that was not enough. Prayer was powerful, but something more than that even was needed—a bold stepping out on the promises of God. The primary qualification for this is the life given up. Then follows a special endowment for service—the Holy Ghost thrilling through us, fitting us with every needed qualification.

On Wednesday, Rev. E. G. Gange was the speaker. Addressing himself to workers, he spoke of (1) the call to the work; (2) the desire for it; (3) fitness; and (4) the reward for the work, in the service, and afterwards. As to the fitness for the work, he specially emphasised the following points (a) coming to Christ; (b) abiding with Christ; and (c) receiving power.

On Thursday, Rev. E. J. Bagnall spoke from John xii. 24, of the way to an abundant life through death—death to sin and death to self—the good self as well as the bad self. Mr. H. W. Maynard followed, eloquently and helpfully on (1) the burden of circumstances (Phil. i. 12); (2) the burden of self (Job vii. 20); (3) the burden of sin (Ps. xxxviii. 4, and (4) the burden of the Saviour (Matt. xi. 29, 30).

On Friday, the culminating point of the meeting was reached, when, to a most sympathetic audience, Rev. Thomas Waugh spoke for upwards of an hour on Eph. v. 18. He very clearly showed our personal relation to the subject, emphasising the fact that as the Holy Spirit had been given, there was no reason why we should tarry for the filling. Having yielded all to Christ, we could claim the fulness here and now. It was a most impressive time, and an after-meeting followed. Saturday was given up to a missionary meeting, at which Mr. T. Hutton spoke.

L. W. H.

THE McALL MISSION.

We have had a good summer in Paris, and notwithstanding times of much heat, the meetings have been well attended. Our hall on the Boulevard Bonne Nouvelle, which has now been open every night for the preaching of the Gospel for eleven years and a-half, continues to be well filled; in fact, the meetings there were never better than now.

The work among the children and young people, and among the women has also been well maintained, whilst the three medical missions have been doing their good work with marked blessing.

"Le Bon Messager" has been on the Oise all summer, and is there still, while we hope to continue the meetings till the end of the year, working towards Paris by Pontoise and Poissy, and possibly trying something in the outskirts of the city later on. The meetings on board have been most interesting, and the success has been just as in previous years. Out of the 113 meetings held up to the 11th of this month, the average attendance at eighty-two meetings was 165, at twenty-three it was seventy-nine, and only at eight did it drop below fifty. The places visited have been Pont-St.-Maxence, St. Leu d'Esserent, Boran, Persan-Beaumont, Ile d'Adam, and Auvers, where it still is. We believe that many have been aroused to think of their souls' welfare, while for the first time they have heard the Word of God read and explained, and we feel sure that the testimony of not a few to the power of the Gospel proves that a lasting work has been accomplished.

We are glad to note that as the result of the work of the boat last year on the Aisne, two stations have been opened, one at Vic and another by our Baptist brethren at Cuise-la-Motte. We rejoice in this result of the meetings on board, and had we the means in our disposal, we should be glad to do the like wherever the boat goes. But at present our plan is clearly marked out—to open the way for others to follow. We are giving interesting details in our little Quarterly Record, now in the press, and which can be obtained from our London office, 112, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

We are now assembling for the winter's campaign, and ask that we be remembered in prayer, that much blessing may be accorded us. We would remind our friends that our weekly prayer meeting is held on Friday afternoon, at 23, Rue Royale. We always gladly welcome all who can look in as they are passing through Paris. We have had excellent meetings and times of much refreshment of late. It is our rallying-place, when all the workers can meet together; for the city is so great and the distances so long that it is impossible to see much of one another the rest of the week.

I would add that, through the kindness of Mr. W. Walters, we have issued the Gospel of Luke, illustrated with the beautiful engravings that have been prepared by him for his Scripture Gift Mission. We can supply these to any desiring them for distribution on the Continent for one penny each. To this must be added cost of carriage.

The following has reached me from Mr. Anderson:—"I have been three nights again on the boat. The last night while I was pressing the people to search the Scriptures for themselves, a lady purchased a small Testament and handed it to a working-man; and a gentleman asked Madame Huet for one. A mother asked for 'a complete book, a large one,' and gladly purchased a large-type Bible. The lady who had given the Testament to the workman took a 20-franc piece out of her purse, and, while I was still speaking, she pressed it into Madame Huet's hand saying, 'This is to pay for Testaments to be given away to the poor.' She is a Roman Catholic, and is full of admiration for the boat-work. Twice during these three days she sent baskets of fruit. 'What a vast amount of good you must be doing,' she said; 'what blissful work yours must be. How beautiful to see the teachings of Jesus so simply explained to the people. I have brought you several hearers to-night, and to-morrow I hope to bring a whole cargo of Protestants.' Some people come long distances night after night. Some isolated Protestants are, of course, delighted by the presence of the boat, for they can scarcely ever attend any service."

W. Soltau.

JEWISH MISSION TOUR.

In most of the countries of Europe but little is done to evangelise the Jews, and most of that little is by agents of societies having their headquarters in Great Britain. The reasons for this are not far to seek. On the one hand there is Anti-Semitism, with its disregard of Jewish rights and its neglect of Christian duty. On the other hand, there is Roman Catholic domination, which practically prevents anything like evangelisation, whether of Jews or Gentiles. Realising the difficulties under which servants of Christ labour in this respect in Germany, Russia, and Austria, workers amongst Jews in England have from time to time made tours on the Continent; facing all the hindrances of police restrictions and disclaiming sympathy with the continental Jew-hate, their Gospel message has been heard with eagerness by many. In an "Occasional Letter" of the Barbican Mission to the Jews, Herr C. T. Lipshytz, the director, gives interesting particulars of a recent tour of evangelisation.

In the course of his journeyings Mr. Lipshytz had to endure many rebuffs and insults, but at the same time he was greatly encouraged by the confessions of anxious inquirers. At Breslau a tradesman said: "I shall endeavour to find in the New Testament that which has given you so much joy, and the peace which I am longing for." At Vienna a young man, after three hours' Scripture searching, said: "I praise God for bringing you here. What I have learned will make this the turning-point in my life. I can now see the reason why we have waited so long for the Messiah, all in vain; surely it is He whom I have to-day found to be my Saviour."

Accepting an invitation to the chief synagogue of Vienna, Mr. Lipshytz was introduced to influential personages by an official who had heard the Gospel for the first time from his lips. In another city he called upon the Rabbi, to whom he said in conversation: "The Day of Atonement will soon be here. How can you expect forgiveness of sins, seeing you have no sacrifice, no altar?" He answered: "We hope to obtain forgiveness through fasting and prayer." The missionary reminded him that it is the blood that atones for sin, and for that purpose God commanded sacrifices. The Rabbi said: "Not being in our own land, we cannot offer sacrifices." "Why are we not in our own land?" asked Mr. Lipshytz. "Because we have sinned," was the reply. "True, but what was the sin for which God has kept us so long in exile?" The Rabbi did not care to answer that, so the missionary did so: "It is because we rejected Him who came in the fulness of time. To Him alone who was the sacrifice for sin can we look now for pardon and deliverance." The Rabbi said: "Yes, you are right. Would to God our people could see it in that light!"

It appears that in some centres the Jewish community is, from a religious point of view, in a very disorganised condition. For instance, at Prague there are 36,000 Jews, nine great synagogues, and twenty-one smaller places of worship. On a given Saturday there were not 400 souls in all the synagogues, and Mr. Lipshytz was told by a well-informed official that in most of the synagogues, except on New Year's Day and the Day of Atonement, the quorum of ten persons who must be present at public worship is only made up by the presence of men who are paid for the purpose!

On two or three occasions Mr. Lipshytz was listened to with attention by Christians as he pleaded the cause of Israel. Several pastors willingly accompanied him in his walks in the ghetto quarters of large cities. There is a promising opening for work among the Jews of Elsass; and the Rheinische Westfälische Verein für Israel and the Barbican Mission are combining to found a station there under Pastor Littwin, a Hebrew Christian of eighteen years' standing.

Tours such as that Mr. Lipshytz made in August last are calculated to set many Jews thinking upon the all-important question, which they, of all people, should not be allowed to neglect, "What think ye of Christ?" Copies of the Occasional Letter may be had from the Mission House, 33, Finsbury-square, E.C.

IRISH RAILWAY TALKS.—5.

By GEORGE WILLIAMS.

The historic town of Omagh was fast receding from view as the Limited Mail steamed away one afternoon for Portadown and Dublin. There were but few passengers, my compartment being shared by only one traveller—a young lady—who wrote incessantly as the train sped along. The good taste of her dress suggested refinement of mind, her face sympathetic resolution, and her well-shaped head exceptional mental capacity.

As is my general rule when travelling, I waited for my fellow-passenger to address me first. This plan, if adopted after prayer, is a good one to follow. It greatly disarms opposition, it indebts the questioner for any information given, or for an animated and prompt reply to the usual remark about the weather, and thus it at once gives an advantage which need not be lost.

On this occasion I waited until I had been spoken to more than once, and until I had had the opportunity of being useful in several ways; and then, observing that my companion had finished her writing, and recognising that I might venture to arouse her interest with the following abrupt and novel remark, "If you will allow me, I will tell you what largely engages your time."

She smiled very pleasantly, looked quite amused, and with admirable simplicity said, "Well, how do I?"

"Befriending factory girls."

"How very strange! How did you find that out?"

"I guessed it from your appearance, and from your occupation."

"That is curious. Do you often guess things so accurately?"

"No, only sometimes. But if I do not intrude, would you tell me how your sympathies were drawn in this direction?"

"With pleasure. My parents died when I was young, and I found myself obliged to earn my bread. I left Ireland for London, and I have, mainly with my pen, won considerable success there. Whilst thus engaged, I got in touch with the female labour question, and now in my small way I am trying to help my less fortunate sisters."

My own interest becoming excited, I asked what was her experience as a commissioner in this field, and I heard a tale of cruelty and injustice that made my heart to sicken and my blood to boil. She hinted there was worse that must not be told, and closed by saying, "But that I so often meet kind and good employers, I think I would go mad."

"And why are not these people prosecuted?" I asked.

"They have been again and again," she answered, "but the magistrates, who always warmly sympathise with us, have been able only occasionally to convict owing to defects in the Factory Acts."

Feeling that now was the moment to speak definitely and personally, I asked, "Do you believe that a holy and righteous God sees all this evil, and will surely judge these cruel men and women?"

"I do."

"Why do you believe that?"

"I don't know, something tells me it must and will be so."

"Are you a Christian?"

"Yes."

"Are you a Christian by education or a Christian by revelation?"

"I don't understand you. What do you mean?"

"I mean this. To be a Christian by education is to be born of professing Christian parents, to learn, and accept as true, the doctrines of the Christian religion, to attend Christian worship, to try and keep the Ten Commandments, and finally, to be as good and kind and amiable as you can. But to be a Christian by revelation is much more than this. It is to have had the Lord Jesus revealed to your soul by the Holy Spirit of God as your personal Saviour, and to have experienced an inward and heavenly birth. This revelation takes place when, awakened to the fact that you are a sinner and therefore justly doomed to eternal judgment, and conscious that by works of righteousness you cannot remove your sins or escape their punishment, you cast yourself upon the Lord Jesus Christ that He should save you, and you rest wholly and only upon his sacrifice of Himself as that which secures to you pardon of sins, eternal life, and a spotless righteousness."

"I still don't know what you mean. I am a Christian, like most people. I never did anything in my life that I have cause to be ashamed of."

"I heartily believe that; and, further, I believe that God has endowed you with much beauty of character, strength of will, and goodness of heart—yet you are a sinner, and, as such, doomed to perish as certainly as the vilest criminal."

"How do you prove that?"

"From the mouth of God. In Psalm xiv. and Romans iii. God tells us that all are guilty in his sight; that there is no difference between the moral and immoral, for that all, without exception, have sinned, and all are therefore guilty."

"It is hard to believe that!"

"An illustration will help you to see its truth. Two lepers consult a physician, the one a man hideously disfigured by the disease, the other a young woman slightly marked on the hand. The physician declares them both lepers, and tells the young lady that there is no difference between her and the man, that they both must die, and that no doctor can save them."

An eager face at the window, and an anxious "Want a cab, ma'am?" showed that Dublin was now reached. My friend, as she rose, said she had been exceedingly interested in the conversation, and left me trusting in God that his word should not return unto Him void.

REV. W. HAY AITKEN'S TOUR.

A meeting to commend Mr. Aitken and his co-workers to God will be held at Mildmay Hall, on Tuesday, October 15, at 7.45 p.m., when it is hoped Lord Kinnaird will preside. On October 16, Mr. Aitken, accompanied by Rev. James Stephens, Mrs. Crouch, and Miss Evelyn Ryder, purpose sailing by the Teutonic. From New York they will proceed at once to Montreal, where the work is to begin on Sunday, October 27, at the Cathedral. Probably the work will terminate there about November 14, and the next campaign will open at Halifax, at Mr. Hague's church, to whose original suggestion, when he met Mr. Aitken at Margate last year, this effort to reach Canada is due. The date will probably be from November 16 to some time in the first week in December. The next effort will be at St. John, which carries the work on to Christmas week. About Christmas it is hoped that the work will commence in Ottawa, after which, on January 18, the party purpose to begin work far away to the West, at the rising little town of Woodstock. On February 8 the work begins at Toronto, and with this visit the campaign in Canada is to be brought to a close.

Mr. Aitken and some of his friends proceed to New York, where they are engaged for a mission at St. Andrew's Church, at the beginning of March. After their mission at New York, the party will proceed to Philadelphia, where their visit will be extended to Easter Day. After this it is proposed to hold another mission, this time at Washington, and with this, in all probability, the work of the party in America will conclude, and they will hope to return about the end of April, or the beginning of May. Very earnest prayer is invited for these missions, as also for a similar tour which Rev. Geo. C. Grubb purposes undertaking in other parts of Canada about the same time.

Mr. Aitken began a two weeks' mission at Christ Church, Hampstead, on Sunday last.

A BURMAN STUDENT'S STORY.

Through the efforts of a friend of missions in New Jersey, a packet of Mr. Moody's sermons was sent to Miss Payne for her reading-room in Pegu. Some of these sermons came into the possession of a young Burman, a student in the Rangoon college. This young man was so grateful for the books that he wrote his thanks to the lady who sent them, and she kindly sends a part of the letter to the Helping Hand, a missionary paper in Boston, U.S.A.

Let me tell you something in connection with Mr. Moody's book on "Heaven." Soon after I got it, a telegram was received, urging us to take the first steamer to Rangoon, where our eldest brother lay on his death-bed. Obeying the urgent summons I spent most of the time on the way reading the book, and

HEAVEN SEEMED SO NEAR TO ME

I almost fancied I could see my brother within the pearly gates. He died the very morning we left Rangoon, and we reached the dear old homestead just in time for the funeral, which was attended by over a thousand persons. Around the open grave we sang "Safe in the arms of Jesus."

As is customary, friends gathered in the house of mourning a few nights after; on the first night a preacher led the meeting. The second night, at my mother's earnest request, I conducted the service. I took Moody's "Heaven" as the most appropriate subject, and, guided by the Holy Spirit, spoke of heaven, our Christian home. I felt nervous at first to address such a great and select congregation, consisting mostly of heathen, to the number of about 100. I, yet not I, waxed bold as I spoke of the "many mansions" Christ has gone to prepare for his own. Oh, what a great difference there is between our real heaven and this Nirvana which exists only in the imagination of the Buddhists. I told them of Christ, our only way to heaven, and who knows but some of those who heard may find salvation through the teaching of that book?

Now, I should like to tell you about our brother who died. To know him was to love him. He held an important position in a mercantile firm, and was rich in worldly goods. He strayed from the Lord in his youth, and married a heathen wife. A short time before his death, the wife left him on a visit to her sister. Alone, in his quiet home, he thought on his and asked himself, "How am I to answer before the Lord if my wife should die without accepting Christ?" He was taken ill soon after her return, and he pleaded with her earnestly to become a Christian, but in vain, yet he tried to teach her how to pray.

RESPONSIBILITY AS A CHRISTIAN,

Sometimes his mind wandered; once he said, "Mother, did you see the angels? Don't you hear them sing?" Turning to his brother, he said, "I want to change my clothes." When told that he was quite clean, he said, "I want a new suit to go to the King's wedding, which is now ready." Mother bent over him, and told him of the prodigal son to whom the father gave new garments, and comforted him with the assurance that God had prepared a robe of righteousness, "clean and white," all ready for him against his home return.

When the spirit was winging its upward flight, Rev. Mr. Stevens said to him, "Do you know me?" He replied in the negative. "Do you know Jesus?" "Oh, Jesus, I know Him. He is the only——" what he wished to say was heard by his Saviour and the angelic host on high.

Mother could say in this deep sorrow, "He leadeth me." I wish you could know this saintly mother of ours. She misses this first-born son very much, but does not mourn for him. She is confident that he has gone home, only to be the first after her Saviour to welcome her.

LONDON'S CRIPPLE CHILDREN.

It is pleasing to know that these afflicted and in any respects helpless young people are becoming e objects of greater solicitous care. It is well nown that for years now a good work among them as been carried on. It was originated by Mr. L. Boyer, an American brother, and for a season e operations were transferred to the auspices of e Ragged School Union. For some time past, owever, Mr. Boyer has carried on an independent ork, while the R.S.U. have continued and extended e organisation which he left in their hands. The eld is so wide that there is ample scope for both.

The Ragged School Union had a meeting at their fices, 37, Norfolk-street, W.C., last Friday even-g, when plans were discussed for the winter's ork. The president, Lord Compton, truly said at this work on behalf of crippled and otherwise aimed children is one that must command the mpathies of all. Mr. Kirk, the secretary, told of e desire to secure regular visitors who would make iendly calls, and impart instruction to the children. y the holiday homes many have been restored to ealth and strength. Miss Coles, who visits the ildren, appealed for surgical letters, clothing, toys, rap books, etc., for the cripples. Mr. S. Clayton ported the progress being made with the holiday me, specially for cripples, at Southend; it will be ady by June. This good work must receive an petus from the gathering of Friday evening.

Mr. C. L. Boyer continues his earnest efforts for e same class of children, confining his work to the ast-end of London. He has seven paid mission-ies daily engaged in visiting poor children, three them being among the cripples. Many of the eakly children have been sent for a period of ange and recreation to the holiday home at argate. A cripples' day school is conducted at e offices of the mission, 29, Cottage-grove, Bow, , supported by a lady friend of the work. There also a cripples' Sunday-school. The cripples' oir, which Mr. Boyer has formed, will be remem-red by any who were present at his great Christ-as festivals in the Great Assembly Hall, Mile nd. These bright, gifted young friends help to tertain their afflicted fellows, and they have sung open-air meetings lately held in the poorest parts the East-end, where hundreds gathered to hear eir sweet songs of Zion. On his recent success-l visit to America, Mr. Boyer was accompanied by o of his cripple boys, and their songs on board well as in the States awakened sympathy in any hearts.

It is interesting to know that this work is spread-g to other places. A work for cripples has been gun in New York; and a lady in Northampton no read an account of Mr. Boyer's work has com-enced to care for the cripples of that place, sisted by other ladies. If any friends in pro-ncial towns are moved to care for the crippled and rrowing children in their communities let them mmunicate with Mr. Boyer, who will be pleased visit their towns with some of his crippled band d help in inaugurating the work.

MESSRS. FULLERTON AND SMITH.

Although since the settlement of Mr. Fullerton Leicester, Rev. J. Manton Smith has been largely nducting mission work alone, he has had the assist-ce of his long-time colleague in the ten days' ission which has just concluded at Leytonstone. l the Free churches, Baptist, Congregational, esbyterian, and Wesleyan, united in the services, d workers from each, assisted by the city mission-ies, have laboured lovingly in visiting the district d leaving invitations to the meetings.

Mr. Fullerton conducted two out of the three ble readings, and three of the evening evangelistic rvices, while Mr. Smith took the remaining meet-gs, including the children's services on the two bbaths and the Wednesday afternoon. The rnest geniality of Mr. Smith, and the firm grip of r. Fullerton, laid hold of the large congregations, nich gathered night by night for the first four ys in the Baptist and the following days in the ongregational Church. Helpers from the various urches did excellent service in the inquiry room, sisting the missioners to gather in the sheaves. me who have been groping in the dark for years ve been led into the light, while a notable feature the work so far manifest has been the freeing of me, who were very tightly bound, from the slavery strong drink.

FAMINE AT HOSHUNGABAD.

A letter received from Hoshungabad tells us that this year has been a specially trying one in the central province. Many crops have failed, so that the natives, who are at best poorly supplied with food, now find themselves reduced to starvation, and resort to terrible expedients to satisfy their cravings. We would do better to aid and enlighten than to blame them.

The workers of the Friends' Foreign Mission Association have had many applications for admissions into their orphanage, which has no support but that granted by the Father of the fatherless, and a time of great trial is being passed through. There are no poorhouses near Hoshungabad, and these children may die from want, or be brought up miserably as heathen, if not received into the orphanage. Yet it is impossible for missionaries to continue their labour of love without further help. Already eighteen new girls and fifteen boys are being provided for by the ladies alone.

One missionary has lately succumbed through the effects of overwork, leaving yet fewer to "hold the fort" against starvation and cholera, which has just carried off five girls within a week, thus adding a heavy burden to the already wearied shoulders of our correspondent. One of these girls was prepared to pass her teacher's examination in autumn, and it is a sore trial of faith to see God's love in this blow, while teachers are so sorely needed all around. The people are imploring instruction, but there is no one to send. The workers trust that He who sends the children will supply the funds necessary to feed and clothe them, though the little ones have had, in some cases, to be dressed in sheets, for want of suitable garments.

For the sum of £5 yearly a girl may be supported in the orphanage; and Christians wishing to adopt a child may be put into communication with her. Such friends would hear regularly from their protégé, and would surely find interest and blessing in caring for one of Christ's little ones.

The secretary of the Friends' Foreign Mission Association is Watson Grace, 12, Bishopsgate Without, London, E.C.

THE THEATRICAL MISSION.

Sir,—This work was never more needed than it is to-day. To minister to the pleasures of the great theatre-going community at least ten thousand actors and actresses are daily employed. It is to the benefit of the humbler grades of the profession, and especially the girls and young women employed on the stage, that our efforts are directed. We have had the greatest encouragement during the present year, and are deeply grateful to the Giver of all good for the results which He has allowed us to see.

But we have not received the support which is necessary if our efforts are to be maintained. At present we are unable to avail ourselves of any of the opportunities which have lately opened to us of doing good, for lack of funds.

Alfred B. Harding, Director.

Macready House, Covent Garden,
London, W.C.

KING EDWARD MISSION, SPITALFIELDS.—A social meeting of the workers in this centre of Christian activity was held on Thursday last. Mr. Charles Montague, who bears well his forty odd years of voluntary work in his loved ragged school, detailed the various operations it was desired to continue through the winter. These were of all kinds, fitted to meet the needs of body, mind, and soul in this densely-crowded district. Mr. John Kirk urged the need of a consecrated spirit in all that is attempted for God and humanity. Mr. Mollivar, the City missionary, Mr. Stubbings, and others having spoken, there was a conference held as to how far the funds could assist in the various departments of effort.

HIGHGATE. — The annual convention for the Deepening of Spiritual Life, was held in the Assembly Hall, Highgate, on Sept. 16th to 22nd. The subject was "Pentecostal Blessing." Helpful addresses were given by Messrs. C. G. Moore, Ernest Goode, Robert Berry, and Gerald Coultas. Many testified to receiving blessing, and workers were strengthened for their spheres of labour. The claims of the missionary world were emphasised by Messrs. T. Hutton, C.I.M., and Adam Poder, from Smyrna, who has travelled with his life in constant danger through Russia. On Sunday afternoon, a gathering for the young folks was arranged, when several were seeking salvation and led into the truth. Our hearts are full of praise to God for the convention.

THE GOSPEL CARAVAN.

Whilst taking rest at Ayot, in Hertfordshire, we were surprised at seeing a caravan drawn on to the green, looking most attractive, with its windows dressed with coloured texts and books. We inspected it, and found it was for the sale of Bibles and books. Gospel services were also held each evening by the evangelist in charge, and these were greatly enjoyed —the hymns well chosen, the prayers definite, the addresses sound and straight for the hearts of the people, several of whom were deeply touched. The speaker was the son of the proprietor of the caravan, and is a student of Dr. Grattan Guinness' Institute. What splendid practice for one desiring to serve in foreign service. What a boon also to the village folk. The work depends on voluntary gifts. Communications may be addressed to Rev. F. Horace Newton, 85, Shaftesbury-road, Crouch Hill, N.

M. A.

MR. WEAVER IN GLASGOW.

St. George's Cross Tabernacle, Glasgow, during September, has been the spiritual birthplace of many precious souls. The first two weeks' services, by Pastor D. J. Findlay, were much owned of God. The veteran evangelist, Mr. Richard Weaver, has also concluded a fortnight's meetings. The tabernacle has been packed in every corner—especially on Lord's days—with over fifteen hundred people.

One man, thoroughly broken down before God, gave himself up to Christ, went home happy, and, along with two Christian friends, had a prayer-meeting at home. The result was that his wife, too, yielded herself to Christ. Both husband and wife were at the tabernacle next night with beaming faces. A young married woman came to the pastor, saying, "Pray for my husband." "My good woman, how did you come to marry an unconverted man?" "I wasn't converted when I married him. I have only known Jesus as my Saviour since last Sunday evening."

OLD FORD ADULT SCHOOL.

The Old Ford Adult School makes steady progress. The Argent Hall, in the Parnell-road, holds 200 people, and is generally crowded at the Sunday evening service, while the attendance in the morning at nine o'clock averages eighty; from nine to half-past reading and writing are taught; from 9.30 to 10.30 members divide into classes for Bible study; there is also a flourishing women's section, and the attendance in the afternoon is fifty. Some idea of the activity that prevails at Argent Hall may be gleaned from the fact that every evening of the week is the occasion of some gathering or other.

Such work deserves the encouragement it has received from the many friends who have assisted in teaching and speaking. But more funds are needed. £60 would enable the committee to take over the adjoining house, and £2000 would purchase the freehold of the place, and so put the school in a capital position for work. Argent Hall is impressing itself upon Old Ford, and if the adjoining houses can be secured, it will form a wholesome and useful club for the working people around, and so meet the needs of the time in a useful way. The work is non-sectarian, but eminently religious and undoubtedly successful

AN EXTRAORDINARY CAREER ENDED.

The death occurred last week, at his house in Old Ford-road, Bow, of Joseph Wailey, at the age of eighty-three, after a short illness from pneumonia. Born at Southampton of poor parents in 1813, Wailey had to seek his own way in the world at a very early age, and unfortunately chose the wrong path with such determination that at the age of about ten he was beyond the control of his parents. After repeated spells of imprisonment for theft, during which his mother died of grief and his father was drowned at sea, he joined a gang of smugglers. Coming to London, he resumed his thieving operations. He next turned his hand to forgery and blackmail, and subsequently went to the United States, where he became a notorious horse thief. He continued his remarkable career until a few years ago, when he was one Sunday listening to an open-air meeting in Victoria Park, to which the well-known black preacher, Celestine Edwards, was speaking. The preacher's words had such an effect that Wailey was converted, and ever since was a noted speaker in the Park. On one occasion he stated that his conversion was brought about while standing in the crowd picking pockets, and had he saved in past years his ill-gotten gains he could have been worth at least £10,000. According to his own reckoning he had spent fully forty years in prison.

THE Y.M.C.A.

Washington Y.M.C.A. building was almost totally destroyed on July 25 by fire. The building was valued at about 35,000 dols., and was fully insured.

In Glasgow the Southern section evangelistic meeting still goes on, and good is being done. The other Sabbath three young people waited for prayer and decided for Christ.

In connection with the forthcoming Y.M.C.A. universal week of prayer, Nov. 10-17, the Leicester Association has arranged already for the preaching of over twenty special sermons to young men.

The College Y.M.C.A. secretaries of America, Mr. Luther D. Wishard and Mr. John R. Mott, are at present visiting the Continent for the purpose of aiding the further organisation of work among young men in the colleges and universities.

Rio Janeiro Association, notwithstanding the political revolution and an epidemic of yellow fever, continues to make progress. It has at present 108 members, an increase of twenty-two over the report of last year; of these forty-five are associates, twelve honorary, and fifty-one active.

From Tientsin, Rev. Frederick Brown writes:—"Dr. Atterbury has built a Y.M.C.A. (small) at his own cost, for the English-speaking students, and we are spreading the influence of the jubilee, which I was privileged to attend. I understand the American associations are sending a man to organise here in North China."

The evangelistic meetings for men, conducted during the past week at Exeter Hall, by Mr. W. R. Lane, have, considering the warmth of the weather, been remarkably well attended. On Monday and Thursday evenings there were special receptions of young men, who came together on both occasions in large numbers.

The secretary of the Honolulu Association Mr. D. W. Corbett, writes:—"Our local work at present suffers on account of the cholera which is prevalent in the city. I may add that aid for the Leper Association would be most thankfully received. Last year I personally paid the salary of the secretary—about £50. You may be assured that any gift for these unfortunate people will be wisely and profitably expended."

The members of the Y.M.C.A. in the United States number a quarter of a million, or about three times the number in Great Britain and Ireland. These associations own 305 buildings, valued at sixteen million dollars, or over £3,000,000. The Young Men's Era observes that this remarkable growth indicates two things chiefly—that the Association movement has permanency, and that it meets with favour on the part of business men.

The Y.M.C.A. in the Clapham Junction district has for five years been doing a good work, and has successfully carried on a large Sunday Bible-class for young men, open-air mission work, etc., and has in many ways been able to help young men so far as its limited sphere and space will permit. It has, however, long been evident by the increase of the young man element in the neighbourhood, that some effort must be made to meet the urgent need by a commodious central building, which should be planted as near the busy junction as possible, and thus be in a position to cater for the spiritual, mental, and physical needs of the young men who congregate in such large numbers. Premises in Battersea Rise having been purchased, will be opened on October 11th, by Sir George Williams.

The annual conference and district festival of the Y.M.C.A.'s in Devon and Cornwall were held at Devonport on Wednesday. Dr. Hingston, of Plymouth, delivered an admirable address. Mr. W. H. Roberts presented the report, which showed that there were 28 Associations in the two counties, with a membership of 3193. In 1887, when the district organisation was formed, there were 10 Associations with 977 members. At luncheon the chair was taken by Mr. J. P. Goldsmith, president of the Devonport Y.M.C.A. Mr. W. H. Seagram, of London, subsequently opened an interesting discussion upon "The Best Methods of reaching Young Men," in which part was taken by Mr. Robinson Souttar, M.A., M.P., Mr. W. H. Mills, secretary of the National Council, etc. There was a public meeting in the evening which was addressed by Mr. Souttar, Mr. Seagram, and others.

THE NEW HEBRIDES.—A recent letter from Dr. Lamb tells of his safe re-arrival at Ambrim, from which he had been compelled temporarily to retire by the ravages of storm and fire. "We are back to the old spot. The work has advanced in our absence. Two good carpenters and an engineer assistant are pushing on with the buildings, and the hospital is to arrive by next boat. The native boys and teachers have been faithful, and the former are asking for baptism." He tells of the sad death of one of the brightest of the native boys a few weeks before his arrival.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

A great C.E. State Convention, held at Houlton, Maine, has been attended by much enthusiasm.

The Douglas (Isle of Man) C.E. Society has been doing good work during the busy summer season.

In Sao Paulo, Brazil, an Endeavour Society of twenty-five members has been organised in Mackenzie College, and the Model Constitution has been translated into Portuguese. May this mean a spiritual revolution!—R. C.

A Christian Endeavour Society has been organised among the female convicts in the State prison, Louisville, Ky. The Endeavour Society has brought "sunshine into the soul" of more than one lone prisoner at this institution.—F. R. S.

The second Irish National Christian Endeavour Convention was held in Dublin on Thursday and Friday. Amongst those who took part were Revs. G. R. Wedgewood, W. Maguire, J. W. Ballard, J. Newman Hall, W. L. Cowdy, W. Park, and J. D. Lamont, who gave glowing accounts of the progress of the movement in Ireland.

In the Swedish colony of Aroostook County (Maine, U.S.A.) there exist two unique societies, composed of sturdy Swedes, who have a Christian Endeavour constitution in Swedish, and all the services are conducted in that language. During the past year one of these societies gave 64 dols. to support a missionary in Swatow, China.

IRISH NOTES.

The annual report of the Methodist Home Mission Fund for the past year has just been published, and shows that during the twelve months 2030 new members were enrolled, the net increase being 224. The ordinary circuit contributions showed an increase of almost £73, as compared with the previous year, and the total income was over £13,000.

Much regret is felt in the north of Ireland at the death of Mrs. Mulligan, wife of Mr. Wm. Mulligan, the first-appointed agent of the Jungle Tribes Mission. It is scarcely three years since Mrs. Mulligan, then Miss Graham, well-known as an earnest Christian worker in connection with Tullyallen Presbyterian congregation, co. Armagh, went to India to be married to Mr. Mulligan and assist him in his work, and now she, like many others, has fallen a victim to the climate of the country.

SCOTTISH NOTES.

A new Sailors' Home and Mission was opened in Aberdeen last week.

Rev. William Anderson, Old Calabar, who has spent some fifty years in the foreign service of the United Presbyterian Church, has left Edinburgh to return to Old Calabar.

With reference to a recent note, Miss J. E. Watson, secretary to the Edinburgh and Leith Humanitarian League, writes that appeals in the interest of horses have been placed in some of the tramway cars.

The annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Association in Dundee was held last week. It was stated that 2000 young men are reached by the various agencies; the membership for the year was 536. The Sunday evening Bible-classes are largely attended.

Under the auspices of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission a meeting to take leave of seven missionaries from Scotland who are soon to leave for India was held last week in the Gartshore Hall, George-street, Edinburgh. The following are going out to the mission field for the first time:—Miss M. J. Ferguson and Miss Sharp to Katnagiri, Miss Leetch to Benares, Miss Marshall to Lucknow, Miss Paterson (Hon.) to Allahabad, and Miss Ferguson to Patna, while Miss Aitken and Miss Gault return to Hasur and Fysabad after furlough. Rev T. Currie delivered the valedictory address.

THE COUNTESS OF DERBY opened last week the new Home for the Blind for North and North-East Lancashire at Fulwood, near Preston. The homes are the first of their kind, being built on the cottage system, containing accommodation for twenty-six boys and twenty-six girls.

MRS. AITCHISON, of Natal, Africa, gives (in the Missionary Link) encouraging accounts of the missions which are conducted there and in its vicinity. A home for native girls is in preparation; "The wished-for school at Adams has been in working order for some months, and shows a roll of forty. The wife of the chief there, has been received into church-fellowship, which speaks for itself as a most encouraging feature. In the new colony of Griquas at Ingeli, twenty miles south of us, eight have come out on the Lord's side, a school has been formed, and already a fair number attending. We now have six schools, Mpiknas having been rebuilt."

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Thanksgiving meetings were held on Monday afternoon and evening by the friends who have been co-operating during the summer in holding services for the children by the seaside. Rev. E. A. Stuart, who presided in the afternoon, in the Queen's Hall, read the portion for the day, Psalm xciv., and dwelt briefly on the comfort and teaching which the psalmist realises.

Mr. T. B. Bishop gave a few details, showing how God is blessing the seaside services. Some still ask, are there any solid results? A strange question, after all the blessing granted. In the new C.S.S.M. report, strong testimony is given by Dr. H. C. G. Moule as to the influence of the work in the University. Thus many now in the mission field testify that they were led to Christ through these services on sand and beach. Similarly, many testimonies might be cited, but in fact, all who know anything of the work, who have actually gone into it and discovered what is really going on, know that it is being greatly blessed. In illustration of this Mr. Bishop referred to what he himself had seen and heard at Scarborough this season.

The Chairman followed with an address to workers based on the office and position of the Levites——joined to the Lord for holy service.

Mr. W. R. Moore, who has been holding services at Ilfracombe, recounted how the way was opened for Mr. W. R. Lane to go to Ilfracombe, how the mission was blessed, and how manifestly God was pleased thereafter to use the services to win the children. He believed that the conversions had been remarkably numerous, and in illustration mentioned several cases.

Mr. A. G. Dodderidge spoke of work at places as far apart as Portrush and Eastbourne. In the Irish watering-place there were difficulties to begin with, but workers were gathered and real work was done. He believed that some 50,000, old and young, and rich and poor, have this year heard the Gospel through these services at and around Portrush. A little band of ladies had done good work among the girls, while the missionary meetings were accompanied by much power. The Bible searching meetings and lantern services had been fruitful in blessing. Then as in the North of Ireland, so again in fashionable Eastbourne, where open-air services on the Parade were the means of winning many to the Saviour, while numbers who seemed to be leading a gay and worldly life, listened willingly to the message of the Gospel.

Mr. B. Herklots, who has been at Scarborough, felt that God has some great purpose in the seaside testimony reaching so many cold and careless, saving not a few and sending them out to serve Him. An animated, though somewhat detailed description followed, of the services in the "cathedral" and of the auxiliary operations amongst adults as well as children. Here, as in many other places, the missionary interest was well to the front, and the meetings devoted to this theme proved most successful. Flower services, lantern services, and the gatherings on the North and South Parades, were specially mentioned as having proved the means of blessing.

Mr. Reginald Naylor gave some account of his experiences at Sandown. While rejoicing that great things had been done, and many souls won, he felt deeply that greater things might be seen were there more faith and prayer. Showing the need for simplicity he told how a little child came to him. "What does trust mean? You tell us 'Only trust Him,' but what is trust?" and he had to explain the word in the simplest terms. From this he sought to read lessons to all speakers on carefulness in the use of words. As to that work at Sandown, God had used it greatly in the little place and many are now thanking God for this year's services.

Rev. G. H. C. Macgregor, M.A., presided at the evening gathering which took place in St. Martin's Town Hall, Charing Cross. Addresses testifying to the marked success which had attended the work generally were delivered by Rev. W. S. Standen, and Messrs. F. Anderson (Llandudno), E. T. M. Dennis (Whitby), P. H. Shaul (Scarboro'), W. H. Wilson (Colwyn Bay), S. M. Warner (Southsea), and Mr. H. Hutchinson (Bridlington).

PROPHETIC CONFERENCE, NORWOOD.—In calling the Conference on prophetic matters at Lansdowne Hall, West Norwood, for October 15-17, Pastor Fuller Gooch says:—"Not as theorists or speculative reasoners would we meet, not to pry curiously into the mysterious and unrevealed, but as learners sitting at the feet of Jesus, and as reverent inquirers looking into the prophetic Word." Among the expected speakers are Revs. James Douglas, J. Gelson Gregson, G. D. Hooper, John Wilkinson, Dr. R. McKilliam, Mr. G. H. Pember, Revs. J. G. Train, and R. Middleton, and Pastor Gooch.

EVANGELISTIC NOTES.

Mr Matthew Burnett is resuming his Gospel Temperance and evangelistic work, beginning at Aylesbury, on Sunday, a united Gospel Temperance mission.

Mr. J. Wharton, has been conducting a ten days' mission in Dukinfield, near Manchester, and numbers of people gathered to hear the Word. Believers have been roused, and sinners saved. Remember Mr. Wharton in prayer, as he goes on to Northenden and Oldham. GEO. SHIPLEY.

Mr. George Back, of the Open Air Mission, did splendid work at Dumfries Road Fair from Saturday, September 21, till Thursday, September 26. Assisted by members of the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., he distributed some thousands of tracts and booklets, while every night he preached from the steps of a church situated in the middle of the fair.

Mr. Jas. Neech, of the North Midland Evangelistic Mission, has concluded a very successful four weeks' tent mission in Allerton, Bradford. One day was devoted to an "all-day convention" for the deepening of the spiritual life. The tent was crowded, and many received blessing through the mission. The churches of the village have been stirred, and souls have been saved.

An Excellent Tent Mission has been held by an evangelist of the Evangelisation Society during the summer at Fleet, Hants, and also at Hale, Surrey. God has wonderfully used his servant; many have accepted Christ as Saviour and King; spiritual life has been quickened; Christians have been stirred up to more active work for Christ; very many are praising God for the mission.

Mr. James Eyres has concluded a sixteen days' mission at Ballycastle, co. Antrim. From the beginning much interest was manifested, which deepened as the meetings continued. Some anxious ones found satisfaction in Jesus, and many others saw their need. Some Faith-Mission workers held a mission in Wesleyan chapel during winter, and since then God has been stirring up the local believers.

Messrs. Peatt and Crozier, of the Irish Evangelization Society, have concluded a series of meetings at Revarnette, near Lisburn. God manifested his power and grace in a wonderful way. Young and old were professedly led to the Lord. The wave of blessing followed the workers from Broomhedge to Lisburn, and later to Revarnette. They have now begun at Aghalee and expect much blessing.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Mr. J. S. Harrison has been the missioner here during September, and his labours have been greatly appreciated. His message has been blessed of God, both to Christians and to the unsaved. Mrs. Harrison has on several occasions taken part in the services, both by addressing the Women's P.S.A., and by singing the Gospel which her husband has so earnestly and faithfully preached. S. E. BURROW.

Dunoon.—The open-air services in connection with the Gospel Training College have closed for the season, and we have much reason to thank God for blessing received. Meetings were held every night, and twice daily during the busy season. Visitors and Christian friends helped the students. Not a few professed to find the Saviour during the summer. Over 20,000 tracts have been distributed, and by this means the Gospel has been scattered far and wide. ALEX. BLACK.

Peebles.—Mr. T. Aitken has held a very successful series of meetings, extending from September 1 to 18, under the auspices of the Peebles Y.M.C.A. The meetings were well attended, both at the open-air and inside, and the interest gradually increased during the mission, the presence of the Lord being manifest in the power of the Spirit, and a goodly number of young folks surrendered themselves to Jesus, while the Christians were stirred up to more earnest endeavours to bring others to Christ.

Hackney Y.M.C.A.—A successful mission, conducted by Dr. Harry Guinness, has closed. Our gymnasium was closely packed every night, many having to be turned away. The Word was preached with simplicity, clearness, and great power. Many backsliders were reclaimed, sinners converted, and Christians strengthened. Large numbers professed conversion during the mission. In addition to the ordinary meetings special services were held in two neighbouring places of worship. On Monday, October 14, Dr. Guinness will deliver a medical lecture to men in the great Congress Hall, Clapton, when it is hoped nearly 6000 men will be present. F. L. P.

Mr. Charles Inglis has been engaged in a fortnight's mission at Rev. Z. B. Woffendale's Presbyterian Church, in Ossulton-street, Somers Town. The minister, office-bearers, and choir co-operated most zealously in getting the people in the neighbourhood to attend. As a consequence, the meetings, which closed on Friday, Sept. 27, have been well attended, and on Sunday evenings great audiences have remained to hear the Gospel from the evangelist. Not an evening has passed without conversions, and it is confidently anticipated that, while believers have been stimulated, a goodly addition will also be made to the membership of this well-known evangelistic church. On three occasions Miss Inglis sang some choice hymns.

Ross Bible Carriage and Tent Mission.—We have concluded our tent work for this season. We commenced on May 12, and have held 125 tent services at various towns and villages. Besides, we have visited scores of villages and the principal towns in the neighbourhood, for Bible carriage work and house-to-house visitation. During our last mission of ten days' duration at Winchcombe, we visited Evesham, Pershore, and Broadway. By this means hundreds of good volumes have been planted in outlying places, where they seldom get any visitor. As one woman said, "No one but the rent collector gives us a call." Since the 12th of May we have freely distributed 32,000 Gospel books and tracts, and have travelled 1086 miles, seeing precious fruit as the result. We desire prayers for past service and for our coming winter's work indoors.

JOHN COATES.

Northleigh, Ross, Herefordshire.

Barry Dock Gospel Tent, Cardiff.—The gracious awakening which has taken place in connection with the Gospel Tent this summer still continues. Some remarkable cases of conversion are happening almost every night. One dejected-looking man stayed behind last night, his speech betrayed his superior education, but drink and sin had dragged him to the lowest depths. Much prayer went up for his conversion, and at last he fell on his knees, and cried aloud for mercy on his wicked soul. He told us he was a son of a minister in Scotland; his sainted mother had died; but their prayers have now been answered. The visit of the veteran evangelist, Mr. Opie Rodway, last week, has been a season of power. Crowds stood round the open-airs, and followed into the tent. Mr. Rodway's addresses to children resulted in many deciding for Christ. We are looking to the Lord to provide some shelter to continue this aggressive work in the winter.

GERALD COULTAS.

PERSONALIA.

Rev. E. N. Thwaites, of Salisbury, we much regret to know, has been very ill. His voice has given way and his projected visit to India has been postponed till next year.

Viscount Wolseley, Commander-in-Chief Designate of the Army, has consented to become a patron of the Soldiers' Christian Association. He writes: "I wish the Association the success it deserves with all my heart."

Mr. Charles Needham Hickson, of Sydney, N.S.W., Australia, occupied the pulpit of his uncle, Rev. B. C. Needham's church in Coatesville, Pennsylvania, during the months of July and August, while the latter was away to recuperate his health. Mr. Hickson has also assisted his three other uncles, Revs. G. C., W. E., and Thos. Needham, in making known the unsearchable riches of Christ.

Mr. Henry M. Stanley, M.P., has further identified himself with the evangelisation of Africa by becoming the Associate Editor of Bishop William Taylor's monthly publication, Illustrated Africa, of New York. During his recent brief visit to New York, Mr. Stanley became closely associated with Bishop Taylor in the present work of Christianising Africa, and expressed his growing interest in the development of Africa and the Africans.

La Comtesse Lucile de Hamel de Manin, niece of the late Rev. A. A. Rees, met with a severe accident a few days back, from the explosion of a spirit lamp whilst visiting at Harrogate, and had a narrow escape of being burned to death. For some days it was uncertain whether or not her sight was injured, but at length the physician was able to telegraph that "La Comtesse Lucile was doing well and sight unimpaired." It will be some time, however, before she will regain her usual strength.

Isaac Sharp, the veteran Quaker missionary, who has entered on his ninetieth year, recently embarked with his companion, Dr. Dixon, on the Peninsular and Oriental steamship Nubia for Port Said, en route for Syria. His first visit will be to the Quaker missionary settlement at Brumana, near Beirut, which has been conducted for the last twenty years by Theophilus Waldmeier, formerly well known in King Theodore's days as a missionary in Abyssinia. Since his return from India, China, and America last year, he has paid visits to Norway and the South of France. The Syrian visit will exhaust the round of service for which Mr. Sharp was set apart in 1890. He possesses marvellous health and spirits, with great power of recovery from occasional illness, and speaks with remarkable clearness and vivacity.

OBITUARY.

REV. GEORGE THOMSON.

THE death is announced of Rev. George Thomson, who for more than twenty years filled the position of superintendent of the Liverpool City Mission, retiring therefrom on account of growing infirmity and old age about seven years ago. A student under Dr. Thomas Chalmers in the pre-Disruption days, he was one of the few remaining links that connect the present with an interesting and memorable period in the history of Scottish Presbyterianism. He was remarkable for his sound judgment, methodical habit, and even temperament; and the older missionaries who had the honour of serving under him revere his memory and owe him lasting obligations for many of his counsels. Mr. Thomson had reached the advanced age of eighty-five.

REV. JAMES STEWART, LITTLE STUKELY.

The venerable rector of Little Stukely, Huntingdon, whose daughter Flora was one of the lady missionaries killed at the Chinese mission station at Kucheng, died on Friday, after only a few hours' illness. The news of Miss Stewart's terrible death, following closely upon the death of his eldest son, was a heavy blow, but the venerable rector never complained. It was, however, evident to everyone that he was sorely stricken. A few days since the family went to Llandudno, and on Saturday news was received of Mr. Stewart's death, and later in the day his body was brought home. Mr. Stewart, who has in charge of the parish for thirty-five years, was greatly beloved by Nonconformists as well as Churchmen, and his death has caused the deepest grief.

REV. HUGH GOLDIE, OLD CALABAR.

This veteran missionary passed away, aged eighty, at Creek Town, on August 18. He went to Old Calabar in 1847, when he was one of the pioneers in the active work of evangelising in this corner of Africa. The difficulties then encountered seemed overwhelming, but patience and faith won the day, and Mr. and Mrs. Goldie laid the foundations of a remarkable work. The first convert, Esien Ukpabio, who became also the mission's first native teacher and pastor, was publicly baptized in the King's yard at Creek Town on October 16, 1853, and a fortnight later Eyo, the King's son, was baptized. Thus began the history of the native church, in whose cause Mr. Goldie laboured with signal success until his death. He had naturally a robust constitution, and his methodical habits and placid demeanour aided him in withstanding the climate which has doomed so many merchants and missionaries to an early grave. Mrs. Goldie died on August 20, 1891, at Creek Town, being the second of the three sisters who succumbed. The third, Miss Mary Johnston, retired recently. In 1862, Mr. Goldie completed a translation of the New Testament into Efik, and he was also the author of "Calabar and its Mission," and of a "Memoir of King Eyo VII. of Old Calabar, a Christian King in Africa," the last-mentioned of which was printed last year at the United Presbyterian Mission Press, Old Calabar.

THE CHIEF JUSTICE of the Supreme Court of Japan, Mr. T. Myoshi, is a Christian and a member of the Congregational church.

BRAZIL.—Natal, capital of Rio Grande do Norte, Brazil, has been the scene of a remarkable religious awakening. A Protestant Christian community has suddenly sprung into existence, a Protestant church is to be erected, and the influence of the work has extended itself to other places. Thirty-three adults have been baptized. There are but two missionaries in the entire province.

MOROCCO.—On Tuesday last week, the Public Hall, Stirling, was crowded to hear Dr. Robert Kerr, of the Central Morocco Mission, the object of which is to carry the Gospel to the Jews, Arabs, Moors, and Berbers living in the centre of the dark land of Morocco. The lecture was illustrated by very fine limelight views, and contained many interesting facts regarding the encouragement and discouragement of medical mission work in this long-neglected field of missionary enterprise.

THE RUTH ELLIOTT HOME OF REST for poor children, at Enfield, has entered upon its fourth year. To call the inmates "poor" children does not in many cases tell all, for in numerous instances they have come from homes of sin. The report for last year says: "Every child has a tale of sorrow in its life. From sunrise through the day, and far in the night, they struggle against odds which would unnerve many a man; burdens grievous to be borne are laid on weak and tired shoulders, and deformed and delicate children suffer in their slum homes without a murmur." "The Woodlands," Enfield, is, in every sense of the word, a home, and the unfortunate children speedily benefit under the loving attention they receive.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

A Phœnix Temperance Orphanage, established at Carshalton, Surrey, has been opened by Rev. Lord Seymour, rector of the parish.

The annual meeting of the Bristol and North Somerset T.A.U. has been held at Rosedale, Stanton Drew. The reports showed good work and real progress.

Said the late Professor Parkes, "If alcohol were unknown it might be truly said that half the sin and a large part of the poverty and unhappiness of the world would disappear."

"Facts about Alcohol." Under this title Dr. J. J. Ridge has issue a pamphlet (1d. National Temperance League) setting forth the medical aspect of the temperance question, showing in terms plain to all the injurious physical effects of alcohol.

Dean Farrar, addressing six hundred soldiers who attended Canterbury Cathedral on the eve of their departure for India, strongly urged upon them the advisability of becoming total abstainers if they wished to preserve their health in that hot climate.

The Crewe licensing justices adjourned the renewal of the whole of the tied-house licences. Out of ninety-three licensed houses in Crewe seventy are tied. At the adjourned hearing the licences were, however, renewed, some of the owners agreeing to strike out certain clauses in the agreements with their tenants.

The Manchester justices refused the renewal of four beerhouse licences, and cautioned the owners of eighteen others. With regard to grocers' licences, the licensing committee hoped that "some practical measure to correct a continuance of the granting of these dangerous sources of drinking might be adopted by the Legislature."

The United Temperance Conference ("the Temperance Parliament") will be held at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C., on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Nov. 13, 14, and 15. The President will be Alderman Andrew Johnston, J.P. There will be an "At Home" for members and their friends on Wednesday evening. It is intended especially to discuss, at this important gathering, the suggested "United Temperance Bill."

The report of the second annual conference of the Irish Women's Temperance Union forms a volume of some seventy pages. The report presented to the conference shows that the Union was formed on May 10, 1894, with twenty-nine branches. During the year meetings were addressed in many parts of Ireland by members of the committee and Miss Hanna, organising secretary, by means of which the branch associations were increased to fifty-four, with a membership of more than 6,000.

The Western Temperance League has held its fifty-eighth anniversary at Cardiff, when the league executive met in the afternoon. Later in the day a reception meeting was held, at which the delegates from a distance were cordially welcomed, and several congratulatory speeches were made. At night a large congregation met in Roath Wesleyan Church, and listened to a powerful sermon by Rev. Richard Richard, of Bristol, who strongly urged the duty of abstinence on Christian people.

According to the forty-ninth report of the Commissioners in Lunacy the total number of registered lunatics on January 1, 1895, was 94,081, being an increase of 2014 over the corresponding date of 1894. From the tables of assigned causes of insanity we learn that during the five years 1889 to 1893 inclusive "intemperance in drink" was the predisposing or exciting cause in 1675 male and 690 female patients, the proportion per cent. to the yearly average number admitted during the five years being 20·8 in male cases and 8·1 in female.

The State Board of Pardons of Ohio states in its report that it has in most cases deemed it prudent to include in the recommendation for pardon a condition requiring abstinence from the use of intoxicating liquor. This is done in the belief that it will lessen the liability of the pardoned prisoner to again commit the crime. "It is a conspicuous fact," says the report, "that in nearly every case of crime against the person the offender was either under the influence of liquor, or became involved in an affair by reason of being in a place where intoxicating liquor was sold."

Many visitors returning from France have noticed a great increase in drunkenness there. Formerly, like all wine-drinking countries, the French were a sober nation, but the same thing can hardly be said now. Statistics show that in the last twenty years no nation has made so much progress in the consumption of alcohol as they. The country has been flooded with cheap spirits, which, not having been rectified, contain the most noxious ethers. Thus the dearth of wine, on the one hand, and the ease with which spirits can be procured at a low cost (such as beetroot brandy and kirsch rum, a spirit distilled from cherry-stones), have worked vast changes in the habits of the French people, especially among the working classes in all centres of population.

The Book World.

Rest and Reaping. Miss Mason's little paper for the month is full of good matter bearing on the House of Rest and Christian work generally. (1d. Morgan & Scott.)

Gentle Jesus: A Life of Christ for Little Folks. By Helen E. Jackson. (3s. 6d. Sunday School Union.) This is a very readable volume, amply illustrated.

The Covenant Promise of the Father; or, The Enduement with Power from on High, by Thomas Payne, evangelist, is already in its fifteenth thousand. Its teaching on the Holy Spirit has been helpful to many. (1s. Marshall Bros.)

Two choice booklets by Dr. J. R. Miller are Young Men: Faults and Ideals: A Friendly Talk, with Quotations from Girls' Letters; and Girls: Faults and Ideals: A Friendly Talk, with Quotations from Young Men's Letters. (6d. Nisbet & Co.)

An amusing toy book for the young is Nonsense: For Somebody, Anybody, or Everybody, particularly the Baby-Body, written and illustrated by A. Nobody. Surely there never was a more funny book for nursery folk. (2s. Gardner, Darton, & Co.)

All the Prettiest Nursery Rhymes and some New Ones, with illustrations by J. R. Sinclair and others. (1s. Sunday School Union.) A capital collection of familiar friends, and other rhymes that promise to become popular in the infant world.

A Handbook of Theology: A homiletical manual of Christian doctrine, with list of questions for examination. By Rev. John Harries. (Elliot Stock.) A series of lectures originally delivered to a Methodist local preachers' class. Such as it is, the work will be of service, as the plan is comprehensive and the treatment at once clear and succinct.

One Hundred New Animal Stories, by A. E. Lomax. (1s. Sunday School Union.) We have dipped into this with delight. The stories are short and simple, gathered from many sources, and just what most boys like. It ought to do something towards fostering greater kindness to animals whose sagacity is illustrated afresh.

Stories of the Royal Humane Society, by Frank Mundell. (1s. 6d. Sunday School Union.) As accounts of daring rescues appear from time to time in the daily papers, the thought must have struck many that a collection of these would form a stirring book. The one before us, if it meets with the appreciation it deserves, may pave the way for a larger volume.

Messrs. Cassell and Company, Ltd., send The Quiver, closing present volume, and making interesting announcements for the new volume, starting next month. The "Playgrounds for the Children" scheme, inaugurated by the proprietors, is meeting with support. The Family Magazine contains many good things for home reading. Little Folks charms our darlings with its bright pictures, rhymes, and tales.

Chums is a favourite boys' paper. The annual volume (8s. Cassells) makes a splendid present for a lad interested in travel and adventure, and wishful to know something of healthful pastimes. Chats and interviews abound, and by degrees the reader learns all about great locomotives and steamships, and famous boys and their friends. There are several complete stories, and the volume is bright with illustrations.

Temperance Publications.—We have received from the Church of England Temperance Society a varied budget of new issues likely to prove of good service in the coming winter. The Members' Hymnal (1s. 6d., words and music) contains 115 hymns and songs suitable for adult temperance meetings. With it is issued The Church Temperance Hymnal (2d.), containing the words of 218 pieces adapted for juvenile and adult branches. A series of Leaflets, with music (1s. per 100) are also issued for festival use in both notations. There is also a series in album size (1d.), also a variety of action songs and cantatas suitable for Bands of Hope. Reciters are provided for in the Juvenile Reciter and Dialogues (6d.). A new certificate card for attendance (8d. per 100) is nicely got up. An address by W. Taylor on The Physiological Side of Temperance (1d.) gives useful hints to workers. Mrs. Margaret S. Haycraft has compiled a volume of Band of Hope Action Songs (6d.), and another entitled Simple Dramas (1s.) Lastly, there are two more volumes of the Azalea Series, under the titles of Friends in Dingy Court (1s. 6d.), a charming story of life in a London byway, by a new author; and Shifting Sands (1s. 6d.), by Susan Carpenter.

Prophecy and Popery; or, The Seventh Vial, is a useful expository booklet. By Rev. William Adamson. (1d. Oâhams Bros., 19, Floral-street, Covent Garden, W.C.)

Our Heritage.—Under this title, the Anti-Sunday Travelling Union has issued a little quarterly (1d., Partridge & Co.) full of matter bearing on the due observance of the Lord's Day.

Messrs. Jarrold and Sons have published an ingenious Toy Book, entitled Dolly's Mansion. (1s.) By a novel contrivance, it may be turned from a toy book into a real doll's house, and may thus be exhibited to the little ones.

The first of a series of apologetic tracts—Testimonies of Converted Secularists—has been published. The October issue is devoted to the story of Joseph Barker. (1d. post-free. R. C., 83, Kimberley-road, Nunhead, S.E.)

The world-famous "Life of Christ," by Rev. Dr. Geikie, published by Messrs. Nisbet, has been translated into Russian, with official sanction. Since then, M. Pobiedonostzeff, the Supreme Censor of Russia, has shown it the great honour of causing it to be adopted as a reading book in all ecclesiastical middle schools in Russia.

The Twelve Tribes: Who they are, and where they are, according to the last words of Jacob and Moses. By M. J. (4d. R. Banks & Son.) This is "identification" run mad. The author finds room for Aztecs, Cossacks, and Japanese, the peoples of Uganda, Wales, and Abyssinia, in the company of the more generally recognised "tribes." The reasons are in many cases extremely puerile.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

From Hutchinson & Co.—A Victory Won, by Annie S. Swan. (5s.)

S. W. Partridge & Co. — Life's Cameos. By Rev. Dr. Campbell. (5s.)

From George Allen, 156, Charing Cross-road.—The Gurneys of Earlham. By Augustus J. C. Hare. (Two vols., 25s.)

From T. Fisher Unwin.—Revelation and the Bible: An Attempt at Reconstruction. By R. F. Horton, M.A. New and cheaper issue, 3s. 6d.

From Wells Gardner, Darton & Co.—Desultory Retracings: A Personal and Family Record. By Catherine Jacson. (6s.)

From Hodder & Stoughton.—The Child Jesus, and Other Talks to Children. By Alexander Macleod, D.D. (3s. 6d.) Tales of the Warrior King: Life and Times of David King of Israel. By J. R. Macduff, D.D. (6s.) Turning Points in Successful Careers. By William M. Thayer. (3s. 6d.)

From Nisbet & Co.:—Aspiration and Achievement: A Young Man's Message to Young Men, by F. A. Atkins. (1s.) Biblical Character Sketches, by Dean Farrar and others. (3s. 6d.) Salvation and Service, or Practical Talks about Grace and Godliness, by Rev. George Everard. (3s. 6d.) Helps for Holy Days, being Brief Expositions taken from the Epistles and Gospels for the Day. (1s. 6d.) Morning Sunlight: Devotional Readings for a Year, by Charlotte Murray. (3s. 6d.) The Children's Prayer-Book, by Rev. J. Reid Howatt. (1s.) The Prodigal at Home Again, by Rev. Francis Bourdillon. (1s.)

ALDENHAM INSTITUTE.—The inaugural meeting of the winter session of the Aldenham Institute, Goldington-crescent, St. Pancras, N.W., was held on Saturday. The Rev. Alexander Connell (Regent's-square Presbyterian Church), who occupied the chair, said the conditions of the institute made study there a pleasure. What they sought to do was to demonstrate to the members that the business of life was to learn how to live nobly, uprightly and righteously. Labouring for this life was not everything; they had an imperishable nature to work for. He would not have given eight years of his life to hard study if he believed that all he had built up was to vanish with life on this earth. They were learning so that with mind and spirit they could serve the living God. Rev. George Wilson spoke on the importance of physical, mental, and moral culture. The prizes and certificates recently awarded were presented.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For special blessing on fifteen days' mission (October 6-20), conducted by Rev. F. E. Heape, in Durham-road, Finsbury Park, N.—For great blessing at a mission, to be held by Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Alexander, at Burgh Heath, Surrey, October 5 to 20.—For much blessing on a special mission in the parish of South Creake, Fakenham, from October 5 to 15, by Mr. Monro Collings.—For much blessing on the mission to be held at Twyford, Berks, in October.—For the Sunday afternoon class for men (over 1000), at Burton-on-Trent.—For blessing on a month's special mission, October 14 to November 10, by William Grove, at Union Hall, W.—For a three weeks' mission at the Free Methodist Church, Pool, Cornwall, by Mr. G. W. Clegg, commencing next Sunday, October 6.—For blessing on fourteen days' mission at London-road Hall, Kettering, by Mr. John Greenwood.—For blessing on a united Gospel Temperance Mission at Aylesbury from the 6th to 13th inclusive.

CHRISTIAN UNITY.—Manchester has taken the initiative in forming a union of Evangelical ministers of all denominations for the devotional study of God's Word, intercessory prayer, and Christian fellowship on the basis of the Keswick Convention motto: "Ye are all one in Christ Jesus" (Gal. iii. 28). The M.M.M. (Manchester Ministers' Monthly) was inaugurated on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 24, at the Albert Memorial Church, when Rev. Benjamin Bell (Withington Presbyterian Church), gave a Bible-reading on the subject of "Lessons for Ministers from an Old Prophet" (Jeremiah). The address was most helpful, and the solemn season of earnest pleading with God which followed was a time of refreshment. The next meeting, on October 29, is to be held on Presbyterian ground, and the Bible-reading is to be given by a Church of England clergyman. Rev. Charles Garnett (Ancoats Congregational Church), and Rev. C. Fenwick Ward (rector of the Albert Memorial Church), have been appointed honorary secretaries.

A SELECTION FROM

MORGAN AND SCOTT'S LIST OF PUBLICATIONS.

A CHOICE DEVOTIONAL VOLUME.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

THE SHEPHERD PSALM.

Meditations on Psalm xxiii.

Cloth Boards, 1s.

Cloth Bev. Boards, Gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

From "THE LIFE OF FAITH":—"Full of poetic fancy with practical lessons upon every page. The deeper spiritual truths for which Christians of to-day are yearning, are richly strewn throughout the book, which we hope will find its way into many homes."

A NEW BOOK

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Christ in Isaiah:

A SERIES OF EXPOSITIONS.

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

From "The Quiver."

"A new work from the pen of Rev. F. B. Meyer is always welcome to a large number of our readers, especially when the subject handled is so full of suggestive thought as his latest book, 'CHRIST IN ISAIAH,' just published by Messrs. Morgan and Scott. All preachers, and, indeed, all thinking readers, will owe Mr. Meyer no light debt of gratitude for this most helpful and thought-suggesting volume, which is a piece of truly expository work of the highest order."

A CHARMING AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

THE BELLS OF IS:

Or, Voices of Human Need and Sorrow.

With life-like Portrait of Rev. F. B. MEYER, and seven other full-page engravings.

Large 8vo. size, handsomely printed on Antique Paper.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Cloth Bev. Boards, Gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

From "THE IRISH CONGREGATIONAL MAGAZINE":—"The book is not only fascinating, but an inspiration to every earnest Christian worker. It shows us what one loving and sensible man can do for his fellow men. This book will be a revelation to many. May God make it a blessing to thousands!"

By BENJAMIN SCOTT, F.R.A.S.

(Late Chamberlain of the City of London).

The Testimony of the Catacombs:

A Vindication of Pure and Primitive Christianity and An Exposure of the Corruptions of Romanism.

WITH OVER SEVENTY ILLUSTRATIONS.

Tinted Covers, 2s. 0d. | Cloth Bev. Bds., Gilt edges, 3s. 6d.
Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d. |

THE DEAN OF ACHONRY writes:—"'The Catacombs at Rome' is one of the most useful books I know: as showing the purity and simplicity of the early Church at Rome, and exposing the spurious Christianity of the modern Church at Rome, and the corruptions and incrustations by which she has hidden or destroyed the pure faith of the New Testament."

From "THE BAPTIST MAGAZINE":—"Mr. Scott's object in this work is to derive from the Catacombs 'a vindication of pure and primitive Christianity, and an exposure of the corruptions of Romanism.' He has attained a high degree of success, and produced a valuable and standard work."

A SOUL-WINNER FOR CHRIST.

Isabella Macpherson:

A DEVOTED LIFE.

WITH LIFE-LIKE PORTRAIT.

By Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Author of "Duncan Matheson," etc., etc.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.; Cloth Bevelled Boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

PRESS NOTICES.

From The Literary World:—"Highly gifted with personal attractions, a clear intellect, easy persuasive speech, and a singular dignity of manner, Miss Macpherson consecrated every gift to the service of God; and the record of her life is one of stimulus and happy example."

From Divine Life:—"The story of a life gloriously successful in winning the most helpless and degraded to the Saviour. Incalculable good may be done by circulating a book of this kind, especially among young Christians."

From The Irish Congregational Magazine:—"Mothers should place this very fine biography in the hands of their daughters: it would also make a splendid present from a Sunday-school teacher to her class."

MORGAN & SCOTT'S EDITIONS.

Cruden's Concordance

To the Old and New Testaments.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S EDITIONS CONTAIN
Over 750 pages,
About 2,270 closely printed columns,
Nearly 250,000 references,
ALSO,
A List of the Proper Names of the Bible carefully revised and newly translated by Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A.

This List is strictly copyright and can appear only in MORGAN & SCOTT'S EDITIONS.

Illustrated Edition.
Contains 12 Exquisite Steel Plate Engravings and 6 Coloured Maps. Cloth Boards, Gilt Top. In Neat Box. 10/6

Popular Edition 5/-
Presentation Edition 7/6
Library Edition 10/6

THE PORTABLE EDITION
Strongly bound in Cloth Bds.
3/6

By Rev. Dr. CULROSS.

Principal of Bristol Baptist College.

John, whom Jesus Loved:

A SKETCH OF THE CHARACTER, WRITINGS, THEOLOGY, AND INFLUENCE OF THE BELOVED DISCIPLE.

With EIGHT Chromo-Lithographic Views.

A NEW EDITION; Handsomely Printed on antique laid paper.

Tinted Covers, 2/-
Cloth Boards, 2/6
Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges, 3/6

From a Review by the late Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

"The work before us is a great book for matter, though modest in size. Many writers are mere echoes of other men's voices, and are mainly of use in stirring up pure minds by way of remembrance; but one of the excellences of Dr. Culross is the freshness of his thought. The dew is on his branch; he is no withered bough of the autumn forest. . . . It is altogether without reserve that we commend the work before us. It is not a bottle of milk for babes, but a portion of meat for men. A half-dozen readings will only make it more interesting to those who meditate on what they read."

London: MORGAN AND SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C., and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

GOVERNESS FOR ONE OR TWO children. Young Italian lady. Evangelical. Educated in England. French and music. Well recommended.—Mrs. Darby, Hurstpierpoint. c7681

LADY RECOMMENDS GERMAN GOVERNESS, certificated. Perfect French and English. Good music, Latin, Italian, drawing, shorthand, and other usual branches. Nine years' English references.—c7746, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7746

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS wanted for girl of 15. Usual branches. Good music, drawing, drill, needlework. Moderate salary. Comfortable country home, north of Scotland. Dissenter preferred.—Address, Rosa, Strathearn House, Crieff, Perthshire. c7768

LADY wanted to accompany medical missionary and his wife to North China as governess to their three children (ages 10, 6½, and 7 years respectively). A qualified teacher preferred. Comfortable home and fair salary.—Apply, J. R. W., 61, East Dulwich-road, S.E. c7800

SEASIDE.—Wanted, at once, a student to assist with juniors. Special advantages in music and preparation for exams. Premium.—Mrs. Hackney Rhianva College (Girls), Hunstanton. c7738

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted, for three children. Ages 7 to 4. Must be experienced and fond of children. Comfortable country home. Earnest Christian valued. — Apply, Mrs. Hare, Hellifield Peel, via Leeds. c7784

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES

(English and Foreign), recommended GRATIS by Mrs. Edwin Hooper, Governesses' Institute and Home, Compton-terrace, London. N. (Established 1879). BOARD AND RESIDENCE from 15s. weekly. No fee to Governesses until placed. Schools recommended and transferred. c5211

SITUATIONS, ETC., WANTED.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

EVANGELIST or missionary, young, but experienced, desires appointment in poor, populous district. Good preacher and organiser. At present pastor of undenominational chapel in suburbs of Liverpool.—Apply, 15, Nursery-vale, Broadgreen, Liverpool. c7767

EVANGELIST OPEN for re-engagement anywhere, from October 13, on easy terms. Age 28. Single. Good experience and recommendations.—Apply early, M. L. Bidmead, North Moreton, Wallingford, Berks. c7769

EXPERIENCED EVANGELIST, YOUNG MAN, anxious to settle down, is desirous of meeting with suitable position, either as pastor of church, or position of trust, with opportunities for preaching. Good references as a preacher and soul winner.—c7754, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7754

CHRISTIAN WORK WANTED by young man (25) studying for the ministry. Acceptable preacher, and highly recommended. Weak cause worked up.—c7755, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7755

PARTIAL EMPLOYMENT.—A Christian gentleman, with highest credentials, and of large and varied commercial experience, is desirous of partial employment as manager, secretary, agent, receiver of rents, or accountant.—Beta, Roberts' Advertising Agency, 26, Paternoster-row, London. c5370

AS CLERK OR BOOK-KEEPER.—A lady can recommend a well-educated respectable man as above. Aged 63. He would give his services in return for board and lodging. — Address, Miss Nicholson, 2, Cranley Place, S.W. c7735

A LADY WISHES TO RECOMMEND Christian man who can make himself useful in almost any capacity. Has been soldier, gentleman's servant, etc. Wife, no family.—F. W. S., 122, Navarino-road, Dalston. c7733

CHRISTIAN MAN seeks place of trust, or would make himself useful in any capacity. Age 26. Single, good reference.—Write to A.L.N., c.o. Willing's, 162, Piccadilly, W. c7810

GARDENER (HEAD), or good single-handed. Fourteen years' practical experience, indoor and out. Christian. Excellent references. Married. No family.—Davies, Grennan Cottage, St. George's Mount, New Brighton, Cheshire. c7762

AS GROOM-COACHMAN. Good driver, single and pair. Town or country. Ten years' abstainer. Four years' excellent character. Two and three years' previous. Single. Age 30.—A. P., 8, Gledhow-terrace, South Kensington. c7761

COACHMAN AND GROOM, pair or single, thoroughly up to his work, willing to be useful. Christian. Abstainer. Married. Age 43. Unexceptionable character. Family grown up, in service.—Coachman, The Cottage, Ditton Hill, Surrey. c7741

LADY, EXPERIENCED in Christian work, seeks re-engagement. Accustomed to the management of homes, conducting Bible classes. Good organiser. Excellent testimonials.—Worker Y.W.C.A., 9, Mona-terrace, Douglas, Isle of Man. c7775

AN EARNEST CHRISTIAN LADY wanted as working secretary to the Winchester Y.W.C.A. Churchwoman. Some private means. Age under 40.—Bible classes and visiting.—Apply, Mrs. Warner, 20, Hyde-street, Winchester. c7811

LADY-CLERKSHIP WANTED, age 19. Has 18 months' training. For Civil Service. Will give time if desired.—Apply, A. B., 16, Trinity-square, E. c7726

WANTED, BY LADY (trained nurse), a post as matron in orphanage, school, rescue, or convalescent home. Salary £30-£35.—Miss Taylor, Swerford, Enstone, Oxford. c7718

RE-ENGAGEMENT AS ASSISTANT MATRON in orphanage or children's Home. Thoroughly experienced. Abstainer. Good reference. Or as attendant on elderly lady. Would assist with light housework.—C. L., 89, High-road, Kilburn. c7767

RE-ENGAGEMENT DESIRED BY A LADY, 30, as housekeeper to a gentleman where servant is kept, or as companionable help to a lady. Good references.—Miss Gale, West Hendford House, Yeovil. c7829

MRS. SAMUEL WILKINSON recommends a Christian lady of character and experience as responsible housekeeper or teacher of children. Musical. Cheerful and reliable. Excellent references.—Miss Whitmarsh, 21, Westbury-road, Brentwood. c7710

CARE OF OFFICES or position of trust for respectable Christian widow with two children.—Apply, A. F. Perram, Hon. Sec. Mission of Help to Suffering Poor, 88, Westbank, Stamford Hill. c7778

MRS. SOFTLY can recommend a respectable middle-aged person, thoroughly domesticated and trustworthy, as housekeeper or companion help. Comfortable home greater object than high salary.—Spring Lawn, Havant, Hants. c7737

HOUSEKEEPER OR COMPANION-HOUSEKEEPER. Thoroughly domesticated. Lady requires re-engagement. Understands cooking and needlework. Good manager, reliable, and abstainer. Good references.—A. T., Hill Crest, Loudow-road, Burgess Hill, Sussex. c7728

NO SALARY.—FRIEND-COMPANION for the winter with nice people and surroundings. Could comfort the lonely or aged. Kind and sympathetic. Highest references.—A.B.C., 90, High-street, Bedford. c7461

COMPANION TO ELDERLY LADY, or most suitable to have charge of invalid child where trained nurse not needed. Young lady, 28, seeks comfortable home. Small salary. Lively, musical, good needlewoman. Highest references.—H. C., 24, Highfield-road, Edgbaston. c7802

ENGAGEMENT WANTED as companion by young lady, or housekeeper to widower. No objection to one or two young children. Tall, domesticated, needlewoman. Abstainer. Highest references.—Dora, 73, Idmiston-road, Forest-lane, Stratford. c7758

A LADY, HIGHLY RECOMMENDED, requires re-engagement as useful companion or housekeeper. Trustworthy, conscientious, bright, domesticated, good reader and needleworker. Musical. Excellent references.— L., 1, Claytonterrace, Upper Holloway, N. c7775

A CHRISTIAN LADY desires a re-engagement as companion to an elderly or invalid lady. Abstainer. Kind and gentle. Excellent references.—F., 30, Keildon-road, Clapham Common, S.W. c7783

WANTED, BY MIDDLE-AGED person, situation to wait upon elderly or delicate lady, sewing-maid, or wardrobe-keeper in school. Very good needlewoman. Christian. Twelve years' character. —W. R., 5, Gill-street, Nottingham. c7776

PARIS.—FRENCH MOTHER'S HELP, 20, Protestant, abstainer, wishes situation in Evangelical family. Can speak no English. Experienced dressmaker. References.—Madame Dalencourt, 33, Rue Mouton-Duvernet, Paris. c7787

PLACE wanted as underservant or undernurse (16). Good references. Abstainer. Member of Y.W.C.A.—Louise Barker, care of Rev. Emmerson, 92, Waterloo-road, Ashton, Preston, Lancashire. c7750

SITUATIONS wanted, similar to children's or under lady's maid. Knowledge of dressmaking. Age 20. Wages £16. Dissenter.—c7845, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7845

COMPANION-NURSE, or housekeeper. A lady desires situation as above. Experienced, active and obliging. No objection to a Home or Institution.—Reference to Mrs. H. T. Clarke, Allercot, Oxford. c7760

MATERNITY NURSES (Diploma L.O.S.).—The honorary secretary can with every confidence recommend two nurses, both Christians and abstainers. Other nurses provided.—Further particulars on application, York House, Leamington. Telegrams, "Nursing." c6120

LADIES' MONTHLY NURSE (certificated) disengaged during November and December. Abstainer. Good references from both doctors and patients. Terms 5 guineas.—Ella, 3, Pyrland-road, Newington Green-road, N. c7832

A LADY WILL RECOMMEND useful person as nurse-attendant or maid-companion to delicate or invalid lady. Experienced in nursing. Good needlewoman. Abstainer. In or near London. Age 29.—E. B., 6, Lime-terrace, Chingford-lane, Woodford, Essex. c7817

A LADY CAN RECOMMEND a former member of her Sunday-school class as housemaid or house-parlourmaid. Seaside preferred. — Address, E. H. B., Badmondisfield Hall, Wickhambrook, near Newmarket. c7726

SITUATION WANTED, in Christian family for girl (20), able to do light work. Fond of children, cheerful.—Address, Miss Long, Central Hall, Philpot-street, Commercial-road, E. c7708

SITUATIONS, ETC., VACANT.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

SECRETARY wanted for Procter Gymnasium, and Hulme Lads' Club. Apply by letter, stating age and salary needed. Must be a young man, fond of boys, and of good education.—Address, Mr. H. C. Devine, Secretary, Silver-street, Hulme, Manchester. c7815

MAN AND WIFE wanted for mission work, house-to-house visiting, care of mission hall, clubs, etc. Must have good personal reference.—Apply, by letter, E.W., 4, Scarth-road, Barnes. c7815

MAN AND WIFE (no children), as caretakers and cleaners for London Y.M.C.A. Age 30 to 45. Good health, active, willing disposition indispensable. £1 weekly, with rooms, gas, and coals.—Apply, letter only (full particulars), to D., 16, Marco-road, Hammersmith. c7843

SINGLE GENTLEMAN or lady wanted, understanding stationery, to manage second-hand books. Rent, and room on premises, three rooms. Highly respectable country Parish-town. Half stock, small valuation.—Address, Wilson, 81, Boundary-road. c7818

DRAPERY. — Wanted, thoroughly experienced young men for fancy and heavy departments. Must be able to take middle if required. Pushing ready money trade. Close 2 o'clock Wednesdays.—Apply, stating age, salary, and reference, to J. B. Love, Devonport. c7725

WANTED AT ONCE, an experienced useful butler. Age 30 to 40. Abstainer. Good character indispensable.—Address, with full particulars, B., Bryn Erias, Colwyn Bay. c7742

CAN ANY CLERGYMAN or minister recommend a trained Bible woman-nurse for a quiet country village in Essex? Certificated midwife preferred. Good health essential. Would work under rector's superintendence, but must be large-hearted in sympathies.—L. J. T., 110, Brompton-road, London, S.W. c7828

ASSISTANT MATRON wanted in Home for Girls. Must be decided Christian and abstainer. Good needlewoman. Comfortable home and small salary offered.—State age, previous occupation, and references to Secretary, care of Mr. Roberts, 26, Paternoster-row, E.C. c5371

FOR WOMEN'S RESCUE HOME.—Two capable, energetic Christian women as matron and assistant, latter to manage laundry. Abstainers. Ages 30-40.—Apply, with references, Mrs. Richardson, 167, Beverley-road, Hull. c7834

GENTLEWOMAN wanted as housekeeper in farmhouse, one cow. Two young servants. Age 35 to 40. Dissenter preferred.—Write full particulars, Mrs. Abraham, Ringwood, Minster Lovell, Witney, Oxon. c7752

LADY'S MAID to one lady in the country. Must be good dressmaker. Good character indispensable. Christian preferred.—Write, A. A. A., Willing's Advertising Offices, 162, Piccadilly, W. c7811

DISTRICT AND PRIVATE NURSING. —Vacancies for pupil nurses. Three months' training. Fee 13 guineas. Certificate given. Work found, with salary, after training if wished.—Sister, 195, Romford-road, Forest Gate, E. c7845

NURSE wanted, English, Protestant, total abstainer, 25 to 30 years of age. Good needlewoman. One child, 13 months. Wages £20.—Mr. Lund, Pendleton, Manchester. c7730

THOROUGH CHRISTIAN YOUNG WOMAN wanted, as nurse to five children, undernurse kept. Good needlewoman, patient, good character indispensable.—Apply, first by letter, to Mathison, Highfield, Willoughby-road, Hampstead. c7736

LAUNDRYMAID wanted, not under 28, single-handed, for a small institution. £18, all found. —Apply to Matron, 187, High-street, Stoke Newington, or by letter. c7719

LAUNDRY-MAID WANTED in private family, must thoroughly understand her work. Assistance given. Wages £23 to £24.—Apply, Mrs. Howard Lloyd, Cannon Hill House, Birmingham. c7773

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, also well-trained young housemaid, for small family. Must have good characters.—Fairholme, Old Park-avenue, Nightingale-lane, S.W. c7843

WANTED FOR SOUTH OF ENGLAND, good plain cook, used to small dairy, help given. Wages £30. Also an experienced parlourmaid, wages £23.—Address, c7799, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7799

A GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted by a widow lady, no family. Must be over 30 and an abstainer. Church of England. At least a year's good personal character required. A very quiet situation. Only cook and housemaid kept. Wages £20.—Apply, by letter only, Mrs. James Brooks, Garthland, Arkley, High Barnet, Herts. c7805

A GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, where a housemaid is kept, age from 25 to 30. Personal character indispensable.—Apply to E. S., 23, Kidbrooke Park-road, Blackheath, from 6 to 8.30 p.m. c7784

WANTED AT ONCE, good cook, soups, entrees, savouries, bread. 35 to 40. Wages, £30. Abstainer, good character indispensable.—Address, with full particulars, B., Bryn Erias, Colwyn Bay. c7741

CAN ANY LADY RECOMMEND a thoroughly trustworthy person as good cook? Capable of taking the housekeeping if required. Comfortable home in a clergyman's family.—B. D., Knodishall Rectory, Saxmundham, Suffolk. c778

COOK WANTED, must have at least one year's personal character. Not over 35.—Apply, Mrs. McCall, Woodlands, The Forest, Walthamstow. c7721

CAN LADY RECOMMEND thorough parlourmaid? Good waitress, carver, and valet. Abstainer. Church of England. £20, all found except beer.—Lady Dodsworth, Harrogate. c7835

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted in quiet country house. Small family. Churchwoman. Good character. State age, experience, reason for leaving last situation, wages required.—Mrs. S., Coton Rectory, Cambridge. c7835

COOK-GENERAL SERVANT.—Respectable widow, 35-40. Abstainer. Highest references needed.—Write, stating wages, to Director, 56, Gipsy-road, S.E. c7839

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT AND NURSE wanted from October 25. Ages 23 and 20. Wages £16 and £13. Two little children.—Apply by letter, Mrs. Hunt, "Keswick," Ridgway, Enfield. c7711

A STEADY GENERAL servant, who understands plain cooking, is wanted for a family only two in number. A very quiet situation.—Mrs. Stedman, 50B, South-street, Dorking. c7763

CAN ANY LADY RECOMMEND a good general servant? Must be a good plain cook, and thoroughly trustworthy. Also a trustworthy housemaid.—31, St. Mary's-road, Canonbury, N. c7814

A SUPERIOR YOUNG PERSON wanted, in quiet situation, as general servant, single-handed. Plain cooking. Part washing. Must be obliging and trustworthy. Early riser and particularly clean. Cap not required. No fringe. Abstainer. Wages from £20.—State age, experience, and reference, c7788, Haddon's Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7788

TWO GOOD GENERAL SERVANTS wanted, one as cook, the other as housemaid, in a small quiet family. Abstainers. Ages from 25 to 30. Washing put out. Wages £18 and £17.—Apply to Mrs. S., Clifton Lodge, Clarence-road, Clapham Park, S.W. c7764

WANTED, FOR RICHMOND, October 21, general servant, age about 18, for lady and one child. Small house. Wages £14, all found. —Apply, Miss Cooke, Glencroft, West-hill, Putney. c7820

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted by October 24, Protestant. Two in family. Must have good character.—Apply, by letter first, to T. B. T., 100c, Queen Victoria-street, City. c7779

A THOROUGHLY RESPECTABLE young person wanted as general servant in a small family. Cook kept. Comfortable home.—W., 19, Tyrwhitt-road, Brockley, S.E. c7777

A STRONG GOOD GENERAL SERVANT for two ladies, in a quiet comfortable house. Good references required. Plain cooking.—Write or call at Mrs. Taylor's, 35, Huron-road, Upper Tooting, Surrey. c7749

WANTED IN NOVEMBER a trustworthy general servant to two ladies. Good plain cook, not under 23. Good wages.—Apply by letter to Mrs. Bell, Nutfield, Hadlow-road, Sidcup. c7724

CHRISTIAN SERVANTS' AGENCY for shipping cooks, housemaids, parlourmaids, and children's nurses. Kindly recommended by the Rev. E. G. Grange. Apply, Mrs. J. Densford, 6, Great Quebec-street, Montagu-square, W. c7764

LADIES WANTING SERVANTS and servants seeking situations, should apply to Miss Marsden, late missionary, 97, Harrow-road, Paddington Green, whose office is well known and kindly recommended by the Rev. G. F. Fentiman, D.D., and others. Stamps for reply. c7796

7s. 6d. A WEEK SALARY and upward offered to both sexes (for spare moments) everywhere. The work may be done evenings.—Apply, enclosing addressed envelope, to M. Truscott and Co, 5, Sherwood-terrace, Clarkston (105), Torquay. c5493

PROFITABLE ladylike business at home (10s. to 50s. weekly) can be secured with an "Automatic" Knitter. Cash or hire. Work can be had. —Write to C. V., Director, 67, Southwark-street, London. c5480

TO LET, APARTMENTS, ETC.

30 WORDS for 3s.
9d. for each Additional 9 Words.
Displayed Advertisements according to space.
Advertisements should be received by John Haddon & Co., Bouverie House, Salisbury Square, E.C., not later than Monday.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C. — A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bedrooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to J. W. Turner, Proprietor.

W. TAVERNER, TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from Great Northern, Midland, and North-Western Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Silent roadway. Ten minutes from British Museum. Tariff on application.

AT LONDON.—TRANTER'S TEMPERANCE HOTEL, Bridgewater-square, Barbican, near St. Paul's Cathedral, G.P.O., and all places of interest. Quiet, clean, economical.—Write for "Visitors' Guide," showing "How to Spend a Week in London," with tariff and testimonials, post free.

LONDON, VISITORS TO,
Will find Rest, Comfort, and Kindness at Bernard's
Private Christian Temperance Hotel,
1 and 2, Granville-square, King's Cross-road, W.C. Quiet square. Most central position in London. Bed and breakfast, 3s. Bed, breakfast, and tea, 3s. 9d. Reduction to Ministers. No attendance fees or gratuities. Write "Secretary" for rooms. c5414

BURR'S HOTEL, Queen-square, London, W.C., near British Museum, in centre of Metropolis, but just out of the daily noise and bustle, thus giving restful quiet. Write for terms. c3679

BERGERAC, FRANCE.—French family, lady English, receive boarder desiring change of climate or to learn French. Country house and grounds near town. Terms, £7 monthly.—c7804, Haddon's Advertising Agency, Salisbury-square, E.C. c7804

BOSCOMBE, BOURNEMOUTH.—Ladies' holiday boarding house. Near sea and chine gardens. Temperance. Terms 18s. to 25s. weekly. Special terms for long period. Stamp for reply.—Miss Ellis, Fairleigh, Drummond-road. c5603

BOSCOMBE. — Furnished apartments, Board if required. Terms moderate. Easy distance from sea and rail.—Mrs. Andrews, "Granville," Langton-road, Boscombe, Bournemouth. c7717

CASTLE COURT, EAST CLIFF, BOURNEMOUTH.
Private Boarding Establishment (warmed by coils in winter) overlooking Boscombe Chine Public Gardens. Magnificent land and sea views. Excellent Cuisine. Private Apartments. Boro' Sanitary Certificate.
MR. & MRS. J. D. HAZARD.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THE HOMESTEAD, St. Peter's-road.—Comfortable winter apartments, well furnished, in large and small suites. Sheltered. South aspect. Central, and pleasantly situated. Near sea and pines.—Mrs. Nicholls, Proprietress. c7597

BOURNEMOUTH.—Garfield, St. Michael's-road, West Cliff. — Board-residence (superior). Christian-abstaining. One minute from sea, pines, gardens. Bournemouth West nearest station. c5455

BOURNEMOUTH, BOSCOMBE.—Furnished house or apartments. No children. Christian.—Walpole House. Reference gladly given by Rev. F. Sloper, Boscombe. c7770

The Christian.

☞ To avoid delay it is requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan and Scott, and not to its individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

All Advertisements for THE CHRISTIAN should be sent to Messrs. John Haddon and Co., Central Advertising Offices, Bouverie House, Salisbury-square, London, E.C., accompanied by remittance. (For Terms, see Page 1 of cover.)

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

☞ The Publishers request that all orders for THE CHRISTIAN by post, and remittances for same, be addressed to "THE CHRISTIAN" POSTAL DEPARTMENT, BOUVERIE HOUSE, SALISBURY SQUARE, LONDON, E.C.

Cheques and Post Orders to be made payable to Messrs. John Haddon and Co. at that address.

The subscription for one year, including Postage and Coloured Almanack, is as under :—

For Great Britain and Ireland ..	6s. 7d.	per annum
For India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, France, Germany, and other European Countries	8s. 10d.	„ „
For United States and Canada ..	2¼ dols.	„ „
Or including Monthly Copy of HERALD OF MERCY	2½ dols.	„ „

Subscriptions for THE HERALD OF MERCY.

4 Copies monthly	2s.	per annum
8 „ „	4s.	„ „
12 „ „	6s.	„ „
24 „ „	12s.	„ „

Post free to any address at home or abroad.

Remittances to be sent as above. Postcard should be enclosed for receipt or extra stamp to cover postage of same.

Notes and Comments.

FROM Adam to the last man there never have been and never will be two members of the race precisely alike in spirit, soul, or body, in inward experience or outward circumstance. Yet one of the marvels of the Bible is that no experience is possible to a human creature for which there is not light and leading, wisdom and salvation, in this divine and everlasting book.

The Living Word, between his resurrection and ascension, opened the understanding of his disciples to understand the Written Word. Because the Scripture had so foreseen and so foretold, He asked, "Ought not the Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? And beginning at Moses and all the prophets He expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself." Surely, when we are at home in the mansions prepared for us, He will continue these profoundly interesting and illuminating expositions.

We cannot all join in organised work, in societies, in committees, in meetings; but there is a good deal to be done apart from it. Odd hours or minutes may be spent on single persons or on a handful of the poor. There are hundreds and thousands of aged persons who are spending days and weeks of monotonous weariness, to whom a kind visit would be a bright light in the day. Much is done in this way, but a good deal more might be done. Then there are poor children who do not even know how to play with each other in a happy rational manner; how easily could some of our young folk, whose buoyancy of spirit and elasticity of step remain with them, go and teach them. It would be a good work for Jesus if they would go to make the children merry for a few minutes. Then, there are the little invalid children, hidden away in silent courts, up in garrets, who are pining for fellowship, and change, and brightness. It needs no society to befriend them, but only one loving heart.

Mr. Albert Spicer, M.P., has drawn attention in a letter to two striking facts in our management of India. He says that there are four millions of children in India under some sort of education, but that were the numbers in proportion to those who are educated at home it would be fifty millions. The Government also spends on the army 25,000,000 tens of rupees, and on education only 1,500,000, nearly seventeen times as much on the army as on all the children of the country, and yet if there is anything certain it is that our moral hold on India is far stronger than our military hold. Righteousness will be a better defence of our reign than a mountain range guarded by troops.

The Christian life is not easy anywhere, but in the midst of dense heathenism or Mohammedanism it is peculiarly difficult. One of our friends in a Mohammedan field of labour said that she felt she must get away at frequent intervals from the depressing influences around her, if she was to keep the elasticity and vigour of her soul. We at home can hardly realise the temptations to which missionaries are exposed, and perhaps fail to pray for our friends as we ought to do. Cases of failure in character have happily been very rare, but there have been some, and they warn us of a grave danger. Prayer makes the purest and healthiest atmosphere for the Christian, both at home and abroad; it is his "vital breath," his "native air."

The fierce and cruel purpose of many of the "whites" in America to oppress the negro to the last degree has just expressed itself in South Carolina by a proposal to disfranchise him. The Civil War set him free, and when free, such men as Garrison and Phillips said that he must have equal privileges with the white man, and in order to exercise his privileges wisely he must be educated. One right thing thus carried the seed of another in its bosom. But the old slave-owning spirit, which has never died out, keeps reasserting itself, first in one hateful form and then in another. By violence and threatening it has long held the negro in certain Southern places in a state of subjection; now it proposes to rob him of a constitutional right. It may succeed for a time, but the negro will still be there: and the problem of what to do with him will remain until it gets its only answer—"Do to him as you would have him do to you."

The grandest reply of the churches of Christ to recent expostulations with regard to the sacrifice of missionaries' lives is the readiness of others to step into the empty places, and to carry forward the sacred work. At this time of the year there are always large parties of missionaries despatched to many lands, and this year more are sent to China than have been martyred there. Christian faith is sure of victory. Every land now Christianised has had its martyrs, who were the advanced guard of the Christian host, and recent events are not only normal, they are pledges of the success of the truth.

Wesleyan Methodism seems to be doing a good deal of work on the Continent, although we seldom hear anything of it, owing to its missionaries being nearly all natives of the various states in which they labour, and unable to speak in English. There are thirty-five missionaries in France, thirty-one in Germany, twenty-two in Italy, and ten in Spain. The work in Vienna has been much opposed, and a great deal of persecution has been borne, but at length the freedom of worship has been obtained. The Baroness Langenau, herself the fruit of the mission there, is a devoted worker.

A suggestion has been made by several honoured and influential men among Congregationalists that the ministers of a district might find it of great spiritual advantage at the beginning of the winter's work, to come together for a day to be spent in humiliation, prayer, and thanksgiving. No doubt this will be done in many cases, and with happy results. We can only testify of what we have experienced, and to have any experience we must see Jesus. Nothing can compensate for lack of devotion, of prayer and meditation. God must come into us, and fill us with all his fulness. Then there is the breath of life in everything we do, and the beauty of the Lord is upon it.

The Congregational Union, at its Brighton meeting, did wisely to move a resolution expressing the hope that the Government might be able to see its way to make arrangements for Prince Khama and his fellow chieftains to remain under the British Protectorate, instead of being transferred to the Chartered Company. It would give satisfaction to the nation, excepting, perhaps, any who have an interest in the company; but, above all, it would give lively satisfaction to one of the wisest and best of rulers, Khama, and also to his people. And surely they are the best judges of what they would like to have, and ought to be the first to be consulted. Not to regard their wishes would be to hand them over as if they were goods and chattels—slaves, in fact. Let Christians everywhere support their petition, and give the Government aid and encouragement to do the right; above all, let them wait on God to turn the hearts of those in authority the right way.

In a powerful address at the young people's meeting, Rev. W. J. Dawson, made a significant statement as to the temper of young men towards religion. As the result of several years of close contact with them all through the kingdom, he said that while they were often critical towards the churches, they were ripe for Jesus Christ. From all hands the same thing is borne in on religious teachers. Amid the seductions of pleasure, and the wide prevalence of materialism, there is a deep craving in many young hearts for "the Way, the Truth, and the Life." Sometimes unconsciously, but often consciously, they cry and crave for Him who alone can satisfy their young hearts. This should fill all those whose work is to preach Christ, so to present Him that his sufficiency for all their needs and aspirations are fairly presented. He has but to be shown as He is, in his simplicity and saving power, to awaken the true life in those who need Him, and who often "feel after Him" blindly, "if haply they may find Him."

We are glad to find that the Church Aid Society, the object of which is to minister to the needs of small Congregational village churches that are too poor to be self-sustaining, has recently been showing signs of revival. The funds have been declining for years, and grants already too low have had to be reduced. Under the generalship of Mr. Gerard Ford, the new treasurer, there are strong hopes that the worst has now been seen. At the Brighton assembly, he said he hoped the time would soon come when the minimum salary of village pastors, now in many cases under £60, would be raised to £100, and the good men who work so hard under discouraging circumstances, would so far be relieved from the pressure of poverty under which many of them are now labouring.

The National Sunday League, we regret to observe, has resumed musical performances on the Lord's day, starting in London with a sacred oratorio. It has, unfortunately, secured the co-operation of many well-known vocalists and instrumentalists; but in its efforts to secularise the Day of Rest it is not to have it all its own way. Indeed, from the midst of those who have been thought to be most "easy" on the subject, there comes an urgent appeal for protection from Sunday labour. Upwards of seven hundred and thirty persons engaged in the dramatic and musical professions have expressed a hope that the law which prohibits the opening of places of amusement and entertainment for money payment on Sundays may be upheld. The list includes many distinguished performers. We trust other classes of workers will be aroused before it is too late, and maintain their Sabbath birthright.

Turkey and Russia, which are such near neighbours, seem just now to be vying with each other in cruelty, the one towards the Armenians, the other towards the Stundists. It seems a piece of hypocrisy for Russia to be joined with France and Great Britain in demanding security for the Armenians, when the poor Stundists are obliged to seek refuge in Armenia from the Russian soldiery. There seems nothing to choose between a Kurd and a Cossack. And France, too, what is she doing in Madagascar with her African troops and her Sakalava allies? This oppression of weak tribes at the hand of the strong is a saddening sight. "How long? O Lord, how long?"

LAW AND GOSPEL.

For if the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory (2 Cor. iii. 9).

The Law is God's unchanging word,
"This do, and thou shalt live";
But no relaxing sound is heard,
No sin can it forgive.
"The soul that sinneth, it shall die,"
None can that word efface;
But Mercy whispers, standing by,
"Behold the Throne of Grace!"

Jesus, the Lamb for sinners slain,
That Law for us obeyed.
He brought to us eternal gain,
For all our debt He paid.
Whate'er of glory there may be
That still on Sinai dwells,
On Calvary's cross alone we see
The glory that excels.

Liverpool. Canon Burbidge.

CHURCH ASSOCIATION VANS.—At the recent Oxford Diocesan Conference, the work of these vans was discussed somewhat adversely. A sturdy defence was made by Canon Christopher, who said that the Church Association felt bound to do all it could to counteract the efforts that were being made to undo the Reformation. They circulated the Bible, books concerning the Reformation, and no doubt tracts were distributed. The conductors of the vans were carefully selected Churchmen, and if the effort were repressed on the plea that it was contrary to Church law and order, the result might be that the movement would be taken up by Nonconformist bodies. But he believed that so long as efforts were made by a party in the Church to undo the Reformation, the Church Association will persevere in its endeavours to counteract those efforts.

Christian Stewardship.

Sir,—The centenary meetings of the L.M.S., in many respects so delightful, must have raised in some minds the painful question: Are we, after all, disciples whom Christ would have recognised? Especially may this be said of the meeting on medical missions in which we heard from many eye-witnesses the oft-told tale, incapable of exaggeration, of the physical miseries of the heathen millions surrounding the few medical missionaries whom British liberality (?) has sent out to save their bodies and souls, while withholding, in some cases, the only means by which their work can be made effectual.

We have had jubilant declarations of the triumph of Christian altruism, but while the many are dying in body and soul for want of the help which the few could but will not send, because the luxury of home is more important than the salvation of any number of heathen, I think we might postpone our pæan, and pray for conviction of sin. We believe that our Lord said, "Whosoever forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple." If this means that the modern rich man can please Christ by giving of his superfluities, and may creditably retain the vast bulk for himself or the larger self of the family; if it means that the laying up of fortunes for those who are to come after him, and the encouragement of art, circulation of money, and employment of service, in all which he acts like the man of the world, furnish, together with his scanty gifts for the salvation of men, a satisfactory exhibition of Christian stewardship, we must conclude that these words of peculiarly solemn sound have after all but a very little meaning.

We want—on one side or the other—light on this question of stewardship. Will some of the rich stewards tell us how it seems to them possible to spend, say, an unnecessary £1000 a year on the maintenance of a luxurious home, while they could put their fingers on a dozen places on the map of the world in which this money distributed would mean the hopeful evangelism of many thousands, or the healing of their bodies racked by innumerable pains? If self must, in spite of Christian phraseology, be more to us than 10,000 of our neighbours, let us face the fact, and know the process of argument by which it is justified.—Yours sincerely,

Pastor.

MR. LANE AT EXETER HALL.

With respect to the special mission to young men lately conducted by Mr. W. R. Lane, The Association News for October says;—

"The attendance has been most gratifying. On many occasions the Lower Hall has been filled in the body and galleries; and there has been a large attendance. Two afternoon meetings have been held during the mission—one for bank clerks, and the other for Civil Service clerks. The latter was especially well attended.

"There has been no undue pressure or excitement; a quiet, earnest work has been done night by night and day by day—for an evangelistic address has also been given daily at half-past one o'clock. After-meetings have been held, during which on each occasion young men have evidenced by rising from their seats their desire to accept the Saviour. Personal conversation and prayer have followed. The nightly meetings, so long held at Exeter Hall, will be continued during the ensuing season. Rev. G. H. C. Macgregor, of Notting Hill, will address this evangelistic meeting every Thursday evening, commencing on October 17."

On Monday evening a meeting for the young converts led to decision at the mission was held, when more than 150 assembled in the Lower Hall. The general secretary, Mr. Putterill, presided. On behalf of the committee of the Central Association, Lord Kinnaird expressed much thankfulness at the result of the special effort. He urged the converts to identify themselves speedily with some Christian Church, and with the Association. Mr. Walter Hitchcock spoke of the value of the Association, whose operations he had seen in many lands. He was the bearer of a message from Sir George Williams, counselling those who had become disciples of Christ to study his Word. Several brief and deeply-interesting testimonies followed from the young men, telling out their new-found joy, and their experience of victory over sin.

The three secretaries, Messrs. Putterill, Burn, and Hooper, explained and advocated the claims of the Association, also enjoining the young converts to enrol themselves in some body of Christian believers, and thus gain strength in the spiritual life.

FRANCIS H. MACKENZIE.*

Through trials and temptations
He struggled on to rest,
His head in loving reverence
On his dear Saviour's breast;
Through years of yearning sorrow,
Through days of dreary pain,
He looked to that bright morrow
When loss should turn to gain.

One Friend he had 'mong many
Well loved and valued high,
One Friend whose hand upheld him
When none but He was nigh!
He toiled on and he trusted
His gleanings all to lay
At that Friend's feet when twilight
Grew into glorious day.

His faith was firm and steadfast
Even when his sight was dim!
He followed on full boldly
The path marked out to him;
And friends, who from a distance
Watched his stern war with wrong,—
Admired, amazed, confessing
His wondrous courage strong!

Thank God! his fight is over!
His name shines clear and bright,
And men who marvelled praise him,
Stern wrestler for the right!
Now weak souls he has strengthened
Must trust the Christ he knew,
Seeing what stormy waters
His faith had borne him through!

Elodie L. Mijatovich.

London, September 3, 1895.

BANGALORE TELEGU MISSION.

Bangalore, situated in the south of India, has a population of 180,000. Mission work has for a long time been carried on in the three principal languages, Canarese, Tamil, and Hindustani. A good many of the people, however, speak Telegu, and a number of the surrounding villages are inhabited almost exclusively by Telegus.

The Baptist minister there and two young ladies of his congregation go out to the Telegu villages spreading the glad tidings, with the aid of catechists and Bible-women, and are already cheered by the results of their labours. Prayer is asked, and help will be thankfully received by Pastor G. W. Gillings, 3, Museum-road, Bangalore, S. India.

THE FALL OF ANTANANARIVO was reported on Tuesday last. It was captured by the French on September 27, and the Malagasy Prime Minister and court fled to Ambositra, in the district of Betsileos. The news of the capture of the Hova capital was brought by the queen's couriers to Vatomandry on September 30. This intelligence raises many fears as to the missionaries and their work. It should give impulse to earnest prayer to God for his witnesses in Madagascar, and the coming of his kingdom in the island.

* These In Memoriam lines, written by the wife of the Servian Ambassador in London, will strike a chord in the hearts of all who knew our departed friend.

The Lord's Return:

THE APOSTLES NOT MISTAKEN.

By ROBERT CAMERON.

From time to time efforts have been made to destroy faith in the personal return of the Lord. The latest and most ingenious theory which the writer has seen is that which was published in New York a short time ago, with a great show of scholarship. In brief it is this:—"The Lord did make promises of an immediate return. The apostles preached it. They and the Apostolic Church expected that the Lord would certainly return in their own day. But they were all disappointed. Paul met the disappointment by changing his views, as seen in his later writings. The conclusion of the whole matter is that Jesus did not mean what He appears to say, and we must have a faith different from that of the early Church on this point, or be doomed to a more disastrous disappointment. It is better to let the question alone. If the apostles did not understand it, how can we? Let us wait for further light."

Now to all of this unbelieving assumption and irreverence, the answer is plain and unmistakable from the teachings of the New Testament.

1. It is a fact that Jesus never promised to return immediately after his ascension. He promised the exact opposite. Jesus represents the present day and his relation to it by "a man going into a far country, and delivering his goods to his servants." To one He gave five talents, to another two, and to another one. Then He adds, "Now after a long time the Lord of those servants cometh and maketh reckoning with them." It was after a long time, and not immediately that the Lord was to come (Matt. xxv. 14-20). Again, on his way to Jerusalem for the last time, "He spake another parable because they thought the kingdom of God should immediately appear." This parable was spoken to remove from their minds the expectation that the kingdom in manifested power, with Mount Zion as its centre, would come immediately. In other words, that the millennial glory would come with Christ as "King of kings and Lord of lords." This aspect of the kingdom can only come when the Lord returns the second time. Now in this parable thus spoken, "a nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return." His servants were to occupy (trade) until the return of the lord, and they had the assurance of plenty of time to get gain by the process of trading. This parable refers to the whole period between the ascension and advent, and this advent was to occur not immediately, but after time enough had elapsed for trading and for profit (Luke xiv. 11-27). So far, then, as the parabolic teaching of our Lord is concerned, there is not only that He promised to come back immediately, but the instruction given is in the exact opposite direction.

NO GROUND FOR THIS ASSUMPTION

2. In his last conversation with the apostles our Lord postponed to a long period in the future his return and the restoration to the Jew of governmental supremacy. When asked "Dost Thou restore at this time the kingdom to Israel?" He replied that it was not given to them to know when this "Coming and Kingdom" would be, but until that day they were to receive the power of the Holy Ghost coming upon them to qualify them to "be witnesses both in Jerusalem and all Judea and in Samaria and to the uttermost part of the earth." Here was a very long period between the disciples at that time and the return of the Lord to end the time of their witness and the time of Israel's humiliation. The uttermost part of the earth could not be evangelised in a moment, in a year, nor in less than many years. As a matter of fact, it has not yet been accomplished after nearly nineteen hundred years have passed away (Acts i. 3-8).

3. In harmony with this instruction is that given by our Lord a few weeks previous, on the slope of the Mount of Olives. He cautioned the disciples against expecting "the end" because of wars or pestilence or apostasies. Then He adds, "This Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole inhabited earth for a testimony unto all the nations; then shall the end come," and not before. This term "end" or "end of the age" occurs only in Matthew's Gospel, and defines "the time of the harvest" and of the closing up of this Gospel dispensation. Now this termination—end of the age—occurs at the time of the advent of the Lord. Thus we see again how plain it is that our Lord did not after his ascension, but immediately after the Gospel should be preached amongst all nations as a witness.

PROMISE TO COME BACK IMMEDIATELY

4. It is certain that Peter did not expect the return of the Lord in his day. The Master told that apostle, immediately after the resurrection, both the fact and the manner of his death. "When thou wast young thou girdedst thyself and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old thou shalt stretch forth thy hands and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not. This he spake signifying by what manner of death he should glorify God." In after years Peter refers to this in a most touching way:—"Knowing that the putting off of my tabernacle cometh swiftly, even as our Lord Jesus Christ signified unto me." And then it is a significant fact that Peter did not expect the Lord to return immediately after his own death. He assumes that He will not so come. Therefore he says, "I will give diligence that at every time ye may be able, after my decease, to call these things to remembrance" (2 Pet. i. 13-15). He evidently expected the Lord to "tarry," and the Church to go on in her warfare, long after he had passed away.

5. Again, our Lord taught not his apostles to expect his immediate return, but to await for the coming of the Holy Spirit, the Paraclete. The Holy Ghost and not the Lord Himself was the immediate object of their expectation. The "other Comforter" was to come, to glorify Christ, to show his things unto them, to guide them into all truth, to show them of things to come, to bring to their remembrance all of his wondrous teaching, and to be to them the power for a testimony as wide as the world. The thing put before those disciples then was not his return, but the coming of another, even the Holy Spirit to abide with them unto the end of the age (Luke xxiv. 45-49; John xiv. 16-26).

6. Again, the mission of the Holy Spirit was of such a character that they could not possibly expect the Lord to return immediately after receiving his presence and power. The Holy Spirit was to convict the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment to come. He was to be the enabling power for testimony to the ends of the earth. He was to give the believers words to speak when brought before rulers and kings. So wonderfully would He speak through them that all such persecutions would be occasions of testimony. Now all these things could not be accomplished in a man's lifetime. The apostles were men of good sense and sound judgment. They knew that such a mission of the Spirit would take much time. They preached and acted accordingly, and therefore did not look for the Lord in their own day (John xvi. 8-16; Luke xii. 11, 12; Matt. x. 16-20).

7. It is therefore not a matter of surprise that in Peter's two first addresses after the coming of the Holy Spirit, he was careful to indicate that Jesus would not immediately return. At Pentecost he quoted David, saying: "Sit thou on my right hand until I make thine enemies thy footstool." "Until" that time comes, Jesus will remain at the right hand of the Father. Then a few days afterwards the same apostle, speaking in Jerusalem, says of our Lord, "Whom the heavens must receive until the times of the restitution of all things, whereof God spake by the mouth of his holy prophets." In both cases, whether it be the subjugation of his foes or "the restitution of all things," Jesus must remain at the right hand of God, and in the heavens, until these times of God's action on earth on behalf of his Son shall have fully come. So we see that

THE APOSTLES DID NOT EXPECT

Jesus in their day—they did not preach what they did not believe, and therefore did not preach that He would so come; and the early Christians could not have gathered such an expectation from their teaching. If any individual or local church did expect the Lord at that time, it was an expectation not inspired by the Lord or his apostles.

8. When Paul parted from the Ephesian elders, he did not put before them the immediate return of the Lord. What he did say was: "I know that after my departing grievous wolves shall enter among you, not sparing the flock" (Acts xx. 29, 30). And this same apostle solemnly instructed Timothy concerning "the last days" of this Christian age. The very use of such a term suggests a lengthened period of time. The last days of this Gospel dispensation would be perilous, and therefore he was to "preach the word" as the only guide to the saints in the midst of increasing darkness (2 Tim. iii. 1-17; and iv. 1-4). Accordingly Paul knew that he would not live to see the return of the Lord. He said to his son Timothy, "the hour of my departure is come"—"I am about to be offered up." Now add to all this the fervid and emphatic statements of Paul to the Thessalonians about the Anti-christ and his destruction, and we see how absolutely baseless the fabric of this theory is. Jesus did not trifle with the early disciples. He said what He meant and meant all He said. He promised to return after receiving the kingdom. He promised to come with power to crush his foes, with a voice to raise the dead, and to change the living, saints; with rewards for every servant according to his works; with deliverance for the groaning creation, and with a kingdom to be established under the whole heavens, and to be administered in righteousness on the whole earth. But the Holy Spirit was to come first, evangelisation was to be universal, the Church made up of all nations was to be called out, and was to transpire, until the coming harvest with a coming Lord had brought in everlasting joy, while sorrow and sighing fled away for ever (James v. 7-9).

A LONG PERIOD OF PATIENT WAITING

9. After the apostolic days, the Christians understood the record of the seven churches in Revelation to indicate, not only the condition of those churches at that time, but also the progress of evil in Christendom clear to the end of this church period. These seven churches represented the historic development of Christianity, just as do the parables in the thirteenth of Matthew, commencing with the sower, and ending with the drag-net. Neither Scripture could, by any possibility, be fulfilled in a moment. The Apostles knew that the harvest would be long after the seed sowing, and the time for drawing the net a considerable time after the net was cast. There must be time for the wheat to grow, for the tares to annoy, for the leaven to work, and so on to the end. They knew also that the Laodicean period of the church could not be reached in a decade—perhaps not in very many decades. Therefore they "waited for his Son from heaven," and there is not a shred of evidence or a hint that any apostolic teacher ever taught or expected the immediate return of the Lord in his own day. When Paul speaks of "We who are alive and remain unto the Coming of the Lord," he speaks of the corporate body, and of the whole church of every age. This "we" covers the whole church period down to the last generation. These words may be used by us in the present day and in the same sense.

No, the early Christians were not disappointed. Paul did not change his views. His faith is our faith. We shall not be disappointed, "for yet a very little while and He that cometh shall come and not tarry." "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."—The Truth, edited by Dr. Jas. Brookes, St. Louis, U.S.A.

A JEW'S LETTER TO A FRIEND.

Dear Mrs. ——,—Knowing that you are one of those who pray for the conversion of Israel, I desire to draw your attention to the fact that the Jewish nation all the world over has just passed what is called by pious Jews "the fearful days," the most solemn season in their year. Thursday, September 19, was the first of Tisri, and was the New Year's feast, kept with much solemnity. September 29, ten days later, was the Day of Atonement, observed as a solemn fast. Four days afterwards began the Feast of Tabernacle—kept for eight days. The last day was the rejoicing of the law. The ten days between the New Year's Day and the Day of Atonement are called ten days of repentance.

Millions of pious Jews fast all the ten days. The rabbis teach that, on the new year three books are opened: in one are written the names of all who are righteous; in the second the names of those who are wicked; and in the third the names of those who are partly righteous and partly wicked. Those who are righteous are put down to live another year; the wicked are put down to death; but those who are half and half are given ten days in which to repent of their sins. They say that fasting, prayer, and alms-giving will turn away bad decrees. Thus, they go about to establish their own righteousness, which is only filthy rags.

My aged father was a very pious Jew, he used to fast the ten days between the New Year and the Day of Atonement. On the afternoon of the end of the Day of Atonement, I used to go with him to the synagogue; he would lie on the ground face downwards, and a rabbi would give him thirty-nine stripes with a leather strap, meanwhile repeating some prayers. After he got up, he would go into a room where there was a large table, on which stood a number of plates, into which he would put money for charitable purposes. At what is called the "Additional Service," the most solemn in the day, my father used to pray for more than two hours, in a stooping position. His large prayer-book on his seat was covered with tears. I can even now see his face with my mind's eye when he sat down to rest after his long prayer; he looked very sad the picture of "a lost sheep."

If you can get some friends to join in earnest believing prayer for God's Holy Spirit to be poured abundantly on the Jewish people, we might see great numbers of them come to Him who is the Lord our righteousness. A. L.

Jerusalem, the Holy City.

(2 Sam. v.)

By Rev. F. B. MEYER.

One of the first acts of the new king was to secure a suitable capital for his kingdom. And his choice of Jerusalem was a masterpiece of policy and statesmanship. Surely it was more; it was the result of the direct guidance of the Spirit of God. This was the time of which Jehovah speaks in that passage of Ezekiel quoted previously: "I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, and behold thy time was the time of love; and I swore unto thee, and entered into a covenant with thee, and thou becamest mine" (xvi. 8).

It was highly desirable that the capital should be accessible to the whole country, and should possess the necessary features that rendered it fit to become the heart and brain of the national life. It must be capable of being strongly fortified, so as to preserve the sacred treasures of the kingdom inviolate. It must combine features of strength and beauty, so as to arouse the national pride and devotion. It must be hallowed by sacred associations, so as to become the religious centre of the people's holiest life. All these features blended in Jerusalem, and commended it to David's Divinely-guided judgment. In this he greatly differed from Saul, who had made his own city, Gibeah, his capital—an altogether insignificant place, and the scene of an atrocious crime the infamy of which could not be obliterated. To have made Hebron the capital would have excited the jealousy of the rest of Israel; and Bethlehem, his birthplace, would have struck too low a keynote. None were to be compared with the site of Jerusalem, on the frontier between Judah and Benjamin, surrounded on three sides by valleys, and on the other side, the north, strongly fortified.

I.—ITS PREVIOUS HISTORY.

To the Jew there was no city like Jerusalem. It was the city of his God, situate in his holy mountain: "Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth." The high hills of Bashan were represented as jealous of the lowlier hill of Zion, because God had chosen it for his abode. The mountains that stood around her seemed to symbolise the environing presence of Jehovah. The exile in his banishment opened his windows towards Jerusalem as he knelt in prayer, and wished that his right hand might forget its cunning sooner than his heart fail to prefer Jerusalem above its chief joy. The charm of the yearly pilgrimage to the sacred feasts was that the feet of the pilgrim should stand within her gates; and when at a distance from her walls and palaces, pious hearts were wont to pray that peace and prosperity might be within them for the sake of those brethren and companions who were favoured to live within her precincts. The noblest bosom that ever throbbed with true human emotion heaved with convulsive sobs at the thought of the desolation impending over her. Jesus wept when He beheld the city and said: "Oh, Jerusalem, Jerusalem, how often would I have gathered thee, as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings."

But it had not always been so. Her birth and nativity were of the land of the Canaanite. An Amorite was her father, and her mother a Hittite. In the day that she was born she was cast out as a deserted child on the open field, weltering in her blood. For a brief spell the priest-king Melchizedek reigned over her, and during his life her future glory must have been presaged. The thin columns of smoke that arose from his altars, anticipated the stately worship of the Temple; his priesthood foreshadowed a long succession of priests. Thereafter a long spell of darkness befell her, and for years after the rest of the country was in occupation of Israel, Jerusalem was still held by the Jebusites. Joshua, indeed, nominally subdued the city in his first occupation of the land, and slew its king, but his tenure of it was very brief and slight, and the city speedily relapsed under the sway of its ancient occupants.

II.—THE CAPTURE.

Making a levy of all Israel, David went up to Jerusalem. For the first time, for seven years, he took the lead of his army in person. Passive, when he was called to wait for the gift of God, he was intensely active and energetic when he discerned the Divine summons. The Jebusites ridiculed the attempt to dislodge them. They had held the fortress for so long, and were so confident of its impregnable walls, that in derision they placed along the walls a number of cripples, and boasted that these would be strong enough to keep David and his whole army at bay. But it appears from the narrative given by Josephus, that Joab, incited by David's proclamation of making the captor of the city his commander-in-chief, broke in by a subterranean passage, excavated in the soft limestone rock, made his way into the very heart of the citadel, and opened the gates to the entire army.

Whether this story be true or not, it is certain that through Joab's prowess the city speedily fell into David's hands, and he dwelt in the stronghold, afterwards known as Zion, or the City of David. This was only part of what was afterwards known as Jerusalem. Moriah, where afterwards the Temple was erected, was probably an unoccupied site. Araunah, the Jebusite, had a threshing-floor there.

David's first act was to extend the fortifications; "He built round about from Millo and inward"; whilst Joab seems to have repaired and beautified the buildings in the city itself. This first success laid the foundation of David's greatness. "He waxed greater and greater, for the Lord, the God of hosts, was with him." Indeed, neighbouring nations appear to have become impressed with the growing strength of his kingdom, and hastened to seek his alliance (1 Chron. xi. 7-9; 2 Sam. v. 11).

III.—A FAIR DAWN.

It has been suggested that we owe the 101st Psalm to this hour in David's life. He finds himself suddenly called to conduct the internal administration of a great nation, that had, so to speak, been born in a day, and was beginning to throb with the intensity of a long-suspended animation. The new needs were demanding new expression. Departments of law and justice, of finance, and of military organisation, were rapidly being called into existence, and becoming localised at the capital. Functionaries and officials of every description were being created. The palace and court were every day thronged with those who sought promotion to offices of trust. It was highly desirable that no mistake should be made in these early selections, and that the country should be reassured as to the character of the men whom the king was prepared to entrust with its concerns. For these purposes this psalm may have been prepared. In any case, it admirably answered the purpose.

The royal Psalmist declares that he will behave himself wisely in a perfect way, and will walk within his house with a perfect heart. He will set no base thing before his eyes, and hates the work of those that turn aside. Then he describes those who shall be his chosen counsellors and ministers. He will listen to no privy slanders, subtly suggested to his ear, as from another Doeg or Cush. He will not suffer Hamans with their high looks and proud hearts, to rule his privy-council, and oppress the poor Mordecais at the gate. If he discovers deceit or falsehood in any of his attendants, any species of deception or misrepresentation, he pledges himself to dismiss him instantly. His earliest and best energies should be devoted to cutting off all workers of iniquity from the city of the Lord, and to the destruction of all the wicked of the land; whilst his eyes should be upon all the faithful of the land, they should dwell with him, and he would choose as his favoured attendants those who walked in a perfect way.

It was a fair ideal. Those early days of the new kingdom were fitly described by him, as he reviewed them from the threshold of eternity, as a morning without clouds, or as when the tender grass springeth out of the earth through clear shining after rain. The conception of the righteous ruler, ruling men in the fear of God, and thrusting away the ungodly as thorns and briars, stood out sharply defined and clear cut before him. It beckoned to him to follow, and if only he had obeyed and followed, without swerving to the right or left, what tears of blood, what years of anguish, would have been saved. As a dying man, that ideal of more than thirty years before came back on him, and compared sadly with what had actually befallen him. It was bitter to contrast what had been, with what might have been, the muddy swamp in which the river of his life had nearly lost itself, with the clear crystal of its first inception (2 Sam. xxiii. 1—5).

NOTES FROM TIBET.

In recent communications from Tibet, Miss Annie R. Taylor says:—There is interesting news from Lhassa; for the Dalai Lama, who is now nineteen years of age, has taken the reins of Government, and been proclaimed King of Tibet. He has had a dispute with the Chinese Amban, and told him that he is not the servant of the Emperor of China. This, of course, is evident, for the Emperor worships him as a god; and the Amban is, so it is said, in Lhassa for the express purpose of protecting the Dalai Lama. The latter is always supposed to assume temporal as well as spiritual rule when he reaches the age of eighteen; but for over a hundred years no Dalai Lama has reached that age, having, as the Tibetans say, transmigrated and been re-incarnated. The temporal government of Tibet has thus been entrusted to a Lama chief called Devashung, or King of Tibet, with a number of chiefs under him. This office is for the present done away with. For the sake of retaining commercial interests, China keeps Tibet closed to Europeans; but we pray that the new move of the Dalai Lama may tend to the opening up of Tibet.

Life in Tibet is much easier than in Central Africa; one can get warm here, but in Africa one cannot get cool; and then it is healthy in Tibet. I enjoy very much the visiting among the people on the mountain sides with their cattle. I am treating for an affection of the skin the mother of the deposed King of Sikkim; she has sent me as a present a piece of Tibetan cloth. How good it would be to win her for Jesus. Quite a number of the people come to service on the Lord's day, as well as to see me on week days. Yet the country is still in darkness. Travellers from England, France, and Russia go in amongst the people; are God's servants not content to live in huts, tents, or caves, and wander among the mountains? The Tibetans are more accessible than one may think, if God's servants will forego comforts, and wear the native dress.

At the end of July I arrived at Yatong. The chief has written to the King of Tibet, at Lhassa, telling him that I love the Tibetans, and so it is good for me to be here. The first time I came, the Chinese urged that I should be stopped by soldiers; but the Tibetan chiefs met, and insisted that I had a perfect right to come, for the treaty says, "all British traders." It is very slow work getting the timber ready for the doors, windows, and shelves of my shop. I pray that with other workers God will send a doctor.

THEATRICAL TEA MEETING. — Mr. William Forbes held a tea meeting on Wednesday of last week, at Kensington, for the women and girls engaged at the Empress Theatre, Earl's Court. After tea there were solos, hymns, and short addresses.

Fellowship with God.

NOTES ON AN ADDRESS BY
REV. ANDREW MURRAY.

1. The first and chief need of our Christian life is—fellowship with God. The Divine life within us comes from God, and is entirely dependent upon Him. As I need every moment afresh the air to breathe, as the sun every moment afresh sends down its light, so it is only in direct living communication with God that my soul can be strong. The manna of one day was corrupt when the next day came. I must every day have fresh grace from heaven; and I obtain it only in direct waiting upon God Himself. Begin each day by tarrying before God, and letting Him touch you. Take time to meet God.

2. To this end let the first act in your devotions be a setting yourself still before God. In prayer or worship everything depends upon God taking the chief place. I must bow quietly before Him in humble faith and adoration. God is. God is near. God is love, longing to communicate Himself to me. God the Almighty One, who worketh all in all, is even now waiting to work in me, and make Himself known. Take time, till you know God is very near.

3. When you have given God his place of honour, glory, and power, take your place of deepest lowliness, and seek to be filled with the spirit of humility. As a creature it is your blessedness to be nothing, that God may be all in you. As a sinner you are not worthy to look up to God; bow in self-abasement. As a saint, let God's love overwhelm you, and bow you still lower down. Sink down before Him in humility, meekness, patience, and surrender to his goodness and mercy. He wil exalt you. Oh, take time to get very low before God.

4. Then accept and value your place in Christ Jesus. God delights in nothing but his beloved Son, and can be satisfied with nothing less in those who draw nigh to Him. Enter deep into God's holy presence, in the boldness which the blood gives and in the assurance that in Christ you are most well-pleasing. In Christ you are within the veil. You have access into the very heart and love of the Father. This is the great object of fellowship with God, that I may have more of God in my life, and that God may see Christ formed in me. Be silent before God, and let Him bless you.

5. This Christ is a living Person. He loves you with a personal love, and He looks every day for the personal response of your love. Look into his face with trust, till his love really shines into your heart. Make his heart glad by telling Him that you do love Him. He offers Himself to you as a Personal Saviour and Keeper from the power of sin. Do not ask, Can I be kept from sinning if I keep close to Him? But ask, Can I be kept from sinning if He always keeps close to me? And you see at once how safe it is to trust Him.

6. We have not only Christ's life in us as a power, and his presence with us as a person; but we have his likeness to be wrought into us. He is to be formed in us, so that his form or figure, his image, can be seen in us. Bow before God until you get some sense of the greatness and blessedness of the work to be carried on by God in you this day. Say to God, "Father, here am I for Thee to give as much in me of Christ's likeness as I can receive." And wait to hear Him say, "My child, I give thee as much of Christ as thy heart is open to receive." The God who revealed Jesus in the flesh and perfected Him, will reveal Him in thee and perfect thee in Him. The Father loves the Son, and delights to work out his image and likeness in thee. Count upon it that this blessed work will be done in thee as thou waitest on thy God, and holdest fellowship with Him.

7. The likeness to Christ consists chiefly in two things—the likeness of his death and resurrection (Rom vi. 5). The death of Christ was the consummation of his humility and obedience, the entire giving up of his life to God. In Him we are dead to sin. As we sink down in humility, and dependence, and entire surrender to God, the power of his death works in us, and we are made comformable to his death. And so we know Him in the power of his resurrection, in the victory over sin, and all the joy and power of the risen life. Therefore, every morning, "present yourselves unto God as those that are alive from the dead." He will maintain the life He gave, and bestow the grace to live as risen ones.

8. All this can only be in the power of the Holy Spirit, who dwells in you. Count upon Him to glorify Christ in you. Count upon Christ to increase in you the inflowing of his Spirit. As you wait before God to realise his presence, remember that the Spirit is in you to reveal the things of God. Seek in God's presence to have the anointing of the Spirit of Christ so truly that your whole life may every moment be spiritual.

9. As you meditate on this wondrous salvation, and seek full fellowship with the great and holy God, and wait on Him to reveal Christ in you, you will feel how needful is the giving up of all to receive Him. Seek grace to know what it means to live as wholly for God as Jesus did. Only the Holy Spirit Himself can teach you what an entire yielding of the whole life to God can mean. Wait on God to show you in this what you do not know. Let every approach to God, and every request for fellowship with Him, be accompanied by a new, very definite, and entire surrender to Him to work in you.

10. "By faith"—here, as through all Scripture and all the spiritual life, this must be the key-note. As you tarry before God, let it be in a deep, quiet, faith in Him, the Invisible One, who is so near, so holy, so mighty, so loving. In a deep, restful faith, too, that all the blessings and powers of the heavenly life are around you, and in you. Yield yourself in the faith of a perfect trust to the Ever Blessed Holy Trinity, to work out all God's purpose in you. Begin each day thus in fellowship with God, and God will be all in all to you.

The above was written by Rev. Andrew Murray for the students at Mr. Moody's Bible Institutes at Chicago. A few thousand copies have been printed on tinted paper, for insertion in Bibles, etc., which may be obtained at this office, price 1s. 6d. per 100, or 10s. per 1000.

REV. JOHN McNEILL.

Dear Sir,—Rev. John McNeill is anxious to give the coming year to evangelistic work in the large centres in England. He began his work on Sunday last in Newcastle, to continue in that city and surrounding districts till the middle of November, when he begins special services in Wales, and closes the year with a week's work in Derby. As secretary of the mission, I shall be glad to communicate with friends who desire the services of Mr. McNeill. Let it be clearly understood that Mr. McNeill will only accept invitations from cities where the clergymen and ministers of all denominations unite in inviting the preacher, as he does not desire to be under the auspices of any denominational committee. Might I be allowed the further request, that friends do not write asking Mr. McNeill to address annual meetings or to conduct anniversary services, as he has been obliged to refuse all such invitations.—Yours truly, Wm. M. Oatts.

Christian Institute, 70, Bothwell-street, Glasgow.

HOUSE OF REST, ST. JOHN'S WOOD.—The autumn meetings were begun on Friday. The inaugural address was given by Rev. Sydenham L. Dixon, of Park Chapel, on "Some Helps to the Spiritual Life." Mr. Wigstone, from Spain, and Mr. Luckock proceeding on the 17th to Frere Town in connection with the C.M.S., spoke at the intermediate meeting, and Dr. Montague Miller addressed the evening gathering. All the meetings were well attended.

Pioneering in Peru.

By Mrs. HARRIET L. MILNE.*

We were delayed at Tarma some days for lack of animals, but finally started. Our new guide was not a very hopeful case, having been drunk the night before, and causing us two hours' delay that morning. For a long way beyond Tarma the patches of cultivated land by the river side are almost continuous, and far up the mountain side one could see small fields of yellow barley; some waving in the breeze and some just harvested. We continued to pass many Indian villages, as well as isolated huts. Many of these latter were merely drinking-places, with a small white flag flying over the low door or stuck in the thatch as a sign. We passed the little town of Palca, with its white houses, open square, and church, but did not stop there.

